I hope no member of the University will miss his remaining three talks, and that they will begin to work out the implications of the questions he raises with the help of the Associate-Missioners.

Les Carabins

HOW DID HE GET IN HERE?

—Cartoon by JOHN RICCIARDELLI

art, music and drama

CRITIC IN THE DARK

It's A Woman's

Women's World, at the Odeon-Toronto theatre, is, if you will believe the press agents, the logical successor to no less than three motion pictures. Directed by Jean Negulesco, it is the third of a series he has spent the past couple of years concocting, the other two being How To Marry a Millionaire and Three Coins in the Fountain. Strange to relate, the plots of all three motion pictures run in threes: three gold-diggers in How to Marry a Millionaire, three husband-hunters in Three Coins in the Fountain, and now three wives with ambitious husbands. Oh yes, the last film to which Women's World is alleged to bear a resemblance is Executive Suite. Frankly, the only things those two have in common are June Allyson and Big Business. Women's World depicts the search of the Gifford Motor Company for a suitable man to fill the recently vacated post of general manager. Called to New York to be "looked over" are Gifford's three top salesmen and their wives: Cornel Wilde and June Allyson of Kansas City, Fred MacMurray and Lauren Bacall of Philadelphia, and Van Heflin and Arlene Dahl of Dallas. Despite the display of beautiful ladies (much of which seems to be Arlene Dahl), handsome gentlemen, and wonderful old New York, I was most entranced with the late model automobiles which flit through the film, and which were provided (don't guess) by the Ford Motor Company. Sly ones, aren't they?

How to Marry a Millionaire succeeded by the sheer force of its silliness, and the fact that it was Toronto's second cinema-mascope picture. Three Coins in the Fountain was a highly competent "prestige" picture which owed much to Negulesco's superb use of the Italian scenery. For Women's World, cinema-mascope is not enough: though the director makes the best use I have yet seen of the wide-screen method. (There are a couple of lovely shots of Forty-Second street at twilight and Negulesco appears to be no man to flinch at a beat cut or a close-up.) But the thinly-written screen-play triumphs, and beaten into submission by the wooden performances of Cornel Wilde and Clifton Webb, the picture quietly succumbs. June Allyson, as a warm-hearted middle-westerner with a too-busy tongue, however, almost steals the show, and Van Heflin contributes a solid performance as the unfortunate man whose wife tries to vamp the boss into giving him the job.

As for any comparison between Executive Suite and Women's World, well, no comment.

Germaine Clinton

a reader writes:

Vindication

The AM & D Editor
The Varsity

Murray Schafer admits a negative answer in his questioning of music criticism because his inconsistency has left him floundering. The task of the critic, he says, is to "recapitulate briefly the experience that the work of art had on him and... to comment upon this experience." But the music critic can't do this "because it is impossible to describe musical discourse in terms of language"; therefore he should "tell us about the historical climate of the work, its composition, its aims and its appeals."

The first quotation is a half truth. Recapitulate the experience, yes, but then the comment is upon the work and the performance, as the stimulus to the experience, and this any music critic worthy of the title does. And no critic, of any art, tries to describe that art in terms of language — that is the business of the writer. Longinus' description of Homer, Aldous Huxley's of Beethoven's A minor quartet, Thomas Mann's description of Hans Castorp's photograph session — these are literature first, and not at all music criticism. As for that request for information about the music — let Mr. Schafer go to the musicologists, that is their job.

But the fundamental issue in music criticism, its supreme value and justification — if one is needed — escapes Mr. Schafer completely. Music is the only art that must have a mediator between the product and the consumer, namely, the performer. The critic decides first whether the work he hears is good or bad; after that, at every hearing he must decide what the performer has done with it, how close he has come to the ideal that is always in the critics' mind, if he knows the score. This reliance on the performer is inescapable, except for solo compositions on an instrument which the listener happens to play. All great composers wrote some dull music, all great performers sometimes play badly: music needs the critic. His worth and his greatness are in proportion to the breadth of his experience and wisdom, the depth of his sensitivity, his honesty and his ability to write: for these, we who listen to music need him.

If T. S. Eliot had taken time to reconsider, he probably would not have made his petulant comment, Berlioz, Schumann, Debussy, Donald Tovey, Bernard Shaw, Virgil Thomson, Aaron Copland, Rene Leibovitz — all artistically frustrated? But they are all great critics. Read them Mr. Schafer.

David Simonoff

Callboard

ART

In the Hart House Art Gallery, an exhibition by John A. Hall. As usual it's a Women's World on Wednesdays.

At the Art Gallery of Toronto, "Three Canadians" are on view. The Scandinavian Show is still at the Royal Ontario Museum. It's been so popular that they have run out of illustrated catalogues to the exhibit.

MUSIC

William Primrose, violinist is the guest artist in the TSO subscription concerts this Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The program includes music by Purcell, Coates, Berlioz, Hindemith and Brahms. Sir Ernest conducting.

Mischa Elman plays in the International Artist series next Monday at Massey Hall. He will play Lalo's Symphonie Espagnole and other works.

The program of the Polonia Opera Company which was scheduled for Thursday night in Eaton Auditorium has been canceled. Carnegie Record Hour this Thursday at 4.30 in the Staff lounge of the Mechanical Building. The program of Bach's Trio Sonata for flute, violin and keyboard and the Goldberg Variations will be presented by Michael Oliver.

DRAMA

The Caine Mutiny Court Martial all this week at the Royal Alexandra. It is reputed to be very good. Next comes Oklahoma exclamation point.

Charley's Aunt is in its last week at the Crest. The first playing of Eliot's The Confidential Clerk around these parts will start on November 16.

The UC French Club present Beaumarchais' Le Barbier de Seville. Both amusing and on several French courses. There are several actors of some experience in the cast; notably John Walker as Figaro, Charlotte Schraeger as Rosine and Parsons as the Count.

A Midsummer Night's Dream presented by the Old Vic Company is coming eventually — i.e. on Dec. 14th; however, it has been quite popular, so it might be wise to get tickets early. The opinion in New York seems to be that it is very entertaining although not necessarily an ideal presentation of Shakespeare.

Friday and Saturday night the UTDC, commonly known as the University of Toronto Drama Committee presents five one-acts. Friday night: The Respectable Prostitute by Sartre and the Happy Journey by Thornton Wilder; and Saturday: The Fall of the City by Archy MacLeish, Sunday Costs Five Pesos and Maeterlinck's The Intruder. Frances Hyland, adjudicator.

MOVIES

At Shea's the Rear Window, another excellent Hitchcock presentation. At Loew's, Brigadoon and up the street a premature White Christmas, a weaking child, Woman's World and Doctor in The House are still with us. And popular Marion Brando has come back at popular prices.

—W.M.

Le Barbier de Seville

Singing lesson? — The Count Almaviva (Clarence Parsons) in the disguise of a music teacher, tries to tell his "very attentive" pupil (Charlotte Schraeger) of his real identity and of his love for her. Old Bartholo (Fred Ward) watches suspiciously.

John Walker who plays Figaro in the UC French Club production of Beaumarchais' Barbier de Seville has had considerable acting experience. He was in Robert Gill's first Hart House production, "St. Joan", with both Davis brothers, Dave Gardner, Bea Leonard, and Charmian King. Again under Gill's direction he appeared with Don Harron in Anderson's WINTERSET and with Bill Hutt in JULIUS CAESAR. Other plays he has appeared in are: Robertson Davies' OVERLORD, Anhouilh's ANTIGONE and ANOTHER PART OF THE FOREST.

Opera School

Nicholas Goldschmidt brought twelve of his Opera School students to Hart House last Sunday evening. Throughout the program the soloists maintained dramatic atmosphere by singing to each other or to imaginary second characters. Expert coaching was visible in intelligent phrasing and musically ensemble work. There were many individual merits as well.

Severin Weingort did such a good imitation of a syrupy Italian baritone that I'd like to see his miming talent applied to buffo roles.

Loathe to stop exploiting a success, the Conservatory group included two arias from The Consul on the program. In the Lullaby, Patricia Rideout did some fine acting. She managed the difficult intervals and the fantastically low F below the staff at the end of the aria quite well. Andree Theriault had a dramatic tour de force in the "Papers" aria.

As Kalaf, Walter Dinoff showed how much he has improved over the past two years. His tone is still a bit nasal, and he must learn not to attack a Puccini cantilena like a helden tenor on the rampage, but in time he may provide an answer to the tenor shortage.

Easily the best singing of the evening was done by soprano Anne Stephenson. She has a great deal to learn about stage deportment and even more about acting, but her voice is the most promising to come from the "Con" in some time. It has warmth and purity and an uncommon liquid smoothness. In her Deh Vieni Miss Stephenson even showed a glimmer of genuine Mozart style though the slow tempo betrayed an Italian-Opera influence somewhere.

Other singers were Katherine McBain, Phyllis Mailing, Floranne Cotoir, Milla Andrew, Constance Fisher, Angela Antonelli, and Dolores Del Grande. All the performers showed a high degree of polish. Their greatest deficiencies were in matters of interpretation and style, but luckily they are all young enough to improve. In Mr. Goldschmidt's hands they probably will.

—RITA UBRIACO

The Trials Of A Trial Teacher

by HUGH McKELLAR

"... 'tis a noble deed
To teach the young idea how to shoot."
What poet wrote those lines? I should know, but for the life of me I can't remember. But then, I can't remember much of anything right now. You see, in obedience to that poem, I've spent the past week as a practice teacher in a Toronto high school and the effects haven't quite worn off.

All the students at OCE spend nine weeks of their year's course undergoing a subtle form of torture known as Observation and Practice-teaching. It works somewhat as follows: you are assigned to one of the high schools in the city for three weeks. You spend each week in the classroom of an experienced teacher of one of the subjects you want to teach if you ever graduate, learning all you can about teaching methods and classroom procedure by watching what goes on. This means you sit at the back of the room, frantically recording every move the teacher makes; for at the end of the week you have to write a report on "What I learned by observing Miss Simpkins", and turn it in to Miss Simpkins to be marked and sent back to the College. It also means that during the week you teach at least six lessons to the students; while you teach, it is Miss Simpkins' turn to sit at the back and scribble reports on your work. Later she tells you your good points and bad points, and tries to help you to improve.

Obviously, this is a very practical system for training teachers; it is also very nerve-wracking. So many things can go wrong when you stand before a class of teen-agers and try to get some knowledge into their heads. Fortunately most classes are cooperative, and will help you along all they can; but the occasional one gives you a preview.

(Continued on Page 7)

VIC GALS AND POT ENTER FINALS

Speaking OF SPORT

By MOISHE REITER

Always thought that the Varsity campus was a beautiful place. Then I went to Western. Always wondered why these small Colleges like Western and Queens manage to have so much more spirit than the big ones like Varsity and McGill. After seeing nearly all London move out to Little Memorial Stadium, the London Free Press devote most of its front page to the game story, and talking to Londoners it makes sense. The Western Football team is their one claim to glory. Asked a ten year old kid what his ambition was. He didn't even take time to think it over, answered eagerly to go to Western and play for the Mustangs. Second choice was to go to Western and play for the Colts. Third choice was to become a doctor.

At the beginning of the Football season, this column, and the editorial corner of The Varsity complained of the lack of work by the cheerleaders and the Blue and White Society. Whether it's because of this criticism or just that they've finally warmed up, they have been doing an excellent job in all their last three efforts. At McGill they were outstanding, but then, there they had no competition. For Homecoming Week there could be only praise for the Blue and White's handling of the affair, and this past weekend, going down to London, at the game and all around, the spirit-mongers were most adequate. Could it be that they're trying to impress people in anticipation of that trip to Vancouver?

It was an unhappy day for the Varsity Baby Blues last Friday when they lost for the second time this season to the Western Colts. Until two weeks ago they had been unbeaten in over three seasons. One consolation is that the Shaw Trophy, the Intermediate Championship cup, is not being awarded this year and since the Baby Blues have held it up to now they keep it until the College Intermediate League is reorganized. Watching the Baby Blues and Colts Friday it looked as though either club could play in the Senior Intercollegiate. Willie Casanova for the Colts is a big-leaguer all the way and should be a good replacement in the Mustang backfield next year when Gino Fracas and the others leave.

Small Stuff . . .

. . . one of the officials for Saturday's game in London was a former Mustang captain—interesting. . . One of the things generally not considered in the matter of this possible three-way tie for first place is that if it should happen, there would hardly be enough time to play off for the championship and then fly out to Vancouver. To make sure that everything goes without foul-up, McGill Redmen will have to beat the Mustangs and leave Toronto and Queens in the tie . . .

Veteran Guard Mackie In Third Blue Season

One of the Blues whose bark is as big as his bite is tall, is husky Baz Mackie. Graduating from Weston Collegiate three years ago summa cum laude in sports Baz came to Varsity with the distinction making the senior Blues in his first academic year.

Prolific is the best way to described Baz as he has participated in hockey, lacrosse, football, and wrestling. In high school he was one of the sparks that helped the Weston football team gain in the finals for three consecutive years, only to lose out to the powerful East York Go-liaths each year.

Entering PHE three years ago, Baz abandoned his track and field activities for which he was well known and decided to concentrate on football. In high school he had set a shot put record and had become an outstanding lacrosse player.

In his first year with the Blues he captured a first string guard position and since then has not relinquished that spot. At that time he was used quite effectively on both offence and defence, playing almost sixty minutes in a few of the games.

In spite of his size, 197 pounds, Baz is fast and hard to stop. For these reasons the Blue's running attacks are often successful. When you see someone pulling from the line it will often be Baz Mackie.

Similarly, for these reasons, he is one of the better lacrosse players to be found at Varsity. He was the best player on the floor two years ago when University College won the Intramural lacrosse championship.

Baz has been referred to as the door that opens one way not in but out, thus building a hole through which the backs may run. It is unappreciated work such as his that helps the Blues to win.

SMC, PHE Lose Semi-Finals Final Game Today At Trinity

By JO RATCLIFFE and PEGGY CAIN

The semi-finals in the women's softball series wound up yesterday with Vic firsts and POT gaining playoff positions. The series was postponed from last week and due to fear of bad weather, instead of the best out of three, the finals will be done up in one meet this afternoon. The big game will commence at 1 p.m. at Trinity Field.

VIC vs. SMC

When Vic and St. Mike's got together to play off for a spot in the finals, the Vic squad had a slight edge at the local book-makers. They also had a slight edge when the results came out—namely 9-6.

Pauline Sprague and Marg Ann Gemmel made it home for Vic at the top of the opener. St. Mike's failed to retaliate which left the score 2-0 for the Vicsters.

The same sort of scoring occurred in the second with Jackie Wickware and Sprague, again, each marking up a run for Vic. St. Mike's, suffering badly from "semi-final nervousness", finished off the inning scoreless again.

Vic pushed their score to six and finally Saint Mike's tallied a single as Cathy Murphy dashed over the plate to break the zero. At the end of the third, the score sheet read 6-1 for Vic.

The fourth segment had more action than the rest of the game put together. Vic pitcher, Mary Foster, sneaked across home plate just in time while Phil

Taylor got caught, rather closely between second and third. It was only a fumble by a SMC third baseman that saved Taylor from going out.

Just as if someone had put a bomb under them, the St. Mike's squad came to life rather jarringly in the closing half of the meet. Vic was tiring quickly and the bases were loaded. SMC's Dolly Mollenhauer batted the hit of the game to push D Purvis, Norma Walsh, and Brenda Weetman across home plate. Mollenhauer made it home herself, and soon after, the game ended with Vic on top, 9-6.

POT vs. PHE III

The gals from POT gained a right to play in the final round of the women's softball tournament yesterday by defeating PHE III, 5-1 at the Stadium.

Physed were held scoreless in the first inning failing to monopolize on two hits. POT went ahead 1-0 on a hit by Noreen Cossar which sent Mary Bodrug home.

In the second inning, PHE were again kept off the score sheet by some powerful and steady pitching by Rosalie Marsh. POT scored a single run in their half of the inning on a double by Sandy Weber to make it 2-0.

Physed tallied their first and only run by Jean Simpson on a triple smashed by Inger Olsen. The POT girls lengthened their lead on another hit by Marsh which drove Betty Payette home. Doreen Fogarty then hit a long drive to score two more runs to end the inning, 5-1.

In the fourth inning Physot retired the side to end the game 5-1. Rosalie Marsh, along with Sandy Weber were the stars for POT. Simpson had a perfect day for Physed.

A 3-Way Tie Means--

Interest is running high in the sporting world, as to the possible outcome of a three-way tie for first place in the Intercollegiate Football Union. To date there is no definite word from the powers that be on what will be done if the Blues beat Queens this Saturday to create the history-making situation.

There appears to be no one solution to the problem that will satisfy all three of the Universities involved, although it seems to be agreed that allowance will be made for the East-West game planned for November 27 in Vancouver.

Such a plan, will necessitate a mid-week game on Wednesday, November 17, for which the approval of the university presidents will be needed to cover the academic side of the picture. The big question is which team will get the bye to the Saturday final.

If the team with the most points for, was to get the nod, then it could be a race between Queens and Varsity, the outcome depending on the result of this week's game. Queens now have five more points than the Blues in that column. The second case would find the team with the least points scored against getting the bye, and that is a close race between Queens and Western, now three points apart.

The Golden Gaels would get the bye to Saturday if the most games won was the password, regardless of what happens this weekend. If it was the fewest losses, Toronto and Western would still be tied, and perhaps they'd flip a coin, a method which has always seemed unfair to us.

At any rate, most of the choices seem to point to Queens to get the bye, but Saturday's game will tell the final story.

Blues Lace Western Atucha Scores Four

Captain, Jose Atucha led the Soccer Blues with a four goal effort as Varsity trounced Western 11-1. As the score indicates, Western was completely outclassed in this Senior Intercollegiate game, played at London on Saturday. From the start it was obvious that this was to be a slaughter of the innocents.

Jose Atucha opened the scoring for the Blues with an overhead kick, which took the Western goalies by surprise. The powerful Varsity attack then slipped smoothly into high gear, with Griffiths and Green carving open the Western defence.

A pass from Brian King was blasted in via the upright by Atucha. Minutes later Jose completed his hat trick by relieving an undecided fullback of the ball, and driving it past the dazed Western goalie. Green then streaked down the wing and sent in a perfect low cross which Atucha slipped home for number four.

Ray Griffiths gave the Londoners a lesson in polished inside-forward play. Gliding like a ghost past three desperate defenders, he crashed in a hard drive for goal number five. Minutes later he repeated the performance and the score was 6-0 for the Blues.

Western broke the monotony with a goal in the dying minutes of the half. It became obvious that something had to be done to keep the blood circulating in the defence. Coach Bob Auld decided to switch the defence into attack.

The second half saw a further stampede of the Mustangs, as the Varsity defence set out to show their forwards how to score goals. Right fullback Sweeney, playing at centre forward, converted a pass from Williams now at inside left, for number seven.

Rough play began to develop as several of the Westerners decided, as a last resort, to chop the Blues down from behind. This did not go down too well and, after one particularly vicious attempt, Green was forced to chastize the Western player. The referee expressed the view that as the Blues were winning so handsomely, it was bad form to resent this hatchet work.

Hubicki then took fire on the left wing and crashed home three beautiful goals, in rapid succession, to score a perfect hat trick and make the score 10-1.

Leach, who had been playing strongly at halfback, went into the goal to give Liz a chance to get into the picture. The team then switched back to their original positions, Liz playing at centre forward, scored the final goal with a hard shot from close range.

The Intermediates completed the double by handing Western a 5-0 defeat. Clever combination was the key to this win, which would have been even greater had the goal posts and cross-bar not absorbed so much punishment.

The defence, with Miller outstanding, was very solid under pressure. This team looks ready to go all the way to the league title. Scorers were Werry (2), Ross, Wood and St. Rose.

Football Record

INTERCOLLEGIATE

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Queens	5	4	1	0	105	49	8
Varsity	5	2	1	2	100	59	6
Western	5	2	1	2	84	46	6
McGill	5	0	5	0	35	170	0

LEADING SCORERS

Player	TD	C	FG	S	Pts.
Oneschuk (T)	4	15	1	1	39
Fracas (W)	4	10	2	0	36
Stewart (Q)	7	0	0	0	35
Schreider (Q)	3	13	0	1	29
Getty (W)	4	0	0	1	21
Quinn (M)	3	0	0	0	15
Pinkney (T)	2	0	0	0	10
Riva (T)	2	0	0	0	10
Girvin (W)	2	0	0	0	10
Kocman (Q)	2	0	0	0	10

INTERFACTORY

Group I	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Vic	4	4	0	0	53	6	8
SPS I	4	3	1	0	75	25	6
Meds	4	1	3	0	27	44	2
UC	4	0	4	0	10	90	0

Group II	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Trinity	3	3	0	0	31	11	6
Dents	2	1	1	0	9	5	2
S.M.C.	2	1	1	0	21	7	2
SPS II	3	1	2	0	17	39	2
Forestry	2	0	2	0	5	21	0

LEADING SCORERS

Player	TD	C	FG	S	Pts.
Selby (Sk I)	3	5	1	0	23
Ebenhardt (V)	2	0	0	2	12
Aziz (Trin)	2	0	0	0	10
Barwick (Trin)	2	0	0	0	10
Bertram (V)	2	0	0	0	10
Karpinski (Sk I)	2	0	0	0	10
Stipek (Meds)	2	0	0	0	10
B. Williams (V)	2	0	0	0	10
Gordon (Trin)	1	0	0	4	9

Blues' Walter Bulchak Starred at HUMBERSIDE

Of the Blue footballers the majority are graduates of Humberside Collegiate. The one to be discussed now is shy, modest Walter Bulchak, whose dream of playing for the Blues has materialized.

At HUMBERSIDE Walt was fortunately able to gain valuable experience and coaching so that he would be efficient at the full-back slot. Although Walt's appearances on the field are rare, many will remember the times when he was recognized as the man to stop. In high school he was the main force that helped his team win two championships, senior and junior.

Many will remember the TSSAA city final four years ago between Riverdale and Humberside. The game was played on a virtual field of ice, and the final score was 8-1 for Humberside. Who was the individual standout? — Walter Bulchak, who scored seven of his team's points. Walt points this out as his biggest thrill in football.

Perhaps, however, the most interesting part of his career occurred the following year when Walt was chosen an all-city All-Star. At that time he won the individual scoring championship, beating out Ron Stewart who presently is the outstanding halfback of Queens University.

During high school Walt also participated in track and field and in gymnastics. Because of his tremendous work on the Intermediate Squad Walt was promoted to the Blues. Although he has not played much Walt does not mind. He feels that as long as the team is successful he will be happy.

Walt is now in General Arts at Vic but as yet his future is indefinite.

(Continued from Page 5)
of purgatory. The kids will sit there like bumps on a log, never raising a hand except to ask a question you can't answer, and always grunting, "I dunno" when you ask them anything. After all, student teachers are beneath the notice of such exalted citizens as they. But make one slip and watch them come to life!

One girl, for instance, was taking up literature homework, and noticed that question 3 led right into the new work she planned to introduce later. So she decided to postpone it, and announced, "We'll skip question 3 and do number 4"; whereupon a boy inquired in a stage whisper, "Why, is it too hard for you?"

But a choicer fate was reserved for the girl who set out to teach a Grade 10 class the scene from Julius Caesar in which Portia urges Brutus to tell her what he is up to. She read the scene through to a poker-faced class, and then began asking questions on it. When she asked for the meaning of "the ruddy drops that visit my sad heart", a boy in the front seat replied, "Blood". But he must have had a cold, for she asked a girl who gave the same answer. "But that's what I said," cried the boy. "Oh, I beg your pardon," said she, "I thought you said mud."

Worse was to follow; after explaining the scene, she thought to fix it in their minds by having students read it aloud. When she assigned the parts of Portia and Brutus, a gasp swept over the room, followed by a titter. All unwittingly, she had entrusted the emotional scene to a couple who were in the throes of puppy-love! Also, the rest of the class were not quite so innocent as she supposed. From the moment when the black-haired, pug-nosed Portia announced that Brutus had ungently stole from her bed, there was only one straight face in the room — the student teacher's. Nevertheless Portia, breathless and blushing, plowed bravely through her part, although giggles to the right of her and snickers to the left of her volleyed and thundered. On she went until she approached the climax of the speech.

"Dwell I but in the suburbs Of your good pleasure? Then, if this be so, Portia is Brutus' harlot, not his wife."

Portia gasped out "your good pleasure", and stopped dead. An electric silence gripped the rollers in the aisles: was she turning chicken now? The student teacher cried, "Go on, read the rest of it!" and Portia said, "I have a different edition; this is all that's in my book!"

Let us draw the veil of charity over the rest of the scene. Needless to say, even OCE looked good by Monday morning.

PHE Gals Trounce Vic 20-1 In One-sided B-Ball Contest

At OCE last night PHE I trounced Vic Soph's B by a score of 20-1 in a very one-sided contest. Playing by both teams was sloppy and not organized. In the first quarter only two points were scored—Helen Hieching tallying for Physed. Pat Davis held the PHE team up defensively.

Anne Kissic and Ann Stainton scored for Physed in the second quarter, in which PHE played more as a team and tidied on Vic's mistakes. Glenna McVicar hooped Vic's only point on a free throw.

Vic had a hard time getting through Physed's six-man defence, Lillian Bobson capitalized on Vic's lack of team play to score three baskets to end the quarter at 12-1.

Pat Elsley and Stainton each scored 4 points in the final quarter. Vic's passing improved but they could not keep the ball from Physed's guards who checked closely in a shifting zone. Bobson and Stainton were high scorers for PHE scoring six points each. Marg Haines and Pat Davis were strongest on defence.

new york or bust

See You At Joe's

Do unusual night spots interest you? You haven't lived till you've hit Joe King's Rathskeller in Greenwich Village. The K.C.R. is colourless when compared to it. We liked linking elbows with the other college kids and we found we could dream up as many things to toast as they could. And talk about college yells — you've never heard such a variety of them. The beer steins on the wall fascinated us. They came from colleges all over the States, but the management refused to part with them.

Or perhaps the Latin Quarter had you under its spell. Personally we didn't get there because we just couldn't leave Birdland and Jazz.

Or maybe you went out to see the Statue of Liberty and wondered why everyone made so much fuss over a slab of concrete loved more by pigeons than by man. We missed this treat but we did climb up to the top of the Empire

State building to contemplate the thoughts of the would-be suicide.

Or then you may have been impressed by the seminars we held at the hotel when we got back from the Met and Can-Can. (What ever happened to that last bottle anyway?)

Or was it the UN that you remember most. Confidentially, some joker switched my speaker to Spanish and it was ten minutes before I realized I wasn't listening to the French translation at all. (I think I'll get some sleep on the train down this year — the bridge and carousing was fun, but I did hate sleeping through the last Act of South Pacific.) Seeing Madame Pandit was exciting — and do you remember walking down Broadway at four in the morning trying to find a pub that was open and being awfully disappointed that all you could get was breakfast?

Well anyway, we're going back again the weekend of the 26th of November. Of course we'll have to spend some time at the UN, but the way we've got things organized I'm sure we'll be able to see the finer points of the Big City again this year. We've got costs down to $45 a head this year (Tee-totallers can knock off half) and we think the week-end will be better than ever.

If you're interested in joining us, the INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB, that is, come out to our meeting this week at Falconer Hall on Thursday at four o'clock and sign up for the biggest week-end in history. Or phone us — our number is listed in the bible.

Torontonensis YOUR YEAR IN REVIEW

THE IMPOSSIBLE MR. HOBBERLIN

Paul Hobblerlin, our good, kind, generous, lovable, big-hearted boss, has a face that may not stop a clock, but it certainly stopped our artist.

To look at the picture (second attempt) you'd swear Paul was around when his father founded the firm in 1885. But though he's sole heir to the Hobblerlin business, Paul really doesn't look as worried as the picture might imply. He's just one of those people who are impossible to caricature. Nondescript.

Paul is around Jack Benny's age, looks younger. Casual dresser, easy mannered, tries to remember everybody's name, doesn't always succeed. Remembers all faces, though. Has a fixed idea that satisfied customers are like money in the bank, because they keep coming back. Actually manages to smile whenever anyone acts on the money-back guarantee. Fortunately this only happens about twice a year.

There may be wrinkles in Paul's forehead, but you won't find any in our Satin-faced Venetians. (How's that for a clever play on words?) This sleek, lustrous fabric holds its shape amazingly... looks freshly pressed for weeks, even months. 34 different shades to choose from. Wears ad infinitum. Tailored by Progress Brand. $105. Or ready-made, $79.95.

Equally sleek and lustrous, our handsome topcoats and overcoats in luxurious Strachans cashmere mixture. Light, warm and cut so roomily there's lots of arm room even for driving a car. Savile Row styling. Topcoats for fall wear, $79.50. Overcoats, $95.00.

Why not come in and see what Paul Hobblerlin really looks like? We're open till 6.

Hobblerlin's

LIMITED

445 Yonge

EM. 3-7315

Star From Oasis Not Known Here

Rumours that Dixieland jazz king, Phil Napoleon and his Memphis Five—now holding out for two weeks in a downtown "Oasis"—would visit the campus one day this week to help raise funds for a charity campaign were squelched last night by Barry Cooke, a SHARE official.

Cooke, expressing astonishment at the rumour, said: "Who's that?" Cooke wanted to know what campaign Napoleon was going to boost.

"Search me," replied the reporter.

PEP DANCE

FRIDAY, NOV. 12TH

DRILL HALL
9 - 12 p.m.

Round and Square
Dancing

THE Best

NEILSON'S
JERSEY
MILK
CHOCOLATE

MILK CHOCOLATE MADE

531U

CUP

Runneth Over

From this year's harvest of campus newspapers, a few sheaves have been sent our way. Here are to be found a few kernels of value, and an infinite deal of chaff.

Toronto A record for devotion to duty has been set by the registrar and director at Ryerson. Seems these good men found a filthy note written in a bold male hand, and devoted several days to tracing the culprit's handwriting. The twenty-three year old student was permanently expelled. Good clean fun like dropping a goal post on students' heads was recently good for a two month suspension. Must be a moral to this.

Minneapolis The latest racket at Minnesota U. is a revival of the old chain letter club at ten dollars a throw. Postal authorities are trying to nab the organizers for using the mails to defraud.

Lest we again incur the wrath of the lasses who criticised us for lack of taste in our last batch, we present a new, expurgated, series, from the Saskatchewan Sheriff.

"A Kain-tuckian entered a saloon with his wife and three year old son. He ordered two shots of whiskey.

"Hey, pa," the kid asked, "ain't me drinkin'?"

A despondent old gentleman emerged from his club and climbed swiftly into a taxicab.

"Where to, sir?" asked the cab driver respectfully.

"Drive off a cliff," replied the old gentlemen, "I'm committing suicide."

London Thieves broke into the cafeteria office at Western and stole between ten and fifteen dollars in pennies. Asked why the money was left there, the manager said that the pennies were too heavy to carry to the main safe. Students have recently complained about the poor quality of cafeteria food. Nothing was said at the time about its food value or energy-giving qualities.

Manitoba Students of the University of Manitoba are planning an hour long variety show to raise money to help Toronto victims of Hurricane Hazel. A group of local entertainers will be included, headed by band leader Paul Grosney. Songs, dances and musical numbers are to be included. An admission of 25 cents per student will be charged.

News Stories
Not Editorials

Manitoba (CUP)—Policy of the Manitoban was bitterly attacked at Thursday's meeting of the University of Manitoba Students' Union council.

External Affairs chairman Harvey Seipp charged the paper with editorializing in its front page news stories. He cited as an example a report of the first UMCU council meeting which appeared in the Oct. 5 issue of the Toban. Seipp said the portion of the story dealing with renewal of U of M's membership in NFCUS presented only one side of the picture, giving more arguments against the motion than in favor.

"Editorials should be confined to the editorial page," Seipp said. Manitoban editor Julius Koteles replied that the accusation was not justified since the space devoted to the pros and cons of the question was in proportionate to the time spent by pro and con speakers in presenting their arguments during council debate.

United college senior UMSU rep Dave Blostein asked if the paper was answerable to UMSU or the executive for its actions.

Bermuda Shorts

(Continued from Page 3)

quantance for the information, and hurried home to get my glasses, in case I would be less fortunate next time.

Well, I thought that would be my last encounter with Bermuda shorts. But lo, less than two days had passed since the beginning of the school term, when I again spied these weird creations of fashion approaching me on the campus, this time in company with one of our charming imports from Smith U.

She informed me, that on her home campus, they have been in style for five years, and are even worn, outside of lecturers, by professors. They come in a variety of colours and materials she further related, and the common accessories are knee socks, sweaters, and white bucks. She added that they had become so popular in the States that one girl wore a black velvet pair to her "coming-out" party.

The psychological explanation for women wearing this slightly outlandish gear? There is a two-fold theory, given by certain of the more learned males on the campus . . . either it's a good excuse to wear Dad's cut-down trousers, or else it's an attempt to prove that women really do wear the pants of the family after all.

K.P. AND R.M.C.

The inhabitants of Kingston Penitentiary are always challenging the Royal Military College cadets to football and baseball games. They are trying to prove that the pen is mightier than the sword.

TORONTONENSIS

— THE SHOWS RECAPTURED

New Colours
for yourKitten
Collection

Full-fashioned Kitten sweaters in cashmere-soft Lambswool...100% Super Orlon. Hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof... by GLENAYR

s.s. pullover $6.95
l.s. pullover $7.95
cardigan $8.95

At good shops everywhere

c-57

WATCH FOR

SKULE STS NITE

November 17-20

The Revue Of The Year . . .

— Featuring —

NEW SONGS, SKITS AND DANCES

YOU WON'T WANT TO MISS . . .

- the campus scene
- the bedroom scene
- the bar-room scene

TICKETS GO ON SALE WEDNESDAY, NOV. 10

at Engineering Stores or Hart House Box Office
—$1.25—

Downtown
YONGE AT DUNDAS SQUARE

CONTINUOUS
DAILY FROM
9.30 A.M.

The Human Jungle

with Jan Sterling, Gary Merrill

—Also—

Security Risk

NEW SHOW EVERY MONDAY

Blue and White

FOOTBALL DANCE

VARSITY vs. QUEENS

SATURDAY, NOV. 13

HART HOUSE

5 BANDS 5

FEATURING BENNY LOUIS

Tickets --- $2.00 per couple available now at—

- HART HOUSE ROTUNDA (12 noon — 2 p.m.)
- SAC OFFICE
- ENGINEERING STORES

HURRY . . . 500 PEOPLE TURNED AWAY FROM OUR LAST FOOTBALL DANCE!

Correction

THE SIGMA ALPHA MU

Anniversary Ball

will be held on

Saturday, Nov. 20, '54

NOT NOV. 22 as announced in the
U.C. GARGOYLE

By Bread Alone?

Rev. D. T. Niles addresses a group of students, exhibiting the power and magnetism that have characterized his services in the University Christian Mission. A native of Ceylon, Rev. Niles has lectured extensively at universities in the United States, and most recently in Edinburgh.

—VSP by George Cihra

Parasites and Pressures In the Christian Mission

"To live by bread alone is one kind of life," said the Rev. D. T. Niles at the University Christian Mission yesterday, "and to live by the Words proceeding from the mouth of God is another kind of life."

The Rev. Niles, chief speaker of the Mission, addressed the staff and students on the topic of "Life Under Pressure". Other addresses by associate missionaries were held in the various colleges and faculties scattered over the campus.

"You have no right to the bread if you refuse to live by the Words," continued the Rev. Niles. "You are a parasite on God's bounty."

Rev. Niles compared the Christian to a soldier, experiencing the most pressure at the frontier, where he belongs. Drawing his illustrations of life under pressure from his native Ceylon, Rev. Niles claimed that the Christian world is meant to be one of struggle, and not one of isolation.

The first example of pressure common to the Christian of Ceylon is the need to give a reasoned statement of the faith that is in him. The question is, "Why do you believe in Jesus Christ—and why do you ask us to believe?"

The answer, according to Rev. Niles, is that all light in every religion, however dim, comes from the same source — Jesus Christ. No man is left by God in complete darkness.

The second pressure peculiar to Ceylon and such areas is that of justifying the claim of a Christian community, or the Church. Christians must show that the Church offers a place to live in human dignity as a person, and a child of God, especially in caste societies such as India.

The third pressure, said Rev. Niles, expresses itself in the question, "What are you doing? You claim that 'God so loved the world'—then show it!" This is the pressure that instigates the Christian to action within the world.

Rev. Niles suggested that under pressure the Christian really discovers his gospel, himself as a member of the Church, and the work that he has been chosen to do. "These pressures exist in Ceylon; is there no enemy to engage in Toronto?"

In concluding, Rev. Niles said, "The Christian lives under pressures, but the Christian is able to respond to these because he lives under still another pressure—the Lord, constantly in him, and with him, and around him."

The minister will address the University staff and students this evening at 5:05 p.m. in Convocation Hall, on the topic, "How Does One Become A Christian?"

Wednesday Playdown Favored If Blues, Queens, Western Tied

By JOHN WILSON

The Athletic Directorate of the University met yesterday afternoon to decide the University of Toronto's position in the event of a three-way tie for first place in the Intercollegiate Football Union. The situation, made possible by last Saturday's 12-12 game in London, is not covered in the Intercollegiate constitution, and representatives from the Colleges involved are meeting today at noon to come to a final decision as to the method of a playoff.

The Directorate decided that they were in favor of a mid-week game, the winner of which will proceed into a Saturday final. The problem which will confront the meeting today is how to select the team to get the bye to the Saturday final. Varsity feels that a draw would be the fairest way, but it is not known what position Queens and Western will take.

The Directorate decided on a mid-week game so that the University will be able to honor their obligation to the University of British Columbia on November 27, should the Blues win the Yates Cup.

Remembrance Day

Classes will be cancelled between 10 a.m. and 12 noon on Remembrance Day, Thursday, November 11, announced Colonel G. N. Griener, Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association.

Sidney Smith, President of the University of Toronto, will lead the services at Soldiers' Tower at 10:45 a.m.

South House Privileges Suspended For Violation Of Weekend Party Rules

All parties have been cancelled, and women visitors banned in the South House men's residence on Devonshire Place. This action came after two couples were seen leaving the residence by the Housemaster, George Kirk, later than the allowed deadline on Friday, October 29.

The privileges, which have been cancelled for the rest of the fall term, allow women visitors in the house till midnight on normal weekends, and 1:30 a.m. on special occasions. On the Friday in question a McGill weekend party was held, and the 1:30 deadline was in effect.

Housemaster Kirk refused to make any comment on the situation, as did also House President Ray Yakasovitch. The residence members are meeting with Kirk to discuss the incident and the penalty, and a change in the house rules may result.

South House is one of three men's residences on Devonshire Place, for students mainly from the professional faculties. The houses all have the same privileges, but the ruling only affects the one house.

SAC Considers Hoskin Light NFCUS Report

The quest of a traffic light for Hoskins Ave. will be pursued by a committee to be established at the meeting of the Students' Administrative Council tonight.

Also on the agenda, in brief, is a report of the NFCUS conference, and the establishment of a student-administration liaison committee to consider the relations between the two and the methods of improving them, along with the status and position of student government on the campus. The AVR committee will report on the feasibility of an All Varsity Revue for the coming year.

Deadlines

Applications for the annual final examinations must be completed and handed in before December first. This announcement from Simcoe Hall, applies to the Faculty of Arts only. The applications for other courses are being handled by the various faculties, which have not yet announced their deadlines.

Application forms may be obtained through the college registrars and are to be returned to these registrars on completion.

Trials Again For Hillel Reps McGill Meet

Additional debating trials will be held this Thursday at Hillel, it was announced last night. Eight people turned out for the original trials held yesterday. The trials are being held to choose two debaters for a Hillel debate in Montreal.

"The Thursday tryouts are for those who were prevented from speaking on Tuesday," reported Susan Markus, vice-president of the Hillel Foundation. She is also one of the three judges of the debaters. She said that the judges would hold over their decision until all the debaters had spoken.

All the debaters spoke for three minutes. Miss Markus reported. She said that they spoke in teams, although they would be judged on individual merit. The two topics debated yesterday were: Resolved that religious observance is needed in the modern world, and Resolved that the reformed Judaism has weakened religious spirit.

"We were quite pleased with the turnout today," the vice-president said, "since debating generally seems on the decline on the campus. There was a small audience also." She said that the judges were quite pleased with the calibre of the debating.

Lack of Schoolmarm Is Acute Despite the Profit and Glory

The teacher shortage in Ontario is acute, said Dean A. C. Lewis of the College of Education yesterday at Victoria College. He was addressing senior Vic students in the second of a series of guidance lectures.

Dean Lewis said that the shortage was worsened because the small capacity of OCE cannot meet the requirements for teachers. Consequently, he said, it is necessary to obtain teachers from outside the province.

Lewis emphasized the advantages for women in the field of teaching. (His audience was mostly composed of girls). He pointed out that teaching has a higher starting salary than most other professions open to women.

Dean Lewis, a Vic grad of 1915, explained that he had wanted to be a teacher since he was twelve.

The series will continue with a lecture today at 1:00 p.m. in Vic Alumni Hall. The subject will be Law, and the lecture will be given by a practising lawyer, Mr. Collins-Williams. Thursday's lecture is on the Civil Service and will be given by K. M. Dinsmore, the Chief Accountant at Victoria. The lectures will be brief descriptions of the professions, for about half an hour, and then the lecturers will answer any questions.

Aspiring Actors Adjudicated

Frances Hyland, well-known Canadian actress, will be adjudicator for the University of Toronto. Drama Committee's annual Drama Week-end, to be held in Hart House Theatre on Friday, Nov. 12, and Saturday, Nov. 13, at 8:30 p.m. This event is not a competition, but two evenings of one-act plays, presented by the four arts colleges and Nursing.

The plays to be presented on Friday evening are: The Respectable Prostitute, by Jean-Paul Sartre, produced by Trinity College, and Thornton Wilder's The Happy Journey, presented by St. Michael's College. On Saturday three plays will be presented Fall of a City, by Archibald McLeish (University College), Sunday Cocks Five Pesos, a Mexican play by Josephine Nigili. (Nursing), and The Intruder, by Maurice Maeterlinck, presented by Victoria College.

Special music has been composed for these plays by students of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto.

Miss Hyland is famous in Canada for her work at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival this summer.

EATON'S

Top News on the Campus!

- pink
- golden glaze
- ice blue
- white

Exciting as the bunny-hop . . . infinitely better for the appearance! Our co-ed collection of wool felt toppers . . . saucy little pixies, cloches, bonnets or pillboxes! Hand finished with spidery rayon embroidery or a liberal sprinkling of rhinestones! See them soon at Eaton's, where they're co-ed priced at 6.95 each.

EATON'S—Main Store—Main and Third Floor (Dept. 304)

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Toronto Symphony Orchestra

Sir Ernest Macmillan, Conductor

TONIGHT

Soloist: William Primrose, Violaist

300 seats at $1.50 special to students at 75c at Box Office

MASSEY HALL

"For a mild cigarette...
Smoke a fresh cigarette!"

SWEET CAPS

Always fresh and TRULY MILD!

"Only a fresh cigarette can be truly mild."

Since 1887, Canada's First Cigarette

CORK or PLAIN

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto

Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Asst. Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Penney
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Moishe Reiter
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE
NIGHT EDITOR
REPORTERS
ASSISTANT

Robert Brown

Clyde Batten

Carol Hoffman, Pat Moser, Marg Stern

Anne Plaxton

Your Business

This Wednesday at 7:30 the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto (commonly known as SAC) will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Falconer Hall.

This Council annually spends approximately $30,000 of your money. It represents you in all national and international activities. It is your government.

On the average, about two or three students attend this meeting to see their student government in action.

—R.D.B.

Sunday School Story ...

This casual controversy among church people, as to the merits and disadvantages of capital punishment, reminds us of a story we heard in Sunday School.

It seems this woman was taken in adultery. A group of Public Spirited Citizens duly assembled to stone her to death, as was the custom in those days. Jesus happened along. "Let him who is without sin among you", he suggested, "cast the first stone." The citizens, being Jews and sensible people, put down their paving blocks and departed.

Fortunately for the lady in question, none of the would-be stone throwers were Christians, and sinless.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL	East 3:30	SPS I vs. Med. Morris, Fraser, Kerr
	West 3:30	Dent vs. St. M.—Tobe, Wallace, McLean
SOCCER	North 3:00	Knox vs. Wye—Stanton
	South 4:00	Pre-Med vs. Trin. B—Pahapill
LACROSSE	1:00	Med. II vs. St. M. A—Mackie, Smela
	6:30	Trin. A vs. Dent, A—Grabam, Smela
	7:30	Dent, B vs. Trin. B—(Game Cancelled)
VOLLEYBALL	1:00	St. M. B vs. U.C. IV—Grosfield
	4:00	St. M. D vs. U.C. V—Preem
	5:00	Jr. SPS A vs. Med. III Yr.—Preem
	5:00	Pharm. A vs. Law A—Preem
	7:00	Vic. IV vs. Dent, C—Diemer
	8:00	Dent, B vs. St. M. C—Diemer
SQUASH	4:20	Pre-Med vs. Jr. U.C.
	7:00	St. M. A vs. Jr. SPS

(Home team, 2nd named, must pick up game report at Intramural office up to 5:30 p.m. After 5:30 at tote box room).

Today

SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK 12:30 - 2 p.m.
Geography Annex of Economics Building, Room 255—
The Contribution of Religion to Social Work—Dr. C. G. Chakerian

FACULTY OF DENTISTRY 1:10 - 2 p.m.
Room 107—The Basis of Christianity—Dr. C. P. Martin.
ENGINEERING, ARCHITECTURE, FORESTRY 1:10 - 2 p.m.
Wallberg Building, Room 1033—Faith and the Problems of Modern Society—The Rev. Dr. James Robinson.

FACULTY 1:00 - 2 p.m.
Music Room, Hart House—The Christian Intellectual—
Dr. Prentiss Femberton.

FACULTY OF MEDICINE 1:10 - 2 p.m.
Meds Building, Common Room—Revelation and Authority—The Rev. Dr. G. G. Harrop.

SCHOOL OF NURSING 1:10 - 2 p.m.
Common Room—Christianity and Communism—The Rev. Michael Creal.

TRINITY COLLEGE 1:10 - 2 p.m.
Junior Common Room—Christianity and the Cold War—
The Rev. Dr. R. E. Terwilliger.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE 1:10 - 2 p.m.
West Hall—Christianity and the Claims of Other Religions—The Rev. Dr. T. Niles.

VICTORIA COLLEGE 1:10-2:00 p.m.
Music Room—Providence and Miracles—Rev. Dr. Donald Matners.

latvian love

Misty-Histry

By Hubert Crackanthorpe

It has been suggested by a well-meaning and idiotic reader of the Varsity, that the features should have a higher educational and moral purpose. Herewith follows the first in a revoltingly long series of articles, designed to interest and irritate the serious reader in the history of ancient Latvia, ancient Australia, and ancient Scotland.

The first king of ancient Latvia was Hushabanobbin III, who was famous for his mad craving for pickled pomegranates. He also liked playing an ancient Latvian form of pussy in the corner with his seventy-two grandchildren. I should mention that the ancient Latvians, especially the young ancient Latvians, were not monogamous.

This noble and illustrious monarch was succeeded by King Hushabanobbin V. (The ancient Latvians had not yet mastered the art of counting mentally. The curious lapse in numbers is explained by the fact that the Royal Counter had had a finger chewed off in an overly-enthusiastic game of puss-in-the-corner, when the king had been pickled from eating too many pomegranates. It is not true that the Latvians counted by twos, as suggested by Azrael Allofer in his wonderfully ill-timed treatise; "A Handbook in Simple Arithmetic for Ancient Latvians".

After Hushabanobbin V came Hushabanobbin VI, VII, VIII, IX and XVI (the Counter of that day was popularly known as old Hook). At this point we enter the history of not so ancient Latvia, a period with which we are not concerned. (We weren't very much concerned about the other period either, but anything to fill up space).

There is no history of ancient Australia.

There is an old rumour that England is surrounded by three parts water and one part Scotch. This is absolutely untrue. The amounts should be reversed. Scotland was first inhabited by the Picts and the Gaels. England had always been a rainy place, so the Gaels overtan it, and the place was pite to the bone.

In 1707 came the Act of Union which made all true Scots weep. They swallowed their sobs, however, which produced a new drink called Scotch and water, and made a fortune out of it. And if I knew how to make a fortune I wouldn't be writing this drivel either.

LETTERS

To the Editor should be typed—double spaced with 65 spaces to the line. Please show your ATL card when handing letters in to The Varsity office.

Career Planning

Detailed information supplied upon request.

CANADIAN PERSONNEL CONSULTANTS

134 Bloor St. West — WA. 1-6651

S.A.C. Music Committee

REMEMBER! MUSICAL PEOPLE

The Carnegie Record Hour is held every Thursday at 4.30 p.m.

In The Staff Lounge

Mechanical Engineering Building
Bard Bakker (If Trin.) Curator
RU. 8-8162

You are reminded that these are your programmes. Members of the University are encouraged to draw up their own programmes on special subjects and present them themselves. See the A.M. & D. Callboard every Tuesday for programmes. This Thursday:

J. S. Bach: Sonata for Violin
Flute and Piano.
"Goldberg" variations for Harpsichord
An S.A.C. Act

Vic Gals Take Softball Series Win 11-5 Over POT Finalists

The world series had nothing on the women's softball finals. played yesterday, when Vic downed a routin' tootin' POT gang 11-5. It was a true final sort of a match with both squads in there pitching, batting and cat-calling across the field.

The final score gives no inkling of what the play was like up to the end of the top of the fifth inning. Up to this point, POT's had been ahead and it looked as if the upset of the season was ahead. But Vic pulled ahead never to see the bottom of the scoresheet again.

Both squads were a bit shaky at first. POT's Sandy Weber hit first in the top of the opener but never get past that. Pauline Sprague pulled the same deal for Vic but failed to pass Marg O'Neil, POT's first baseman.

By JO RATCLIFFE

POT pulled out in front in the first half of the second inning as Doreen Fogarty leaped across home plate off a hit by pitcher Rosalee Marsh. Vic failed to retaliate, and seemed to be losing spirit as three batters struck out in a row.

As Vic spirit was waning, POT strength was gaining. With bases loaded, Noreen Cossar batted a lovely out to centre field and Sandy Weber and Helen Alves sailed across home. Doreen Fogarty was next to bat. She slammed a long one into the field to give Betty Payette and Cossar a chance to run in. No one was out and the scoresheet read 5-0 but the next three struck out.

Vic began to pick up in the bottom of the second. Jackie Wickname batted Joan Haggert home, while pitcher, Mary Foster brought Pauline Sprague and Marg Ann Gemmel across home plate.

This brought the scoresheet to read, 5-4, still in favor of POT. It remained so until the beginning of the last half in the fifth inning. Then the turn of events began.

Jackie Wickware, Vic third baseman took to bat and slammed the only homer of the day to tie the score 5-5. From then on, it was Vic all the way. Marg Ann Gemmel brought Pauline Sprague over the tallying plate. Mary Foster batted Gemmel across while Alisha File sent Foster and Phil Andrews scurrying for two points. Pat Cowman made it to third and sneaked home to end the inning 10-5, this time in favour of Vic.

POT fell apart in the sixth but Vic piled up one more tally on a home plate sneak by Mary Foster.

As far as the Phys-otters were concerned, the game was now history. They failed to score in the seventh and the meet ended with Vic ahead 11-5.

This gives Vic their second successive win in the softball league. Lacking only two players from last year's championship squad, they showed the strength which makes a winning team. POT was sparked by the excellent pitching of Rosalee Marsh and the first base efforts of Mary Marg O'Neil.

the Tricolour, so highly touted in the league.

Queens, though, have some strong arguments of their own. Jocko Thompson, the Gael kicker is unmatched in the Inter-collegiate, in fact, had he been still with Western last Saturday, the Mustangs might have just had the edge they so badly wanted. The backs, Al Kocman, Ron Stewart and Gary Schriener could break up the game at any time. Without fanfare, without boasts the Golden Gals have won their way to the top and are determined to end up there. Varsity Blues are all that stand in their way.

McGill and that the Redmen beat the Western Mustangs.

Injuries and off-days have made a desperately-struggling club of the highly-rated Varsity team, but when the chips have been down in all their recent games these men have come through, sometimes against odds that have seemed impossible, witness last week in Western. From here on in the schedule consists of sudden death matches all the way and the Blues have no time or chance for relaxing.

The injury jinx seems to be licked in the Varsity camp with most of the top players in fine shape for this game and likely to remain that way for the play-off following. Quarterback Bill Stevenson, limited to a brief showing in the Western game showed how well he could do, even with a sore arm, and now his elbow is coming right around and he will be all set to meet the Gaels without any weakness. Paired with Bill in the quarter slot is Harry Wilson the six and a half footer that has filled in so adequately in the last two games. This is a combination that no club in the League has managed to match. Also omened that such as Frank Palermo, Al Watt, Harry Hall will see action against the Gaels. In the back-field Phil Muntz, Wally Bulchak and John Sopinka will all be ready to go again. Sopinka, out for most of the season has returned just in time to get in his licks against the Queen's men of his old alma mater. John's speed and elusiveness will be Varsity's answer to the "pony backs" of

Queen's To Play Varsity Blues Must Win or Quit

Varsity's Football Blues were hailed, in their preseason press, as the greatest team to wear the Blue and White in countless years. They'll have to prove it and give some extra if they are to win the Yates Cup and possibly the All-Canadian Championship this Fall. With a single game remaining in the regular schedule the Blues must win or be eliminated from all chance of the title. The Tricolour of Queen's University invades Toronto this coming Saturday to make sure that the Blues do not win, hoping meanwhile that the upset of the year happens in

Soccer Blues Top In Intercol

Varsity Soccer Blues won the Blackwood Trophy yesterday, the symbol of Intercollegiate soccer supremacy beating McMaster by a score of 3-1. The Intermediates tied for first place in their league by beating McMaster 6-0. A win on Saturday against O.A.C. will give them the championship.

The Senior game was a hard fought affair with the McMaster Marauders making up with enthusiasm what they lacked in finesse. The Marauders opened the scoring, their centre forward breaking away to drive home an unstoppable shot just inside the post.

This setback spurred the Blues into action and their forwards began to make ground. Rod Green cut in fast from the wing to score the first Blues goal with a fine cross shot which gave the McMaster goalkeeper no chance.

As usual the Blues began to relax as if the game were already won. This attitude had made easy games tough in the past, and was doing so again. McMaster made the most of the situation and started to apply the pressure. Their tearaway forwards were first into the ball time after time, and only good defensive work by Williams and Hubicki kept them from going ahead again.

The Blues finally brightened up and began to play the game they are capable of. Once again Ray Griffiths sparked the Varsity attack and coolly drove home a half volley shot to make the score 2-1. From then on it was like a shooting gallery in the McMaster goal area. Shot after shot went by until Liz scored the final goal from close in to give Varsity the game.

The Intermediate game was a repeat of their victory in Hamilton. Goals by Petrusaitis, Wood, St. Rose, Ross and Ochrym, gave the Baby Blues a strong chance of carrying off the title.

HART HOUSE TODAY

WEDNESDAY, 10TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — RESERVATION TICKETS — MEMBERS INVITATION DINNER. 6.15-6.45 p.m. Friday, 12th November. No charge — Members may bring a lady guest.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION — John A. Hall. Also Lino cuts by Cyril Travers. Art Gallery and adjoining Print Room.)
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).
- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — MID-DAY RECITAL (East C. Room) Room). Miss Claudette Le Blanc — Soprano.
- 4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY Open to women of the University of Toronto.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART TALK (Gallery) by the Artist John Hall, on his present showing.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB (D-bates Ante Room) 1st bases.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION (through Reading Room). Open to men and women.
- 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (H.H. Range).
- 7.30 p.m. — SIMULTANEOUS CHESS EXHIBITION — Mr. G. Fuster, former Hungarian and present Ontario Chess Champion. (Debates Room).

Hat Hop

Friday - - Drill Hall

- Prizes for best decorated hat and bloop.
- Square and Round Dancing 9-Midnight.

Blue and White FOOTBALL DANCE

VARSITY vs. QUEENS

SATURDAY, NOV. 13

HART HOUSE

5 BANDS 5

Featuring Benny Louis and Ellis McIntock

Tickets - - - $2.00 per couple at

- HART HOUSE ROTUNDA (12 noon - 2 p.m.)
- SAC OFFICE
- ENGINEERING STORES

SECOND CHURCH SERVICE

FOR ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY
Sunday 11 a.m.—Great Hall, Hart House

The Rev.

D. T. Niles

Will Speak On

"How Does One Become a Christian?"

Today at 5.05 p.m.

in Convocation Hall

DON'T MISS

SKULE 5T5 NITE
November 17-20

LET YOUR GAZE BE GLAZED
AT THE SIGHT OF

25 GIRLS 25

FROM ACROSS THE CAMPUS.

Let your senses be caressed by the soothing harmonies of the

SKULE HOUSE FOUR

ALL-VARSITY QUARTET CHAMPIONS

Tickets now on sale at:
ENGINEERING STORES
OR HART HOUSE ADVANCE BOX OFFICE

Express Bridge Studio

Rubber Bridge every Afternoon and Evening

Free Instructions for College Students

137 AVENUE ROAD

WA. 2-1426

CUP

Runneth Over

By MIKE CASSIDY

... only this time it seems to have runneth away. From the Saskatchewan Sheaf, we received this:

"Rival college gangs kidnapped two screaming co-eds from each other's ranks here and drove them off in waiting cars.

"The kidnappers were members of delegations from the University of British Columbia and the University of Saskatchewan, winding up a three day Canadian University Press (CUP) conference at the University of Alberta.

"Passersby said the melee was started by the Saskatchewan group, who grabbed a UBC co-ed in downtown Edmonton. The UBC students immediately leaped from their car and seized a Saskatchewan co-ed in retaliation. Both cars then sped away without interference from amazed onlookers.

"The girls received no assistance from bystanders as they were shoved screaming and kicking into the autos. One of the pair was said to have been sobbing and begging to be released as the cars drove off. RCMP officials have issued no statement."

... the rigors of newspaper life must drive men mad. Says University of Saskatchewan's Marcia Goldie, one of the two girls abducted, from her UBC "prison".

"The student newspapers of Saskatchewan and British Columbia have initiated their own student exchange systems.

"I will go down in history as one of the first students to be honored by being kidnapped by Ubysses 'pubsters' from somewhere afar. Kidnapped I was, but don't get me wrong. I protested for only the first 200 miles, mulling over escape plans in my fevered brain.

"I've been living better since.

"Truthfully, I think this place is it. If this is prison, give me a life sentence. Saskatchewan is strictly for saints and socialists."

Thank you, Westerners. Your system is by far superior to exchange of just news.

Panel Discussion Questions Answered

by

BRAINS TRUST

TODAY, 7.30 P.M.

West Hall, UC

SECOND CHURCH SERVICE

FOR ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY
Sunday 11 a.m.—Great Hall, Hart House

IMPORTANT NOTICE

University of Toronto Library Hours

The main floor of the new wing is nearing completion at last, and it is now possible to set up the following timetable:

Stewart Wallace Room for undergraduates to open for service 9.00 a.m. to 9.00 p.m. (9.00-5.00 on Saturdays) from Monday, November 15th to Thursday, November 25th inclusive.

University College Reading Room, Political Science Reading Room in the Economics Building, and History Reading Room in Flavelle House to remain open as usual.

Medical Reading Room to close for moving, November 24 to 27 inclusive.

All Other Sections and Services to be closed November 22 to 27 inclusive.

The reorganized library will be fully open for service beginning Monday morning, November 29.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

ACCOMMODATION
Near University, 2 furnished rooms with private hall, grill, adults. 720 Spadina Ave., WA. 4-6024.

LOST
Gold ring, with pearl and 3 small rubies. Lost in women's washroom near the cloisters, U.C., November 8, Monday. Phone Charlotte, KE. 2646. Thank you.

WANTED
Engineering student to share apartment with same. At 181 College St., WA. 2-3658.

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $2.50, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3520.

WANTED
Part time male help required for servicing office equipment. Light work: RM. 3-9934.

FRENCH LESSONS
If you wish to make sure of your French exams Mr. Badgerow will try hard to include you among his many successful students. Close to campus. Daytime lessons between lectures. Call WA. 2-0949 or WA. 2-0536 and leave message.

CRINOLINES
All shapes and sizes, long and short. Pop in and see them. Evening appointments gladly made. HELMAR, 46 St. George — WA. 1-5978.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Goulik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-9483 — 21 Russell St. (just off St. George St.)

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

Are Women Invading Hart House Again? or Are the Men Bringing Them In for Dinner?

Members of Hart House may bring their lady friends to eat in the Great Hall this Friday. The custom is a periodic one, which was started three years ago upon the recommendation of the House Committee.

Those who attend will meet in the Music Room at 6:15 p.m. Following the dinner, coffee will be served in the East Common Room. There will be a fire blazing in the fireplace, and one of the members of the house will be playing the piano informally.

The staff requested that those who intend to be present pick up tickets at the Hall Porter's desk before 7:30 p.m. on Thursday.

The tickets, which are given out free, will indicate the number of people to attend.

Women's Basketball

At UTS last night, Meds "A" showed they had some hot inter-collegiate material as they trampled Vic Seniors 36-11 in their first encounter of the season.

Both squads looked evenly matched but Meds had the shooting advantage with Sally Wallace tallying some beautiful long shots. Both squads fouled considerably in the first period, but on the free shots, Meds again had the edge.

In the second half, Vic showed some good defensive work, but the strong offense of Meds, coupled with their impassable guard line, was not to be denied. The Meds team is being coached by Mickey Barnett, also coach of the U of T intercollegiate group.

Vic fought hard in the last quarter scoring 5 points, mainly on the shooting of Alison Roach. For the winners it was Sally Wallace all the way, while Joan Haggert shone for Vic.

COMING-UP

THURSDAY

1.00 p.m. — SOCIALISM la: "CCF and Labor"—Room 4 UC. Bert Gargrave of United Steelworkers speaking.

1.00 p.m. — NEWMAN CLUB: Philosophy Lecture by Rev. P. W. Nash on "The Problem of Ideas".

4.00 p.m. — INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB: Falconer Hall. Edgar Melnis will speak on Japan.

5.05 p.m. — UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN MISSION: Convocation Hall — The Rev. D. T. Niles speaks on "The Symbols of Our Faith".

4.30 p.m. — CARNegie RECORD HOUR: Staff Lounge, 3rd Floor. Programme of Chamber Music by Bach.

8.15 p.m. — NEAR EAST CLUB: Women's Union—Films.

TODAY

WEDNESDAY

1.00 p.m. — BAHAI: Charles Cleater speaks in Falconer Hall on "Practice Makes Perfect".

1.00 p.m. — VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE SERIES: Law; Vic Alumni Hall, G. W. Collins-Williams.

4.00 p.m. — SLAVIC CIRCLE: Play rehearsal, Flavelle House.

5.05 p.m. — UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN MISSION: Convocation Hall — The Rev. D. T. Niles speaks on "How Does One Become A Christian?"

7.30 p.m. — NEWMAN CLUB: Meeting of the Newspaper Committee.

7.30 p.m. — HART HOUSE CHESS CLUB: Mr. G. Fuster, former Hungarian and present Ontario Champion, will play all comers.

8.00 p.m. — NEWMAN CLUB: Oak Room—Public Speaking Group.

8.30 p.m. — Le Barbier de Seville—Hart House Theatre.

Canada's Foreign Trade Service

offers attractive and rewarding careers

to

UNIVERSITY GRADUATES

Few careers offer the University graduate fuller scope for intelligent use of imagination and initiative — or greater rewards in personal satisfaction and achievement.

Salaries comparable with other careers are supplemented by representational and cost-of-living allowances when the officer is serving abroad.

Foreign Service Officers for the Trade Commissioner Service will be selected by competitive examination to be held in centres throughout Canada on January 22nd, 1955.

A TRADE COMMISSIONER WILL VISIT THIS UNIVERSITY

Watch for announcement of meetings at this University shortly, at which a Trade Commissioner now in Canada will speak about the Service as a career.

Your Career Counsellor or Placement Officer will also have full details.

APPLICATIONS INVITED NOW!

A new booklet is available which gives full details of the work of Trade Commissioners and the qualifications for candidates. For your copy or further information, write or send this coupon:

Director, Trade Commissioner Service,
Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.
Please send me copy of "A Career in the Foreign Trade Service".

NAME

ADDRESS

CITY.....PROV.....

Trade Commissioners travel widely and may serve in any of these cities.

Two Minutes To Remember

The nation's pulse will stop beating today—for two minutes.

And here, beneath the shadow of Soldiers' Tower, students and faculty-members of Canada's greatest university will stand with heads bowed in silent tribute to almost 1,000 one-time classmates who in two world wars, slipped into eternity on the cruel sea, on pock-marked battlefields and in the air.

At 11 a.m.: the clear, ringing notes of the bugle—and then—silence.

Elsewhere, across the bleak November campus on College Street, on University Avenue and Bloor—where the 1,000 once strode and frolicked—car-horns will stop, street-cars will pull up and for two minutes the city will be still.

Then the whistles will blow, the impatient traffic will grind forward and students and faculty-members will turn their backs on Soldiers' Tower for another year.

Col. G. M. Grier, the executive secretary of the University of Toronto Alumni Association said last night he expected at least 15 wreaths would be laid at the Tower by various groups including the Alumni Association, Undergraduates, the teaching staff of the University and others.

Mrs. John Heath, mother of Captain John Heath, M.A., Ph.D., of this University who died in action in World War II, will lay a wreath in behalf of the Province of Ontario, Col. Grier said.

All classes in the University have been cancelled between 10 a.m., and 12 noon, today.

The special Remembrance Day service will be held at 10.45 a.m., and a student guard-of-honour composed of Navy, Army and Air Force officer cadets will be in attendance, as well as members of the faculty. Music will be played by the University band.

—By Staff Member—

The Undergrad
Newspaper

THE VARSITY

CLASSES
Cancelled From
10 To 12

Vol. LXXIV — No. 33

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Thursday, November 11, 1954

In Memoriam

—VSP by Ed Hoshkiw

The High Cost . . .

THIS IS THE COST OF WORLD WAR II

Dead — 21,000,000 . . . Wounded — 29,500,000

- 21,245,000 lost their homes and belongings
- 45,000,000 were evacuated, deported or interned
- 30,000,000 homes were left in ashes
- 150,000,000 were left destitute

The money spent to fight World War II would have provided each family in Canada, United States, Australia, Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and the Soviet Union with:

- a $48,000 home
- $16,000 worth of furniture
- An $80,000 cash present.

In addition, every town with a population of 200,000 or more might have received $300,000,000.

Varsity Blues Get Bye To Intercollegiate Final Must Beat Gaels First

By JOHN WILSON

A flip of a coin yesterday afternoon in Hart House gave the University of Toronto football Blues a bye into the Intercollegiate final, should a three-way tie result from this Saturday's action.

The Athletic Directors of the three universities involved met in conjunction with the executive committee of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union yesterday to decide their course in the event of a Varsity win on Saturday, causing the much-talked about deadlock for first place.

The Athletic Directorate of the University of Toronto recommended a sudden-death game on Wednesday when they met two nights ago, but academic difficulties arising from such a plan forced the committee to decide on Saturday, November 20 for the first game.

Should the Blues beat Queens this Saturday, then the Golden Gaels will meet the Western Mustangs on the neutral ground of Varsity Stadium the following Saturday. The winner of that game will meet the Blues on November 27, Grey Cup day, in either Kingston or London, depending on which team wins the first game.

This plan eliminates all possibility of a College Bowl with the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in Vancouver on November 27. Queens announced yesterday that they had received the same financial offer from the B.C. society sponsoring the event as Western and Varsity, and that they had also accepted the proposition.

Officials of the University of Toronto Athletic Association attempted to contact U.B.C. last night to inform them of the situation in the Eastern League, but without success. It is not known what reaction will come from the coast to holding the East-West College final on the Saturday following the Grey Cup game, should it take the Intercollegiate League two weeks to declare a champion.

It is not known what proposals were made by the other universities at the meeting, but the University of Toronto's Athletic Directorate had proposed a draw for the bye at their Tuesday meeting. The most plausible reason for not awarding the bye on the basis of points for during the season is that the Mustangs could conceivably run up a record score in Montreal on Saturday if that was to be the method. Otherwise, Western will probably be playing under wraps to avoid any injury before the game on the 20th, which they are sure to be in regardless of what happens at Varsity Stadium on Saturday.

Varsity Censure Rejected On Drink Poll Publicity

By a margin of one vote, with 3 abstentions, the Students' Administrative Council last night defeated a motion of censure of The Varsity.

The motion, proposed by Joe Slogan (Dentistry), stated that: "In view of the unfortunate publicity that has arisen from the poll on drinking published in The Varsity, the S.A.C. censures The Varsity for the manner in which this poll was published, and requests The Varsity to refrain from publishing misleading articles which tend to bring notoriety to the university community."

Slogan emphasized the fact that he was criticizing not the poll itself, but the manner in which it was published. He saw no acknowledgement on the part of The Varsity that the poll was intended as a "gag", and looked upon the survey as "the very worst of taste".

Quoting from the constitution of the S.A.C. Slogan read the passages pertaining to the contract of The Varsity, in respect to its duties and responsibilities to the council and to the university.

Citing a private poll conducted by his fraternity, "which may admitted" he said, "be no more accurate than that of The Varsity," Slogan claimed that actually 75% of the women of the university do not drink, that 12% drink only occasionally, and that the 13% of regular drinkers "consume certainly no more than five pints a week".

"It is time The Varsity pulled up its socks," Slogan concluded.

"The fact that the drinking poll, like the University Christian Mission, has been misinterpreted by the Toronto daily newspapers,

(Continued on Page 8)

Carabins

Applications for the Carabin weekend—a French and English speaking student exchange involving a trip to Montreal—must be in by 12 noon today, says Doug Hamlin. A great many applications have gone out and not yet returned, he says. To be considered by the selection committee, the applications must be in the SAC office by noon.

Today

ENGINEERING, ARCHITECTURE, FORESTRY— 1:10 - 2 p.m.

Wallberg Building, Room 1033—Faith and Your Job—The Rev. Michael Creal.

FACULTY OF MEDICINE—1:10 - 2 p.m.

Meds Building, Common Room—A Christian View on Marriage and Family Life—Mrs. C. W. Sowby.

SCHOOL OF NURSING—1:10 - 2 p.m.

Common Room—The Ideal of Service Among Professional People—Miss Harriet Christie.

PHYSICS BUILDING—1:10 - 2 p.m.

Room 135—Man as a Responsible Moral Being—Dr. C. P. Martin.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE—1:10 - 2 p.m.

West Hall—The Authority of the Bible—Mrs. Jean Hutchinson.

VICTORIA COLLEGE UNION—1:10 - 2 p.m.

Music Room—Christianity, Communism and Economic Issues in Western Democracies—Dr. Prentiss Pemberton.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL East 3:30	Vic vs. U.C.—Dolman, Holt, Kerr
SOCCER North 12:30	Vic vs. U.C.—Ross
LACROSSE 1:00	SPS I vs. Med. I—Mackie, Warren
4:00	Med. V vs. Vic II—Eagleson, Mackie
6:30	Low vs. Fox—Warren, Uhrynuk
7:30	Pharm. B vs. Knox—Warren, Uhrynuk
VOLEYBALL 1:00	SPS VII vs. Pre-Med. II B—Grosfield
4:00	Law B vs. Wye C—(Game Cancelled)
6:30	Pharm. C vs. Arch. B—Preem
7:30	Trin. A vs. Dent A—Preem
8:30	Wye. B vs. Pharm. C—(Game Postponed)
SQUASH 1:00	Law vs. Forestry

MEN'S AND WOMEN'S DEBATING TRIALS

(for U.T.D.U. Tours)

Friday, Nov. 12 — WALLBERG BUILDING — Room 3037 — 12 to 2 p.m. —

TOPIC: Resolved that student government on this campus is not responsible.

WOMEN

Brennan Hall (SMC) — Thursday, Nov. 11 — 3-5 p.m.

TOPIC: Canadian Universities — united they stand, divided they fall.

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

STUDENT TOURS TO EUROPE

LIMITED TO STUDENTS BETWEEN THE AGES OF 19 AND 26
Under the personal guidance of a well-known University Professor.

TOUR # 1 81 DAYS $1,270.00

England, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Germany,
Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 1

TOUR # 2 74 DAYS $1,135.00

England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland,
Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 8

Both Tours sail on the well-known CUNARD LINE

Write, call or telephone for illustrated descriptive folder.

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

(Kenneth B. Conn, President)

2 College St.

WALTON 4-1494

Trinity 5T6 At Chug-a-Lug

By BUD WALL

The annual field day and exhibition of unathletic prowess took place to the rear of the rubble and debris of Trinity College's glorious construction yesterday afternoon. For the edification and enlightenment of all and sundry, it was proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that a female can wield a lacrosse stick in the true Iroquois style—

Sheila Grange and Cecil Phillips were astounding.

John Weber, attired in red underdrawers, scored the only goal in the bi-sexual lacrosse debacle.

How he came to play for the girls was undisclosed.

Various tests of idiocy in the athletic manner such as a bisexual relay, (boys carried girls) bi-sexual hurdle race (boys jumped girls), and the wheelbarrow race, (boys rubbed girls noses on the ground)—all of these proved that 5T4 had the most virile men and servile women.

But the stellar event of the afternoon was the annual 5T5 and 5T6 boat-race. The object was to see which team of 18 men could drain their vessels (one cold Peller's each) in the shortest length of time. 5T6, largely due to the unique talent of their anchor man, Mr. Doug Stewart, were victorious. Mr. Stewart, contacted later over a black coffee, was quoted: "I'll be all right when I get some solid food. Who stole the Peller's ice?"

Japan Is McInnis Topic

Edgar W. McInnis, the President of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, will address the members of the International Relations Club this afternoon in Falconer Hall at 4.00 p.m. His topic will be "Japan."

Mr. McInnis was a member of the History staff at this University for twenty years. He resigned from the department in 1952 in order to take up the position of president of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs. He was also, in the same year, a member of the Canadian Delegation to the United Nations.

A graduate of this University, Mr. McInnis was awarded a Rhodes Scholarship here and studied History at Christ Church, Oxford. He has twice received the Governor General's award for books he has written and has produced, as well as numerous articles and pamphlets. He is also active as a radio and television commentator on International affairs.

Mr. McInnis speaks to the IRC members annually and usually provides the club with one of its most profitable meetings of the year, said a club member.

It was also stated that all students who wished to go on the weekend of Nov. 22-25, to New York, should be present at the meeting.

To-day

THURSDAY

1.00 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB: At the Club house, Oak Room, Philosophy lecture given by Rev. P. W. Nash, S.J. M.A., Ph.D., on "The Problem of Ideas: Do We Know Things or Only Ideas? Do the Facts Warrant Idealism? Is a Realist Necessarily Naive?" Free and open to all.

1.00 p.m.—U. of T. CCF: Room 7, U.C., Socialism la, Bert Garves, "United Steelworkers Rep. on CCF and Labour."

4.00 p.m.—INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB: Falconer Hall, Edgar McInnis will speak on "Japan."

4.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT: Room 126, OCE—Study Group "Aim of Education." Leader: Rev. George Thompson.

4.30 p.m.—CARNEGIE RECORD HOUR: Staff lounge, third floor, Mech. Eng. Building. Program of Chamber Music by J. S. Bach.

5.05 p.m.—UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN MISSION: Convocation Hall, Rev. D. T. Niles will speak on "The Symbols of our Faith."

6.30 p.m.—LUTHERAN STUDENT ASSOC.: At the Redeemer Luth. Church. Topic: "The Rise of the Episcopacy."

8.00 p.m.—SCM STUDY GROUP: 143 Bloor W. "The Church in Industry," guest speaker — Harding Vowles. All welcome.

8.15 p.m.—U. of T. near East Club, Women's Union, two films on Near East. Refreshments served. All welcomed.

9.00 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION: 186 St. George St., Rabbi Kamenlering's classes: 7.00 p.m. Hebrew; 9.00 p.m. Philosophy. VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE SERIES: Alumni Hall, Vic. How to choose your career—K. M. Dinsmore on "Civil Service."

COMING-UP

FRIDAY

1.00 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP: School of Nursing, Room 101, Rev. Bailly will conduct an open discussion.

4.00 p.m.—U. of T. DEBATING UNION: UC Room 13; Interfaculty Debating Tournament; U.C. Women vs. Nursing. Resolved: Nothing Succeeds Like Excess.

S.A.C. Music Committee
REMEMBER!
MUSICAL PEOPLE

The Carnegie Record Hour is held every

Thursday at 4.30 p.m.

In The Staff Lounge

Third Floor

Mechanical Engineering Building

Bard Bakker (II Trin.) Curator

HU. 8-8162

You are reminded that these are your programmes. Members of the University are encouraged to draw up their own programmes of special subjects and present them themselves. See the A.M. & D. Callboard every Tuesday for programmes. This Thursday:

J. S. Bach: Sonata for Violin, Flute and Piano.

"Goldberg" variations for Harpsichord

—An S.A.C. Activity

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR SALE

CAR — 1950 Morris Minor Coach, excellent condition, rebuilt motor and new paint. Ideal student transportation. $225. Phone JE. 6118.

Typing

Notes, theses, manuscripts, etc., typed, edited, duplicated quickly and reasonably. WA. 3-7830.

ACCOMMODATION

Single and double room available — pleasant surroundings, breakfast optional, walking distance of the University. WA. 3-7830.

FRENCH LESSONS

If you wish to make sure of your French exams Mr. Badgerov will try hard to include you among his many successful students. Close to campus. Daytime lessons between lectures. Call WA. 2-0649 or WA. 2-0536 and leave message.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

STUDENT RATES:

TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

FOR SALE

Christmas trees for sale, from nursery. Select pine. Unlimited supply available. Delivered to your lot. Phone ST. 8-7403.

FOR RENT

Bloor - Bathurst district — large, clean room in warm, quiet home, twin beds, partial board if desired; one or two students. Lombard 1369.

HAT HOP

FRIDAY... DRILL HALL

- Prizes for best mixed up hat and best fixed up bloop. — (Bloops sold today in SAC Office 12-2 p.m.).
- Square and Round Dancing 9-12 p.m.

FREE ALTERATIONS

on all short and long gowns we have in stock. Drop in and see them any day between lectures.

Evening appointments gladly made.

HELMAR

46 St. George St.

WA. 1-5978

DON'T MISS

SKULE 5T5 NITE

NOV. 17-20 — HART HOUSE THEATRE

You'll laugh at campus scandal with STACEY

School's own barnyard philosopher

Tickets at Engineering Stores or Hart House Box Office

$1.25

EXPORT
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

U.T.D.U. Tours Begin Tournament at Varsity

Women's and men's debating trials for the U.T.D.U. Tours will be held today and tomorrow respectively said Gord Hurlburt, SPS SAC Rep and Chairman of the Debating Union. The winning students will have the chance of debating in competition with the colleges in Ontario and the U.S.

There will be mixed as well as men's and women's tournaments, Hurlburt added. The first will be a women's invitation tournament here at U. of T. on Nov. 26, with debating teams from other colleges in Ontario.

On Dec. 10 and 11, the annual Pittsburgh cross-examination tournament will be held at the U. of Pitt. which two Reps, a boy and girl, from the U. of T. will attend.

In addition, letters have been sent out to universities in the US, such as Cornell, New York State, M.I.T., Smith College and Norfolk Penetentiary, a traditional entrant. Two men debaters from Toronto will make the tour.

Today, Nov. 11, the trials for women debaters will be held at Brennan Hall (SMC) from 3 to 5 p.m. The topic under discussion will be "Canadian Universities — united they stand, divided they fall."

Tomorrow Nov. 12, debating trials for men will be held in the Wallberg Building (Room 3037) from 12 to 2 p.m. The topic to be debated is "Resolved that student government on this campus is not responsible."

Debaters at these trials will speak for 10 minutes on the above topics, will then be presented with a list of 10 topics for 10-minute perusal, and speak for three minutes.

University Christian Mission

Niles Addresses Students Convocation Hall

"Religion is the result of Man's response to the ultimate questions as he understands them," defined the Reverend Dr. Daniel T. Niles in his lecture, "Christianity and other Religions," to a filled West Hall in UC at 1:00 p.m. today.

"Our humanity is created by our relationship to God." This relation is expressed in the Bible by "man is created in God's image." Dr. Niles said that he took "image" to mean reflection, not stamp. "When you look in the mirror, where does the image exist. It isn't anywhere. It is in between." God never leaves man alone, Dr. Niles stressed. If he did, "we would cease to be men." That is, He is always putting himself up to be what man responds to, so that man can reflect.

The Christian faith says that at one certain moment God was bared in light as full as man can rear, stated Niles. Jesus Christ is the light to which every religion responds. Other religions, like Hinduism, besides Christianity, haven't seen the "full glory," maintained the Doctor; "they are living by candle-light. We must tell them to come out into the sun. Some Christians, too, are living in darkness," he added. "None of us face the light completely," but "the light that lighted (Christianity) has come."

Convocation Hall

Gypsy Smith put his small son on the edge of the table and stepped back a few feet and told the lad to jump. The tot merely peered over the edge and shook his head. Again the father asked the same question and again the lad remained motionless. The third time the father asked, the boy stood up, walked to the middle of the table, shut his eyes and ran off the table — into his father's arms.

This is how Dr. Niles described faith to a large group of students and staff assembled here yesterday. He said "Faith is not a leap from reason, but a leap into love — the loving arms of Christ."

He developed this theme by stating the facts of Christianity. These are that, God made you, that you are a sinner and that you are a sinner whom God loves.

"But the main fact is that Jesus Christ rose from the dead and is alive here in Toronto — now!"

He then stated the following three steps: "In order to meet him you must be able to recognize him. Some people don't recognize him because they do not read the gospel story. Sit down and read the gospel of Mark, it'll only take you a half hour."

Secondly, "There are those among you who have met the risen Christ — ask them about meeting Him."

Thirdly, "You have to want to meet Christ and after you have done these things — you will."

To be sure that you have met Christ is not difficult. He said, "It's like falling in love — you can't explain it before you fall, but when it happens you will know."

SAC at a Glance

The Students' Administrative Council last night besides disapproving a motion censuring the Varsity and approving an AVR probability committee:

- heard letters from President Smith and the Board of Governors each giving $400 to the SAC for payment to the staff members of the University Symphony Orchestra and Chorus.
- were told that the net profit from the Homecoming Dance will be donated to flood relief. Flood relief tags will be paid for under "administrative supplies."

—looked sad on hearing bloopers were not selling well.

—questioned, but carried adoption of informal reports. Its customary . . .

—were informed that Blue and White skating parties were run on soft ice, ie unrefrigerated.

—found out that Mrs. Mulvaney and her dolls and trinkets from all over the world would be at the WUS Treasure Van in Hart House, November 22-25.

—had a coffee break.

—heard nothing from about five council representatives.

—sanctioned a committee to press for installation of a traffic light on Hoskin Avenue. One volunteer for the committee was told "you may be killed first." Another comment was "I like to cross . . . it adds zest and fun to life."

—gave J. Goldsmith, Wycliffe, a watching brief on inquires over the dissatisfaction of library service by various students.

—carried with no discussion, 1) a motion to investigate 'student-administration increased communication' with a view to improve understanding between the two, 2) investigate the status and position of student governments, 3) deal with any related matters within its scope and 4) empowered to invite individuals to its meetings.

—approved a report of no decision on Torontonensis tenders.

Caledon Hills Weekend Meet On U.N. Charter

The first review of the United Nations charter, which promises to touch off the stormiest session in the organization's history when it is brought up next year, will be the main topic of discussion this week-end at Caledon Hills farms. Students from eight universities will be guests of the University of Toronto UN Club, there in the annual international affairs seminar.

Mr. Sol Rae, Chairman of the UN Division of External Affairs, will lead the group in three discussions on Saturday. The problems facing the UN in the review of the Charter will be the main topic. During the afternoon session, the practical achievements of the UN in political and security fields and the disarmament question will be discussed.

Mr. Rae has spoken to the U of T UN Club previously when he and Mr. Leslie Pearson conducted the club on a tour of the UN building in New York two years ago. Since many of U of T graduates have been successful in the Department of External Affairs, Rae will speak about careers for university graduates in that field.

Practical achievements of Technical Assistance is the discussion scheduled for Friday night. Sunday, the problems involved in creating a Human Rights covenant will be dealt with.

Plans will be made during the week-end for a proposed model General Assembly to be held next February. All universities represented at Caledon will be invited to send delegations.

TORONTONENSIS

— THE SHOWS RECAPTURED

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Services of Remembrance and Consecration

November 11th, 1954 — 10.45 a.m.

SOLDIERS' TOWER, UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Hymn: "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" Opening Sentences
The Lord's Prayer
Prayers of Remembrance and Consecration

The Last Post
Two Minutes' Silence
Reveille
Placing of Wreaths
God Save the Queen
Benediction

A Carillon Recital will be given by J. Leland Richardson before and after the Service beginning at 10:10 a.m.

Under the auspices of
The University of Toronto Alumni Association

THE UNIVERSITY DRAMA COMMITTEE

Drama Weekend Hart House Theatre

FRIDAY, NOV. 12 at 8:30—SATURDAY, NOV. 13

TRINITY . . .

THE RESPECTABLE PROSTITUTE

By

Jean Paul Sartre

ST. MICHAEL'S . . .

THE HAPPY JOURNEY

By

Thornton Wilder

One Night— .75
Both Nights $1.00

ADJUDICATOR . . . FRANCES HYLAND

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE . . .

THE FALL OF THE CITY

By

Archibald MacLeish

SCHOOL OF NURSING . . .

SUNDAY COSTS FIVE PESOS

By

Josephine Niggli

VICTORIA COLLEGE . . .

THE INTRUDER

By

Maurice Maeterlinck

HART HOUSE TODAY

NOTE: There has been some misunderstanding about Reservation Tickets for the Members Invitation Dinner this Friday, 6.15 p.m. The dinner will be charged for at the usual rates. The Ticket, for a member and lady guest, and which members may obtain (at no cost from the Hall Porter) is purely a reservation indication for the Great Hall Cafeteria. These tickets are available until 7.30 p.m. tonight.

THURSDAY, 11TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel)
- 10.00 a.m.-10.00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION John A. Hall. Also Lino cuts by Cyril Travers. (Art Gallery and adjoining Print Room)
- 10.00 a.m.-10.15 p.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel)
- 10.45 a.m. — ASSEMBLY AT SOLDIERS' TOWER for Remembrance Service.
- 5.05 p.m.- 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel)
- 5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.
- 7.30 p.m.- 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS
- 7.30 p.m.-10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range)

Hillel Foundation

Sabbath Eve

"CONTEMPORARY JUDAISM"

Friday, November 12, 8:30 P.M.

"THE REFORM POSITION"

Discussants:

Terry Miller, Philip Kurtz

Refreshments

The Rev. D. T. Niles

Will Speak On

"The Symbols of Our Faith"
Today at 5.05 p.m.
in Convocation Hall

The Varsity
Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Asst. Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE
NIGHT EDITORS
REPORTERS:

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Moishe Reiter
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Robert Batten
Marianne Farrell, Arlene Ross
Sue Delman, Marg. Stern, Joe Aziz,
Tini Gray, Bud Wall

Reprinted from November 11, 1919

Lest We Forget

Armistice Day has come and gone. Yesterday, resuming their interrupted careers and facing the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, at the request of His Majesty King George, the British nation celebrated the first anniversary of the cessation of war hostilities and the dawn of the new era of peace. The eleventh of November, nineteen hundred and eighteen, is indelibly printed on our memories and now, after one year of peace, we are able to look back to the days on which the Armistice was signed with a deeper sense of thankfulness than that which prompted our first wild outbursts of joy. We recall the events of the past year—the return of the troop trains and the glad reunion of friends, the relaxation of military rule and the first throb of a normal life surging through our nation, the gradual disappearance of khaki as the returned men step into the ranks of civilian life, the thronging of our colleges and universities with youthful veterans dauntlessly

The Great War is only one year behind us. Its given lessons have not all been learnt. The problems which follow in the wake of a world struggle are still to be solved, and the undercurrent of social unrest has gained a force which cannot be resisted. The crisis in the struggle for democracy has been passed, but eternal vigilance is necessary to secure the re-establishment of normal conditions. The day of sacrifice is not over. We rejoice for a year of peace, but in our rejoicing let us not forget that the sacrifice of those who lie in Flanders Fields is all in vain if we do not maintain the peace which they have so dearly won.

Remember This

Today is Remembrance Day. It is a day set aside for remembrance; and we should remember . . . We should remember the fearsome horror of two world wars within the memory of living man. We should remember the threat of the third — and possibly the last — that at present hangs over us. We should remember all this.

And more . . .

We should also recall the reasons for the carnage that has happened before and seems certain to follow this day. We should remember that wars are not started by Hitlers, nor Stalins, nor others of their kind . . . We should remember that they were not fought by the Mussolinis or the Gobbels . . . nor was their universal brutality the fault of the Tojos . . .

Wars are started, and fought, and made catastrophic by—Common Men. Upon prejudices, blind fears, and jingoism—upon hate and mutual distrust—upon all these properties of the common man are the foundations of wars laid and their structure erected. We should remember this.

The stuff of one or a dozen lives—no matter how tyrannically brutal or forceful they may be—is not strong enough to rend the veil of human history into shreds of blood and iron.

It takes many people, much stupidity, a great deal of hate, to do this. The irony of Justice decrees that wars are made and their consequences suffered by the same people—the common people—us.

We should remember this. R.D.B.

Key to the Kingdom

It is November 11, 1954.

Nine years have smoothed the jagged edges of war's haunting memory, and the first war has faded to a shapeless blot in the book of time.

Yet, have we not called to mind in some half prophetic moment the awful cost in life and vital energy?

From the inner fibre of our being we have joined our protest with that of a million mothers whose sons lie cold and stark, a million children robbed in the twilight of their childhood of a father's guiding hand, a million torn and twisted men warped in body or soul who stand bathed in the harsh light of this day's public ceremony.

But have we not also seen the splendid vision of a world in which sorrow and sighing shall flee away? The world where all the ageless virtues in dynamic form find their truest expression.

Why then have we perpetrated this crime on one another? Why have we turned the key, each in our own cell, to shut out our brother?

Are we not gripped by the nightmare of the loveless, fruitless lives floating through the limbo of modern society.

Are we not astounded at the eddy of purposeless dust that reaches with pliant persuasion into the heart of every man, dragging him to the quagmire of indecision?

Shall we not reflect as we stand cloaked in our silence, that out of the fabric of our petty hates, jealousies and indecisions the mantle of war is fashioned, the seed of destruction finds nurture and mockery is made of peace in our time.

our readers write:

Typical of Student Opinion

The Editor,
The Varsity.

I suppose you have read about the students at the University of British Columbia banning two Christian groups because of their "discriminatory" statements of belief. It seems that such discrimination is contrary to the spirit of glorious old U.B.C. and must be stamped out.

This situation quite frankly worries me. It is not that I am worried about the future of the Inter-Varsity Fellowship and the Newman Club on the campus, since the University President has come to their rescue. The thing that worries me is that the whole storm may blow over before the true significance of the matter is understood.

I say that because nothing could be more typical of student opinion in the Universities today than the thinking behind this ban. These were not freshmen still wet behind the ears who did this, but the elected leaders of a large student body, and the same people who will be leaders in Canada tomorrow. If you asked these people how they could be so stupid, there would be almost unanimous agreement on a statement of belief something like this:

"The trouble with the world today is that too many people have convictions. It is people with conviction of one kind or another who are causing all the trouble, so we must get rid of all people with convictions. The ideal type of person is represented by the student or professor who has no convictions and is therefore able to form unprejudiced and unbiased opinions on all subjects. Once a person has committed himself on anything, such as fundamentalist Protestantism or the Roman Catholic Church he has closed his mind to certain non-Christian truths, and therefore he has forfeited his freedom. Besides, all truth and all knowledge is, like Newton's Laws, only an approximation. Therefore we should never "believe" any truth, but only accept it tentatively, because it is likely to be shown up as false if we took an advanced class in the subject. The same thing holds true for religious truth."

I bet that you would be surprised to find how many students would agree with the above paragraph.

What I think would be fun would be to form a Cynic's Club on the U.B.C. campus. It would have a statement of belief chuck full of "discriminatory" clauses: It would bar from membership all those who had strong convictions one way or the other about discrimination, exclude those who discriminate between truth and falsehood by choosing the former, and reject those who prefer morality to immorality.

I wonder whether, with all these "discriminatory" clauses, the Cynic's Club could ever get recognized at UBC.

Polycarp

Laudity

The Editor,
The Varsity.

With suave alliterations and witty cynicism, you have again taken to derision of Christians, their faith, and their Church. You have developed a remarkable capability to twist facts to your own ends, but with this commendation my praise ends.

The controversy with regards to capital punishment is a complicated and heatedly debated one among thinking Christians the world over. To label it a "casual controversy" is a dishonest abuse of quite evident facts. Your Shavian treatment of an incident in our Lord's life, a treatment which is marked for its sneer at anything worth consideration, is typical of your casual handling of one of the great tenets of life itself. But to go on to deliberately distort the sacred doctrines of the Atonement and redemption is not only rude, but is an immoral attempt to cloud up the issues of life for really truth-seeking individuals. As a publication from a University which is aimed only toward a more lucid understanding of life, this is absolutely inexcusable.

Peter Marsh,
I Trinity.
Ed's Note: The Varsity applauds Peter Marsh for his firm stand against capital punishment.

Ecce Agnos

(Redrawn by request from a Varsity Cartoon
By HUGH NIELOCK)

HYLAND TO ADJUDICATE

By JANE GRIFFIN

She sat in one of the large, comfortable easy chairs in the foyer of the Crest Theatre, tiny, vivacious, and completely charming. Canadian actress Frances Hyland, who comes to the campus on Friday and Saturday evenings to adjudicate the University of Toronto Drama Committee's annual Drama Week-end at Hart House, talked with immense enthusiasm about her first love, the theatre.

Miss Hyland, who first came to the fore in these parts this summer, when she starred with James Mason in Measure for Measure at the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, comes originally from Saskatchewan. She attended the University there, graduating in English. Emrys Jones, head of the Drama Department who had noticed her exceptional talent when she appeared in amateur festivals, advised her to request the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire to establish a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London, England. This was done, and she attended the Academy for a year and a half.

Graduation from the Royal Academy was followed by a series of successes for Miss Hyland. She first attracted attention when she took over the role of Stella in the London production of Streetcar Named Desire, which starred Vivien Leigh. She then went into John Gielgud's revival of Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale, in which she played Perdita. For Frances Hyland, this was a most rewarding experience, an opportunity to work with one of the most exciting theatre personalities in England. She says of Gielgud: "For my money he is the greatest actor on the stage today."

Her first starring role in a major London production came in The Same Sky, a tragic drama of a Jewish girl who marries a Gentile. Miss Hyland, her blonde hair dyed black for the part, was movingly pathetic as the doomed young wife.

All this would seem to keep anyone fairly busy, but Miss Hyland has not restricted her activities solely to the live theatre. She has done a great deal of television work, which, unlike many others of her profession, she loves. "I find it much more relaxing. There is something calming about the efficiency in a studio. I would like to be a director, however. I think it's a wonder they stay sane!"

A wonderful and exciting opportunity came to Frances Hyland last year when she was cast in Christopher Fry's new play, The Dark is Light Enough. It was an exhilarating experience, if only for the chance to work with two of the greatest figures in theatre — Dame Edith Evans and Fry himself. She explained that they both have that indefinable quality which denotes true genius. Of Dame Edith she remarked, "She is a great artist and a most stimulating person to work with." Christopher Fry, she says, "is a wonderful man, just as gay and tolerant as his plays would lead you to believe."

It was while she was on tour with this production that Miss Hyland received an offer to come to Stratford this summer. Needless to say, it was a hard decision to make — whether to stay with the Fry production, or leave it and come to Canada. Eventually, she decided on the latter course. As it was, she explained, "a chance to work with Tyrone Guthrie — an opportunity not to be missed, and also a chance to come home."

The Festival was a great experience for Miss Hyland. "The whole atmosphere is so exciting." Of Guthrie himself, she says, "He is the most stimulating person in theatre. He has that quality of making you feel about fourteen times more alive." James Mason, the star of the Festival, she found, "a delightful and charming person. There is no hint of the star actor who couldn't be bothered. Everyone who met him became a Mason fan. He has a wonderful sense of fun and gaiety."

At the present, Miss Hyland is hard at work, rehearsing for T. S. Eliot's new comedy, The Confidential Clerk at the Crest Theatre, which she finds "a very difficult, though challenging play."

And the future? Miss Hyland will be doing Beauty and the Beast, by Nicholas Stuart Grey, and Olivia in Twelfth Night with the Crest, as well as several television and radio appearances on the CBC.

She plans to work abroad from time to time, but she feels that the theatrical future in Canada is becoming steadily brighter. "In England there is too much rigidity and emphasis on fashionable decor. In Canada there is a chance to counteract this tendency."

On the Hart House festival, she said that she is thankful it is not a competition, as the job of awarding prizes is a thankless one. "Of course I'm very flattered to have been asked, as I don't pretend to be a director or critic." Her basis for judgment will be very simple: "I am looking to be entertained."

Frances Hyland

Frances Hyland, whose talent is surpassed only by her beauty, and who was the female lead in a Stratford Shakespearean production this summer, will adjudicate the University of Toronto drama committee's festival this week-end, Friday and Saturday evenings, in Hart House theatre.

—VSP by Ed Hoshikw

off the palette

hall in hart house

The present collection in the Gallery of Hart House is that of John Hall, a member of the Ontario Society of Artists, the Canadian Society of Graphic Art and, on this campus, lecturer in the School of Architecture and instructor in painting and design for the Department of Art and Archeology.

Like many Canadian artists Mr. Hall is most expressive and most original in his drawings. Perhaps it is because a smaller amount of conscious effort is directed towards them, or perhaps one feels that they will be less noticed and criticized by the general public. In any event Beaver Valley, Haliburton Cliff, Among the Jackpine and Open Water showed a well managed line which gracefully and strongly filled the page; a purposeful use of paper. Yet even in this media the confusion which is so damaging to his oil paintings shows itself. In such a picture as Hills at Grace Lake there is a more elaborate, more determinedly 'artistic' line which in so simple a picture detracts from the subject.

It may seem paradoxical that in his paintings the least original are the most successful. Jukes Island and Dogwood Poppars, the most lovely of his oils, are also the most reminiscent of the Group of Seven and their immediate followers. But once he attempts to come out from under these artists the quality of his work falls. In Haliburton there is a good but unimaginative use of colour; Spring Sunlight shows a careful technique but little else. Then in Oncoming Storm and Buttermilk Falls he daubs, the former painting showing heavily emphasized, but quite meaningless, brushstrokes.

Concerning the matter of tradition it is perhaps worthwhile to say this much. In Canadian art today there are men such as Charles Comfort who are thoroughly conversant with the best in the work of the past. They paint in a style of earlier days but they themselves are able to give so much of their own personality to the work that it is greater than a good traditional. Mr. Hall, however, seems to have little to give. To me he lacks the strength which is the staying power of his contemporaries in this field.

More unfortunate are his attempts to capture the modern idiom. There is the Head of a little Girl, for instance. In this attempt to create a mood Mr. Hall has slightly distorted the form and colour of the fact and then has placed behind it a horizontal bar and a series of lines. I am afraid I can find no meaning in these "fillers", and this lack of meaning destroys the unity of the picture. The same occurs in the Portrait of a Scientist where a confused use of colour and planes of perspective suggest only the subject's and the artist's immaturity. Finally in the Still Life With Oranges over the mantle-piece and Blackfish Mr. Hall fails to realize, as far as I can see, that in abstract art every inch of line and stroke of colour must have purpose and relation or else the composition falls apart. In the former a double perspective adds no meaning to the subjects while in the latter the forms above the fish seem no more than a haphazard attempt to fill the canvas in an interesting way.

As a whole the collection seems forced together by a carefully contrived balance in the hanging of the pictures. I confess I am tempted to wonder how useful it is to show paintings which at their best are derivative, which have no relation at all to the problems of the society or the individual—and remember the charges against "modern" art that it has nothing to do with Life—and for two weeks "modern" art that it has nothing to do with Life—and for two weeks occupy space that might otherwise stimulate, the undergraduate mind.

—Tom Daly

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

Bounty on the Mutiny

The court is empty and unlit, the chairs and tables piled beside the Judge's Bench, but in the galleries crowd mobs of the curious, gossiping in whispering excitement about the case to be tried. Suddenly the court lights flick on. In walk two uniformed seamen, pick up and set out the chairs and tables, then leave. A thoughtful man, seeming sad, wanders in, stands looking at the Stars and Stripes on the wall behind the bench until he is joined by a small, very nervous man in Naval officer's dress. The two begin talking, thus, without great overtures, without the dramatically rising curtain, but simply and realistically, begins The Caine Mutiny Court Martial.

The Court Martial, a brilliant elaboration on the great Trial scene of Herman Wouk's novel about the American Navy, is being presented at the Royal Alexandra this week by a Hollywood group under the direction of Charles Laughton. The cast, with Wendell Corey as Greenwald, the fighter-pilot lawyer, Steve Brodie as Maryk, the mutineer, Fay Roope as Captain Blakely, President of the Court-Martial, and Paul Douglas as Queeg, the paranoid Commander, are uniformly excellent, except, perhaps, for certain bits by Douglas. As brought out in the play and novel, the mental weakness affecting Queeg is not at all recognizable at superficial inspection. Rather does the afflicted person give an impression of exceeding calm and complete control. The dramatic climax is attained by Greenwald's deft demolition of Queeg's restraint baring the neurotic mess beneath the surface. With Douglas, interpretation of the role, almost no work is required of Greenwald, except to ask a question or two. Douglas cracks almost from the start, growing red in the face, rising in his chair, shouting and jabbering wildly, at times seeming more hot-tempered than unbalanced. He is, though, unquestionably successful in depicting a sick mind, but he does so without subtlety, something which felt Queeg's part demanded.

Wendell Cory, however, plays with sensitivity and deep understanding of the Greenwald role. Ever the crafty attorney, skillfully and effectively doing his work he succeeds, always, in making the audience feel his distaste for what he is doing.

Great ingenuity is used in the Court-Martial for the changing of sets and their arrangement on the stage. Midway through the second act, for the shift of scene from court to the party, the stage is completely darkened, the play moves right along, and singing voices, those of the slightly-drunken celebrants, cover the noise of scraping scenery. The change completed, a half-light centres on the party table and the sailors singing about it. The curtain crosses only to half the stage, leaving part of the Judge's Bench hazily visible in the dim light on the table. For Greenwald's entry the light spreads slightly, bringing the Bench into the scene, imposing an effect of the intense drama just ended in the court upon the carefree carousing of the sailors. Greenwald's dramatic revelation of the real crime, and condemnation of Caine crew and self, coupled with his declared honour of Queeg present the real tragedy of the Caine Mutiny in a stark clarity.

A surprising quantity of humour is worked into the excitement through the amusing types put on the witness stand. From their comments, while the drama continues without losing force, comes much wit, easing audience tension and adding material to the plot. Fay Roope as the Judge handles all this with proper magisterial manner, convincing and still helping both the by-play and plot. Robert Lowrey, as Tom Keefer, has a small part but is a most contemptible villain in the time given him.

It's unfortunate that the Caine Mutiny Court Martial is here for only one week. MOISHE REITER

art,
music,
drama

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

Next week the Interfaculty soccer playoffs will begin, and with them begin the sixtieth year of final competition for the Arts Faculty Cup. First donated in the fall of 1895, the trophy has been competed for every year since, except for the war years of 1917 and 1918.

Soccer in 1895, according to a Varsity of that year, was considered one of the most skillful of Intercollegiate sports, and drew huge crowds of spectators. In the fall of that year, W. S. McEay expressed the hope for an organized soccer league in a letter to the Varsity. In 1896, delegates from Knox College, Osgoode Hall, McMaster University, Victoria University, the Dental College, and University College, then referred to as Varsity, met and drew up a constitution. The Faculty of the University presented a trophy for annual competition, and UC were the first to win it.

University College managed to win the Cup in the next two seasons, and then the Dental College took over. Since 1895, the Arts Faculty Cup has been won the most times by the School of Practical Science. The Engineers have carried off the silverware thirteen times in all. Victoria has won the trophy eight times, while UC has taken seven titles, Dentistry six, and Senior Meds five.

OAC managed to win the Cup four times while they were in the Interfaculty league. Trinity College has also won it four times, and have kept virtual control over it in the last few seasons. Last year the Red and Black won the First Division crown, while the School of Law were champions in the Second Division. In the unofficial playoff, however, the Lawyers defeated Trinity 2-1 after five minutes of overtime.

This serves to point out Interfaculty soccer's biggest advantage. It is probably the only intramural sport where competition in the First and Second Divisions is of an equal calibre. This year the Trinity club's chances hinge on Victoria beating UC this week. A win by Vic will leave UC and Trinity tied for second place in Group I, while a UC win will eliminate Trinity from the running.

Along with the Mulock Cup, now in its sixty-first year, the Arts Faculty Cup is probably one of the oldest trophies in Canada. Whatever the outcome next week, it still celebrates its Diamond Jubilee this fall, and sixty years of competition is a long time.

From the Blue Room . . . Varsity's John Sopinka has a new nickname after the Varsity inadvertently named Rich Bethune as the ball-carrier in a picture in Monday's paper. "Rich" Sopinka will likely prove a driving force this Saturday when the Blues meet Queens . . . T. A. Reed, formerly Financial Secretary of the University's Athletic Association, and the man the Reed Trophy is named after, says that a three-way tie for first place in the Intercollegiate Football union has occurred at least twice before this season. In the years between the First and Second World Wars, there was provision in the constitution for such an event, but the passage of time has evidently erased all reference to the subject.

Close Scoring Battle Is College Sidelight

There is more to be decided this Saturday than the championship of the Intercollegiate Football League. There is also the matter of the scoring title in the League and this is as dramatic as the big prize itself. In the running at the moment are Steve Oneschuk of Varsity Blues and Gino Fracas of the Western Mustangs. Both are in their final season both are half-backs and both stand within three points of each other with the last game of their college careers coming up.

Varsity faces up to their strongest opponents of the season the Queen's Golden Gaels, the only team to defeat them this year, and that by a count of 20-0. Fracas and the Mustangs have an easier time playing the McGill Redmen, with the betting favouring the Mustangs to win and Fracas to pile up the points.

Varsity will have other things on their mind than scoring titles this weekend. All their concentration will be needed to beat the upstart Gaels, only a dark horse at season's start, now the top dog in competition with a sure road to the playoffs. Having lost only one game this year and having beaten every other team in the league the Gaels' record is unmatched. Their pony backfield of Al Kocman, Ron Stewart and Gary Schreider has been supplemented by a newly strengthened line for the last half of the season. Last year's all-college-centre, Gary Lewis has returned to the Gael lineup and has already shown his worth.

When the Blues last played the Gaels' Lewis was not with them, still the score stood at 20-0, and the big difference between the two clubs was the Varsity superiority along the line. In almost all other departments the record favours the Queen's team, but that too is reckoning without the improvement made by the Blues in the last part of the schedule. If the Varsitys can produce the sort of game that brought them back into contention last week in London they should make a game of it. Benny hasn't spoken yet. See him tomorrow.

Irish Show Strength Whip Dentists 28-0

By JOHN VOITECH

St. Mike's football team proved two things last night on the West Field before one of the largest crowds of the season; that the spread formation is not out of date by any means, and that they are a power with which to be reckoned. They literally swamped a surprisingly weak Dents team by the grand slam score of 28-0. The win boosted St. Mike into sole possession of second place in the Group II standings, only two points behind the leading team, Trinity.

The big gun for St. Mike's was Bill MacIntyre whose two touchdowns vaulted him into second place along with Comish of SPS I in the scoring race. Both men have two touchdowns to their credit.

St. Mike's opened the scoring in the first quarter smartly and quickly. It took them exactly seven plays after receiving the opening kick off to go eighty-five yards on the ground for the Major. Renzetti scored this major and it was converted by Ahearn. MacIntyre, Renzetti and Fusco starred in the march up the field.

The Dentists were unable to do anything with the ball and so they kicked back to St. Mike's who promptly, by virtue of MacIntyre's first major of the game, scored again, but this touchdown was not converted. The Dentists held the Irish scoreless in the second quarter. Fawcette, Shun-lick, and O'Connor tried to get a Dent attack going but time and time again they were hit with bone-shattering tackles by Donovan, Kosterski, Kostuk and McGuigan.

Fusco added another St. Mike's touchdown early in the third quarter as he received a Renzetti pass from the fifteen yard line. Ahearn converted. Late in the quarter D. McIntyre intercepted a Dent's pass and brought the ball down to the Dent six yard line. From there Ahearn ran over for the Major. The convert was unsuccessful.

With a little more than three minutes remaining in the game MacIntyre scored on a handoff from G. O'Connor. Ahearn converted again.

Late in the game Leo McGuigan of St. Mike's had to be retired from active duty as he accidentally ran into his own man in a mix up in the St. Mike's back field. McGuigan received a cut in his mouth and at the time of writing the seriousness of his injury had not yet been determined. On Babirads kickoffs for St. Mike's, the ball many a time almost travelled over the goal line.

If the late Grantland Rice were between the Irish and the Dents, covering yesterday's game he would have renamed his famous Horsemen as McGuigan, Fusco, Renzetti and MacIntyre?

Skule 20-0 Over Meds Gains Tie For Top Spot

S.P.S. I bounced into a tie for first place yesterday in the intramural football league when they decisively victimized Meds. 20-0. Skule now has four victories and one loss. Vic, the other first place club, has four victories and no defeats.

The first quarter was featured by the passing-catching combination of Don Hart and Bill Karpinski. Two passes to Karpinski allowed the Engineers to bring the ball to the one yard line. From there Hart went over for the touchdown. The convert was not good.

In the second quarter due to the deceptive ball-handling of Hart the Engineers were able to gain much yardage on off-tackles plays so much yardage, in fact, that they got the ball to the Med's twelve yard line. Don Comish completed the series by plunging for the major. The convert was not good and the first half ended with Skule leading, 10-0.

And they did not relinquish that lead. Good kicking efforts of Jim Wheeler, and attentive defensive work by Andy Coppolino, both of Meds were not enough to stop the Skule men.

In the third quarter George Kelly of Skule intercepted a pass at the Meds' 30 and raced down the sideline unmolested for the touchdown.

The final Skule touchdown came off an unusual but sensational play. From the Meds' 35 yard line Doug Moore threw to Karpinski who ran to the five. On seeing that he was about to be tackled he lateraled to Comish who went over for the score. The convert was not good.

During the last half, although Skule dominated play, Meds had many scoring chances. On one occasion a Medsman intercepted a pass at the Skule 35; at other times Meds recovered Skule fumbles. They failed to capitalize, however, because of the impenetrability of the Skule line-backers.

Vics Victimized PHE Win 41-4

It seems as if Vic expected the 41-4 trouncing they received from PHE third year last night. Armed with crutches, iodine splints and bandages, poor Vic underdogs staggered onto the CE floor to commence the most lopsided b-ball meet of the season.

Instead of dragging through a play-by-play, let's just look at the reasons PHE won. That's easy enough; it can be summed up in one word, "experience". PHE out-blocked, out-shot, and out-played the bloody Vicsters. The latter out-fouled and missed more than their opponents.

If Vic had been faced with anything but a team with two intercol players and three years of basketball drill, they would definitely have made a good showing. But PHE had it all the way. At the end of the half, PHE was ahead 25-2, Phil Andrews chalking up the only Vic basket.

Andrews was the only Vic scorer of the night. June Hansford netted 16 for PHE; Jane Duff, 12, and Mary Haza 7. PHE had their blocking down to a system so the Vic seldom caught sight of their own basket. Most of the play took place around the PHE net with Vic breaking away to make the odd shot.

Standings

SOCCER

Division I

Group I	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Vic	5	4	1	0	8
Trin. A	6	3	2	1	7
UC	5	3	1	1	7
Tr. SPS	6	0	6	0	0
Group II	P	W	L	T	Pts.
St. Meds	5	2	1	2	6
Jr. SPS	6	2	2	2	6
S.M.C.	5	1	2	2	4
Group III	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Dents	5	4	0	1	9
Pre-Meds	6	2	3	1	5
Trin. B	5	0	3	2	2

Division II

Emman.	6	4	1	1	9
Knox	6	4	2	0	8
For.	5	3	0	2	8
Law	6	3	2	1	7
Arch.	5	2	3	0	4
Wyc.	5	1	4	0	2
Pharm.	5	0	5	0	0

LACROSSE

Division I

Group I	P	W	L	T	Pts.
UC I	5	5	0	0	10
Meds I	4	2	2	0	4
SPS I	4	2	2	0	4
Vic I	5	0	5	0	0
Group II	P	W	L	T	Pts.
SMC A	5	5	0	0	10
Trin. A	3	1	2	0	2
Dent A	3	1	2	0	2
Meds II	5	1	4	0	2
Group III	P	W	L	T	Pts.
SPS III	4	4	0	0	8
SPS II	4	2	1	1	5
Meds IV	5	1	3	1	3
Meds III	5	0	3	2	2
Group IV	P	W	L	T	Pts.
UC II	4	4	0	0	8
Vic II	4	2	2	0	4
Meds V	4	2	2	0	4
SPS IV	4	0	4	0	0
Group V	P	W	L	T	Pts.
SMC B	3	3	0	0	6
Dent B	3	2	1	0	4
SPS V	3	2	1	0	4
Meds VI	4	0	4	0	0

Division II

Law	5	5	0	0	10
Pharm. A	4	3	1	0	6
For.	5	2	3	0	4
Knox	5	1	4	0	2
Pharm. B	3	0	3	0	0

Intramural In Action

Tuesday night saw Nobber Watson of UC break the existing scoring record in interfaculty lacrosse league. The former record of fourteen goals in one game was eclipsed by Watson's nineteen as UC lead by Watson's spurge swamped Vic firsts 26-3. Tom Riley added three goals. Patterson added two, while Terry Riley and Sonley added one goal each. Hulbert scored two for Vic while Tweddle netted a single.

Everybody including the goalkeeper got into the scoring act as Law defeated Knox 14-3. Both Rusky and Luck scored three goals for the winners. Gray and Angus scored two goals each while goalkeeper Eagleson, Iwanicki, Hall and Proverbs netted one goal each.

Pharmacy A defeated Forestry 7-5. The Pharmacy goal scorers were: Phillips with three, Fatom with two and Sachs and Anco with one each. Maylor scored three Crombie one and Scott one for Forestry.

Yesterday St. Mike's A team continued on with its winning ways as they beat Med 11 by the score of 7-0. McKinnon scored three for the winners while Wheeler netted two and Stock and Tighe added singletons.

In soccer action Emmanuel nipped Knox by virtue of Annis' lone goal of the game! Pre Meds defeated Trin B 2-0 on goals by Baxter and Milligan. Knox defeated Wycliffe 2-0 on goals by McKinlay and Swann.

There was a full card of volleyball action last Tuesday and Wednesday. It was Med Iyr over Sr. Vic 15-8 and 15-10; Pre Med 1B over Trin B 15-2, 15-4; Dent A over Pre Med 1A 15-11, 15-12; Pharm B over Wyc 15-9, 13-15, 15-11; Wyc A over Emmanuel 15-8, 15-0. St. Mike's B team defeated UC 1V 15-7 and 15-13.

Baby Blues, Queens Meet At Kingston

The Intermediate football team travels to Kingston this morning to wind up the season against the Queens Intermediate squad. In their first encounter here at Varsity stadium the Baby Blues emerged victorious in a hard fought battle 17-7, after trailing until late in the third quarter. A surprise move by the powers that be has shifted the game from Friday to this afternoon.

Toronto's bruising series with Western has left its effects as several of the players will remain behind due to injuries. Al Wong, Varsity's backfield speedster, aggravated the rib injury sustained in the first game during the second encounter with the Colts. Also sidelined with a rib injury is John Long, while Izzy Pastushak will miss the trip because of a back injury. The official return to action of Bill McKenna as well as Danny Nelson will bolster the Baby Blue's front line. Dan will replace the injured Pastushak at the defensive end spot, while Bill returns to his old haunts at guard.

Varsity will be out to end the season in a winning way to-day at Kingston. Although, once rolling, the Blue and White seemed to have little trouble in their first game as Queens team at home seems capable of the impossible. It is also worth remembering that this is the team that held the Western Intermediate powerhouse to a tie.

Hockey Trials Open In Arena

The Hockey Blues, having started off the season on the right foot outplaying the Marlboros to a 2-2 tie last Saturday night, have opened their practices to all comers this week in the Arena. A large turnout has relieved Intermediate coach Jack Wheldrake of any worries he might have had about the calibre of the team that will attempt to defend the Shaw Trophy.

The Blue team that took the ice against the Marlies last week is not necessarily the final selection, although it must be pretty close to it. John Adams, Ross Woods, and Red Stephen, still involved with football, are yet to show at practice, and all three played Blue hockey last season.

The Marlboros are evidently out for a little bit of revenge, after the Blues gave them a hockey lesson last Saturday. A return game has been arranged for Wednesday night in Varsity Arena at 8:00. The Marlboros are supposed by some critics to be the team to beat for the Memorial Cup this winter, although Woe, Woe . . .

They prate to us of college years When all the world is young and gay;

They never tell the hopes and fears

On an examination day;

They never think of aching brows.

Of tragedies, perhaps, that dwell In a forgotten formula

Or inability to spell

A simple word, a word perchance We should have known quite well,

I feel, sometimes, that I should like

To settle down, forgetting quite That I am young; that song birds sing

That after winter follows spring Or any other pleasant thing;

Remembering only, chief of pests, Those awful tests: those awful tests.

St. Mike's have come up with one of their best teams in years. The Blues will be able to prove their worth against the Double Blue also, when they meet on November 23.

this fall be right in style

with Ritchie

"GRANDSTANDERS"

STYLE No. 25

It's really wonderful what a new pair of campus-inspired Ritchies will do for your suit, your appearance and your personality! The leathers for Ritchie "Grandstanders" are specially selected for Fall wear. Your feet deserve a pair! Most styles from $10.95 to $18.95.

Ritchie shoes for men

THE JOHN RITCHIE COMPANY LIMITED, QUEBEC, P.Q.

SECOND CHURCH SERVICE

FOR ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY
Sunday 11 a.m.—Great Hall, Hart House

SPORTS SCHEDULES

WEEK OF NOVEMBER 15th

FOOTBALL

Mon. Nov. 15 West 3:30 Med vs. U.C.—Tobe, McLean, Stadnyk
East 3:30 Vic. vs. SPS I—Fine, Dolman, Ferry
Tues. Nov. 16 West 3:30 Den. vs. SPS II—Tobe, McLean, Sukmanowski
East 3:30 For. vs. St. M.—Dolman, Fine, Stadnyk

LACROSSE (Balance of Schedule)

Mon. Nov. 15 1:00 SPS III vs. SPS II—Sukmanowski, Urquhart
Tues. 16 1:00 SPS I vs. U.C. I—Warren, Urquhart
6:30 Dent. B vs. Med. VI—Graham, Eagleson
7:30 Knox vs. For.—Graham, Eagleson
8:30 Pharm. A vs. Pharm. B—Graham, Eagleson
Wed. 17 1:00 U.C. II vs. SPS IV—Urquhart, Eagleson
4:00 Trin. A vs. Med. II—Sukmanowski, Brown
6:30 SPS V vs. Dent. B—Uhrnyuk, Smela
7:30 St. M. A vs. Dent. A—Uhrnyuk, Smela
Thurs. 18 1:00 SPS III vs. Med. III—Smela, Brown
4:00 Med. VI vs. St. M. B—Eagleson, Brown
6:30 Pharm. A vs. Law—Warren, Graham
7:30 For. vs. Pharm. B—Warren, Graham
Fri. 19 1:00 SPS IV vs. Vic. II—Sukmanowski, Smela
Mon. Nov. 22 1:00 Med. IV vs. SPS II—Sukmanowski, Urquhart
4:00 Med. V vs. U.C. II—Urquhart, Brown
Tues. 23 1:00 Vic. I vs. Med. I—Warren, Eagleson
6:30 St. M. B vs. Dent. B—Uhrnyuk, Graham
7:30 For. vs. Knox—Uhrnyuk, Graham
8:30 Law vs. Pharm. B—Uhrnyuk, Graham

VOLLEYBALL

Mon. Nov. 15 1:00 SPS III vs. Jr. U.C.—Grosfield
4:00 Pre-Med. IA vs. Jr. Vic. Diemer
5:00 Med. III Yr. vs. Sr. U.C.—Balshin
Tues. 16 1:00 U.C. III vs. Med. I Yr.—Balshin
4:00 U.C. V vs. Trin. B—Sorra
6:30 Vic. III vs. SPS V—Preem
7:30 For. B vs. Wye. A—Preem
8:30 SPS V vs. U.C. IV—Preem
Wed. 17 1:00 St. M. A vs. Jr. SPS A—Grosfield
4:00 Pre-Med. IB vs. St. M. B—Kipiniak
5:00 Enman. vs. Arch. A—Kipiniak
6:00 Pre-Med. IIB vs. Dent. C—Kipiniak
7:00 For. A vs. Knox A—Diemer
8:00 Pharm. B vs. Arch. B—Diemer
Thurs. 18 1:00 Sr. Vic. vs. SPS IV—Preem
4:00 Trin. A vs. Pre-Med. IA—Balshin
6:30 Pre-Med. IIA vs. SPS V—Preem
7:30 Jr. Vic. vs. Dent. A—Preem
8:30 Knox B vs. Wye. B—Preem
Fri. 19 1:00 Jr. SPS B vs. SPS III—Sorra
4:00 St. M. D vs. Trin. B—Diemer
5:00 U.C. VI vs. SPS VII—Diemer

SQUASH

Mon. Nov. 15 1:00 Trin A vs. Med. III
4:20 Vic. I vs. Trin. B
Tues. 16 5:40 Arch. vs. Pharm. B
6:20 Med. IV vs. SPS IV
7:00 Trin. C vs. Dent. D
Wed. 17 7:00 SPS V vs. Dent. B
Thurs. 18 1:00 Sr. Med. vs. U.C. II
Fri. 19 5:00 Dent. B vs. SPS III

BLUE AND WHITE SOCIETY

DECORATIONS COMMITTEE

Preparations for the Queens' Dance will commence at 12:15 on Saturday and continue immediately following dance.

HOW TO KEEP WARM WITHOUT STAGGERING

You don't need a staggering heavy coat to keep out the wintry blast. Just choose one of our Mooredale overcoats, woven by Gledhill of England. Long-wearing but feather-light Cashmere finished.

Neatest trick of the season: the new, roomier sleeve on these coats. Hidden pleats open out when you lift your arm, then disappear when you lower it. This and many other style features are the brain children of Peter Antonelli the Progress Brand designer. Available in a score of shades. $87.50.

If you prefer a smoother, sleeker finish let us show you Strachan's Cashmere blended with Scottish lamb's wool... again lightweight warmth. Styled by Savile Row. Topcoat, $79.50. Overcoat, $95.00.

There are many other overcoat fabrics and styles here at Hobberlin's... no better selection in town.

Incidentally, we have a money-back guarantee with no strings attached. If you don't like it... you get all your money back... and we do our best to smile. Fortunately, it hardly ever happens, because we are able to give such personalized service.

P.S.: We're open till 6 p.m.

Hobberlin's

EM. 3-7313 145 Yonge St.

CANCELLATION

Women's Basketball Schedule

The games between St. H. Jr. and POT Sr. . . . and Vic Fr. and POT Fr. are cancelled ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Please watch Friday's Varsity for these games as well as the regular schedule.

HOME TEAM MANAGERS: Please report game results to W.A.A. Office the day after the game.

A rave of new colours for your

"Kitten" Collection

Prettiest way to go to school... in a full-fashioned Kitten sweater. In cashmere-soft Lambswool... 100% Super Orlon. Exquisitely hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof... by Glenayr.

At good stores everywhere

s. s. pullover $6.95
l. s. pullover $7.95
cardigan $8.95

G-54

Varsity Censure

(Continued from Page 1)

is not the fault of The Varsity," replied Ian Scott, Publications Commissioner. Scott pointed out that the women of the university replied to the questions with the full realization that their answers would be included in the survey. He pointed out as well that such polls as the recent one concerning student opinion on the new library receive little to no attention, that the survey under question owed its notoriety to the fact that it was taken out of context by the metropolitan press, and that such misrepresentation is the fate of every university newspaper.

The widespread and unfavourable publicity afforded to the incident, Scott felt, was not the responsibility of The Varsity.

The Managing Editor, Bob Brown, said that the actual figures stated in the article were completely accurate insofar as they were given to The Varsity.

Gordon Hurlburt, the Engineering Rep said that, although he agreed with the sentiments of the motion, he felt that the Toronto papers were obviously not unbiased, and that the motion was unjustified as it stood.

By the narrow margin of 9 ayes, 10 noes, and 3 abstentions, the motion of censure was defeated.

Hansard at SAC

By SYBIL STRACHAN

This is an attempted verbatim report of the Students' Administrative Council discussion on the All-Varsity Review. Only excerpts are given of many statements for brevity.

Snoemaker (Trinity): "Possibility of presenting an All-Varsity Review this year, and of making gigantic steps to have one next year, if not this.

"Contacted faculty of Music—Dr. Voltaires: (1) Creating a story of such a type as a Broadway Musical, and set certain parts to music. Have to create a story. Story on theme of University of Toronto. Talent from the University itself.

(2) Take in the shows now being produced on campus, such as the Meds, Dentantics, Bob Review, etc., and seeing what talent is in the University at the present time. If we find talent we can form an AVR with stunts—with appropriate opening and closing added. To lift scenes from shows and bind them into an AVR. Plan depends on if the scenes are fine enough and if talent is good enough.

"Proposal for future: December of this year to start advertising for people to help in some capacity for following AVR's.

"After Christmas, to bring in a budget of parts, to go ahead with everything without stopping. Last AVR faced this question of finance, and hesitated because they felt they would go into debt and the budget would not satisfy.

The Campus need: an All-Varsity Review!"

Slogam (Dents): "Suggested, particularly referring to old alma mater: At Manitoba each college and faculty puts on a show. At the All-Varsity Review (there) each college presents the best feature of its show, and there is a prize for the best.

Ann Stark (POT) objected: Because smaller departments didn't have their own shows they couldn't, therefore, be represented in the AVR under these conditions just expressed.

Bill Harris (Forestry): Combine a bit of both in the AVR—both represented from the shows and new skits.

Miss A. E. Parkes, (Secretary): This had been done for several years, and had been successful.

At this point, all formal recognition of the chair was dropped. G. Hurlburt (SPS): With regard to this—I wish to bring to the attention of those present, the tremendous, colossal production which will be put on next Thursday—Skule Nite!

... and Arnold Bayley (Meds) jumped to his feet: I wish to advertise our show, but it will be useless as you can't get tickets if you wanted.

Harris: Perhaps our medical representative would let us have a few complimentary tickets.

(A straw in the wind This is a report of what was said on the possibility for an AVR for next year).

Tower Photo

The photograph of Soldiers' Tower which appears on page one of today's Varsity was taken about eight o'clock in the evening. Ed Hoshkiw, Varsity Photo Editor, was in charge of the operation. The camera was set for a long exposure of between three and five minutes, and various parts of the Tower were illuminated by the flash bulbs in rotation.

Hurry!

CARABIN WEEKENDS

Deadline for Applications
Today at 12 Noon
at SAC Office

TORONTONENSIS STAFFERS

ESP. ACTIVITIES
ED. CLARKE DELLER

All those who have heretofore submitted their names are herein notified of the first policy meeting to be held here, within the Torontonensis Office here, at 4:45 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 12.

SECOND CHURCH SERVICE

FOR ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY
Sunday 11 a.m.—Great Hall, Hart House

COME

TO THE BLUE and WHITE

FOOTBALL DANCE

SATURDAY at HART HOUSE

There will be

5 BIG BANDS

and Tickets at $2.00 per couple are selling at Hart House (noon-2 p.m.)

SAC Offices and SPS Stores.

TODAY

D. T. NILES

Questions

Mr. Niles will continue with questions that he did not have time to answer following his other addresses.

Convocation Hall - 2 p.m.

Don't Miss

EVANGELINE'S

"LUCKY 7" SALE

Really unusual bargains on regular Evangeline merchandise available only twice each year.

A great opportunity to choose your Christmas Gifts now! A small deposit will hold all your purchases!

EVANGELINE GIFT BOXES—FOR ALL YOUR GIFTS

- ▶ SAVE 32¢ A PAIR ON ALL EVANGELINE NYLONS
- ▶ SAVE $1.11 EACH ON ANY BLOUSE OR SWEATER
- ▶ SAVE $2.11 ON ANY SKIRT
- ▶ SAVE 91¢ EACH ON ANY SLIP

SALE ENDS TUESDAY 6 P.M.

EVERY ITEM FROM REGULAR STOCK

Evangeline

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 786 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at CoxNekneck
- 656 Danforth at Pape
- 62A Bloor at Bay

OTTAWA • BROCKVILLE • LONDON • HAMILTON • GUELPH
ST. CATHARINES • PETERBOROUGH • KINGSTON

FANS CRY "QUELL QUEENS"

November 11, 1954

—Photo Courtesy of C.O.T.C.

The Trumpets Sound

*"Nothing is here for tears, nothing to wail
Or beat the breasts; no weakness, no contempt,
Dispraise or blame; nothing but well and fair,
And what may quiet us in a death so noble."*

November 11, 1954, 10.45 a.m.—Soldiers' Tower:

The flapping bright capes of the Blue and White Band, the colourful Academic Procession, the cold grey stone...

The President of the University announced the hymn, "O God Our Help In Ages Past... our hope for years to come." The voices rose from the massed crowds. The surrounding grey stone flung the sound against the warm blue sky...

Lt. E. N. Abendana 2nd Bn: Lt. C. B. Adams 1st Bn:
Pte. J. R. Adams 8th Bn: Lt. W. H. Aggett 4th Bn: 2nd
Lt. J. D. Aiken REA: Pte. E. S. Albright 50th Bn:

The President said: "Greater Love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends... their bodies are buried far off, but their names liveth forever more... We must dedicate ourselves to the tasks that they have left so that their sacrifice may not be in vain..."

Capt. M. C. Hawkins, CDC: Maj. T. E. Hayhurst, ED,
CIC: P/O W. A. Healy, DFC, RCAF: P/O R. Heggie, RCAF

"Endow with wisdom the legislators of the commonwealth... A better world for our children..."

"Slope Arms! Present Arms!..." "With slow, deliberate, symbolic movements the Tri-Service Guard performed the military ritual till they stood with their rifles grounded and their heads bowed. 11.00 a.m. ... The clear notes of the Last Post sounded through the hush... Two Minutes of Silence..."

Lt. E. R. Kappelle 75th Bn: Gnr. H. R. Kay, MM 8th
Bde. CFI: Maj. J. Kay, MC, GMGC: Gnr. G. J. Kean, Res. Bde. CEP

Reveille... the quick, brittle of the bugle echoed back from the cold stone. The Academic Procession, in their robes of crimson and blue, of purple and gold and sombre black, replaced their tasselled mortar-boards. The guard presented arms.

The wreaths were laid. Seventeen wreaths for the more than one thousand men of the University who had died in two world wars... The cold, sharp click of heels on the stone pavement... the last wreath was laid...

L/Bdr. G. W. Yerex, RCA: Sgt. A. W. Young, RCAF:
F/O H. J. Young, RCAF: W/C J. M. Young, RCAF:
F/O I. Zeiler, RCAF

The Queen... to the sound of the dull-beating drum the military contingents moved off under the arch... the sound of the drums faded into the background.

11.15 a.m.

The carillon began to play. "O Toronto, Mother ever dear, All thy sons thy very name revere..."

"And so they passed over and all the trumpets sounded for them on the other side."

By Carol Hoffman and Robert Brown

Blues Must Gobble Golden Gaels To Stay in Running for Yates Cup

Canadian Studies Visit Alliance

Miss Jennie Kielb, well-known Ontario specialist in elementary education, is returning to Alliance College on November 13, 1954, with twenty-five students from the University of Toronto.

Miss Kielb and the Canadian students will be received by the president of the Polish Club in the auditorium of the College.

The Saturday program includes an afternoon reception, dinner at 5:00, a concert at 7:30 p.m., and an address of welcome at 9:00 p.m.

The Canadian guests will remain overnight and attend Church in Cambridge Springs Sunday morning, returning to Ontario in the afternoon.

Patricia To Play Wymilwood Concert

The first Wymilwood concert of this year will be given on Sunday night, November 14, at 9:00, at the Wymilwood Student Union of Victoria College. The artist will be Patricia Snell, soprano, who will sing selections by Schubert, Huel, Fauré, and Delius, as well as English and Spanish folk-songs and two arias.

She will be accompanied by her husband George Crum, who has conducted three operas on C.B.C. Television, and is now conductor of the National Ballet Company.

Students and faculty of all parts of the University are invited to this concert.

Varsity Blues and the Queen's Golden Gaels meet tomorrow in Varsity Stadium for the most important game of the current Football season. A record crowd is to watch the match, with some 1,500 expected from Kingston and a full house of hometown people coming in to see the Blues fight for their first-place tie with Western and the Gaels, and the chance to play for the Canadian Championship against the University of British Columbia. Defeated by the Gaels in their first encounter by a score of 20-0, Varsity have been strengthened for this game while the Gaels, if reports out of Kingston are more than a move to lull Varsity into dangerous overconfidence, may have to go without star halfback Ron Stewart and defensive ace Al Kocman.

The two Tricolour stars are said to be in bed with the Flu, and may not dress for Saturday's game. Win or lose the Gaels are in the playoff but victory against Varsity would cut their drive to the Yates Cup by one tough game. Should the Blues win tomorrow Queen's would have to meet the Mustangs in a preliminary game for the right to meet Varsity, who has been awarded a bye into the final.

No injuries worry the Varsity camp at this point and Bob Masterson will have most of his stars on hand for the big game which, if they win, will be their last until after the Gaels and Mustangs fight it out. Frank Palermo has overcome the leg injury that kept him out against Western last week and will be around to give the Gael offence some troubles they didn't have in the last meeting.

In the backfield, warmed up after a five-week layoff, returns a speedy-stepping swift, himself a former Gael, John Sopinka, Varsity's answer, with extra, for Ron Stewart. Sopinka's speed made him a star on defense and kick runbacks last week and, working on the offense this week he is likely to do more spectacular work. Varsity will feature an attack dangerous, and proven effective in every quarter, while the Tricolour, deprived of their backfield flashes may not have any too much to feature.

Whether the Gaels have Stewart and Kocman or whether they sit this one out, Varsity will have a combination at quarterback that can handle anything anyone throws at them. Back for this

(Continued on Page 7)

Blue and White Culture

University students will be able to attend Wednesday night subscription concerts of the Toronto symphony orchestra at reduced rates, it was revealed last night by Bill Harris, the chairman of the Blue and White committee.

The reduced rate will be 75 cents per student. About 300 seats will be available.

In announcing the special student rates, Harris said that negotiations were also being carried on with the Royal Alexander theatre and with Maple Leaf Gardens. An announcement on these negotiations would be made soon, he said.

Harris stressed that the student rates at the Royal Alexander and at Maple Leaf Gardens would be for "cultural" attractions only and not for movies and hockey games.

Negotiations with the management of Massey Hall were begun about two weeks ago, Harris said. Most of the spade work, he added, was done by Alice Dryan, a worker for the Blue and White Society.

Harris gave this explanation of how the Blue and White Society came to negotiate with the downtown organizations.

"I happened to be looking through the constitution earlier in the year and came upon a section which mentioned that the work of the Blue and White was to assist in promoting cultural entertainment both on and off the campus — so I figured I better see what I could do."

Thirty-eight Dolls Have CBC-TV Preview

Thirty-eight dolls collected by World University Service from many sources will be given a preview on T.V. Sunday evening.

The dolls, which have been donated by many celebrities including Horatio, Tito and the Maharajah of Mysore, will be shown on the CBC Newsmagazine program, 6.30 p.m. Sunday.

crystal-gazer

One-eyed Benny Predicts...

By ONE-EYED BENNY

This week I am feeling very pleased with myself, as there is being a three-way tie for first place come Sunday morning. This fish Wilson, is thinking that he is clever in discovering same, but I am telling him that I knew this for a fact some four weeks ago. Not only that but I told the fish all about it, and he was laughing in my face.

Saturday the purple Horses from London are journeying to Montreal to ride the Redmen, but the wild ones are not running up any record scores. Old John Metras is playing like the cagey coach this Saturday and is holding his Mustangs down, so they will be ready for the Gaels next week. Western are only getting some four touchdowns with converts added and maybe a single for Don Getty, while the useless McGillmen are pushing for one touchdown and Dingle will convert it. Gino Fracas is probably scoring two touchdowns in Montreal, as well as the four converts, which will give him fifty points for the season, and maybe the scoring championship. That is making things pretty close to 25-6 for the Horses.

Now in old Varsity Stadium, I am seeing the football game of the year, and there is being a sell-out crowd to watch the gladiators. The Gaels are trying very hard to prevent the Blues from upsetting the apple-cart, but they are getting snowed under. My Blues are causing the biggest mix-up in Intercollegiate football history when the Queensmen invade the Stadium Saturday.

The Blues are outstunning the Yellowjackets with three touchdowns, and Steve Oneschuk will add three converts and a single. Meanwhile Frank Tinsel's Gaels are managing only one of the same, but Jocko Thompson is booting four singles, which is making things some 19-10 for my Blues.

Tinsel is all the time moaning about the weakness of his men, but he is known to me as a slippery chap, is this Tinsel. Last time my Blues tripped out to Kingston, he was crying about his weakly Gaels and they won. Now he is howling because Stewart and Kocman are supposed to be in bed with the flu, but I am not being fooled by old Frank Tinsel. Nothing is making any difference this Saturday, and my Blues are still chopping the three-colored laddies apart, Stewart or no Stewart, and the talking Gaels are meeting the Horses next weekend right here in old T.O.

IMPROVE YOUR READING ABILITY 100%

Improve concentration, comprehension and study habits, while reading 100% faster. For further information and

Special Students' Rates . . . see

The Reading Institute

33 AVENUE ROAD

WA. 4-3331

Canterbury Club

CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER
BLOOR AND AVENUE ROAD

8.00 a.m.—CORPORATE COMMUNION AND BREAKFAST
Speaker: Mrs. C. W. Sowby, Upper Canada College.

8.30 p.m.—TOPIC: "LEISURE TIME . . . FOR WHAT?" A discussion by Norman Cragg, Sect'y, Recreational Division of Toronto Welfare Council.

— REFRESHMENTS —

CAMPUS CLUB SQUARE DANCE

FRIDAY, NOV. 12

BLOOR STREET UNITED CHURCH

9:00 P.M. . . . ALL WELCOME

FREE ALTERATIONS

on all short and long gowns we have in stock. Drop in and see them any day between lectures.

Evening appointments gladly made.

HELMAR

46 St. George St.

WA. 1-5978

THE UNIVERSITY DRAMA COMMITTEE

Drama Weekend Hart House Theatre

TONIGHT at 8:30 — TOMORROW NIGHT

TRINITY . . .

THE RESPECTABLE

PROSTITUTE

By

Jean Paul Sartre

ST. MICHAEL'S . . .

THE HAPPY JOURNEY

By

Thornton Wilder

One Night— .75

Both Nights $1.00

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE . . .

THE FALL OF THE CITY

By

Archibald MacLeish

SCHOOL OF NURSING . . .

SUNDAY COSTS FIVE PESOS

By

Josephine Niggli

VICTORIA COLLEGE . . .

THE INTRUDER

By

Maurice Maeterlinck

ADJUDICATOR . . . FRANCES HYLAND

Thirty-fifth Hart House Anniversary Recalls Opening November 11th, 1919

Remembrance Day in Canada was also an important day for the University of Toronto — it was the 35th anniversary of Hart House, opened November 11, 1919 for the male graduates and undergraduates of the University.

We see from the November 12 issue of The Varsity, that the Duke of Devonshire, then Governor General, unveiled the memorial tablet and opened the doors. Before its final completion Hart House was used by the army in World War I. After the war's end, the building was touched up and became essentially the building it is now (barring the Arbor Room, of course). And one other thing attracts our eyes: it seems there was a billiard room in Hart House back in the good old days — with nine tables yet.

And look here — the Arbor Room has taken the place of the Billiard Room, Oh! these women.

We get some indication of the pride the students took in their building from the article of a girl reporter. She talks of 'an effect of noble proportions, of

The Varsity is pleased to offer for sale to the undergraduates prints of the picture which appeared in yesterday's paper. It will be necessary to charge 75c. Anyone wishing copies should contact the Varsity.

MEN'S

DEBATING TRIALS

(for U.T.D.U. Tours)

Today, Wallberg Building

Room 3037—12 to 2 p.m.

TOPIC: Resolved that student government on this campus is not responsible.

luxurious furnishings, of harmonious colouring, of beauty and luxury on a scale quite unprecedented in our humble experience.' She confesses herself 'green with jealousy', and expresses the hope that women may get something similar in the near future. But she foretells the future with "We intend, by fair means or foul, to force an entry some day and spend the time necessary to adequately explore the mysteries of Hart House."

In his address at the opening ceremonies, Mr. Vincent Massey said: "The Hart House will exert an influence in the noble tradition of the University. It will not only serve the active members but will bridge the gulf of time and space that separates the graduates." We think that Mr. Massey was an excellent prophet.

McGill Winners In Recent Blood Bank

McGill students set a new collegiate record when they gave 1708 pints of blood in the recent annual clinic there. This figure does not include 25 pledges received from members of the football team.

The Faculty of Engineering won the inter-faculty competition when 56.6% of its number contributed blood. As a penalty for losing the inter-faculty competition members of the Faculties of Arts & Science and Commerce must wash down the steps of the Engineering Building.

Coming-Up

SATURDAY

5.30 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP: Church of the Redeemer. After the game buffet supper—musical evening and skits. All welcome.

8.30 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB: Club House—Football Party: an informal dance. Come single, go double—guests welcome.

SUNDAY

11.00 a.m.—NEWMAN CLUB: Club House, White Room — Faculty Sunday for Meds, Dents, P. & O.T.'s, Nurses and Pharms — Guest Speaker: Rev. Father MacDonald, C.S.B. Series of lectures: Ethics in Medicine: Subject — The Nature of Man. All students of Medicine and related faculties are cordially invited to attend. Coffee and donuts will be served before the meeting.

2.30 p.m.—UKRAINIAN STUDENTS' CLUB: St. Nicholas Church—Dance practice followed by choir practice at 4.00 p.m.
6.30 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB: Club House — Music appreciation group meeting. Come and enjoy two hours of high-fidelity long playing recordings of classical and semi-classical music before an informal evening and benediction in the chapel.

7.00 p.m.—VICTORIA CHURCH

STUDENTS' UNION: Wymilwood Music Room—Rev. Honey: one of the last missionaries to leave China will speak on "Is the Communist Challenge Met?"
8.00 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—186 St. George St.—Radio play: The Eternal Light, presented by Hillel's Drama Workshop.

TUESDAY

7.30 p.m.—POLISH STUDENTS' CLUB: St. Casimir's Hall, 156 Roncesvalles — General Meeting, dancing and refreshments.

TODAY

THURSDAY

4.00 p.m.—INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB: Falconer Hall, Edgar McInnis will speak on Japan.

4.00 p.m.—U. of T. DEBATING UNION: University College R13 —Interfaculty Debating Tournament — U.C. Women vs. Nursing —Resolved: Nothing Succeeds Like Excess.

8.30 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION: 186 St. George St.—Oneg Shabbat: The Reform Position in Contemporary Judaism.

Sigma Alpha Mu

CHARITY BALL

SAT., NOV. 20

King Edward Hotel

TORONTONENSIS STAFFERS

ESP. WOMENS

SPORTS ED.: Jo Ratcliffe

All those who have heretofore submitted their names are herein notified of the first policy meeting to be held here, within the Torontonensis Office here, at 4:45 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 12.

Career Planning

Detailed information supplied upon request.

CANADIAN PERSONNEL
CONSULTANTS

134 Bloor St. West — WA. 1-6651

GIVE TO THE KIDS ON TAG DAY

Saturday, Nov. 13

UNIVERSITY SETTLEMENT CAMP

DON'T MISS SKULE 5T5 NITE

NOV. 17-20 — HART HOUSE THEATRE

You'll Thrill To The Spirituals Sung By A

Massed Chorus

You'll Gasp At The Can-Can Done By

Luscious Lovelies

Tickets at Engineering Stores or Hart House Box Office

— $1.25 —

Canada's Mildest, Best-Tasting Cigarette

Skule Nite's Gamboling Gams

Skule Nite's dancers present a charming aspect even when sawn in half. Skule Nite, presentation of the Faculty of Engineering and Applied Science executive with the approval of the Faculty Council. Tuesday, November 16 will be the opening night.
—VSP by Fraser McIntosh

The Association of Amalgamated Atheists is petitioning Dr. Windy Myth, president of our fair university, to be given permission to hold a lecture series in Dissertation Hall. The proposed series will start with "What is Atheism?" and close a week later with "How to avoid Missionaries on Campus".

AAA President Henry Hiding in his statement to the press, said, "We feel that in all fairness, Dr. Myth should give our own missionaries a hearing; this, gentlemen, is worse than discrimination in Dresden. It smacks of the burning of Protestants in the Middle Ages." Proceeding along the same lines, Mr. Hiding outlined several excellent plans for the burning and torture of Christians, to be employed when the subject seemed unwilling to recant.

Mr. Hiding spoke with some pride of the success of AAA since their founding just three short years ago. Membership, he said, has doubled in the past year and new recruits are coming in all the time. This is largely attributed to the erotic parties held at intervals in such places as South House. "These parties are of inestimable value," he said.

Mr. Hiding added that of course the recent campaign on the campus had had its effect but he felt that AAA's invincible methods would soon draw them back. "People cannot resist sin forever," he said. He pointed out that the slogan 'Dissent' drew in a great many people two years ago, and that "Religious Illiterates" was attracting many happy illiterates.

President Myth's only comment was: "Atheism for All," so it is hoped that AAA's campaign will soon be realized.

Torontonensis YOUR YEAR IN REVIEW

ST. JAMES' CATHEDRAL

Cor. King and Church Sts.

TWENTY-SECOND SUNDAY
AFTER TRINITY

8.00 a.m. — Holy Communion.
9.15 a.m. — Holy Communion.
11.00 a.m. — Mattins. Memorial Service (decorations will be worn).

Sermon: Lt. Col. The Reverend C. J. S. Stuart, M.C.
SUNDAY SCHOOL

7.00 p.m. — Evensong.
Sermon: The Dean
Third Sermon in a course on Christian Faith and Practice.
Holy Communion: Tuesday 10.30 a.m.; Wednesday 7.00 a.m.; Friday 7.30 a.m.
Mattins and Evensong: Daily at 9.00 a.m. (Tuesday 10.00 a.m.) and 5.15 p.m.

VISITORS VERY WELCOME

ST. ANDREW'S UNITED CHURCH

Bloor, near Subway at Yonge

Minister:

REV. W. MORRISON KELLY,
M.A., B.D., S.T.M.

11 a.m.

"The Stuffed Giants"

7.30 p.m.

"God — myth, tyrant or Father?"

FIRESIDE HOUR at close of Evening Service. Students cordially welcomed.

TRINITY COLLEGE CHAPEL

A Service of Remembrance will be held at 11.00 a.m. on Sunday, November 14th.

Preacher: The Right Reverend
I. A. Norris, D.D., Lord Bishop of Brandon and Bishop Ordinary to the Forces.

All students are welcome at this Service.

PARK ROAD BAPTIST CHURCH

Park Road and Asquith Ave.
Rev. C. G. Stone, D.D., Minister
Muriel Gidley Stafford, Organist

11 a.m.

The Man Who Played Safe

7 p.m.

How to Accept Forgiveness

BLOOR

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. Walter C. Sellers

Organist and Choirmaster:
Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.

CONVOCATION HALL

The Horizons of Life
Dr. Howse

7.30 p.m.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

Fashion Parade of Morals
Dr. Howse

truth — with a small "t"

Most people know that Unitarians DON'T believe in the virgin birth, the trinity, miracles or resurrection. Because these age-old myths tax our credulity, does this mean that Unitarians are un-believers? No. There is more to the measure of our beliefs than the acceptance of creeds or dogmas. We believe God is present in the nature of man. God reveals himself through man's reason, so we see no contradiction between good sense and religion, or between science and religion. The great scientists are today's discoverers of the Law of God. They have swept away the supposed miracles of broken law, only to reveal a greater miracle of laws unbroken. Unitarians look for no supernatural rewards or punishments. We follow virtue for its own sake. We follow truth—with a small "t."

If you are looking for a church that stands for freedom of inquiry, that applies reason as a test of religious belief, that seeks new truths and affirms the dignity of man, we invite you to join in our service this Sunday.

FIRST UNITARIAN CONGREGATION

115 ST. CLAIR AVENUE WEST (Near Avenue Road)
Sunday Service: 11 a.m.

REV. WILLIAM P. JENKINS, Minister
Sunday Broadcast: "Let's Think Together"
CHUM (1050 K.C.) 10:30 a.m.

HART HOUSE THIS WEEKEND

FRIDAY, 12TH NOVEMBER:

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION—John A. Hall. Also Lino cuts by Cyril Travers. 'Art Gallery' and adjoining Print Room.)

10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).

1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).

5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).

6.15 p.m. — MEMBERS INVITATION DINNER (Great Hall).

SATURDAY, 13TH NOVEMBER:

Caledon Hills Farm—United Nations Club over week-end.

SUNDAY, 14TH NOVEMBER:

11.00 a.m. — CHURCH SERVICE (Great Hall). Dr.
Donald Mathers of Queen's University.
Everyone welcome.

Second University Church Service

*The Rev. Prof.
Donald Mathers
Queen's University*

will preach

*In the Great Hall, Hart House on Sunday, Nov. 14
at 11 a.m.*

ALL Members of the University
are Welcome.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto

Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR C. CLYDE BATTEN
MANAGING EDITOR ROBERT D. BROWN

News Editor Mike Pengelley
Assistant News Editor Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Feature Editor Mary Alice Hunter
Makeup Editor Irene Meyers
A.M. & D. Editor Wendy Michener
Sports Editor John Wilson
Asst. Sports Editor Moische Reiter
Women's Sports Editor Jo Ratcliffe
Photo Editor Ed. Hoshkiw
CUP Editor Chuck Williams
Mortician Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE Robert Batten
NIGHT EDITORS Maryanne Farrell, Arlene Ross
REPORTERS: Sue Delman, Marg. Stern, Joe Aziz,
Tini Gray, Bud Wall

We Stand Alone

It may well be that in some finer hour we may understand those things which now baffle us so completely.

Perhaps we shall understand why it is necessary for the University of Toronto, which includes among its members people of all persuasions, to have under the official patronage of the president a University Christian Mission.

We are afraid that it is directed towards the perpetuation of the religion of our society without questioning its values in terms of the needs of our day, and without reference to the beliefs of its founder.

We would like to remind the students and staff of this university of the words of the late Warden of Hart House, Nicholas Ignatieff, on the occasion of his last speech to the Committees' Dinner in the House.

"I left Russia as a boy of fifteen with the firm conviction that the great issues in the Revolution I saw fought out before my eyes were not as simple as black and white. That in attempting to seek the Truth, to get at the bottom of the great issues of the day I could no longer accept the authority of parents, friends or institutions; that I would have to go on struggling for my own standard values which could satisfy ultimately my own conscience alone."

Student Apathy

Over one-quarter of the year has been completed and many organizations are beginning to take stock of their position.

The first week flurry of joining clubs and organizations has long since abated and activity is levelling off.

It is possible that some students find themselves over-extended in their commitments. However, the sad feature is that many students never find the time or the inclination to participate in any of the multitudinous campus movements.

One need only look through the copies of the Torontonensis from previous years to see the long list of names of people who never in their undergraduate year have participated in any but curricular activity.

Many have much to give the university in talent and enthusiasm. Could they but see their way clear to doing so, much of the present student apathy might disappear.

No Comment

Two, and only two observers from the general student body attended last week's meeting of the Students' Administrative Council.

Comments and Recommendations

M.F.C. OLVER

To the Publications Commissioner of the Students' Administrative Council

Preamble:

In submitting these comments and criticisms I should like it understood that they are based largely on personal preferences and taste and hardly at all on expert opinion or experience. I do not expect The Varsity to maintain the same standards of style as The Times of London, although I do suggest that that newspaper would be a worthy model than these we find nearer home.

Not all the recommendations will be possible, nor will they all appeal to those responsible for the production of The Varsity, but I beg that they will be accepted as sincere, impersonal and constructive criticism, in which spirit they are laid before you.

1. Make-up

I suggest that the adoption of, and, as far as possible, adherence to a simple and straight-forward plan for each issue would make things easier for everyone from the editor through to the reader. Stunts (e.g. the A.M. & D. page for Monday, October 18th) should be avoided. They are by no means as effective as a regular and well turned out page.

If a news article merits the front page, then have it all on the front page, and avoid exasperating ten thousand readers by instructing them to 'turn to page six'. A full double with heads to match will be more arresting than an article sprawled across varying lengths of column in the middle of the page. It would be no less logical to start the first article at the top left corner of the page and work across column by column, filling each before starting the rest.

In the matter of make-up, particular care should be taken not to emulate the downtown dailies, who score unbelievably low in this subject.

2. Headlines

Style in headlines is usually very weak. It is far better to make a straightforward announcement in two or three words, than to try to compress the article into half-a-dozen which read as nonsense. Banner headlines do nothing to increase the impact of the article they head, and may actually detract from its value by making an anti-climax. They take up a great deal of unnecessary space (front page, Wednesday, October 20th), and are merely a sales torch-handle of the penny press, and, as such, unworthy of The Varsity.

3. Proofreading

Misplaced lines are presumably an occupational hazard of linotype, but supreme effort should be made to avoid them. The rare occasions where a misplaced line makes entertaining reading in no way make up for the tedium of the hunt through half a page of type to recover the wanderer.

4. Journalese

Sub-editors and readers must watch for journalistic clichés. Avoid the style of the popular press.

'Said' is emphatically not the best way to introduce a quote. To obtain clearer, cleaner reporting, practice in oratio obliqua is recommended.

Journalese does not improve copy; it weakens it. The simplest way is almost always the best way, even with writing. Good 'style' is just as important in newspaper copy as anywhere else.

5. News

Accuracy is of primary importance, and all details should be checked to ensure it. I would even suggest coverage of important occasions by two reporters, whose copy should only be compared at sub-editor level. That a charge of inaccuracy, as brought up at the N.F.C.U.S. Conference, is nothing short of scandalous.

Check especially all names, titles, numbers, etc. Remember, even 'Smith' can be spelled 'Smyth', and an extra zero can make a number look very silly.

6. Features

These have been of an appallingly low standard this year, but articles such as 'The Decay of Civilization' (page 1, November 2nd) point the upward way, and should have a regular place. Articles on all subjects, serious and humorous, should be written by experts and I see no reason against appealing to members of the faculty for articles in their own fields. Amusing features such as 'One-eyed Benny' could be given a regular place and weekly schedule. Here, as ever, 'style' should be a prime criterion.

(Continued on Page 8)

our readers write:

Vitiation and Vituperation

A.M. & D. Editor,
The Varsity,

I have never before had occasion to deal with newspapers or their editors, but if you in any way exemplify the typical editor, I shall certainly have nothing further to do with them. I refer, of course, to the vitiated version of my article which appeared Monday. Little did I expect to find such a terrifying pollution of the original, especially since I was promised 600 words, not 200. Had you told me it was your intention to limit me to 200, I would have promptly discarded the entire venture.

You have proven to be one of the most insensitive people I have had the misfortune of encountering, and your incompetence has maimed my dignity as well as my sense of artistry. But perhaps your shortsightedness prevents you from seeing what you have done wrong, so let me explain it to you.

You have no sense of critical discretion, or you would have observed that the keynote of my hypothesis was the necessity of a 'genre Tranche' in criticism in order to avoid crossing communicative values. So ambitious were you in your zeal to 'correct' my errors, that you neglected to mention even once the word gender.

Your sense of form astonishes me! Rather I should say a lack of it since you pasted snippets of my article together to produce a most singularly twitterboned architecture.

You obviously do not understand the principals of logic, for you certainly did not comprehend the induction of my argument.

But what charms me most is your lack of sympathy with the innovative individual. You attempted to domesticate my polemic and in your attempt failed even at that.

At the hands of your butcher's axe I have appeared as foolish as yourself, with the additional misfortune of having my name signed to the article. Like Byron —like his tiger—I leap once, and, if I miss my mark, I stalk off sulking. Words fail to describe the violence of my vituperation at your devilish carving job. You are obviously one of T. S. Eliot's frustrated artists yourself. I wonder, which art frustrated you? I remember Baudelaire once saying that for your kind to consider themselves even remotely resembling an artist would be a kind of 'monstrosity' since you possess nothing of the artistic within. For that matter, you probably possess little of anything within.

It is just against you and your type of mediocre, stoic, middle class, people that any artist feels embittered. I personally champion the iconoclast for he at least wants something new. You'd be satisfied to print and write that rubbish you call music criticism forever; but in case you ever have the occasion to criticize my music someday, please spare me the dishonor of penning critical garbage about it.

MURRAY SCHAFER.

Enthusiastic

HEH-HEH! - JUST BORROWING
IT FOR THE BLUE AND WHITE
HAT-HOP!

—Cartoon by John Ricciardelli

FEATURE PAGE

UTDC Opens
Play Festival
Sartre First

Carefully observed by Frances Hyland the U. of T. Drama festival opens tonight. The festival, a non-competitive affair intended to stimulate and encourage College drama groups is an old tradition around the University. This year it will be enlivened by music specially composed by students from the conservatory and played by a four piece orchestra.

Trinity will lead off tonight with Jean-Paul Sartre's Respectable Prostitute an expose of race relations in the deep south by the famous French existentialist. Robertson Davies suggested the play for last year's festival and was rather disappointed when Trinity was unable to produce it at that time. Martin Hunter is directing the play.

Thornton Wilder's Happy Journey will be presented by St. Mike's. Similar to Our Town in production, the play relies on the mimetic ability of four actors (and a "stagemanager" who plays all the other parts) to express Wilder's whimsical sense of humour.

Saturday night brings to the stage a poetic study of the conquest of a city by fear in Archibald MacLeish's The Fall of a City. Leon Major has adapted this radio play for visual presentation, in an attempt to affect the audience emotionally with an economy of means.

Nursing will produce Sunday Costs Five Pesos by Josephine Niggle, under the Direction of Miles Kennedy.

A fantasy, or rather a mood play by Maeterlinck will bring the festival to a close. The unusual play takes place in a chateau, outside the sick room of the Daughter of the house. Jane Griffin and Ray Carl play the elder sister and the grandfather.

Striking Nurse

The scene is from "Sunday Costs Five Pesos" the play by Josephine Niggle that Nursing is producing for the University of Toronto Drama Festival on Saturday night. The festival lasts two days and opens tonight. Five groups of players from around the campus are taking part.

—VSP by John Le Gallis

FILM LAMPOONS MOVIE MANNERS

By AL TOUGH

A little fellow is sitting on the edge of his theatre seat watching a thrilling cowboy movie. Just as the bad gun-toting bandit comes on the screen, closely pursued by the sheriff; three people enter the row in front of the young lad and completely block his view. By the time they sit down the cowboy picture has ended and the boy finds himself watching a movie on fencing.

These actions form the opening scene of "movie manners", a short cartoon-style colour movie produced by members of the University of Toronto Film Society. It may be entered in the Canadian Film Awards, amateur class. At least one of the five moving pictures produced by the Film Society in past years has received Honorable Mention. The next scene in "Movie Manners" shows the little fellow just becoming interested in the movie on fencing when the same three people stand up in front of him and prepare to leave. The boy's feeling are summed up in this concluding poem.

"You may stand up in front of me

If you are made of glass
But if you are not transparent
Sit down upon your seat!"

Commenting on making "Movie Manners", producer Ted Hall said, "We had a lot of fun, but it was hard work." For the various scenes, backgrounds were painted by Fred Fischel, and figures with a movable joint were cut from cardboard. A "moving" picture consists of 24 still pictures projected onto the screen in each second. So, to produce this cartoon-type movie, the cardboard figure was put in one position, photographed, moved slightly, photographed again, moved a bit more, and so on. At 24 pictures a second, simple arithmetic shows the figure must be moved 1440 times to produce one minute of film. Fred Kahan and John Mayer, students in charge of the technical work, experimented in a trial and error manner to discover just how much the figure should be moved each time to produce an effect of smooth motion. About 500 feet of film was used in producing the 90 feet of fine colour film.

At present the Film Society is using records for musical background to the animated film, but they hope to make a single tape of music to accompany it.

The next film which the University of Toronto Film Society produces, will be cartoon illustrating the problem of smoking in the lobbies, which is strictly forbidden in the Museum Theatre, the societies' habitual meeting of this year will be given at place.

O Tempora, O Mores

By DOUG STEWART

We thought female modesty might be at an alltime high when we leafed through a few of the comments about our nocturnal friend, the Cavalier of the Streets, but things are not what they used to be. From out of the yellow pages of the Varsity, Nov. 21, 1894, comes this tale of true, unaffected, devotion to the ideals of feminine behaviour: "Some of the lady undergraduates are very bashful. It is said a couple of them were so much affected in this direction at the opening of the term, that they would not go into the library and used to call one of the assistant librarians out into the hall to ask him for the books they required."

why don't you

CONFESS

Since I had been editor of my high school paper, "The Slippery Rock News"—circulation 17—I felt qualified to offer my services to the Varsity. I started toward the Varsity office, clutching in my clammy little hand a briefcase containing several of my more impressive articles, including one entitled "Junior Birdwatchers Hold Annual Meeting."

As I approached my destination, stories I had heard of what more seasoned members do for amusement to would-be-reporters raced through my mind, and I began to wonder whether or not this whole venture was a mistake. After circling the SAC Building 73½ times, some sympathetic soul who had been watching my efforts with amusement guided me to the Varsity office, but when I asked him to accompany me inside, a look of terror crossed his face and he disappeared quickly. This cheered me immensely!

Once inside the office (?), I was greeted by the sight of two figures engaged in a sword fight, much to the glee of the other members of the staff. As they carried one of the fighters out, his opponent sneered with satisfaction: "I guess that'll teach him to put a 2" head on a 3" column!" This spirit of friendly cooperation between the different departments impressed me no end.

When the smoke cleared, I had a chance to observe the other members of the staff. One of them was burning incense and muttering horrible oaths before what looked like a crystal ball—this, I found out later, was the renowned "One-eyed Benny". Another was engaged in beating, with a jewel-studded bullwhip, some poor creature who kept blubbering: "O-Great-White-Father, Forgive me!" The whip-wielder, I decided, must be the editor.

As a beer can whizzed by my ear, I decided that I had nothing to offer to this great organization, and I was sneaking quietly out the door, when someone finally noticed me. After a few disparaging remarks about my knee-socks, she thrust a copy-pad and pencil into my hand and barked an assignment at me. Terrified, I blurted that I was a novice, and she said, in what I'm sure was an effort to console me: "Relax, honey, just forget you're writing for 11,000 readers." ELEVEN THOUSAND READERS!!! At this point, I was crawling toward the door on all fours, but her shout followed me. "Set that written, typed, copy-read and on my desk in ten minutes, and don't forget the penalty for a punctuation mistake!" as she gestured toward a row of shrunken heads decorating one wall.

I gulped and stared at my assignment, which was a survey on the question, "How Much Do You Drink?"

From the same issue comes an article deploring the lack of discipline and self-control for which we of tender and impressionable years are still being criticised. "The freshman who borrowed a fountain pen from one sophomore in a Hebrew lecture the other day, and then emptied its contents down the back of another sophomore, is laying the University open to the danger of a revival of hazing."

The old order changeth, giving place to new, but not without a struggle. Sixty years ago flourinated water had not been heard of, and germ-free water was struggling for acceptance. On October 24, 1894, some campus phagiarist penned these lines: Presently the air grew denser, Laden with a vapour whence a Pungent odour came, I wean; And the raven, never flitting, Still is sitting, still is sitting For he lived just long enough To mutter gloomily: "Chlorine" Forty years ago this week, "There was much indignation everywhere over the questions and results of the Dominion Medical Council examinations." The reason for said indignation was obvious — one question dealt with the composition of oleo-margarine, "a substitute for butter, so extensively used at one time in the southern states, but scarcely known at all in Canada."

Exactly forty years ago today, the first meeting of the committee in charge of the UC Mock Parliament was held. It was decided that "the Mock Parliament will be a take-off on the new Irish Parliament, and undoubtedly this subject will give large scope for originality." Ah, yes, the vanished pomps of yesterday.

That year academic gowns were five dollars, "exquisite sepia photographs in rich brown folders at four dollars the dozen"

why don't you

CONFESS

By HUGH McKELLAR

I am in quite the proper mood to write a sound, well-reasoned letter which will be perused attentively by the 10,000 students of this great university. This morning when I came down to breakfast my landlady's cat scratched me, so I picked it up by the tail and hove it out the window. As a result, my landlady gave me merry hell for treating her adorable pet so; she pointed out that it was my fault for being in Clarissa's way, for Clarissa never scratched people when they weren't there to be scratched.

Besides, this is the deadline for an essay on which I haven't even started work, and I foresee the prof is going to make some very nasty remarks about people who don't hand their work in on time; does the man think we have nothing to do but write essays for him? Most unreasonable, I call it. Furthermore, I am expecting a cheque from home: it should have arrived this morning, but it didn't.

The long and short of it is, the time is out of joint; and obviously the best way to improve it is to write a letter to the Editor of the Varsity.

Now that I have decided to write, what am I going to write about? Heaven knows, there are plenty of things about that paper that need correction. The AM&D page, for instance: They waste far too much space on long-hair things like art exhibits and concerts that no red-blooded guy like me would be caught dead at. The news reporting isn't too hot, either; why, every so often something comes up that I don't hear about till it's over, though I would have liked to have gone; and then people tell me it was previewed in the Varsity, obviously it wasn't in the right place, or I would have seen it.

The editorials aren't too hot either: they write about things like student government and religious illiteracy, that really don't make any difference to the vast majority of students; I know they don't to me. Besides, who does this editor character think he is, writing pronouncements on all kinds of things? It's about time somebody took him down a peg for his conceit, vanity, and etc.; and that's just what I aim to do.

I've got it, I think! Why has Western tied Varsity in two football games this year? Because The Varsity hasn't said from the very start of the fall that we would win the Yates Cup—is that it's name? I'm not sure, really; I'm a red hot sports fan, but I know that Varsity always ought to win, and that's enough for anybody to know. Only they don't.

So here I go. "Dear Mr. Editor: It is absolutely undoubtable that if the Blues don't win the Yates Cup this year, the fault is, for sure, in your editorials." Isn't that a priceless sentence? What a fine combination of vocabulary, syntax, and logic! Oh, I'm in the groove this morning, all right! Boy, what a sizzler of a letter this is going to be!

VIC SETS NEW FOOTBALL RECORD

Speaking OF SPORT

BY JOHN WILSON

This is really ridiculous. Not only that but it falls flat after the executive committee of the C.I.A.U. has already come to a decision in the matter of a three-way tie for first place in Intercollegiate football. Nevertheless, One-Eyed Benny phoned last night to say that his former room-mate at San Quentin, the Caracas Kid, had found a solution to the problem confronting the three universities.

It seems that the answer is a single game of football to be played in Varsity Stadium on Saturday, November 20. The catch is that the game would take ninety minutes of playing time. In the first thirty minutes, Varsity could play Queens, Queens could play Western in the second, and then the Blues could play Western in the third. The team which scored the most points in the game would win the Yates Cup and the Intercollegiate title, as well as the right to go west on November 27 to play the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds.

The only problem raised by this solution is what two teams will meet each other in the first thirty minutes, and which one of those two will get the thirty-minute rest in the second frame. This is either an advantage or a disadvantage, depending on how you look at it. The team that takes the rest might well get cold, or might well need the rest. Of course the team playing in the second period, would be meeting a completely fresh team, although you might say that that same fresh team would have the same trouble in the third session with a refreshed team.

The spectators, of course, would be charged one and a half times as much for the privilege of viewing this extravaganza. Not only that but there would be more cheerleaders, more bands, more shouting, more of everything than the average College football game. The only people who will disagree with this plan are the coaches and the football players themselves, and probably rightly so.

One-Eye waxed loud and long about the cleverness of his old buddy's plan, but we pointed out to him that there was one great disadvantage to the solution. The whole thing tends to make a farce out of Intercollegiate football, something that just doesn't seem to go down the right way.

An Outlaw League . . .

. . . is what they are calling the Intercollegiate Football Union. Last year, when McMaster was removed from Senior Intercollegiate competition, the C.I.A.U. decided that our league would be conducted without their authority. All this means is that the members of this year's championship squad will not receive C.I.A.U. crests.

It does not mean that the Yates Cup, hitherto the symbol of Intercollegiate football supremacy, will not be awarded. The trophy was presented in 1898 by a graduate of McGill University to Queens, Varsity, and McGill, and is the property of these three universities. That was eight years before the formation of the C.I.A.U. There is no record of the Yates Cup ever being transferred to the trust of the parent body, and thus it will be presented this season to either Queens, Western, or Varsity.

Just who will get the coveted silverware will be settled in a large measure by the outcome of tomorrow's game between the Golden Gaels and the Blues. The way ticket sales are going now, there should be one of the biggest crowds of the season in the East on hand to see two of the best College teams in years battle it out in the final game of the schedule.

Scarlet And Gold Get 48 Points UC Answers With 5, Still Lose

By JOHN VOJTECH

The Victoria College football team established a new interfaculty scoring record yesterday on the East field as they literally walked over UC by the record score of 48-5. The forty-eight points that they amassed in this game accounts for almost one half of all of Vic's points this year. They are also the first team in a mighty long while to score more than one hundred points in a season. The win also put Vic in first place in the group standings.

Ron Bertram scored three touchdowns for Vic to put him in first place in the scoring race. He now has a total of twenty-five points. His rival in second place is Ken Selby of the Skule Firsts who has twenty-three points to his credit.

To say that Vic walked over UC is an understatement. To prove that things were not going UC's way was that on the very first play of the game, Frank Ebenhardt tossed a long pass from his forty yard line to Norm Williams who went over for the major. Bertram scored two majors in the first half and Bill Money added another. Jules Benson converted all four touchdowns in the first half.

With but three minutes left to play in the first half, UC sprang to life as Tolsky nailed Bitzkal deep in Vic territory. Bob Nadin tossed a twenty yard pass to Sid Shoom for UC's only major and only score.

Ebenhardt continued to lead his team to more points as he handed off the ball to Bill Williams and Money for many long ground gains. Late in the third quarter Macrea went over for a major by romping right through the center of the UC line. Pearson and Koshan kept UC from getting organized by their fine line play on defense.

Vic kept pounding away at UC throughout the rest of the game. Macrea took a thirty yard pass from in between three UC defenders. Kurdyak took another pass for fifteen yards, then Norm Williams ran over for the major. Rintoul tried to spark his team into action but he ran into blockers who couldn't get out of his way.

With five minutes left to play Bertram plunged for his third major. Vic then tried switching quarterbacks a little more frequently than they usually do. It resulted in Bill Williams taking a Sutherland handoff for a major. Benson, incidentally, converted all of the majors scored in the second half as well as those in the first half. Benson has converted fourteen touchdowns this year to put him in fourth place in the scoring race.

Past Record Favours Blues Queens are Weak at Varsity

Every time the Blues make their annual appearance at Western, the sportswriters talk for weeks in advance about the supposed jinx that has kept Varsity winless in London since the season of 1936. However a quick glance at the record-book discloses that a similar jinx exists for the Queens Golden Gaels in Varsity Stadium. They have managed to win only one game here since the fall of 1939, and that was a miserable 8-6 victory.

That game was played in the season of 1948, the first year after the war that the Blues won the Yates Cup. Played on a slippery, muddy field, it was the second loss of the season for the 1948 Blues. After that loss they whirled on to the title in a string of five victories.

The most exciting game in the post-war period was the 1949 tussle here, in which Varsity emerged victorious 22-21. Queens-Varsity games have always produced the best in football entertainment, and tomorrow's tilt is no exception as the Blues meet one of the strongest Gael aggregations in years.

Heartbreak In Rugger Blues Playing Aggies Added By 5-0 Count

The Varsity Rugger Blues played yet another heartbreaker Wednesday night, in their game under the lights at Guelph against the strong O.A.C. team. In spite of keeping the Aggies within their own half three-quarters of the time, including a hectic final five minutes when Blues went over twice and were twice called back, the score wound up 5-0 against them.

Throughout the game Blues had Aggies groggy in the scrums and loose scrums, but a strong and speedy three line and a standout fullback gave the home team all the leverage they needed.

After a scoreless first half, during which Aggies several times found the ball bouncing in their own end zone, their three broke away in a body, with twenty minutes to go, and carved straight through the Varsity defence. Passing at the very last second before they were tackled, they brought off the finest piece of teamwork Blues have seen this year, ending up with a perfect try between the posts.

From then on it was all Varsity, but it didn't help. With their fullback playing a magnificent game, Aggies stayed on the defensive, grimly running the ball back into their own end zone, and having their fifty yard kicks from their goal line brought straight back to it by Blues' forward rushes.

In spite of this, Blues stayed scoreless, with a close decision by the referee depriving Baines of the points after he had touched down just over the line. A forty-yard run by Trillia, Blues' wing three, ended three yards from the goal line as he was crashed into touch. Ham went over shortly after, only to have the ball called back for a knock-on. And all this in the last five minutes — it just wasn't the Blues' night.

Tomorrow the Harrier Blues will take to the road in Montreal. The Blues who are the defending Intercollegiate champions, are favoured to retain the trophy. According to coach Hal Brown the team is one of the strongest ever fielded by the Blues.

There are only two veterans on the team this year, Herb Tilson and Bill Eckersley. Herb won the Intercollegiate three mile track championship earlier this fall. The other three runners are all freshmen, Bill Gelling, Gord Hueston and Bob Lee.

Other teams competing will be Queens, McMaster, McGill and Western. Queens is expected to provide the toughest competition with their star runner John McDougall, who won the individual championship last year.

Playing In Last Season with Blues Frank Palermo Fights Injury Jinx

Injury-prone Frank Palermo could be a deciding factor come this Saturday afternoon at Varsity Stadium. Frank, 21 year old defensive end for the Blues, has been plagued for most of the year with an assortment of injuries, enough to discourage the average football player. But Palermo is no average footballer.

Frank is one of the most gifted rough and tumble ball players on this year's squad. Hampered by the removal of ligaments in his right knee and a severely swollen and badly bruised ankle, Frank has still managed, in the contests he has played, to figure prominently in breaking up countless enemy attacks.

This 5' 8", 180 pounder has been patrolling a spot on the Varsity lineup for three years now, this being his final season with the Blues. In those three years Frank has seen action at guard and end, showing great offensive and defensive ability at each position.

Before his stint with the Blues, Palermo saw duty with Bloor Collegiate, operating from the quarter and fullback slots. After high school ball he starred for the Baby Blues at wingback in 1951.

It was while Frankie played with Bloor that he experienced his greatest day in football. Playing in a semi-final game in his senior year, he broke through the opposition's line three times to block kicks.

Palermo also plays a little basketball in the winter season with the Intermediates, and puts in some time at hockey as well. Last year Frank scored one third of his team's goals; he scored one, the team scored three.

Last weekend Frank didn't see action against the Mustangs, in order to be in top physical condition for next Saturday's tilt with the Queens Golden Gaels.

Cruncher

This shot from the last Queens-Varsity game, played down in Kingston, shows Phil "Cruncher" Muntz being nailed by an unidentified Gael after making a long gain. The "Cruncher" is sure to be one of the hottest Blue shots tomorrow in the Varsity try for the Yates Cup.

Psychiatrist Speaks On Man as a Religious Being

Psychiatry and Religion will be the topic of a series of four weekly lectures given by the distinguished psychiatrist Dr. Daniel Cappon starting Mon. Nov. 22 at 5 p.m. in West Hall, U.C. Prof. J. A. Irving of Victoria College will chair the meetings.

Presently on the staff of the Out-patients Department of Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, Dr. Cappon is also Director of the York Township Child Guidance Clinic, lecturer on the staff of the Dept. of Psychiatry at the university, conducting research in the fields of psychopathological and psychosomatic medicine, and author of papers on such subjects as the Psychological Aspect of "Freedom", High Intelligence, Religiosity and Psychodynamics, and Psychopathology.

The holder of many degrees from both British and Canadian universities, and medical societies, Dr. Cappon's first talk will be on "A Psychiatrist's View of the Nature of Man" in which he will present his own theory of man as a religious being, which forms the working basis of his personal practice. On Nov. 29, he will speak on "The Family of God and the Family of Man" dealing with motivations behind the two fundamental relationships — man and the gods (those which he creates and that which exists) and man and his family.

The third in the series on Dec. 6 is entitled "Mental Health and Religion" and is a discussion of the practical relationship of psychological theory to both mental health and religion. A drawing together of the ideas brought up in the previous talks and discussions, will conclude the series on Dec. 13. All lectures will take place at 5 p.m. in West Hall, U.C. and are sponsored jointly by the Psychology Club and the Student Christian Movement.

Blues (cont'd from page 1)

game and in great shape is quarter Bill Stevenson who, despite a sore elbow last week, showed some brilliant passing. Working with him is big Harry Wilson, every bit as good. Together they promise Queen's a rough afternoon.

Kicking is the one department where the Tricolour is sure of some edge with former Western ace Jocko Thompson booting them far and high for the Gaels. Varsity's line will have difficulty with the likes of Sherm Hood and Gary Lewis. Hood is inter-collegiate Heavyweight Boxing Champion and a very tough fellow indeed. Facing across from them Varsity has Bob Waugh, Jack Strapp, Don Johnson, John Prendergast and several other men who have distinguished themselves in play this season.

For the people in the stands the action will take place the night before the game at the Drill Hall, 119 St. George Street. Dancing, contests for the "Craziest Hat" on the craziest, mixed-rounds feature the big night. up kids, reels for squares and the Some of the Queen's people arrive this morning and the rest come in on the 10.30 train tonight. Another Rally contest will be held for the "Craziest Fixed-Up Bloop" according to Blue and White President Bill Harris.

BLUE AND WHITE SOCIETY DECORATIONS COMMITTEE

Preparations for the Queens' Dance will commence at 12.15 on Saturday and continue immediately following game.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

PRESENTING RADIO PLAY

"Out Of The Fire"

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14TH, 8:30 P.M.

Students are advised that attendance on Sunday evenings is limited to Hillel members.

Please secure your Hillel membership at once!

Don't be Confused!

BLUE AND WHITE FOOTBALL DANCE

SATURDAY . . . IS AS USUAL AT

HART HOUSE

5 - Bands - 5

TICKETS at $2.00 per couple at

TODAY • Hart House Rotunda—12 noon - 2 p.m.

• Engineering Stores

• S.A.C. Office

Saturday - if they last,

• 9 - 12 noon in S.A.C. Offices

• 4 - 6 p.m. at the T Dance

• 9 - 10 p.m. at the S.A.C. Offices

For a Light Smoke and a Pleasing Taste

Call for

PHILIP MORRIS

PM-14

Campus capers call for Coke

He's a "heavy" in the play, but short on time.

Busy students need quick refreshment. That's where Coca-Cola comes in.

7¢

Including Federal Taxes

COCA-COLA LTD.

Coke is a registered trade-mark

C-10

Hat Hop

Friday - - Drill Hall

- Prizes for best mixed up hat and best fixed up bloop. (Bloops sold today in SAC Office 12-2 p.m.)
- Square and Round Dancing 9-12 p.m.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL East 3.30	Trin. vs. Forestry—Pine, Kerr, McLean
SOCCER North 12.30	Pharm. vs. Arch.—Ron Williams
North 4.00	Forestry vs. Wyc.—St. Rose
LACROSSE 1.00	St. M. B vs. SPS V.—Sukmanowski, Uhrynuk
1.40	SPS IV vs. U.C. III—Sorra
VOLLEYBALL 4.00	U.C. VI vs. Vic. IV—Diemer
5.00	Dent. C vs. SPS VIII—Diemer
6.00	Jr. SPS B vs. Med. IV Yr.—(game postponed)

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

O.C.E.	Mon. Nov. 15	Tue. Nov. 16	Wed. Nov. 17	Thur. Nov. 18
5.00-6.30	St. H. Fr.	POT Sr.	Vic Fr.	St. H. Jr.
6.30-7.30	POT Fr.	Vic Jr.	POT Fr.	PHE III
7.30-8.30	PHE I	UC Fr.	St. H. Jr.	Vic. Sophs B
8.30-9.30	St. H. Sophs.	Vic. Fr.	POT Sr.	UC Sophs.
	St. H. Sr.	Vic. Sophs A	UC Jr. Sr.	Vic. Sr.
	Med. A	St. M. A	Med. A	Nurses Sr.
	Pharmacy	Med. B	Pharmacy	PHE II
		St. M. B	Nurses Jr.
L.M.	Mon. Nov. 15	Tue. Nov. 16	Wed. Nov. 17	Thur. Nov. 18
5.00-6.00	PHE II	UC Jr. Sr.	PHE I	UC Fr.
6.00-7.00	Med. B	Nurses	St. H. Fr.	St. H. Sophs.
7.00-8.00			UC Sophs
8.00-9.00

N.B.—Check carefully—some teams play two games this week with no practice. Home team managers must submit game results to W.A.A. office on day after game. All managers must submit medical categories immediately.

U. of T. SAILING CLUB

MOVIE NIGHT AND GENERAL MEETING

FALCONER HALL

8 P.M. — TUESDAY, NOV. 16 — ALL WELCOME

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

ACCOMMODATION
Single and double room available — pleasant working surroundings, breakfast optional, walking distance of the University. WA. 3-7850.

FOR SALE
Christmas trees for sale, from nursery. Select pine. Unlimited supply available. Delivered to your lot. Phone ST. 8-7403.

EXPERT TYPIST
Fifteen years experience, specializing theses, maximum charge, thirty cents per double-spaced letter-size page. Mrs. Grossman, 985 Castlefield Ave. RU. 1-1041.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

FRENCH LESSONS
If you wish to make sure of your French exams Mr. Badgerow will try hard to include you among his many successful students. Close to campus. Daytime lessons between lectures. Call WA. 2-0949 or WA. 2-0536 and leave message.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-9483 — 21 Russell St. (just off St. George St.)

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3528.

APARTMENT
Professional worker, girl 25, wishes to share apartment with 1 or 2 girls. Phone EM. 6-2291, local 8, 9-5.

CRINOLINES
All shapes and sizes, long and short. Pop in and see them. Evening appointments gladly made. HELMAR, 46 St. George — WA. 1-5976.

Former B.C. Socialist Legislator Discusses Party-Labour Relation

Bert Gargrave, a former member of the British Columbia legislative, spoke at yesterday's meeting of the campus C.C.F. on "The C.C.F. and Labour".

Mr. Gargrave stated that for a working class party, funds are difficult to obtain for the purpose of making their policies known and effective, because it is the working class that backs this party and not big moneyed interests. He went on to say that the most substantial portion of revenue of labour parties in other countries is obtained from trade unions. The trade union vote is a determining factor in deciding British Labour Party policy. The leaders of trade union movements depend upon the members for ideas.

The United Steelworkers Representative maintained that trade unions, even in the United States, are beginning to realize that political interest is important to them and they are therefore tying their wagons to the Democratic Party. They have picked out those people supporting labour legislation and opposed those who are unfavourable to it.

Mr. Gargrave continued that there was a background of socialist and labour thought in B.C. prior to the advent of the C.C.F. There were some very progressive trade union leaders who were socialistically inclined. But many socialists thought that if trade unionists infiltrated into the party, they would take over. But this was greatly exaggerated, because trade union movement is not yet ready, although gradually breaking down. Workers are more and more realizing that there is not much use in forming a trade union to bargain for their rights if they are to meet with unsympathetic government action. The northern gold mine strikes showed the workers the need for political action, as it was political action which prevented them from obtaining what they felt their rights.

Comments From Page 4

even if copy has to be rewritten or rejected.

7. Dignity

All people, organizations, and so forth, should be referred to by their correct and official names on all occasions.—Dr. Sidney Smith, the President of the University of Toronto, not President Sidney Smith. Mr. Symons, Chairman of the S.A.C., not SAC Chairman Tom Symons. Mr. Doe, Speaker for the Opposition, not Opposition speaker John Doe.

Familiar abbreviations of first names in serious articles or news stories cheapens their appearance. It should be used only on occasions when it is clearly suitable.

Mr., Dr., and all such titles should be maintained, throughout articles, not dropped after the first line, as recommended in 'Rules for Copy-writers'.

Sigma Alpha Mu
CHARITY BALL
SAT., NOV. 20
King Edward Hotel

VARSAITY QUEENS
DANCE
DRILL HALL
119 St. George St.
After The Game
Saturday, until 6 p.m.

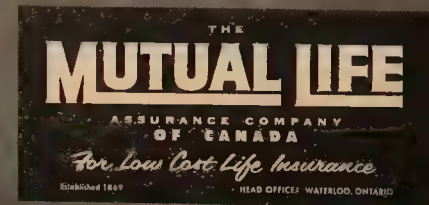

"EXPORT"
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

HAVE YOU EVER?
WOULD YOU LIKE TO GO TO THE VIC INFORMAL
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19th
HART HOUSE
TICKETS . . . AT VIC COFFEE SHOP
10 - 2 EACH DAY
$2.00 PER COUPLE

PROTECT
WHILE YOU

SAVE
For ample protection, at low net cost, see your local Mutual Life of Canada representative

ML3554

TORONTO OFFICES:

Bank of Montreal Bldg., King and Bay Sts.	Phone EM. 4-8371
Richmond St. Branch, 133 Richmond St., W.	EM. 6-8771
Yonge-Bloor Branch, 749 Yonge St.	WA. 4-8491
North Toronto Branch, 10 Eglinton Ave., E.	MA. 9421
New Toronto Branch, 746 Lakeshore Rd. at 3rd	CL. 1-3383
Leaside Branch, 650 Bayview Ave., Leaside	HU. 8-2776

ENGLISH BROADCLOTH
pyjamas by Birkdale

The specially imported English broadcloths were woven from 2-ply Egyptian cotton, "Rigmel" shrunk and merterized for a smooth, silky texture . . . then tailored by our own EATON craftsmen to exacting standards of excellence for casual smartness and restful comfort

EATON'S OF CANADA

CREST THEATRE

TORONTO'S ONLY
REPERTORY
THEATRE

MT. PLEASANT
ROAD
HUDSON
9-9427

Murray and Donald Davis Limited present
FROM NOVEMBER 16th
T. S. ELIOT'S New Play
'The Confidential Clerk'
Nightly at 8.30 — $3.00, $2.25, $1.75, $1.00
Matinees: Wednesday 2.30 - Saturday 5.30—$2.50, $1.50, 75c
SPECIAL STUDENT RATE . . . 75c
On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of 2nd Weeks of Runs

Toronto Sunday Evening Forum
AT BATHURST ST. UNITED CHURCH
(one block below Bloor on Bathurst)
SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14TH, 8:00 P.M.

Debate: "DO WE NEED A PERSONAL GOD?"
"YES" argues BRUCE ROBERTSON, Faculty of Medicine, and named by the S.C.M.
"NO" argues MICHAEL McMORDIE, Faculty of Applied Science, and named by the Toronto Humanist Society.
At 11 a.m., Rev. Gordon Domm, M.A., B.D., will preach on "Is Capital Punishment Christian?" as prompted by last Sunday's Forum.

BLUES EDGE GAELS 11-9

By MIKE PENGELLEY

The air was chilly and the sun was beginning to drop down over the horizon. Long shadows were spreading across the field and the final quarter was already ticking off. Hunksters were hustling to get rid of the last of their hot-dogs and drinks. A helium-filled balloon, set hovering over the south end of the stadium by Engineering students, had long since been cut loose from its moorings and allowed to drift out of sight far off over the city.

It looked very much as though the curtain was about to be lowered on the 1954 edition of the University of Toronto Blues.

There had been a lot of talk about a three-way inter-Collegiate tie for first place but with the Queen's Golden Gaels out in front 9-0, it seemed like so much hot air.

Still, Varsity Stadium's jam-packed 26,000 spectators, most of them Blues rooters—sat tight in the slim hope that some miraculous explosion was still in the offing.

They had to admit it didn't seem at all likely. The expected Blues power-play which was to sweep the field after the half-time intermission, had fizzled miserably. Three yards away from scoring, the Blues had been unable to crack through an iron-walled Queen's defence line.

A chilly breeze filtered through the stands and numbed Varsity spirits. But when things looked blackest, a penalty-gift revived Blues hopes. The ball was placed on the Queen's 10-yard line.

Suddenly, almost before fans in the far-off north end could figure out what had happened, the whole stadium went wild. The cheering was deafening. And through it rose the strains of the Toronto song being joyously chanted by a huge block of students in the south-east sections.

Shifty little 21-year-old half-back, Al Riva had scored a Varsity touchdown, at last. He'd taken a handout and streaked around the Queen's line to the very south-west corner of the field.

A few minutes later the tables were completely turned. Varsity was again pressing deep in Queen's territory. Suddenly, the ball slid high into the air—a long sweeping pass to the south-east corner. Blues half, John Sopinka raced to retrieve it with a Queen's man hot on his tail. The ball dropped neatly into Sopinka's arms and he drove across the line, narrowly missing stepping into touch.

Varsity stadium rocked with joy. Horns blazed, cow-bells rang and sirens shrieked. And through it for the second time: rose the Toronto song. Varsity fans could hardly express their glee.

Said a saddened Queen's fan: "That does it; if you want a surprise finish, come to Toronto."

Queen's, now two points down fought back desperately trying a last-minute, 40-yard pass to get back up field. But it was too late. The game was over. Varsity fans swarmed onto the field and lined behind their band when trooped jubilantly out of the stadium.

Emergency Meet Of HH Stewards For Dance Fate

The Blue and White Society has asked Warden McCulley to call an emergency meeting of the Board of Stewards to decide whether or not a Football Dance will be held here this Saturday night. Announced John McKellar last night. If their permission is gained, Mart Kenny will certainly be one of the bands present.

The emergency meeting must be called since Hart House is only available for dances at Toronto-home football games. The Queen's-Western playoff presents a technical difficulty. In any event, there will definitely be a tea dance at the Drill Hall after the game, said McKellar.

President Gow of the Queen's Alma Mater Society thought that it would be a fine gesture on the University of Toronto to hold their regular Hart House dance. It was felt that a dance would be appreciated if a similar situation arose at another college.

If the permission of the Board of Stewards is gained, tickets for the dance will go on sale at the regular places: the SAC office, the Engineering Stores, and the Hart House rotunda.

By MOISHE REITER

Varsity's Football Blues continued their weekly "Give-away" show in Varsity Stadium last Saturday, spotting the Golden Gaels of Queen's University a 9-0 lead going into the last quarter of play. Then, to prove they weren't really that generous, and to save themselves from Yates Cup elimination by those sensational Tricolours, the Blues pulled away in the final nine minutes, winning 11-9 in the photo-finish of the season. The victory, scored on a Queen's club supposedly helpless because of sickness of stars Ron Stewart and Al Kocman, moved the Blues into a three-way tie for first place, forced a play-off between Queen's and Western, and gave 26,000 fans a look at the best intercollegiate football of the year.

At the same time, in Montreal, Gino Fracas, leading the Western Mustangs to a 43-19 triumph over the McGill Redmen, ran far ahead of second-placers Ron Stewart and Steve Oneschuk to win the League scoring championship.

Before Saturday's game Bob Masterson, Blue coach, scoffed at reports of sickness to Queen's aces Kocman and Stewart, voicing the opinion that they would play and be as good as ever. The man was right. For fifty minutes that pair dominated the game, running the field at will, faking out the entire Varsity club even when seemingly trapped. A speedy end run by Stewart at the start of the third quarter set the Gaels up for their first score. Stewart then slipped away from Bob Pinkney, snared a Wally Mellor throw on the run and crossed over the Varsity goal-line for an easy touchdown.

The Blue wingline greatly outplayed the Tricolour throughout the game with Baz Mackie and Bob Waugh continually cutting the Queen's men into very small pieces. This edge wasn't fully exploited till the last quarter when it pushed the Blues for two touchdowns and the victory.

Despite strong drives by the Varsitys, they were unable to make any real gains on the leading Gaels until that fighting last quarter finish. The long boot of salish Jocko Thompson kept hoisting them far back and out of Gael territory, forcing the Blues to work double for their points. When Steve Oneschuk's convert went wide on the first touchdown, the single scored by Thompson looked like the margin of victory for the Gaels.

It was pathetic to watch a cluster of Varsity tacklers stand woodenly around Ron Stewart on his kick runbacks, waiting for him to pick up the play. They chased vainly after him as he sped around them for great gains. On one run, in the third period, Stewart, sick though he was supposed to be, carried some forty yards before Varsity caught him. Caring little for the overpowering size of their Varsity opposition, the Gaels, Stewart and Kocman at their head, charged through the Varsity line, ignoring Blue tacklers trying to stop them.

The much acclaimed artistry of Gary Schreider went unproven against the Blues. On two attempts Schreider's kicks went for singles but not at all towards the goal posts. The sharpness of the Gael backline was shown clearly when they dealt with the Tricolour's kick almost as the Blues were looking the kicks.

The final and winning Varsity drive came in the fourth quarter on a desperate third down play. After two throws into the dirt from the Queen's 19 yard line, Bill Stevenson faded and the ball went to John Sopinka. Sopinka took the ball and rolled away from tacklers over the goal line. Sopinka put the Blues ahead where they stayed. Sopinka, injured in the pre-season game against the Balmy Beaches, returned to the lineup for the Western game, but his great ambition was to win against his former Gael team-mates, since he played for Queen's two years back.

Outstanding Varsity back of the day was Rich Bethune, in his first year with the Blues, playing his best game of the year. Bethune carried hard and far for the Varsitys, acting as the Blue work-horse. Harry Wilson looked like the best ground-runner for the Blues, carrying for about five yards a try on quarterback sneaks.

George Stulac made one catch by a Queen's man, battled up before it hit the dirt by Bob Pinkney and nabbed before it fell again by the basketballing Stulac. It put the Blues in position but they missed the score.

Startling Steve

Varsity's Steve Oneschuk twists out of the reach of Al Kocman to get away on one of several jaunts in Saturday's Intercollegiate fixture in Varsity Stadium. Oneschuk was one of the Blues' top ball-carriers with an average gain of 4.8 yards in five tries. Kocman was Queen's' biggest threat through the centre of the line with a 4.4 average.

—VSP by Ted Sparrow

Choose Campus Debaters For Tours and Tourneys

The results of the University of Toronto Debating Union trials were announced here yesterday. Representing the women will be Nancy Donnell and Marg Richer, both fourth year U.C. They will debate in the Intercollegiate Debates to be held here November 26-27-28. Queen's, MacMaster, and MacDonald Hall women will be competing.

Five men were chosen in order of their standing in the trials to represent the U. of T. at various debating competitions. Those chosen, in order, are John Roberts, IV UC, Joe Slogan, III Dents, Bernie Warren, II Emmanuel, Leo Gray, IV SPS(and Moishe Reiter, II UC.

The only definite choice so far is Joe Slogan who will represent Toronto at the Pittsburgh Cross-Examination held at the University of Pittsburgh. The others will participate at the debates in order of their finish in the trials.

Red Feather

University students working as collectors in the final stages of the "Close the Gap" campaign for the Red Feather, collected $3,059.62.

The students walking through the parade crowds collected 31,267 coins. That number of coins amounted to $2,692.12.

The effort of the students was part of a last minute effort to bring in some $500,000 necessary for the operation of Red Feather services this year.

Gals Aglee

Girls recruited to grace Skule Nite limber up for their performances next week. Skule Nite will be staged from November 17-20.

—VSP by Fraser McIntosh

Skule Nite Comes Again Complete with Liberace

Skule Nite, the annual engineering undergraduate production, returns to Hart House Theatre this week from Wednesday the seventeenth to Saturday the twentieth. The show has been changed this year to a revue, in contrast to its plot form of previous years, and if all the publicity about the show is true, we should be seeing a lively campus show busy putting the finishing touches on the different acts under the watchful eyes of directors Bob Hill and Jim Vaseof. Although engineers predominate here, something new has been added by producers Bruce Raymond and Leo Gray who have scoured the campus for an array of feminine pulchritude designed to please the eyes of all who behold it. The word is that there's 25 girls all told in the show,—a record of sorts for Skule Nite!

Returning as featured acts will be Stacey, Skules own barnyard Philosopher, and the champion "Skule House Four" quartet. Spirituals as sung by a massed chorus should prove a real treat, while a shooting in the Malamute saloon adds a touch of mystery. A kick line, trained in the true leggy tradition by choreographer Arline Patterson, cavort among the sets designed by John Wiggins. For the girls, there's Liberace; for the boys there's the bedroom scene; and everyone will laugh at the campus scene. The background for all this is provided by original songs and arrangements from music director Al Walden, with plenty of old favourites as well.

Business manager, Ross Robbins tells us that if you want to see the can-can as it should be done, then you should get your tickets right away. They are available for $1.25 each at the engineering Stores or the Hart House advance box office.

UBC Has Fund Rebuild Brock

Vancouver (CUP)—A "Rebuild the Brock" fund, which will raise money to cover the extra cost of rebuilding fire-damaged Brock Hall, student centre here at the University of British Columbia, was established after the student council learned that the insurance would not cover the cost of rebuilding. A $50,000 goal has been set.

Five thousand dollars has already been received. Students are being urged to contribute to the fund now, to set an example for other Vancouverites. It is hoped that the general public will make up the balance of the fund.

Art for NFCUS' Sake

by P. J. LEWIS

Whether or not you pay twenty cents or fifty cents as a member of NFCUS, you will still be able to see, and take part in, the N.F.C.U.S. Art Competition — absolutely free! Again this year Toronto has been given the mandate for organizing the contest, and it promises to be an even greater success than last year's extravaganza—with which, no doubt, all but first year are familiar.

If you've read this far, it either means that you are interested in the Competition, or that you would like to paint a picture and enter, or that you are hoping for a room-full of classic (or otherwise) nudes when the pictures are exhibited.

Its aim is "the interchange of ideas on a cultural level" and with twenty-two Universities from B.C. to N.B. participating, the variety of works submitted should certainly achieve this. Last year, eleven Universities sent in a total of 70 pictures, and so this year we hope to approximately double that figure.

Every N.F.C.U.S. University is eligible and is allotted a certain number of pictures depending on its size, and the pictures that are sent on to us are the best it can offer, selected by preliminary contests. Toronto being the largest University in Canada, will submit at least fifteen pictures, and no University has a quota of less than five. The exhibition of all the pictures selected for the national competition will be in the Debates Room in Hart House from January 31 to February 4, and one or two famous Canadian artists will declare a winner in each of six separate classes. Last year Professor Charles Comfort and Dr. A. Y. Jackson were the judges, and both were pleased with the generally high calibre of the works submitted.

If you have any artistic ability, then we urge you to ensure that Toronto is well represented in the Competition. So far, no one from Toronto has won a prize in the contest, but this year perhaps we may be more fortunate. Posters throughout the campus give you the rules, and entry forms may be obtained at the S.A.C. office. Pictures must be at the office by January 26, so there is plenty of time to prepare your entries. Through the generosity of the S.A.C., there is no entry fee this year.

But if you aren't an artist, be sure to drop in to the Debates Room in February. This is a chance to see that N.F.C.U.S. does accomplish something definite and concrete, and besides, out of 150 pictures there may be one that will please you.

EUROPE

1955

STUDENT TOURS Sail May 28 or June 14 tourist class on S.S. Homeric from Quebec on special conducted tours limited to Students. A week in London, Holland, including Volendam and Isle of Marken, Brussels, Cologne, the Rhine by steamer, motor tour of the Black Forest, Liechtenstein, Austrian Tyrol, Bavarian Castles, Dolomites, Venice, Adriatic Coast, tiny republic of San Marino, Rome, the Hill Towns, Florence, Italian and French Riviera, French Alps, Switzerland, Paris, Motor tour of Scotland, English Lakes, North Wales, Shakespeare Country, Exmoor, Glorious Devon. Returning tourist class on the S.S. Homeric arriving Quebec July 25 or August 12, respectively.

INDEPENDENT TRAVEL Choose your departure and return dates; include as much or as little as you wish in the price category of your choice — all on a pre-arranged, prepaid basis. An itinerary that is made to order for you.

Ask for descriptive folders

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD.

57 BLOOR ST. WEST, TORONTO — WA. 4-1139

Management: J. F. & G. H. Lucas

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

ACCOMMODATION Single and double room available — pleasant working surroundings, breakfast optional, walking distance of the University. WA. 3-7830.

FOR SALE Christmas trees for sale, from nursery. Select pine. Unlimited supply available. Delivered to your lot. Phone ST. 8-7403.

EXPERT TYPIST Fifteen years experience, specializing in theses, maximum charge, thirty cents per double-spaced letter-size page. Mrs. Grossman, 966 Castlefield Ave. RU. 1-1041.

TYPEWRITERS. Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt, rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson — HU. 8-3929.

FRENCH LESSONS If you wish to make sure of your French exams Mr. Badgerow will try hard to include you among his many successful students. Close to campus. Daytime lessons between lectures. Call WA. 2-0949 or WA. 2-0536 and leave message.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-8482 — 21 Russell St. (just off St. George St.)

STUDENT RATES: TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3529.

APARTMENT Professional worker, girl 25, wishes to share apartment with 1 or 2 girls. Phone EM. 6-2291, local 8, 9-5.

CRINOLINES All shapes and sizes, long and short. Pop in and see them. Evening appointments gladly made. HELMAR, 46 St. George — WA. 1-5978.

PSST!

HEY BUD,

Dere's lotsa loot in the

TREASURE VAN

THE MOST COMFORTABLE SOCKS YOU CAN WEAR!

HAPPY FOOT

HEALTH(SOCK)

NEW! —

comfy-cushion top

—Eliminates leg-binding, keeps sock up.

You'll be "at ease" from head to toe.

INSIST ON ...

HAPPY FOOT

The original cushion sole — for that "walking on air" feeling.

At your favorite hosiery counter

EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED FOR 90 DAYS WEAR BY

QUALITY SOCKS FOR MEN AND BOYS

EXPORT

CANADA'S FINEST

CHOCOLATES

"Driscoll Amendment"

Fee Raise Pending at SMC

A proposed amendment which would result in a raise of the Activities Fee is now being considered by the Students' Administrative Council of St. Michael's College.

The "Driscoll Amendment" would increase the fees of the Arts Students from $10.00 to $11.00, and the fees of the Professional Students in residence from $5.00 to $5.50. This would place an additional $350.00 at the disposal of the SAC.

"The proposal has been tabled for the moment," said Bourke Smith, Vice-President and Chairman of the Council, "in order to give us a chance to determine the student opinion on the matter, and to explore and experiment other possibilities of financial alleviation."

Chairman Smith, explained that under the present arrangement, the Council cannot take on any new projects, or carry out the desired expansion of activities. The position of financial restriction is not a new one, and has hampered previous councils in fulfilling some of the responsibilities of student government — such as supplying adequate athletic equipment.

"The SAC of St. Michael's not only has a right to regulate activities on a greater scale, if such a demand exists," concluded Chairman Smith, "but it has an obligation to do so."

Speaking unofficially for the Faculty, the Very Rev. L. K. Shook, President of the College, said, "we have no position on this matter."

It is a question of the best interests of the students," continued Father Shook, "and must be decided by them. It is not the interest of the Faculty."

International Relations Head Discusses Asia at IRC Meet

The attitude of Asia is still influenced by the fact that they did not like Western imperialism and that they never experienced Russian imperialism, Edgar McInnis, President of the Institute of International Relations told a meeting of the International Relations Club last Thursday. He spoke at Falconer Hall on "Asia and the Cold War."

Mr. McInnis has just returned from a conference in Japan and an unofficial Commonwealth Conference.

He said Japan at present was in a state of indecision. There is a conflicting state of formalism and western influence. He attributed the confusion in Japan to the fact that Japan has not lost a war in recent history because it was received quite differently from the last one. This, he said, from the way the Germans received defeat. The Japanese are fed up with fighting.

Kaplan Speaks On Human Life—Hillel Lecture

Professor Mordecai M. Kaplan eminent Jewish Philosopher and leader of the Reconstructionist Movement, will open the Hillel Foundation Major Lecture Series on Wednesday, Nov. 17. Dr. Kaplan will speak on "A Philosophy of Human Life."

Presently Professor at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, and Leader Emeritus of the Society for the Advancement of Judaism, Dr. Kaplan has also been associated with Columbia University, the Graduate School of Jewish Social Work, and the Hebrew University, Jerusalem.

"A man whose life work already stands as a milestone in the development of modern Jewish thought," wrote the editors of the Jewish Reconstructionist Foundation, "Mordecai M. Kaplan is an adventurer in spiritual ideas which have seized the imagination of men because they touch off the mainspring of belief and action."

any new projects, or carry out the desired expansion of activities. The position of financial restriction is not a new one, and has hampered previous councils in fulfilling some of the responsibilities of student government — such as supplying adequate athletic equipment.

"The SAC of St. Michael's not only has a right to regulate activities on a greater scale, if such a demand exists," concluded Chairman Smith, "but it has an obligation to do so."

Speaking unofficially for the Faculty, the Very Rev. L. K. Shook, President of the College, said, "we have no position on this matter."

It is a question of the best interests of the students," continued Father Shook, "and must be decided by them. It is not the interest of the Faculty."

University Christian Mission Reaches End Thousands Hear 'old, old story' in New Way

Immediately after his address at Convocation Hall last Thursday night Dr. Niles left the U of T for his home in Ceylon. This officially completed the main part of the University Christian Mission of which Dr. Niles was the Chief Missioner.

During the five-day mission approximately 1200 student and staff members daily attended the various meetings held all over campus.

The dynamic preaching of Dr. Niles related "the old, old story" in a new moving way, expressing the main fact of Christianity as being that "Christ rose from the dead and is here now in Toronto." He also stated that a personal relationship with God through Christ is the real essence of the Christian faith. "God has come to love and to meet you in Jesus," he said.

Prior to his departure Thursday Dr. Niles expressed neither satisfaction nor disappointment in the results of the mission, as is his custom; but he said he is leaving the results up to the Lord.

Dr. John Coleman, chairman of the Executive for the Mission feels that the "healthy sceptics" on the campus were not reached, but he does believe that the students have been stimulated into some serious thinking. He said, "Of the three most recent missions this has been the most successful and has been given the greatest prominence in the news of the University."

Rev. John Rowe, Chaplain of early yet to tabulate the results of the Mission. "The only real and tangible results were the names of 80 student and staff members who expressed their desire in writing to participate in Christian discussion groups." Tomorrow night the Continuation Committee will meet to plan the follow up activities of the Mission.

Staffmembers

A very important meeting of all masthead members will be held in the Varsity office Tuesday, November 16 at 1:10 p.m.

It is imperative that all masthead members attend this meeting. Should it be absolutely impossible for anyone to attend the editor or the managing editor must be notified.

In addition all reporters are reminded that part of their responsibility is to come into the office during the noon hour to pick up assignments. Continued failure to do this will necessitate the removal of the party's name from the honour roll.

Arthur, Peck Best In Hillel Trials

B'Nai Brith Hillel foundation last night chose the two-man debating team to represent them at Montreal on November 28. Harry Arthur III UC and Sydney Peck I UC will debate against Sir George William's College of Montreal. They were chosen in the trials held last Wednesday and Friday to represent the University of Toronto.

Queen's Western, McGill, and Buffalo State Teacher's College will also be represented, said Susan Marcus, Hillel vice-president. A second team will soon be announced to debate against the Young Men's Hebrew Association in about two weeks.

he said. The Chinese will probably be less dependent on the Russians as time goes by, but Chinese leaders will continue to pay lip service to the cause of international Communism, and to the Soviet Union.

He added, that patience, understanding and aid may eventually win most of Asia over to the side of the Western Democracies.

God—Power? Person? Church Forum Topic

"Do We Need A Personal God?" was the subject of a debate conducted last night at the Bathurst Street United Church. "Yes," said Bruce Robertson, I Meds, named by the SCM. "No," said Michael McMordie, II SPS, named by the Toronto Humanist Society.

The debate was opened with McMordie a member of the Unitarian Church giving his negative views. "A person who believes in a personal God believes there exists a supernatural God who created this universe," said McMordie. He added, "We would also believe that He can communicate with us in the fact that He will respond to prayer for help." "Do we need a superior authority to tell us how to live and to punish us if we don't follow himself questioned McMordie. "I feel the idea of God is of a more general character—a power, not a person with whom you can communicate explicitly. If we need faith in a personal god we demonstrate that we lack faith in ourselves as human beings. The belief in a personal god is not necessary for the existence of a good and adequate life."

"If there is a personal god who created us, then he must have created all the evil and pain in the world. He is not all good if he permits this evil to exist," he contended. "I cannot believe in a god who acts in such an irrespossible manner, and who allows such things as Hurricane Hazel to exist," continued McMordie.

"Life without a personal god means an acceptance of the total responsibility to ourselves to solve our own problems," McMordie elaborated on this positive statement. "People from our history books who believed in a strong personal god have not proved themselves better leaders. I think it clouds our minds and interferes with clear understanding of the world. We could better understand ourselves without this intermediary." With this McMordie concluded his argument.

Now came the reply of the affirmative, supported by Bruce Robertson, a member of the Baptist Church. "There was a time when God was completely meaningless to me. In my search for Truth I came to several conclusions. Logical deduction is not necessarily the way to find truth. We should go to our own experience to see if there is a personal god. We do not learn what truth is until we start doing. If we merely look at a two-wheeled bicycle, we cannot see how it can possibly stand up in motion without falling."

"Do we need a personal god?" questioned Robertson. Yes seemed to be the answer, as he cited cases: "One out of every eight people will need the benefit of a psychiatrist soon; a drunkard

(Continued on Page 8)

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK

MONDAY, 15TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS! — Sunday Evening Concert — Available for members at Hall Forter De K.
- 10.00 a.m. - 6.00 p.m. — EXHIBITION by John Hall Also Live Cats by Cyril Travers (Art Gallery)
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel) Daily
- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room)
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Debate Room) — 1st Tenors
- 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel) Daily
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — TABLE TENNIS (Debate Room). Running shoes required
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

TUESDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER:

- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — NEW ART EXHIBITION FROM U.S.A. Tools and Technique. Also sculpture by Bob Katz Plaster (Art Gallery)
- 1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room). Relax with wax! Othello, part 4 with Robeson, Forter
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — AMATEUR RADIO CODE CLASSES. Those members of Hart House interested in obtaining their Amateur Radio License please meet in Debates Room.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
- 8.00 p.m. sharp — GLEE CLUB STAR CONCERT (Bathurst Street United Church).

WEDNESDAY, 17TH NOVEMBER:

- 1.10 p.m. — CAMERA CLUB COLOUR SHOW (Club Rooms). Dr. G. H. W. Lucas, President, Colour Photographic Association of Canada (Toronto Branch) showing transparencies of "Lake Superior, North Shore".
- 4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY — Open to women of the University of Toronto
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — 5 O'CLOCK CONCERT. James Lamond, tenor (Music Room). Women, with or without member-escort are welcome.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Men and women of University of Toronto are welcome (through Reading Room).
- 7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — FULL GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Music Room).
- 7.15 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. Prizes
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

THURSDAY, 18TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — NEW SHOWING OF PRINTS in Art Gallery.
- 5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).

FRIDAY, 19TH NOVEMBER:

- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).

SATURDAY, 20TH NOVEMBER:

- Caledon Hills Farm — Biology Club and the C.C.F. Club will meet over the week-end.

SUNDAY, 21ST NOVEMBER:

- 2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m. — OPEN ART GALLERY.
- 9.00 p.m. — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT — Jan Rubes — bass. One of "The Greats".

NOTE:

During inclement weather the East end of the Debates Room will be available as a Commuters' Lunch Room. No service provided.

Box Office Opens Thursday

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.C. CARD

Saturday Nov. 27th to Saturday Dec. 4th at 8.30

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto

Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR

MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Asst. Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN

ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengeley
Catie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Moises Reiter
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE

NIGHT EDITORS

REPORTERS

Robert Batten
Marianne Farrell, Arlene Ross
Sue Delman, Marg. Stern, Joe Aziz,
Tini Gray, Bud Wall

Opinions

Any member of the university community is free to express his opinion about the quality of this year's Varsity. However, there are fields of newspaper management, such as makeup and typography, which are the subject of knowledge and not of gratuitous opinion. In these specific areas the editors of the Varsity must reserve the right to determine the nature of the paper.

The senior staff of the Varsity is comprised of hard-working people drawn from all parts of the campus. They put in long hours with very little recompense save the personal satisfaction in performing a thankless task well.

Individually and collectively they are aware of the privileges and responsibilities devolving upon them (see Statement of Policy, issue number one). The problems of the university, its life and activity are very real to each one of the staff members. Perhaps, more than any other group on the campus, the Varsity staff is conscious of its role in campus life.

We stand ready to support any worthwhile campus activity. We reserve the right of criticism with the proviso that such criticism be based on full and adequate knowledge.

We would ask those who insist on making comments on the Varsity that they should at least have the weight of knowledge on their side.

Stoplight

One little item of business at last week's meeting of the SAC was the formation of the Hoskin Avenue Safety Committee.

This group is specifically charged with working towards the placing of a stoplight at the Hoskin Avenue crossing.

Certainly no one who has been involved in the rush between lectures would doubt the need for such a stop light.

This problem has been raised with the civic authorities many times but there has been no concrete action.

It is to be hoped that the work of the undergraduates' government in focussing attention on this source of danger will prove fruitful and the possibility of accidents or death awaiting some student will be removed.

Until then the specter of death hovers over the carefree student wending his weary way to class.

Scholarships

Actively working on the campus in an effort to bring about the more active participation of the governments in programs of assistance to university students, is the Scholarship committee of the NFCUS.

When one considers that less than fourteen per cent of the students in Canada are receiving aid in their education it seems imperative that some action be taken.

It is the aim of this committee to bring to the attention of legislators and leading citizens the urgent need for such programs of student aid.

It is to be hoped that they achieve some measure of success in their campaign and the country will not for long be forced to witness capable men and women denied education for financial reasons.

preference and knowledge

By AUBREY GOLDEN

Any attempt to find fault with Mr. Olver's comments and criticism finds itself confused and literally flooded with the number of fallacies which are so easily found. I submit that his personal preferences would, if they were foisted on any newspaper, turn the paper into a dull, overly literary effort which would turn its reader's stomachs with the second issue.

Mr. Olver's lack of make-up knowledge (we don't expect experience), is matched only by his lack of perception in the fields of style, news, and features.

The "regular and well-turned out page", to which Mr. Olver refers, is a bid toward mediocrity and the type of unimaginative work which should find its last refuge in the university. The AM & D page of The Varsity which appeared on Monday, October 18, was a break from standard form which can become very dull after a dozen or so issues. This was the place to try something new, this is the realm in which journalism becomes creative. No doubt a simple plan for each issue would make it easier on the editors. We submit that they would rather exert some effort to produce a paper which they would be proud to have bearing their name.

The carry-overs or continuations which appear from time to time make it possible to carry the stories which warrant the front page, on that page. Any news story should be adjusted to the length of its importance. True, this is inconvenient to some readers, but not half so exasperating as the omission of important facts.

His make-up suggestion of beginning at the top left corner of the page and working up and down in columns with a head to fit is so ridiculous that even a reader who knows nothing about the art of make-up would shudder. For the effect of this method, we would direct Mr. Olver's attention to the front page of the Kansas City Star, May 10, 1948. A reproduction of the page appears in "Interpretive Reporting" by Curtis D. MacDougall. It is a prime example of this type of make-up, with the practical modifications which our critic has overlooked—space and dull masses of gray.

In last Friday's article, one of the "personal preferences" was that journalese be avoided as well as the word "said" with quotes. Then the article states, "The simplest way is almost always the best way, even with writing". Both "said", and journalese, as Mr. Olver puts the style of writing used universally by newsmen, are the simplest and most direct method of presentation possible.

If Mr. Olver would take time out from writing "personal preferences" to collect facts and experience, he would learn that economy of wordage is the cardinal rule of journalism. People do not read news stories for flowery verbal demonstrations but for a quick appraisal of news-worthy facts.

It is far from a new event that The Varsity should come under criticism, and even an older institution that these critics should speak from personal preference rather than experience.

If some of these critics took time to augment the staff of the paper, they might find that Mike Pengeley could take more time for such duties as insuring the accuracy of heads and news copy. Sending two reporters on one story is preposterous, when he is unable to find one to send. It seems that the campus is full of critics and void of participants.

The remaining arguments of Mr. Olver's article have as much fact as those mentioned above. It would seem to me that people who send critical briefs to the Publications Commission of the SAC should be careful not to be caught with their journalism down.

our readers write:

Complacency and Admitted Guilt

The Editor,
The Varsity.

The following quotation is the final paragraph of my 'Comments and Recommendations' which appeared on page four of your issue of Friday, November 12th. This paragraph, which for reasons best known to yourself was not printed, constitutes the most important part of my message, as it sums up the attitude displayed in everything preceding it.

Responsibility

Sub-editorial responsibility must be accepted for any errors and lapses. I know that running an organization with part-time and voluntary staff is not the same as in ordinary business, where a man can be fired out of hand. A conscientious maintenance of standards should be encouraged, however, even where it is difficult to enforce. I am convinced that few people would seriously object to an all round raise in quality, and the Varsity will be better off without those who do.

The Varsity is a public undertaking. It represents to the world at large the state of mind in an institution of learning second to none on this continent. For these two reasons alone, The Varsity should be above reproach.

Finally, it circulates among some fifteen thousand of the best educated people in this country, who have a right to demand the best, and nothing but the best, from their daily newspaper.

The Varsity has received several severe criticisms, both publicly and privately, during the last few weeks. So far, it has seen fit to answer them, either specifically, in print, or tacitly, by acting upon them and displaying marked improvement. This silence can be attributed to one of two causes. Either the Direction and Management are suffering from an unbelievably severe attack of complacency and self-satisfaction or else this is the sullen taciturnity of admitted guilt.

MFC Olver, II Music.

Tomorrow's Woman

REPORTERS

Please sign in for stories or assignments between 1.00 and 2.00 each day if possible.

—Cartoon by Jas. Weller

TSO

This week's concert by the TSO opened with a Suite For Strings of melodies by Henry Purcell, all very enjoyable. The second Air, in particular, for muted strings, was played with beautiful tone and the whole conducted by Sir Ernest MacMillan with precise regularity, which is to say, in his case, with no real musical impetus or life.

Like so much of Berlioz' music, Harold In Italy, regardless of the program attached to it, is a work of great power combined with intense emotional impact. To convey this in performance, the tempo of the subdued opening of the first movement is very important, since it must give life to everything that comes after. Sir Ernest has the unfortunate knack of playing every quiet passage gently, and "Harold In Italy" is not that kind of music; the intensity must be sustained from beginning to end. In the finale, what the program notes describe as the "tremendous orgy" turned out to be rather tame; the trombones, hitherto intruding with their accustomed raucousness—played their bold solo passages—one of the climactic points of the work—with a most unorgiastic timidity.

Perhaps William Primrose, the violinist, had too much of Harold since he recorded it with the Boston Symphony some years ago; he no longer seems to listen to what he is playing. Instead of intensifying the performance with his first solo entrance, he chose to accept the general atmosphere—lovely, quiet tone, without strength. He was often drowned out by the orchestra, most disappointingly during his long arpeggio passage over the orchestral background in the third movement, an interlude that can be very exciting.

Hindemith's Der Schwanenreiter, for viola and chamber orchestra (without violins and violas), Primrose seemed to enjoy much more. He played the difficult solo part with refreshing vitality. The music is expertly contrived and cleverly orchestrated. I find it more pleasant to listen to than most of Hindemith's, but of no greater consequence.

The discipline of the form makes Brahms' Variations On A Theme By Haydn sharp and bright, compared with the murky diffuseness of his longer symphonies. It was the best item on the program: the orchestra played with more zest, and the conducting did not get too much in the way.

Why doesn't the symphony program list the names of the players? Does the management feel that only the soloist and program notes are important, are they trying to save money, or is it a deliberate insult?

David Simonoff.

Guthrie's Sneak Preview

Twice have the trumpets sounded, and now the warning blasts are being blown for the third time even before the record of Stratford '54 has been published. The members of the official committee have been chosen; and Tyrone Guthrie has left his direction in England to move in another direction and put his proposals before the board.

Last Wednesday Dr. Guthrie stopped in at the Royal York en route and gave the first blast to the press. It was a soft reveille that this heralded sound—an echo before the fact—as nothing is official until agreed upon by the committee.

Into an insignificant room, 1165, the man who has had such significance in Canadian theatre came for coffee. An epic figure—strong, tall, solid. A ruddy complexion, a sharp nose, and even sharper eyes. His observations were realistic and to the point, but modified by an inventive sense of humour. He could know that the best productions were often not the best box-office, and

CRITIC IN THE DARK

White Christmas

All right, I admit it, I'm biased. I like movie musicals without exception, unless they are absolutely too painful to bear, like Brigadoon. I am also partial to the singing of Bing Crosby and Rosemary Clooney, the clowning of Danny Kaye, and the dancing of Vera-Ellen. So it was no surprise to me to discover that White Christmas, now at the Imperial, is an inordinately delightful package of entertainment.

White Christmas has the "backstage" setting which seems the endless lot of the movie musical. Crosby and Kaye play a successful song and dance act whose efforts to make a Vermont Inn, owned by the beloved general of their army division, into a paying proposition, form the basis of the plot. Not that the plot takes up too much of the time, nor that it's even very plausible; the comfortable air of actually which permeates White Christmas is generated by the colossal competence of the performers, rather than by the events themselves. Director Michael Curtiz seems almost to have allowed his actors to improvise on occasion, and as a result many scenes have a naturalness which is very engaging, but which the actors never allow to degenerate into roughness. Crosby in particular contributes a fine, easy-going performance, but I was taken even more by Danny Kaye; what a relief to find him in a role which doesn't demand that he act ninetenths mental deficient and one tenth genius. His talents as a dancer are also fully exploited in this film, talents which are far greater than I ever expected, whether he partners Vera-Ellen in an enjoyable version of "The Best Things Happen When You're Dancing" or clowns through "Choreography".

Robert Alton's dances for White Christmas are without exception, brilliant. There hasn't been anything quite so superior in filmed dance since Michael Kidd's work in The Bandwagon, and, I doubt, much before that. In particular, a short but impressive version of Abraham, danced by Vera-Ellen and a young gentleman who may yet put Gene Kelly out of business, remains in the mind. There is also a Minstrel Show number, delightfully staged, which concludes surprisingly with a very fine choral arrangement of "Mandy", since very few first-class choral settings turn up on the soundtracks of musicals.

White Christmas will never be anybody's candidate for the best musical ever made, but it is as good as Easter Parade and The Bandwagon, and far superior to most of the recent pictures of every one of its stars.

W. R. M.

Germaine Clinton.

CRITIQUE DANS LA NOIRCEUR

UC's Barbier de Seville

"Enchante de faire votre connaissance." This phrase ran through the audience in Hart House Wednesday night, which was assembled to see the UC French Club's version of Le Barbier de Seville. The delight was partly that of one Frenchie meeting another, and partly in the play.

The whole play was concentrated on the action rather than the words, so that the humour of the play derived more from the "bonnes actions" than from the "bons mots". John Walker as Figaro sustained a continued mime from his first song to his last intrigue. It was very effective on the whole, but sometimes became de trop.

Charlotte Schraeger played Rosine with great charm and grace of movement, however, the French seemed to inhibit her on occasion. The Count Almaviva of Clarence Parsons was a rather mature lover, but proved himself worthy of his Rosine in the wonderful scene in which he pretends to be a drunken soldier.

Fred Ward established Bartholo as a type of person, an overbearing, pecunious, shrewd tutor, but did little to individualize him beyond this. One did not feel that he had any deep affection for his pupil, nor were the motivations for his reasonings and locking of doors apparent. He just acted. Don Bazile as played by William Van Hoek became quite a character. The two servants were a little too much of a good thing in their characterization.

On the whole the mise-en-scene was rather limited. This was partly due to the fact that both sets although attractive, had their focal point dead center. This limited the pattern of action considerably.

One or two scenes came out particularly well. For instance, the scene in which Don Bazile comes into a singing lesson in which the Count Almaviva is disguised as a messenger of Bazile's, as a singing teacher, and as what he really is—an amant in disguise. This scene really picks up momentum as all the deceivers of one kind or another unite in driving out Bazile, but each for a different reason.

The whole is a little less successful than successful and a lot more than unsuccessful.

Wendy Michener

FIVE APPROACHES TO THE DRAMA

All week people have been getting religion at the University Christian Mission. This week-end some four hundred people got drama at the University Festival. This was drama in a neat package appended with full directions for use and appreciation.

The main purpose of the festival is to encourage drama in the colleges. These one-acters give actors the experience they need before tackling a full scale production either in a college or under Bob Gill's direction.

But, at the same time, the festival educates the audience. In spite of the attractions of a football week-end almost the entire audience stayed for the adjudication by Frances Hyland. A criticism immediately after a performance can go into much more detail and turn one's emotional reactions to reasons.

I shall try to reproduce as much of what Miss Hyland had to say as I could get down without shorthand. Unfortunately, I cannot include the gestures she used to clarify her "like thus and not so". The following comes in indirect quotation marks.

RESPECTABLE PROSTITUTE

A play about race relations in the South. Produced by Trinity College.

My criterion is that of enjoyment—from the point of view of a fellow-worker and not that of a critic.

This is a very difficult play, and in my opinion, not so good a play. My general summing-up comment is that everything should have been more. Everything needs to be full out in the climaxes.

The prostitute (Judy Teague) did not take long enough to establish the early tenderness and yearning, and Fred didn't get across the necessity of sticking to his point of view, the one he had been brought up with. The meaning of each of the phrases used should have been analysed more carefully. The general idea is there, but it is only through the particular words of the author that we can get it across. The shades of emotion were lacking.

The actors were not playing to each other. They didn't establish that contact between each other. There was some monotony of voice, and a tendency towards similar speech patterns. Some unnecessary shuffling movement resulted from the fact that the actors did not reach each other.

I thought yellow was a good colour as background in the set, but it needed to be stronger. The music caught the mood of the play, I felt. It had the irony, savagery and warmth.

HAPPY JOURNEY

A family goes on a trip to visit the married daughter. Produced by St. Mike's. I like this play very much and I think it was charmingly done. The music for it was delightful. It had the sunniness, the love, warmth and simplicity which are the main characteristics of the play.

The actors played as a family and there was one moment of real emotion, i.e. when the daughter says, "Oh, Mama, it was awful." That was real theatre.

The pace could have been a bit faster; sometimes the pauses during the car ride were a little empty. The mime was a bit fuzzy. I was not quite sure just where the hall was in the house for instance, and once the mother forgot to duck under the window and talked right through the glass. But on the whole it was charmingly done.

FALL OF THE CITY

The city of Masterless Men Takes a Master. A symbolic play produced by U.C.

I must admit I was a bit baffled about the director's (Leon Major) choice of this play but he did it so well that it has proved his point. Most of my criticisms are niggly points, well maybe not so niggly, but points.

I liked the groupings of the crowd and announcers, but I thought the crowd should not have turned to each other personally. Their noises should have been more general. The director obviously has a feeling of rhythm. The words were all intelligently phrased. It was a symphonic production.

There was a certain lack of colour in the first announcer's voice. The dead woman's voice had a strange quality to it, but it was used too long in the same way. Congratulations are due to the narrator (Curt Reis); he did a fine job. However, he should have made more of the part where he discovers there is no one behind the conqueror's mask. I felt a bit cheated of the climax. The several influences on the crowd should have been delivered in different manners to distinguish them. The music did much for the atmosphere. It was part of the rhythm of the play.

SUNDAY COSTS FIVE PESOS

A play of Spanish temperament with wedding bells. Produced by Nursing.

The opening tableau of this play was charming (by Miles Kennedy and Nancy Donnell). The pace should have been faster. You shouldn't have taken so much time to think into changing moods. The Spanish are like that. Fidel was truly comic although he might have played more to his fellow actors and less to us. The music for this play seemed more like an outside comment.

THE INTRUDER

A family waits outside a sickroom for death. Produced by Victoria.

The set for this is good-looking and just what it needed to be, but it should have been shifted for the advantage of the actors. It placed Ursula at a disadvantage at the window and made it hard to hear her.

I felt the grandfather would have had more pathos if he had tried to be reasonable at moments. His frustration was well done. The uncle and father (Gordon Bruce and Robert Saunders) played well together. But in such a play each movement must have its meaning. And there were some superfluous ones.

The climax came too quickly between the baby's cry and the nun's signalling of death. There should have been a sense of the strange presence moving across the room. However, the actors did create the experience of it.

The music was good at the beginning, but later intruded upon the play. The actors could keep the mood alone even by their silence.

Here lieth the drama festival.

—W.R.M.

art, music and
drama

TRINITY TROUNCES FORESTRY 28-0

Speaking OF SPORT

BY JOHN WILSON

Just six short weeks ago, the regular schedule of the Intercollegiate Football Union got under way, when the Western Mustangs tangled with the Varsity Blues in Varsity Stadium. The Monday following that opening clash, one of the better-known downtown sportswriters ventured the thought that October 9, 1954 would forever be remembered by him as the renaissance of Canadian Intercollegiate football.

At the time we couldn't quite agree with him, possibly because the Blues hadn't produced in the proportion we had expected. However, to us, last Saturday was indeed the renaissance of College football. With 25,750 intensely interested fans packing the stands in Varsity Stadium, it was reminiscent of three and four years ago, when there wasn't a soul who missed a Varsity game. The south end was filled for the first time this season; the students responded to the cheerleaders like never before, even in the third quarter when things still weren't going our way. In fact, the volume of the cheering was so great that it could be heard as far north as St. Clair Avenue in the fourth quarter. Unbelievable but true.

We've asked ourselves many times why it is that attendance has dropped off in the last few years, and now we ask why it has suddenly returned. Perhaps the answer lies in the fact that for the first time since the war there are three strong teams in the Intercollegiate league, instead of the all-too-common battle for the spoils between Varsity and Western. For nine seasons now the Mustangs and the Blues have dominated the College scene, but this fall Queens have made things a good deal more interesting than ever before. With three teams such as these in the playoffs, we don't think there is a sound reason other than loyalty to the old alma mater for picking a winner. The stands ought to be packed again for the Western-Queens clash this Saturday in Varsity Stadium.

Deadly and Dangerous . . .

. . . is the attack produced by the skillful employment of the forward pass, but also dangerous is the penalty for interference on a forward pass play. This was made all too clear to the Golden Gaels in the fourth quarter of Saturday's game, when interference was called on one of their defensive backs in their own end zone. The rule covering the infringement is Rule XVI in the 1954 C.R.U. rule book. When such a foul is committed "the opposing team shall be awarded one point, or either of the following options". The Blues, behind 9-0 at the time, naturally selected the second option; scrimmage at the centre point of the ten yard line. The other choice is the awarding of any ground gained or score made during the play in which the foul occurred.

It appears that interference on a pass play brings one of football's heaviest penalties. On a screen pass, if the blockers interfere before the pass is completed, the penalty is the loss of ten yards and the loss of the ball.

From the Blue Room . . . Congratulations are in order to Western's Gino Fracas, who collared the Intercollegiate scoring championship with twenty-two points in Montreal Saturday. This equals Steve Oneschuk's record set earlier this season, also in Montreal . . . Phil Muntz was the top Blue ground-gainer on Saturday, carrying ten times for 63 yards; an average of 6.3 yards per try. Rich Bethune was next best with a 4.9 average . . . Al Kocman led the Gaels with an average of 4.4 yards in 14 tries, while Ron Stewart averaged 3.8 yards in six tries . . . Stewart averaged 20.2 yards on kick runbacks, and Kocman 14.0. The best the Blues could do was John Sopinka's 5.8 average, although Bethune returned once for 25 yards . . . The Hockey Blues play the Marlboros Wednesday night in the Arena at 8.00.

Hart, Skule's Power Trip Waterloo 29-7

The Skule Seniors served notice that they will be a power in the Mulock Cup playoffs when they disposed of Waterloo College, 29-7, in an exhibition game on the back campus Saturday morning.

Led by the capable quarterbacking of former Humberside pivot-man, Don Hart, the Engineers rolled to a half-time lead of 18-1. Hart returned to the SPS squad about half-way through the Interfaculty season, and his clever direction has already led the Skulemen to two overwhelming wins, 20-0 over Meds, and 33-3 over UC.

Don Fraser accounted for all Waterloo's points, on a converted touchdown and a single. Ken Selby, Bill Karpinski, George Keily, Dave Currie, and Pete Maikie scored majors for Skule, and Selby and Maikie kicked a convert each, while Ron Lyons added the other two points.

Trinity College, Group II champions, had met Waterloo a week ago, on the way to London for the Varsity-Western game, and had edged them 11-10.

Waterloo showed only occasional bursts of power. Don Hart's passing again featured the Skule attack, and promises to be a thorn in Victoria's side Wednesday when Skule and Vic meet to decide the Group I title.

Should the Engineers win this game, there will be a tie for first place in Group I, and the play-off draw will be settled by the flip of a coin.

Varsity's Rich Bethune shifts to avoid the Gaels' Frank Geard, as he sets out one of the ten carries that gained him a 4.9 average last Saturday afternoon. Guard Earl Ford is in the background. Brian Wherrett moves in from the left to nail Bethune in this action in the second quarter. The Blues came from behind to stop the Gaels 11-9 and cause a three-way tie for first place in the Intercollegiate Football Union.

—VSP by Paul Kyselka

Black Panthers Remain Undefeated

By MAX ROSENTHAL

On Friday afternoon, the undefeated Trinity Black Panther football squad remained undefeated when they walloped Forestry, 28-0. For Trinity this game had a double significance of putting them in first place in the second division and of ensuring their chances as playoff contenders.

Because of the cold, raw weather neither team's passing attack was particularly effective. Forestry's passing formation, however, was interesting in that the players lined up in a modified kicking formation whenever they passed. Because the Foresters had just one running play, a direct line plunge, working from this formation the Trinityites knew when a passing attack was coming and could stop it.

Scoring was kept at a minimum the first half in spite of the long gains made by Trinity on end around pitch outs. Trinity's unconverted first major came when John Whyte pitched out to Jerry Aziz who ran around the end for 20 yards.

The turning point of the game occurred mid-way in the third quarter when Bill Lovering of Trinity blocked a Forestry kick at the Forestry 40 yard line. John Cumberland of Trinity recovered and romped over for the score. Toby Barwick converted.

From this point on, the Foresters found it difficult to get the ball out of their own half of the field with the consequence that Trinity was able to move forward to the 15. From there Whyte passed to Aziz who scored his second major of the day. Barwick converted making the score 17-0 for Trinity.

Trinity continued their rampage in the fourth quarter. After a series of end runs that took the ball to the Forestry 4-yard line, Whyte quarter sneaked for the score. Barwick converted and the score was now 23-0.

Further scoring by the Trinity offensive was made difficult because of the efforts of the Forestry kicker, John McClelland, who was lifting the ball 40 yards over the line of scrimmage on several occasions.

Trinity did succeed in scoring, however, once more when Jim Loukes intercepted a Forestry pass at the Forestry 35 and went for the touchdown.

22 Points by Fracas Spark Western's Win

Montreal, November 14. Led by the twenty-two point effort of ace halfback Gino Fracas, the Western Mustangs rolled to an impressive 43-19 victory over the winless McGill Redmen in Molson Stadium yesterday. Fracas scored three touchdowns and added seven converts to walk away with the individual Intercollegiate scoring championship. Fracas trailed Varsity's Steve Oneschuk by three points before Saturday's game.

Western's triple-threat quarterback Don Getty scored two majors to end up in fifth place in the scoring race, while Bob Britton and Murray Henderson added a touchdown apiece and Ted Roman booted a single.

McGill's big fullback, Lionel

Quinn, notched three majors, and quarterback Ken Wright converted two of them. Pete Dingle converted the other and added a single late in the third quarter.

The Redmen held the Mustangs to a 6-6 tie in the first quarter, but Western broke out in a hurry behind Fracas' running in the second frame to grab a half-time lead of 19-6.

Fracas got his third major in the third quarter and Getty scored on a pass from John Girvin while McGill answered with one touchdown and a single. Two more converted touchdowns in the fourth rounded out the Mustang win, their third of the season.

First Quarter

- 1—McGill—touchdown (Quinn)
- 2—McGill—convert (Wright)
- 3—Western—touchdown (Fracas)
- 4—Western—convert (Fracas)

Second Quarter

- 5—Western—touchdown (Britton)
- 6—Western—convert (Fracas)
- 7—Western—single (Roman)
- 8—Western—touchdown (Fracas)

Third Quarter

- 9—Western—convert (Fracas)
- 10—McGill—touchdown (Quinn)
- 11—McGill—convert (Wright)
- 12—Western—touchdown (Fracas)
- 13—Western—convert (Fracas)
- 14—Western—touchdown (Getty)
- 15—Western—convert (Fracas)
- 16—McGill—single (Dingle)

Fourth Quarter

- 17—McGill—touchdown (Quinn)
- 18—McGill—convert (Dingle)
- 19—Western—touchdown (Getty)
- 20—Western—convert (Fracas)
- 21—Western—touchdown (Henderson)
- 22—Western—convert (Fracas)

Gaels Grounded

First Quarter

1. Queen's—touchdown (Stewart)
2. Queen's—convert (Schneider)
3. Queen's—single (Thompson)

Second Quarter

No scoring.

Third Quarter

4. Queen's—single (Schneider)
5. Queen's—single (Schneider)

Fourth Quarter

6. Varsity—touchdown (Riva)
7. Varsity—touchdown (Spokina)
8. Varsity—convert (Oneschuk)

STAFFERS

There will be an essential organizational meeting of the male sports staff this Wednesday at 1:00 in the Varsity office. Will the following please be present: Max Rosenthal, Tom Lally, Walt Schmida, John Vojtech, Sheldon Taerk.

There are openings on the sports staff of the Varsity for three writers. One hockey writer, one basketball writer, and one feature writer who will branch off into the secondary winter sports, are needed to complete our staff for the winter season. Anybody who is interested in joining the sport staff in one of these capacities is welcome to come to the Varsity office at 1:15 this Wednesday.

Joe Whitmore Shines Varsity Seconds Win

Varsity's Baby Blues finished out their season with a thrilling 16-15 victory over the Queens Comets in Kingston Thursday. Coming from behind a half-time lead of 12-1 held by Queens, the Baby Blues struck for two touchdowns by Rusty Gee and Joe Whitmore in the second frame.

Whitmore was the big gun for the Intermediates; converting both majors and adding a field goal late in the fourth quarter for a total of ten points. Dick Risk notched the other Varsity point with a single in the second quarter.

Queens ran into an early lead recovering a Blue fumble deep in the Varsity territory. Jack Perry took a pass in the end zone to open the scoring for the Comets, and Walt Goodfellow converted. In the second frame Henry Clarke got Queens second touchdown on a pass from Ron Rooke and Goodfellow again converted. Late in the quarter Risk booted a single point deep in the Comets' end zone.

Danny Nelson set up the first Blue major in the third quarter, blocking a Queens punt near centre field. Fine running by Jerry Hugo and Jack Rogers brought the ball to the Queens' fifteen, and Whitmore scooted around the end for the score, converting it.

Dave Cresswell set up the second major with some big gains in the fourth quarter. Gee took a pass on the Queens' ten and romped over for the touchdown, with Whitmore again converting. Goodfellow put Queens out in front 15-12 with about five minutes to go, kicking a field goal from the Varsity twenty. Joe Whitmore saved the day for the Intermediates with a field goal late in the quarter and the game ended 16-15 for the Baby Blues.

Rogers and Cresswell led the Blue backfield with many big gains, while Bill McKenna, returned to action after a lengthy injury, played exceptionally well

Overcoming Jinx Blue Ruggerites Snatch Big Win

The big win that has been owing to the Varsity Rugger Blues for their recent unlucky losses came Saturday in their game with the Toronto Wanderers. Topping the visitors in every department, Blues were never ruffled, and won by a score of 17-0.

Blues ran riot over a weak opposing scrum, while scrum-half Campbell's high passes found their man with devastating accuracy. Although the forwards made the ground in the set and loose scrums, it was the three line that supplied the final push, going over for all three tries scored.

The other eight points, including two for a convert, were supplied by Fayle, who scored with two penalty kicks from near-impossible angles.

Although the Varsity forwards threatened throughout the first half, hard tackling by the Wanderers' three and strong kicking by their fullback kept the scoring to one unconverted try. Playing in his new position of centre-three, Chadwick found himself with more freedom than he had had at stand-off, and took advantage of this to score between the posts after a concerted movement by the three.

In the second half, a picture try was scored by Trillia, with the help of speed and surprise. Collard after a long solo run, kicked the ball over the defenders' heads, dashing round five men to catch it on the run and go over. The last try was Chadwick's again, scored after a quick heel from a scrum close to Wanderers' goal-line. The second of Fayle's penalty goals was scored in the last minute of the game.

Statistics

	Vars.	Queens
First downs	16	11
Yds rushing	185	130
Yds passing	154	87
Passes tried	21	13
Passes comp.	11	5
Intercepted	1	0
Av. punt	36	37
Av. kickoff	45	30
Penalties	20	40
Fumbles	6	1

Varsity recovered 4 fumbles, 3 of their own and 1 of Queens. The Gaels recovered 3 Varsity fumbles.

Another Soccer Crown

Winning soccer championships has become such a habit for University of Toronto teams that the Blue Seconds had no choice but to defeat Guelph's Ontario Agricultural College Seconds, 3-1, on the campus Saturday and thus capture the intercollegiate intermediate championship.

In the senior half of the OAC Varsity doubleheader here, the Big Blues, who had already clinched their title and the Blackwood trophy, kept their record intact by pasting the Aggies, 4-1. The farmers previously had along the line. The game was an exhibition one for the Baby Blues, the Western Colts having already won the unofficial intermediate title with twin victories over the Intermediates.

UC Gal Comes Sixth Varsity Team Chosen

While most of the people in Toronto were off to the big game at Varsity on Saturday afternoon, the swimming stalwarts were to be found at the John Innes Pool for the Ontario Synchronized Championships, which were held on Saturday afternoon.

The Varsity Girl's swim team sent two representatives to the meet: Hughie Cree, Trinity IV, and Nancy Peel, UC. This UC lass came through with a sixth in the novice figures which is a class for all competitors who have not previously taken part in a provincial meet or who have not placed in this division before.

Congratulations are in order to these two swimmers for their showing for competition they encountered was stiff. The results on Saturday are hardly indicative of what the Blue's synchronized team will do at the Intercollegiate trials as the girls whom they were swimming against were best in Canada and are also old pros at competitive swimming.

This year, the Intercollegiate meet is scheduled for Queen's on the week-end of the 27th of November. Toronto's team has been announced and Hughie Cree is managing this swimming aggregation. The Marilyn Bells of the campus are: Jennifer Borden, Pat Craig, Ada MacPherson, Barbara Gluck, Pat Laird, Joan Archer, Pat Ebel, Nancy Doubt, Mary Wingate and Janet Barnes. How about bringing the cup home to Varsity, girls?

edged the Blue Seconds, 5-4, over in Guelph and the Varsitys needed to win Saturday to grab the championship of the four-team loop. George Ochrym rose to the occasion by sniping a pair of goals and Fors Pahapill added a third.

For the seniors, Jose Atucha and Ray Griffith potted a pair of goals apiece, while Dave Curtis was getting one for the Aggies.

NO TIGHT, FUSSY CURLS HERE!

This hairdo was made with Bobbi
... the special home permanent
for casual hair styles

Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent is made to give you lovelier, softer curls ... the kind you need for today's casual hairdos like the "Bobbi Bob" pictured above. A Bobbi wave is never tight, never frizzy. Right after using Bobbi your hair will have the beauty, life body, the soft, lovely look of naturally wavy hair. And it will stay that way for weeks and weeks!

Giving yourself a Bobbi is easier, quicker than you ever dreamed possible. You just put your hair in pin curls and apply Bobbi Creme Oil Lotion. A little later, rinse with water, let dry, brush out—and that's all! No clumsy curlers to use. No help needed!

Ask for Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent. If you like to be in fashion—if you can make a simple pin curl—you'll love Bobbi! $1.75

Just pin-curl as usual. Apply Bobbi, rinse 45 minutes later. When hair is dry, simply brush out. No neutralizer needed. No curlers, no re-setting. So easy, you do it yourself.

INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL OFFICIALS WANTED!

Apply now to Intramural Office, Hart House. Good remuneration.

SOCCER PLAYOFFS

DIVISION II—
Tues, Nov. 16 12.30 North Forestry vs. Law—Roy Williams
Wed., Nov. 17 12.30 North Emman vs. Knox—Pahapill
FINAL — Fri., Nov. 19, 12.30 p.m.—Auld, Pahapill, Roy Williams
DIVISION I— If St. Meds. wins over St. Mike's Today—
Thur., Nov. 18 12.30 North Vic vs. Sr. Med.—Roy Williams
Thur., Nov. 18 2.00 North U.C. vs. Dent.—Leach
FINAL — Tues., Nov. 23, 2.00 p.m.—Auld, Leach, Stainton
If St. Mike's wins over Sr. Meds. Today—group playoffs as follows—
Wed., Nov. 17 3.00 B East Sr. Med. vs. St. M.—Stainton
Thur., Nov. 18 3.00 North Winner above vs. Jr. SPS—Leach PLAYOFFS—
Tues., Nov. 23 12.30 North U.C. vs. Dent.—Pahapill
Tues., Nov. 23 2.00 North Vic vs. Sr. Md., St. M., Jr. SPS—Leach
FINAL — Fri., Nov. 26, 2.00 p.m.—Auld, Leach, Stainton

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL East 3.30 Med. vs. U.C.—Tope, McLean, Stadynek
SOCCER North 4.00 Sr. Med. vs. St. M.—St. Rose
LACROSSE 1.00 SPS III vs SPS II—Urquhart, Sukmanowski
VOLLEYBALL 1.00 SPS III vs. Jr. U.C.—Grosfield
4.00 Fr-Med IA vs. Jr. Vic.—Diemer
5.00 Med III Yr. vs. Sr. U.C.—Balshin
SQUASH 1.00 Trin. A vs. Med. III
4.20 Vic. I vs. Trin. B

COMMERCE CLUB PRESENTS

Finance Frolic

Thursday, Dec. 2 — Club Embassy

Dancing 9-1 ... Floor Show

Tickets Now On Sale In E.C. Building — $3.00 couple

SENIORS and GRADUATES

FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICERS are required for the

DEPARTMENT OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS

A career in diplomatic, consular, information and administrative work is available to Graduates and Seniors (appointment following graduation), who are below 31 years of age and who have resided in Canada for at least 10 years. This is a career of opportunity, with good salary, good promotion opportunities, interesting work, pension plan, hospital and medical plan.

A written examination will be held on Saturday, NOVEMBER 20, 1954, at ...

Room 104, Ontario College of Education,
371 Bloor Street, (Bloor-Spadina)
Toronto, Ontario.

Complete details may be obtained at your University Placement Office or from the Civil Service Commission, Ottawa. Look for the Poster on your bulletin board.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

Presenting

Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan
Professor of Philosophy of Religion and Theology, Jewish Theological Seminary of America ...

on

"A PHILOSOPHY OF HUMAN LIFE"

Wednesday, Nov. 17th, 1954,
8:30 p.m. —

Y.M. & Y.W.H.A.,
750 Spadina Avenue

ORGAN RECITAL

by

FREDERICK SILVESTER

Today at 5 p.m.

CONVOCAION HALL

Educational Value of Fraternities Debated During UC Mock Parliament

"A fraternity and a university have almost the same aims," said Germaine Clinton, first speaker for the Government in the University College Parliament. She was upholding the resolution: "That fraternities are detrimental to university education." "However," she continued, "there is a fly in the ointment."

The purpose of the university is to develop the whole personality of the student, and while fraternities attempt to do this, they do not succeed." She said that shy and introverted students are not found in fraternities, although they are the ones who might be helped. Also, relations among fraternity members are stratified. Members must be "lifelong friends" with other members, even with those they may dislike.

In refutation, Charlotte Holmes of the Opposition team pointed out that fraternities bring together students from all courses. Also, a fraternity is a smaller group than a university faculty, and is therefore more dynamic. The individual can develop to a greater extent. She said that fraternities have many valuable national projects.

Al Gordon, second Government speaker, presented a few additional points to show "that fraternities are detrimental to university education." He mentioned a story of a pledge spending a week writing some lazy senior's essay, and then asked, "Is this conducive to academic success?" In the U.S. one must join a fraternity or "face social ostracism." He stated that fraternities may develop leadership, but only for the good of that fraternity.

"A fraternity is only a club with a Greek name," said Opposition speaker Marty Friedland. It is comparable to other clubs, such as the Commerce Club or the U.C. Lit., or to a group of students forming a club and calling it "ABC." "If these clubs are detrimental to education, then fraternities are," He said it was not correct to think of a fraternity as a group of students sitting around a room holding the other arm around a fraternity brother. He concluded, "Only a small minority of students waste time sitting around fraternity houses. I know a fellow who spends two hours a day in the Hart House showers. Does this mean that Hart House showers are detrimental?"

blue and white society says:

reduced rates for oklahoma

Students of the U of T will get reduced rates at Wednesday's matinee performance of Oklahoma at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, announced John McKellar of the Blue and White Society yesterday. Student tickets will be only one dollar; the tickets generally cost from $1 to $2.50.

"This idea was arranged once in the past, but the poor response forced us to cancel it," said McKellar. "We hope that there will be more enthusiasm shown this year." There is a very definite possibility that the discount on Wednesday matinees will become a permanent fixture, he added.

The Blue and White is sponsoring the "drama day" as part of their cultural function at the University. The "Art Gallery Night," which they sponsored for many years was discontinued last year due to lack of interest, said McKellar.

TODAY

12.00 - 2.00 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—186 St. George St.—Lunches served every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.
4.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—Copper Room, Vic—Study group: Christ according to St. John.
8.00 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB—Drill Hall—Meeting of the badminton group.

Coming-Up

TUESDAY
1.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—SCM room, Hart House—What is a Human Being?
1.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—143 Bloor St. W.—Christianity and the Social Sciences.
7.30 p.m.—POLISH STUDENTS' CLUB—St. Casimir's Hall, 156 Roncesvalles—General meeting, refreshments and dancing.
8.15 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB—Club House—Meeting of the discussion group under the direction of Rev. P. W. Nash, S.J., M.S.,

Ph.D. Topic: Christopher Dawson's "Understanding Europe".

WEDNESDAY
1.10 p.m.—Hart House Camera CLUB—Camera Club Room—Colour show: "Lake Superior North Shore", by Dr. G. H. W. Lucas, President of the Colour Photographic Association of America.
8.00 p.m.—PSYCHOLOGY CLUB: Croft Chapter House, U.C.—Prof. H. O. Steer will speak on "School Problems of the Handicapped Child". All welcome; refreshments.

Treasure Van Soon Exhibiting Dolls From All Countries

Come one, come all. Christmas presents for everybody at the Treasure Van. There are no lions or tigers or things, but there are dolls from all sorts of peculiar places, donated by all sorts of important people, such as Prime Minister Saint Laurent, Her Royal Highness Princess Wilhelmina, and His Royal Highness the Maharajah of Mysore.

Impressed? Well, I should hope so. And there are all the little widgets, that girls will fall madly in love with you for. Little widgets like... NO, we cannot tell you yet, largely because the editor says we can't take up too much space. But look here again tomorrow.

Remember: Nov. 22 to Nov. 25 in the Debates Room.

God—Power?

(Continued from Page 3)
needs help — how many alcoholics have cured themselves?"

"Are we self-sufficient?" he further questioned. "Have you ever stood over the open mouth of a grave? These people who I have seen at the grave do not look very self-sufficient."

"I think we need a personal god," he concluded, and added more emphatically: "I think there is a personal god who speaks to all of us. God has spoken to us in the form of Jesus Christ."

A lengthy question period followed the debate in which the two students answered questions submitted by members of the audience. In answer to the question "Is there an after life?", McMorde stated "I personally don't believe there is."

Robertson summed up what he said to be both his and McMorde's idea. "We are both looking at the same light, the same idea, but we are looking at it from different directions and thus don't see it as the same."

If the report of this debate has aroused any personal questions which you wish to present to the two debaters, you will have a voice at an informal discussion to be held tonight at 8:00 in the Parlour at the Bathurst Street United Church, 736 Bathurst Street.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICE

Any student taking part in the required Physical Education programme or in competitive sports must have a medical examination. Make your appointment at once at 43 St. George Street, or telephone

WA. 3-9644.

EMPLOYMENT BULLETIN

IF YOU ARE . . .

. . . a post-graduate student in Chemistry, Chemical Engineering, Geology or Geological Engineering;

. . . a prospective graduate in Chemical, Metallurgical, Geological or Mining Engineering, Honours Chemistry or Honours Geology;

. . . an undergraduate in Geology, Geological Engineering or Mining Engineering;

. . . and are interested in a large, progressive, well established Canadian company, arrange with your employment service to see the COMINCO representative, November 15 or 16.

COMINCO

THE CONSOLIDATED MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY OF CANADA LIMITED

Presbyterian Fellowship of University of Toronto

Panel Discussion — "Have Presbyterians a right to exist?"

Panel: Rev. J. Charles Hay, Rev. Stuart Coles, Dr. Winchester, Rev. G. Johnson

Place: Music Room, Wymilwood.

Date and Time: Wednesday, 17th Nov., 1954 at 8 p.m.

EVERYONE WELCOME

IMPROVE YOUR READING ABILITY 100%

Improve concentration, comprehension and study habits, while reading 100% faster. For further information and

Special Students' Rates . . . see

The Reading Institute

33 AVENUE ROAD

WA. 4-3331

Varsity Stadium WESTERN vs QUEEN'S

SEMI-FINAL PLAYOFF

Saturday, Nov. 20th
at 1:30 p.m.

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES

By arrangement with Queen's and Western, Varsity coupon book holders may purchase reserved seat tickets in a portion of the regular student section at the special price of $1.00. These are on sale at the Athletic Office INSIDE COUNTER, and are available from 9.30 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. Monday to Friday. Coupon book holders may purchase additional tickets to their own by presenting the coupon books of their friends; and book holders may purchase a ticket for a non-student beside their own at full price if so desired.

COUPON MUST BE PRESENTED IN ORDER TO OBTAIN SPECIAL RATE.

Regular reserved seat tickets are on sale at Box Office, Athletic Office, Hart House, $2.50, $2.00, $1.50.

"For a mild cigarette... Smoke a fresh cigarette!"

SWEET CAPS

Always fresh and TRULY MILD!

BLUES GO TO VANCOUVER

By JOHN WILSON

While the Western Mustangs and the Queens Golden Gaels are battling it out this Saturday for a berth in the Intercollegiate football final, the Varsity Blues will be playing the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in Vancouver.

The west coast game was originally planned for November 27 between the UBC team and the Yates Cup champion, but the three-way tie caused by the Varsity win last Saturday has extended the College season by one week making that East-West game an impossibility.

Officials of the University of Toronto Athletic Association received word last night from UBC outlining the proposed plan for the Blue team to play there this Saturday. Last week, in a telephone conversation with the Vancouver university, the University of Toronto made three suggestions for solution of the problems created by the first place deadlock in the Eastern league.

The first was the one accepted by the B.C. society sponsoring the event, a Varsity-UBC game this weekend. The others were a possible game on December 4, or a late post-season game on New Year's Day. January 1 was too late for the coast club, and December 4 meant conflict with Christmas examinations.

The game will be played in UBC's own football stadium which is supposed to seat 10,000 spectators. The field in Empire Stadium, where the contest was originally to be held, is in too poor shape for a proper exhibition of football. The Thunderbirds, who play in a west coast conference with several American Colleges, have decided to play this game under Canadian rules, although there is a strong possibility that the U.S. rule of unlimited downfield blocking will be added to the set-up.

This adaption should make things much easier for the Blues when they meet the UBC squad.

(Continued on Page 7)

The Undergrad
Newspaper

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIV — No. 36

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Tuesday, November 16, 1954

Members of Parliament to Discuss Scholarships for Canadian Students

Seed or Squiggle ?

Here we have some of the articles on sale at the Treasure Van. The Van will be in the Hart House Debates Room from November 22-25.

Easily identifiable are several homespun widgets and an occasional squiggle straight from the sweat shop of the Sultan of Swet.

Proceeds from the sale at the Van will go towards World University Service projects. Chief among these projects next year will be the Patna Health center in India.

The Treasure Van will continue from Toronto to visit other camps.

Treasure Van Arrives At Hart House Complete With Seeds And Squiggles

Treasure Van is coming to Hart House starting Nov. 22 and running to Nov. 25. What is Treasure Van? It is a sale of Greek, Indian (from India), and Manitoulin Island handicrafts sponsored by the World University Service. Also an exhibit of national dolls from various countries and a gold and silver chest donated by the Maharajah of Mysore.

Several peculiar items of peculiar interest will be sold—Christmas present-type things, Things such as Manchaidi seeds, vases (Indian brass vases), and double-headed Byzantine eagles. With wings outspread.

The Manchaidi seeds are red, and have an ivory chip sprouting from the top, carved into the shape of an elephant. They are reputed to bring good luck to the bearer, so the Indian tradition goes. Now none will deny that tradition is a good thing. It follows therefore that Manchaidi seeds are a good thing. Therefore buy a Manchaidi seed and you will certainly pass your exams—the professor will throw your paper the farthest.

And there is jewellery absolutely galore—to coin a phrase?—and hand-bags and dolls and cigarette holders and dolls and sandals and tapestries and jewellery and dolls and tiny ornamental shoes (which make excellent ash-trays in a pinch) and dolls. There are vied dolls and cavalier-type dolls and gorgeous dolls and rather sinister dolls. And there are scads of double-

SAC to Sponsor Meeting As One Part of Nation-wide NFCUS Financial Aid Plan

All twenty-one district members of the federal Parliament have been invited to attend a discussion on the question of University scholarships this Friday. The meeting is being sponsored by the Students' Administrative Council, parent body of the Toronto branch of the National Federation of Canadian University Students. The meeting is part of a nation-wide NFCUS campaign to secure implementation by the federal government of a programme which would give scholarship and bursary assistance to ten thousand students—about one in four. Following the meeting, Peter Martin (III) Philosophy) and Norman Chalmers (III Law), chairman of the Scholarship Campaign Committee, will confer with Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Commenting on the forthcoming discussion with Members of Parliament, Mr. Chalmers said: "We hope to make it clear to our local members of Parliament that there is urgent need for greater scholarship and bursary aid to university students. We have reason to believe that many students are dropping out of university for financial reasons, and that even more never come because of lack of funds. We are sure that when our public representatives are acquainted with the situation, they will do all in their power to see that it is dealt with."

The results of a survey of net earnings of University students in summer employment have been compiled, and will be presented. The statistics show that last year's average net earnings were $599, much less than half the cost of attending University for a year. Furthermore, net earnings appear to be falling—last year's figure is $26 less than that of the previous summer, and $14 less than the summer before. In support of the contention that a large number of students leave college because of lack of funds, the survey showed that two percent of those questioned have dropped out for this reason.

The objection has been raised that the objective of assistance to one student in four is inordinately large. However, the percentage of students aided in the United States, a wealthier country, is much larger, while in England, more than seventy percent of the students attending university are given financial assistance.

A mandate to organize and co-ordinate the campaign was given to Toronto at the recent NFCUS conference. In this connection, the local NFCUS group has been gathering information collected by various universities and channeling it to the others. This information is used by all twenty-two member universities in appeals to provincial governments.

Weekend Plans Complete Carabins Here Dec. 2-5

Plans are now complete for the Carabin Weekend, said Jane Farquarson, chairman of the Weekend Exchange committee, yesterday. 40 French students from the University of Montreal will be in Toronto on December second to fifth for the eighth Annual Carabin Weekend.

They will be entertained by an equal number of members of the Carabin host committee, who will take the Carabins into their homes show them the campus, and join with them in discussion and partying. "The real value of the weekend", said Jane Farquarson, "lies in the friendships formed through this contact. We aim for the ideal balance of party and party she said. Last year's weekend was a smashing success, and we hope this year's will be even better."

Theme of the discussions over the weekend is 'Regionalism'. Friday, afternoon, to lead off the discussions, the Montrealeers will present 'Quebec as it is', and 'Ontario as we see it'. The Toronto hosts will in turn tell of 'Ontario as it is' and 'Quebec as we see it'.

Thursday evening, Principal Jean-neret of University College will welcome the Carabins at the Carr Hall. Friday and Saturday mornings are free for the students to attend lectures and tour the campus. Friday afternoon, the discussions lead off, with a party Friday night, Saturday afternoon, the discussion will end, and that night, the weekenders go to Nobleton for a square dance.

After mass Sunday morning, the French students will eat dinner with their hosts' families. After a departing tea, the Carabins leave.

More than 100 Toronto students applied for the Carabins weekends. Those picked were:

Barbara Flint, Irene Meyers, Joan Jennison, Diana Merrick, Elizabeth Dernongest, Juliette Adams, Mary Alice Hunter, Patricia Hand, Ruth Pidgeon, Joan Bond, Diana Walker, Gay Sellers, Diana Haas, Mary Lou Caskey, Bayla Dover Mary Eli. Williams, Donna Laugh.

Jim Goldsmith, Fraser McIntosh, Thomas Clerke, Leo Gray, John LeGallais, John Bradey, Hugh Johnston, Peter Miller, Kevin Ryan, Rocky Martino, Hal Jackman, Sandy MacPherson, Tom Wickett, Edward Walker, John McKellar, Alan P. Gordon, Ralph S. Prentice, Earl Berger, Jim Thatcher.

New Professorship Follows Bequest

The professorship held by the head of the department of Obstetrics and Gynaecology will be known from now on as the Gordon C. Leitch Chair of Obstetrics and Gynaecology, announced President Sydney Smith. The change follows the bequest of $500,000 to the University of Toronto Faculty of Medicine by the late Gordon C. Leitch. The bequest will be used mainly to endow the chair. Present holder of the professorship is Dr. D. E. Cannell.

Tory Party Will Fade Says Professor Lower

Kingston (CUP) — "The Progressive-Conservative party as it is represented in Canada today, has little if any future", stated A. R. M. Lower, Queen's history professor, speaking to the Politics Club.

Professor Lower described the Progressive-Conservative party as provincial, an Ontario party representing the vested interests of a select upper class and a declining sentimental attachment to the British monarchy. As such, its only hope of regaining status

However, he continued, there is a natural conservative tendency in Canada which must prevail even if the old party, as such, does not. He spoke of Canadians as a naturally timid and conservative people and referred to the Social Credit party of the west as representing a type of "native grass-roots Toryism".

Within the increasingly prosperous Liberal Party itself, Professor Lower perceived what he felt was a inevitable tendency towards moderation and pointed out that big business with its protective policy must always have its supporters.

Students, Staff to Battle at Chess

To-morrow night a battle royal will be waged when the students and staff of the university fight to finish in the annual student-staff chess matches.

A team made up of members of the staff will take on a team of students, said Jim Forward, III, Meds. president of the Hart House Chess Committee, which is sponsoring the meet. Last year there were eight boards played, and Forward says he expects at least that many this year.

The students carried off the honours in last year's contest, but the staff won at the two previous matches. The meet will take place in the Faculty Union, and anyone interested is invited to come and kibitz.

Library Legalistics

by JO PATRICK

Unfortunately, far too few students today are acquainted with the multitude of opportunities offered by a library. Just think of the hours you waste writing original essays, when it's so much easier to copy them from a book published in-say-1683, which hasn't been taken out in the last century. (Your professor will invariably tell you either that he purposely placed that book in the stacks so that it would not be used, or that the theory you're quoting is completely outdated!)

Almost forgotten is the joy of wandering into a library and dusting off a mouldy old book (after first dusting off the librarian, who is usually pretty mouldy herself) for an afternoon's reading. Of course, you'll want to bring a picnic lunch to eat while you browse through such literary gems as: "The Pilgrimage of Buddhism" or "Memories of an old Window-Cleaner". (This one is really pretty shocking, and should be placed in the "Adults Only" Section) while munching your liverwurst sandwich, flip through some light reading, for instance: "The Megalithic Culture of Indonesias", or "The Legend of Ermanaric". A few forgotten treasures, such as Glunz's "Litterasthetik des Europäischen Militebalters" open the door to vast stores of knowledge (unless you consider yourself an expert on Militebalters, don't sneer at this!).

However, in using the library, a few simple rules must be observed. In taking out a book:

- (1) Fill out in triplicate your name, your hobby, your mother's maiden name, and add three character references. (Don't be surprised if they fingerprint you too—efficiency is the by-word these days!)
- (2) Fill out (also in triplicate) the title of the book, the number of toes the author had, and the color of the book's binding. (All of this information, of course, is vitally important for the library files.)

- (3) Give three good reasons why you want to take that particular book (essay form).
- (4) Sign a statement swearing that you will not use the book as a doorstep, for football practice, or read it while in the bathtub.

Baha'i Discusses 'New Teachings'

"In my 35 years as a Baha'i I have seen many of the promises Bah'u'llah made for this day come true", claimed Mrs. Laura Davis, speaker at this week's open discussion group, Wednesday, 1:00 p.m., in Falconer Hall, in an interview last night. "A New Day Needs New Teachings" will be the subject of her talk.

Mrs. Davis has twice toured Canada, speaking on the Baha'i Faith, and has also spoken at many United States centres. She was elected to the first National Spiritual Assembly of Canada, one of the organs through which Baha'i administration is conducted, and has been active on various local and national committees.

Coming-Up

Wednesday, November 17
1:00 p.m. — BAH'I STUDENT GROUP—Laura Davis will speak on "A New Day Needs New Teachings"—discussion — open meeting—Falconer Hall — 84 St. George Street.

1:00 p.m.—FROS—First of a discussion series on the culture and history of China—All students welcome — 45 St. George Street — PLEASE NOTE CHANGE OF DAY TO WEDNESDAY.

1:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—"Christianity and Race Relationships"—SCM rm. Hart House.

1:00 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—Dr. Kenneth Straction will speak on "Latin America Today"—Room 212 — Anatomy Building.

4:00 p.m.—SLAVIC CIRCLE — Play rehearsal — Flavell Hse.

5:00 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP — Dr. Francis Steele on "The Content of Revelation" — Room 11—UC.

7:15 p.m.—Hart House Bridge Club — All welcome — Prizes — Reading Room—Hart House.

8:00 p.m.—PSYCHOLOGY CLUB — Professor H. O. Steer will speak on "School Problems of the Handicapped Child" — All welcome — Refreshments — Croft Chapter House—UC.

8:00 p.m.—PRESBYTERIAN FELLOWSHIP OF U of T—Panel — "Have Presbyterians a Right to Exist?"—Rev. C. Hay, Rev. S. Coles, Rev. E. H. Johnson, Dr. Winchester — Music Room — Wymilwood.

8:15 p.m. — ANTHROPOLOGY CLUB — Rufus Clutcher will speak on "Early Men in Africa" — 79 St. George Street.

8:15 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — "The Christian Life"—a talk by John Rowe.

8:30 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION Dr. Mordecai Kaplan will lecture on "A Philosophy of Human Life"—at the YM and YWHA—750 Spadina Ave.

Thursday, November 18
1:00 p.m.—U of T CCF — "CCF and Education" — Panel discussion — W. Robinson, N. McRae, A. Borovoy, A. Shaeffer — Victoria College—Room 14.

1:10 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—"How We Know God"—Rev. J. Robson, BD — All welcome — Victoria College — Room 36.

4:00 p.m.—INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB — Dr. Hans H. Schirmer, Chief of Foreign Division in German Federal Press Office will speak on "The Role of Chancellor Adenauer" — Falconer Hall.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

Presenting
Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan
Professor of Philosophy of Religion and Theology, Jewish Theological Seminary of America...

on
"A PHILOSOPHY OF HUMAN LIFE"
Wednesday, Nov. 17th, 1954,
8:30 p.m.
Y.M. & Y.W.H.A.,
750 Spadina Avenue

"LATE WORKS OF GREAT MASTERS"

Lecture by
PROF. K. W. MAURER,
University of Manitoba

TODAY at 5 p.m.
Room 8 — UC

TODAY

1:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT: "Christianity and the Social Sciences"—143 Bloor Street West.

1:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT: "What is a Human Being" — SCM Room - Hart House.

5:00 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—"The Necessity of Revelation" — Dr. Francis Steele—Room 11—UC.

8:15 p.m.—PHILOSOPHY CLUB—Rev. Dr. G. B. Phelan will speak on "Bergson and the Concept"—Victoria Music Room.

NOTICE

Certificates of attendance in connection with the payment of the First Instalment of University of Toronto Scholarships may be obtained at the office of the College, Faculty or School in which the student is enrolled.

NOVEMBER 22 - 25

Don't Miss
YOUR
TREASURE VAN
FOR Christmas Presents

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOUND
In Museum last week pair of shell rimmed glasses. Inquire at S.A.C. Office and identify.

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Royer Earle — LY. 3526.

TYPEWRITERS
Special student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

$3.00
From 3 or 4 dollars. crinolines, all shapes and sizes. Long and short. HELMUT 46 St. George Street, WA. 4-5978.

DRIVE TO MONTREAL
Wanted: Someone driving to Montreal on the 19th and willing to take passenger, share expenses, contact DICK ALBERGA, Meds. I, Wycliffe College, WA. 3-7019.

FOR RENT
Large house with room suitable as double. Also single room. Near subway and Avenue bus. Contact WA. 1 7276.

Presbyterian Fellowship of University of Toronto

Panel Discussion — "Have Presbyterians a right to exist?"

Panel: Rev. J. Charles Hay, Rev. Stuart Coles, Dr. Winchester, Rev. G. Johnson

Place: Music Room, Wymilwood.

Date and Time: Wednesday, 17th Nov., 1954 at 8 p.m.

EVERYONE WELCOME

DON'T MISS

SKULE 5T5 NITE

STARTING WEDNESDAY
In Hart House Theatre

SEE WHAT REALLY HAPPENS ON THOSE

Football Weekends

FIND OUT WHAT MAKES ENGINEERS SO ATTRACTIVE TO WOMEN.

Sold Out Thursday, Friday and Saturday

Wednesday Tickets at Engineering Stores or Hart House Box Office

—$1.25—

CUP

Runneth Over

By MIKE CASSIDY

For one of the few times in the University of California's existence, a library exhibit has perished from the earth. An official of the library stated that one of the four cock-roaches on display had died, and was not lurking in the stacks. The other three cock-roaches, she added, were in good health, and were expected to remain on display for another week.

This gem comes from Mount Allison University, in Sackville, N.B.:

O generous kind, dietitian,
There is only one wish I am wishin'—
You can cook what you shoot,
Lamb, ham or boot,
But please, will you quit goin' fishin'.

Duke University finds its freshmen ignorant of their college traditions. Sixty-four percent did not know their school song, and a quarter were minus their freshman beanies. Who knows, "O Toronto" word for word?

And in an editorial from Mississippi State College, they say: "The American Flag is 178 years old, but does the one in front of the administration building have to look that way?"

The loyalty oath craze is still on in California. The Daily Californian reports that the University students' Cooperative Association has agreed to sign a loyalty oath as a non-profit organization. This would exempt it from $340 worth of taxes, or approximately 35c for each of its members. This is the climax in a move in California, where University professors are required to sign a loyalty oath to retain their jobs. Students training to be officers must sign an

(Continued on Page 7)

"It's a High..."

Glee Club Sings At Free Concert

Tonight at 8.00 the Hart House Glee club will be in the choir loft of Bathurst St. United Church to sing in the Star Free Concert. This concert, the first public appearance of the club this year, is one of a series sponsored by the Star in various churches about the city. The Glee Club will sing five songs, varying from Laudamus, which they sang at the Church Service in Hart House last Sunday, through a negro spiritual to Black is the Colour of My True Love's Hair. A soprano soloist, the Canadian Trio, and the church choir will also perform.

The Glee Club is basically the same group which did the CBC concert on Christmas Eve last year. Under the direction of Ward McAdam it has been rehearsing for several weeks, not to mention the workout it got the night of Hazel, when after a rather delayed arrival at the Caledon Farm it spent the night in song.

Two weeks from now the Glee Club will be heard again in the annual Invitation Concert in the Great Hall of Hart House. They will be joined this year by the Buffalo Teachers' College Choir and by the St. Georges Choir which sang in Westminster Cathedral last summer.

Phelan On Bergson At Philosophy Club

At today's Philosophy Club Meeting, the Rev. Dr. G. W. Phelan will speak on "Bergson and the Concept".

Dr. Phelan was born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, and upon his graduation from St. Mary's College in Halifax, attended the Catholic University of America, where he received his Bachelor of Theology degree. He received his M.A. at St. Francis Xavier College and later studied in Louvain, Belgium. There he received his Ph. D., with the unusual degree "Agregé en Philosophie" along with his classmate and close friend, Bishop Fulton J. Sheen.

Upon his return from Europe, Dr. Phelan joined the staff of St. Michael's College, and became co-director of the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies with Professor Etienne Gilson. Dr. Phelan then became the Institute's first President, and continued in this office until 1946, at which time he left to become the director of the Medieval Institute at Notre Dame University. He returned to the philosophy faculty of St. Michael's College in 1952, and received his L.L.D. from the University of Toronto.

Dr. Phelan is the author of several books on philosophy, and is one of the best known Catholic philosophers. He is also one of the founders of the Conference on Science, Philosophy, and Religion, which draws all the notable scholars to its annual conference.

Today's meeting of the Philosophy Club will be held at 8.15 p.m. in the Music Room of Victoria College.

"Dear Joan..."

Correspondence Quandary

The other day a perplexed freshman appealed to me for some guidance in a very delicate matter indeed. It seems that when he left his happy home town to come to the big city, he left a nice girl friend behind him. Neither one welcomed the idea of separation, and she was upheld mainly by the prospect of appearing at university formal on the arm of a real live college man. (Needless to say her ideas of university life were strongly coloured by Hollywood. Likewise he looked forward to going home many week-ends and taking her out Saturday night.

But Toronto, or higher education, or something, has apparently upset the apple-cart—that, and a little brunette from Halifax whom he met in his French class. Hence, he feels the need of letting the girl back home know, as pleasantly as possible, that she has been toppled off the throne of his heart. And it was over the composition of a letter to his effect that he consulted me: not that I am any expert in affaires de coeur, but after reading my advice in the Varsity on writing to the editor he thought I might be able to write other kinds of letters. Hence, I am supposed to type out a letter for the girl, which he will sign and mail when I get it finished.

Now what am I going to say? My first impulse would be to send her a Christmas card and type across the bottom: "Sorry, I've got another girl friend, was nice knowing you." But maybe this would be interpreted as lacking in delicacy. A delightfully literary expedient would be to send her a copy of G. B. Shaw's Major Barbara and mark in red the scene where a Cockney girl who rejoices in the appellation of Miss Mog Harrison enters the Salvation Army and deserts her boy-friend Bill. Bill shows up at the Army hostel drunk, intending to beat Mog up and take her home. One of the Army workers tactfully informs him, "It's no use, Bill, she's got a new bloke now and put your nose out of joint. Certainly this style of breaking the news does not permit misunderstanding. But then she may not be much of a reader, in which case it would fall flat.

If she were musical, I could suggest that he send her a copy of "I don't Wanna Play in Your Yard"—no, still a bit abrupt. Or if she were a devotee of modern art, I could sketch an abstract painting in such a way that it might mean anything, and entitle it "Farewell". But the chances are, she isn't much of a highbrow: she couldn't be, or she never would have taken up with this kid in the first place. So I shall just have to confine myself to simple English and wield the axe as mercifully as possible. Also, it is very unlikely that since he has come to Toronto she has sat home every evening sucking her thumb; probably she also is racking her brains to tell him how she has met somebody else, for it is a sad fact that these pre-college attachments have a degree of durability something like ice in a blast furnace...

Excuse me, I hear the phone... Well, how do you like that! It's our boy calling to say that he and the Down-East brunette have had a marked difference of opinion, and he has requested her to go home to Halifax and jump into the harbour. So he is going home this week-end and is writing to invite his girl-friend to go to a dance with him, and he hopes I won't mind the trouble I've gone to cover his letter... Mind? I'm delighted! I guess I'm just really a sentimental old softy at heart.

Elizabeth Arden Salon

Choose a
Casual
Cut...
for Easier
Hair Care

You need a cut that takes a minimum of care, for busy campus life. A cut that adapts itself to daytime or date-time. A cut that's new, to match your new college clothes. In the Elizabeth Arden Salon, a corps of experts is ready to give you the cut you need... the style that's suited, individually to you.

Phone first for your appointment—
call TRinity 9111, local 3041—
the Elizabeth Arden Salon.
Simpson's — Sixth Floor

Simpson's

HART HOUSE

TODAY

TUESDAY, 16TH NOVEMBER:

- 10:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.—NEW ART EXHIBITION FROM USA: "Tools and Techniques." Also sculpture by Rue Katz Platner (Art Gallery).
- 10:00 a.m.-10:15 a.m.—MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).
- 1:15 p.m.-2:00 p.m.—LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room) Relax with wax! Ornette, part 1 with Robeson, Ferrer.
- 5:05 p.m.-5:20 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).
- 5:00 p.m.-6:00 p.m.—AMATEUR RADIO CODE CLASSES. Those members of Hart House interested in obtaining their Amateur Radio License please meet in Debates Room.
- 7:30 p.m.-10:30 p.m.—ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
- 7:30 p.m.-9:30 p.m.—ART CLASS.
- 8:00 p.m. Sharp —GLEE CLUB STAR CONCERT (Bathurst Street United Church).

this fall be right in style

with Ritchie

"GRANDSTANDERS"

STYLE No. 25

It's really wonderful what a new pair of campus-inspired Ritchies will do for your suit, your appearance and your personality! The leathers for Ritchie "Grandstanders" are specially selected for Fall wear. Your feet deserve a pair! Most styles from $10.95 to $18.95.

Ritchie shoes for men

THE JOHN RITCHIE COMPANY LIMITED, QUEBEC, P.Q.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto

Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Asst. Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengeley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Moishe Reiter
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE Robert Batten
NIGHT EDITORS Maryanne Farrell, Arlene Ross
REPORTERS Sue Delman, Marg. Stern, Joe Aziz,
Tini Gray, Bud Wall

'Let Those Who Will'

There is a strong tendency among university students to regard their stay in university as a game which is patterned after the sterner struggles of the outside world.

All too often we feel that we are here for four years of preliminary skirmish with the problems of life which will somehow fit us for existence in a society we choose to be our own.

When this thought is expressed or this attitude conveyed there comes to mind one question. Is it the purpose of university to fit us for society?

In a university such as ours which is state supported and heavily backed by the vested interests of society there seems little possibility that the situation could be otherwise.

In order to satisfy the demands of its supporters this university must turn out men and women who slip into their prescribed niches with a minimum of resistance.

There are some, however, who question the wisdom of this philosophy of education, particularly on the university level.

If the purpose of the university is the fulfilling of a role as a super lathe then much of its advantages accruing from superior resources, is lost.

If we are to have at close hand, men of superior intellect, the wealth of collected knowledge in books, and the day to day intercourse of "liberated" minds then some worthier aim must be cherished.

To this end the university had a responsibility, not only for the dissemination of accumulated knowledge of the society in which it exists, but also for the encouragement of the selfless pursuit of truth.

Can this quest be maintained without the disruption of society?

It appears highly unlikely.

Society is largely a set of formalized answers to certain problems. To search for truth, with or without the capital "T", is to examine any institution with a view to bringing nearer to perfection.

This will necessarily imply, if not an upheaval, at least a disruption of existing forms. It does not imply an outright rejection of any system of values, nor the unthinking espousal of the novel.

This society has failed to come up with satisfactory answers to a great many problems which have been created chiefly by the rise in mechanization and the scientific improvements realized in the last three decades. For this reason it is essential that any university student should have an awareness of the weakness inherent in our society.

Since our university is so closely involved in its society, and since its existence is indissolubly linked with the perpetuation of our society's mores, it is imperative that every student should take unto himself the task of re-examination.

In case any should be tempted, to dismiss this as an academic problem, or as one without real significance, we might perhaps remind him that Socrates, Christ, and Spinoza paid heavily for their propagation of these truths.

Perhaps we should stick to our little rut and let who will be brave.

our readers write: Twentieth Century Editors

The Editor The Varsity

Having waited in vain for any thoughtful editorial comment on the activities of the University Christian Mission, I do not feel impelled to congratulate our editor for having so successfully maintained his banner of "healthy scepticism" to the triumphant end of this week-long struggle. Unfortunately, there has been no struggle for our editor. I can thoroughly appreciate his mood of weariness with the push-button Christianity which he reproves from his editorial pedestal, for I am not merely wearied by his push-button editorializing, I am also slightly nauseated.

This "healthy scepticism" which our editor finds so intellectually romantic and invigorating might be more honestly termed his refusal to re-examine the Christianity which he rejected in the first intellectual upheaval of freshman days. Scepticism is a healthy approach to any problem, but not when the "seeker" pulls the wool over his own eyes and listens only to his own shouts of "Sunday School story!" If there had been any evidence of the editor having attended any of the discussions and lectures or of even having read the quite adequate reports of his news staff, his scepticism might assume a more healthy glow.

Our completely "baffled" editor solicits our sympathy in his remarks entitled "We Stand Alone". He has my pity. His statement that the Mission is perpetuating the "religion of our society without questioning its values in the terms of the needs of our day without reference to the beliefs of its founders" can only be termed ludicrous and dishonest. If subjects like "Christian Existentialism", "Christianity, Communism and Economic Issues in Western Democracies", "The Relation of Religion to Science" (to mention only a few of the Mission topics) do not seem pertinent to our editor, one wonders whether he is living in the 20th century.

The "beliefs of the founders" of the Christian faith were made abundantly clear in the talks of the Reverend D. T. Niles, the Chief Missioner. The Gospel of Jesus Christ was preached in a challenging and straight-forward manner — none of the vague innuendoes of Varsity editorializing. "Repent, believe and be baptized." There is no need for the editor to wait for some "finer hour" to "understand why it is necessary for the University of Toronto . . . to have . . . a University Christian Mission." His own editorial comments provide the answer.

Beryl Stone
(1 Grad Studies)

Religious Candlelight

The Editor, The Varsity,

One of the statements of Mr. Niles in his lecture on "Christianity and other Religions", quoted in the Varsity to-day, has caught my eyes and I think that it deserves a bit of comment.

Mr. Niles claims that other religions like Hinduism, besides Christianity, haven't seen the "full glory" and are candlelights compared to the sun of Christianity. I think it is a sign of extreme narrow-mindedness to show other religions down with authenticity, and without any basis, as a means to attract people to the faith of Christianity. The proper approach is to hold up the picture in front of the interested, showing what is good in Christianity and also to give them full freedom, and to induce them to extend their knowledge in the quest of truth in other religions through the "corresponding sources", and then ask them to accept the faith of their choice and will.

As an observer I could also comment, that it seems that it is a common practise of different groups within Christianity to come down to bitter and unhealthy criticism even among themselves. That is why perhaps, a statement like that about some other religion has come out so easily without a feeling of responsibility to the listeners and to the followers of other religions.

I would close this letter, giving a fact about India, where all religions are practised with freedom and where most people believe on principle, that there are different ways to reach the same goal and it is up to the choice of an individual to take up one he likes.

Raj Mitra, Grad Studies.

Painfully Obvious

The Editor, The Varsity

The hypocrites of this fair city are hard at work again. The rah-rah boys, who are always the first ones to shout for a back-to-the-soil movement, are beating the drums again. Ever since the beginning of this year, this fact has been painfully obvious. When the engineers went on their spree, what did all the big noises scream. I'll tell you what they screamed: "Vandalism, delinquents, riff-raff", they shouted.

When this paper took a poll to see how things stood between church and drink, these fellows, each of whom think he's the last of the big time spenders, shouted, "Religious illiterates, reprobates, pagans." Well what do they think we are anyway? Do they still worship the idol of the enlightened student trudging to lectures all the while spewing all sorts of academic drivel to his fellow students.

They're the ones who told the would-be freshman about all the drunken brawls they had had when they went to college. Raccoon coats and hip flasks, that was the ticket in the old days when college was really fun. Yes siree bob.

And now what do they want. Christian missions on the campus, that's what. Let's have pure and lilywhite students from now on, that's the cry. Conformity, uniformity, and everyone with a bible in his pocket, that's what's needed.

LIKE HELL !!!

Wilt Caplan

Certainly They're Educational!

—Cartoon by JAS. WELLER

art, music and drama

HART HOUSE ART CLASSES

Art For Art's Sake

"I've met them in Northern Ontario -Engineers mostly—they say they're 'still fiddling' with art. Often they're active in local art clubs, at Algoma or Kirkland Lake (or in the one they call the Porcupine Art Club)." That's what Carl Schaefer says about the "graduates" of his art class at Hart House.

Actually there are two of these classes. One meets on Tuesday, the other on Thursday, down in the Hart House Gallery. The men begin sketching still life, and progress to drawings of the human figure, in ink, chalk and water paint.

Carl Schaefer, the instructor, refers to their activity as "constructive recreation." He feels that professional men, especially need something satisfying and fun to take their minds off the battle while awaiting the gong for the next round.

However, the class is not merely therapeutic. The sound teaching procedure stresses the development of the budding artist's perception of form and his ability to reproduce that perception in some way. One minute pen sketches, economical "scribble drawing" intended to show the movement of the figure are developed into chalk sketches of gradually increasing complication. The class finish the course by painting in gouache.

The results are surprising. Schaefer feels that most of the really interested men in three or more years of the course develop a fair proficiency in drawing, even though they may have come to the class with little or no experience and skill. And whether they continue to draw or not, the experience of the "life" class at Hart House is a sound basis for an appreciation of art. There are those northern engineers to vouch for that.

It was Vincent Massey who first suggested in the autumn of 1916 that an Art Club be formed on the campus. Speedily a group of art-interested men organized and found a home in the room which is now in the Hart House Art Gallery. There they hoped to find a "place about a fire, with a circle of chairs, where, over the smoke of black pipes and cigarettes, the embryo Leonardo's may air their views on Cubism, Futurism, or any other 'ism' not yet come to light."

As the years went by the organization grew and changed in function and in name. It became the U of T Sketch Club, then the Hart House Sketch Club. As its activities became more numerous, the group reached the status of a Hart House committee, with the art class as one of its special "activities."

The original enrollment of 30 has swollen to a hard-to-manage 90. Many more graduate members take part. And the models change as the years go by. Still the active interest of the class is much the same.

—Les Lawrence

The model rests at half time in the art classes in Hart House while the students touch up their quick drawings. The classes are held each Tuesday and Thursday in the Hart House Art Gallery under the direction of Carl Schaefer.

Frederick Sylvester

The second organ recital of the fall term was given yesterday afternoon in Convocation Hall, by Mr. Frederick Sylvester. Mr. Sylvester's opening selection was Handel's Organ Concerto No. 2 in B flat, originally written for organ and orchestra. His playing was quite satisfactory, although there were occasional flaws in technique, and he failed at times in the two allegro movements to bring out adequately the underlying rhythmic base of the music.

The second piece was, Corelli's Suite in F, consisting of a prelude and four dance movements. This music, although not, I imagine, originally written for the organ, transcribes well — transcriptions of all kinds being much more common in Corelli's day than in ours. Unfortunately Mr. Sylvester failed to realize the dance qualities of these delightful little pieces as fully as he should.

The recital continues with the Adagio from Bach's Trio Sonata No. 1. This is basic organ fare but was not fully realized by the recitalist, who was partly hampered by the unsuitability of the Convocation Hall organ to these older works.

Bach's transcription of Vivaldi's violin concerto No. 2 in A Minor was the next offering. This work is typical of Vivaldi's tasteful writing and apart from some sloppiness in the allegro movements, was well interpreted by the performer.

The program ended with three chorale preludes by the Toronto composer Healey Willan. These are most satisfactory pieces by a man whose work is far too little known and performed. They were well played by Mr. Sylvester, whose forte would appear to be music, intended, as this is, for church use.

in cooking

TEMPERANCE

By MARY ALICE HUNTER

Victorian heroines went into graceful declines and subsisted on crumpets and Black Currant wine. The correct recipe for said wine is as follows; four quarts of whiskey and four quarts of blackberries, (and one or two other unimportant items which I forgot) Crush the currants and let them stand in the whiskey, with the spices for three weeks, then strain and add the sugar. Set away in a cool jar and — a character?

(Unfortunately the author of this interesting article became so carried away by this recipe, that he tested it himself, and had to be carried away).

ON HANDWRITING

By HUGH McKELLAR

Oyez, oyez! A splendid feature has been temporarily lost to the world. I have just received a note from the Features Editor in which she suggests (I think) some topics on which I might write features. No doubt they are excellent features, but I can't use them till I see her personally; for I can't decipher her handwriting enough to guess what she wants.

It would seem that she has taken a leaf from Hamlet's notebook; you remember, in one place the melancholy Dane explains; "I once did hold it, as our statist do, A baseness to write fair; and laboured much

For to forget that learning."

Now I would not dream of pillorying the Editor on account of her handwriting, if I did not think that she is merely one victim of a disease which has been ranging since Hamlet's time at least. You notice that Hamlet had once been taught how to write so people could read it; but as soon as he thought he was a big boy—in other words, when he arrived at about college level—he promptly started to develop a system of hieroglyphics to inflict on the public in lieu of legible characters. And this, as far as I can gather from observation, is what a great many college students do.

If you don't believe me, marking one batch of freshman essays will convince you but good. Within a range of thirty papers you will find brilliant examples of the seven types of illegibility: the Microscopic, the Slanted, the Crowded, the Interchangeable Letters, the Thin Wiggly Line, the Scrawly, and the infinite variety of Personality Handwritings. When you finally do come across a paper in which the letters are neater, formed, in straight lines, with some space allowed between them; where the a's couldn't possibly be taken for o's; nor the i's for e's, nor the t's for l's, nor the s's for c's; then you feel like giving the writer a big fat red A for very gratitude. And it is strange, but true, that the essays whose writers can manage a legible script are apt to deserve a high mark for their style and content. Any connection? . . .

Of course, any disease so prevalent as illegible handwriting must have a reason. Not long ago I heard an eminent child psychologist deplore the days when public schools devoted much time and effort to the development of a "copper-plate", or "Spencerian" hand, which was not only readable but also beautiful. The reason, he said, was that fine writers could be sure of an office job, so there was a certain snobbery attached to the cult of copper-plate. But why should the modern child work hard to write legibly in a day when we have type-writers? . . .

Why, indeed? Let's go back to first principles. Why was writing developed in the first place, if not to serve as a method of communication between people? And what communication can take place between you and me if I send you a note which consists of a good white sheet of paper blotched and spotted with hen-scratches you can't decipher for love nor money? I don't care whether you're a doctor, a banker, a professor, or a millionaire: if you write at all, you have a duty to society to write legibly! Express your blasted personality somewhere where it's harmless.

In one of Nellie McClung's books, Pearl Watson is leaving for Normal School amid the lamentations of her mother, who hates to see her leave home. She contrives to dam the flood of her mother's tears by showing her a $5 bill, and says (these were the good old days, remember): "Just think, ma, fifteen of these every month! And look at the signature: isn't it too bad that a big banker like him never learned to write, and has to make a big scrawl like this when he wants to write his name? Isn't it enough to make any girl want to go out and teach school, so kids can learn how to write their names?"

Alas, alas! What public-school teacher today can flatter herself that the pupils on whom she has bestowed so much instruction in writing won't go to college and join the Noble Army of Scribblers? If you want to write me a note explaining that one, please do; and if I can't read your note, beware! I'm coming after you!

One understands why this goldmine was reprinted eight times when one reads the assurance that "every recipe has been tried and tested and can be relied upon as one of the best of its kind." (and we think Hollywood is bad) Our edition is natively bound in white enameled cloth, adapted for use in the kitchen. It is written in a chatty style, doubtless induced by some of the more liquid recipes insided its covers.

Let's face it, gone are the good old days of gracious living and succulent cooking. What housewife in this era of mechanical can-openers would wash and quarter three of four good-sized squirrels and put them on the stove directly after breakfast with a small tablespoonful of salt in a gallon of cold water — to make soup.

The publishers of this book were either teetotalers, or had been frightened by the recent scandalous survey on drinking in the White House, conducted by the Peoria U. Monstrosity. Certainly they felt that temperance should be rewarded in this world, if not the next. "The Temperance Cook-Book" which contained all the recipes, but was "free from all references to liquors" cost fifty cents. Our cost $2.50.

I have discovered why so many

HOCKEY BLUES

Speaking ⁴/₅ OF SPORT

By MOISHE REITER

There is one football expert in this country whose face was very red after Saturday's game between the Varsity Blues and Queen's Golden Gaels. Shortly after the start of the final quarter, as the Gaels still held their 9-0 lead and seemed sure of eliminating Toronto from the Yates Cup and Vancouver playoffs, this gentleman leaned over and declared in my ear that "Man for man, Varsity has it over every other club in this League, but the Gaels have the best team." Not five minutes later the Blues had scored twice, converted once, and had pulled ahead 11-9.

The game was a real family affair with old Riverdale grads Harry Wilson and Ron Stewart set on opposite sides, two old East York men, Norm Dyson and Bill Surphlis against Varsity's Bob Kimoff, and then there was John Sopinka, playing against his former teammates, the Golden Gaels. Having played one year for Queen's, before his transfer last year to Varsity, Sopinka's big hope was to shine for Varsity in beating Queen's. No malice or bad feelings were involved, just the wish to play his best game against old friends. He did just that, and in the most dramatic way possible. Varsity had third down at the Gael 19, Bill Stevenson drew back and threw to the left corner. Waiting for the ball, was John Sopinka and right on his back was a Gael. Both went up, both came down, Sopinka with the ball, right on the sideline. Before the dazed Gael could put another hand on him Sopinka rolled away, and over the goal line for the winning points.

Team sentiment was perhaps best expressed after the game, in the dressing room, when Rich Bethune grinned "We've got it now Coach" at a relieved Bob Masterson. Bob must be getting a bit tired of suffering until the last minute waiting for his team to produce the way they can and thus far always have done.

Damage To Basketball

... could well be the result of the present Football schedule. With the Blues booked right through until November 27, the basketball teams, Senior and Intermediate, will have to go without some of their good men who are now playing football and so won't be available for the hoop game until Football finishes.

The Basketball season opens with an exhibition match in Buffalo on November 30. The strong Buffalo State squad is to be the opposition with a follow-up scheduled for the following Saturday night, the year's first Athletic Night, in Hart House, against Detroit Tech, another highly-rated American club.

Doctors Best UC 11-0 End Colourless Season

By WALT SCHMIDA

Meds and U.C. faded from the Interfaculty football picture yesterday afternoon but not even their most faithful followers were able to detect even a faint blaze of glory from either team. Meds ran up an 11-0 lead by half-time, then were content to turn back U.C.'s sporadic attempts at an offensive march.

On the last play of a listless first quarter, Coppolino took a pitchout around end from the fifteen but the major was called back for illegal interference. The teams changed ends and Meds tried the same play. This time Coppolino went for twenty-five and the touchdown. Creighton converted and that was the ballgame. On the last play of the half, Wheeler found a hole off tackle on the U.C. twenty, and after shaking off a few Tiger tacklers who were pawing at him, scored the insurance major standing up.

The second half was a comedy of errors with the Red and White having a slight edge in the play. The long Bobby Nadin to Sid Shoom pass was their most effective play as it has been all year. This combination clicked for thirty yards on one occasion, but a play later Shoom was covered by three defenders who grounded the ball in the end zone.

John Hamilton threw to Pete Bolant for forty-five to set up Meds lone scoring threat, but they were forced to kick. Wheeler's kicking was consistently good and Rintoul hoisted a few long ones for U.C.

The game produced some weird officiating; on one occasion there was a quick whistle on a U.C. end run and when it was ignored, the officials allowed the play to continue. U.C. could have made a better showing this year with a few more linemen to block for backs Nadin, Tolaki and Zwayer who showed well. The Red and Black of Meds were always contenders but could never quite match the power of Vic and Skule.

The final standings in Group I are virtually decided now, although the outcome of the Varsity Skule game on Wednesday will settle the Group I title. Should the Scarlet and Gold repeat over the Engineers, they will have completed a season without loss to end up in first place. Skule could force the issue, however, with a victory tomorrow. The result would be a tie for first place, in which case the flip of a coin would decide the playoffs. Trinity have already won the Group II championship, while St. Mike's are the likely runners up.

TRY MARLIES AGAIN

Puckchasers In Tip Top Shape Ready For Wednesday's Contest

Varsity fans will get their first chance to view this winter's edition of the Hockey Blues, when the OHA Junior "A" Marlboros invade Varsity Arena tomorrow night at 8.00. This will be a second meeting with the Marlies for the Blues. A third period goal, with less than three minutes to go, earned the OHA club a 2-2 tie with the Varsity Seniors when they played in Dixie Arena two weeks ago.

Coach Jack Kennedy, his duties with the Intermediate football team completed, has turned to the ice sport, and last night expressed great confidence in the Blues' chances this season.

With almost all of last year's club returning, and bolstered immeasurably by the addition of Junior "A" stars Dave Reid, Paul Knox and Dave Jackson, the Blue coach should well be pleased with the outlook for the coming league schedule.

The team has been practising for three weeks now, and Kennedy has pared the squad down to almost the final seventeen who will constitute Varsity's assault on the Queen's Cup this winter. Working on the first line will be ex-Intermediate flash Clare Fisher, and St. Michael's Paul Knox, centred by ex-Marlie Dave Reid. Interesting is the fact that Reid bears a striking resemblance to the Leafs' Bob Bailey, not only in appearance but in ability too.

Last year's scoring ace, Don Cossar, centres another combination, flanked by Ernie Bodnar and Johnny Akitt. Bodnar played three seasons ago with the St. Catharines Teepees. Tennis star Ken Lawson, with Tom Riley and Mert Wright form yet another line for one of the most powerful Blue aggregations in years.

John Tolton, another former Marlboro, and Bill Moreau were working together on defence in last night's practice. Lou Appleby, Sam Ashton, and Red Stephen, last year's captain, were also alternating along the blue-line in yesterday's scrimmage, along with Intermediate footballer John Adams. Yet to come back to the fold is another of last season's stars, Ross Woods. It seems that football is wreaking the same havoc on the ice lanes as it is on the Hart House basketball floor.

The Blues have two more exhibition games after tomorrow night's contest before the Intercollegiate season opens on December 3. That night the University of Montreal Carabins make their debut for this year in Varsity Arena to complete the first Athletic weekend of the winter season. Games with East York Lyndhursts and St. Mike's Majors are scheduled for the Blues, this Saturday and a week tonight, respectively.

STAFFERS

There will be an essential organizational meeting of the male sports staff this Wednesday at 1.00 in the Varsity office. Will the following please be present: Max Rosenthal, Tom Lally, Walt Schmida, John Vojtech, Sheldon Taerk.

There are openings on the sports staff of the Varsity for three writers. One hockey writer, one basketball writer, and one feature writer who will branch off into the secondary winter sports, are needed to complete our staff for the winter season. Anybody who is interested in joining the sports staff in any one of these capacities is welcome to come to the Varsity office at 1.00 this Wednesday.

Blue Harriers Third Western Wins Meet

By FRECK

The University of Western Ontario lived up to their great athletic tradition last Saturday as they won the Senior Intercollegiate Harrier meet. Their win which was considered as an upset, was all the more unusual, since this is their first year in Senior Harrier. Last year the London quinet won the Intermediate crown and felt strong enough to move up this year. Now everyone wonders why they remained in the Intermediate ranks so long.

The University of Toronto team, who were the defending Champions, finished in third place, however they did manage to gather top individual honours, as Herb Tilson kept up his record by winning the first place laurels.

Queens ran a close second to Western in spite of one of their men being forced to drop out of the race. If John McDougall, who won the individual honours last year, had not developed a leg cramp at the two mile mark, it is quite possible that Queens would have won the team prize.

Gil of McGill University came second in the meet, followed by Newman of Queens. Four Western runners finished in a tie for fourth place. These were Lorne Buck, Gord Brown, veterans of their last years intermediate championship team, and Smith and Duncan, both newcomers. The fifth Western runner, John Hobbs, placed fourteenth.

Varsity, aside from Tilson's first place, had Bill Eckersley in twelfth, Gord Hueston in thirteenth, Bob Lea in seventeenth and Bill Gelling eighteenth.

The Intermediate Harrier team is running in London today against McMaster, O.A.C., Assumption, Western and Waterloo College. The five runners representing the University are, Gord Rintoul, Roger Wilkinson, Bruce Hughes, Jim Nicholson and Doug McEnteer.

Football Record

FINAL STANDINGS

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Queens	6	4	2	0	114	60	8
Varsity	6	3	1	2	111	68	8
Western	6	3	1	2	127	65	8
McGill	6	0	6	0	54	213	0

PLAYOFFS

Nov. 20—Queens vs. Western (at Toronto)
Nov. 27—Varsity vs. Winner of Nov. 20 game.

COMPLETE SCORING RECORD

Player	TD	C	FG	S	Pts.
Frakas (W)	7	17	2	0	58
Oneschuk (T)	4	16	1	1	40
Stewart (Q)	3	0	0	0	40
Schneider (Q)	3	14	0	3	32
Gatty (W)	6	0	0	1	31
Quinn (M)	6	0	0	0	30
Riva (T)	3	0	0	0	15
Pinkney (T)	2	0	0	0	10
Girvin (W)	2	0	0	0	10
Koeman (Q)	2	0	0	0	10
Thompson (Q)	0	0	0	7	7
Bethune (T)	1	0	0	1	6
Dingle (M)	0	5	0	1	6
Borchak (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Horton (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Lansky (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Smale (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Sopinka (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Stulac (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Waugh (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Wilson (T)	1	0	0	0	5
Britton (W)	1	0	0	0	5
Cook (Q)	1	0	0	0	5
Deleahy (W)	1	0	0	0	5
English (M)	1	0	0	0	5
Giles (M)	1	0	0	0	5
Henderson (W)	1	0	0	0	5
McMahon (Q)	1	0	0	0	5
James (Q)	1	0	0	0	5
Perry (M)	1	0	0	0	5
Quinn (Q)	1	0	0	0	5
Simmons (W)	1	0	0	0	5
Turner (W)	1	0	0	0	5
Wherrett (Q)	1	0	0	0	5
Wright (M)	0	2	0	0	2
Roman (W)	0	0	0	2	2
Desborough (W)	0	1	0	0	1
Parente (M)	0	1	0	0	1

on the sideline

By JO RATCLIFFE

That was some game Saturday! So good, in fact, that it brought us home with a dandy case of the 'flu' and half a voice. So right now, we're playing the part of a bed-side correspondent, balancing a typewriter on both knees, with a thermometer taking the place of the pencil in mouth.

So Old Toronto has hit the finals again — which is nothing unusual. What is unusual, is the fact that the big game has to be out of town. And what is going to be more unusual still, will be obtaining seats for the event. Anyone who has ever seen Little Memorial or Richardson Stadium will appreciate that fact. So pack up the folding chairs, folks, we aren't in Varsity Stadium that day.

Speaking of seating, how did you like the look of the old stands Saturday? It usually takes a Grey Cup classic to do things like that to the seating capacity; but when a Queens-Toronto league game fills the stands, you may be sure intercollegiate football is once more gaining hold of the spectating public.

Toronto put on a very good cheering display. Across from our spot in the student section, all the grads were right in there, singing and cheering their team to victory. It's always fun to watch the grads—some of them probably thinking about the times they dove from the goalposts themselves not too long ago.

The only one who wasn't perturbed at half-time was our friend One-eyed Benny. Seated in his regular spot in the corner under the press box, there he was reading his racing forum, just as if there wasn't even a game going on below us. When we asked the little man if he wasn't a bit worried, "Why," says Benny, "you ain't seen nothin' yet. By the way, send some guy up here with some hot dogs."

blue profile

Gerry Lansky

Approximately once every three years out of St. Catharines, at least one extremely talented football player, joins the ranks of the Varsity Blues. Such is Gerry Lansky whose feats at the wing-back position have not been equalled this year.

Gerry, who doesn't care what position he plays as long as he is on the field, was for four years an outstanding fullback off a double-wing formation when he was in high school. In his last year there he proved to be an effective payoff man and, consequently, was his team's top scorer.

PHE Gals Win Top St. Hilda's

PHE I defeated Saint Hilda's Sophs 17-13 in a tightly contested game at OCE last night. Both teams played hard and fast with the verdict in doubt until the last few minutes.

In the first quarter checking was close and the shots poor. Physed tallied only two points on two free shots while Saint Hilda's hooped one by Jane Kelly ending the quarter 2-1.

Saint Hilda's went ahead in the second quarter on shots by Pat Arthur and June Letheron along with a single free throw to finish the half 6-2. Physed were unable to score, being held back by the Saint's terrific defence led by Flo Middleton.

Physed overcame Saint Hilda's lead by three tremendous shots by Lillian Bobson. She stole the show with a shot hooked from the free throw line. Helen Hochling also sank a shot for PHE. The Saints tallied only three points to end the quarter 10-9.

The Physed guards held well in the last quarter allowing only four points to be scored. Sonny Aksmith scored 5 points for PHE and Bobson added another two to finish the game in a close 17-13 decision. Bobson was high scorer for PHE with nine points. Miles, Arthur and Letheron all tallied three for Saint Hilda's.

Last year he entered the medical course, and, not only was he an honour student in his class course, but was also considered one of the best players of the Baby Blues. So good, was he, in fact, that he made the Varsity squad this year.

Strange, however, is the adept way Gerry has performed in his conversion from the halfback position he held with the Intermediate to the wingback position he now holds with the Blues. Modest is the best word to use when describing Gerry who, in spite of this switch, attributes his key catch in the game against Western as "just luck." This year Gerry has been used also as a defensive linebacker.

Gerry has taken advantage of American rules like backfield in motion, fair catch, and the shoulder to shoulder lines at scrimmage instead of the one yard called for in Canada, tend to make it hard for a Canadian team to play under U.S. rules with only a week of practice. However with only unlimited blocking to be added to the Blue offence, Bob Masterson should have little trouble moulding a strong attack with which to subjugate the Thunderbirds.

Blues (cont'd from page 1)

The Blues will fly to Vancouver, leaving sometimes Thursday morning, which will get them to the Rain City about six o'clock Thursday night. All expenses for the weekend are being covered by the British Columbia Athletic Round Table Society, who first conceived of the idea last summer.

his six foot stature. In high school, for five years he played basketball. In his spare moments Gerry likes to swim and has been a life saver during the summer months. Because of his desire he must be included as an important addition to the Blues.

An SPS Soccer Team

Maybe SPS will produce a soccer team when the Engineers take on the rest of the University, in a challenge match Nov. 20, at 11 a.m. on the Front Campus.

This promises to be the best game seen here this year. The Engineering line-up, which includes such senior stand-outs as: Gascor, Hubicki, Williams, Ounpuu and Webb, not to mention Blues Captain Atucha, looks formidable.

But it has been whispered that these individuals are lost without the steady influence of the key-men of the Senior Blues, namely: Sweeney, Leach, King, Griffiths and Green, who will be representing the rest of the University.

In the opinion of this writer, who has followed the season's games closely, Atucha's men will crack under pressure, and the Engineer's will be well and truly clobbered.

It must be reported, however, that Atucha is confident of a victory and has made several rash wagers, one of these being: that if his men are beaten, he will wear on his back, for one week, a card which reads, "ALL ENGINEERS ARE MUGS." We understand that the card is being printed now.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

All Hillel Members who have not received mail from Hillel

Contact Hillel House immediately.

WA. 3-7837

YOUR HOBBERLIN, HINTING HELP FOR THIS WEEK

(Directions for use: clip out the attached message and leave it around the house where your beloved parents are liable to see it. The bathroom mirror or the old man's wallet are a couple of thoughts. If your providers live elsewhere, you can accidentally slip one of these clippings into a letter home.)

Dear perplexed parent: Here is Christmas rolling around again and you don't know what to get for that big cat of a son of yours, do you?

Well, if you're prepared to squander something like $35 to $40 on the good-for-nothing, we have a suggestion or two.

Why not make him at least look presentable by giving him a Hobberlin Harris Tweed Sport Jacket. When he opens the package he'll probably show the first signs of life you've noticed since he started University.

If size is a problem, don't fret. Just buy him a Hobberlin jacket, any Hobberlin Jacket (your taste is probably years out of date anyhow). Then the ungrateful wretch can bring it back if he wants, for alteration, exchange or refund.

Harris Tweed jackets from $..... Blazers from $..... Crests for most of the more acceptable fraternities, from $100.00.

Incidentally, it won't be a bad idea to get your son started on the Hobberlin habit. We have a sobering influence on some of the racier dressers, which may be due to the fact we've been in business for 69 years.

Hobberlin LIMITED

145 Yonge

CUP Runneth Over

(Continued from Page 3)

oath. And by a recent law, churches have been forced to sign an oath, or pay taxes to the State. Could it happen here...?

And from Czechoslovakia, comes news that Aurel Vlaicu, a dairymaid on a Czech cooperative farm, has received a Peace prize. Probably from keeping the cows from revolt.

University of Saskatchewan authorities announce that "the trees around the University gym, being evergreens, are expected to remain green all winter." Oh...

A Minnesota co-ed says that "It can be most embarrassing to be asked your age and be forced to admit: 'I'm sorry, sir, I can't count that far.'" Fortunately, she adds, it can only happen in a French class.

The U.S. Supreme Court, by refusing to review a New York ruling, yesterday set a precedent whereby state colleges may be able to ban fraternities and sororities that exclude persons from their membership on racial or religious grounds.

Several national fraternities had appealed the ruling of the special New York court to the United States Supreme Court.

Cancellation

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

The game between UC Jr. Sr. and Meds. A on Wednesday, November 17 at 7:30 is cancelled and will be played next week. Pharmacy and Nurses Jr. will play Wednesday at 7:30 rather than 8:30. UC Jr. Sr. will practice at O.C.E. at 8:30 on Wednesday, November 17. MANAGERS: If there is a night when your teams cannot play, notify Gwen-Anne Miller, 'BE 1-2585 on the Wednesday of the week before otherwise game cannot be cancelled.

U. of T. SAILING CLUB

MOVIE NIGHT AND GENERAL MEETING

FALCONER HALL

3 P.M. — TUESDAY, NOV. 16 — ALL WELCOME

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER—Division II Semi-Final North 12.30 Emman vs. Knox—Pahapili

FOOTBALL	East 3.30	Forestry vs St. M.—Dolman, Fine, Stadnyk
	West 3.30	Dent vs. SPS II—Tobe, McLean, Sukmanowski
LACROSSE	1.00	SPS I vs. U.C. I—Warren, Urquhart
	6.30	Dent. B vs. Med. VI—Uhrnyuk, Eagleson
	7.30	Knox vs. For.—Uhrnyuk, Eagleson
	8.30	Pharm A vs. Pharm B—Uhrnyuk, Eagleson
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	U.C. III vs. Med. I Yr.—Baishin
	4.00	U.C. V vs. Trin. B—Sorra
	6.30	Vic. III vs SPS VI Preem
	7.30	For. B vs. Wye A—Preem
	8.30	SPS V vs. U.C. IV—Preem
SQUASH	5.40	Arch vs. Pharm B
	6.20	Med. IV vs. SPS IV
	7.00	Trin. C vs. Dent. D

New colour magic for your

"Kitten" Collection

For schoolroom...or some enchanted evening...in cashmere-soft Lambswool... 100% Super Orlon. Full-fashioned, exquisitely hand-finished...shrink-proof and moth-proof...by Glenayr.

At good stores everywhere

s. s. pullover $6.95
l. s. pullover $7.95
cardigan $8.95

G-55

Varsity Stadium

WESTERN vs QUEEN'S

SEMI-FINAL PLAYOFF

Saturday, Nov. 20th

at 1:30 p.m.

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES

By arrangement with Queen's and Western, Varsity coupon book holders may purchase reserved seat tickets in a portion of the regular student section at the special price of $1.00. These are on sale at the Athletic Office INSIDE COUNTER, and are available from 9.30 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. Monday to Friday. Coupon book holders may purchase additional tickets to their own by presenting the coupon books of their friends; and book holders may purchase a ticket for a non-student beside their own at full price if so desired.

COUPON MUST BE PRESENTED IN ORDER TO OBTAIN SPECIAL RATE.

Regular reserved seat tickets are on sale at Box Office, Athletic Office, Hart House, $2.50, $2.00, $1.50.

What's news at Inco*?

Soon... iron from a nickel mine

615 feet above some high ground near Copper Cliff, Ontario, the tallest chimney in the British Commonwealth will soon rear its nickel-chrome stainless steel crown.

It will be the symbol of a victory by Inco's research staffs over a problem that has defied solution for a great many years. The problem was how to extract iron from the nickel ore at a profit.

Inco's faith in its trail-blazing new process is being shown by the expenditure of $16 million on the first unit of a plant that will eventually produce a million tons a year of iron ore of a quality never before produced in quantity in North America.

This is but one of the history-making developments undertaken at Inco in recent years which have so far required the allocation of $160 million of Inco's own funds:

"The Romance of Nickel", a 72-page book, fully illustrated, will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY

OF CANADA, LIMITED • 25 KING STREET WEST, TORONTO

MEET USSR HALF WAY — SMITH

Plush Burrow For Bookworms

—VSP by Ed HOSHKIWI

Library's Wallace Room Opens with 10 M. Books

The Stewart Wallace Room, containing 10,000 of the 400,000 books in the new library wing, opened Monday. At opening time students had to duck under the window-cleaners' ladder in front of the door. But only a few of the 380 chairs in the new room were occupied the first day.

This room is now open except for a few details, such as railings, which are still to be completed. The Room contains an open-shelf collection of reserve books selected from lists compiled by professors in the Faculty of Arts. It is named after the librarian emeritus.

On the opening day 171 books were loaned for the night. In October 1953, an average of 476 overnight loans were made. This figure increased to 488 in 1954 in spite of difficult conditions.

Beside the door of the new extension is a slot for returning books after the library has closed. The new Room will be open until 9 o'clock at night except on Saturday.

The entire wing will open for business on November 29, but there will be a ceremonial public opening on Friday the 26. After the ceremony students will be able to see through the new building.

Stay Friends if Possible But Keep Powder Dry

Canada should go half way in meeting any overture of friendship from the Soviet Union, University of Toronto President Sidney Smith declared here yesterday.

The President was addressing a convention of over 100 rural youth delegates representing "4-H" clubs all across Canada. The farm association is holding its 24th annual convention in Toronto this week. The President addressed the delegates in Hart House.

Dr. Smith said that Canadians should not expect the Soviet Union to conform to "our ideas" of how Russia should run her affairs, "any more than we would accept such dictation from her."

"We should, in the name of Christian decency, go half way in meeting every overture of friendship," the President said.

He said that while Canada should "keep her powder dry against evil intentions by evil men" it should endeavour to work for co-existence. He said that top leaders in the Western world should not be discouraged by such publications as Time Magazine, Fortune, or Life.

Dr. Smith pointed to the well-known 20th Century historian A. J. Toynbee to show that from the Russian point of view, the Western nations have been aggressors throughout history.

Russia was invaded overland by Western armies in 1610, in 1709, in 1812, and in 1915 and 1941, the speaker pointed out.

"In that perspective, it is possible to apprehend some of the reasons why the Russians distrust the good intentions of the West," Dr. Smith stated. He added that if the Soviet Union failed to welcome the West with open arms, its history did much to explain the reason.

Dr. Smith, in his address to the 4-H delegates was tracing the development of Canada on the international level. And pointing to the future he suggested that in another century Russia would still be there.

"It is likely," he told the delegates, "that the development of the far north will have proceeded apace and that communications will be such that Russian ambassadors will fly straight across the Arctic to Ottawa instead of via Berlin, Paris, New York and Montreal."

Looking more to the national scene, Dr. Smith warned against what he termed a "frontier mentality". He said that Canada would have to guard carefully, a balance between physical and spiritual growth. Canada should not measure its strength in bushels, gallons and tons, in shares traded and dividends declared, he suggested.

"I have asked audiences in Toronto," the University head declared, "which they really believed to be of more integral value . . . The Toronto Symphony Orchestra — the TSO or the TSE — The Toronto Stock Exchange; the TTC or the U of T? Government assistance for scholarships or a subway."

He said that men who had been willing to make sacrifices had been responsible for Canada's rise from mere "colonialism" to self-government, independence and leadership.

Board of Stewards Sanctions H H Dance Marshalls Needed

A football dance will be held in Hart House this Saturday evening it was announced yesterday. The Board of Stewards (the governing body of Hart House) has agreed to the Blue and White Society's request for a dance, on condition that adequate supervision is provided.

Fifteen student marshalls are needed for this Saturday night. The reason for this increased supervision, said a Blue and White spokesman, is not because of past events. It is because the play-off is such an important game, and it is feared that the victorious team might wish to over-celebrate.

"There are two universities from out of town," he said, "and when universities go visiting, they become uninhibited," he explained that the student marshalls were purely a precautionary measure, because Hart House officials didn't want anything to happen.

Anyone interested in marshalling, said Ron Gould of the Blue and White Society, may leave his name in the SAC office. The pay is $1.25 an hour, from 9:30 till 11:30 p.m. Marshalls are not permitted to bring dates, Gould explained "so that they can devote all their time to their duties."

There are only 350 tickets for the dance on sale in Toronto, Gould announced. 300 have been sent to Queen's and 300 to Western. Five bands will be provided, including Bert Niosi, and Bobby Gimby.

Recent Survey for Government Revealed Drastic Drop in Average Student Wages

Students, on an average, cannot earn enough during the summer to cover their university expenses, it was revealed yesterday. The results of the survey of student earnings conducted by the government scholarship committee on this campus showed that men between their first and second year earn approximately $600, and women earn between $200 and $300.

The estimated cost of university expenses for the year is about $1200.

The survey was scientifically conducted by a psychology student, Sheila Young, in consultation with her faculty, and was based on a balanced 1% sample of the university students (or slightly over 100 students).

Students in second, third, and fourth year were interviewed. 1954 earnings of second year students were considered, the 1953 earnings of third year students; and the 1952 earnings of fourth year students.

Consequently the survey really deals with sophomore earnings. This was done so that the increasing age and experience of students would not influence the results showing the earning power of students.

The figures considered deal only with net earnings at the end of the summer (those which would be available for academic expenses) and are concerned only with summer earnings. The results show that the earning power of men fell something like 10% last summer. The apparent increase in the earning power of Artswomen may be caused by the comparatively small number of Artswomen interviewed.

During the survey it was revealed that two students at least dropped out of the university for financial reasons. If this is typical, it suggests that as many as 200 students may have dropped out this year at Toronto.

The overall picture given by the survey is the most important and the most accurate. The overall results deal with the greatest number of students.

Angus Leads Group Meeting Local MPs On Scholarships

Wm. Angus, II Law, S.A.C. president will head student representatives meeting local M.P.'s Friday to discuss the need for government scholarships and bursaries, it has been announced by Scholarship Campaign organizers.

Other delegation members will be S.A.C. Reps. Ron Gould, U.C., Don Stevenson, Vic., Gord Hurlburt, S.P.S., S.A.C. N.F.C.U.S. Chairman, Ian Scott, St. Michael's, plus Norm Chalmers, Law, Scholarship Committee Chairman, and John Barnes, I Social Work, Committee Member.

What Soph's Earn

	Artsmen	A'women	Arts	Profess.	Overall
1952	$572	$289	$430	$704	$613
1953	655	224	440	723	625
1954	604	335	468	665	599

Settlement Tags Collect $674 For House, Camp

A total of $674.00 was collected Saturday morning and Monday at noon for the University Settlement, said Hal Jackman, a member of the House Committee of Hart House. The money will go for capital repairs at the Settlement's camp on Lake of Bays, and for new boats and equipment.

Because of Red Feather canvassers at the Santa Claus Parade Saturday, he said, Settlement taggers received about $400 Saturday morning, and it was decided to continue the campaign to Monday. About 55 canvassers of both sexes took part.

The Settlement is a University directed community centre for the area directly south of the University. As a Red Feather agency, it can make no appeal for running expenses. To cover these, they may ask for funds from the public in a separate campaign.

double tag day

Frats Aid Settlement Camp

Members of the fraternities (men's and women's) held a tag-day last Monday. The contributions asked were for the University Settlement House.

The tag-day was originally planned for last Saturday, when the parade was held. However, because of the Red Feather Drive, it was decided to tag on Monday as well, explained Arnold Wilkinson, a comptroller of Hart House. The result of the combined effort, he said, came to about $675.00.

This is the third tag day to be conducted in the same way, Mr. Wilkinson said.

The tag-day, handled by members of different fraternities on the campus, was originally requested by the House Committee of House Hart, said Mr. Wilkinson. The SAC office granted permission for the tagging on Saturday, but didn't know anything about the additional tagging done on Monday.

The University Settlement

House is part of the Community Chest, said Mr. Wilkinson. However, he added, the Red Feather does not provide funds for capital improvement. It pays only for operating expenses, such as staff salaries and programmes carried on.

The camp, located north of Toronto is run for the benefit of underprivileged children. Settlement House itself is unofficially affiliated with the University, from which it receives support in the way of funds, helpers, and clothes. At Christmas time, it is a common practice of many of the fraternities and university organizations to give Christmas parties for the children of Settlement House.

COMING-UP

THURSDAY
1.00 p.m.—U. OF T. CCF CLUB—Room 14, Vic. Socialism la.
4.00 p.m.—INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB—Falconer Hall—Dr. Hans Schirmer: "The Role of Adenauer".
4.30 p.m.—CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION—Staff Lounge, Mech. Building—Williams, Wagner, Mahler, Brahms.
8.00 p.m.—PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CLUB—Trinity College, Room 4.

To-day

WEDNESDAY
1.00 p.m.—F.R.O.S.—45 St. George Street.
—BAHA'I STUDENT GROUP—Falconer Hall—Laura Davis.
—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—Room 212 Anatomy Building.
4.00 p.m.—TRINITY-VICTORIA COLLEGE DEBATING—J.C.R. Trinity. This house approves an early corporate union between the Anglican and United Churches.
2.30 p.m.—ROYAL ONTARIO MUSEUM—Theatre—Films on Scandinavia.
5.00 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—Room 11 U.C. Dr. Francis Steele.
7.45 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—143 Bloor St. Worship Service.
8.00 p.m.—PRESBYTERIAN FELLOWSHIP—Music Room, Wymlwood.
—PSYCHOLOGY—Croft Chapter House U.C.—Professor Steer.
8.15 p.m.—ANTHROPOLOGY

CLUB—79 St. George St.—Rufus Churcher "Early Man in Africa".
8.30 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—YMHA—Philosophy of Human Life.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

THE BAY
Going home to the Bay this week-end and almost every second week-end. If interested in transportation contact Ted Guppy, GL 7763.

FOUND
One man's watch after rugby game at Stadium Saturday last. Call Mr. Fried at WA 3-6611, local 46, or Agincourt 172 for further information.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1243 anytime.

STUDENT RATES:
TIME: LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle—LY 3528.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services—all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA 2-9483—21 Russell St. (Just off St. George St.)

Fashion begins Underneath!

So Evangeline makes a specialty of all the newest and best foundation garments—and lingerie that is practical and glamorous. Come in and see!

MAGIC "FINGERS" LIFT YOUR FIGURE IN THE "PLAYTEX" MAGIC CONTROLLER

Shapes and supports you without a single seam, stitch, stay or bone! Magic control for those "Calorie-Curves". It's a strikingly different kind of figure control... with its clever, invisible "finger" panels that firmly assist the action of your own body muscles! And, there's a boneless non-roll top that stays up, raises and slims your waistline as never before!

Fabric-lined... 4 reinforced adjustable garters... $9.50
Extra large size $10.50

WEAR IT!
You'll think you've lost a full size, no matter what your size!

Try the NEW "PLAYTEX" LIVING BRA

An exciting new bra of Elastic and Nylon—custom contoured as if made for you alone.

Only $3.95

NEW CRINOLINES

They're gay and youthful—real glamour for all your dress-up occasions. You'll often see two or even three in different colors. They're made of permanently stiffened nylon taffeta, nylon net and nylon tricot. White, Pink, Blue or Black in small, medium and large sizes.

$2.98 to $8.98

ABOVE Nylon Net with a triple frill and tiny rosebud trim. $4.98

Evangeline

IN HAMILTON
King & John Streets

OPEN HOUSE FRIDAY EVENINGS
All Stores except Adelaide and Yonge

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 786 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pope
- 62A Bloor at Bay

OTTAWA • BROCKVILLE • LONDON • GUELPH • KINGSTON • ST. CATHARINES • PETERSBURGH

Psychiatry and Religion

A SERIES OF FOUR LECTURES BY
DR. DANIEL CAPFON

Toronto Psychiatric Hospital and Dept. of Psychiatry, U. of T.

FIRST LECTURE: Monday, Nov. 22 at 5 p.m. in West Hall, University College. Subject: "A Psychiatrist's View of the Nature of Man."

CHAIRMAN: Prof. J. A. Irving, Victoria College.
Sponsored by the Psychology Club and the Student Christian Movement.

Sir Walter Raleigh

MILD
BURLEY
TOBACCO

at its best...

Baha'i Student Group

Today — One p.m.
FALCONER HALL

"A New Day Needs New Teaching" by Laura Davis

Kingston Male Choir Singing In Hart House

The first outside choir in 900 years to sing in Westminster

Abbey, the St. Georges Cathedral Male Choir will sing in Hart House on Saturday, November 27th.

In addition to singing at three services on Sunday, this group of forty men and boys practices five times a week. After recitals in New York and Montreal, they left their native Kingston to sing in England this summer. They have appeared on radio and television and made recordings.

The Buffalo State Teachers Choir and the Hart House Glee Club will also sing in separate numbers and en masse.

Allow Women Into Trinity JCR For Debate Today

Women will be allowed to attend today's debate held in the Junior Common Room at Trinity, announced Barry Watson, president of the Trinity College Literary Institute yesterday. This is a departure from the usual Trinity tradition, which bars women from their debates.

"Resolved that this house approves of an early corporate union between the Anglican and United Churches in Canada," is the topic of the debate. Students of all colleges and of all faiths are invited, said Watson.

Supporting the resolution will be John Bovey, Trinity, and William Morris, Emmanuel. The negative side will be taken by David Ellis, Trinity, and David Wainwright, Victoria. This is a joint debate, held by Trinity and Vic, explained the Trinity Lit president.

British Program Features Colleges Hart House Glee Club Participates

By PETE BRAWLEY

The owners of sixty male voices are going to have reason to be very proud in a few week's time. Not everyone gets a chance to sing on the B.E.C.

The B.E.C. is planning a program for the Christmas season, "College Songs of the Commonwealth", and has asked the CBC to arrange the Canadian section of the program. Two universities have been asked to participate, the University of Montreal and the University of Toronto.

U. of T.'s music group, the Hart House Glee Club, which has been presenting Christmas concerts on the trans-Canada network of the C.B.C. for some years, will sing three numbers. These three will be, the Blue and White, The Old Ontario Strand and Lady Godiva.

Warden McCulley of Hart House said that these songs were respectively, "a true marching song, a more sentimental number, and a song with some qualities of originality and spirit."

In between these numbers which will be taped, a student from Victoria, Suzanne Cousland, will give a commentary. Mr. McCulley explained that with sixty males in the choir, it seemed like a good idea to have a young lady as commentator.

This section of the program will be recorded and sent to the B.E.C. for use during the Christmas season.

Warden McCulley said that this year's Glee Club is "better than ever" and working harder than ever.

BLUES' TRIP

Despite the fact that no plane is available for chartering, the Varsity Blues will still be playing in Vancouver this weekend. The team will travel on the regular TCA flights.

"They will go out Thursday morning and come back Sunday night, on the ordinary TCA runs," said Mr. Loosemore, financial secretary to the Athletic Directorate.

When asked what would happen about students planning to accompany the team to Vancouver, Mr. Loosemore observed that "if they are affluent enough, they can still make the trip", for $256.00!

International Collection Feature at Treasure Van

Treasure Van-'54 will feature ivory statuettes of the sacred Indian Trinity, Vishna, Crishna, and Sheva. These are perhaps the representatives of the Indian workmanship that most illustrate their skill. They have lavished all the time and care upon them that Michael Angelo spent on his work of Moses. These statuettes represent a tradition much similar in nature to our own, and as such are worthy of respect and interest.

But the Indian handicrafts are not entirely devoted to this transcendental sphere, though much of their work has religious significance. The pretty glass bangles, for instance, are the first thing put on the Hindu child, binding him to the earth he was born to.

Treasure Van will be held in the Debates Room at Hart House from Nov. 22 to Thursday, Nov. 25.

a new trend?

Westphalia Weekends

By MARY ALICE HUNTER

So the Varsity Blues are flying to Vancouver. This idea offers many enticing possibilities to anyone bored with the same dull old round and trivial tasks of the ordinary football weekend. This policy of transcontinental games could completely revolutionize not only football, but college life, foreign affairs, and last but not least, television.

We can see it all now. Entire fleets of airplanes will be mobilized—not for defence but for football. (The Flying Club will be thronged with members). Chartered by special cut-throats, these planes will roar across continents, laden with merry college students. The big events of the season will be the Mexico or Westphalia week-ends.

Of course it will be necessary to make a few changes in the university curriculum, but it's time that the authorities came down from their respective ivory towers, and took a more realistic view of the situation. Since it will probably be necessary to spend the entire week getting to the place for the week-end and then another week getting home, arriving back just in time to feed the cat, before leaving for the next week-end, (my that's an involved sentence, isn't it, but I don't have time to straighten it out) I would suggest that all lectures and other worthless campus activities, except of course, The Varsity, be abandoned during the football season.

Think what a cosmopolitan air it will give Toronto to have hordes of Mongols or Maoris descending upon the city. Their college songs such as: "If Genghis Khan, We Can", and outfits should be entertaining; and boomerangs on Bloor Street, and scalping on the subway will add a colourful note to our drab lives. Some of the guests might even be persuaded to perform some of their more exotic tribal dances at Hart House.

Unfortunately, like every other great plan, this idea has its drawbacks. It may ruin the pleasant state of international affairs, and will probably cause some rather odd alliances. I can see the United Nations closing shop for the day of a big game, and Malenkov hoarsely cheering:

"skdiysk Mos; skdiiskd Cow, dkslcm dksldsk Moscow." We suspect that Russia will, of all things, cheer for Western. They seem to share the same tactics and attitudes. It will also be rather a problem getting athletic interpreters to run around the field translating such comments as: "No, no, Herbert, you mustn't trample on my face," for the benefit of the players.

A Varsity student from Barrie,
Decided her aspect to vary,
For assistance she ran,
To the WUS TREASURE VAN,
And now she goes clad in a sari.

NOVEMBER 22 - 25

The Blue and White Society Announces

SPECIAL STUDENT PRICES FOR

"OKLAHOMA!"

Royal Alexandra Theatre

for the

MATINEE TO-DAY!

ALL GROUND FLOOR SEATS — $1.00

A good turnout ensures future reductions.

Box Office Opens Tomorrow

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

Saturday Nov. 27th to Saturday Dec. 4th at 8.30
Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

HART HOUSE TODAY

WEDNESDAY, 17TH NOVEMBER:

8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS! — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT. Available for members at Hall Porter's Desk.

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — NEW ART EXHIBITION FROM U.S.A. "Tools and Techniques". Also Sculpture by Rae Katz Platner (Art Gallery). Lin Cuts by Cyril Travers in Print Room adjoining.

10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).

1.10 p.m. — CAMERA CLUB COLOUR SHOW (Club Rooms). Dr. G. H. W. Lucas, President, Colour Photographic Association of Canada, showing transparencies of "Lak Superior North Shore".

4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY OPEN TO WOMEN OF THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO.

5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — 5 O'CLOCK CONCERT. James Lamont (Music Room). Women, with or without member-escorts are welcome.

5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Men and women of the University of Toronto invited (through Reading Room).

5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).

7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). Open to all members of Hart House. Prizes.

7.30 p.m. - 12.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

8.00 p.m. — ANNUAL STUDENT-STAFF CHESS MATCH (Faculty Union).

Camp WAHANOWAN Ltd.
ON LAKE COUCHICHING

NOW HIRING STAFF

Applications now being accepted for: Head Counsellor, Waterfront Staff, Arts and Crafts, Riding Instructor and Male and Female Counsellors. For information call: Ben Wise—HU. 8-0185 or Harold Nashman—WA. 3-5281.

IT'S HERE!

SKULE 5T5 NITE

AT HART HOUSE THEATRE

—with—

- the ultimate in pulchritude
- the most spectacular sets
- the finest in song
- the funniest of skits

—and—

- Liberace!

Good seats still available for tonight at

ENGINEERING STORES OR HART HOUSE BOX OFFICE

$1.25

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto

Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Asst. Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Moishe Reiter
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE C. C. Batten
NIGHT EDITOR R. D. Brown
REPORTERS: Jane Edgar, Carol Hoffman, Pete Brawley, Mike Cassidy, Pat House, Doug Stewart, Jo Patrick, Sybil Strachan, Marg Parkhill.

ASSISTANTS Ann Plaxton, Peggy Campbell

Obvious Trend

It is significant that the U.T.D.U. trials last week attracted only eight people into competition.

Naturally, the situation merits some consideration and especially in view of the fact that some $400 is included in the budget for the maintenance of debating activity.

An interesting phenomenon this year has been the increase of interest in debating on the college level. Colleges are reporting much higher attendances than in previous years.

Hart House Debates, on the other hand have not exhibited this pattern.

It would seem then, that debating on the college or interfaculty level has more support than the others.

In debating we are now getting a situation which is closely analogous to that concerning the now-defunct Radio Committee and the All-Varsity Revue, and which for a time was also true of the Music Committee.

In their genesis these organizations have sprung from interested people working hard to promote their interests. With the growth of their particular organization there has been a move to formalize it under the auspices of the SAC.

Whether this formalization came early or late in the development of any particular movement the result has nearly always been the same.

After a period of years people are filling the position on council who have not been personally identified with the organization or the original motive for the movement becomes obscured and its purpose lost.

This year the very formalization of the debating structure is making it impossible for the debating commissioner to take advantage of an obvious trend by devoting his time and energy to the promotion of college level debating.

What has been need not remain unalterable and the SAC through its debating chairman would be well to take advantage of the present tendency and leave inter-university debating alone, beyond their present commitments.

Peaceful

It is apparent that the statement of the president with regard to the future relations between this country and our neighbour to the north, is the product of much serious thought.

The president's contention carries with it the weight of reason and human empathy and in addition is supported by the apparent facts.

We are gratified that he should take such a stand on so crucial an issue.

The doctrine of "peaceful co-existence" has been the product of the lull in international activity occasioned by the temporary retirement from the scene of one John Foster Dulles.

It has been fortunate that British statesmanship has at last been allowed to take a dominant position in the fate of the world.

our readers write:

Preposterous Red-tape

The Editor,
The Varsity

Mr. A. Golden defends the "journalese", as it enables people to make "a quick appraisal of newsworthy facts". He presupposes that journalese is clear, concise, well constructed English. Now, he says in the same article: "It is far from a new event that the Varsity should come under criticism, and even an older institution that these critics should speak from personal preference rather than experience." This sentence, as it stands, does not make sense. We don't know the antecedent of the second "that". For some obscure reason "Varsity" and "and even an older institution" are separated by the verb leaving the latter without the verb, which is inexcusable. "And" is unacceptable; "or" is the preposition to be used. Then, independent ideas are connected.

A typical news story follows (November 15, p 1). "The Blue and White Society has asked Warden McCulley to call an emergency meeting of the Board of Stewards to decide whether or not a Football Dance will be held here this Saturday night, announced John McKellar last night."

I'll be damned if Hearst himself could "make a quick appraisal of news from this. By mixing subject and object, by being unbalanced and having no ordered structure, by using "whether or not", by being full of clichés, by going on and on interminably, like a languid dirty streamlet, by all that, the miserable sentence, I say, degrades the clear, concise and beautiful English language to a turgid German of a schoolboy at his worst.

So, Mr. Golden, please be not so damnably, preposterously, red-tapeishly patronizing to Mr. Olver. You see, I was able to point out only the more "striking" features, my native language being Ukrainian, ian, but Mr. Olver is very likely to be an Anglo-Saxon.

O. Piphaini, II U.C.

Po-em

Commemorating
The Successful
Conclusion Of The University Xian Mission

And was it but a week ago,
The Pagan revelled here,
Who frisked with co-eds on the lawn
And drank, till well beyond the dawn,
His irreligious beer.

He thought his righteous neighbours mad
To own Religion's thrall, Condemned the fear of gods
as bad
And had no gods (or, if he had,
He liked them, one and all.)

No one had taught him to resist
The tingling in the skin.
No mortal pleasure had he missed.
No Liberal Educationist
Had lectured him on Sin.

A week ago? How short!
How long!
How silent now the Pagan's song!

Silent, the ceremonial drums.
Head bowed in quiet prayer
And contemplating his crossed thumbs
Behold! The heavenly student comes Across the barren square.

—Jean Jacques

Free Expression

The Editor,
The Varsity

Your editorials this week have been wonderfully consistent, thoroughly objective, and with regard to the Mission entirely negative. The enlightenment which you professed concerning the true nature of the Christian Faith was ill supported by the interpretations you gave both of Scripture of Theology. Your articles, Friday, made two points:

(1) Men in high public offices, i.e., the President, should not use their prestige to promote a particular religious point of view.

Basically, however, I would not contend that when we, as a society, received as a right our freedom of religion, it was intended that we should be free to express our own beliefs. I doubt if it was intended that we should be free to express our own beliefs. I doubt if it was intended that we should be free to ignore religion altogether.

(2) You aptly quote our late and much respected Warden, on the necessity of making one's own way in the world as an individual. I could hardly agree more that this is of the utmost importance. In fact, the whole purpose of the mission was for people like you to face the claims of Jesus Christ, not on your parents' say so, but because these claims have you morally and intellectually responsible as an individual.

In conclusion, I would ask you to bear in mind this fact: That as it was fortunate for the woman taken in adultery that her accusers were not Christians, so it is paradoxical that these same hypocritical people cried "Crucify him" at one who was at least a good man.

H. Robinson, VI Wycliffe.

Tribute

The Editor,
The Varsity

While the nation was paying tribute to dead heroes, I was paying silent tribute to a living hero.

A car, making a turn on Bathurst and College Streets at about 10:00 yesterday morning, skidded, and knocked down an elderly lady. Immediately curiosity seekers flocked around. I was amazed to see several middle-aged men and women standing around with blank expressions, doing nothing to aid the victim, who was moaning on the ground.

At this moment, a university student appeared on the scene. He apparently took in the situation at a glance, for he immediately placed his lunch bag on the street, took off his overcoat (and I may add that it was a very nice overcoat) and covered the woman, and placed his notebook under her head for support. He then proceeded to comfort her.

I wish that the many who complain of lack of character in our youth could have been in the vicinity to see the confident, fine, way in which this boy went about his task.

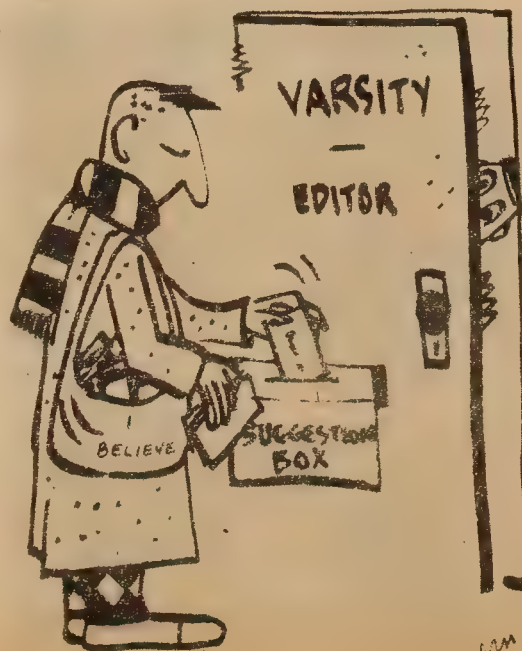

When the ambulance and police arrived and took over, this Student silently put on his coat, picked up his notebook and lunch, and proceeded to hitch a ride along College Street.

I was unable to ask this boy his name because I was on the streetcar, but whoever he is, I would like to extend to him a warm "Thank You!"

That elderly woman might well have been my mother

Trudi Shachter
II Dental Hygiene

Critic?

—Cartoon by Ern

art, music and drama

O Tempora, O Mores

By DOUG STEWART

AISLE SEAT

O. K. lahoma

It's already the night before last that I saw the Broadway Lights Inc. version of Oklahoma! at the Royal Alexandra, and that title tune is still on my mind. That's the kind of show it is.

Although this travelling company does not really whoop it up, they are quite competent and the show carries them along. Everything is just a bit on the economy side. The backdrops of the sets aren't quite big enough for the Royal Alexandra but the chorus doesn't quite make all the theatre's roccoco trappings vibrate and the orchestra was a little thin and brassy.

Patricia Marand who plays Laurey has a lovely vibrant voice and that takes her most of the way. When she sings Many a New Day and Out of My Dreams, one can quite see how her lunch hamper would be worth $53.00 of turn of the century money. Opposite her, Robert Austin is a very likable Curly although he does not match her vocally. He doesn't quite sing "rumbly like a bull-frog" as Laurey tells him in her courting by criticism, but he doesn't have enough richness and resonance to carry off the song "People will say we're in Love".

One of the best voices in the cast belongs to Jerry Cardoni, as Jud Fry. He sounded like a black villain with his deep, dark voice, he looked like a villain with his unshaven face, but still he did not seem to be a villain. Instead of being a sinister character he was "poor Jud," a fellow with a disability. In spite of this, the pace was best when he was on stage, for instance, that fantastic scene of grotesque humour in Jud's hut paped with Esquire girls.

Jerry Mann as Ali Hakim got the most comedy from his lines. Other jokes went by with a titter, but with his delivery and his mugging the belly laughs came out. Jacqueline, O'dea as Ado Annie, the girl who can't say no, just misses achieving the same effect, due to a lack of conviction. The wonder of Will Parker (Harris Hawkins) at Kansas city was certainly that of a hayseed, and with that he had all the vigor of a man who knewed what it was to be a man. A nice dancer, too.

Speaking of dancing, there was one petite girl in the chorus, Paula Waring as the child, who put all the others to shame by her vivacity and grace.

Among all the things that are right about the show, Oklahoma!, there is one thing that just don't seem fittin' to me. The song Oklahoma always seems to be the climax, the rousing finale of the show. One expects the curtain to ring down on the last joyous shout of Oklahoma, and then one remembers that, the Jud complication hasn't been cleared up yet. Oh, What a Beautiful Morning, just isn't as strong.

We were walking up from the Varsity office the other night, when who did we walk through but our old friend the Campus Ghost, Old C.G. has been around the campus since it first began, and for one who does the odd column on times and customs in days gone by, this is an acquaintance not to be overlooked. Apparently he still lives in an abandoned hip flask half buried in what used to be Taddle Creek, and at best can be described as a non-descript individual — who the hell can describe a ghost. Anyhow, we wandered up to Mr. Cole's suite at the Park Plaza and got to talking about old times. Over a couple of Zombies (sort of an appropriate thing for C.G. to imbibe) we talked about a few of the pranks that had been perpetuated in days of yore.

One of the best was about the old days at Trinity where for some reason the medical students got in a row with a butcher across the street. Seems that said butcher had a row of meat hooks outside the shop, while the med men had a stray corpse hanging around raising a hell of a smell. Next day early shoppers were greeted with the sight of a male cadaver hung up by the jaw on the largest meat hook outside the shop. "Sort of sad," said C.G. "The fellow closed up shop next week."

Then there was the time at U.C. when some of the lads led an unfortunate cow to the very top floor of the tower and left her to her fate. Seems that cows are afraid of heights, and once there she refused to budge for an entire day in spite of frantic proddings by distraught college officials.

No longer do butchers hang carcasses outside the shop, and cows are hard to come by. Now the TTC has forever ruined the possibilities of college students amusing themselves on the big red buggies. Back in the twenties, students used to ride en masse on the back veranda of the old open cars. After a few blocks the gang would start to bounce up and down, and in a few minutes the front end of the car would be flying several inches off the track. Didn't take long to bounce the car so high that it would leap off the track completely and pursue its own course.

Well, initiations have toned down a lot in the last few years, and we couldn't think of a thing that was worth mentioning to C.G. in this respect. He recalled, however, something of which we had never heard before. He wasn't sure that it happened at Toronto, but it seems that once someone had shown himself deserving of a really rough time. He was taken to the outskirts of town and tied to an unused railway track right next to one over which a train ran every hour. The boys left him to his fate, and returned in an hour. "Well, he got what he had coming to him," said C.G. "When the lads came back they found he had died of a heart attack."

Stars of Skule Knight

These six stars of Skule Nite 1955 strike a position before the all-seeing Varsity camera. Skule Nite opens tonight in Hart House and continues until the end of this week. Tickets are still available for Wednesday and Thursday nights. Friday and Saturday nights are both sold out.

Callboard

ART

In Hart House Art Gallery there is a new exhibit from U.S.A. of tools and techniques.

Also starting this week is the Canadian Group at the Art Gallery of Toronto.

Charles Redfern is showing some Italian watercolours at the Picture Loan Society.

The Scandinavian exhibit moves into the last lap at the Royal Ontario Museum. Catalogues are again available.

DRAMA

The infant travelling company of that favourite, Oklahoma! is at the Royal Alexandra all this week. To be followed by a chance to get Gertie's Garters at half price.

T. S. Eliot's latest play The Confidential Clerk opened at the Crest last night. The cast includes Frances Hyland, Donald Davis and Douglas Rain.

Tickets for A Midsummer Night's Dream are quickly becoming scarce. Starting December 14th in the local opera house, Maple Leaf Gardens.

Some people saw Saint Joan as produced by the Canadian Play-ers in Oshawa. Those who didn't, get a second chance when the company plays at Hamilton's Palace Theatre on November 22-23.

MUSIC

To-night in the Conservatory Concert Hall, Elie Spivak, violinist and Leslie Holmes, baritone of the faculty of the Royal Con will give a concert. It is sponsored by the junior committee of the Conservatory's Alumni Association.

Friday evening the Gregorian Association under Dr. Healey Willan will hold their annual festival service in the church of St. Mary Magdalene. Plain-song is not only sung by German monks.

Thursday afternoon at 4:30 in the staff lounge of the Mech. Building Bark Bakker will present another program from the Carnegie Record Collection. The program: Vaughan Williams—Fantasy on Tullis; Wagner—Götterdämmerung Rhine Journey; Mahler—Ruckert Songs (with Ferrier) and Brahms—Symphony No. 3.

A week this Saturday, the 28th of November, the Hart House Glee Club presents its annual tri-color concert. The guest choirs this year are the St. George's Cathedral Choir of Kingston and the Buffalo State Teacher's Choir. Tickets cost $1.25.

James Lamond, tenor will sing at the Hart House Wednesday concert this afternoon at five o'clock. His program includes songs by Dowland Purcell, Mendelssohn, Brahms, Vaughan-Williams and Donizetti. The next Wednesday 5 o'clock concert will be on Dec. 1st and the artist is Paul Helmer, pianist. The concert is bi-sexual.

—W. R. M.

The Elman Violin

One day in the year 1905, the famous Russian composer Alexander Glazounoff hurried over to the Conservatory in St. Petersburg with a brand new manuscript under his arm. When he reached the studio of Professor Leopold Auer—perhaps the most eminent of all violin pedagogues—Glazounoff was assailed by a sound which he had never heard before: a rich golden tone as melodious and sticky as honey. The player was a prodigious youth of 15 called Mischa Elman.

Glazounoff, so the anecdote goes, turned to Auer whom he had commissioned to give the premiere performance of his D minor violin concerto, and asked whether the young Elman might be permitted to play it instead.

Auer graciously agreed and on the night of October 17, 1905, the violinist, playing his first concert in England, gave the concerto its first public performance.

Since then, Mischa Elman has played hundreds of concerts all over the world—including several trips to Toronto—and has delighted thousands if not millions of listeners.

This week, in his 63rd year, Elman was back in Toronto. When he was last here, about four years ago, he had glided superbly through the difficult Tschalkovsky concerto with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and he had been called back six times to acknowledge a thunderous ovation.

Last Monday night, his recital at Massey Hall was nearly as impressive. Under sponsorship of the International Artists series he slipped deftly through a lengthy recital-program of eight separate works and three encores.

His playing of the flamboyant Symphonie Espagnole of Lalo was magnificent. The tone was solid and mellow or delicate and sweet as the occasion demanded. If there were some in the audience who thought that craftsman Elman's chronic habit of taking too great liberties in rubato was displeasing, they could not deny that the effect was novel.

Mr. Elman proved that he is the direct antithesis of the "cold" and "detached" technical wizard who remains aloof from his subject. From the first firm strokes of his bow in the opening measure of Handel's Sonata in F major, it seemed to be Elman's inspiration and personality which contributed as much to the interpretation as an impeccable technique . . . for Elman is a showman as much as a violinist.

The Beethoven Sonata in F Major (the Spring) gave ample opportunity to accompanist Joseph Siegel to display his virtuosity but he often succeeded rather annoyingly in drowning out Mr. Elman's part.

Other works played on Mr. Elman's program included a Sonatina—a distinctly modern composition—by Werner Josten, Ysaye's Reve d'Enfant with muted strings, Tschalkovsky's Scherzo, the Yemenite Wedding Dance by Lavry and the intensely technical Polonaise Brillante in D Major by Wieniawski.

—Mike Penagety

ST. MIKE'S CHOP DOWN WOODMEN

Speaking OF SPORT

BY JOHN WILSON

Next week, while the Blues are preparing for their final assault on the Yates Cup, and the Eastern and Western pro champions are shifting into high gear for Canada's biggest athletic attraction, the Grey Cup game; the four best football teams on the campus will square off against each other to decide this season's resting place for the Mulock Cup.

First competed for in the fall of 1894, the Mulock Cup is probably Canada's oldest football trophy, even older than Lord Grey's historic mug. The trophy was donated to the University of Toronto that year by the late Sir William Mulock, Chancellor of the University from 1924 until his death in 1944. Sir William was always a keen supporter of Varsity athletics and made it a point to present his trophy in person at the close of each Interfaculty season.

This year's semi-finalists will be Senior SPS, Victoria, St. Mike's and Trinity. The first three are perennial post-season teams, and were all in the playoffs last fall, while the Red and Black squad from Trinity have made several appearances in the last few years. Victoria have made the best showing in the sixty years of Mulock competition, carrying the precious silverware home sixteen times in all. Skule are next best with eleven championships and were the titlists last year. St. Mike's have won the Mulock Cup three times, while Trinity have only two wins to their credit.

The case for a Group II club taking the title is not too good over the years, although Forestry and Trinity fought it out on the back campus in 1950 in about two feet of snow. That was the year that the CRU decided to purchase their famous tarpaulin for Varsity Stadium. In 1940 snow also caused trouble, and Junior and Senior Skule were forced to share the Mulock Cup for a season. That was the only year in which a tie has occurred for the championship.

Although the Mulock Cup final has never rivalled the Grey Cup classic for color, it is still the feature attraction of the Interfaculty athletic year. In 1948 perhaps the most colorful game of all was held, when St. Mike's last won the title, topping Vic 19-12. At that game there were two bands, numerous cheerleaders, and organized cheering sections, all of which was viewed by some 6,000 fans.

Last fall was the sixtieth running of the historic trophy, the Diamond Jubilee of Mulock Cup competition. The power-packed Engineers shut out the Double Blue of St. Mike's 17-0 in last year's final, and there is a good possibility that the Skulemen may repeat again this season for their twelfth victory. A great deal hinges on this afternoon's contest between Vic and SPS, and the winner will likely carry the best odds into next week's playoffs.

From the Blue Room . . . Capable captain of this year's Hockey Blues is Dave "Red" Stephen, who captained the Blues last season—also Don Cossar and Lou Appleby are assistant captains. . . . This afternoon from five until seven o'clock, Tom Riley will conduct a hockey clinic for the benefit of all Interfaculty referees in Varsity Arena. St. Mike's and UC will provide the demonstration play situations. A rule discussion will be held in the Fencing Room in Hart House on Friday at 1.00 . . . Word from London says Gino Fracas will be attending OCE next fall.

Junior Skule Tramples Dents 16-7

BY MAX ROSENTHAL

Due to the efforts of a strong passing attack the junior Engineers closed the football season yesterday by defeating Dents, 16-7. The first half of the game was unexciting as neither team seemed to be able to organize an effective attack. On a few occasions when Skule appeared to be nearing pay-off territory the Dentsmen were able to stop them. Dents only scoring threat was short-lived and resulted in the only point of the half, a single by Don O'Connor.

In the third quarter Dud Kearney, quarterback of Skule, opened up with a passing attack from his own 40-yard line. His main targets were Stu Eccles and Hugh Clark; his final target was Don Meyer who scored Skule's first touchdown. The convert was not good.

Skule's second score came about as a result of Jim Campbell's interception of a pass at the Dents 40. From here Kearney fired many short, bullet-like passes over the centre and flat passes to the side. His final pass to Eccles was good for the major. Art Burns converted to make the score 11-1.

Throughout the game Dents knocked on the door a few times, but could not penetrate. An interception by Jim Fawcett in the first half put the dentists in an excellent scoring position. But their hopes did not materialize until the last quarter. Starting from the mid-field after a long plunge and pass, Dents were successful in moving the ball to the three-yard line. From here Ray Shunock went over for the score. Jim Louks converted. The score was now 11-7 for Skule.

From here until the last few minutes of play the ball exchanged hands quite frequently. Dents, in a desperate effort to score a winning touchdown, passed many times, but without success. Their last hopes for a score vanished when Skule gained possession of the ball and "ate up" the time. In fact, Skule ended the game by scoring once more. Kearney got this one.

Forestry Bows To Irish Fusco, MacIntyre Shine

By JOHN VOJTECH

Forestry bowed to a merciless onslaught of St. Michael's Collage. Jude Fusco led the St. Mike's football team to victory yesterday as the fighting Irish routed the Foresters 29-0. It was the second largest score gained by any team this year in intramural competition. Fusco scored two touchdowns to spark the Irish into second place in the Group II standings. They will play the winner of tomorrow's Skule-Vic game in the semi-finals.

The Irish scored on the third play of the game as a bad snap by the Foresters on their third down resulted in a bad pass being thrown into the arms of McKinney who romped over for the Irish score. Ahearn converted.

A Renzetti-Fusco pass resulted in a touchdown after St. Mike's had battled down to the Forestry thirty. In the second quarter Renzetti passed from a fake kick position to Fusco who scored standing up. Ahearn converted.

As the half progressed through its last three minutes, McClelland came up with some thrilling forty yard passes to various Foresters. A typical example of a Forester pass was that once MacIntyre apparently had knocked a pass down, but instead of the ball going down, it found its way uncannily into the arms of Andrews of Forestry.

The brilliant line play of Irishmen Donovan, Driscoll, Riordan and Dubois kept the Foresters from getting organized time and time again. The Foresters just crumbled before the charging Irish line.

A handoff from O'Connor to MacIntyre resulted in an Irish major as he twisted and turned right through the centre of the Foresters line from the Foresters twenty-five.

Ollie Babirad kicked off for St. Mike's after MacIntyre's major, and the ball was sent sailing by the left-footed kicker into the Forestry goal zone. The St. Michael's forward line trapped the Forester behind the line for another point. Hemmed deep down in their own territory Forestry fumbled and three St. Michael players handled the ball before Kosterski picked the ball up and ran it for another major. Ahearn converted.

Forestry played the game as though they were there in body only. Their tackling was terrible and it often took three or four men to bring down an Irishman. The Irish, on the other hand, when they hit a Forester, you could feel it on the sidelines.

Sprague and Imada were the best Forestry players as they tried to get a Forestry attack going. In the last minutes of the game McClelland got off some terrific long passes, but they went astray as the Irish defenders of Connerty, O'Connor and Repath kept the Foresters from getting near the ball.

St. Mike's played without ace half back Leo McGuigan and Priestner. McGuigan broke his jaw in two places in the last game against Dentistry. St. Mike's in intramural play have not been scored upon since the first game of the season which they lost 7-6 to Trinity.

Hockey Blues at Work Return Game for Dukes

The Varsity Hockey Blues will play their second exhibition game of the young season tonight in Varsity Arena at 8:15. The OHA Junior "A" Marlboros will be the visitors in this game, still smarting from the 2-2 deadlock they gained with the Blues in Dixie Arena two weeks ago.

The Varsity team went through a fast scrimmage in last night's practice, with the first line of Clare Fisher, Dave Reid, and Paul Knox shining. Coach Jack Kennedy will dress four forward lines and four defencemen for tonight's clash with the Marlies. Ernie Bodnar, Don Cossar, and Johnny Akitt are another combination, while captain Red Stephen centres John Adams and ex-Marlie Dave Jackson. Mert Wright, Tom Riley, and Ken Lawson make up the other line for this second contest. With such a formidable array of talent, Kennedy will be hard put to pare the squad down to seventeen men.

John Tolton, Bill Moreau, Sam Ashton and Lou Appleby will patrol the blueline, while Hugh Currie will handle the netminding duties along with Con Lister. Admission to the game is free; the Marlies will be out for blood after the last game, and an excellent exhibition of hockey should be the result.

Two-way Star for Blues Fullback and Linebacker Sixty-minute Man Kimoff

Speed and agility are important factors that have made Bob Kimoff one of the outstanding performers of the Blue squad.

Four years ago Bob came from East York with the reputation of being the best prospect to come out of high school ranks at that time.

Playing several years for the fabulous East York Goliaths Bob led his team to the finals on two occasions. During one of those years East York was chosen the best high school team and the leading scorer of that team was Bob Kimoff.

Six foot in stature, this well-built fullback joined the ranks of the Intermediates in his first Engineering year. With steady improvement he became a skilled workman also in the defensive linebacker position.

The following year Bob moved up to the Blue ranks. He shared the fullback duties with Steve Oneschuk and following an injury to Steve took over the offensive play. Last year, because of an injury, Bob was sidelined for the greater part of the football season.

This year, his second full year with the Blues, Bob has been used extensively to spell off Phil Muntz. He has also been used quite effectively as a defensive linebacker.

Kimoff

Woods

(See Page 7)

Emman Drops Knox In Semis

Emmanuel defeated Knox 2-0 in a soccer semi-final contest held yesterday on the front campus. Jim Davies and Irving Fraser scored for Emmanuel to stay in the hunt for the soccer championship. Emmanuel will play the winner of the Forestry-Law game which will be held tomorrow, for the championship.

There were two games played in volleyball yesterday and Med. I Yr. took two from UC III by scores of 15-9 and 15-13. UC V took a match from Trinity B's 15-1, 8-15, and 15-11.

SPS I defaulted to UC I in lacrosse action. The intramural office, as well as everyone else, takes a dim view towards a team which fails to show up for its last game of the season because the players feel they are going to lose anyway. Where's that Skule spirit?

STANDINGS

FOOTBALL

Group	I	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Vic	5	5	0	0	101	11	10
SPS I	5	4	1	0	95	25	8
Meds	6	2	4	0	38	64	4
UC	6	0	6	0	15	149	0

Group II

Trinity	4	4	0	0	59	11	8
S.M.C.	4	3	1	0	78	7	6
SPS II	4	2	2	0	33	46	4
Dents	4	1	3	0	16	49	2
For.	4	0	4	0	5	78	0

SOCCER

FINAL STANDINGS

Division I

Group	I	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
UC	6	4	1	1	9
Vic	6	4	2	0	8
Trin. A	6	3	2	1	7
Sr. SPS	6	0	6	0	0

Group II

Sr. Meds	6	3	1	2	8
Jr. SPS	6	2	2	2	6
S.M.C.	6	1	3	2	4

Group III

Dents	6	4	1	1	9
Pre-Meds	6	2	3	1	5
Trin. B	6	1	3	2	4

Division II

Forestry	6	3	0	3	9
Emmanuel	6	4	1	1	9
Knox	6	4	2	0	8
Law	6	3	2	1	7
Arch.	6	2	4	0	4
Wye.	6	1	4	1	3
Pharm.	6	1	5	0	2

LACROSSE

Division I

Group	I	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
UC I	6	6	0	0	12
Meds I	5	3	2	0	6
SPS I	6	2	4	0	4
Vic I	5	0	5	0	0

Group II

SMC A	5	5	0	0	10
Dent. A	5	3	2	0	6
Trin. A	5	1	4	0	2
Meds II	5	1	4	0	2

Group III

SPS III	5	5	0	0	10
SPS II	5	2	2	1	5
Meds IV	5	1	3	1	3
Meds III	5	0	3	2	2

Group IV

UC II	4	4	0	0	8
Vic II	5	3	2	0	6
Meds V	5	2	3	0	4
SPS IV	4	0	4	0	0

Group V

SMC B	4	4	0	0	8
Dents B	3	2	1	0	4
SPS V	5	2	3	0	4
Meds VI	4	0	4	0	0

Division II

Law	6	6	0	0	12
Pharm. A	4	3	1	0	6
For.	6	2	4	0	4
Knox	6	2	4	0	4
Pharm. B	4	0	4	0	0

Even McGill Beat UBC

Varsity Blues are hard at work preparing for their trip out to Vancouver to play the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in a preview to the Canadian College Championship. While Queen's University Golden Gaels and the Mustangs of Western battle in Varsity Stadium, the Blues, with a free weekend, go west.

For the match Varsity is taking only 26 of their players while the rest have a rest to ready them for the Yates Cup finale. Last night the Blues watched films of their come-back victory over the powerful Golden Gaels and learned of strength they didn't seem to have in the game. The films showed some good plays by George Stulac and, in general, all along the line. This power will be needed when the Blues meet the Intercollegiate opponents in the final a week Saturday. No injuries trouble the Blues and none are likely to be suffered against the Thunderbirds, since the McGill Redmen, softies of the League in these parts, managed to trounce the Western team in a pre-season match last fall. The Blues leave for Vancouver Thursday morning and will likely need all of Friday to rest after the arduous trip by plane.

Blue's Mighty Mouse

Football, to the average Canadian Fan, is a sport for big men, rambling behemoths, resembling knights of old in their armour. Last Saturday, however, it was apparent to even the most casual spectator that Stewart and Kocman were two very potent footballers.

The Mighty Mite on the Varsity squad this year is that speedy little scatback, Ross Woods. Only 5' 9" tall and weighing a mere 155 pounds, he doesn't look much like an athlete. In this case, appearances are deceiving. Ross is one of the fastest men on the team, and he makes good use of his speed at his defensive safety spot. He is also a tricky pass receiver.

North Toronto Collegiate claims credit for sending this game competitor to Varsity. He spent two seasons on the Intermediates; an ankle injury hampering his chances from moving up. This year, it looked as though Al Haig's departure would open the way for Ross to make the Blue squad as regular kicker, but an improved Steve Oneschuk took care of that chore.

Not content with football alone, "Woody" is also a standout forward on the Blues hockey team. Coach Kennedy will be anticipating his return to the blades after the Yates Cup is won.

Ross is twenty-two and a third year Arts student with a burning ambition to make a starting spot on the big Blue team.

UC Frosh Win Fourth In Row

U.C. freshmen extended their winning streak to four straight games at U.T.S. last night, trouncing VIC I 24-7.

In the first quarter the checking was close, and the shooting wild, as both clubs remained scoreless.

In the second, U.C. began to tally, both Marjorie Hoosey and Ann Miller good for four. Vic's forwards couldn't seem to penetrate the strong U.C. defense, and VIC remained scoreless. The half time score, 11-0 for U.C.

The pace increased in the second half, with both teams shooting well, and checking closely. However, the U.C. squad proved too strong and the final score was 24-7. For our money, this is the best freshie club in the league.

BRIDGE INSTRUCTION

Florence Hudson Johnson
Certified National Master Teacher
Twice Winner Of
Canadian National Championships
Special Classes for Varsity and Upper School students.
STUDENT RATES
LL. 7145 WA. 2-9227

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER—Division II Semi-Final North 12:30—Forestry vs. Law
Roy Williams

FOOTBALL	East 3:30	Vic. vs. SPS I—Fine, Dolman, McLean
LACROSSE	1:00	U.C. II vs. SPS IV—Urquhart, Eagleson
	4:00	Trin. A vs. Med. II—Sukmanowski, Brown
	6:30	SPS V vs. Dent. B—Graham, Smela
	7:30	St. M. A vs. Dent. A—Graham, Smela
	1:00	St. M. A vs. Jr. SPS A—Grosfield
	4:00	Pre-Med. IB vs. St. M. D—Kiplinlak
	5:00	Enman. vs. Arch. A—Kiplinlak
	6:00	Pre-Med. IIB vs. Dent. C—Kiplinlak
	7:00	For. A vs. Knox. A—Diemer
	8:00	Pharm. B vs. Arch. B—Diemer
	7:00	SPS V vs. Dent. B

VOLLEYBALL

SQUASH

A Career In METEOROLOGY

IF YOU HAVE A 1955 DEGREE IN . . .
Mathematics and Physics, Applied Mathematics, Engineering Physics — earn $280 a month while studying for Master's degree in Meteorology, then $332 to $485 as a Professional Meteorologist in forecasting, research or climatology.
OR.
Bachelor degree in Arts, Science or Engineering (with credits in Physics and Mathematics), earn $280 to $385 a month as a Professional Meteorologist at military or aviation forecast offices.

Opportunity for Overseas Posting

Details and application forms at nearest Civil Service Commission Office or Placement Bureau of your university.
Quote No. 55-174

Blue and White FOOTBALL DANCE

with WESTERN vs. QUEENS

Hart House SATURDAY, NOV. 20th

A limited number of tickets are available in Toronto at $2.00 per couple at

SAC OFFICE

Varsity Stadium

Western vs. Queens SEMI-FINAL PLAYOFF

SATURDAY, NOV. 20th . . . AT 1:30 P.M.

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES

By arrangement with Queen's and Western, Varsity coupon book holders may purchase reserved seat tickets in a portion of the regular student section at the special price of $1.00. These are on sale at the Athletic Office INSIDE COUNTER, and are available from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday to Friday. Coupon book holders may purchase additional tickets to their own by presenting the coupon books of their friends; and book holders may purchase a ticket for a non-student beside their own at full price if so desired.

COUPON MUST BE PRESENTED IN ORDER TO OBTAIN SPECIAL RATE.

Regular reserved seat tickets are on sale at Box Office, Athletic Office, Hart House, $2.50, $2.00, $1.50.

CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION

Program for Thursday, Nov. 18, 4:30 p.m.
MECHANICS BUILDING
(Staff Lounge, 3rd Floor)
Fantasia on Tullis — Vaughan Williams.
Gottterdammerung Rhine Journey — Wagner.
Ruckert Songs — Mahler. (Kathleen Ferrier)
Symphony No. 3 in F — Brahms.
Refreshments — All Welcome
Curator: Bard Bakker
(11 Trin.)—HU. 8-8162

Career Planning

Detailed information supplied upon request.
CANADIAN PERSONNEL CONSULTANTS
134 Bloor St. West, WA. 1-6651

Empress Bridge Studio

Rubber Bridge every Afternoon and Evening
Free Instructions for College Students
137 AVENUE ROAD
WA. 2-1426

"For a mild cigarette... Smoke a fresh cigarette!"

SWEET CAPS

Always fresh and TRULY MILD!

"Only a fresh cigarette can be truly mild."

Since 1887, Canada's First Cigarette

CORK or PLAIN.

CUP

Runneth Over

by DOUG STEWART

Vancouver—UBC held its annual homecoming week-end several weeks ago. The most interesting thing in the story is the fact that graduates actually had something to come home to. They were given a party on Friday evening at the Faculty Club, a dinner on Saturday, and a monster reception after the game. We don't like to criticize our own ivory tower, but this makes us stop and think . . .

Morgantown, Virginia—Students from the University of West Virginia will broadcast two fifteen minute programs over a local station. One show will feature campus news and interviews with people making the news. The other will consist of interviews of various professors on selected controversial topics.

Seems the only campus paper to include the odd joke is the Saskatchewan Sheaf. There was a lull in the last column that a vote of censure on their selections was pending. We hope not. Let's we hear from them no more, here is an example:

"Honey, ah loves yo' bathin suit!"
"Sho' nuff!"
"Man, it sho' does!"

Saskatchewan—A small add in a newspaper recently brought a terrific response. "What every young girl should know best before marriage", it read. "Profusely illustrated. Explicit instructions. Sent in a plain wrapper".

Dozens of eager souls requested the volume. Every one of them received a well illustrated cook book.

In Saint John, Lord Beaverbrook announced new arrangements for his scholarships under the Beaverbrook Foundation.

Under the new system, fifteen scholarships a year will be available to New Brunswick residents at any degree-granting university in this province, or at major universities across Canada. Twelve scholarships were previously awarded. The new awards will be for $600 a year, an increase of $100 over the old.

Fifteen overseas scholarships are now available, an increase of five. They will be tenable at any university in England, Wales and Scotland.

... And finally, a Queen's man reports on his girl: "She was the kind of girl you would take home to mother, if you could trust father."

One-Turreted Tower

This is a picture of UC's tower, which dominates the front campus with its one-peaked turret. No body knows why the tower has just one turret on the top of it—the builders may have run out of money, the contractor may have been mad at the architect, or it may be that it was intended that way. In any event, University College is said to be one of the finest examples of Norman Romanesque

VARSITY

All Varsity reporters are requested to make their appearance in the Varsity offices daily between the hours of one and two to pick up daily assignments.

The Varsity still has some openings on its staff for reporters, make-up assistants, and other positions. No experience is necessary—you'll get all the experience you'll ever want on The Varsity.

There are plans afoot for a party this weekend, so all Varsityites please drop in to learn the gory details.

—VSP by Ed. Hoshkiw

Workshop can be Source of Composers

"There is a source close at hand on which campus drama groups can draw for music for their production." This statement was made by Leon Major and Milton Barnes following the University Drama Festival, in which live music was used to accompany the plays. The Composers Workshop at the Conservatory is willing and able to provide scores, and directors should avail themselves of its services, said Major. Too often, he said, people forget that the Conservatory is an integral part of the University: the relation between them should be developed.

Major and Barnes worked together as director and composer on the UC play in last year's drama festival — the first experience, said Major. For the moment here along those lines. They felt that this was a success, also their next collaboration, Miss Julie.

Live music for plays is of mutual benefit to composer and composer it provides valuable experience and chance for recognition; for the director it can lift both actors and audience into the mood of the play. Frances Hyland in her adjudication of the festival seemed to feel that the music did much to create and sustain atmosphere.

The combination of music and drama may not be conventional, but, said Major, we are trying to build a Canadian theatre, and "you can never build anything new by conventions."

Any difficulties in the new experiment will be ironed out by experience they felt sure. Providing musicians might be the worst difficulty, but faculties which could not afford professional ones could make some arrangement with the University Orchestra or with their own talent.

TORONTONENSIS

- FILL IN BIOGRAPHY CARDS
- PLACE YOUR ORDER NOW

CRINOLINES

From 3 and 4 dollars . . . long and short . . .

all shapes and sizes.

HELMAR

46 ST. GEORGE

WA. 1-5978

Improve Your Reading and Studying Ability

IMPROVE CONCENTRATION, COMPREHENSION AND STUDY HABITS, WHILE READING 100% FASTER.

Probably eight out of ten students are poor readers — poor by comparison with the greater ability they can readily develop. This is why many of you find it extremely difficult to cover all the reading material you should or would like to read.

Recognizing that their problem was an under-developed reading ability many students have taken or are taking our Reading Improvement Course. This short course will improve reading skill by one hundred per cent. No one needs to stress the value of such improvement.

These students have told us that the cost of training is the main reason most of you have not done something about your reading problem. We understand your financial problem and have reduced our fee by $20.00 for students. Unfortunately we cannot reduce it further and still maintain the important principle of individual instruction. However, we can do two things.

1. We have instituted a new Student Payment Plan which will allow you until April 30th to complete payment.
2. Those taking the course may earn in spare time work with us, part, all or more than the cost of instruction.

Now, the only problem should be our limited training facilities. We will accept as many registrations as we can, but again because individual instruction is so important to reading improvement we can handle only a limited number. We suggest therefore, that, today or tomorrow, you take the five or ten minute walk to our office for further information and/or registration.

THE READING INSTITUTE

33 Avenue Road

WA. 4-3331

EATON'S

"Study Helps"

- HUNTING mckinnon
- Lindsay
- DRESS macdonald
- HUNTING mackenzie

Christmas exams being what they are — and when they are — we think these bright tartan slacks might be solid morale builders! Authentic all-wool tartans, well-cut in trim, cuffed slacks with self belt and slash pockets! Sizes 10 to 16, and priced to appeal to any Scotsman's heart

7.95

Phone TR. 5111

THE YOUNG TORONTO SHOP — EATON'S — Main Store
Fourth Floor (Dept. 211)

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

Hoskin Bailey Bridge

—Photo Courtesy of Telegram

unearthly bridges

Wycliffe Tries

By JO THOMPSON

As all good Anglicans know, a long-standing but good-natured feud between Wycliffe and Trinity Colleges has been going on for many a moon. An interchange of practical (but exceedingly undignified) jokes have marked the relationship between High and Low Churchmen. Currently Wycliffe theologists are ahead.

Last year's high jinks began when Trinity High Churchmen mischievously lit some incense in Wycliffe Chapel. The undergrads of Wycliffe promptly retaliated by filling in Trinity's front door with bricks conveniently provided by the half-built Trinity Chapel.

This was not all, for shortly after this dastardly deed, the men of Trinity revenged themselves by painting the toilet seats in Wycliffe with slow-drying varnish.

But, as of yesterday morning, Wycliffe was one up on the Trinitonians. By 4 a.m., 18 weary but exhilarated Wycliffe theologists had completed a "Bailey Bridge" across Hoskins Ave., directly in front of Trinity and appropriately built with Trinity goal posts, wire, steel bars, and rope obligingly supplied by a liberal-minded Trinity man.

From the bridge hung a sign which read: "John Wycliffe and Son Construction Co. — High Bridges and Low Churches our Specialty."

University officials unofficially commended the improvised bridge as a good safety measure for the dangerous crossing, but saw to it that university groundsmen had it removed by noon.

Debate Teams Tackle German Problem Inter-University Meet Begins Monday

Should Germany be re-armed?

A two-man debating team from Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., will be supporting the rearmament proposal when they arrive here Monday to meet a University of Toronto team in the first inter-university debating match this semester.

Gordon Hurlburt, chairman of the University of Toronto Debating Union said the debate would be conducted in "parliamentary fashion" with members of the audience being given opportunity to participate.

The debate will be held in the Law School reading room at 8 p.m., with Professor Friedman taking the speaker's chair.

University of Toronto debaters for the international match will be Norman Stoner and Stanley Schiff, both U of T law students.

Hurlburt said last night that women students would be admitted to the debate.

In the inter-faculty debating field a debate is slated for today between University College Women and the Law school. The debate will be held at 4 p.m., in the law school. The resolution: it's a women's world.

Hurlburt said that a debate would be held soon between the School of Practical Science and St. Joseph's women and also be-

Injury

Police reported today that the condition of a University of Toronto Press messenger boy who was injured when he fell off a bicycle outside McLennan Hall yesterday was satisfactory. He was taken to hospital by automobile.

$64,500 Total Donation Student, Research Aid Announced by President

Donations totaling $64,500 have been given to the University of Toronto from various sources which were announced recently by President Sidney Smith.

Gifts from two widows of professors were among the donations. Mrs. E. A. Urwick gave $10,000 for the purpose of continuing the Urwick bursaries in Social and Philosophical Studies and the Honour Sociology course after her death. A scholarship in the School of Social Work, which her husband directed for ten years, is also donated by Mrs. Urwick.

A gift of $4,000 to set up a prize in the Chemistry and Physics honour course was given by Mrs. F. B. Kenrick in memory of her late husband, Professor Kenrick.

A bequest of $24,584 will be used for a fellowship in post-graduate work under the will of the late Robert J. Mahony. The scholarship will be available to University College male graduates.

The department of Physics will receive $7,000 a year for five years by Canadian Industries Limited, for the purpose of research work. Fine Chemicals of Canada Limited has donated $4,400 to be used for scholarships, ment of Pharmacology.

A third year student in Geological Sciences or Applied Geology will receive $250 from a fund established by graduates and friends of Professor Alexander MacLean.

The Dr. Mendel Nevin Fellowship in Dental Anaesthesia will amount to $3,000, the gift of Mrs. Mendel Nevin.

Further gifts amounting to $8,400 to be used for scholarships, bursaries and research were donated from various sources.

Skull, Bones and Teeth Edify Attest Club Anthropologists

An array of skulls greeted the members of the U of T Anthropology Club who gathered last night to hear Mr. Rufus Churcher speak on "Early Man in Africa". Mr. Churcher used the skulls to demonstrate the differences between these "ape-men"; modern man, and modern apes, monkeys, and baboons. Mr. Churcher, who is a graduate of Oxford and the University of Natal, and is now studying for his Ph.D. at Toronto, has done research with the anthropologists of South Africa.

The ape men are approximately a million years old. Three contemporaneous species have been identified, said Mr. Churcher in his address, although only one type could be called a "true-man". However all three men walked in an upright position, somewhat resembling that of modern man.

Mr. Churcher outlined the circumstances under which the deposits of skulls, jaws, and other bones had been found by the anthropologists Mr. Robinson and Dr. Broome. The bones were found at various sites but usually in the same geological layer. One deposit was discovered by examining the contents of a schoolboy's pockets which contained several ancient teeth the boy had hacked from their position in the rock.

The remains of these ancient men were discovered with skulls of many varieties of animals collected in deposits in caves. Questions raised by some of the peculiar conditions in which the bones were apparently first buried, have not been answered, said the speaker. Mr. Churcher added that the conical holes found in one skull suggest to anthropologists the first murder on record.

Trinity Square Dancing Set Are Entered at Winter Fair

For the second year in succession, Trinity College is entering a set in the national square dancing competition at the Royal Winter Fair.

The competition, which has been in process all week, will test the skill of square dance teams from the various parts of Canada and the United States. Every night this week, preliminary trials have been held. The set from Trinity will be put through their paces tonight at 8.00, West annex of the Coliseum and if they succeed in reaching the finals of the competition, they will compete for the Canada Packer's Trophy on Saturday afternoon.

The winning sets will do a demonstration dance in the coliseum that night in the main ring as part of the festivities for the horse show.

Square dancing generally done is a "seedy sport" said one of the dancers. But competition dancing is much more polished.

Last year there was only one person from the University who came down to the "Royal" to watch them, and he arrived late. The dancers are hoping for a better turnout of support this year.

Slavic Circle Russian Tempo Music Program

Second meeting this term of the newly-formed University Slavic Circle will be held today, featuring a talk by Professor L. I. Strakhofsky, Russian-born historian-poet and member of the university faculty.

Dr. Strakhofsky will discuss the "Big Five" of Russian music — Moussorgsky, Rimski-Korsakov, Cui, Borodin and Balakireff.

The gathering will also feature a film "Moussorgsky" and a group of Russian songs by a Russian composer, now living in New York.

Church Union Rejected

Union of the United and Anglican churches was turned down in principle here yesterday at a Victoria — Trinity debate held in the Junior Common Room of Trinity College.

"Debate of this kind is indicative of the feeling being aroused on the subject," said Bill Morris of Emmanuel college, "and it is to be hoped that debates such as these will tend to clarify the real issues so that an organic union will be effected as soon as possible."

"The Anglican Church serves as a bridge between the Protestant and Roman Catholic churches," said David Wainwright, Victoria, first opposition speaker.

"In opposing an early union he pointed to fundamental differences such as "the alcoholic beverage issue."

"Liquor," said Wainwright, "like girls, guns, and automobiles is an evil only when misused. We must be cautious in making structural changes," he finally warned, "and must guard against being bullied into church union before these differences can be resolved."

"Union must come about through spiritual, not worldly, manifestations," said J. Bovey, Trinity, second government speaker.

Dave Ellis, Trinity, said "The United Church, is unwilling to modify its approach to union." "A union of the Anglican and United churches would weaken the cause of Christianity in Canada," he concluded.

Traffic Problem?

—Cartoon by JOS WELLER

Canada's Foreign Trade Service

offers attractive and rewarding careers

to

UNIVERSITY GRADUATES

CANADIAN FOREIGN TRADE OFFICES

located in

Athens
Boston
Caracas
Detroit
Guatemala
Chicago
New York
New Orleans
Santiago
Rio de Janeiro
Sao Paulo
Bonn
Rome
Paris
Montevideo
Buenos Aires
Sydney
Melbourne
Belfast
Bogota
Havana
Ciudad Trujillo
Hong Kong
New Delhi
Bombay
Djakarta
Dublin
Kingston
Port-of-Spain
Copenhagen
Stockholm
Bern
London
Liverpool
Leopoldville
Oslo
The Hague
Brussels
Tokyo
Cairo
Singapore
St. John's
Vancouver
Ottawa
Kobe Beirut
Mexico City
Wellington
Korachi
Lima Manila
Lisbon
Johannesburg
Cape Town
Madrid
Washington

Trade Commissioners travel widely and may serve in any of these cities.

Few careers offer the University graduate fuller scope for intelligent use of imagination and initiative — or greater rewards in personal satisfaction and achievement.

Salaries comparable with other careers are supplemented by representational and cost-of-living allowances when the officer is serving abroad.

Foreign Service Officers for the Trade Commissioner Service will be selected by competitive examination to be held in centres throughout Canada on January 22nd, 1955.

A TRADE COMMISSIONER WILL VISIT THIS UNIVERSITY

Watch for announcement of meetings at this University shortly, at which a Trade Commissioner now in Canada will speak about the Service as a career.

Your Career Counsellor or Placement Officer will also have full details.

APPLICATIONS INVITED NOW!

A new booklet is available which gives full details of the work of Trade Commissioners and the qualifications for candidates. For your copy or further information, write or send this coupon:

Director, Trade Commissioner Service,
Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

Please send me copy of "A Career in the Foreign Trade Service".

NAME

ADDRESS

CITY PROV.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto

Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editor

Feature Editor
Makeup Editor

A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor

Asst. Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor

Photo Editor
CUP Editor

Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengelly
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth

Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers

Wendy Michener
John Wilson

Moishe Reiter
Jo Ratcliffe

Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams

Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE Bob Brown

NIGHT EDITOR Roger MacQueen

REPORTERS Sue Delman, Janet MacDonald, Ed Hill, Jim Fergusson, Jo Thompson

ASSISTANTS: Elizabeth Ann Cain, Marianne Farrell, Arlene Ross

Petty Provincialism

A report recently received from Kingston describes Professor A. R. M. Lower of Queen's University History Department as predicting the eventual demise of the Progressive Conservative Party in Canada. His prediction will no doubt be greeted with little enthusiasm by Tories, although there may be some basis for his contention.

We do not agree, however, with Professor Lower when he said that the PC's are merely a party representing the vested interests of a select upper class. The basis of the Conservative Party rests on something broader than this—it is an appeal to native Canadian conservatism.

However, another remark made by Professor Lower had a considerable amount of truth in it. He said that the Tory Party itself was a provincial party, with no real national roots. The PC organization west of Ontario is either weak, divided, or non-existent; and things are little better to the east of Ontario. In Quebec, the keystone of Canadian Federal politics, the Tories have nothing better than a tenuous alliance with Duplessis.

The Liberal Party is the only Canadian political party which can be described as a truly national party. The CCF are concentrated in two or three areas, and are too radical and doctrinaire for the majority of the conservative and satisfied public.

So Canada possesses only one truly national political party—and even it cannot be described as possessing a completely national outlook. This situation is a reflection of both the petty provincialism that is prevalent in Canada, and of the political apathy that is on the increase in most of our nation.

—R.D.B.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

ACCOMMODATION

Room for male student. Cooking privileges, private bath and entrance. $4.00 per week and services. WA. 4-4224.

KITCHENER

Student wishes lift to Kitchener Friday nights. Will share expenses. Phone WA. 3-5237 after 6 p.m.

LOST

Lady's gold Gruen watch between corner St. George and Bloor Sts. and University College. Phone WA. 2-4045.

STUDENT RATES:

TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1847 anytime.

University College LECTURE SERIES

"THE BIBLE AND RECENT MANUSCRIPT DISCOVERIES"

Prof. W. S. McCullough

Today at 5 p.m.

West Hall, U.C.

Reporters

GENERAL MEETING OF ALL REPORTERS

Be in office at 1:10 p.m. today

NEW RECRUITS WELCOME

NOT TOO LATE TO GET A DATE...

VIC INFORMAL

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19TH

HART HOUSE

TICKETS ... VIC COFFEE SHOP and S.A.C. OFFICE
10 - 2 EACH DAY

AT HART HOUSE ... FRIDAY NIGHT

$2.00 PER COUPLE

Last-minute Goal Robs Blue Puckmen of Win

By JOHN WILSON

With just three seconds left in the third period, the OHA Junior "A" Marlboros gained a tie with the Varsity Hockey Blues last night in Varsity Arena. The game was a rough and tumble affair with Varsity's Paul Knox and the Marlies' Bob Duncan being expelled from the contest in the third frame with match misconduct penalties.

Mike Nykoluk notched the final Marlie tally after a scramble around the Varsity goal that lasted for over a minute and a half. The Blues had the edge in the third period, and had outplayed the Dukes for most of the second frame.

Goalgetters for the Blues were Dave Jackson, Paul Knox, Ernie Bodnar, and Don Cossar, while Billy Harris got two for the Dukes along with Ross Sneddon and Nykoluk.

Jackson drew first blood for the Blues after a minute and a half of the opening frame, taking a pass from ex-Marlie Dave Reid. At 8:20 Sneddon got it back for the Dukes, and then Harris added another at 15:45 to give the Marlies a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Duncan got his first penalty at 5:15 of the second for slashing, and the Blues power play paid off with a goal by Clare Fisher assisted by Paul Knox at 6:20 to tie it up. Ernie Bodnar put the Blues out in front again at 8:15 taking a long pass from Reid just inside the red line to go in on Albani without obstruction.

Penalties caused more trouble for the Blues six minutes later when Harris got his second goal of the evening while Johnny Akitt was off the ice for hooking, tying the game up at 3-3.

The third period was only two minutes old when Knox and Duncan got hot under the collar around the Marlie goal, and they were banished for five minutes each. Another fight in the box got them both match misconducts and they left the game. Cossar put the Blues ahead again at 12:30 and that should have been the end of it. But Nykoluk's goal at 17:57 got the Dukes their second tie with the Blues in as many games.

Skule Tops Vic 11-5 In Heated Ball Game

By MAX ROSENTHAL

In a dramatic, heated clash high-lighted by fights, fumbles, and unofficial protestations of the referee's decisions the senior Skule football team emerged as 11-5 victors over previously undefeated Vic.

As a result of this victory Skule and Vic ended the season in a first place deadlock, with five wins and one defeat each. As a result of the flip of a coin in the intramural office, however, Vic have been declared the leaders of Group One. Consequently, in the playoffs Vic will play St. Mike's, Skule will play Trinity.

In the first half the tone was set when rugged line play terminated in a fight between two opposing players. The captains of both teams were advised by the referee to remove both players for the remainder of the half.

Vic's only touchdown occurred in the first quarter and was set up by passing-catching effort of Frank Ebenhardt to Vic Kurdyak from the Vic 35 to the Skule two yard line. Ebenhardt who had been running well then ran around the end for the major. The convert was not good.

A passing attack was the pattern established by each team in the first half. Short passes by Don Hart were particularly effective, whereas for Vic the long pass was almost successful almost, because on one occasion a 60 yard Ebenhardt to Norm Williams pass was called back because of an offside.

Skule's first score in the third quarter was one of the most sensational seen this year. Ken Selby, the leading scorer of the intramural league intercepted a Vic pass on his own 15 and romped down the sideline, eluded two or three tacklers and went 85 yards for the score. The convert was not good and the game was now deadlocked at 5-5.

Skule's winning touchdown occurred in the last quarter when, after Jim Moulton kicked into the end zone and the ball was fumbled, Jim Russell fell on the ball. Hart then ran around the end for the convert.

Blues Flying To Vancouver Thunderbird Game Saturday

Toronto's leading football team, 26 strong, leaves this morning for Vancouver and a game with the Thunderbirds of the University of British Columbia. Only an exhibition match, this game sets a precedent for University Athletic competitions between East and West in Canada, paralleling in some ways, the Grey Cup final of professional ball. The Thunderbirds are a notoriously weak team, having been defeated by the McGill Redmen in preseason play this fall. Varsity, enjoying a free weekend while Western Mustangs and Queen's Golden Gaels play in a Yates Cup preliminary, leave to-day and play in Vancouver Saturday.

The Thunderbirds, featuring a split-T attack, are noted for their stuping first-half play and are the perfect complement to the Blues, noted for their first-half weakness and second-half drive. First string half-backs for the Thunderbirds are John Newton at 170 pounds and an even smaller man, Don Spence, weighing 140 pounds. Fullback, Jim Bolding, is their most powerful runner. Bolding has been out for three games with a dislocated elbow, but is ready for the Blue game this week. Two other likely starters are last year's first stringers, tackle Jerry Flanagan and quarter Gordie Flemmons, both ineligible for play in the Evergreen Conference schedule of the Thunderbirds. The Thunderbirds are admittedly the doormats of their league out in the West and have been since they were admitted to it.

This will be the first time this season that the Thunderbirds will use the platoon system, since it is illegal in their league. For some of their players this is their first season away from English Rugby, the sport they knew before taking to Football.

Two fine fullbacks will go against each other in this game. Both Phil Muntz of the Blues and Jim Bolding of the Thunderbirds have season's averages of some six yards per carry this year. Both are solidly built and both weight in the neighbourhood of 195 pounds with Bolding some five pounds the heavier.

The Thunderbirds lack any strong pass attack or defence, with their strongest weapon being their running game. Their defence on the ground is also supposed to be very good. Varsity, on the other hand, is a team proficient in every offensive department and likewise on the defensive. This should give them a vast edge over the Thunderbirds.

Five Blues remain in Toronto for the weekend, to rest in preparation for the next week's game with the winners of Western and Queen's.

HART HOUSE

TODAY

THURSDAY, 18TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel)
8.00 a.m.—10.00 p.m. — TICKETS! This Sunday's Evening Concert—Jan Rubes—basso. Available for members at Hall Porter's Desk.
10.00 a.m.—10.00 p.m. — NEW ART EXHIBITION FROM U.S.A. "Tools and Techniques." Also sculpture by Rae Katz Platner, and prints by Sybil Andrews.
10.00 a.m.—10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS. (Chapel).
12.30 p.m. & 1.30 p.m. — CINEMA. The first of a regular series of movies sponsored by the Art Committee. "The Romance of Transportation." (East Common Room).
5.05 p.m.—5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).
5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.
7.30 p.m.—9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
7.30 p.m.—10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range)

FOOTBALL -- Mulock Cup Playoffs

SEMI-FINALS - VARSITY STADIUM - MONDAY, NOV. 22ND.
12.00 noon—Vic. vs. St. Mike's—Tobe, Dolman, Wallace, Fraser
2.30 p.m.—SPS I vs. Trinity—Dolman, Tobe, Wallace, Fraser
FINAL - VARSITY STADIUM - THURSDAY, NOV. 25TH, 1.30 p.m.
Sgambati, Tobe, Dolman, Wallace

SPORT SCHEDULES Week of November 22

VOLLEYBALL (Balance of schedule)
Mon., Nov. 22	1.00 SPS IV vs. Med. I Yr.—Sorra 4.00 U.C. V vs. Pre-Med. IB—Freem 5.00 Jr. SPS B vs. Med. IV Yr.—Diemer
Tues. 23	1.00 Sr. U.C. vs. Jr. SPS A—Sorra 4.00 U.C. III vs. Sr. Vic.—Grosfield 6.30 St. M. A vs. Med. III Yr.—Freem 7.30 Vic. III vs. Dent. B—Freem 8.30 Wyc. C vs. Arch. B—Freem
Wed. 24	1.00 Vic. IV vs. SPS VIII—Balschin 4.00 St. M. B vs. Pre-Med. IIA—Kiplinlak 5.00 Jr. U.C. vs. Med. IV Yr.—Kiplinlak 6.00 Pharm. A vs. For. A—Kiplinlak 7.00 Knox A vs. Law A—Diemer 8.00 Arch. A vs. Wyc. A—Diemer
Thurs. 25	4.00 For. B vs. Emma—Glass 6.30 St. M. C vs. SPS VI—Freem
Volleyball teams and managers watch this page next Wednesday or Thursday for PLAYOFF SCHEDULE.
HOCKEY
Mon., Nov. 22	6.30 For. A vs. Pharm.
Tues. 23	12.30 Dent. A vs. St. M. B 1.30 Jr. SPS vs. Jr. Vic.
Wed. 24	12.30 SPS III vs. Vic. III 1.30 Sr. SPS vs. Sr. Vic. 4.00 Sr. U.C. vs. Sr. Med.
Thurs. 25	12.30 Pre-Med. vs. Jr. U.O. 4.00 Wyc. vs. For. B
Fri. 26	12.30 Trin. C vs. U.C. III 1.30 Law vs. Arch. 4.00 Trin. B vs. Dent. B
SQUASH
Mon., Nov. 22	1.00 Law vs. Med. V 4.20 Trin. C vs. Med. IV
Tues. 23	5.40 Sr. SPS vs. Dent. A 6.30 Pharm. A vs. Dent. C 7.00 Pharm. B vs. Vic. II
Wed. 24	4.20 Pre-Med. vs. Vic. I 7.00 Jr. SPS vs. Med. V
Thurs. 25	1.00 Sr. Med. vs. U.C. II
Fri. 26	5.00 Pharm. A vs. Trin. B
SQUASH TEAMS NOTE—As a result of re-organization, Division II teams have been re-grouped in Groups II and III of Division I.

GAMES TODAY.

SOCCER—DIVISION I SEMI-FINALS
North 12.30	Vic. vs. Sr. Med.—Roy Williams
North 2.00	U.C. vs. Dent.—Leach
LACROSSE
1.00	SPS III vs. Med. III—Smela, Brown
5.00	Med. VI vs. St. M. B—Eagleson, Brown
6.30	Pharm. A vs. Law, Warren, Graham
7.30	For. vs. Pharm. B—Warren, Graham
VOLLEYBALL
1.00	Sr. Vic. vs. SPS IV—Sorra
4.00	Trin. A vs. Pre-Med. IA—Balschin
6.30	Pre-Med. IIA vs. SPS V—Freem
7.30	Jr. Vic. vs. Dent. A—Freem
8.30	Knox B vs. Wyc. B—Freem
SQUASH
1.00	Dent. B vs. SPS III

Varsity Stadium

Western vs. Queens SEMI-FINAL PLAYOFF

SATURDAY, NOV. 20th ... AT 1:30 P.M.

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES

By arrangement with Queen's and Western, Varsity coupon book holders may purchase reserved seat tickets in a portion of the regular student section at the special price of $1.00. These are on sale at the Athletic Office INSIDE COUNTER, and are available from 9.30 a.m. to 5.00 p.m. Monday to Friday. Coupon book holders may purchase additional tickets to their own by presenting the coupon books of their friends; and book holders may purchase a ticket for a non-student beside their own at full price if so desired.

COUPON MUST BE PRESENTED IN ORDER TO OBTAIN SPECIAL RATE.

Regular reserved seat tickets are on sale at Box Office, Athletic Office, Hart House, $2.50, $2.00, $1.50.

Box Office Opens Today

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

Saturday Nov. 27th to Saturday Dec. 4th at 8.30

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

"In the depths of dear old India,
Live some men who are very peculiar,
They make pretty bangles,
And rugs full of tangles,
For the WUS TREASURE VAN REGALIA."

Debates Room — HART HOUSE
November 22 - 25

German For. Div. Press Head To Address IRC Open Meeting

Chinese Provide Abstract Slant To boy meet girl

Chinese religion, geography, and writing was the topic of discussion at the Friendly Relations with Overseas Students Organization yesterday.

Interest was shown in the Chinese method of writing. Three Chinese-born students, Ronnie Tse (I Chem. Eng.), Alfred Wong (I Eng. & Phys.), and William Wong (I Civil Eng.) used a blackboard to illustrate their methods.

These students explained that Chinese writing consisted of symbolic characters. Giving an example of how an abstract word is written, they said that the symbol for boy plus the symbol for girl meant nice.

Dr. Hanz H. Schirmer, Chief of the Foreign Division of the German Federal Press Office will speak at an open meeting of the International Relations Club, today.

He will speak on "The Role of Chancellor Adenauer" at 4:00 p.m. in Falconer Hall.

Dr. Schirmer is a graduate of the Universities of Bonn and Munnich, and got his doctorate in Philosophy, History, and International Law at the University of Heidelberg.

Before the war he was with the Cultural and Radio Division of the German Foreign Office. He was captured by the Allies during the war.

A few applications for the New York trip will be accepted at this meeting, said IRC President Thomas Virany last night. The openings are available because some members withdrew from the trip for financial reasons, he said.

To-day

- 1.00 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB: Club House, Oak Room—Philosophy Lecture by Rev. P. W. Nash.
- 1.00 p.m.—U. of T. CCF: Room 14, Vic.—Socialism Ia, Student panel on Education.
- 1.10 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP: Room 36, Vic.—"How can we know God?" Speaker: Rev. J. Robson, BD.
- 4.00 p.m.—INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB: Falconer Hall—"The Role of Chancellor Adenauer".
- 4.00 p.m.—U of T DEBATING UNION: School of Law—Interfaculty Debating Tournament. Resolved: "It's A Woman's World".
- 4.30 p.m.—CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION: Staff Lounge, Mech. Building—Recorded concert of works by Vaughan Williams, Wagner, Mahler, and Brahms.
- 5.00 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—Room 11, UC — Dr. Francis Steele—"The Result of Revelation".
- 7.45 p.m.—SLAVIC CIRCLE—Women's Union: Film—"Life of Moussorgsky," "The Big Five."
- 8.00 p.m.—SCM—CHURCH IN INDUSTRY GROUP: 143 Bloor Street—Speaker: Prof. F. H. Toombs—"Human Relations In Industry."
- 8.00 p.m.—U of T PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CLUB: Trinity College, Room 4, General Meeting.
- 8.00 p.m.—CHEMICAL CLUB: Room 24, Old Chem. Building: Dr. John Satterly will speak on "Odds and Ends of Physics."
- 8.00 p.m.—MODERN LETTERS CLUB—Falconer Hall — Discussion of "The Quaker Graveyard in Nantucket" by Robert Lowell.
- 8.15 p.m.—VIC CLASSICS CLUB —Copper Room, Wymilwood — Student Panel: Classics in High School.

COMING-UP

FRIDAY

- 1:00 p.m.—SCM ROOM, Hart House — "The Christian Life."
- 4:00 p.m.—ANTHROPOLOGY CLUB — Room 64, Museum: Speaker: Dr. Jacques Rousseau. "Travelling with the Naskapi Indians."

Improve Your Reading and Studying Ability

IMPROVE CONCENTRATION, COMPREHENSION AND STUDY HABITS, WHILE READING 100% FASTER.

Probably eight out of ten students are poor readers — poor by comparison with the greater ability they can readily develop. This is why many of you find it extremely difficult to cover all the reading material you should or would like to read.

Recognizing that their problem was an under-developed reading ability many students have taken or are taking our Reading Improvement Course. This short course will improve reading skill by one hundred per cent. No one needs to stress the value of such improvement.

These students have told us that the cost of training is the main reason most of you have not done something about your reading problem. We understand your financial problem and have reduced our fee by $20.00 for students. Unfortunately we cannot reduce it further and still maintain the important principle of individual instruction. However, we can do two things.

1. We have instituted a new Student Payment Plan which will allow you until April 30th to complete payment.
2. Those taking the course may earn in spare time work with us, part, all or more than the cost of instruction.

Now, the only problem should be our limited training facilities. We will accept as many registrations as we can, but again because individual instruction is so important to reading improvement we can handle only a limited number. We suggest therefore, that, today or tomorrow, you take the five or ten minute walk to our office for further information and/or registration.

THE READING INSTITUTE

33 Avenue Road

WA. 4-3331

parties, art, and unity

NFCUS At A Glance

By PETER MARTIN

Besides promoting Inter-University friendships with cheery parties, the National Federation of Canadian University Students at its Eighteenth National Conference at Hart House last month also:

—Decided to hold a national university art competition at Toronto in January 1955 and another at Alberta in November 1955. This was undertaken because of the great success of last year's art competition held at Hart House.

—Mandated McGill University to conduct a national university short story contest. Such a contest was also held last year and first prize was won by a Toronto student.

—Agreed that a national university photography contest was a very worthwhile project because of its broad appeal, but decided to postpone it until next year because of the tremendous amount of work involved and lack of funds this year.

—Donated two free passages to Europe and back for the university team winning the Canadian University Debating Association finals, and recommended that $200 be allotted from the NFCUS budget to these team members for expenses while debating in Europe.

—Mandated the National Executive of the NFCUS to urge Canadian textbook publishers to use new methods of printing and binding whereby the cost of textbooks to the Canadian student may be substantially reduced. This was done after the Conference had heard a report from St. Francis Xavier stating that the publishers were extremely anxious to cut their prices and only needed official support from the students in order to do so.

—Dealt at length with many other matters of common concern to all students. These other matters will be reported in this column on future dates, alternating every second week with SAC at a Glance.

DON'T PROCRASTINATE!

GET YOUR TICKETS NOW for the

FOOTBALL DANCE

Saturday, November 20

AT

HART HOUSE

Only 250 Tickets Remain At The S.A.C. Offices

Christmas Employment POST OFFICE

The postal authorities in Toronto have notified the S.A.C. Employment Bureau that students will NOT be given the customary preference for Christmas Employment. This is due to the general employment situation which finds many heads of families in need of work. Students desiring post office employment at Christmas may register at any post office on the chance that further openings will be available.

New Colours for your

Kitten Collection

Full-fashioned Kitten sweaters in cashmere-soft Lambswool...100% Super Orlon. Hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof... by GLENAYR

- s.s. pullover $6.95
- l.s. pullover $7.95
- cardigan $8.95

At good shops everywhere

SAYS EUROPE 'A PARADOX'

Hoskin Avenue by Night

University of Toronto's students duck the speeding traffic on Hoskin Avenue. Even at night the spot is a death trap for the unsuspecting.

At present hopes of getting the much-needed stop-light are running high for the proposal is being considered by the finance sub-committee of the Toronto Police Commission.

—VSP by John LeGallais

Hoskin Ave. Stoplights May Be Possible Await Decision of Finance Sub-Committee

If a finance sub-committee of the Toronto Police Commission gives the go-head signal, stop lights will soon be installed on the Hoskin Avenue cross-walk between Trinity College and the laneway north of Hart House.

This appeared to be the picture here last night following a meeting of city traffic authorities yesterday.

University officials have been pressing for a push-button stop-light system at the cross-walk for about eight years.

Hart House Host Queens, Western

Hart House will be invaded by hordes of furriners on Saturday night. The sedate halls will ring to the tunes of "Oil thigh na Branrighinn", "Hi up, Sky up," and the sweet music of Mart Kenney and four other bands.

The Blue and White Society is holding both a football dance, and a tea dance for the Western and Queens fans who are coming to the Intercollegiate playoff game in Varsity stadium on Saturday afternoon.

The evening dance will be the official celebration or wake for the Purple and White, and tickets are being sold in London with the game tickets. The Blue and White Society have also sent 300 tickets to Queen's to be sold there.

At the game, entertainment will be provided by Queen's and Western only, and neither the Blue and White band nor the Varsity cheerleaders will be there.

In Toronto, tickets to the Hart House dance are being sold only at the SAC office.

Tom Symons of Trinity College said last night that there seemed to be "a better than 50-per-cent possibility" that a recommendation for the light would be passed at a meeting next midweek.

Symons said that the city police officers had done everything in their power to co-operate with the university and that he was pleased with the prompt action of the department.

The question of a Hoskin Avenue stop-light has been in the air now for several years, one official said.

"It first came up," he said, "about eight years ago when Hoskin Avenue was widened. The University tried to have a light installed and then Trinity and then Wycliffe. This year, the matter was brought up again."

Students' Administrative Council President Bill Angus said several surveys and polls have been taken on traffic conditions in the area in past years.

Collect Bursaries, Scholarships Now

Tomorrow will be scholarship and bursary day at the University of Toronto.

Officials at Simcoe Hall said here yesterday that first payments on scholarships and bursaries this year would be paid at the accounting office Saturday morning.

Although accounting office officials were unable to divulge the exact number of scholarships and bursaries to be paid, they said there would be several hundred altogether.

One official in the registrar's office said a total of 97 Atkinson Foundation admission bursaries alone, would be given first payment.

He said that recipients of Atkinson Foundation bursaries in second, third, and fourth years had not yet been chosen, however.

German-French Relations Major European Paradox

BY JANE EDGAR

A desire for European unity and the instinctive fear of Germany—the most recent villain in the changing pattern of European history—make for the paradoxical nature of modern European politics, said Dr. Hans Schirmer at a meeting of the International Relations Club yesterday. The German public relations expert is on a speaking tour of Canada under the sponsorship of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

Schirmer cited as an example of these paradoxes France's behaviour in starting EDC to prevent a German national army, then creating one by its refusal to ratify.

What France wants, he said, is a German army stronger than the Russian, but weaker than the French... which would be rather difficult.

He went on to speak of the recent London conference, where German sovereignty was restored. This restoration, he said, makes Germany's position one of partnership rather than of subservience as after the last war. It also brings the problem of rearmament. Schirmer said that the average German, contrary to our propaganda-inspired thinking, is not eager to fight.

The actual conditions of rearmament were a problem. A body instrumental in solving it was the West European Union (formerly the Brussels Treaty). Unlike EDC this includes Great Britain. While NATO set the minimum number of divisions for Germany the Brussels powers set the maximum, and the latter must agree unanimously if NATO wants to increase the commitment. This gives France the security of knowing it can not be outvoted. Adenauer promised that Germany would not produce the ABC (atomic, bacteriological and chemical) weapons and would accept other restrictions.

Schirmer refuted the arguments of those who oppose German rearmament by saying that he knew from personal experience that the only thing dictators respect is hard facts, and that while we need not alarm Russia by the threat of preventive war we must have a stable, determined policy to show the Russians they have reached the limits.

In answer to one question Schirmer said that all Europe is trying to build up international spirit, especially in the younger generation, and he is optimistic about all the challenges being met successfully.

Answering other questions he said that there is strong feeling among the German people for national unity; that if the Social Democrats came into power they would have the same policy regarding European unity; that the Nazi menace is greatly overestimated; and that much of the current disturbance with the Saar question is due to electioneering.

Mendes-France Visits McGill

Montreal, (CUP). French Prime Minister, M. Pierre Mendes-France visited McGill University this Monday afternoon during his tour of Quebec.

He was officially greeted at the Arts Building by Principal and Vice Chancellor of the University, Dr. F. Cyril James. After a short tour of the campus, a reception was held in honour of the French Premier.

Prior to his coming to McGill, M. Mendes-France visited the University of Montreal.

Student Post Office Work More Hopeful

University students who wish to work in the Canada Post Office this Christmas-time must fill out an application at any of the city post offices. This was the explanation given here by officials in connection with an advertisement in The Varsity, yesterday.

The advertisement was inserted by the Post Office department.

Students who have worked in one of the Post Office branches in previous years and who have received an invitation to work again this year need not reapply in person as the advertisement suggests, however, it was stated.

In previous years all hiring for Christmas vacation post office help had been done through the Students' Administrative Council employment office at Hart House.

However, according to yesterday's advertisement, the post office department decided not to deal through that office.

Reason for the change in policy was given as a current employment slump throughout Ontario. The post office officials stated that no preference would be given to students this year.

An official in the University employment office said the employment picture was acute. "There are about 27,000 people out of work in Toronto" right now," the official said.

One-eyed Benny Predicts

Western Win This Week, Blues Next

by ONE-EYED BENNY

All week I am laughing behind my back at the several fools who were too wise to bet on my Blues in last Saturday's game. I am telling them for the millionth time that I am the only one who can call the right team. All these fish are being goody-hearted about it, and are paying off their losings to old One-eye, but there is one buffoon who is avoiding me all week. It is hurting me grievously that this fish is not paying off his paltry wager. He knows who he is, and I am waiting for him.

They are telling me there is a big playoff in the offing this weekend, and I am not feeling good with my call. Next to my Blues, I am a Queens supporter all the way but those purple Horsies are having too much power for the Gaels. Come Saturday afternoon, the three-colored laddies are gaining two touchdowns, with converts, and Jocko Thompson is booting two singles. At the same time the Horsies are rolling into the Intercollegiate final with four touchdowns, which Gino Fracas will convert. This is making things some 24-14 for the Mustangs and is establishing them as hosts to my Blues on November 27.

Meanwhile, out in Vancouver, my Blues are giving the Thunderbirds a lesson in football. The good people of Rain Town are not being too happy about what my Blues are doing to the Birds. These poltroons from Vancouver are slipping one touchdown over on the Blues, but are missing the convert. All the while my Blues are running roughshod over the Birds for some six touchdowns, and Steve Oneschuk is converting all of them. The Blues are adding a single also and the result is being 36-5 for my Blues, leaving them in fine fettle for the Horsies next weekend.

Hey Mike!

We'll Raid It . . .

Monday — Bangles

For Da Boys

TREASURE VAN

Hart House

CREST THEATRETORONTO'S ONLY
REPERTORY
THEATREMT. PLEASANT
ROAD
HUDSON
9-9427

Murray and Donald Davis Limited present

UNTIL NOVEMBER 27th

T. S. ELIOT'S

'The Confidential Clerk'with Frances Hyland, Donald Davis, and Douglas Rain

Nightly at 8.30 — $3.00, $2.25, $1.75, $1.00

Matinees: Wednesday 2.30 - Saturday 5.30—$2.50, $1.50, 75c

SPECIAL STUDENT RATE . . . 75c

On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of 2nd Weeks of Runs

'Problems of Handicapped Children'

A handicapped child is an individual in whom there is "a distortion or omission of one of their sensory mechanisms," said Professor H. O. Steer at the Psychology Club meeting last night, in a discussion of "the Problems of Handicapped Children."

Because handicapped people have different experiences from those who are not handicapped, the problem of appraisal is a major one, said Professor Steer. Standardized intelligence tests must be modified with handicapped children, and it thus becomes difficult to find out the potential level of ability for the handicapped child, he stated.

He said that the problem of "getting any job for the person" causes handicapped people to be accused of "not showing sufficient gratitude." "We have done things for and to handicapped people" rather than planning with them, he went on to say.

"Adjustment thinking" is one method of treatment of the handicapped to help them adjust to their own world as well as to the world of the non-handicapped. This is perhaps most difficult as the problem arises as to whether it is better for a handicapped person to associate with those of his similar disability or with those who have no disability. Dr. Steer also said the handicapped are "eager" to help themselves.

Coming-Up

SATURDAY

9.00 p.m.—CANTERBURY CLUB—Corporate Communion—Church of the Redeemer, Bloor and Avenue Rd.

SUNDAY

1.15 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB—Engineering group meeting—guest speaker, Mr. Keenan.

2.20 p.m.—U. of T. FILM SOCIETY—Rashomon.

6.00 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB—Music appreciation group.

7.30 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—Dr. Francis Steele—

"The Decisive Claim of Christ"—Wycliffe College Chapel.

8.30 p.m.—BLOOR ST. CAMPUS CLUB—Slides entitled "Hold That Pose Mrs. Owl"—Trinity United Church.

8.30 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB—Informal evening after the Benediction in the Chapel—club house.

8.30 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—Student seminar—"Retreat from Reason".

8.30 p.m.—INTERNATIONAL STUDENT ORGANIZATION—Speaker, Prof. Walmsley on Hinduism.

8.30 p.m.—CANTERBURY CLUB—"Introduction to St. Bartholomew's" by Dr. Graham Cotter, Church of the Redeemer, Bloor and Avenue Rd.

MONDAY

1.00-2.00 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—Lunch-hour discussion on "Survival of Jewry in the Galut"—186 St. George St.

St. Paul's Avenue Rd. United Church

Minister:

Rev. Gordon W. Porter,
M.A., B.D.121 AVENUE ROAD
(3 Blocks North of Bloor)

108th ANNIVERSARY

A.B.F.

11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Dr. Donald Mathers of KingstonBLOOR

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. Walter C. SellarsOrganist and Choirmaster:
Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.

CONVOCATION HALL

Redeeming the Commonplace
Dr. Howse

7.30 p.m.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

Dr. E. Crossley Hunter
The CAMPUS CLUB meets in
Bloor Street United Church
Assembly Hall following evening service at Trinity.TODAY

FRIDAY

11 a.m.-3.00 p.m.—HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE ALUMNAE—Sale of home baking.1.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—"The Christian
Life"—SCM Room, Hart House.1.00-2.00 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—Record tour, 186 St.
George St.4.00 p.m.—ANTHROPOLOGY
CLUB—Speaker Dr. Jacques Rousseau on "Travelling with the Naskapi Indians"—Room 64,
Museum.4.00 p.m.—CIRCOLO ITALIANO—
Conversazione.Park Road Baptist ChurchPark Road and Asquith Ave.
Rev. C. G. Stone, D.D., Minister
Muriel Gidley Stafford, Organist
11 a.m."Some Greeks Provoke a Daring Prophecy"
7 p.m."Oh yes, you can."
20th Carol Festival
Saturday, December 11thST. ANDREW'S
UNITED CHURCH

Bloor, near Subway at Yonge

Minister:

Rev. W. Morrison Kelly,
M.A., B.D., S.T.M.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

Rev. A. Allan McArthur, B.D.,
Ph.D., of Peterhead Old Parish Church, Aberdeenshire,
Scotland.Students will be warmly welcomed at these Services.Church Of The Redeemer

Bloor St. West and Avenue Rd.

Rev. Owen P. Prichard,
B.A., L.Th., Rector-Designate83RD ANNIVERSARY AND MISSIONARY SUNDAY

8 a.m.—Holy Communion.

11 a.m.—Litany and Holy Communion.

Preacher: The Rector.

7 p.m.—Evening Prayer.

Preacher: The Bishop of Newfoundland.(Congregational Friendship
Hour will follow the Evening Service.)

Thursday, Nov. 25th at 8 p.m.

INDUCTION SERVICE

by the Lord Bishop of Toronto

Preacher: The Rt. Rev. F. H.

Wilkinson, Coadjutor Bishop

ST. JAMES' CATHEDRAL

Cor. King and Church Sts.

SUNDAY NEXT BEFORE
ADVENT

8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion.

8.30 a.m.—Mattins.

9.15 a.m.—Holy Communion.

11.00 a.m.—Choral Eucharist.

Sermon: The Dean

SUNDAY SCHOOL

7.00 p.m.—American Thanksgiving Service

Sermon: The Very Reverend

Philip F. McNairy, Dean of St.

Paul's Cathedral, Buffalo, New York.

Holy Communion—Tuesday

10.30 a.m.; Wednesday 7.00 a.m.;

Friday 7.30 a.m.

Mattins and Evensong—Daily

at 9.00 a.m. (Tuesday 10.00

a.m.) and 5.15 p.m.

VISITORS VERY WELCOME

Life
Insurance is the best way
to save for future
security...

MUTUAL LIFEINSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

For Low Cost Life Insurance

For ample protection at low net cost, see your local Mutual Life of Canada representative.

TORONTO OFFICES:

Bank of Montreal Bldg., King and Bay Sts.

Richmond St. Branch, 133 Richmond St., W.

Yonge-Bloor Branch, 749 Yonge St.

North Toronto Branch, 10 Eglinton Ave., E.

New Toronto Branch, 746 Lakeshore Rd. at 3rd

Leaside Branch, 650 Bayview Ave., Leaside

Phone EM. 4-8371

EM. 6-8771

WA. 4-8491

MA. 9421

CL. 1-3383

HU. 8-2772

$288.55 — VANCOUVER — VIA TCA

$2.00—Football DanceVIA *Ticket Hart HouseSaturday, Nov. 20

9 p.m. — 12 p.m.

On Sale in Hart House

12 — 2 p.m.

AND

SAC Office All Day

Remaining Tickets On Sale

9 a.m. - 12 Noon AND 8 p.m. - 10 p.m.

SATURDAY... in the S.A.C. Office

—NB— This Is The Last
FOOTBALL DANCE
Of The Year

UC Women Defeat Law Men in Debating To Prove that It's Not a Woman's World

The women of University College successfully contended that it is not a woman's world, yesterday afternoon. The women had the negative on the resolution that "It's a woman's world" in the inter-faculty debate between Law and UC women. The judges unanimously decided for the negative. "Woman's origin has made her position clear," said Marg Riches, UC IV, the second speaker for the negative. She declared that she and her colleague were particularly well qualified to speak on the subject, being women and added "the more fool a man who allows women to make the world theirs."

The first speaker for the affirmative, Dick Sankey, I Law, referred to Hart House as an example to prove that it is a woman's world. "The old cry of 'Remember the Alamo' has nowadays become 'Remember the Arbor Room'," he declared. Today the father is the beast of burden; the mother is the one who extends her dominion over her subjects, he said.

This idea was borne out by the second affirmative speaker, who quoted from Bernard Shaw and the marriage service to prove that women indeed did rule the world.

spangles and double eagles

Treasure Van Comes

by MARY ALICE HUNTER

Many years ago, while the invading hordes poured into the doomed city of Constantinople, the patriarch of the Church sought refuge in Justinian's church of Santa Sophia. Before the not so gentle infidels could desecrate the sacred place and slay the prelate, God sent a double-headed eagle to the doorway of the church. There the mighty bird turned into stone, thus the Turks could not enter. Ever since that fateful day in 1453 the Greeks have held the Byzantine symbol of the double-headed eagle in high esteem. Although we can't guarantee that the eagle will protect you from any Turks wandering around the campus, one of the highlights of the Treasure Van is a double-headed eagle necklace and earring set, made in Greece.

Another Greek product is an odd egg cup shaped thing of natural wood with a coloured wooden ring carved around the handle.

For the Oscar Wilde aesthetes on campus there is an exquisite silver cigarette-holder with a miniature Parthenon engraved on it. For militant females there is a necklace composed of copies of Alexander's shield.

When you're in the Indian section next week, appreciatively sniffing the sandalwood, dandling the dolls and breaking the bangles, don't be alarmed when you see a friendly crocodile leering at you. The charming little fellow is embroidered onto a black evening-bag, with silver thread.

Even if you aren't filigree fan, it's impossible not to be impressed by the delicate tracery in the floral patterns. The floral and star designs are Moslem from the North, while the symmetrical pieces are Hindu.

Lastly there are porcupine necklaces, birchbark boxes bound with sweet grass and birdhouses from Manitoulin Island, the largest freshwater island in the world (check). Also Canadian are carved and woven goods from French Canada and New Brunswick.

Prime Minister St. Laurent loaned the Treasure Van a Korean doll which someone gave him on a trip, while Prince Yoshi of Japan gave a doll which he had "loved since his childhood days." The only Communist doll came from Tito, and is supposed to look like Mrs. Tito. It is about forty-five years old and wears a traditional Serbian costume, complete with tiny embossed leather shoes. The Grand Duchess of Luxembourg had to send a new doll because her own collection had not survived. Mar-Theophilus, Bishop of the Mar-Thomas Church in South India sent several dolls, as did Syngman Rhee and Gracie Fields. The dolls are not to be sold but will be taken on tours and to fairs to raise money for the Treasure Van, which opens Monday.

Go, man, go, and see the Far East move West.

HILLEL FOUNDATION

SABBATH EVE FELLOWSHIP

Friday, Nov. 19th, 8.30 p.m.

Contemporary Judaism Series

"THE CONSERVATIVE POSITION"

Larry Levenstein

Nichy Cohen

HILLEL FOUNDATION

SUNDAY EVENING

November 21st

Student Seminar 8:30 p.m.

"RETREAT FROM REASON"

Harry Arthurs

WESTERN T DANCE

DRILL HALL
(119 St. George St.)

AFTER THE GAME
SATURDAY
Until 6 p.m.

? Party!

The University of Toronto Ornithological, Orthodox and Pornographical Society is holding another annual meeting this month and members of The Varsity staff are to be the guests of honour. For undisclosed reasons such as fear of a Morality Squad raid, the meeting's location is known only to certain shady and notorious persons in The Varsity Office. Staffers are ordered to report today at 1.15 for briefing on this matter . . . Ask for "Lucky."

YOUR HOBBERLIN HINTING HELP FOR THIS WEEK

(Directions for use: clip out the attached message and leave it around the house where your beloved parents are liable to see it. The bathroom mirror or the old man's wallet are a couple of thoughts. (If your providers live elsewhere, you can accidentally slip one of these clippings into a letter home.)

Dear perplexed parent:

Here is Christmas rolling around again and you don't know what to get for that oaf of a son of yours, do you?

Well, if you're prepared to squander something like $35 to $40 on the good-for-nothing, we have a suggestion or two:

Why not make him at least look presentable by giving him a Hobberlin Harris Tweed Sport Jacket. When he opens the package he'll probably show the first signs of life you've noticed since he started University.

If size is a problem, don't fret. Just buy him a Hobberlin jacket, any Hobberlin Jacket (your taste is probably years out of date anyhow). Then the ungrateful wretch can bring it back if he wants, for alteration, exchange or refund.

Harris Tweed jackets from $42.50; Blazers from $37.50. Crests for most of the more acceptable fraternities, from $10.50.

Incidentally, it won't be a bad idea to get your son started on the Hobberlin habit. We have a sobering influence on some of the racier dressers, which may be due to the fact we've been in business for 69 years.

Hobberlin's LIMITED

145 Yonge EM. 2-7313

HART HOUSE THIS WEEKEND

FRIDAY, 19TH NOVEMBER:

8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT TICKETS. Available for the asking at the Hall Porter's Desk.

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — U.S.A. ART EXHIBITION: "Tools and Techniques". Also sculpture by Rae Katz Platner, and "Prints Charming" by Sybil Andrews.

10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel). 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room). 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).

SATURDAY, 20TH NOVEMBER:

Caledon Hills Farm—Biology Club and C.C.F. Club will meet over the weekend.

SUNDAY, 21ST NOVEMBER:

2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m. — OPEN ART GALLERY.

— SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT. Jan Rubes—basso. Here is one of the great singers of our time.

TORONTONENSIS

— THE SHOWS RECAPTURED

Some tips on Christmas Hinting

Let's face it . . . you really need a Royal portable this Christmas.

So do your Christmas hinting early. For example, you might complain a bit about eyestrain (from studying hastily scribbled notes). Or, if you're away from home, a letter they can just about read should do nicely.

If you're extra adroit, you might even tell about one of those eager characters who make some extra money for themselves by typing notes for their long-suffering, fellow-learners.

Remember . . . the fastest you can go in longhand is 30 words a minute—it doesn't take much practice to go twice that on a Royal portable!

WHAT TO HINT FOR: A sturdy, sweet-looking, fast-typing Royal portable! Has all the big machine features: Magic Margin*, Tabulator, Touch Control, Speed Selector, Line Meter, etc. In Tan or Grey, with smart Fibreglas carrying case, priced from $79.95.

the new rugged

ROYAL® portable

*R.T.M.R.I.C.

THE WORLD OVER, MORE PEOPLE USE ROYAL TYPEWRITERS THAN ANY OTHER KIND!

SCM Students!!

You can remember your college days best—how? By ordering the Campus Life Photos which are displayed in Teefty! Those who have ordered may pick up their photos at the Co-op Counter.

ORDER NOW!

Excellent quality - Prices cheap
Special orders see or call Peter Miller, 35 Fisher, WA. 3-9201

CANTERBURY CLUB

CHURCH OF THE REDEEMER — Bloor and Avenue Road

9 a.m.—Corporate Communion and Breakfast

8.30 p.m.—"Introduction to St. Bartholomew's"

A discussion of living conditions in the Dundas-Sherbourne area by Dr. Graham Cotter, Warden.

Film: "Farewell Oak Street"

A vital documentary of the Regent Park Housing Development.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto

Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Asst. Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

D. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengeley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Moishe Reiter
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE
NIGHT EDITORS:
ASSISTANT
REPORTERS:

Irene Meyers
Carol Hoffman, Bob Brown
Reg. Smart
Mike Erdei, Barb Grinnel, Pat Moser,
Jane Edgar, John Gehl, Marion Taylor

Poisoned?

We are at a loss to explain the attitude of some citizens of this country, as outlined in a letter on this page.

The experience which befell one university student yesterday is definitely a blight upon the name and tradition of this country.

We agree with the writer that the homeowner is within his rights in deciding what "label" of person should share his home.

Naturally, it was not possible for the advertising staff of the Varsity to know that such a situation would develop from an ad which was so innocuous in appearance.

We are genuinely sorry that a university student should have encountered so unhappy an experience in replying to an ad in our pages.

It is disheartening to realize that the frame of mind typified by the reaction of the homeowner concerned should continue to find expression in this age.

In our day it is imperative that superficial differences should be overlooked. We have no time left in our civilization for the continuance of concepts without foundation, for beliefs without cause, or modes of behaviour which ignore the basic unity of mankind.

We would remind people of the words of the immortal bard.

"... prick us, and shall we not bleed? Tickle us, and shall we not laugh? Poison us, and shall we not die?"

Brotherhood

The engineering stunt of the men from Wycliffe was not only the first breath of humour to emanate from this campus this year but also pointed up the crying need for some sort of safety device at this dangerous crossing.

While we would categorically reject the pseudo-theological note introduced by our Wycliffe brethren we heartily support their humanitarian idealism.

That they should wish to bridge the gap between themselves and their brothers is commendable, but that they should also choose this moment to be of service to their less fortunate colleagues, who have not yet seen the light of the ecclesiastical sun, and who reside in the shades of the heretical and professional studies, places their action in so sublime a light as to detract from the glories of the college they represent.

There remains little else to be done than that the Tritularians should tunnel under Hoskin Avenue and forever ally themselves with those who espouse the doctrine of brotherhood, even among Christians.

Non-Conformist

One very interesting quotation has come out of Ryerson Institute lately.

Principal H. H. Kerr, in supporting the move of one of the faculty members who is insisting on male students wearing shirts, ties and jackets, said in effect that anyone who did not comply would be marked down as a non-conformist in his school records for the future.

—Editor of Sidney Smith!

our readers write:

Absolutely Human

The Editor,
The Varsity.

In yesterday's Varsity there appeared an advertisement under the "Classified Ads" in which a Toronto resident offered accommodation for a male student. When the writer telephoned in answer he was effusively welcomed to examine the quarters. However, he was then asked, "What nationality are you?" With a chuckle he replied, "Canadian."

"But what origin?" When the answer was given he was told that a visit would be a waste of his time and theirs.

The right of these people to have whomever they please as tenants is not to be denied. The audacity to spawn this social disease in a student publication which stands for an unbiased approach to all ethnic, nationalistic and religious groups is an insult to the intelligence of the mature adult student.

If a limitation as to the label of the individual desired as a tenant was needed it should have been indicated openly.

It would be superfluous to reiterate what has been said and resaid on this mediaeval attitude. Two thoughts should be borne in mind, a thick skin for the person who is subjected to this treatment, and the knowledge for those who are not that being human absolutely, equal blows effect equal hurt, absolutely.

Ralph Aaron,
II UC.

Credit

To the Editor,
The Varsity.

The University of Toronto Film Society would like to thank the Varsity very much for seeing fit to publish an article on its new production Movie Manners.

We feel, however, that much greater credit is due Fred Fishel than was given. He did not simply draw the backgrounds for the scenes. He directed the whole production, and the conception of the film and all the art-work was his. We hope you will publish this fact, to correct what we feel is an erroneous impression.

Sheila Kahan,
IV UC.

Invader?

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Dr. Smith in a recent address quotes Toynbee saying that the western nations have been aggressors throughout history against Russia. This view, also being the official party line at the present, can hardly be held by an objective historian.

The war of 1700 was begun by Russia's invasion of the then Swedish provinces on the Baltic, and ended with a final Russian victory in 1721.

In the 19th and 20th centuries most great European nations were the allies of Russia, while Russia itself invaded Poland and Turkey on several occasions.

In 1941 the "Western" attack was preceded by Russia's invasion of Poland, Finland and the Baltic States. Naturally Russia kept all these territories after the war.

Who was the invader?

J. Karlsson,
III Engineering.

Constructive Criticism

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Last week the University of Toronto Debating Union (UTDU) held trials to select candidates to represent the University of Toronto on tour to colleges in the United States. Five men and three women turned out—less than 1/10th of 1 per cent of the population of this University. The tours they were trying out for were three:

(1) A women's invitational tournament at Toronto to be held Nov. 26, 27, 28th. (At least two women required).

(2) Annual Pitt Cross-Examination Tournament at the University of Pittsburgh. (1 man, 1 woman).

(3) A week long, all expenses paid tour of five institutions in New York and Mass. (2 men).

The debating trials have been bitterly criticised by some. The UTDU chairman would like to make one point clear. The trials were first considered and then agreed to in a meeting of the UTDU—an organization on which each college and faculty has at least one member—as the most democratic method of drawing out the best and most interested debaters. The trials failed to get the support they deserved.

The only conclusion we may draw now is that the students of the University of Toronto do not support this aspect of the program of the UTDU. With this in mind we have called a meeting for Friday, Nov. 19th at 1:00 p.m. in the SAC office. If anyone has a constructive criticism to offer concerning debating we will be more than happy to receive it at the SAC office any time before the meeting for consideration by the UTDU.

G. Gordon Hurlbut,
Chairman, UTDU.

Expediency and Fifty Faiths

The Editor,
The Varsity.

The Varsity does not understand "why it is necessary for the University of Toronto, which includes among its members people of all persuasions, to have under the official patronage of the president a University Christian Mission". Doubtless there are people who do not understand why it is necessary for the University of Toronto, which includes among its members people of all opinions, to have under the official patronage of the president a newspaper like the Varsity. However, there are enough people in the University who consider that, whether necessary or not, it is expedient, and so we have a Varsity. There were evidently enough people in the University who considered it expedient to have a Christian Mission, and so one has been had. Moreover, in his opening address to the Mission, the president said that the University would give its official support to Jewish, Roman Catholic or other missions, as might arise.

The second paragraph of the Varsity editorial reads: "We are afraid that it is directed towards the perpetuation of the religion of our society without questioning its values in terms of the needs of our day, and without reference to the beliefs of its founder." It is difficult to know what the Varsity means by "the religion of our society" but since our society, like the University, includes among its members people of all persuasions, the "religion of our society" must doubtless be intended to cover all those persuasions. In that case it is not possible to know what is meant by the phrase "its founder". At least fifty different faiths are represented in this University alone. The recent Christian Mission afforded a large-scale opportunity for the frank examination of one of them.

In the closing paragraph of its editorial, the Varsity reminds its readers of Nicholas Ignatieff's insistence that it is imperative not to accept convictions and standards second-hand but to struggle for those which are really one's own. The purpose of the recent Mission was exactly in keeping with the late Warden's insistence; members of the University community were "asked for five days to consider seriously the claim of Christ and to decide what it means for your own life". The Varsity is silent on the outcome of Ignatieff's own decision. Ignatieff was a Christian.

Robert Finch,
Dept. of French,
University College.

Dreamer!

—Cartoon by John Ricciardelli

Beacon Choristers A Music Criticism

Though William Metcalfe conductor of the Beacon Choristers considers his singers amateurs, one would rather hesitate to use this colourless epithet. This group's recital last Friday night convinced us that however unable to receive the conductor's instructions directly the choir has a very strong internal communication with their leader.

Without the aid of scores or suggestive gestures, twelve of the eighteen singers have to rely on purely aural directions. This of course necessitates rather meticulous training during which the singers have to memorize their parts to the minutest details. Thereby they acquire an organic rather than partial grasp of the works, which is not so ideally attainable by learning from written scores. Rather facile entrances, and firm thematic line-leading revealed a thorough structural understanding of the songs performed.

Thus technical unity provided a reliable framework for a sensitivity which springs from their meticulous and intimate working relationship. Tonal clarity and healthy rhythmic control prevailed throughout the varied programme. Mozart's Ave Verum escaped the pitfalls of dynamic opulence by restrained yet pliable shading. Joy emanating from self-assurance and enthusiasm characterized a group of English and Welsh folksongs, with its exhilarating uninhibitedness while Humperdinck's Prayer from Hansel and Gretel was tender and serene with a healthy beat.

Is there any correlation between physical handicap and talent? Are the blind exceptionally introverted and thus unusually gifted musicians? Lacking the reliable statistical data, the Beacon Choristers provide the answer that determination rather than artificially appropriated inner potentialities lead to success.

Erwin J. Biener

Canadian League Coming Activities

For the coming year the activities of the C. L. C. are being directed by the Canadian Music Associates which is an affiliate with the International Society of Contemporary Music.

The C.L.C. is composed of 30 composers representing the major cities and provinces of Canada. Now, for the first time an anthology of Canadian Piano Music is being published, to make the work of our members more accessible to our public and countries abroad.

The League co-operates with other similar foreign organizations and in 1954 Canadian music was represented at the International Society of Contemporary Music in Israel. This year for the first time the contemporary Italian Adoni Zecchi will be represented in our Canadian concerts.

Four major concerts constitute the programme of activities of the League for the coming season. On Feb. 9 a symphonic concert at Massey Hall; on Dec. 4 a chamber concert at the Royal Conservatory; on Jan. 9 and March 13 film presentations with accompanying Canadian musical scores.

The League looks forward to the support of the public in their capacity as "associate members" for the preservation and presentation of Canadian Music.

Credit Slip

This page is made up according to the principles laid down by Michael Oliver and the Varsity of 1923.

Charles Chaplin In Modern Times A Movie Criticism

To write a review of Modern Times, at this stage of the game, is, I suspect, a little ridiculous. All in all, I think Chaplin is above criticism, and I don't say this because I am a Chaplin fan: I'm not. Personally, I prefer the humour of Buster Keaton to Chaplin's, but years of association with Chaplin fanatics has forced me into assessing very carefully what I have to say about him, in order to be scrupulously fair. I find no fault with his artistry; to my mind, his is the most perfect thespian talent the cinema has yet produced, but if you detect a slight note of hesitation in what follows, it's only because I wish some inspired impresario would see fit to revive Keaton's The Navigator or The General now and again.

Modern Times is generally considered the last of the "old" Chaplin films, the "new" Chaplin films being, I presume, The Great Dictator, Monsieur Verdoux, and Limelight. Modern Times was produced in 1936, and is Chaplin's reply to the Depression. That Chaplin should feel called upon to reply to the Depression itself indicates that Modern Times is not as much like Chaplin's earlier output as has been made out. Most of his early films are positively timeless. With the exception of A Woman of Paris, which no-one has been able to see and reassess for years, Chaplin's world is his comedy, and depends on no particular place or time. Modern Times, however, makes bitter fun of the world of the machine, and after it, Chaplin's later films come closer and closer to the everyday world. Limelight, perhaps, is a backward glance at the past, but ultimately is on a far grander scale than is Chaplin's real forte. Looking at Chaplin's films systematically is rather difficult though, since all the pictures he made after 1921 are his own property and can only be shown with his permission. Several years ago City Lights was released, and Modern Times is the second installment of the marvelous cache which lies unseen in a film vault on the west coast.

No need to relate, of course, how brilliant Chaplin's humour remains. Modern Times has almost none of the pathos that makes City Lights such a superb experience: it is satirical far oftener than it is sympathetic, but Chaplin's comic talent did not darken between 1930 and 1935. I don't want to go on for several paragraphs of dissertation on the genius of Chaplin's humour; besides, I couldn't without telling about some of the funny bits, which would be unforgivable. As I remarked at the first, I am not a full-fledged member of the Chaplin cult, but perhaps a recommendation from an "outsider" under those circumstances would carry more weight than one from the most fervent disciple. Modern Times is a fine film, and no one should miss it.

Germaine Clinton.

CODL Festival

The fifth annual Ontario One-Act Play Festival sponsored by the Central Ontario Drama League will be held at Hart House Theatre, during the week by May 2, 1955. The purpose of holding the Festival so late in the year is to allow out-of-Toronto groups and especially winners of local festivals to participate.

There will be a cash award of $100.00 for the best production. There are no restrictions to the choice of play. One act from a full length play may also be presented.

Any group wishing to participate should contact Mrs. K. B. Anglin, 216 Poplar Plains Road, Toronto 7.

Phone Caput 4000 For Skule Nite '55

School Night '55 is an average campus show with well above average choreography. Each time the general action begins to get shaky they throw in a dance routine that is able to pick up the pieces.

It isn't a book show and although the calibre of the skits is not always high, at least they aren't forced to fit into a weak plot. Campus shows always seem to handle a series of unrelated scenes better than a continuous story. The music written for the show is not outstanding but The Skulehouse Four frequently do a good job on some older barber-shop quartet songs.

The sets are good and are used to advantage particularly the teeter-totter in the first scene which turns out to be a slide rule on a bottle of ink. In Satan Takes a Holiday a kickline of female devils dances behind the set and men with tails and horns dance out the other side. The girls also do a tricky routine in the form of a star.

Sheila Grange's monologue—a telephone call to Caput 4000 comes off beautifully. A monologue is a difficult act to put over and Bob Hill's interpretation of a rural visitor in Tronto is not nearly as effective, although the idea is good.

I am always a push-over for impersonations with the voice of the original dubbed in, but Jim Vasoff's Liberace is still the best I've seen yet. His words didn't always match the record but his gestures were unbeatable.

The rest of this scene which portrayed a health lecturer being televised fell down considerably and was only barely brightened up by a commercial which explains how to make Ethyl Osculate.

The only good thing about Weather House was the costumes. Both actors looked like wooden figures on a weather vane but there was very little to the song.

The attempt to have a serious number in the show was a good idea but the plantation scene dragged in spite of Maya Tubis' excellent voice.

In the final scene, a modernized version of The Shooting of Dan McGrew, Arline Patterson's good choreography shows up again in the Can Can and once more steals the show.

Elinor Bernstein

Music Club Plans

The University College Music Club plans to produce, this year, Trial By Jury, the first operetta of Gilbert and Sullivan. The entire production is under the direction of Curt Reis and is to be presented on January 20 and 21, 1955.

The operetta is about a young lass named Angelina who sues her lover for breach of promise of marriage. He, however, loves another and tries to persuade the court that he is not the man for Angelina. The jury, judge and all are captivated by the young plaintiff's charms and therefore indignant with the rascally defendant.

The cast has forty singers including six principals. Anyone, preferably with some talent, is welcome to try out.

Casting for Trial By Jury will take place Monday and Tuesday in the Women's Union from four to five p.m. and from seven to nine p.m.

Casting for Lear

Reading for the Hart House production of King Lear will start on Dec. 1 and continue for one week. Appointments can be made between one and four p.m. each day. Phone WA. 3-7193.

James Lamond Gives HH Concert

Mr. James Lamond, accompanied by Mr. John Coveart, gave the five o'clock recital last Wednesday, in the Hart House Music Room. Mr. Lamond is a medium-powered tenor with a well developed and controlled tone, which he has a tendency to overload in places where a more moderate delivery might be appropriate.

His programme was a pleasant mixture of the quite familiar with the slightly less so. The first group, two songs by Dowland and two by Purcell, showed a nice feeling for phrase, governed by supple breath control, and most commendable, an ability to breathe silently. An aria If with all your hearts, preceded by its recitative, from Elijah was sung with not really enough contrast between sections to bring to life Mendelssohn's rather innocent melodies. Three Brahms Lieder ended the first half of the recital, but Mr. Lamond is happiest in his native tongue, as was shown by a warmly sympathetic performance of Vaughan Williams' Songs of Travel after the interval. The programme ended with a Donizetti aria, and for encores Mr. Lamond sang another Italian aria (familiar but unidentified) and an Irish folk-song Down by the Sally Garden arranged by Britten.

Throughout the recital it was borne upon me that here was a competent technician, and an experienced and finished artist, who allowed excessive modesty to dampen the very fine performance of which he would otherwise have been capable. It was quite apparent that Mr. Lamond was well aware of the artistic possibilities of his material. His technique was of the highest order, his diction was modulated exactly to suit the room, and yet in only a few instances did he manage to convey his point to his audience. This was a pity, because he certainly has all the positive qualifications of a first-rate singer.

Michael Oliver

H H Sunday Recital

Jan Rubes, who will be the guest artist at this Sunday's Evening Concert in Hart House, has declared that he will donate his honorarium to the Flood Relief Fund.

A Czech-born Canadian, Rubes lives in New York, from where he commutes to Toronto for his weekly performance over the Trans-Canada Network of the CBC, entitled Songs of my people. He is married to TV-star Susan Douglas.

He started out in Czechoslovakia before the war broke out, but the Prague University Medical School was forced to shut down during the war, so he switched to music; The Conservatory was kept open. His political activities during the war eventually landed him in a Gestapo jail, from which he escaped. He performed with the Prague Opera, and won first prize at the Prague Musical Festival. After this he came to Canada.

The only way his aunt and uncle, who live in Toronto could bring him into the country was to tag him as a tailor. In Canada he sang La Traviata with the CBC Opera Company, and went on concert tours across Canada and Central America.

At Sunday's Concert he will sing Leporello's Aria from Mozart's Don Giovanni, songs and Arias from Handel, Haydn, Schubert, his compatriot Dvorak, Russel, Mussorgsky, and Morawetz.

T. S. Eliot's Play Confident. Clerk At Crest Theatre

Definition department—fetching; an adjective meaning captivating, charming, delightful; suitably applied to Frances Hyland. Miss Hyland was fortunate, to be sure, in playing one of the few dramatic parts and well-written characters in this very puzzling play. We refuse to qualify our pleasure nonetheless; the provocative Lucrecia was played with a graceful vivacity, an expression and nobility, which are Miss Hyland's own.

Most of the other characters were in the rather uncomfortable position of real people dealing with a real situation in an abstract way. This, incidentally, may have been the reason for the faint dreaminess which appeared from time to time in the speaking of the entire cast. Both players and director are faced with a considerable problem of interpretation and performance. The characters are never allowed to remain for very long on a common-sense level where the audience can feel at home with them.

Very few of them have sufficient, decided characteristics to develop into a recognizable personality while on the other hand they are not merely impersonal vehicles for the poetry because that is so subordinated to all the elements that it is apparent only as a faint, over-all pattern.

Barbara Chilcott as Lady Elizabeth and Peter Mews as Eggerston (predecessor to the confidential clerk) had less to struggle with than the others because they had more stock traits. Peter Mews, we felt, failed to make the most of what he was given; the lines suggested a character in which Mr. Mews was not very interested, and the process might well be described as a part filled but not played. Miss Chilcott's Lady Elizabeth didn't seem to follow the lines very closely either—although very amusing she was more forceful and coherent than our mental picture of the absent-minded devotee of make-believe, whom we had hopefully imagined arriving in a welter of trailing scarves.

The larger part of the play, and the characters involved in it, are much more difficult to discuss. It no sooner becomes concrete than philosophical query sends it to an abstract level again.

Eliot does his best to help his audience into his world of ideas by the step-ladder of humour, cloaking sense in wit as Wilde does. But Wilde's sense was subordinate to his wit and therefore easier to discover. The Confidential Clerk is not a comedy; it is a play of ideas presented in a comical way.

All this leads to a certain airiness and lack of definition which is one of the play's most attractive qualities. The mood was caught to perfection in John Wilson's set, with its misty borders and general air of going on indefinitely, although the heavy and unimaginative chairs and desks created a jarring note. Director Basil Coleman's blocking struck a most effective note, a combination of the real and unreal elements which make this play so difficult to grasp with certainty. And so did the portrayals of Sir Claude Mulhammer (Donald Davis) and Colby Simpkins (Douglas Rain). They were never quite real people, but on the other hand they were never quite unbelievable. Mr. Rain achieved, we think, as much as he could in his remarkably colourless part; he gave a perfectly consistent picture of a rather ordinary young man with a burning conviction. Mr. Davis tended to dwarf his supposed son, which was legitimate on the score of character, since he is the more splendid of the two, but unfortunate from the point of view of the spectator.

Nancy Donnet

HOCKEY BLUES AT EAST YORK

Speaking ^{1/2} OF SPORT

BY JOHN WILSON

Tomorrow our own Varsity Football Blues will inaugurate what is hoped will become a yearly fixture between the Eastern Collegiate champions and the University of British Columbia.

While it's all very well to wish we had gone with the team when they took off yesterday morning, a little bit of reflection makes us wonder whether or not this little jaunt into the West country will help the Blues on the road to the Yates Cup. They have only had two practices this week although they will probably get time for one more before the big game in Vancouver. Next week they will have the benefit of just four more practices, maybe only three if they don't have a session Monday night. That's a total of maybe five practices in all—one week's work.

The downtown sportswriters point out that all the Big Four coaches constantly mention the fact that it takes their players up to three weeks to recover from the pre-season trips to the West, and to regain their "gridiron legs". As one of them puts it, "Masterson will have one week. Will it be enough?"

The game can benefit the Blues in that it provides them with some action this weekend instead of being dormant. But then the UBC Thunderbirds are notoriously weak, and can hardly be expected to give the Blues an equal game. Flying the 2500 odd miles to Vancouver and back in just three days could be very injurious to Varsity's chances at the Yates Cup. At any rate the Blues should have little trouble disposing of the Birds by a fairly high score, although that may not be the best way to cement East-West relations.

Two of the Best . . .

. . . teams in the Intercollegiate Football Union meet when the Queens Golden Gaels and the Western Mustangs clash in Varsity Stadium tomorrow. With both teams out for a berth in the College final against the Blues, it should be a regular do-or-die contest. Varsity supporters will be unable to decide who to cheer for, with both teams showing power against the Blues on their home ground.

After the beating the Gaels took from the Blues last Saturday, while the Mustangs were having their little party down in Montreal, we don't see how the Westerners can fail to come out on top. The game ought to draw a packed house, it's bound to be a fight to the finish before it's all over.

From the Blue Room . . . The following are asked to turn out with the soccer team that will represent the rest of the University against the Engineers on Saturday morning. Bill Rainey, Hank Vos, Doug Grant, Ed McKinley, Blake Miller and Wally Ezy. Meet on the front campus at 3.30 today.

Varsity End Harvey Hall North Toronto Graduate

Among the newcomers to the Varsity Blues this year is Harry Hall, a six-foot end who preceded team-mate Walt Radzick out of North Toronto Collegiate.

Harry is another of the young Blues, only nineteen years old, and is a very quiet conscientious student. Playing at end for the Blues is tough for a rookie with the likes of Fred Snales, Don Smith, and George Stulac around, but Harry is looked upon by coach Bob Masterson as a real comer.

Hall played flying wing for the Intermediates last season, but sat most of the season out with a crippling injury. He had previously started for four years at North Toronto in Bobby Coulter's backfield.

Among the sidelights in Harry's athletic career is the fact that he is a top-flight tennis and badminton player. In high school he won the singles championship in tennis. A broken wrist sustained at the Blues training camp kept him from playing on Varsity's Senior Intercollegiate Tennis team.

Harry also excelled in track while at North Toronto, and won the 100 yard and 200 yard dashes in the high school meet. With several more years of action left for Harry Hall, he may well develop into one of the Blues best-ever ends.

Freshman Walter Radzick Is King-Size Blue Lineman

Walt Radzick, king-sized tackle of the Varsity Blues is a football rarity in that he made the big jump from High School to College Football in a single season. Six-foot two tackle Walt carries his 225 pounds thundering into enemy backfields repeatedly each Saturday afternoon. He is aptly named, by his teammates, the "Rookie" and "Kid", being, as he is, the youngest man on the team—a mere nineteen years last June.

Extra-Football time is spent by Walt in classes of the PHE course at Varsity, one which assures him of at least two more years in Blue and White. His football debut in life was as a fullback with the North Toronto Bantams. In Junior ball he was All-Star two years running and in his senior years won two more All-Star ratings and was named the "Outstanding Player" in the Red Feather Tournament of Champions.

Added to his Football feats are Walt's abilities in the world of Track and Field. The shot-put is his forte and, in his High School years placed first, third, then first in that competition.

One of his teammates remarks, "This kid is great, and mostly because he is the first rookie I see who is so vicious; this 'kid' is one real tough guy."

Western will face a healthy and surging Tricolor unit; Ron Stewart and Al Kocman now being fully recovered from the flu hangovers that slowed them last week. Against the Blues, sick as they were supposed to be, Stewart and Kocman carried most of the Gaels attack and ran wild over Varsity for the first fifty minutes of play. Back in shape this week they should be even better.

Western counters with the strongest line in Intercollegiate Football this year. Tackle Ted Roman, end Bob Turner and centre McGee all were named to the Canadian Press College All-Star team this week. Weight-wise and also in respect to experienced men, the Mustangs have a solid edge on the Gaels, but this is a game where the records go to the winds. Sudden death for either club this semi-final is unpredictable, unless of course, you happen to be One-Eyed Benny who knows all.

With the Western and Queen's backs well matched, the difference is likely to lie in the lines and defences of the two clubs. On the season Western has the better defence and at least as good an offense. The Gaels cannot match the weight of the Mustang backs and they have no pass attack to compare with Western's. The ground game of both, despite the difference in size of the players is largely similar.

ever, with the strong team that coach Jack Kennedy is icing for this one, there is little chance of the East Yorkers repeating. Kennedy will use roughly the same squad that tied the Marlboros 4-4 Wednesday night, with the addition of shifty winger Ross Woods, who did not make the Vancouver trip with the football Blues. The first line of Dave Reid, Paul Knox, and Clare Fisher will be expected to produce in rare fashion when they meet the older Lyndhursts.

Captain Red Stephen will centre another line, flanked by John Adams and ex-Marlie Dave Jackson. Don Cossar, Johnny Akitt, and Woods make up the third line. The fourth line, which is showing almost as well as the other three in practice, is centred by Tom Riley, with wingers Mert Wright and Ernie Bodnar.

Sam Ashton, John Tolton and Bill Moreau will be used on defence, while Lou Appleby may sit this one out. Appleby injured his ankle in a soccer game on Wednesday, and coach Kennedy may fill the hole with Jackson, who is effective anywhere on the ice.

Next game for the Blues will be a tussle with St. Michael's Junior "A" club Tuesday night in Varsity Arena. That will be the last game before the opening of the regular league schedule, when the Carabins from the University of Montreal make their debut for this season on Toronto ice.

The Varsity Intermediate harrier team journeyed to London last Wednesday for their annual attempt at the Intermediate Intercollegiate Harrier Championship, but were forced to take second place behind a speedy crew from Guelph O.A.C.

The first man to finish the gruelling four mile race was Doug Miller of O.A.C., who was followed closely by Jim Young of MacMaster. Guelph runners placed 1, 3, 6, and 11, for a low score of 21 points. Fortunately for O.A.C. in a race of this sort the fifth man's position does not count against the team score, so that their last man, who finished last in the field of twenty runners, did not lose the meet for his team.

How to amuse oneself when one is sick in bed—or, the first lesson in staying sane,

You will note the theme lacks a certain amount of sport, but the only sport that we have enjoyed recently is the kind that comes over the radio. Thank the powers that be for that blessed little two-dialed machine which brings so much sunlight (mostly in the form of soap into the sick room.)

For three days we have been aimlessly wandering a stone quarry following the whimpering voice of a long-lost child, which we fear may turn out only to be the sound of the wind across the rocks. Such suspense is almost unbearable. Then there is the hood who has been trying to break up a marriage already on the rocks by luring the wife away with stolen diamonds.

There are innumerable illnesses, innumerable tears, and an endless number of things to sell. If all these things sold without music it would be so much easier on the more avid listener. As it is we are left humming the darn things in our delirious sleep.

So someone takes pity on you and comes up to play a game of cards. This is all very well except for the fact that having spent the day almost flat on your back, a sitting position is altogether too shattering. You're just getting used to this new environment when you're called to the phone. Your friend starts sneezing when you get back, so you pass the pills and kleenex and the game continues.

Finally you are left alone. So you whip out the latest magazine and start to analyze your character by a series of jokes. You find you don't like the character you are. By now it's time for the late sports news. The radio is on; you snuggle down and pull up the covers—and the next thing you know you are dreaming of all the angles, and there are none, of getting a free trip to Vancouver. Then you hear God Save the Queen—and it must be getting kind of late.

Miss Ratcliffe sick in bed—J.M.W.

Blues Run Third Lose In Harrier

on the sideline

By JO RATCLIFFE

FOUR BLUES MAKE ALL-STAR TEAM

The University of Toronto football Blues placed four men on the Intercollegiate All-star team released by Canadian press Wednesday night. Western had five players on the mythical squad, Queens two, and the McGill Red-men one.

The dream team was chosen from a poll of coaches, sports-writers, and sportscasters in the four cities of the Intercollegiate Football Union, and is an annual feature conducted by Canadian Press.

The Golden Gaels' flashy little halfback Ron Stewart led the poll, with 48 first place votes out of a possible 60. Varsity's Steve Oneschuk and Western's Gino Fracas tied for second place with 36 votes each. This is the third consecutive year on the all-star team for Oneschuk and Fracas and the second for Stewart.

The new formation innovated by the Western Mustangs, the Diamond T, prompted the voters to pick four halfbacks along with a quarterback instead of adding a flying wing. Western's Don Getty again made the quarterback spot, while Varsity's Bob Pinkney was the other half chosen.

Other Blue players on the team were guard Bobby Waugh, and end Fred Smale. The Mustangs' Bob Turner filled the other end position, while Ted Roman at tackle and Don McGee at centre were the other Western men. Guard Sherman Hood won the other guard spot while the lone Redman on the team was tackle Clyde Whitman.

Notable miscues were Varsity's able fullback, Phil Muntz, who led the league in ground gained last season, and Queens fiery fullback Al Kocman.

BOB PINKNEY

FRED SMALE

BOBBY WAUGH

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR RENT
Boxborough St. W., single room; no grill privileges. Comfortable, well decorated, warm, quiet, close to subway and Avenue Rd. bus. Phone WA. 1-7276.

FOR RENT
One large double and two singles. 217 Beverly Street, close to University. Contact Mrs. Shacter, WA. 3-6256—meals optional.

MALE STUDENT
Room, cooking privileges, private bath and entrance. $5.00 per week and services. WA. 4-4224.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

EXPERT TYPIST
Fifteen years experience, specializing in theses, manuscripts, maximum charge—30c per double spaced page. Mrs. Grossman, 986 Castlefield Ave., RU. 1-1041.

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle—LY. 3526.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services— all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-9483—21 Russell St., (just off St. George St.)

FOR SALE
Christmas trees for sale from nursery. Select pine. Unlimited supply available. Delivered to your lot. Phone ST. 8-7403.

Typing
Notes, theses, manuscripts, etc., typed, edited, duplicated, quickly and reasonably. WA. 3-7830.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

O.C.E.	Mon. Nov. 22	Tue. Nov. 23	Wed. Nov. 24	Thur. Nov. 25
5:30-6:30	St. H. Fr.-Vic. Fr.	UC Jr. Sr.-Meds. A	POT Sr.-PHE III	PHE I-Vic. Sophs. B
6:30-7:30	Vic. Sophs. B-St. H. Sophs.	PHE I-UC Sophs.	Pharm.-St. M. B	St. H. Sophs.-UC Sophs.
7:30-8:30	St. H. Jr.-Vic. Jr.	Vic. Sophs. A-PHE II	Meds. B-Nurses Jr.	UC Jr. Sr.-Vic. Sr.
8:30-9:30	St. H. Sr.	UC Fr.-POT Fr.	Nurses Sr.-St. M. A	Vic. Sr.-UC Fr.
L.M.	Mon. Nov. 22	Tue. Nov. 23	Wed. Nov. 24	Thur. Nov. 25
5:00-6:00	Meds. A	POT Sr.	POT Fr.
6:00-7:00	UC Fr.	PHE III	St. H. Jr.-Sr.
7:00-8:00	Pharmacy	Meds. B	PHE II
8:00-9:00		Nurses Jr. Sr.

BASKETBALL REPRESENTATIVES—Important meeting Monday, Nov. 29 at 1:00 p.m., Falconer Hall. If you cannot come yourself, please send an alternate.

MANAGERS—Team medicals must appear in W.A.A. Office by Nov. 24th or team will be disqualified.

Some teams play TWO games this week. Please check schedule carefully

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER —Division II Final—North 12:30—EMMANUEL vs. LAW.
LACROSSE 1:00 SPS IV vs. Vic. II—Sukmanowski, Smela
VOLLEYBALL 1:00 Jr. SPS B vs. SPS III—Sora
4:00 St. M. D vs. Trin. B—Diemer
5:00 U.C. VI vs. SPS VII—Diemer

INTRAMURAL MEETINGS TODAY

1:00 p.m.—Staff Room—Intramural Sports Com. Emergency Meeting
1:00 p.m.—Intramural Office—Lacrosse Standing Com. re playoffs
1:00 p.m.—Fencing Room—Hockey Referees Rules Clinic

INTRAMURAL MEETINGS NEXT WEEK

Monday, Nov. 22—5:00 p.m.—Intramural Sports Committee
Tuesday, Nov. 23—1:00 p.m.—Basketball Standing Committee
Wednesday, Nov. 24—1:00 p.m.—Swimming Standing Committee
All above meetings will be held in the Staff Room, 2nd Floor, Hart House.

Varsity Stadium

Western vs. Queens

SEMI-FINAL PLAYOFF

SATURDAY, NOV. 20th . . . AT 1:30 P.M.

SPECIAL STUDENT RATES

By arrangement with Queen's and Western, Varsity coupon book holders may purchase reserved seat tickets in a portion of the regular student section at the special price of $1.00. These are on sale at the Athletic Office INSIDE COUNTER, and are available from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday to Friday. Coupon book holders may purchase additional tickets to their own by presenting the coupon books of their friends; and book holders may purchase a ticket for a non-student beside their own at full price if so desired.

COUPON MUST BE PRESENTED IN ORDER TO OBTAIN SPECIAL RATE.

Regular reserved seat tickets are on sale at Box Office, Athletic Office, Hart House, $2.50, $2.00, $1.50.

GIRLS, Are You Broke?

Aren't we all! A new dress for Christmas would be nice . . . especially if it can be paid for after New Years'. Drop in anytime between lectures.

HELMAR

46 ST. GEORGE STREET

WA. 1-5978

NO TIGHT, FUSSY CURLS HERE!

This hairdo was made with Bobbi
... the special home permanent
for casual hair styles

Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent is made to give you lovelier, softer curls . . . the kind you need for today's casual hairdos like the "Bobbi Bob" pictured above. A Bobbi wave is never tight, never frizzy. Right after using Bobbi your hair will have the beauty, the body, the soft, lovely look of naturally wavy hair. And it will stay that way for weeks and weeks!

with water, let dry, brush out—and that's all! No clumsy curlers to use. No help needed.

Ask for Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent. If you like to be in fashion—if you can make a simple pin curl—you'll love Bobbi! $1.75

Bobbi PIN-CURL PERMANENT

Bobbi PIN-CURL
PERMANENT

Just pin-curl as usual. Apply Bobbi, rinse 45 minutes later. When hair is dry, simply brush out. No neutralizer needed. No curlers, no re-setting. So easy, you do it yourself.

CUP

Runneth Over

By JANE GRIFFIN

The Varsity seems to have a far-reaching influence these days. Prompted by its story on the Kissing Arch, the McGill Daily is campaigning for the initiation of a similar institution on their own campus. Reasons why this would be a Good Thing:

- (1) It would make the cold Montreal winter warmer.
- (2) It would inspire more student spirit.
- (3) Traffic would automatically stop and students who are late for lectures would not be forced to wait for the changing lights.

West Virginia University has gone rustic lately. The Daily Athenaeum announced that as part of the Mountaineer Weekend they held a beard-growing contest. The beards must be artistic achievements in order to qualify. Just any old beard won't do. They were judged according to "uniqueness of style, as well as the contestant's resemblance to the 'typical' mountaineer. It's the shape—not the length—that counts!"

Also in the Daily Athenaeum, appears this football story:

A Wisconsin State College football player appeared recently in a Milwaukee civil court to have approved an insurance settlement as a result of an automobile accident.

The player told the court that his hearing had been impaired as the result of a brain injury received in the auto accident.

The judge asked the young star how he could hear the signals on the football field, if his hearing was bad.

He answered, "I don't have to, I give 'em. I'm a quarterback!" The judge immediately approved the settlement.

Another football story is being told at Marquette University in Milwaukee:

A freshman football player was found sitting dazedly in front of his locker after a particularly rigorous game. When an aide asked him what the difficulty was, he replied, "They hit me so hard out there I've forgotten my combination."

Series of Lectures Will Commemorate Kant Anniversary

The death of Immanuel Kant will be commemorated by a series of lectures, the Department of Philosophy has announced. This year marks the 150th anniversary of Kant's death.

Three lectures will be given on Kant's philosophy on Wednesday afternoons at 4:30 p.m. in Rm. 8, University College. On November 24, Professor Dryer will speak on the "Core of Kant's Critique of Pure Reason." Professor Mehlberg will speak concerning "Kant's Philosophy of Science" on December 1. "Kant's Concept of History" is the lecture delivered on December 8 by Professor Fackenheim.

Kant was a German philosopher who was concerned with the method of gaining knowledge. He was particularly interested in values and justice and his theory of the categorical imperative, the element of compulsion in morality, is one of his greatest contributions to philosophy. His most famous piece of work is his Critique of Pure Reason.

SPORT SHIRTS

by

Birkdale

You will appreciate the smart styling, the feeling of complete ease which these distinctive "Birkdale" sport shirts offer... all with long sleeves, hidden top button, and two buttoned flapped pockets... in either fine spun rayon or rayon gabardine... with a choice of nine harmonizing plain shades... an outstanding value at

EATON'S OF CANADA

non-conformists!

Attire at Ryerson

Director of Chemistry at the Ryerson Institute of Technology, Dr. Grant Hines, last Thursday posted a notice insisting that all students conform to the dress regulations which require that shirts and ties be worn to all classes.

In part the edict read: "Collars and ties are obligatory for all male students, accordingly, no one will be admitted to lectures unless so attired. Ties may be removed during lab periods only as they constitute a safety hazard."

Student opinion is against this ruling. The main reason given is one of economy. Another reason for objection is that in class the students work with chemicals, and on dusty desks.

Principal H. H. Kerr warned the students that those who refused to comply with the edict "Will be recorded as non-conformists in their permanent school records."

He said that Dr. Hines was acting independently in posting the notice. All dress is voluntary, but slovenliness is apt to injure the student's record.

He also pointed out that neatness was in the interest of the student, as it is an important factor in the obtaining of employment.

Principal Kerr pointed out that the few who were not dressing properly were hurting not only themselves, but the majority, who were more careful in the matter of dress.

Campus capers call for Coke

How long can Jack be nimble?
Square dancing's rugged... better tune up now and then with refreshing Coca-Cola.

7¢

Including Federal Taxes

"Coke" is a registered trade-mark

C-18

COCA-COLA LTD.

Canada's Mildest, Best-Tasting Cigarette

IT'S THE BALL OF THE FALL

The Engineering Society Presents

"Cannon Capers"

The All-Campus Informal

3 BANDS — FEATURING FRANK BOGART

HART HOUSE

9.00 p.m. Fri. Nov. 26

Tickets: $2.00 Per Couple

On Sale in the Engineering Stores

Christmas Employment
POST OFFICE

The postal authorities in Toronto have notified the S.A.C. Employment Bureau that students will NOT be given the customary preference for Christmas Employment. This is due to the general employment situation which finds many heads of families in need of work. Students desiring post office employment at Christmas may register at any post office on the chance that further openings will be available.

POLISH STUDENTS' CLUB

Graduation Banquet

November 21 — 5 p.m.

62 CLAREMONT STREET

• Entertainment

• Dancing

BLUES SLIP BY UBC 5-3

Vancouver, Nov. 21 (OUP)—The Toronto Varsity Blues, proving themselves to be the better second-half team for the fourth straight time, scored two third-quarter singles on the fine kicking of halfback Steve Oneschuk to nip the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds 5-3 here Saturday afternoon.

The score was knotted at 3-3 at half-time, after Oneschuk had booted a field goal in the second quarter, UBC's Bob Morford had kicked a field goal on the play of the second frame to put the Vancouver school momentarily in front of the Blues.

Morford is an English rugby star who personally beat the University of California Golden Bears two years ago with a pair of fifty-yard penalty goals. He was recruited an hour and a half before Saturday's game to handle the Thunderbirds' kicking after being sidelined throughout the season due to a blood condition.

The match changed from the passing game that had been forecasted to a hard-hitting ground game. Varsity backs Steve Oneschuk and Phil Muntz, each with a seven yards average per try, and Rich Bethune with a 7.3 average, found big holes in the Thunderbird line to crash through often for medium gains.

Harry Wilson's passing arm showed only flashes of his touted brilliance when he fired thirty-seven and fifteen yard throws. The Birds suffered from the loss of All-Conference second string tackle Kevin O'Connell, out with a sprained ankle, and were also badly hurt by the first-quarter injury to ace fullback Jim Boulding who tore a knee ligament on a line smash.

The surprisingly powerful showing of the Birds, who could possibly have won the even game, did much for the status of the Evergreen Conference, in which the Birds are winless. It also provided a shock for most of the Vancouver people who showed their lack of hope for the Thunderbirds by staying away in droves. Only 5,500 fans turned out to Howie McPhee Memorial Stadium for the game.

Toronto threatened early in the game as the Thunderbirds, awed by the pre-game buildup given the Blues, seemed to give way. But Ian Stewart intercepted a Wilson pass on the UBC twenty yard line, the closest the Blues got to the Vancouver end all

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIV — No. 40

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Monday, November 22, 1954

WEATHER
Cloudy and
Mild

Mustangs Top Gaels On Last Play Queen's Fumble Recovered For TD

Pass Receiver

—VSP by Paul Kyselka

game, and the Thunderbirds rallied.

Sparked by quarterback Ted Duncan the Birds started marching down the field and on the first play of the second quarter Morford kicked a field goal to put the Birds ahead 3-0.

Toronto immediately replied with Muntz and Bethune ripping off large gains. Bethune raced for a forty-three yard major that was called back because of a holding penalty called against the Blues, UBC held on the next play and after an exchange of kicks the Blues took over at midfield.

(Continued on Page 6)

Blues To Visit London For Yates Cup Playoff

by MOISHE REITER

They were crying on the field, they were sobbing in the stands. For the Gaels and all the hearts behind them it was tragedy. Western's Mustangs and their fans could find no smiles either. They could only tremble in relieved hysteria. On the last play of the game a desperation field goal attempt from 40 yards out had slipped away from Ron Stewart, behind the Gaels' goal line, and Mustang's Don Killinger had fallen on it for the winning points. The final score—Western 20, Queen's 18.

Some called it blind luck. Others called it another great Mustang clutch play. Whichever it was it brought the Londoners into the Yates Cup final against the Varsity Blues, the game to be played next week in London's Little Memorial Stadium.

Western controlled the game for only ten minutes of the rainy afternoon, with Queen's running them at will through the remaining fifty. But the Mustangs made their moves count and came from behind on the passing of Don Getty, the receiving of Murray Henderson, and the running of Gino Fracas to close the gap. The final mistake, the one that gave Western victory, was made by Ron Stewart, the man who had given the Gaels the edge throughout, the previous fifty nine minutes.

Gino Fracas' field-goal attempt went twenty yards, slithered another twenty, got away from Stewart and Killinger fell on it in the end zone. The game had ended and there was no need to try the convert. The edge was Queen's. The victory went to Western.

From the opening kickoff things went Western's way, as the Mustangs drove downfield, counting six first downs in succession, topping their march off with an unconverted touchdown. Gino Fracas, Intercollegiate individual Scoring Champion, ran the ball over centre from the Gaels one yard line. The best Queen's could manage was a long single from the boot of Jocko Thompson, leaving the Mustangs with a 5-1 first-quarter lead.

In the second quarter Queen's again came close but still could do no better than a single on another long kick by Thompson. Half-time score . . . Western 5-Queen's 2.

Soon after the start of the last half, Bill Fowler, who had already conceded the two singles to Thompson by running the ball back to the deadline, gave away what was, until that unbelievable last second, the whole game. Thompson, on third down for Queen's kicked to the Western

(Continued on Page 6)

WUS Presents Treasure Van Display

The Treasure Van of Handcrafts will be holding its annual sale and display in the Debates Room at Hart House starting today. Treasure Van is under the auspices of World University Service, the proceeds going to its international programme of scholarships and aid to university communities with inadequate facilities.

All New Directory Alphabetical List

The new student directory (1954-55) is really something new. A comparison of this year's directory and last year's shows that a new method for listing students has been used.

All students in the university have been listed alphabetically in the new directory—a change from other years when students were listed under faculty and year. "It is hoped that, in general, the Directory in this new form will prove to be more useful than formerly," said J. C. Evans, Registrar.

Names are listed on one line with course and year after. Addresses and phone numbers are listed below. Each page is done in two columns with spaced entries, rather than the old method of line after line of names.

(Continued on Page 3)

Featured this year in the display are dolls donated from all over the world, and a gold and silver chest from HRH the Maharajah of Mysore. The dolls come from as far away as Japan and Korea.

The articles for sale are handcrafts from Greece, India, and Manitoulin Island. The Greek goods are an innovation at Treasure Van; they include such things as bracelets and other ornaments and jewellery. The Indian and Manitoulin handcrafts were here last year.

Mrs. Mulvaney is in charge of Treasure Van this year. She has brought it from Eastern Canada and the sale will continue out to the universities in the western half of the country. The prices, says Mrs. Mulvaney, have been substantially reduced from last year.

Treasure Van will be here until Thursday when it leaves for McMaster and then on to McGill. The sale finishes up at Victoria, British Columbia on March 3.

Because of the reduced prices, Treasure Van is slightly behind last year, but Mrs. Mulvaney is hopeful that things will pick up from here on. She feels that the articles will sell themselves if people will come to see them.

W. J. Dunlop, Minister of Education, will open the sale at 2 p.m. today. It runs until 10 p.m. in the evening.

—VSP by Ed. Hoskiw

"Which Twin Has . . ."

Caesar, Coffee and Cakes At Classicists Clambake

There's just no escape from taking some Caesar in High School, Des Seles (IV SMC) admitted sadly. But he insisted that there should be more variety in the authors studied.

Mr. Seles was speaking at the monthly meeting of the Victoria College Classics Club, held Thursday night in the Copper Room of Wymilwood to discuss "Is the teaching of Classics in the High Schools satisfactory?" Seles also felt that spoken Latin should be emphasized more than it is now, and that Latin should be brought up to date. Not only should the Classical period of Latin be taught, but also Mediaeval and Modern Latin.

Margaret Evans (III Vic) pointed out that by "emphasizing spoken Latin, you would be changing the language. She claimed that Mr. Seles' ideas tended to be impractical, in that they didn't consider the average student.

After the group had decided that, if possible, the study of Latin should be begun earlier in the educational system, and had discussed the value of Latin and Greek for thought content, aesthetic value and improvement of English, the more formal part of the meeting ended, and informal conversation about the Classics competed with coffee and cake.

four flying dutchmen

By K. R. CRYDERMAN

Four Netherlands airmen, Flight Cadets Groenenberg, Rientjes, Van Beusekom, and Van London recently made a flying visit to the "City of Churches" to see whether or not the highly-coloured versions of Toronto University life are all that they are cracked up to be.

Among other stories, they had heard that the University of Toronto had more than its just share of beautiful damsels. To prove to us that European chivalry still existed in all its full virility, they of course made the campus their very first port of call. They were not disappointed.

Their only criticism of their Saturday morning visit was that the girls selling tags for the University Settlement were not too willing to accommodate them for dates. They had, however, solved this problem, which conceivably could have assumed genuine international tones, before the Varsity - Queens game got into full swing.

The visit was not all spent, however, at the football game. Ably guided by the writer, himself a six-year veteran of the Hart House lunch line and the interminable library queue, our visitors made a thorough tour of the campus. They noticed, of course the vast multiplicity of architectural designs, the new sprinkled generously with the old dust carried them forcibly back to old familiar landmarks in their native towns of Utrecht and the Hague. Mr. Wilkinson, Assistant Comptroller of Hart House, very kindly pointed out the more interesting nooks and crannies of the building, and took particular pride in ushering the group to the Art Gallery, where the work of John Hall was on display.

One of the men, Flight Cadet London was remarkably surprised to see traces of the old Dutch masters in the young Canadian exhibitor's work. When questioned about his unusual critical judgment, Flt. Cadet Van London explained that every Dutch student, from his first year of school until roughly the equivalent of our Grade Thirteen, has to take an average of four hours a week in Art History and criticism.

For those with a mind for history and the world around them, it is interesting to observe that the Dutch airmen are among the several thousand NATO students, who for the last three years have been receiving Aircrew Training on the various R. C. A. F. Stations throughout Canada.

The Dutch visitors like their counterparts from Norway, Denmark, France, Belgium, Portugal and Italy, besides acquiring a thorough working knowledge of English are learning to realize the tremendous value of living. The Air Force, they have found, like the University, can be a wonderful training - ground for the dissolution of national prejudices and misunderstanding. "This process is well on its way", they confided "when instead of thinking of your fellow student as a Frenchman or Italian, you think of him, first of all as Maurice or Luigi - in other words, as a friend first; then as a representative of a particular nation."

The University tour, the ride on the subway and the visit to the Royal Winter Fair have only confirmed the desire of Flight Cadets Gruenenberg and Van London to return to Canada, once they have completed their term of compulsory service in Holland, and if possible, to begin their studies on this campus. May we conclude this little interview by saying in our most broken Dutch; "Danku" and "Tot Ziens". In simple English, this means, "Until we see you again" and "Thanks for coming".

THE MOST COMFORTABLE SOCKS YOU CAN WEAR!

HAPPY FOOT

HEALTH (SOCK)

NEW!—

comfy-cushion top

—Eliminates leg-binding, keeps sock up.

You'll be "at ease" from head to toe.

INSIST ON...

HAPPY FOOT

The original cushion sole—for that "walking on air" feeling.

At your favourite hosiery counter

McGregor

EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED FOR 90 DAYS WEAR BY

QUALITY SOCKS FOR MEN AND BOYS

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

STUDENT TOURS TO EUROPE

LIMITED TO STUDENTS BETWEEN THE AGES OF 19 AND 26
Under the personal guidance of a well-known University Professor.

TOUR # 1 81 DAYS $1,270.00

England, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 1

TOUR # 2 74 DAYS $1,135.00

England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 8

Both Tours sail on the well-known CUNARD LINE

Write, call or telephone for illustrated descriptive folder.

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

(Kenneth B. Conn, President)

2 College St.

Phone 491494

TODAY

1.00 p.m. — HILLEL FOUNDATION—186 St. George St.—Survival of Jewry in the Galut.

4.00 p.m. — INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB — Falconer Hall. Dr. Carvalho — Brazilian Approach to International Relations.

—PSYCH. CLUB and S.C.M. — West Hall, University College. Dr. Cappon — Psychiatrist looks at Religion.

—U.C. MUSIC CLUB—Women's Union Theatre—Casting.

COMING-UP

TUESDAY

8.15 p.m. — U. of T. GERMAN CLUB—Common Room St. Hil-da's — Panel Discussion: — Germany Today.

Campus capers call for Coke

Parties click when the mood is right. With enough Coke on hand you can set the scene for a gay session... anytime.

7¢

Including Federal Tax

COCA-COLA LTD.

"Coke" is a registered trade-mark.

STUDENTS MEET LEGISLATORS

Representatives of the Student administrative council met with eight federal members of Parliament on Friday to discuss university scholarships.

Bill Angus, President of SAC and chairman of the meeting said that he was reasonably encouraged by the sympathetic response shown by members of all three parties. Typical of the members' attitude was an offer by Mr. Hellyer to lend his car and supply gasoline when a student delegation travels to Ottawa to present its brief to the government in February.

Frank Enfield, Liberal MP, said that he was sympathetic to a scholarship program. However, he suggested that in view of a possible, unemployment problem, the government may not be in a position to grant the full amount of five million dollars.

By DOUG STEWART

A. H. Hollingworth stated that while the MPS present showed unanimous approval of the NFCUS plan, they could not speak for the government as a whole. He thought, though, that the government would realize the social benefits to be obtained through a scholarship program. "There are other values which should be considered more important than expenditures", he said.

Norm Chalmers, chairman of the NFCUS scholarship Campaign Committee said "All the members of Parliament present expressed agreement in principle of our plan for aid to deserving students. Our immediate purpose this afternoon was to communicate our program to representatives of the three major political parties, and to obtain their views and suggestions. We have done this, and found them extremely cordial."

The meeting was part of a NFCUS plan to present the details of its scholarship program to members of the federal and provincial governments across Canada before presenting a brief to the federal government in February. The program would cost approximately five million dollars after it had been in effect for four years, and would aid ten thousand students.

The mandate to organize and co-ordinate the campaign was given to Toronto at the NFCUS conference last month. In this connection two Toronto students, Norm Chalmers and Peter Martin will meet Prime Minister St. Laurent early in December to present the views of the National Federation and to obtain his suggestions.

—VSP by Moishe Reiter

Sheila Young, director of the recent survey of student earnings, discusses the problems of increased aid to students with two members of Parliament.

On the right is Roly Michener (St. Paul's Toronto) and on Sheila's left is A. J. Cameron (High Park Toronto). —VSP by Moishe Reiter

New Finds Aid Biblical Improvement

Dr. W. G. McCullough, Professor of Oriental Languages at

IRC To Discuss Brazilian Affairs

Dr. Pedro Xisto de Carvalho will speak on "A Brazilian Approach to International Relations", today, at 4 p.m. He will speak at an open meeting of the International Relations Club at Falconer Hall.

A lawyer by profession, Dr. de Carvalho is currently associated with the Cultural Division of the Department of External Relations of Brazil, and he is in charge of Brazilian studies in Canada.

Dr. de Carvalho has been assistant to the President of the University of Sao Paulo in charge of studies of international relations.

He has been associated with the Brazilian Foreign Service. He was Brazilian Civil Attache in Bolivia, and Cultural Attache to the Pan-American Union in Washington.

U.C., in his lecture on The Bible and Recent Manuscripts stressed the necessity for scholars to examine recent manuscripts. "There is room for improvement in the Old and New Testaments; thus discoveries are valuable," he said. Professor McCullough lectured in the West Hall of University College which was almost completely filled.

In his speech Dr. McCullough mentioned two papyri which, he said, were examples of earlier Greek texts and wider methods of book production. These finds gave an excellent insight into the ways in which codices — manuscripts — were assembled and made it clear that the shift to the codices form was much earlier than suspected. One papyrus was taken from the wrappings of an Egyptian mummy and contained a few verses of Deuteronomy in Greek. This papyrus was the oldest fragment of any part of the New Testament — placed about 100-150 AD.

Dr. McCullough also described the cave discoveries in the area of the Dead Sea in Palestine. Pottery jars were found which dated back to the Hellenistic Age and scrolls which went back as far as 100 B.C. One manuscript contained the entire script of Isaiah in Hebrew. Enormous quantities of coins and papyrus fragments — some Biblical — were found in caves in the area of the Jordan. Their discoveries enlarged the understanding of Judaism from which Christianity evolved.

In closing Dr. McCullough said that we must not lose sight of the aim of papyrus, for these tutored Israel in the ways of God.

All New Directory

(Continued from Page 1)

Theological students are listed in a separate section.

The other sections of the book have listings for the staff, the administrative officers of the university, and a telephone directory for the buildings and offices.

This year, the grand total of students listed in the directory, undergraduate and graduate, is 10,881.

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK

MONDAY, 22ND NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS! GLEE CLUB INVITATIONAL CONCERT. Available at the Hall Porter's Desk—$1.25 each.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — U.S.A. ART EXHIBITION: "Tools and Techniques". Also sculpture by Rae Katz Platner, and "Prints Charming" by Svb Andrews.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel) Daily
- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL — 2nd tenor (Music Room).
- 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel) Daily.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TABLE TENNIS (Fencing Room — Athletic Wing) Running shoes required.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

TUESDAY, 23RD NOVEMBER:

- 1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room). Relax with wax! "Othello" by Shakespeare—part 5 with Hagen, Ferrer Robeson.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
- 7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — FULL GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Music Room).

WEDNESDAY, 24TH NOVEMBER:

- 1.10 p.m. — COLOUR SHOW CRITICISM (Camera Club Rooms). Mr. W. J. Blackhall, past President Toronto Camera Club will give a criticism. Members invited to bring their transparencies.
- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — MIDDAY RECITAL (East Common Room). Windston McKenzie will give a piano jazz concert.
- 4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY Open to women of the University of Toronto.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Men and women of the University of Toronto are exhorted to see this beautiful work. (Through Reading Room).
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Music Room)—1st basses.
- 7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. Prizes.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

THURSDAY, 25TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).
- 5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.
- 6.00 p.m. sharp — CARS LEAVE HART HOUSE FOR ARCHERY CLUB MEET with O.A.C. at Guelph.
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).

FRIDAY, 26TH NOVEMBER:

- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).

SATURDAY, 27TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.30 p.m. — GLEE CLUB INVITATION CONCERT (Great Hall). Buffalo State Teacher College Choir, St. George's Choir of Kingston and the Hart House Glee Club.

SUNDAY, 28TH NOVEMBER:

- 2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m. — VISITORS' SUNDAY. Members, girl friends, relations et al—all are welcome to visit the House. Tea available in the Great Hall at 3.00 p.m.

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

Saturday Nov. 27th to Saturday Dec. 4th at 8.30

BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN — 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner, Ian G. Scott

EDITOR

MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor

Assistant News Editor

Feature Editor

Makeup Editor

A.M. & D. Editor

Sports Editor

Women's Sports Editor

Photo Editor

CUP Editor

Mortician

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE

NIGHT EDITOR

REPORTERS:

C. CLYDE BATTEN

ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengelly

Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth

Mary Alice Hunter

Irene Meyers

Wendy Michener

John Wilson

Jo Ratcliffe

Ed. Hoshkiw

Chuck Williams

Ralph Berrin

Irene Meyers

Roger McQueen

Doug Stewart, John Gehl, Jane Edgar

Copernican Revolution

There is much in the system of "education" employed in this university which proves baffling and frustrating to many students.

A relatively small percentage of the students enrolling in university expect to find in their work here the challenge of the day-to-day pursuit of truth and critical examination they found so lacking in their earlier educational experiences.

They think of the university as a large organism moving ponderously towards the goal of ultimate truth and of themselves as the privileged participants in the great hunt.

The vast majority are here to follow other aims.

It is the eternal irony of the universe which forces the eager searcher to restrict himself to the pace of which his less energetic colleagues are capable.

It is the unhappy application of the misconceived principles of "democracy" which forces the university to provide a temporary haven for those without the ability or the inclination to take from the university everything of which it is capable of giving.

Probably few people bother to seriously examine the method through which they are being educated and fewer still make any attempt to question the validity of the assumptions upon which it is based.

Apparently the lecture system is a direct pandering to mediocrity, and while many professors will express a profound distast for it, very few of them have the strength of purpose to forego it in favour of something more satisfactory.

Furthermore the lecture system instils an attitude of acceptance; an attitude which is entirely too unhealthy to be tolerated in the university community.

The method of preparing essays on prescribed topics must surely be as unsatisfactory to the professors as to the students concerned.

All too frequently the value of the students' opinion is discounted in the face of his comparative lack of knowledge. There are, however, many areas in the field of academic pursuit which are the subject of opinion rather than knowledge.

It is imperative that the student feel not only free, but also compelled to form and give articulation to his ideas in these spheres.

If it must be, and apparently society and a firmly entrenched tradition dictate that it shall, that this existent attitude towards education and the pursuit of truth shall persevere then we are indeed in a parlous condition.

It appears that not only the administration but also the student population is satisfied that the pervading tenor of our institution shall be perpetuated.

Scattered among the student body we find rebellious souls, who ask with a commendable naivete the ageless questions, and find within themselves the timeless sense of dissatisfaction which has always been an effective force in the progress of man.

It would be well for us if we were to encourage such as these, in the hope that from some one of them will come the great intuitive spark which will send the world into another Copernican Revolution.

our readers write:

Examination -- the Other Side

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Varsity has given considerable space to the recent Christian Mission. But has what was reported — not the reporting — been of the right quality? Most of the contributions have been pro or con the propriety of holding the Mission. I want to discuss the kind of use made of it — and by us.

The organizers of the Mission promised a presentation of the message for challenge and for examination.

As to the presentation of the challenge — which has been the main point of debate — a university has responsibility for conduct and life, as well as for examination, and besides examination pre-supposes meeting; hence the on-home-round presentation seems to me justified. This part of the promise was well kept, so far as I could see; the "fundamental affirmations of the faith" were skillfully and impressively presented. But what of the other side?

As an educational institution, our primary emphasis must be upon examination for understanding. Now was it examined? Or was it only received, and faced? Not of course, by the Presentors; we do not expect presentation and critical examination to coincide. Nor in the Discussions, though this may have been their purpose: the mood was too close here.

Then by whom and where was it examined? Where is the rigorous kind of analysis that we as an educational enterprise would expect of ourselves if this were a Keynesian Economics Mission? or a week-long presentation of a Pragmatic Philosophy? Should not this be, indeed must it not be, the responsibility of the hearers? I have met very little of this, and what I have met has been very guarded.

Several points suggest themselves to me as inviting such examination: First perhaps: What is the detailed and concrete filling of the very general and abstract "living in the light of God?" That is what are the here unspoken assertions, commands, promises, which would orient, direct, motivate that life?

Are these, so far as we can judge by independent evidence, correct, useful, good? Again, What is the nature of the authority on which one would properly judge whether to accept or to reject them? Are these grounds the same as those we have come to trust for other life decisions?, or contrary?, or supplementary? And for a third attack, I think we should examine whether this-world language used to the language here used, is a describe what is really another world, or an other-world language used to describe what is really this world, or a this-world language about this world, but used in different — and for the religiously literate a more deft — way than the usual?

Religion, whether true or false, whether lived or only carried, is too important a part of our lives to be dismissed on a "take it or leave it" basis; it demands, as well as invites, examination.

W. J. McCurdy,
Dept. of Philosophy
University College.

Critique on Criticism

The Editor,

The Varsity.

It appears to me "dear sirs" that Mr. Olver was unjustly berated by Mr. Golden in last Monday's issue of the Varsity. His criticism of Mr. Olver's (well-intentioned) suggested changes, implies, to my mind, some quite serious and even sinister considerations. Even if Mr. Olver, or for that matter, any other person may not have had much adequate knowledge or even experience on the subject of a newspaper's composition, nevertheless, there is no excuse for "Brow-Beating" him to the extent done here.

Mr. Golden seems to imply that "YOU" should not write about this or that, or try to improve this or that, because You have no (or not much) experience at it. Because I have some, I know everything and you know nothing, therefore only I should write!

Now I know that experience and acquaintance with subject matter mean a great deal, but these surely aren't everything! Although I can't recall them offhand, yet at the time that I read them, several of Mr. Olver's suggestions seemed quite good. Just because you are on the staff of a newspaper doesn't mean that you know everything, or that your word is unquestionable.

I also take offense at Mr. Golden's article not merely for the criticism of Mr. Olver's views and criticisms, but for what I consider unnecessary abuse, implied over and above it. Experts, of course, are not born, but the only way to get to be one is to be given the chance to contribute something worthwhile.

Although I can't agree entirely with all the views of

Mr. Olver for improving the Varsity, nevertheless, there is some merit in what he says, and I believe that Mr. Golden and perhaps some other members of the Varsity Staff should be a little more tolerant than they sometimes appear to be. I believe in a healthy criticism, but not one which contains unnecessary abuse or intolerance of one's views, even if these views or criticisms aren't put forth by so-called "experts."

A. Gruber III N.C.

Crucifixion

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Your editorial of Nov. 16 gives rise to a discouraging problem, namely, the incompatibility of the "selfless pursuit of truth" with the limits imposed by society.

Only one answer presents itself to me: that the individuality of those "liberated" minds must sooner or later be smothered by the mediocrity which even now prevails.

Our society is chiefly technological in its expression. The vast complexities of technology produce minds which, unable to comprehend, give themselves up to an inexpressive enjoyment of the fruits of science.

When an individual will rise and give expression to truths incompatible with those favoured by society he will swiftly and mercilessly be trampled under the boots of nationalism or whatever name society chooses to give to its "just" retribution.

Given the chance, we shall surely crucify Christ again.

F. J. Griffiths,
II Trinity.

Sequel

The Editor,

The Varsity.

Last Tuesday, I wrote an article to the Varsity, criticizing Mr. Golden's comments, but after waiting all week for it to appear, I am really burned up! I tried to word my English as nicely as possible, but I see that this does not pay! Well, what the H-LL are you NINCOMPOOPS doing down there! Are you running a daily newspaper or a "museum" (better yet, a garbage-can) in which you merely stow away articles submitted by readers, if these articles are unsuitable to your poor tastes?

Please don't hand me any song and dance about being cramped for space, for I know that you waste much of your time on worthless trash, instead of allowing an adequate amount of honest, constructive criticism. I merely wished to state Mr. Golden, and perhaps some members of the Varsity staff assume that they know too much and that "brow-beating" of those who write in is certainly no way to attract prospective contributors to your rag. You leave me no alternative but to conclude that the VARSITY is afraid of having its writers exposed to someone who can honestly cope with their "cheap" efforts.

A. Gruber III U.C.

Ed. Note: The Varsity regrets that Mr. Gruber cannot recall any of Mr. Olver's suggestions, including the ones with which he cannot entirely agree, and the Varsity thanks Mr. Gruber for refraining from unnecessary abuse.

Torontonensis
Your Year in Review

Just 3 per cent. Needed to Meet the Objective

TRI-CHORAL CONCERT

A shout of "Hallelujah" from 150 male voices of all ages will close the Hart House Glee Club's fourth Annual Festival of Choral Music this coming Saturday.

The guest choirs this year are the Buffalo State Teachers' College Choir, and the St. George's cathedral choir from Kingston. The former, the BSTCC, presents an annual concert with the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra and has sung over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Under the leadership of Elias L. Boyd they will sing a group of six songs including the Alleluia from Scarlatti's St. Cecilia Mass and Whiting's Moonlight on the Campus.

The second group, the SGCK, made history in England this summer. They were the first choir ever to replace the Westminster Abbey choir at regular services, and they proved in their two weeks' stay that they could approach the English on their own ground. According to the tradition, it is a choir made up of "gentlemen and boys", with the boys carrying the soprano and the other parts taken by changed voices. Conducted by George N. Maybee they will sing twelve songs, mostly motets, ancient and modern.

The hosts, the HHGC are fairly well known around here. They've made recordings, and they sing now and then. Saturday, November 27th, they'll sing six songs including the Morley's madrigal April is in my Mistress' Face and the folk song Will Ye No Come Back Again? arranged by the conductor, Ward MacAdam.

To close, the three choirs will perform three numbers together, led in turn by each of the three conductors.

It's priced at $1.25.

art, music and drama

bob gill directs shaw's applecart

The term "sha'vian nonsense" does not mean the kind of thing that is found in an ad for Palmolive face soap. It does mean the kind of thing that will be found on the stage of the Hart House theatre starting this Saturday. Namely, George Bernard Shaw's The Applecart.

The play is a political extravaganza which takes place in the future, approximately 1990 A.D. Magnus is king in a constitutional monarchy, strangely like that of England, and is having his problems in dealing with the cabinet. The conflict is over the practical meaning of "kingship" in such a political set-up. The cabinet wants him to be a cypher, a figurehead having no powers. The king finds the restrictions a little difficult, because he is a man of far greater natural power and intellect than all of his cabinet together. From this basic situation Shaw pulls his characteristic comic twists, covering his lesson of the play in witty verbiage. Paradoxically, he seems to be defending real kingship, which means to him a kingship of responsibility and intelligence. Although written in 1929, its "message" proved so apt that it ran a full season in London last year with Noel Coward.

The action, or rather the words, are builded into a curious construction; two acts separated by an entirely irrelevant but highly amusing interlude. This interlude consists of a scene between the king and his ah-beloved. Other people term her his "mistress", but Magnus calls it a "curiously innocent relationship". That might be due to the fact that she, Orinthia, is a very intelligent woman, and the only character in the play to equal him in mental capacity.

King Magnus, played by Rex Southgate, is a quiet, brilliant person. He is opposed most strongly by the prime minister who is played by John Finlay. Sue Saunders portrays the beloved, a brilliant sparkling woman, who fancies herself a goddess. Two other principle characters in the cast of 15 are Mr. Van Haten (Leslie Lawrence) the American ambassador, and Boanergas, (Leon Major), the president of the board of trade. Boanerges is a pompous, self-assured fellow — terribly pro-democracy and the labour party.

There are three settings designed by Pat Corcoran — one for each act and one for the interlude. Act I takes place in an office in the king's palace, the interlude in Orinthia's boudoir and Act II on a terrace of the palace. The costumes are straight out of Vogue, 1990.

Since it is a play of ideas, the main problem in directing, said Mr. Gill, is to get the ideas across. Darkness At Noon also had ideas, but it had much more movement and little episodes rather than a continuous argument. The lighting is simple he said; it is one of those plays where you just turn the lights on and go to it.

—W.R.M.

THIS IS 'BEAT WESTERN' WEEK

Speaking OF SPORT

BY JOHN WILSON

Well it's the same old story; Western and Varsity in a post-season playoff for the Yates Cup. The only difference between this and last year's final is that it's being played in London, and the Mustangs have already had their lucky last play of the game for this season.

It's pretty difficult to say anything about the last minute of Saturday's contest and what went on after the whistle had finished the Gaels for 1954... It just didn't look right from the stands, and after it was all over a disappointed Queens fan was heard saying, "After that I think I'll cheer for Varsity next week".

Just about every spectator in the stadium was cheering for the underdog Gaels, except for the handful who sat in the Western student section. Even One-eyed Benny, who had called the Mustangs to win, and who didn't concede the Blues much chance against Queens in Kingston, was on his feet shouting in support of the Gaels as they roared into an 18-9 lead. We were rather disturbed by the roughing that was constantly being employed by the Westerners, in fact we nearly got into a fight with a rabid Mustang fan while hollering invectives at the "dirty guys" from London.

We can sympathize with the Queens students; the same thing happened to us in the last minute last fall when the Mustangs pulled another one out of the fire with a dramatic finish. We can even sympathize, and we know we shouldn't say this, with Al Kocman. The great little fullback played his heart out, as did Ron Stewart, who for our money is the greatest halfback in Inter-collegiate football today. There was nothing but admiration in the stands for the mighty mite as he played one of the best games of his College career.

Just like the old days when the Argonauts used to win the Grey Cup every year, and football fans across the country formed a mutual I-hate-the-Argonauts club, so Intercollegiate fans will be moulding a similar I-hate-the-Mustangs club this Saturday. Or if they don't, it's about time they did.

Sour Grapes . . .

. . . came from both the London and Kingston papers when they discovered that the Blues were making the much-talked-about trip to Vancouver. It should be sufficient for their understanding that the most probable reason why UBC didn't decide to play the loser of last Saturday's game on the 27th, a suggestion made by Toronto; was that they would rather play a team that was still a winner. Thus they tried Varsity and we must have underestimated our Western cousins' ability to play football. Even if it did rain for four days before the game, the Blues appear to have been fortunate in posting a win.

Mulock Semi-Finals Today

This afternoon the four best football teams on the campus will square off against each other in the semi-finals for the Mulock Cup. Not one of the four camps are prepared to issue predictions, but all are ready for a full day of football.

The game of the year is on tap for this afternoon when St. Michael's and Victoria's football teams hook up for their intramural semi-final game at Varsity stadium. Both teams are up for this game and there isn't very much to choose between them.

Both teams lost only one game in their respective leagues and both were also the high scoring teams in their leagues. But the feature of this afternoon's game will be whether the team of Victoria College which scored more than one hundred points this season can break through the Irish defence which has only allowed seven points to be scored against it. No team has scored on the Irish in their last three games.

The spirit of both teams is high. Both claim that they'll take the game while the coaches offer a sane and sobering reply that it will be a tough game and they aren't going out on any limb to give their predictions. Kane and Fitzhenry, St. Mike's coaches, grinned when they thought of their new surprise plays. But strangely enough, Jules Benson, Vic's line coach, did the same as he thought of the new plays coaches Sopinka and Stevenson have in store for the Irish.

Victoria suffered a bad break last week when it was discovered that ace half-back Norm Williams would be missing today's game because of pulled muscles in his back, an injury he received in the Vic - Skule game. The only Irishman watching from the sidelines will be Leo McGuigan who suffered a broken jaw recently. The hard driving McGuigan will be missed in the game but the Irish claim that they're going to win this one for him.

It won't be long before the game gets under way and may the better team win!

At 2:30 the defending Mulock Cup champion Engineers and the undefeated Trinity Black Panthers will meet at Varsity Stadium in the second game of the semi-finals.

The Engineers have a well-balanced ball club, having been defeated only once this year by Victoria College. That victory by Vic had broken an eleven game winning streak sustained by Skule for the last year and a half. Trinity, on the other hand, has jumped into the limelight, having won all of their league games, four in all, and three exhibition games. Both teams have played seven games. One possible factor, however, that could make Skule a favourite, is that they are the defending champions, and will be fighting harder than ever to retain their championship.

Engineers also have had the advantage of having two quarterbacks, Don Hart and Norm Larsen, who perform equally well at the pivot position. One of the big surprises of the year, however, is the way in which John Whyte has led his dark-horse team, Trinity, to the playoffs. Consequently, it is difficult to predict today's winner.

Some of the linemen of Skule who have played well, but have received little credit for their work are John Short, Jerry Klauke, and Jim Leask; for Trinity Max Sanderson and Dewey Farquharson have played well.

Statistics

	West.	Queens
First downs	27	16
Yards rushing	254	239
Yards passing	158	107
Passes tried	20	6
Passes comp.	11	4
Intercepted by	0	1
Av. punt	38	38
Fumbles	2	2
Penalties	65	21

Running out of his own end zone after receiving one of Jocko Thompson's long kicks is Western halfback, Neil Desborough, the flashy convert kicker. Pursuing him is captain Jack Cook of Queen's who was in on many tackles. This play occurred in the third quarter, with Western holding the slim edge of 9-7.

—VSP by Paul Kyselka

Blues Slip by UBC

(Continued from Page 1)
and marched to the Thunderbird twenty-five. From here Oneschuk kicked his field goal to tie the score at 3-3. With less than a minute left in the first half, Oneschuk again tried for three points but missed the uprights.

Early in the third quarter, Don Cheeseman broke up a UBC drive, intercepting Duncan's pass in Thunderbird territory. Forced to kick on third down, Oneschuk hoisted one into the Bird's end zone where Nestman was rouged to put the Blues ahead 4-3.

UBC rallied again, punching out short ground gains, then Duncan fired a forty yard pass to speedy half John Newton who had outstripped the Blues defenders. Newton juggled the ball momentarily, allowing Oneschuk time to catch him. From here Duncan and Newton moved the ball to the Toronto sixteen, but came inches short on third down and Varsity took over.

The Blues failed to get anywhere and were forced to kick and UBC moved the ball back to the Varsity twenty-five where the Thunderbirds tried a field goal but Bob Pinkney blocked the attempt. Oneschuk supplied the final Toronto point late in the third quarter when Nestman slipped in the UBC end zone and was nailed.

The Thunderbirds threatened again late in the fourth frame when Duncan tossed a thirty-two yard sleeper pass to Bruce Eagle who went to the Varsity twenty-eight. Duncan lost five yards and LaPointe picked up three, then Morford attempted another field goal which was short. Pinkney ran the ball to the Toronto forty where he was knocked into touch. The game finished with the Blues just inside the Thunderbird fifty.

The Blues had the edge in the statistics department gaining fifteen first downs to twelve by UBC. Varsity outrushed the Thunderbirds on the ground gaining 247 yards to 172 gained by UBC. Wilson completed two passes: out of twelve attempts, while Ted Duncan completed three out of seven, and each team made one interception. The Blues set at least one record for the season, as they failed to fumble once during the game. UBC bobbled the ball three times but recovered each time. Oneschuk averaged 38.4 yards kicking, while Morford averaged 38.8. Steve made two kickoffs for an average of 55.5 yards. The Blues were penalized sixty yards to only twenty to UBC.

All round the Toronto line was tougher and opened and closed holes better, but the UBC tackling was much more vicious. Harry Wilson didn't seem to be passing too well although the UBC pass defence was better than usual. Both teams played as if it were the world championship.

First Quarter
No scoring.
Second Quarter
1—UBC - field goal (Morford)
2—Varsity - field goal (Oneschuk)
Third Quarter
3—Varsity - single (Oneschuk)
4—Varsity - single (Oneschuk)
Fourth Quarter
No scoring.

Mustangs

(Continued from Page 1)

forty. A Mustang started to run it back, was trapped and flipped a lateral to Fowler. The throw was short, the ball skidding through the mud of the field and away from Fowler. He went after it, three Gaels close after him. He couldn't get it and, trying to keep it from the Gaels, booted it out of bounds. The officials awarded the ball to Queen's on the Western 46. Wally Mellor then dropped back and threw thirty yards to Gary Schrieder for a Gael touchdown.

The strong toe of Gino Fracas, which was later to win the game, brought the Mustangs back with a field goal from 20 yards out. Ted Roman, the punting Western tackle, followed up with a single that went forty yards.

Western tempers cost them—a touchdown when one unidentified Mustang, diving into a pile of tacklers on Ron Stewart, swung a fist at the Queen's man. A roughing penalty, coupled with a fine for talking, brought the Gaels to within yards of the Western goal. A Mellor to Stewart pass took them over and Schrieder's convert was good, making the score 13-9 for the Gaels.

The Western Diamond T formation went into frantic action in the last minutes, with Getty taking the ball from centre, in his deep position, and throwing all over the field. One pass went into the arms of Don Girvin, then right through and into the waiting hands of Bill Surphilis, Gael half, who kicked the ball being fumbled and recovered by Gaels. Two plays later, Stewart slipped and rolled through, the entire Mustang team and over for the score, unconverted.

Mustangs, left with only five minutes, and nine points to make, went to the air, brought out the man who won it for them last year Murray Henderson, and strode downfield. Fracas carried from the one yard line and converted, leaving the difference at three points.

It was unfortunate that the most effective half-back in College ball, Ron Stewart, should have been the goat of that last play. He had already won the game for his team. The Mustangs, who specialize in one thrilling stretch drive per season, may have shot their last bolt last Saturday. It isn't likely that they can do the same thing two weeks in a row. Next Saturday they meet the Blues in London, and, unless the Varsitys spot them points as has recently become their custom, Mustangs' unbeaten streak at home should go with the wind.

Beat Western

- FIRST QUARTER
1—Western - touchdown (Fracas)
2—Queens - single (Thompson)
SECOND QUARTER
3—Queens - single (Thompson)
4—Queens - touchdown (Schneider)
THIRD QUARTER
5—Western - field goal (Fracas)
6—Western - single (Roman)
FOURTH QUARTER
7—Queen - touchdown (Stewart)
8—Queens - convert (Schneider)
9—Queens - touchdown (Stewart)
10—Western - touchdown (Fracas)
11—Western - convert (Fracas)
12—Western - touchdown (Killingier)

BLUES SHADED BY LYNDHURSTS 4-3

East Yorkers Gain Sloppy Win Paul Knox Registers Hat Trick

That you can only play as well as your opposition was demonstrated by the Varsity Hockey Blues Saturday night in East York Arena, as they bowed to the much sloppier East York Lyndhursts 4-3 in an exhibition benefit game. Paul Knox was the individual star for the Blues, firing three goals, assisted twice by Dave Reid, and netting the third by himself. It was the first loss for the Varsity team in three exhibition starts.

Overconfidence might have been the cause of the disorganization exhibited by the Blues in the first period, as they took the ice against a skeleton crew of Lyndhursts. East York dressed only nine players including the goaltender, but were bolstered by the appearance of winger Norm Gray in the second period.

Sam Ashton, stalwart defenceman for the Blues, was injured late in the second period, colliding with the goal post on one of many rushes. Ashton was taken to hospital after the game and may have a fractured forearm, which will put him out of action for at least four weeks. The injury adds to coach Jack Kennedy's problems on the blue line, with Lou Appleby already on the limp with a bad ankle.

Lyndhursts' Johnny Scott was the evening's badman, collecting five penalties for a total of ten minutes in the sin-bin. East York got seven penalties in all, compared to five for the Blues.

The Lyndhursts opened the scoring at 1:35 of the first period as Tod Miller connected on a screen shot blocked from Varsity goalie Hugh Currie's view. They went ahead 2-0 at 10:05 as Rusty Robertson caught the Blue de-

Slow Start

FIRST PERIOD
1—East York - Miller (Hearn) —1:35.

2—East York - Robertson (Howse)—10:05.

3—Varsity - Knox (Reid) —13:05.

PENALTIES—Scott (charging), Bodnar (tripping).

SECOND PERIOD

4—Varsity - Knox (Reid)—3:36.

PENALTIES—Scott (hooking), Scott (roughing), Fisher (highsticking), Fisher (slashing), Fisher (roughing), Bodnar (tripping), Gray (tripping), Hearn (tripping).

THIRD PERIOD

5—East York - Robertson—1:15.

6—East York - Robertson (Slawson)—4:58.

7—Varsity - Knox—8:45.

PENALTIES—Moreau (holding), Scott (interference).

fence asleep in front of the Toronto net. Three minutes later the Blues got back into the game as Knox tallied his first goal taking a pass from Dave Reid in the corner.

Knox tied it up at 2-2 just 36 seconds after the opening of the second frame, scoring the nearest goal of the game after sweeping in on Ted Sullivan from the blue line. Rough play was the feature of this period as East York got five of their seven penalties to two for Varsity. The injury to Ashton came with less than two minutes left in the stanza, when the burly defenceman slid into the goal post after being tripped by Lyndhursts' Gord Hearn.

East York went ahead 4-2 with two quick tallies in the third period by Robertson to complete the clever forward's hat trick. Knox added his third goal midway through the period snaggling the puck from a maze of players around the Lyndhurst goal. With a minute to go Kennedy took Currie from the Varsity net in favor of a sixth attacker but time ran out on the Blues and the game ended at 4-3.

Interfac Hockey Starts

The winter schedule of Inter-faculty hockey activity gets under way today when the Forestry A's meet Pharmacy in Division II action. Division I starts Tuesday with the Dentistry A's and St. Mike's B's tangling at 12:30 in Varsity Arena.

The League will continue through the winter to the Jennings Cup playoffs, sometime in March. Last year the Skule Seniors won the Division I title in a hectic two-out-of-three series with Senior Meds. The Legal Beagles from the School of Law won the Division II championship.

Games are played every day at 12:30, 1:30 or 4:00 and are well worth the watching. There are six groups in the First Division, and two in the Second Division giving thirty-one teams hockey exercise each week, and the league has proved an excellent training ground for future Blues in the past.

"Caribbean Underwater Underworld"

Outstanding color movie of new, exciting world. Exploration of reefs. Skindiving, the newest and healthiest of sports.

MOVE - LECTURE by . . . CORNEL LUMIERE

Author of "Underwater Wonderland" and "Rapture of the Deep"

Presented by Canadian Youth Hostels Association.

EATON AUDITORIUM

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1st — 8.30 p.m.

TICKETS - - - $1.00 and $1.50

ALL SEATS RESERVED

STUDENT TICKETS - - - 75c

ON SALE AT SAC OFFICE

INTERMEDIATE HOCKEY

Team Practices will be held on THURSDAY and FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 25th and 26th at 6.30 p.m.

Emmanuel Soccer Titlists

Trembling drumheads, clanging cow-bells, weird chanting, furtive co-eds with shrill whistles, and other such properties from the nether regions joined eleven fearsome soccer players as Emmanuel faced a hapless Law squad on Friday and won the Division II final in enthusiasm and reckless abandon as the most novel sports event on the campus in a few years.

The tempo of the game followed the usual pattern; both teams played hard and fast; in fact Emmanuel surprised everyone by scoring a goal. On this play Irv Frazer battled his way through a maze of Law legs to drive the ball past goalie Ted Luck.

The aforementioned Luck; in every case of assault presented far more than a forensical argument as he made many amazing moves to save the Law cause. It is unfortunate, though, that he was doing hand-stands in mid-field when Emmanuel scored their second goal.

This second and final goal came in the last half of the game in which Emmanuel quickly gained the upper hand; in fact we could say the game became quite Law-less. On this counter Jim Davies pounded towards the Law goal where some indecision among the goalies and defencemen allowed the ball to roll in front of the open net. Boom! The score was 2-0.

On the sidelines Bill Angus muttered, "It looks like we're losing a decision here", but the Legal Beagles though they seemed to be outplayed were determined not to be outshone. On right fullback was versatile Bill Corcoran, formerly of the Basketball Blues, Captain "Red" Anderson, inside left, led many dangerous rushes on the Purple and Gold goal with centre forward Zorofsky.

GAMES TODAY
FOOTBALL — MULLOCK CUP SEMI-FINALS — VARSITY STADIUM
12.00 noon Victoria vs. St. Michael's—Tobe, Dolman, Wallace, Fraser
2.30 p.m. S.P.S. vs. Trinity—Dolman, Tobe, Wallace, Fraser
LACROSSE
1.00 Med. IV vs. SPS II—Sukmanowski, Urquhart
4.00 Med. V vs. U.C. II—Urquhart, Mackie
1.00 SPS IV vs. Med. I Yr.—Sora
4.00 U.C. V vs. Pre-Med I B—Freem
5.00 Jr. SPS B vs. Med. IV Yr.—Diemer
1.00 Law vs. Med. V
SQUASH
4.20 Trin. C vs. Mod. IV
6.30 For. A vs. Pharm.—Weinert, Stadnyk
HOCKEY REFEREE APPOINTMENTS FOR WEEK OF NOV. 22
Tues., Nov. 23	12.30—Fisher, Reid; 1.30—Riley, Stephen
Wed., Nov. 24	12.30—Lotocki, Nadin; 1.30 Dysart, Tilson; 4.00 Fisher, Reid
Thurs., Nov. 25	12.30—Yakimoff, Smith; 4.00—Yakimoff, McCracken
Fri., Nov. 26	12.30—Naylor, MacLean; 1.30 MacLean, Naylor; 4.00—Riley, Stephen

SHUTE N. DRIBBLE (Basketball Coach)

says: "You need a good guard on your basket."

Keep a good guard on your finances, too . . .

open a current account

at "MY BANK"

BANK OF MONTREAL

Canada's First Bank

Queen's Park Branch:

JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager

Bloor and Bay Streets:

KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

St. George & Bloor Sts.:

T. HARRY BRYSON, Manager

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

U7-54

SPECIAL VARSITY EXCURSION

Varsity vs. Western — NOV. 27

Excursion and ticket arrangements for those going to London for the game

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

$5.00 Return

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27

Leaving TORONTO . . . 8.15 a.m.

GAME TICKETS IN STUDENT SECTION . . . $1.50

Reserved Seats also available . . .

$2.50 and $3.00

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION GAME TICKETS ONLY

Game tickets ONLY on sale at

ATHLETIC OFFICE

TICKET WICKET

from 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Prices $1.50 in Student Section

Reserved Seats $2.50 and $3.00

S.A.C. Offices will sell combination train and game tickets OR train tickets only.

NOW ON SALE

PC Club Raps Seaway Policy Want It All-Canadian Affair

Sharp criticism of the Dominion government's handling of the St. Lawrence Seaway project was levelled here last Thursday at a meeting of the University of Toronto Progressive Conservative Club.

A motion against Ottawa policy carried 13-3.

The anti-seaway-policy resolution read: "That this Club condemns the present Federal government for its handling of the negotiations of the seaway and re-affirms its stand for an all-Canadian seaway."

Discussion over the matter was led by James Sintzell. The club's resolution culminated a half-hour discussion.

A talk on principles and policies of the Progressive Conservative party was given at the opening of the meeting by Joseph Slogan, president of the PC Student Federation.

Slogan said the organization reached more universities than NFCUS. NFCUS, he said, has 21 member universities across the nation while the PC Student Federation had 22.

Slogan was addressing the local club on "The Six 'C's' of the Conservative Party". About 16 students attended the meeting.

A new club president was picked at the meeting. He is John Gamble who was elected unanimously to fill the shoes of resigning president Ann Cooling who explained she was bowing out due to the pressure of studies.

H House Warden, Reps Attend Union Conference

A regional conference of the Association of College Unions, held at the University of Buffalo last week, was attended by representatives of Hart House. Among the other larger universities which participated were Cornell, Columbia, McGill, New York City College, Rochester and Syracuse.

The association is organized by universities of Canada and the United States having student unions on their campus. The general purpose of the union is to provide an informal centre for cultural, social and recreational activities.

The reaction of one of the House delegates to the conference, Murray Mogan, was a realization of "entirely different outlooks".

"Pointing out that Hart House operates under an unusually advantageous system of benefits and endowments, Mogan felt it cannot justly be compared to some struggling unions which function even without a building. "We strongly sympathize with the others," said Mogan, "though we do not share their problems."

The conference representatives agreed that next year it would be wise to have a SAC delegate from Toronto, since many of the unions serve the function of our Students' Administrative Council. The strength of the fraternities was also commented upon.

The delegates expressed general satisfaction with the Buffalo conference. "From the viewpoint of the advantage to Hart House, it was not really successful," said Mogan. "But from the viewpoint of establishing student relationships and adding incentive to the leadership of the student unions, it was a considerable achievement."

Laura Davis Guest Speaker Approach to God is Subject

"Religion is man's approach to God", said Laura Davis in an address to the Baha'i Student Group, topic—A New Day Needs New Teachings", in Falconer Hall.

"Many people wonder why a new religion is necessary when we have so many now. Except that its teachings are best suited for the day in which we live, the Baha'i Faith is not a new religion, but a revival of the one eternal truth."

Mrs. Davis described this age as the time of the maturing of mankind and said that it was wonderful to be living at a time when each person is allowed to express his thoughts, as they were not at the time of Galileo. She said that the right of each individual independently to investigate the truth was a law of Baha'u'llah and claimed that he gave many principles which had not been given by any other messenger of God and which have begun to gain universal acceptance since the inception of the Baha'i Faith a little over one hundred years ago.

Asking her audience to investigate the Baha'i writings for further proof, she gave several examples of His teachings which were suited for this day.

Baha'u'llah also taught that all men are basically the same, something science is beginning to prove, and that religion, which is one, should be the source of unity. He taught that war is, in this day, a crime, and that universal peace must be established. To forward this peace he provided for universal education, a universal auxiliary language and an International House of Justice, in which justice between groups would go along with the Christian ideal of love and forgiveness between individuals.

Remote Tribe Visited

Naskopi Indians Practice Wierd Ritual

Weird pagan rituals practised by a remote North American Indian tribe in the Canadian arctic does not preclude a belief in Christian principles, claimed Dr. Jacques Rousseau of Montreal when he addressed a regular Royal Canadian Institute meeting here Saturday night.

The Director of the Montreal Botanical Gardens and Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science described a typical Indian ritual — the "Shaking Tent" ceremony.

Members of the tribe would gather outside and await the entrance of spirits into the tent, he said. When the canvas began to quiver and vibrate it was a signal that the spirits were, on their way in.

Dr. Rousseau explained that one of the tribe — a "Shaman" — had been appointed to slip into the tent beforehand in order to give the pole a thorough pumping.

Dr. Rousseau's address, augmented with lantern slides, concerned the far north bush Indian civilization of the Naskopies — a tribe living around remote Lake Mistassini in the North West Territories.

Forced to the north by the white man, said Dr. Rousseau, the Indians behave today much as their ancestors did over 100 years ago. The only hint of the modern world, he said, was the appearance of the tent replacing the wig-wam and the rifle.

The Naskopies live by trapping fur-bearing animals, Dr. Rousseau said, and by fishing. They work for about eight months out of the year and "take it easy" during the summer.

this fall be right in style

with Ritchie
"GRANDSTANDERS"

It's really wonderful what a new pair of campus-inspired Ritchies will do for your suit, your appearance and your personality! The leathers for Ritchie "Grandstanders" are specially selected for Fall wear. Your feet deserve a pair! Most styles from $10.95 to $18.95.

Ritchie shoes for men

THE JOHN RITCHIE COMPANY LIMITED, QUEBEC, P.Q.

DR. DANIEL CAPPON

lectures on

"A Psychiatrist's View of the Nature of Man"

at 5 p.m.

WEST HALL,
UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Chairman: Prof. J. A. Irving,
Victoria College.

Elizabeth Arden Salon

Choose a
Casual
Cut...
for Easier
Hair Care

You need a cut that takes a minimum of care, for busy campus life. A cut that adapts itself to daytime or date-time. A cut that's new, to match your new college clothes. In the Elizabeth Arden Salon, a corps of experts is ready to give you the cut you need... the style that's suited individually to you.

Phone first for your appointment—
call TRinity 9111, local 3041—
the Elizabeth Arden Salon.
Simpson's — Sixth Floor

Simpson's

We're the First!

TWENTY-NINE (29)

SHOPPING DAYS

TILL CHRISTMAS!

TREASURE VAN

TODAY — Debates Room

"EXPORT"
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

SPS, IRISH ENTER FINALS

By MAX ROSENTHAL

Quarterback Don Hart passed his Engineering football team to a 29-12 victory yesterday as he completed approximately 90 per cent of his passes. On many occasions the Skule receivers left the Trinity defenders far behind.

The Engineers accumulated a 24-point lead in the first half which they never relinquished. Don Comish of Skule was the individual standout of the game as he ripped through the line for long gains, on one occasion running 75 yards for a score. He scored three touchdowns. For Trinity Jerry Aziz was the best performer as he combined with quarterback John Whyte to give Trinity a passing-catching combination that helped set up their only two scores in the last half.

Time and time again in the first half, however, Hart threw long completed passes to Bill Karpinski and Jim Moulton to set up the Skule scores. Karpinski caught almost all of the pitches aimed at him, including ones several feet away. At one time, in fact, he snatched the ball out of a Trinity opponent's arms as the opponent was about to intercept a Hart pass.

Trinity showed many spurts of energy in the second half in spite of their 24-point deficit. Centre Max Sanderson, and guards Dewey Farquharson and Mike Shoemaker were unwelcome visitors in the Skule backfield in this half. The Trinity team were able to outscore the Skulemen 12-5, but to no avail.

Skule played a top-notch game in the first half and seemed to sit back and relax thereafter, not wanting to disclose any of their better plays to the St. Mike's scouts, whose team will be trying to avenge their loss to Skule in last year's Mulock Cup game.

Victoria's versatile quarterback Frank Ebenhardt tries to twist away from St. Mike's tacklers in yesterday's Mulock Cup semi-final in Varsity Stadium. Bill McIntyre almost has an arm on Ebenhardt, while Curt Russell moves in to assist him. Jim McKinnon is sprawled on the ground. St. Mike's moved into Thursday's final with a 5-0 victory.

The Engineer's first score, early in the first quarter, covered 75 yards. A plunge by George Kelly, who proved a more than adequate replacement for injured Ken Selby, took the ball from the Skule 25 to the 39 yard line. Then a pass to Karpinski, and an off-tackle smash by Moulton carried the ball to the Trinity 40 yard line. On the next play Kelly cut straight down field in behind the Trinity backs where he caught a looping pass by Hart and ran unmolested for his first of two majorities of the day. Ron Lyons converted.

Late in the first quarter, after each team failed to capitalize on each other's fumbles, Hart threw a screen pass to Comish from the Trinity forty yard line. After following his teammate's blocking Comish broke into the open and raced over for the touchdown. Lyons converted.

By this time the Trinity team seemed completely confused, fumbling several times when they

(Continued on Page 6)

By JOHN VOJTECH

Before a high spirited crowd at Varsity Stadium yesterday afternoon, St. Michael's College football team advanced into the final round in the Mulock Cup quest by virtue of their 5-0 triumph over Victoria. St. Mike's, in living up to expectations extended a streak to four games in which the opposition has yet to score on them. The Irish were favorites to take the game but they encountered a lot of game competition from the Vic team.

The Irish kept plugging away at the Vic line until they had them deep in their own territory. A short Vic kick gave the ball to the Irish on the Vic twenty-two yard line. Jude Fusco brought the ball up to the Vic fifteen. Fusco, on a double reverse, went over for the major dragging a few Vic defenders with him. The convert attempt was unsuccessful.

The last five minutes of play in the last quarter proved to be the most exciting of the whole game, although there were many thrilling moments during the course of the game. Frank Ebenhardt woke up the Vic team and they turned on the heat which caused some anxious moments for the Irish rooters.

Under Ebenhardt's direction, Vic got down to the Irish thirty-three. But the whole Irish line held up under the strain and tore through the Vic line to smear Ebenhardt at the Irish forty-seven, to end the threat.

With three minutes left to go Alban caught an Ebenhardt pass which brought Vic deep into the Irish end again. But try as Vic might they were unable to score. The Irish line was charging too

(Continued on Page 6)

Psychologists Christians Dig Man's Bugs

A Psychiatrist's View of the Nature of Man was the first in a series of four lectures given by Dr. Daniel Cappon on Psychiatry and Religion. The lectures are sponsored by the Psychology Club and the Students' Christian Movement and will be held at 5:00 p.m. in the West Hall of U.C. on the next three successive Mondays.

Dr. Daniel Cappon was educated at Oxford and qualified in medicine at St. Mary's. A member of the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, Dr. Cappon is also the director of the Child and Adolescent Clinic in York Township.

The purpose of the lecture, according to Dr. Cappon, was to describe the nature of man and its principles. Dr. Cappon probed into the many parts of man's mind and described the factors

(Continued on Page 8)

Staffmembers

A meeting of the Varsity sub-committee for the investigation of vice-crime and associated immoral acts in the arbor room will be held in the Sports hour immediately after the Wednesday morning devotional period.

Staffers not attending the devotional periods are asked to read page 267 of the Varsity Staff Handbook, Section seven, subsection two states: "All members of the Varsity will attend devotional periods at least once every 67 years, more or less, at the discretion of the editor."

Varsity editor Clyde Batten says that this week's devotions will be in charge of Charlie Humphries.

Seeds and Scarves

Treasure Van Arrives

W. J. Dunlop, Minister of Education, was present with Dr. Sidney Smith and Warden Joseph McCulley of Hart House to open Treasure Van — 54 yesterday. Jane Farquharson, IV UC gave the welcoming speech. The Canadian consuls from Greece and Hungary were present also to inaugurate the sale for this year.

Treasure Van has travelled from the east coast and will continue on to the western universities. Greek and Indian handicrafts are sold, including scarves, bracelets, Manichai seeds, earrings, and many other such articles.

Mrs. Mulvaney, who is directing the sale for WUS, this year, was pleased with the afternoon's sale. About $735 was taken in the afternoon, and results are not in for the evening sale yet. The big sale of the afternoon—speaking in terms of goods — was fifteen (15) toothpicks, made of ivory. The startling thing about these was that they were sold to one lady.

Bracelets and scarves also seemed to be popular. The Manichai (good luck) seeds were also high, but not as much as might be expected. Apparently the students are not yet worried about their exams.

In general, the flagrant jewelry and ivory brought on the best response, according to the girls working behind the counters. These are U of T students who have volunteered to explain the exhibits to the visitors.

World University Services sponsors Treasure Van to do welfare work in needy universities around the world. Much of the proceeds this year will go to Patna University in India, where the students are badly in need of medical attention, and texts are very scarce indeed. The proceeds of the SHARE campaign will also go towards building a Health Centre, at Patna, although they are raising much of the funds themselves. Treasure Van will be here until Thursday of this week.

"Debating Dead On Campus"—Hurlburt But UTDU Plans New Trials, Yank Tour

The University of Toronto Debating Union passed two motions in their meeting last Friday. They voted to rehold the debating trials "to give more people a chance to come out," with the two winning debaters going on the week long, all expenses paid tour of the U.S. They also decided to carry on with plans for the U.S. tour. Gordon Hurlburt, Chairman of the UTDU said that a majority of the faculties were represented at the meeting, so that he felt that a majority of the faculties were in favor of the trials.

Hurlburt stressed that the final decision on who will go where, and even if there is to be an American tour, must wait for the SAC decision at their meeting this Wednesday. He said that SAC might want to cancel the U.S. tour. This is the reason why the UTDU is not yet announcing the Pittsburgh contestants, that were chosen from the original trials on Nov. 12.

"The people on campus have made an issue out of this," said Hurlburt. "There was the same trouble last year . . . and they had re-trials."

Hurlburt, speaking for the UTDU, said that they "didn't get adequate support from the original trials" to warrant spending $200 on one trip, and $100 on another. He said that they got some good debaters from the trials, but that he knows that there are others. The debaters trials were held to get a "fair and democratic representation" for the tournaments, which they did not get, said Hurlburt. Five men and three women tried out for the tours, which are the Women's Invitational Tour at Toronto, the Annual Pitt Cross-Examination Tournament at the University of Pittsburgh, and the debate tour of the United States.

"It's a point of necessity that we have a trial to let the Pittsburgh people know," said Hurlburt. "We have to get the debaters settled for Pittsburgh." "If we held (complete) retrials we would have to cancel Pittsburgh." So the contestants at Pittsburgh will be chosen from those debating in the November 12th trials. Because of the poor response, two men will go, instead of the original plan of one man and one woman.

"Interfaculty Debates are going badly, also, because of lack of support," said Hurlburt. "It is my personal opinion," he continued, "that debating is dead on campus, and we want to start at the grass-roots with the Inter-faculty debates."

Don't Rush, Steady Directory Ready

In the same flimsy attempt at school loyalty which it makes every year, the new blue on gray Student Directory for 1954-55, which exposes the courses, years, addresses, telephone numbers and names of 10,881 students and their professors at the University of Toronto, is on sale now at the University Book Store. Don't bother to come sniveling around with an Admit-to-Lectures card, just bring a dollar.

The Bearer is a Member of the

I Hate the Mustangs Club

NAME

This may be conveniently clipped from the paper and placed in a prominent spot for this Saturday's game or any future Varsity-Western contests.

BAHA'I

STUDENT GROUP

MARGARET PARKHILL, II Social Work

Subject: PRAYER

WEDNESDAY, 1.00 p.m.

Falconer Hall 84 Queen's Pk. Crescent

"Love Me, that I may love thee. If thou lovest Me not, My love can in no wise reach thee. Know this, O servant."—Baha'u'llah.

An Announcement!

OUR ANNIVERSARY SALE OF TROUSERS

- MADE TO MEASURE
- TOP QUALITY ENGLISH WOOLLENS
- LARGE RANGE OF SHADES
- EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED

If not satisfied . . . Money Completely Refunded.

DON'T MISS OUT ON THIS SPECIAL SALE

Reg. $20.00 - $25.00 . . . NOW $14.85

THE BEST DEAL OF THE YEAR FOR YOU

KARN CLEANERS & CLOTHIERS

P.S. Drop in your Cleaning on the way over.

10% Discount to Students on All Cleaning.

235% COLLEGE ST. (opp. Dental College) Phone WA. 4-3072

N.B.—Made to Measure Suits tailored on the premises.

IT'S THE BALL OF THE FALL

The Engineering Society Presents

"Cannon Capers"

The All-Campus Informal

3 BANDS — FEATURING FRANK BOGART

HART HOUSE

9.00 p.m. Fri. Nov. 26

Tickets: $2.00 Per Couple

On Sale in the Engineering Stores

A rave of new colours

for your

"Kitten"

Collection

Prettiest way to go to school . . . in a full-fashioned Kitten sweater. In cashmere-soft Lambswool . . . 100% Super Orlon. Exquisitely hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof . . . by Glenayr.

At good stores everywhere

6 s. pullover $6.95
l. s. pullover $7.95
cardigan $8.95

G-54

fractured french and itchy feet

By BRIAN SWEENEY

Why not take a trip to Europe next summer, and see how the other half lives? I don't mean to suggest that you avail yourself of the soul-stirring amenities of a conducted tour, far from it. Search for the cheapest possible way of crossing the Atlantic, short of swimming, and you have your basic expense. Let's say for argument $300 return. To this princely sum add a large helping of wanderlust, a sturdy rucksack, a waterproof sleeping bag and one set of old clothes. Scrape up all you can in the way of extra cash, but not too much or you'll be tempted to go all touristy.

Step ashore in France with your rucksack on your back and Europe is at your feet, or under them. Next set out with a determined mien and start walking towards Paris. This is to fool the motorists who will think you are mad enough to walk. As they slow down to get a closer look at this crazy foreigner, you turn, on them, jerking your thumb as if demented. A combination of shock and pity will generally serve to get you a ride. Don't bother if you can't speak French, sign language is more fun anyway.

Soon you will reach Paris, the most beautiful city in the world. Stay a while and live a little. Being a penniless tramp, you will, of necessity, mix with people of your own class, namely the students who swarm around the Dupont-Latin on the 'Boule' Miche, drinking, among other things coffee. There you will find Englishmen, Scandinavians (the women are nice), Austrians, and even Americans. Join the circle and you will soon hear of some kind of employment. You can do as I did and become a 'Ramasseur des vieux journaux'. An international student organization will fit you out with a 'tripoteur' or large box-front tricycle, and you have the whole of Paris as your hunting ground, in your search for old newspapers and magazines, which you sell to the above organization.

Knock on any door, using your set formula, 'nous ramassons des vieux journaux pour les etudiants', meaning 'We are collecting old newspapers for the students.' If your French is limited, avoid further conversation by repeating this sentence until you are either ejected forcibly or loaded down with papers. If you encounter the type who cowers behind locked doors, saying, 'Qui est la?', answer with 'C'est moi'. This is fine for laughs. Another thing to watch for is the little glass spy-hole set in the door, from which a malevolent eye will peer at you. Best remedy for this is to put your eye there first. A loud scream may follow. This we found good for near-hysteria, on both sides of the door. Seriously though, we made an average of 1000 francs per day at this not-too-strenuous occupation, and this buys a lot of red wine.

If the day is nice and you feel lazy, take your tripoteur and see Paris in style. As my friend and I perambulated leisurely down the Ave. de l'Opera, one on the saddle, the other in the box, singing snatches of a popular English song, I heard an American to comment that 'them bums sure picked up English good'.

One swarthy character I met was ultra English public school, born in India, Colonial service don't you know. Having befriended an arab carpet seller, he borrowed his carpets and fez and approached a group of typical Americans, who were standing on the corner. Gibbering at them relentlessly in pseudo Arabic, and thrusting the rugs upon them, he almost drove them away, before saying in his cultured English voice, 'Oh well, if you don't wish to buy my beautiful carpets, I will simply have to peddle them elsewhere'. Never was there such a drooping of jaws.

Obligatory Arbitrations Turns Foes Into Friends

Brazil is one of the few countries in the world which have succeeded in carrying out their historical development peacefully, and its policy is to continue doing so. This was the substance of an address given to the International Relations Club yesterday by Dr. Pedro Xisto de Carvalho, cultural attache of the Brazilian Department of External Relations.

He pointed out how the principle of peaceful settlement ran through all Brazilian history. Even before Brazil was discovered Spain and Portugal prevented war with the line dividing the world between them. This line gave Brazil only a third of its present territory, but the country did not extend its boundaries until the time when the crowns of Spain and Portugal were united — thus again avoiding force.

Now Brazil is perhaps the only country in the world to have written into its constitution the principle of "obligatory arbitration". And Brazil both submits to and accepts such arbitration. It makes friends of adversaries by recognizing their equal rights to discussion.

A vital aspect of international affairs according to Dr. de Carvalho, is the cultural approach. He said the arbitrators were always assisted by a staff of scientists, lawyers and so forth, but diplomats need a grounding not only in history, geography and law, but also in economics and cultural anthropology. It is no use, he said, discussing men's rights if you don't give them bread; it is no use drawing up a fine sounding treaty if the people are not prepared to live out its words.

Dr. de Carvalho stressed the importance of understanding other groups. "We are, though often unconsciously, sure we have the truth, and this is a fatal mistake, it has caused many wars — and I am speaking of people of good faith, not war-criminals." "The future of the world depends on mutual understanding between these different patterns of culture."

GIRLS, Are You Broke?

Aren't we all! A new dress for Christmas would be nice . . . especially if it can be paid for after New Years'. Drop in anytime between lectures.

HELMAR

46 ST. GEORGE STREET

WA. 1-5978

(!*?#,&!@)

We Cased da Joint
They SOLD Us

A (*?#,&!@) BANGLE

Treasure Van

HART HOUSE

2-6, 7-10

Dining Room Of UC Men's Residence Opened

Cold bread on hot plates was the only flaw to an otherwise successful opening breakfast at the University College Men's residence. Only a few raw eggs were reported. Breakfast and lunch are cafeteria style but dinner features table service and gowns to add distinction. These same gowns have aroused a general dissatisfaction among the men who must pay twelve dollars for them.

Prior to the opening of the new dining hall tickets were given for use at Hart House. Slow service, probably because the waiters have not become accustomed to the hall, and an absence of glasses of water were the only complaints at the evening meal.

President Smith, Dean Bissell and Principal Jeanneret sat at the high table along with the Dons of the houses.

Two guests per month will be allowed. Saturday nights lady guests may be introduced and gowns need not be worn.

Alumni Association Want More Money For Bursaries

The Alumni Association of the University of Toronto has started a fund drive to get money for bursaries and scholarships. The objective of this campaign — the second such — is $50,000, to be collected before the end of the academic year next June 30.

The funds from the 1954-55 campaign will be allocated to various groups associated with the Alumni Association. A proportion will go to charter branches to provide territorial bursaries and scholarships at the U. of T. An estimated 70 per cent will be given as awards in colleges and larger faculties in proportion to the amount contributed by the graduates. The remainder will go to scholarships and bursaries in the smaller faculties.

Winners of the awards will be selected by the college, faculty, and branch associations, C. G. M. Grier, executive secretary of the Alumni Association, said.

The association feels that for some time the need of student aid has been increasingly apparent to graduates, and a capital fund of which only income may be spent is not considered enough to guarantee competent and deserving students an opportunity to complete their university education.

Talk By Medics On Canuck Diabetics

The Toronto branch of The Canadian Diabetic Association will be holding a panel discussion on Wednesday, Nov. 24, consisting of six doctors associated with diabetics. The meeting will be at the Manufacturer's Insurance Co. Auditorium.

They will be occupied with the question of providing substitute foods for the meals that others eat. There will be a display of a Christmas dinner, smorgasord, and foods for a Jewish Sabbath evening—all safe for diabetics.

Scholars Stash Engineers' Cash

John Ellis, I SPS, has been awarded the principal scholarship in a group of nineteen given out by the Association of Professional Engineers. He was adjudged the student with the highest academic standing in Ontario entering university to study engineering.

John won $450 of the total $1,350 awarded to nineteen students at Queen's and the University of Toronto. He is registered in Electrical Engineering. Other scholarships awarded at the U of T are:

Third year — L. C. Harpe N. Vitorovic, E. J. Gooch.
Second year — A. T. Webster, J. R. Kipling, A. J. Alexander.
First year — W. So, J. A. Norton, M. A. Laughton.

Varsity Glee Club On US Radio Show?

The Hart House Glee Club came over WGR last night, reported John Holding, Victoria College. On the programme, Robert Montgomery Presents, a play about college life was being presented, when suddenly into the background music came the familiar "Toronto is our University . . ."

Since the HH Glee Club is the only one to record the Varsity song, then the U of T talent has come to the airwaves. The record went on to give other selections of college songs.

Mixed-up Indians Interest Anthropologists

"These Indians are good Christians and good pagans", said Dr. Jean-Jacques Rousseau on Friday, at a special Anthropology Club meeting. He spoke about the religion of Indians in northern Quebec. Dr. Rousseau, director of the Montreal Botanical Gardens, travelled to Toronto to address the Royal Canadian Institute, Saturday night. He came a day early to address this Anthropology meeting.

Continuing, he said, "These Indians are fundamentally sincere Christians and will not perform any pagan ceremony on Sunday. On week-days it is different. They perform pagan and superstitious ceremonies. However, they do not mix paganism and Christianity as voodoo does."

Dr. Rousseau said that the sincere animistic beliefs in these northern Quebec Indians include belief in spirits inhabiting trees and rocks. "Of course," he said, "white men alone in the bush for three- or four weeks hear the trees talk, too!"

They also believe that during sleep the spirit leaves them and travels about. They see this in their dreams. To them this spirit really exists, and their dreams are facts.

He told of some taboos. These Indians must never mention the name of the bear, who is king of the bush. Also, on crossing big lakes they must never look in front. If the spirits realize they are coming, they will send a storm. The Indians paddle looking sideways and in a zig-zag manner to fool the spirits.

"Their religion may seem a fake and insincere to us, but it

(Continued on Page 7)

Sidney Smith) is the only real source of inspiration, the Truth, Hope, good water) in the whole (damn, darn, bloody, wide) world.

In (conclusion, fine, the end) let it be re-affirmed that your tendencies toward and proclivities for (arson, rape, murder, the Truth) will get you (nowhere, a punch in the nose, a pot of gold, a fat lip).

Yours (sincerely, truly, despicably, hopefully)
P.S. (Here the writer may add a few original comments in keeping with the spirit of the above.)

Prudes and Prigs

Here's Your Chance for Digs

Do you feel that The Varsity needs to be criticized? Do you know that "something is wrong" but you can't quite decide what it is? Do you wish that you could write nasty letters like The Cavalier of the Streets, Mr. Gruber, Mr. Olver, Joe Slogan et al? Do you wish to slander someone's character in the manner of The Cavalier, Mr. Gruber, Mr. Olver and Joe Slogan? Do you feel that your inferiority complex is getting the best of you?

If the answer to all or any of these questions is yes, then THIS IS FOR YOU! Simply encircle one of the words suggested in the brackets in each sentence, then slip the letter, and a ten dollar bill, into an envelope and mail it to:

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Dear (Sir, slob, communist, Christian, capitalist, atheist, dog). (We, I, My mother, All reasonable men) think that the (editorial, news story, feature, cartoon, letter) in (today's, yesterday's, any) Varsity was (an insult, outrage, compliment, atrocity) to (us, me, my Mother, All reasonable men).

It could also be added that your (paper, rag, stinking sheet, corrupter of youth) is an (asset, disgrace, credit) to the (University, city, province, country, world, human race).

It is my considered opinion that the chief trouble in the world to-day is (The Varsity, Communism, Capitalism, the Cavalier of the Streets, the TTC, Atheism, Christianity). In this respect your (attitude, opinion, face, course) is a violation of the principles laid down in (the Communist Manifesto, Bible, Korean, Toronto Star) and you should therefore be (hanged, castrated, sterilized, knighted, appointed governor-general).

(History, My father, Marilyn Monroe) has proven that (Mickey Spillane, God, George Malenkov,

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL STUDENT RATE 75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY ON EACH A.T.L. CARD

Saturday Nov. 27th to Saturday Dec. 4th at 8.30

BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN - 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

HART HOUSE TODAY

TUESDAY, 23RD NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS FOR THE GLEE CLUB'S INVITATIONAL CONCERT — Saturday Evening. Featuring Buffalo State Teachers' College Choir, St. George's Cathedral Choir, and the Hart House Glee Club. Ducats—$1.25 each from Hall Porter.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — U.S.A. ART EXHIBITION: "Tools and Techniques". Also sculpture by Rae Katz Platner. Prints by Sybil Andrews.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).
- 1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room) Tracks!—Wax!—Relax! "Othello" by Shakespeare—part 5 with Hagen, Ferrer and Robeson.
- 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).
- 7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — FULL GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Music Room).
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.

NOTE: Your lunch in a paper bag? Be comfortable—east end of the Debates Room available as a Commuter-member lunch room. No service provided.

BUFFALO STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE CHOIR, ST. GEORGE'S CATHEDRAL CHOIR, HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB

170
VOICES
3
CHORAL GROUPS

Sponsored by the Hart House Glee Club at its annual Invitational Concert in the Great Hall of Hart House on November twenty-seventh at eight-thirty p.m. Tickets $1.25 on sale at the Hall Porter's desk, Hart House, and the S.A.C. Office.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengeley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE NIGHT EDITOR REPORTERS:

Irene Meyers
Roger McQueen
Doug Stewart, John Gehl, Jane Edgar

Retrials

For the second year in a row so few people turned up for debating trials that the officials felt dissatisfied with the results.

In last year's mix-up the judges decided that the participants were not of university calibre and demanded complete retrials.

This year the trials were held and a five-man team to represent the university was chosen. After the results had been announced the U.T.D.U. decided that the trials would be held over again.

However, there is one small hitch. The men who are to go to Pittsburgh will still go and it will not be necessary for them to participate in the new trials.

We are at a loss to explain this action.

Had the judges, as was the case last year, declared that no speakers were of a sufficiently high standard, retrials could be easily justified.

To let part of the judges' decision stand and rescind the rest is at least an error in judgment.

It seems to us that the only thing the U.T.D.U. could do would be to completely reject the first trials and then call for new ones, if they felt the earlier ones had been unsatisfactory. Otherwise they should accept the decision of the judges and let the debating team remain as originally announced.

Self-knowledge

It appears that in our recent attempt to encourage in the students an effort to establish for themselves some form of truly responsible government on this campus, we have met with no response.

During recent weeks the student body has had ample cause to examine the existing form of student government with an eye to discovering its strengths and weaknesses. However, such examination has either been rejected or has been of so superficial and transient a nature as to have no lasting effect.

Increasingly, we are forced to feel that the members of this academic community have aligned themselves entirely with the forces of reaction.

It is apparent that neither the students or the administrative and tutorial staff are vitally concerned with the principles of responsible government among the student body.

If our attempts have met with failure we must question the cause.

Can it be that the work of society has been well and truly done by parents, teachers, and clergy so that the student is no longer inclined to question or examine his situation but rather to accept with an easy grace whatever his superiors dictate shall comprise his life?

Can it be that "modern" theories of parenthood, education, and theology, have so smoothed the once rough and thorny path of the adolescent that any propensity towards struggle and rebellion is effectively smothered?

What will be the fate of a civilization which rejects the idea of growth through struggle and which blindly adheres to its standards?

Is it the fate of a generation cradled in the superstition of absolute equality, nurtured by the doctrine of adult perfection, and brought at last to a maturity without strength, without fibre and without self-knowledge?

the modern theme

By N. J. P. MELNICK

The history of mankind down through the ages has been characterized by a struggle for a negative kind of freedom. We have shed one stifling skin of social institution after another: we have struggled for freedom from feudal oppression, struggled for freedom from the autonomy of the monarch and of the Pope. It has always been a struggle for freedom from something, it has never been one to something. And the modern theme to-day is the attainment of ultimate freedom. Freedom with us now is a lion and we have it by the tail. Each of us has so much freedom of choice that our lives have become pathetically aimless, rootless and restless. We live lonely amid all the material enchantments of our disenchantment.

There never was a time when we desired more, some absolute standard of institution or ideology to take control and make our decisions for us — to tell us what is good and what is bad.

Many of us in recent years have sensed our lack, our failing although not all knew what to call it. The present-day swing to evangelism — the "back to religion" movement in general, is a response (if only a reflex response) to the insecurity of the modern theme. We have reached a peak, a point of no return from which we must either escape from freedom altogether into the distasteful protection of some form of totalitarianism or work for a positive type of freedom — a freedom to something.

This is the challenge of our generation.

Some people in their anxiety and helplessness cry out for a "second coming" to help revitalize our life — to instill it with purpose and meaning, without realizing that the "second coming" is already at hand. The new ethos, the "nouveau heir" is here! ... now! It is Communism.

If it is Communism that is the world's new ideology which is inevitably to embrace our entire civilization, to become the foundation for a brave new world ... what is not inevitable, is that it should be the Russian brand of Communism.

This whole drama — its setting and its challenge is seen writ large in Europe to-day. Western Europe is tired, after two world wars ravishing Europe, it is tired; it cannot and will not meet determinedly the challenge (and it's understandable). Europe wants to be left alone to regain all those enchantments which we in America throughout the two global cataclysms, in fact, have never been without. It lacks our energy, our optimism; it does not share our hope.

Here again is the challenge of our generation in America.

If Europe is ever to organize a strong united stand against the indignities of the Russian brand of the world's new ideology it will need our energy, our vitality, which is now quite undirected and impotently diversified.

Are we prepared to accept this challenge?

What is the nature of the challenge? It is largely one of education. We need most of all to take stock, to seek out and recognize the best qualities of our Western civilization. I would suggest something like this: taking the best qualities of Christianity, the best qualities of Democracy, and of individualistic humanitarian society, — putting these altogether — making of them a composite of all the best and inherently good our civilization — formally stating this eclectic ideology — propagating this faith throughout the land, — making this our new centre of activity and strength — and rallying around it. Only in this way or some way similar can we ever hope to bring meaning into our own lives and effectively fight the evils threatening to destroy forever human liberty and human dignity.

This educational challenge brought more closely to home ... to us here on the campus ... can it provide at last a purpose, a function for student organizations like NFCUS, S.C.M. or IRC?

our readers write:

Can Ignorance Be Bliss?

The Editor,
The Varsity.

During the past few months the Varsity has reported and commented upon various examples and forms of apathy which exist on this campus. In the editorial of November 18th these comments were expanded to include the political apathy which exists in Canada on a national scale. That student apathy exists on this campus is obvious when one recalls the lack of basic spirit during the football season, the failure to organize a spirited inter-faculty and inter-collegiate debating union, and above all the fact that the students cry out that the Varsity is not doing its job, when actually there is nothing of sufficient interest happening on this campus to justify its being reported in black and white.

National apathy is evident when one realizes that less than thirty percent of the eligible voting public bothers to exercise their right in any one locale, in any one election. That apathy exists is obvious; what it will lead to is fatal.

The lack of student interest on this campus indicates that the present national apathy will not disappear during the next fifty years. The result is inevitable. We will continue to exist with our heads in the sand, allowing the few who have bothered to take a look around to either lead us by the nose, or destroy us in the attempt.

It is quite apparent that we, who egotistically refer to ourselves as the upper two percent, the future of Canada, must not continue the farce that democracy is today. Unless we begin to acquaint ourselves with what others are doing, thinking, saying and believing while we are still students with the time to do so, we will find ourselves wearing the same nose rings our parents are sporting now. If we insist on graduating from this institution knowing nothing but that which has been fed to us during lectures, we shall probably die in the very near future repeating the age-old platitude, "Ignorance is Bliss".

David Coldoff
Architecture IV

Thanks

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Will you permit us, through your columns, to express our most sincere appreciation to all those who made possible the success of the recent Tag Day on the Campus in aid of Boulderwood Camp.

We are most grateful to the students who organized the Tag Day, to those who acted as Taggers, to the Students' Administrative Council for their cooperation and, of course, to all those who contributed.

The Tag Day is only one of the many ways in which the faculty and students support the work of the Settlement. The continued, indeed increasing, recognition of the Settlement as the University's "very own" social agency is most heartening to those of us who are endeavouring to serve the neighbourhood which is physically and traditionally so close to the University.

The Board of Directors and Staff of University Settlement.

Times Are Tough, Son

—Cartoon by Jas. Weller.

SHYLOCK, CAESAR, GUTHRIE STAR IN STRATFORD TENT

Brush up your shakespeare, start quoting him now. Stratford has followed this gangster advice and has wowed more than the wovemen.

At last the plays to wow 'em this year have been announced: The Merchant of Venice, and Julius Caesar by one Will Shakespeare and a revival of Oedipus Rex.

The actor of the year is Frederick Valk; better known in England than in Canada, Valk was born a Czechoslovakian citizen and acted in Germany until driven out by the Nazis. Since then he has acted in almost all the theatres in London and has toured with the Old Vic Company. Tyrone Guthrie saw him play Shylock in London and was impressed with the force of Valk's acting. "It was like being hit by a bus," said Guthrie at the Reception in the Royal York, only rather a more pleasant experience."

Playing Portia to Valk's Shylock will be Frances Hyland who played opposite James Mason in the Festival production of "Measure for Measure" and who is currently playing in T. S. Eliot's Confidential Clerk at the Crest.

Michael Langham, an English producer in the West End of London has been engaged to produce one of the Shakespeare plays and Guthrie will do the other. In my opinion Mr. Langham is among the three best of the younger directors in England said Dr. Guthrie. His work is serious but not dull being dull and exciting but not flashy.

Many of the old faces will be back at Stratford: Lloyd Bochner, Robert Goodier, Don Harron, Douglas Campbell as Casca in Julius Caesar and as Eodipus, Donald Davis of the Crest theatre as Anthony in Julius Caesar and as Tiresius in Oedipus Rex, Eleanor Stuart as Jocasta in the same. Among the new faces will be Lorne Greene who co-starred with Katherine Cornell in the New York production of The Prescott Proposals. Mr. Greene has been asked to play Brutus in Julius Caesar. Dr. Guthrie said that he thought it was important to keep some the old blood who had experience in acting in the company, and to get a balance of new blood at the same time so that the company would not become a closed fraternity.

Tanya Moiseiwitsch who, designed the stage and the costumes for the first two festival seasons will be back again.

This year for the first time there will be a Stratford Music Festival, to take place in conjunction with the drama festival. It is planned to compliment the festival and to produce music that could not be heard in Toronto. The core of the musical program will be the Hart House Orchestra led by Dean Boyd Neel. Both ancient and modern works will be played, works of a festival nature and world premiere's. Dr. Guthrie and Louis Appelbaum, the festival's musical director are still choosing the guest artists for this year. Two of them will be Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, soprano and Isaac Stern, violinist.

Callboard

ART

Again this week the exhibition of tools and techniques in the Hart House Gallery, and in the local Gallery, the Canadian Group of Painters.

MUSIC

The twenty-two musicians of the Hart House orchestra conducted by Boyd Neel make their official debut here on Thursday under the sponsorship of the Women's Musical Club of Toronto. Four symphonies make up their program in Eaton Auditorium starting at 8:30 p.m. This group, it was announced to-day, will be the nucleus of the Stratford Music Festival this summer.

Saturday, November 27th the Hart House Glee Club, the Buffalo State Teachers' Choir and the St. George's Cathedral choir from Kingston sing together in the Great Hall.

The English pianist, Clifford Curzon plays with the TSO in next week's pair of subscription concerts.

DRAMA

Getting Gertie's Garters is occupying the Royal Alexandra this week until Fry's The Dark is Light Enough comes on Monday. Katharine Cornell and Tyrone Power are starring in this latest Fry play. A combination of ingredients that's bound to have interesting results.

The second Hart House play of the season, Shaw's The Applecart starts this Saturday to run for a week.

T.S. Eliot's Confidential Clerk continues at the Crest this week. There are student rates for tonight and to-morrow night.

MOVIES

For anybody wanting or expecting a child, there is an item at the Tivoli and the Capitol called We Want a Child. Those under sixteen will have to postpone it.

A zoo at the Odeon Theatre displaying the world's most beautiful animal of the species mulier sapiens—in the Barefoot Contessa. At the Hyland, an amusing detective called Father Alec Guinness Brown.

Sunday Eve At H House

Jan Rubes

The critic who ventures to appraise basso Jan Rubes is somewhat puzzled by a number of contradictory qualities which in the long run seem however, to be at least partly resolved into sound musicianship. It is indeed hard to decide whether Mr. Rubes' interpretive shortcomings stem from a certain strain in his upper notes, or are caused by stylistic misconceptions. Had not this grip on the singer's higher range lost most of its force during his Sunday Evening House recital we could perhaps have appropriated some of his failings to purely technical difficulties. Yet we have to conclude that though Mr. Rubes came into his element after the first quarter of his programme that there remained some slight strain on his upper notes almost throughout the evening.

This handicap was most apparent in Handel's Ombra mai fu from Xerxes (the popular largo) and in Schubert's Der Wanderer. The lack of vocal pliability in the Handel aria produced some rather monotonous singing while the Schubert lied failed because Mr. Rubes exploited rather the dramatic than the musical potentialities of this work. This latter song, however, with Leporello's Register Aria from Mozart's Don Giovanni was partly compensated for by Mr. Rubes' great theatrical talent. It became obvious that a wonderfully rich lower tonal range combined with unusually deft acting gradually regained Mr. Rubes' expressive powers in the latter part of the concert. But we could not help noticing the discrepancy between Mr. Rubes' profound stage talent and his rigidity in Mozartian phrasing which was rather of the comedia del arte, than the opera buffa type.

Mr. Rubes displayed most wholesome singing in Dvorak's My Song Resounds and Mussorgsky's grotesquely true Song of the Flea in which the basso's positive qualities came so much into the fore that all the technical strains disappeared. The uneasy contrast between the upper and lower range were completely overcome by the flexible phrasing in a group of Czechoslovakian folksongs while the Prayer from Verdi's Simone Boccanegra was done in the great operatic tradition.

We feel that Mr. Rubes' tonal handicaps and/or apparent difficulties with the classical tradition were partly redeemed by intense dramatic expression. But we believe that had Mr. Rubes with his regained confidence started his programme after the last encore anew, we would have been perhaps in a better position to decide whether his failings were due to initial indisposition, (Continued on page 8)

fourteen times five

University Publications

By AL TOUGH

A total of fourteen issues of five different magazines will be published this year by University of Toronto arts colleges. The Undergrad of University College, Trinity's Review and St. Michael's Gryphon are strictly literary magazines publishing original creative material written by students. Acta Victoriana adds a certain Vic flavour to a wide variety of literary material. Wycliffe's Capax and Gown is quite individualistic, and reflects the life and thoughts of that college.

These magazines provide a valuable opportunity for students to have their literary efforts criticized and published. A magazine encourages these writers and stimulates others to write as well. Of course, most of the hard-working editors feel that theirs is THE literary magazine at this university.

Les Lawrence, editor of the UC Undergrad said; "It is a fascinating problem just what a college magazine should be. We are still having discussions and arguments about exactly what we will publish. We feel anything that is well-written deserves a place in the Undergrad". Last year two issues were published, but this year a single, thicker, eighty page issue will appear February twenty-sixth. Other arts colleges' magazines have about forty pages. Les Lawrence stated as one problem. "No one needs the Undergrad".

Doug Hill, editor of the Trinity University Review, also commented on this gap between readers' and writers' tastes. When asked why they published the Review some members of the staff said, "Because we'd be damned silly not to" and pointed out that it fills an important but indefinable need. "It helps some people discriminate between what is humbug and what isn't", commented one member of the staff.

Four literary issues of the Review are followed by a yearbook issue published in the summer. The first issue was published yesterday. Quite a lot of poetry is published, and is "embarrassingly honest, casual, less pretentious than others". This year a correspondence section has been started, which includes; "some lively letters".

The bi-annual publication of St. Mike's has been given a new name: The Gryphon. The editor is Jim Powell. Material comes from the Writers' Group at the college. "Our magazine, which is not very old, has been expanding and improving a great deal in the last few years," said John Grace, the business manager.

"A general student arts magazine" was the description of Acta Victoriana, given by the editor, Ron Price. He said that Acta, which is published quarterly by Victoria College, is a "vehicle of Vic" and "tries to interpret Vic and embody student opinion". As well as articles, short stories, and poetry, Acta publishes "a bit of Vic news" and reviews of books which are of interest to students or which deal with education. Acta has an A.M. and D. section which is especially close to Vic, because of the Music Club and the Drama Club there. A series of articles on international affairs began in the November issue, which came out last week.

The publication of Wycliffe College "reflects the life and thoughts of the college", said Bill Bates, the editor. Capax and Gown maintains contact with more than five hundred grads. "It contains photos of scenes around the college and the odd cartoon, as well as articles, poems, and impressions. In accordance with one aim of Capax and Gown; "to exalt Christ", the theme of the fall issue is "Christ in the World". Articles by Wycliffe men from Japan, India and other countries develop this theme.

The Hart House Apple Cart

"Should auld acquaintance be forgot" the Cabinet sings to the King in this scene from Shaw's "The Apple Cart" which opens a week's run on Saturday night at Hart House Theatre under the direction of Robert Gill. Standing are John Bonnycastle, Ronald Lowe, Orest Ulan, Leon Major and Paul Bacon. Seated are Charlotte Holmes, Rex Southgate and Annette Oelbaum.

HOCKEY BLUES TO TRY ST. MIKE'S

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

For some time now we have been wondering what is keeping the Intercollegiate football champion from playing for the Grey Cup as College teams did up until about 1930. Every time we mention this, somebody says that the calibre of professional football is much too good for the Yates Cup winner, but in the face of the 38-6 shellacking the Dutchmen absorbed on Saturday, we don't see any reason why the College titlist couldn't get on the bandwagon too.

That the Intercollegiate teams are just as good as those in the ORFU has been proved before the opening of every season for the last four or five years. In fact, not so long ago the Western Mustangs trounced the Sarnia Imperials 41-0 in a pre-season exhibition game, the same year the Imps won the ORFU title. Although Balmy Beach didn't go very far this fall, the Blues gave them a bad beating in September, as well as making a creditable showing against other ORFU clubs.

Although it would seem inconceivable that a College team could wrest the Grey Cup from such a powerhouse as the Montreal Alouettes, the idea bears some thinking. It would put four league champions in the playoffs instead of three, and it would mean that a semi-final could be held both in the East and the West at the same time, the winners proceeding to the Grey Cup final.

It has often been said that if the ORFU champion was to beat the Western representative, it would probably ruin the Grey Cup game. It would be quite a blow to professional football today to be beaten by the Intercollegiate champion, but such a turn of events would do much for the Canadian game. In these days of high-priced American imports there would seem to be nothing to be gained from such a venture, but the outcome would be interesting, even if it did turn College football into about twenty times the business deal it is today.

The last time a University team won the Grey Cup was in 1924, when Queens beat Toronto Balmy Beach 11-3. Only the previous year, led by Harry Batstone and Pep Ledley, the same Tricolor aggregation had trounced the Regina Roughriders 54-0. In 1920, the University of Toronto won the title from the Argonauts, defeating them 16-3. That was the year that Peter Campbell and Jock Maynard won fame as backfield greats, turning pro with the Argonauts the following fall. Until 1928, when Varsity was again in the final, the Intercollegiate champion was always in the playoffs.

Such musings will undoubtedly be considered ridiculous, but we still feel that Intercollegiate football can put on as good a show for the Western fans as the ORFU champion, or probably a better one.

East Meets West

... may not end with this fall's exhibition football tilt between the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds and the Varsity Blues. The other three western Universities are seriously considering the revival of Intercollegiate football, dead in the west since 1947. The Universities of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba have all been discussing the difficulties involved in reforming the western conference, and the Alberta Golden Bears and the Saskatchewan Huskies appear ready to begin again. UBC has already indicated their desire for such a league, while the Manitoba Bisons are not so sure. This would pave the way for an official CIAU football final, something that would do much for the College game.

Bruce Day, Durable Varsity End

Bruce Day, durable end with the 1954 Varsity Blues, has, after three years of Interfaculty football with Skule, attained his greatest ambition, a spot in the Varsity senior lineup.

Bruce is twenty-one years old, and is one of the most rugged of the present crop of athletes at Toronto. During his seven years of football action, Day has missed only one game, and that occurred when he was playing with Junior Skule. In that game Bruce missed the league opener because of a leg injury.

Day is six feet tall and carries 180 pounds on a well-built frame. He began his football days at Lawrence Park Collegiate Institute in Toronto, where he starred for four years. In his senior year he was one of the highest point-getters in the T.S.S.A.A.

Bruce's other interests lie in basketball and hockey. He has played the cage sport for SPS for three seasons, and also has played one year of hockey for the Engineers.

One of Day's greatest football thrills came last fall when SPS won their eleventh Mulock Cup, defeating St. Mike's 17-0. Bruce's kicking played a large part in that Skule victory.

Now in his last year at Varsity Bruce is hoping for yet a greater thrill, when the Blues tangle with the Western Mustangs for the Yates Cup in London this Saturday. Bruce should see quite a bit of action in this game, as he will likely be playing at wing-back for the Blues, due to the fact that Bill Horton will be sitting this one out. Bruce Day could very well be a big factor in the Varsity assault on the Londoners this weekend, as the Blues set out after their first Intercollegiate title since 1951.

Puckmen Looking For First Win Play Double Blue This Afternoon

Varsity's Hockey Blues, fresh from their first defeat of the young season at the hands of the East York Lyndhursts, will take the ice this afternoon against St. Michael's Majors at 5.00 p.m. in Varsity Arena. The game will be the first regulation time contest for the Blues, who will be playing without regular defencemen Sam Ashton and Lou Appleby, and winger Ross Woods.

Woods has returned to grid-iron practices this week in preparation for the final game with the Mustangs in London this Saturday. Ashton received a double fracture of the forearm in Saturday's game, while Appleby has been on the limp for a week with a badly sprained ankle.

Highlight of the contest with the OHA Junior "A" club will be the netminding of St. Mike's Johnny Macnamara, who has been a mainstay for the Double Blue in their recent games. Ex-St. Mike's flash Paul Knox, now playing right wing on the Blues first line, will be expected to produce the secret to Macnamara's ability, having notched all three goals for the Blues against East York.

Coach Jack Kennedy has moved Dave Jackson and Red Stephen back on defence for this game to replace the injured duet of Ashton and Appleby. Ernie Bodnar was taking spells at the blueline in last night's practice to bring added strength to the Blue defensive corps.

The first line remains intact, with big Dave Reid centering Paul Knox and Clare Fisher. Bodnar will probably take Woods' place on the second line, centered by Don Cossar with Johnny Akitt on the other wing. Hard-hitting John Adams will play at left wing on the third line, along with Ken Lawson, while Tom Riley and Mert Wright will alternate.

Lanky goaltender Hugh Currie should get plenty of action from the high-scoring St. Mike's forwards as the Blues set out in search of their first exhibition victory.

Blues Meeting Western Final Game In London

Varsity Blues were unable to beat Western at London in 1937 and since then they have gone without a victory in Little Memorial Stadium, this year struggling to a 12-12 tie with the Mustangs. Come Saturday they get their chance to right the 17-year-old wrong and win the Yates Cup in the doing. In the Yates Cup finals and big games of past seasons the Mustangs have managed to win, usually by a last quarter burst of good fortune, but this year they may have to do without "The Good Lord" against the Blues, having used this power rather excessively last Saturday against the Golden Gaels of Queen's.

Varsity's Blues barely managed to defeat the Thunderbirds of UBC, in Vancouver, last weekend. This puts them in a bad light for the impending finale with Western, these same Thunderbirds having come within 3 points of the McGill Redmen in a pre-season exhibition game. The Blues were hard-pressed to gain their victory in Vancouver, but that may have been due to the difficult trip they made from Toronto to Vancouver by air.

Western's throwing game against Queen's set up their victory, though their pass defence was not nearly strong enough to handle the usual Varsity air attack. The fact that the Blues had it tough out in Vancouver is another factor that will strengthen them for the Yates Cup contest. It was feared that their one week rest while the Gaels and Mustangs fought it out, would take off their edge, making them a bit sluggish in the final. However, the close game with the Thunderbirds has removed any possibility of overconfidence, making them sharp and eager to meet and overcome the "fortunate" Mustangs.

Quarterback is something of a question mark, a weak game having been played by that position in Vancouver. The Blues will undoubtedly need every weapon they can use against the "fortunate" Mustangs, and lack of a strong passing game could hurt them.

St. Mike's Over Vic

(Continued from Page 1)

hard for them and when St. Mike's finally kicked from deep in their own end, it was the Irish line that came through by picking up a Vic fumble at center field. That was the break of the game as far as the Irish were concerned. From there on in, they held onto the ball as if it were life itself.

The game was played under a steady drizzle which didn't deter the Irish fans from showing that they were solidly behind their team. They arrived en masse preceded by their own eleven piece band and cheerleaders. The Irish band provided the half time entertainment with their own precision marching, each member providing his own precision. They formed formations on the field which dazzled the crowd. To boost the Irish morale, they began playing the Irish school song—"There's a Red Light on the Track for Boozie Brown." As the Irish players ran onto the field through a guard of honor formed by the band and cheerleaders John Grunert and Gerry Dillon came up with a jazzy version of "When the Saints Go Marching In." This delighted all present to a great extent. The show put on by St. Mike's was a credit to them. They also had a pre-game pep rally which will probably show the way for future football games.

Vic felt the loss of Norm Williams who left a gaping hole in the backfield. Other than Ebenhardt, other Vic stars were Moriarity, Frisby, Billy Williams and Bertram. Julian Benson played a good game at snap for the Vic team. Bertram played an outstanding game considering that he had an injured neck.

The Irish line of Donovan, Russell, Priestner, Fraser and McKinnon greatly aided the Mike-men's cause. Barry Riordan played an outstanding game for the Irish as he drove through the Vic line many times and succeeded in blocking a kick.

SPS Wins

(Continued from Page 1)

had the ball, and being deked out by the variety of the Skule plays. Consequently, in the second quarter, when Trinity's defensive backs were pulled in close to the line, Comish broke through the line at his own 30 and ran down the field for the longest major of the day. The Trinity backs were possibly expecting an end run at this time, and were most befuddled when they saw Comish running down the field. Doug Moore passed to Jim Park for the convert.

Skule's fourth converted touch-down of the game occurred just before the end of the first half when, after a series of running plays brought the ball up to the two yard line of Trinity, Kelly went over for his second score of the day. Lyons converted. Thus Skule led 24-0 going into the second half.

As the second half started not many encouraging words could be heard on the Trinity team's behalf. But Trinity surprised everyone as their linemen broke into the Skule backfield. On gaining possession of the ball the Trinity club started an attack that ended in a score. Starting from the Skule 50 Whyte threw a pass to Aziz, who caught the ball on the fifteen and dragged two tacklers with him to the five. After two unsuccessful line plays, Whyte heaved himself into the line into the end zone for the score. Tony Barwick converted.

Skule counteracted this score in the fourth quarter, however, when smoothie Hart threw another touchdown pass to Comish. The play covered 30 yards. The convert was not good.

Aziz again proved that he was Trinity's most capable performer, when, near the end of the game, he scooted far down field, faked a few Skule defenders, and caught a pass thrown by Whyte from his own 53. This was good for Trinity's second score and was converted by Barwick.

The outstanding defensive performers of the game were from Skule. Karpinski and Moulton, the outside linebackers, were impenetrable on most occasions, and, consequently, the Trinity short pass was ineffective. Max Sanderson and Mike Shoemaker led a stout but tired Trinity line.

SPS In Soccer Win Beat Rest Of Varsity

The Engineers won a hard-earned victory over the rest of the University soccer team on Saturday, by a score of 3-2. The game, easily the best seen here this year, was a closely fought battle right to the final whistle.

The Rest opened the scoring on a well-taken goal by King. Well on top during this period, when the Engineers were short a man, the Rest failed to capitalize on their advantage. As the Skulemen began to come more into the picture, only brilliant goalkeeping by Nietenburg plus a lot of good luck, kept the Rest in the lead.

Green on the right wing for the Rest was tying veteran Hubicki in knots, but poor finishing by the other forwards prevented the Rest from going further ahead. Webb tied the score for the Engineers with a brilliant header right on half time.

The second half saw more good soccer with the Engineers holding a slight edge. The Rest again took the lead, however, as Griffiths drove home a pile driver from short range. Once more the tide turned as Atucha 'pounced on a loose ball and scored the equalizing goal.

The see-saw battle continued until Atucha headed home the winning goal to give the Engineers the game. Outstanding for the Engineers' were Webb, Atucha, Williams and Uzemiri. For the Rest, the star men were Green, Griffiths, Leach and Nietenburg.

Vic Girls Whip Saints Freshies

Vic Freshies downed St. Hilda's Freshies 17-13 last night at OCE in a hard fought contest. Vic held the upper hand through most of the game but the Saints gave them plenty to worry about before the outcome was decided.

Vic went ahead in the first quarter by a score of 6-2 on three good baskets. Saint Hilda's managed to hoop only one on a shot by Liz Rorke. Vic's ability to get the ball up the floor quickly accounted for their superiority.

In the second quarter the Saints held Vic to only one point scored on a free throw, although they had many chances to score. Saint Hilda's hooped five points to end the half in a seven-all deadlock.

Carol Birge of Vic scored six points in the third quarter to give the lead back to Vic. Saint Hilda's couldn't penetrate Vic's solid defence lead by Fran Bond and thus scored only three points.

In the last quarter the Saints again were held back by Vic although Marg Gordon was terrific on defence. The game finished up in a close 17-13 decision. Carol Birge was high scorer for Vic with twelve points while Gooderham with seven points was strongest for St. Hilda's.

Indian Friends Meet, Brown Named Prexy

Friends of India Association held its first meeting on Friday. Newly elected president was Dr. G. W. Brown, Professor of Modern History.

This organization is based on four principles:

1. To bring together people interested in India.
2. To collect and present accurate information about India to the members.
3. To promote goodwill and understanding between Canada and India.
4. To procure facilities for Indians arriving in Canada.

Other officers elected were Miss Elizabeth Scroggie and Miss W. S. Goodwin as Vice-Presidents, S. K. DasGupta as secretary, and U. Morriswalla as treasurer.

Membership is open to students and non-students, who are in favour with the above principles of the association.

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER — DIVISION I FINAL — NORTH 12.30 U.C. vs. Vic—Auld, Leach, Stainton
LACROSSE	1.00	Vic. I vs. Med. I—Warren Eagleson
	6.30	St. M. B vs. Dent. B—Uhrnyuk, Graham
	7.30	Pharm. A vs. Knox—Uhrnyuk, Graham
	8.30	Law vs. Pharm. B—Uhrnyuk, Graham
VOLLEYBALL	4.00	U.C. III vs. Sr. Vic—Grosfield
	6.30	St. M. A vs. Med. III Yr.—Preem
	7.30	Pharm. A vs. For. A—Preem
SQUASH	5.40	Sr. SPS vs. Dent. A
	6.20	Pharm. A vs. Dent. C
	7.00	Pharm. B vs. Vic. II
HOCKEY	12.30	Dent. A vs. St. M. B—Fisher, Reid
	1.30	Jr. SPS vs. Jr. Vic—Riley, Stephen

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

CHRISTMAS HELP
Ten students, male or female to sell Christmas products door to door — high commission basis; start December 1; full or part time. Apply SAC Employment Office.

ACCOMMODATION
Professional worker, girl 26 wishes to share apartment with 1 or 2 graduate girls — phone EM. 6-2291 — Local 8, 9-5.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $3.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson — HU 8-3929

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact: Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes, new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repair, and service. Phone RI. 1842 anytime.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA 2-9483, 21 Russell St. (just off St. George St.)

DON'T FORGET

the

Treasure Van

NEW CAR BUYERS—ATTENTION!

Now frankly, what's the use of a new Caddy, a Rolls or a Triumph Mayflower if you can't reach the steering wheel?

And that's what happens to a lot of men these cool mornings. They slip into the old overcoat, slip into the front seat and presto!—their hands are pinned to their sides. The old-fashioned (meaning last year's) overcoat was never meant for auto driving. No arm-room. You slip under a wheel and you're in a straight-jacket.

Now we at Hoberlins have been brooding over this for years, and this autumn we have the answer. All our overcoats and topcoats feature our new "hinge sleeve". Here at last is an overcoat sleeve that's specially designed so you have plenty of forward movement over. There's no tug or binding across the shoulder every time you reach for the gearshift (or whatever it's called in the shiftless models).

Hoberlin overcoats are more generous in the skirt this year. Nice drape in the back. A lot of new ideas in pocket treatment and buttons, too.

Cashmere is the magic word these days. Actually, our cashmere overcoats are a mixture of sleek cashmere fibres for silkiness and lightness and Scottish lamb's wool for wearing quality. (Pure cashmere is wonderful, but it's expensive and doesn't wear so well. We'll sell it if you can afford it.) Strachan cashmere mixture overcoats $95.00. Needled by Savile Row.

Another sleek finish is in the Moordale by Gledhill of England. Progress Brand Tailors produce this one for us, and it's yours for $87.50. Other overcoats from $65.00.

If there's a bit of chill in the air today, why not drop in and find out the comfort you get in a Hoberlin overcoat, and the amazing freedom of arm movement. Why not come in after work, we're open till 6 p.m.

Hoberlin's

LIMITED

145 Yonge EM. 3-7313

Mixed-up

(Continued from Page 3)
is not", said Dr. Rousseau. "Their beliefs may seem fantastic, however, an outsider looking at our religion must find many fantastic and 'even impossible beliefs.' Their belief in good and bad spirits is similar to our angels and devils."

Dr. Rousseau's audience was amused at his statement about their women. "It is the women who decide about everything in the tent. Outside the tent they are quiet. I notice this a bit in white men too."

LACROSSE PLAYOFFS

Group Playoff (if necessary) — Wed., Nov. 24 6.30 St. M. B vs. Dent. B—Eagleson, Brown

PLAYOFFS — DIVISION I

Game 1—Fri., Nov. 26 1.00 St. M. B vs. Dent. A—Eagleson, Uhrnyuk
Game 2—Thurs., Nov. 25 1.00 SPS III vs. Med. I—Warren, Eagleson
Game 3—Wed., Nov. 24 1.00 U.C. II vs. St. M. A—Uhrnyuk, Mackie
Game 4—Tues., Nov. 30 1.00 Winner (1) vs. U.C. I—Warren, Sukmanowski
Game 5—Mon., Nov. 29 1.00 Winner (2) vs. Winner (3)—Sukmanowski, Mackie

FINALS — Thurs., Dec. 2, Mon., Dec. 6, Thurs., Dec. 9, 1.00 p.m.—Warren, Uhrnyuk

NOTE: If Dent. B wins Group — Games as follows:
Thurs., Nov. 25 1.00 Dent. B vs. Med. I
Fri., Nov. 26 1.00 SPS III vs. Dent. A

PLAYOFFS — DIVISION II

Thurs., Nov. 25 7.00 Pharm. A vs. Forestry—Warren, Uhrnyuk
FINALS — Winner above vs. Law, Tues., Nov. 30, Thurs., Dec. 2, Tues., Dec. 7 — 7.00 p.m. — Warren, Mackie

SPECIAL VARSITY EXCURSION

VARSLITY vs. WESTERN November 27th

Excursion and ticket arrangements for those going to London for the game.

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL
$5.00 Return

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27

Leaving TORONTO 8.15 a.m.
Arriving LONDON 10.30 a.m.

GAME TICKETS IN STUDENT SECTION . . . $1.50

Reserved Seats also available . . . $2.50 & $3.00

Athletic Association Game Tickets Only

Game tickets ONLY on sale at
ATHLETIC OFFICE

TICKET WICKET from 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Prices $1.50 in Student Section

Reserved Seats $2.50 & $3.00

S.A.C. Offices will sell combination train and game tickets
OR train tickets only.
NOW ON SALE

Here's How

FLEET FOOT SHOES

BUILT BY CANADIANS FOR CANADIANS

protect and support 3 ways!

Fleet Foot's Famous Arch-Cushion, with cushion heel and shockproof insole, provides complete scientific protection and support for active feet.

- 1 CUSHIONS METATARSAL ARCH
- 2 SUPPORTS LONGITUDINAL ARCH
- 3 ABSORBS HEEL SHOCKS

1854 DOMINION RUBBER 1954

A CENTURY OF SERVICE TO HOME AND INDUSTRY

THE "Champion"

Wide padded tongue, Arch-Cushion features. Men's and women's sizes. White.

DOMINION RUBBER

Get 3-Way Support FOR EVERY SPORT WITH

FLEET FOOT

ARCH-CUSHION SHOES

THEY'RE WASHABLE

CUP

Runneth Over

By MIKE CASSIDY

DANCE OVER, MONEY GONE, screams the Western Gazette, $300 was missing from the door receipts after the Toronto-Western football dance in Western. Count Basie, for those who were there, was the featured band-leader. No one knows where the money has gone, least of all the University Students Council at Western, who took a week to announce the discrepancy.

Money was really a blue day for all University of California students last week. With Homecoming weekend less than a week away, the festivities began. Any co-ed who wore lipstick, or any undergrad with red hair, was brought before a Kangaroo Court for wearing red on blue Monday. One prisoner was put in jail, a wooden cage, for an hour's sentence, because he came out of the Student's Union with a red package of cigarettes in hand.

And from Marquette University, in Milwaukee, comes another of those football stories—

A freshman football player was found just sitting in front of his locker after a particularly rigorous game. When an aide asked what the difficulty was, he replied — "They hit me so hard out there, I've forgotten the combination".

Pranksters at Queen's revived another old chestnut last week. Co-Eds at Ban Right hall, one of Queen's women's residences, woke up to find a corpse in their back yard. Medsmen disclaimed any responsibility for the incident.

Remember all those comments on the panty raids out West a couple of years back? Various wags told the girls to retaliate, then. Now, belatedly, University of Alberta co-eds have. Fifty girls raided a men's residence in Edmonton, looking for BVD's. They got as far as the second story before they were driven out. Men took one girl prisoner, but she escaped when the warden appeared.

Also from the residences, this time at UBC, Acadia Camp students are reported greatly perturbed over the appearance of a ruthless crime wave in their midst. Seems that some dishonest students were absconding with extra pats of butter.

Belgian Students Found Platonic Camp As Police Jail 75 In Wild Orgy

Brussels, (Exchange) — Students at the Free University of Brussels re-established the Republic of Plato last month. On the (approximate) 2,500th anniversary of the birth of Plato, students meeting to revive student spirit decided to commemorate the event in a sensational way.

An island was selected, and one fine autumn evening, some 150 men and women students assembled around the lake. Four or five men took off their clothes and took over a boat which ferried people across the lake every day. The great invasion followed immediately. Fireworks, apples and rotten tomatoes provided ammunition.

The inhabitants of the island, a watchman and four women who look after the service during the day, did not understandably perhaps, take kindly to this escapade. They refused to open the cafe and serve hot drinks to the invaders.

A police commissioner invited the students to evacuate the island. They refused. In no time, lorries and jeeps brought some 150 policemen who surrounded the lake. At one point, there were as many as 240 policemen equipped with grenades and mortars.

Meanwhile, Plato's Republic was being organized. The archons had been appointed: The chief of the army archon, the king archon and the eponym archon, and also an archon whom Plato had not foreseen, the archon of Finance and Communications.

Fireworks exploded into the night, and when one student tried to photograph the police on the other bank, the representatives of law and order hid their faces or turned their backs. A trombone, playing incessantly, enlivened the students who were no doubt beginning to find the night a little long.

Finally, at 6 a.m. the police arrived with a dinghy which they placed in the water. Three of them, armed to the teeth, landed on the island; and occupied the ferry, thus enabling most of their unit to make the crossing.

Seventy-five men and women students were taken to the cells of the nearest police station, 15 of them spectators. The authorities tried to find out who was responsible for this large scale joke, and could not understand that there had been no ring-leader. However, no Plato was found.

Sunday Evening At Hart House

(Continued from Page 5)

technical shortcomings or stylistic misinterpretation.

Oscar Morawetz who accompanied Mr. Rubes excelled in the performance of two piano pieces, the first a Love Song by Joseph Suk which could easily have been shelved with the waste-products of 19th century romanticism. Fortunately Mr. Morawetz's Scherzo was more than a relief after Suk.

Erwin J. Biener

Psychologists

(Continued from Page 1)

which interact and affect all man's actions, in the form of a triangle with the senses, the emotions and the cognition as the three sides of the triangle.

Dr. Cappon said that through the help of psychiatrists, who enable the patient to probe into his unconscious, the patient is able to see clearly and is able to adjust himself. "Medicine has given him light."

The second lecture will be on The Family of God and the Family of Man, and the third on Mental Health and Religion. The fourth, and last lecture, is to be in the form of a large seminar. Discussions follow each lecture.

TODAY

12.00 p.m.—INDUSTRIAL CHEMICAL CLUB-W-1035, Wallberg Dr. W. H. Rapsen, Dept. of Chemical Engineering, will speak on "Paper and Pulp Opportunities for Engineers".

1.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—S.C.M. room, Hart House. Meds Group—"What is a Human Being."

—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—S.C.M. room, Hart House, "Christianity and the Social Sciences."

4.00 p.m.—SPANISH CLUB—Arbor Room, Tertulia. Drink coffee and practice your Spanish.

8.15 p.m.—U. of T. GERMAN CLUB—St. Hilda's Common Room, Panel discussion—Topic "Education, Politics and Literature in Germany Today" Conversation, refreshments.

8.15 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—186 St. George St., Bnai Brith—Carnival in the Lounge.

COMING-UP

WEDNESDAY

1.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—S.C.M. room, Hart House—"Christianity and Race Relations".

—BAHA'I STUDENT GROUP—Falconer Hall, 84 Queen's Park Cres., Open Meeting, Margaret Parkhill, II Social Work on prayer. Discussion.

4.00 p.m.—SLAVIC CIRCLE—Flavelle House—Play Rehearsal.

THURSDAY

1.00 p.m.—U. of T. C.C.F. CLUB—Socialism Ia—Sid Bloom, of the Committee of Human Rights, Civil Liberties.

7.45 p.m.—1ST YEAR ENGLISH STUDENTS (ARTS)—U.C. Women's Union Theatre Film of Hamlet, starring Laurence Olivier.

4.30 p.m.—CARNEGIE RECORD RECITAL—Mech. Engineering Bldg. 3rd floor—Record Recital.

TAKE A COURSE IN

CANADIAN FREEDOM

WIN THE QUEEN'S COMMISSION THROUGH LEADERSHIP TRAINING

JOIN NOW!

University of Toronto Contingent
CANADIAN OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

- ACTIVE AND INTERESTING TRAINING
- SUMMER TRAINING THAT FULFILLS DEGREE PRACTICAL REQUIREMENTS
- REGULAR FORCE RATES OF PAY

Recruiting will continue to Dec. 1, 1954

See . . . The Resident Staff Officer
119 St. George St.

SERVE CANADA AND YOURSELF IN THE

C.O.T.C.

EXPECT BUSY SAC NIGHT

The Siren And...

—VSP by Ted Sparrow

Five Contentious Issues Expected As Stage Set for Busiest Season

Perhaps one of the most active meetings of the year is expected tonight for the Students' Administrative Council. The meeting, held in Falconer Hall, will begin at 7.00 p.m. and is open to all students. Five contentious matters are expected to be brought up. These are:

- (1) A question of the Blue and White Commission's finances and organization.
- (2) A question of the UTDU's decision to hold retrials.
- (3) A report on what is being done by the government scholarship committee.
- (4) A brief discussion of the Hoskin Ave. traffic situation.
- (5) Another possible censure of The Varsity.

The Blue and White lost $356 on last Saturday's dance, reported Bill Harris, Chairman of the B & W Society. However, he added, the B & W will still have a profit of $700. Even after the Christmas Tree and the hockey games we will have $500 profit, he said.

Harris reported that last year the profit of the Blue and White was $500. "We will equal that this year," he said, "and as well we gave $700 clear to Flood Relief." "That adds up to $1200," he said. He also said that at one dance the Blue and White made $950.

One of the reasons for the poor turnout at the dance, Harris explained, was that the tickets sent to Western and Queens didn't arrive there till Thursday night. Consequently, he said, there was only one day for ticket sales. Another reason to which he attributed part of the poor sales was the result of the game. "Queen's certainly didn't want to celebrate and Western didn't feel too happy," he said. "For this reason we didn't get the crowd that normally attends," he added. The whole matter will come up at the SAC meeting, he said.

Another question expected to come up at the meeting is the UTDU's decision to hold retrials. A letter which will be presented at the meeting protests the retrials as a breach of legal and ethical practice. The students already chosen, states the letter, have been admitted to be of university calibre, and consequently there is no precedent for such action. The letter points out that publicity was given to the original trials in advance.

The report of the government scholarship committee and its activities to date will be presented at the meeting, said Norm Chalmers, Chairman of the Scholarship Campaign committee. He said that campaigns have been undertaken by the universities of Alberta, Laval, Bishop, McMaster, McGill, and Queens. Action is being taken by Queen's Park, and the Department of Education at Queen's Park, Chalmers said. A personal delegation from the University of Toronto is expected to meet with Col. Dave Croll, MP while others will meet with George Hees, J. M. MacDonald, and D. M. Fleming, members of parliament who were not at last Friday's general meeting, he said.

... The Sheik

—VSP by Fraser MacIntosh

Blonde Siren On Three-humped Camel Golden Ideal For Wife-hungry Sheik

A willowy campus blonde today said she was willing to marry the 26-year-old Sheik of Araby "anytime he feels like wiggling his little finger at me".

"I've never had a steady boyfriend before," the 20-year-old campus siren purred, "but I like boys... I'll even ride a threehumped camel for him if that's what he wants."

The blonde said that as far as she was concerned, anyone who advertised for someone to go off into the desert with him sounded like the kind of man for her.

The Sheik popped up on the University of Toronto unexpectedly today looking for blondes from which to choose a wife "because I'm very, very lonely."

The Sheik, who brazenly boasted he could buy the whole dang University of Toronto a dozen times over, told newsmen late last night that he simply would not be outdone by all the publicity being given in the metropolitan press to "that impostor" over there in his air-conditioned, Persian Gulf Villa.

"I'm the Sheik what counts," the Persian lord said fiercely in an exclusive interview with The Varsity. "I'm looking for any blonde that's got what it takes."

Asked whether he would consider applications from redheads and brunettes, the Sheik snapped (cilly) "Never!"

LATE FLASH

At press time last night, news of the Sheik's visit to the campus was already circulating. Said one co-ed to The Varsity:

"I've been going to college long enough to learn how to be a good wife. I can discuss all things from tidlywinks to deep dark secrets, can sing, dance, play the ukelele, chesterfield rugger, and other little things with great skill... I'm just the light-hearted kind of blonde you'd like to while away your time with — and your money. Measurements: 24 waist and 20-20 eyes... Yours in anticipation!

Signed,

Lovesick Lizzy."

Another applicant was more indignant said she:

What's with this Sheik? If he could see me, he'd never look at another blonde. And do you know what colour my hair is? Red! Sure I could dye my hair. Actually I'm really a blonde. I dyed it because my ex-boyfriend Bertie liked it that color. And now this guy with a dirty towel around his head says "no dice" to redheads. Just when I thought the big break was here. I ditched Bertie cause of this guy so Sheik or not, he'd better change his mind fast, cause when we get together, there won't be nothin stopping us—not even a blonde!

Hurricane Hazel.

Talks Honor Kant's Death

A series of public lectures by members of the University of Toronto Philosophy department in commemoration of the death of Immanuel Kant 150 years ago, will be opened this afternoon at 4:30 in room 8, University College.

Professor F. H. Anderson, Head of the Department, will introduce the speakers.

The first lecture will appropriately deal with the "core" of Kant's philosophy, said a member of the department, because in that were contained the seeds of much of the thought in the literature, politics and science of the 19th and 20th Centuries.

Kant wrote in an age not unlike our own, the department member said in which materialism, mechanism and authoritarianism were imposing upon individuals' dignity and rights. As a student of physics in his youth, Kant was impressed by the spectacle of the physical firmament and the starry heavens above; as philosopher of Scottish ancestry, he could not escape what he called "the moral law within."

He became the prophet and philosophical exponent of human freedom.

Incidentally, unlike present-day university lecturers, Kant was a very punctual person, the authority stated. When he made the round of his daily walks, citizens of his home town, Koenigsberg, set their erring timepieces.

Of the three lecturers in the series, Professors Dryer and Fackenheim have been well known to students for several years. Professor Mehler was formerly on the staff of the University of Breslau. He is the author of several books and many papers and an authority of international reputation in the philosophy of science.

This afternoon, Professor Dryer will speak on "The Core of Kant's Critique of Pure Reason."

Next Wednesday, Professor Mehler will discuss "Kant's Philosophy of Science," while on the Wednesday following, Professor Fackenheim will talk on "Kant's Philosophy of History."

SAVE 60¢ on every 2-PAIR purchase of

Orient Nylons

A SPECIAL purchase from the manufacturers of Orient stockings makes it possible for us to offer you this great bargain for TEN DAYS!

SALE STARTS TOMORROW

You already know Orient nylons. There are no finer made anywhere. So this is a really great opportunity to save money on your own hosiery needs and a rare chance to save money on gifts that you know will delight everyone.

NEW FALL SHADES
Frosted Plum
Sugar n' Spice
Turkish Beige
Ashes of Roses

Sizes
8½ to 11

EVANGELINE GIFT BOXES
FOR ALL OF YOUR GIFTS

SHEER CHIFFON, Regular $1.35 $2.10
SAVE 60¢ on 2 pairs for

SERVICE SHEER, Regular $1.50 $2.40
SAVE 60¢ on 2 pairs for

"LAN-O-LUX" SHEER, Regular $1.50 $2.40
SAVE 60¢ on 2 pairs for

"QUEEN'S LACE" SUPER SHEER $3.30
Regular $1.95 SAVE 60¢ on 2 pairs for

EVANGELINE'S IMPORTED GLOVES

THE BEST BUY FOR YOURSELF

Perfect for Gifts!

...

FULLY SHRUNK ENGLISH FABRIC GLOVES

You'll never know how really good a fabric glove can be until you try a pair of these. They wash perfectly and give exceptional wear. All styles are handsewn. White, Navy, Black, Champagne and Brown. Sizes 6 to 7½.

$2.98 to $3.98

FINE LEATHER GLOVES

FRENCH KID
$4.98
ENGLISH
"PIGTEX"
$3.98

The French Kid in tailored styles are perfect for dress-up occasions and you'll love the English "Pigtex" type sports glove for all your casual clothes.

Wool and Angora Gloves

FINE BOTANY WOOL from "Wolsey" of England $1.25

ANGORA GLOVES and MITTS $1.99

The fine botany gloves from "Wolsey" have soft brushed wool inside and are exceptionally warm. Lots of gay bright shades. The angora gloves are now made stronger with about 20% of fine botany wool and 5% of nylon. White, Black and the soft pastel shades.

Both styles are low priced and make lovely gifts.

Evangeline

OPEN HOUSE
FRIDAY EVENINGS
All Stores except
Adelaide and Yonge

IN HAMILTON
King & John Streets

OTTAWA • BROCKVILLE • LONDON • GUELPH • KINGSTON
ST. CATHARINES • PETERBOROUGH

• 113 Yonge at Adelaide
• 786 Yonge at Bloor
• 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
• 3414 Yonge at City Limits
• 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
• 656 Danforth at Pope
• 62A Bloor at Bay

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR C. CLYDE BATTEN
MANAGING EDITOR ROBERT D. BROWN
News Editor Mike Pengeley
Assistant News Editor Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Feature Editor Mary Alice Hunter
Makeup Editor Irene Meyers
A.M. & D. Editor Wendy Michener
Sports Editor John Wilson
Women's Sports Editor Jo Ratcliffe
Photo Editor Ed. Hoshkiw
CUP Editor Chuck Williams
Mortician Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE Bob Brown
NIGHT EDITOR Carol Hoffman
REPORTERS Mike Erdei, Doug. Stewart

Staff Note

We have always been personally impressed by the general academic competence of the teaching faculty of this University. The vast majority of the staff appear to have an adequate, or more than adequate, knowledge of their subjects. Many of the professors are second to none on this continent in the mastery of their respective fields of studies.

Many members of the staff also have an interesting and thought-provoking manner of delivering their lectures or of conducting their tutorials. But far too many have not.

Some lectures are a definite pleasure to attend. Some are a bore and a complete waste of both the professor's and the student's time. The lectures are made that way not by any lack of knowledge on the subject by the lecturer, but by a dull, faulty, and vague presentation of the necessary information.

Some lecturers have the ability to catch up the students' minds in an interest in the subject. They point up the interesting aspects of the course of study, and help the student in such matters as preparing notes and selecting a good reading-list.

But some lecturers — through poor English, mumbling voices, inane eccentricities, and a general lack of consideration of the interests of their classes, make the life of the student harder, and duller, and an interest in the subject less likely.

And a few members of the faculty approach their subject with all the enthusiasm of a dead, wet cod.

At present, university instructors are not required to have any training in teaching methods. We would suggest that some definite attempt could be made by the administration to ensure that in future additions to the staff are made only when the applicant has produced proof of his ability to communicate ideas, as well as his possession of them. —RDB simplicity, seriousness, sincerity

Or Stagnation?

The following is a letter to the Editor of The Varsity written by Joe Slogan, IV Dents, who is the Dentistry Representative on the SAC.

The Varsity has been receiving some deserved and constructive criticism. The sole purpose of it is the elevation of The Varsity to a level worthy of the university community it serves. I commend The Varsity for the slight improvement I have noticed and the excellent edition of Nov. 17. It was disparaging, therefore, to see how the editorial page of Nov. 15 ignored concrete suggestions made by Mr. Oliver and expounded on minor details.

Criticism of The Varsity seems to be distasteful to some. I was variously asked to refrain from introducing motions concerning The Varsity at SAC meetings, to refer motions to the Publications Commission without discussion, to send my recommendations to the Varsity.

But in the Commission, I was informed, ulterior motives were imputed to the resolution, criticism of the faculty concerned made. The Varsity commended, and the recommendations apparently overlooked.

This and Mr. Oliver's treatment in The Varsity have confirmed my belief that the place to criticize The Varsity is in the SAC which is responsible for it. I promise to criticize it there until The Varsity improves. During the two debates on The Varsity, the editor did not say one word.

There is no doubt in the mind of many of us that The Varsity is one of the poorer college papers. We do not expect perfection, but we expect more than we have been getting. The Varsity editor was appointed last year, to say the least, under dubious circumstances. This led to the resignation of the Publications Commissioner. This fact coupled with the editor's limited background in journalism, lead us to hope that the editor would at least try, by a sincere and concerted effort, to produce a high standard of journalism.

(Continued on Page 4)

Irish Edge Blues 5-4 Fisher, Currie Shine

By JOHN WILSON

Playing probably their toughest opposition to date, the Hockey Blues yesterday came out on the wrong end of a 5-4 verdict to St. Michael's College in their fourth and last exhibition tilt. Paced by hard working Clare Fisher, who notched two goals, and speedy Paul Knox, the Blues outskated the Double Blue for the first two periods, but seemed slower in the third. It was the first regulation time game for the seniors.

Blue centre Don Cossar left the game late in the first period with a head cut, but was back in action by the middle of the third stanza. Other minor casualties were John Adams, when the winger aggravated an old knee injury colliding with the goal post after scoring the neatest goal of the afternoon in the second period. Dave Reid has a bruised knee after a run-in with St. Mike's forward Pat Hannigan, who was recently suspended by his team for a high-sticking duel with the Barrie Flyers.

St. Mike's was without clever forward Dick Duff, out with an injured neck, but the Double Blue, currently high atop the OHA Junior "A" by four points, were adequate opposition for the Blues. Johnny Adams and Paul Knox were the other Varsity goalgetters, as the Blues put on one of the best shows of the season thus far.

Knox drew first blood for the Blues at 1:50 of the first period with the only goal of the frame to give the Blues a 1-0 lead. The Double Blue flew into a 2-1 lead early in the second period on goals by Pat Hannigan from Bob Watt and Bill Colvin from Ken Gribbons. Colvin's tally came while Varsity goalie Hugh Currie was sprawled on the ice well out of the net.

Adams tied it up at 12:26 carrying the puck from outside the blueline to sweep in on Gerry MacNamara from the right wing. The Blue power combination of Reid, Fisher, Knox, Stephen and Jackson seemed to have trouble outwitting the St. Mike's defence as Knox missed several opportunities when goal-posts or MacNamara got in the way.

Colvin got his second tally at 3:46 of the third period while Les Duff was off for tripping. Snagging a loose puck in front of the Blue net, Con Lister had little chance at point blank range. Fisher got it back for the Blues just two minutes later taking Reid's pass in front of the St. Mike's net after deking the lone Double Blue defenceman. Colvin notched his third tally for the hat trick at 8:03 with Lister flat on his back after rebounding Brian Anderson's shot. Ken Gribbons put the Mikemen two goals in front at 12:25 this time from Colvin, after a neat passing play that started well back of the red line.

With Anderson serving a two-minute penalty for holding the puck, Fisher notched his second goal, assisted by Red Stephen and Paul Knox at 16:26. Knox's last minute rush was cut short by the clock to end the game at 5-4.

Now finished with their series of exhibition games, the Blues will be preparing for the next two weeks for the league opener December 3 in Varsity Arena. The University of Montreal Carabins will be visitors that night, as the Blues set out in search of the Queens Cup, the symbol of Intercollegiate Hockey supremacy.

Fracas May Not Play

Gino Fracas, say the whisperers, is in hospital out in London, being examined for possible concussion. It seems that last Saturday's game with the Golden Gaels shook the Western great up rather badly. Nothing was noticed during the game, except that Fracas was one of the most effective men on the field. Later examination has aroused concern over his condition, and, at the moment, there is speculation as to whether he will be around in shape for the big finale with the Varsity Blues next Saturday.

There are somewhat similar troubles in the Blue camp these days, with big Jack Strapp out and Al Riva ailing slightly. Both these men are very important to the Varsity machine, Riva to run the ball and Strapp to clear the way for Riva's promenading.

Skulemen And St. Mike's Renew Mulock Cup Feud

St. Mike's will meet SPS on Thursday afternoon at Varsity Stadium for the Mulock Cup emblematic of football supremacy of the Intramural leagues. Last year the Irish met the Skule team in the finals and Skule took that one from the Irish 17-0. The Irish are out to seek revenge and prove that lightning doesn't strike in the same place twice.

Defensively the Irish are the best in the league as they have gone through four consecutive games without being scored upon. Skule on the other hand have a terrific pass attack going which they hope will beat the Irish's defence.

The injury bug has struck the Irish camp rather heavily in the last few days. Leo McGuigan and Tom McCormick were lost during the season, while Ollie Babirard and Dan Driscoll were injured in the Vic game of last Monday. Babirard injured his knee while Driscoll tore ligaments in both legs. This is quite a blow to the Irish as Driscoll has been a stalwart on the Irish line.

Skule on the other hand is in tip top shape for the contest. The passing of Don Hart in the last few games has brought them this far and they're pinning their hopes on his arm for Thursday's game.

Actually there is little to choose between the teams as each stand out in their own field. Both teams suffered only one defeat. Trinity beat the Irish in the first game of the season and Skule beat Trinity last Monday. Victoria defeated Skule and the Irish defeated Vic last Monday. So you see, they are quite well matched.

The usual amount of color will go into the game. St. Mike's are going to unveil their newly formed Pea Pickers Philharmonic which is their answer to Skule's Lady Godiva's Memorial Band.

Meds, UC 29-29 Trying to Sever Three-way Tie

Last night at OCE, we watched one of the best games of the basketball season as U.C. seniors and Meds fought to a 29-29 tie. Both clubs were striving to break a three way tie with Vic and the present situation should prove very interesting, probably necessitating a sudden death playoff next week.

Each team used a six-man, closely guarded defense, and a lightning fast offense, studded with long shots. Claire McMullen, U.C., tallied well in the first half, taking advantage of the Meds' fouls. Half time score — 16-9 for U.C.

In the second half, UC began to tire and Meds took the advantage with Sally Wallace good for four. With 30 seconds to play, the doctors tied it up, and so it ended in a 29 tie.

Both guard lines did fine defensive work. Jean Martin was right in there for the college gaels keeping the high scoring medswomen from tallying. Mary Platts starred on guard for Meds. Sally Wallace was high scorer for Meds while Claire McMullen topped the UC list.

STRONG
as a pogo stick

Venus VELVET Pencils give you less sharpening and longer life because the leads are "pressure proofed" — actually bonded to the wood. The world's finest 6¢ pencil.

Smooth
as velvet

Venus VELVET Pencils give you friction free writing comfort — because the leads are "colloidal processed" for clean, even, effortless work.

DRAWING pencils too!

Venus Drawing Pencils — with the famous green crackle finish — are accurately graded in all 17 degrees. For drawing, drafting, designing perfection — ask for Venus.

Velvet
pencils

Conveniently
Eraser Tipped

FREE Venus Sketching Book, complete instructions on the art of pencil sketching when you buy two Venus Drawing Pencils by mail at the regular price of 25¢

Write enclosing coin to:

The Venus Pencil Co., Ltd., Toronto 14, Ontario

HART HOUSE TODAY

NOTE:

1. Great Hall — closing — evening meal Friday, 26th November. Convocation Dinner for those receiving Honorary Degrees on the occasion of opening of New University Library.
2. There will be an Art Talk given by Prof. Charles Comfort tonight from 5 to 6 in the Art Gallery. This talk will be based on the present American show hanging in the Gallery. Men and women of the University of Toronto are most welcome to attend.

WEDNESDAY, 24TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS—GLEE CLUB INVITATIONAL CONCERT—Hall Porter's Desk.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — U.S.A. ART EXHIBITION. "Tools and Techniques." Also sculpture by Rae Katz Platner. Prints by Sybil Andrews.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).
- 1.10 p.m. — COLOUR SHOW CRITICISM (Camera Club Rooms). Mr. W. J. Blackhall, past President Toronto Camera Club will criticize. Members invited to bring their transparencies.
- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — MID-WAY RECITAL (East Common Room). Winston McKenzie will give a piano jazz concert.
- 4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY—Open to women of the University of Toronto.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Men and women of the University of Toronto — see this.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Music Room). 1st basses.
- 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).
- 7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. Prizes.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

Toronto Symphony Orchestra

Sir Ernest Macmillan, Conductor

TONIGHT

Soloist: Clifford Curzon, Pianist

300 seats at $1.50 special to students at 75¢ at Box Office

MASSEY HALL

GAMES TODAY

- LACROSSE PLAYOFF — 1.00 U.C. II vs. St. M. A—Dhryluk, Mackie Group Playoff (if necessary) 6.30 St. M. E vs. Dent. B—Eagleson, Brown
- VOLLEYBALL 1.00 Vic. IV vs. SPS VII—Balshin 4.00 St. M. E vs. Pre-Med II A—Kipiniak 3.00 Jr. U.C. vs. Med. IV V—Kipiniak 6.00 Vic. III vs. Dent. B—Kipiniak 7.00 Knox A vs. Law A—Diemer 8.00 Arch. A vs. Wyc. A—Diemer 4.20 Pre-Med vs. Vic. I 7.00 Jr. SPS vs. Med. V 12.30 SPS III vs. Vic. III—Lotocki, Nadin 1.30 St. SPS vs. St. Vic—Dysart, Tilson 4.00 St. U.C. vs. St. Med—Fisher, Reid
- SQUASH
- HOCKEY

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1642 anytime.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE

Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES

Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-9483 — 21 Russell St. (Just off St. George St.)

FOR SALE

1937 Plymouth in good condition See Prof. R. A. Ward, Room 26, Wycliffe College.

STUDENT RATES: TIME, LIFE, PORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazine as student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, PORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3528.

FOR RENT

Front, housekeeping room. Furnished, newly decorated. Kitchen privileges, washing machine and "TV." Convenient to transportation. Female student or young couple MU 6543

FOR SALE

'37 Dodge sedan, good running order, inside heater, and block heater, only $49. MA. 1936.

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75¢

Saturday Nov. 27th to Saturday Dec. 4th at 8.30

BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN — 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

Women's Basketball

The game between PRE I AND VIC SOPHS E will be played Thurs. Nov. 25th at 7.30 and the game between UC JR. SE. AND VIC JR. will be played Thurs. Nov. 25th at 5.30 rather than 7.30.

MANAGERS — Submit medicals or team will be disqualified. Hand in game reports and score sheets promptly.

CUP

Runneth-Over

By DOUG STEWART

Louisiana — Students who enter a course for which they are not suited and then have to drop out have always posed a problem to University officials. Students entering Engineering at Louisiana State University will henceforth be required to take a four-hour aptitude test. Those who prove to be unsuited to Engineering will be directed to other courses on the basis of the psychiatrists' findings.

Kingston — Claims against the Queens Alma Mater Society to the amount of $268.30 have arisen as a result of damage resulting from the September riot. There are still some assessments from Kingston citizens forthcoming.

The Queens Journal has followed The Varsity's lead, and taken a poll on drinking. We hope that it will not prove as disastrous in the hands of local dailies as Toronto's attempt. Amongst the comments we found this: "Drinking leads to the degradation and downfall of the modern student. When one realizes that the delicate membranes of the stomach are similar to those of the eye, you can compare the effect of alcohol on the stomach by pouring gin in your eye." We'll take his word for it.

London — A trend towards woollen togues and knee socks is breaking out at Western. Gals find the long socks warm and comfortable; men don't like them. Word has it that more daring souls are planning to spread the fashion on this campus. As one Western professor said: "When America catches cold, Canada sneezes."

Edmonton — Fifty girls at the University of Alberta turned the tables on the men and staged a B.V.D. raid on their residence. The girls got no loot, and one was captured.

Wolville, N.S. — The Acadia Athenaeum is publishing a University calendar featuring twelve campus lovelies. The girls are chosen on the basis of a student vote.

Seems to be all the news to-day from other campi. And look, people, not one joke from that dirty old rag, the Saskatchewan Sheaf.

STAGNATION

(Continued from Page 2)

He would thus have regained the confidence of those who disapproved of the SAC action. This he apparently has failed to do. From the urgent pleas for staff that is constantly emanating from The Varsity, it seems that he has also failed to win the confidence of some of last year's staff, and some of those who hopefully went to work for The Varsity this year. I have spoken to at least two students who have written for other college papers. They said that though they would like to write, they had no desire to be associated with The Varsity.

Money alone does not make a good paper. However, a paper that will cost $26,874.00 to publish this year deserves to be brought to the attention of the students. A paper that will have a deficit of over $10,000 deserves your interest. The deficit will account for approximately one third of all SAC revenue, derived from student fees and otherwise. Yet The Varsity wishes to have its budget increased. If the budget is so tight, if the problems of putting out a daily paper are so acute that they mean an inferior quality, then I suggest that The Varsity be made a tri-weekly. The Varsity then, would have more time to work on quality and would not have to feed us so much advertising.

I am not criticizing the make-up and typography. I am criticizing the excess of typographical errors, misleading headlines, notorious articles, and a negative policy.

It amuses me to see The Varsity in action. The engineering freshmen incident is blown up. The engineering society president felt that The Varsity had exaggerated the incident and won the sympathy of the SAC. The editor disagreed and "reserved the right to criticize". This appears to be the only policy of The Varsity. When the engineering society was suspended, The Varsity became suddenly, the champions of student government, and the administration became the great ogres. The Varsity's negative policy on

FOREIGN JOBS

Men and Women. Opportunities overseas with high pay and transportation paid. Engineers, Draftsmen, Skilled Technicians, Nurses, Laboratory and Office Personnel. Salaries up to $1,200 a month. Our new Fall and Winter edition is now on sale. Write or see . . .

DONALD DICKSON & ASSOCIATES

226 BAY STREET

TODAY

WEDNESDAY

- 1.00 p.m.—FROS — Discussion on History and Culture of China—45 St. George St.
—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—"Christianity and race relationships"—SCM Room, Hart House.
—BAHA'I STUDENT GROUP — Falconer Hall.
—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP MEDICAL GROUP—"The Crisis of Our Age"—Anatomy Bldg., Rm. 212.
—HART HOUSE CAMERA CLUB —Colour Show.
4.00 p.m. — SLAVIC CIRCLE — Play Rehearsal—Flavelle House. Publicity and Advertising for Brigadoon—JCR.
8.00 p.m.—FILM SOCIETY PRODUCTION MEETING — 5 Wilcocks St.
9.00 p.m.—SHOWER for Bride of Sheikh—239½ Jarvis St.

COMING-UP

THURSDAY

- 1.00 p.m. — SOCIALISM LA — Sid Blum—Rm. 4 UC.
4.30 p.m. — CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION Concert — Staff Lounge, Mechanical Building.
7.45 p.m. — "HAMLET" film — 1st year English — UC Women's Union.
8.30 p.m. — Wedding — One Sheikh and one Blonde—KCR.

dignity, diplomacy, and furtherance of democracy; when we can detect in the Varsity simplicity, sincerity, and seriousness of purpose instead of stagnation, sterility, and self satisfaction, The Varsity will have more than ample staff and budget, and a great respect from the student body.

This article is not meant in any way to personally reflect upon the editor or any of the many earnest and hard-working students on The Varsity staff. It is written in the hope that it will be given serious consideration.

—Joseph Slogan

SWEATER STYLES

by

Birkdale

Knit from fine all-wool yarns, these handsome styles make distinctive additions to a man's casual wardrobe. Sketched is the six-button cardigan with V neck and two pockets, companions are the zippered jacket and the sleeveless pullover. Each is available in beige, mid-grey, powder, burgundy and navy. One more point—they're "Mittin'" mothproofed for long protection!

EATON'S OF CANADA

THE READING INSTITUTE

33 AVENUE ROAD, TORONTO 5, CANADA

WALnut 2-3157

We Are Sorry

but for the next month we are unable to accept registrations for individual Reading Improvement Instruction between three thirty and five thirty p.m.

We still have instructional time available between nine a.m. and three thirty p.m., but we don't know how long this may last. If you are interested in instruction between now and the beginning of the year, we suggest that you visit us before the end of the week.

For those who possibly are uninformed of our work, we are developing the reading ability of those eight out of ten students who are poor by comparison with the greater ability they can develop. No one needs to stress the value of a short course improving reading skills by one hundred per cent.

To help students we have instituted a special student payment plan and for those who wish to earn at least part of the fee it is possible for you to do this in spare time work with us. However, maintaining our important principle of individual instruction has restricted the number we can enroll.

If you would like further information we suggest you take the short walk to our office.

SPECIAL VARSITY EXCURSION

VARSITY vs. WESTERN — NOV. 27

Excursion and ticket arrangements for those going to London for the game

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

$5.00 Return

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27

Leaving TORONTO 8.15 a.m.

GAME TICKETS IN STUDENT SECTION $1.50

Reserved Seats also available . . .
$2.50 and $3.00

S.A.C. Offices will sell combination train and game tickets OR train tickets only.

NOW ON SALE

IMPORTANT! . . . KICK-OFF, 1 P.M.

Athletic Assoc. Game Tickets Only

Game tickets ONLY on sale at
ATHLETIC OFFICE

TICKET WICKET

from 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Prices $1.50 in Student Section
Reserved Seats $2.50 and $3.00

B & W KNUCKLES RAPPED

Last Chance for Pot of Gold!

These three damsels were among the many who volunteered to work at the Treasure Van Sale, which goes into its last day of sales today at Hart House Debates Room. You needn't all buy the buffalo horns, but come in and look them over anyway.
—VSP by Ed. Hoshkiw

No Retrials Nor US Tour For UTDU As SAC Debates Debating On Campus

No retrials will be held for the intercollegiate debating team, it was decided last night at the SAC meeting. However, one US' debating tour will be cancelled.

Gord Hurlburt, Chairman of the UTDU, proposed, and the SAC passed, a motion, that the week-long debating tour through the U.S.A. be disbanded. The two hundred dollars budgeted for this affair could be better spent on interfaculty debating, where 16 colleges could express their views, and not just two members who would go on tour, the SAC decided.

The question of the apathy of the students on campus to debating was discussed. At the beginning of this term letters had been sent to all members of the U.T.D.U., representing each faculty and college to come to the first meeting to give their views. Six of approximately eighteen members showed up. At this meeting, a platform for U.T.D.U. was brought forward: The aims of U.T.D.U. were

- (1) To permit interfaculty debates on this campus — to give the average person in any one college an opportunity to come out and debate.
- (2) To promote tours to carry on in the tradition of the University of Toronto.

Hurlburt outlined the purpose of debating on the campus. "Although it may appear futureless to the average student, it is very important that they had fairly be able to state and defend their views. So few people are able to do this."

A letter from several students was read, concerning the question of debating retrials: "We register our strong protest... an action quite unworthy of the S.A.C."

There were several objections raised as to the time the debate was held and the difficulty of the subjects picked. Mr. Hurlburt replied that they had fairly considered all times and in view of the difficulty of an agreeable time to all they felt they had obtained the best time available.

The last UTDU meeting was further concerned with the lack of interest on campus regarding debating. "Three years ago," said Mr. Slogan, "thirty-six people had tried out at the debating trials, and many of them were of good quality for University debating."

An irate group of University College students Tuesday night protested against the new obligation of black academic gowns which are compulsory at evening meals held in the new Wilson Memorial residence.

Sporting long robes, usually worn only by heads of departments and Trinity College students, the demonstration paraded

Later Library Night Hours Will be Requested by SAC

Chief Librarian R. H. Blackburn will be receiving a letter in the mail shortly from Students' Administrative Council requesting that the new University of Toronto main library be kept open for study purposes until 11 p.m., each week-day.

This was decided here last night at a regular meeting of the SAC.

Decision to take the action came when it was revealed Mr. Blackburn wanted such a letter from SAC before he took any action on the matter.

Two University College representatives — Ronald Gould and Jane Farquharson — approached the Chief Librarian recently after talking it over with the UC Literary Association and the Womens' Undergraduate Association of the college.

They were reported to have suggested that the library be kept open until 11 p.m., on week nights to facilitate students who needed a place to study. Mr. Blackburn was reported to have pointed out however that a staff shortage at the library would make such a move impractical.

The two representatives later were reported to have asked Mr. Blackburn "whether it would be possible for the library to be open for study purposes only — not for the taking out of books—from 9 p.m. until 11." It was then that Mr. Blackburn suggested a letter addressed to him from SAC.

The SAC resolution passed unanimously.

Figures Aren't Figuring In B and W, SAC Budgets

A dispute over Blue and White Society expenditures at the Students' Administrative Council's regular meeting last night may lead to an amendment of the Council's constitution.

Discrepancies in figures sparked a lively debate concerning recent Blue and White Society expenditures. Figures submitted by Blue and White Chairman Bill Harris appeared to conflict with those of SAC Secretary-Treasurer E. A. MacDonald.

Tighter control over Blue and White Society expenditures was recommended by Allan Walden, Finance Commissioner. Walden pointed out losses on sales of bloopers and pompons as well as on last Saturday night's football dance as evidence of lax financing on the part of the society.

The more than $400.00 loss on the dance was explained by Saturday, 27 November, noon. Harris as an "unfortunate result of Saturday's game." Most of the Queen's students "packed up and decided to go home," he said. He also blamed poor attendance at the dance on the fact that students were beginning to realize the necessity for studying.

Harris called the dance "the best of the year," but admitted that a mistake had been made in procuring too many bands.

While the Blue and White is not subject to control by any other SAC commission, the proposed amendment may make it necessary for future expenditures of the society to be approved by the Finance Commission.

Michael Shoemaker, Trinity rep, called the Society's budgeting "the strangest financial manipulation I have ever come in contact with." "Some financial cleaning up must be done," he said.

A motion to set up a committee to investigate the amendment concerning the society was passed at the meeting.

Hart Sponsors Art Coeds May Create For New Contest

Coeds as well as male undergraduates may submit creations of art in any medium to the Hart House Undergraduate Activities office until Saturday. Assistant to the Warden, Garth McDowell announced yesterday.

This is an opportunity for budding and practicing campus Artists to show their works", he said.

All entries must be framed and labeled suitably, giving name, address and phone number of the artist. The value of the picture must also be marked for insurance purposes, it was announced.

The best forty or so pieces will be selected and exhibited in the Hart House Art Gallery. The selection will be made by the Art Committee. Deadline for entries down Bloor St. and through campus coffee shops at about 10:15 p.m. Considerable attention was attracted while traffic stopped on Bloor St. to watch the students march toward Avenue Rd.

UC Men Protest New Dignity

The UC students must pay $11.55 for the gowns, which are worn only to evening meals (Saturday excepted). The gowns were described by one resident as "useful only for table napkins." Mild protest was registered earlier in the year but no demonstration was held until the Dining Hall opened Monday and gowns became obligatory.

One protestor remarked that the gowns "destroyed individuality", as stressed by President Sidney Smith last year. The President could not be reached for comment.

Most students agreed that it was the forced regimentation which had caused the disturbance.

Earlier in the evening women's unmentionables and stockings had been hung on the face of the tower clock. This may or may not be related to the parade; The Varsity could not determine the connection, nor contact the instigators.

Our Philosophy Fails—Dryer

Modern philosophy, in comparison with the positive sciences of today, has failed to explain to men the nature of themselves and their world, said Professor Dryer in his commemorative lecture on Kant yesterday.

This was the first of a series of lectures to mark the death of the great philosopher, 150 years ago. Professor Dryer explained that this failure of philosophy today was similar to the situation one and a half centuries ago at the time of Kant. In presenting a talk on Kant's Critique of Pure Reason, he endeavoured to show how a study of Kant would profit us in today's situation.

The speaker illustrated Kant's concepts on the nature of things and thought as shown in the critique, and on how far philosophy can answer the age-old questions of the mind, reality and God.

While Kant's more controversial conclusions are often considered, the core of the critique is not, said Professor Dryer. He discussed Kant's answer in the critique to the tasks of philosophy today.

? Meatheads!

All Masthead members, and other faithful staffers, are requested to make their appearance in The Varsity office today at 5:00 p.m. An important discussion will be held, and certain culinary topics will also be under consideration.

Radio Forum

On CBL tonight at 7:45 p.m., the programme Citizens' Forum will feature a panel discussion by three professors from Queens and the University of Montreal. The topic will be National Scholarships.

PART TIME EMPLOYMENT

Several openings are available on campus for students who wish to work between 12.30 and 2.00 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays or Fridays and from 5.30 to 9.00 p.m. on any evening. Applicants must be thoroughly responsible and capable of dealing with the public and be registered in any year OTHER THAN THE FIRST OR FINAL YEAR. There are also a few openings for Saturdays. Rate of pay is 60c an hour.

Please apply immediately to the Students' Administrative Council Office, S.A.C. Building.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

CHRISTMAS HELP

Ten students, male or female, to sell Christmas products — door to door — high commission basis — start December 1; full or part time. Apply S.A.C. Employment Office.

TYPING

Notes, theses, manuscripts, etc. typed, edited, duplicated quickly and reasonably. WA. 3-7830.

STUDENT RATES:

TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3524.

FOR SALE

1937 Plymouth in good condition. See Prof. R. A. Ward, Room 26, Wycliffe College.

FOR SALE

'37 Dodge sedan, good running order, inside heater and block heater, only $49. MA. 1916.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1243 anytime.

An Announcement!

OUR ANNIVERSARY SALE OF TROUSERS

- MADE TO MEASURE
- TOP QUALITY ENGLISH WOOLLENS
- LARGE RANGE OF SHADES
- EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED

If not satisfied . . . Money Completely Refunded.

DON'T MISS OUT ON THIS SPECIAL SALE

Reg. $20.00 - $25.00 . . . NOW $14.85

THE BEST DEAL OF THE YEAR FOR YOU

KARN CLEANERS & CLOTHIERS

P.S. — Drop in your Cleaning on the way over.

10% Discount to Students on All Cleaning.

235 1/2 COLLEGE ST. (opp. Dental College) Phone WA. 4-3072

N.B.—Made to Measure Suits tailored on the premises.

Bras

A rumour has it that the women of the residences have taken to hanging their washing in somewhat new and startling places. In fact it has been reported that two brassieres were seen the other night dangling from the clock of the UC Men's Residence. One decorated the north face, the other was on the west.

Lowell's Poetry At Letters Club

Members of the University College Modern Letters Club discussed problems in symbolism and structure recently in connection with the poem "A Quaker Graveyard in Nantucket" by Robert Lowell.

The discussion was conducted by Professor J. B. Priestly and Don Owen.

Members of the club decided the next meeting of the club would be held December 9 in Falconer Hall. Topic for discussion will be Edith Sitwell's wartime poem on the Battle of Britain, "Still Falls the Rain."

WHY THE FAIR SEX GOES FOR CASHMERE

When it comes to "sexes," the weaker one certainly knows its onions about clothes.

Just mention "Cashmere" within earshot of a woman (a wife or convenient steno will do) and watch the reaction! The gals know how soft and luxurious this fine wool can make a fabric.

You'll be surprised at the number of admiring looks you'll get, in one of our handsome Cashmere coats. Mind you, they won't be bold, wicked glances. Women know better than to flirt openly with a Hoberlin-dressed man. But they will take notice of that smooth-draping material, the fine lustre of it, and the excellent cut.

Styled by Savile Row, $95.00.

If you would prefer a coat, which is not so sleek in finish, has more of a nap top, let us show you our Moordale Velour woven for us by Gledhill of England. Sixteen shades to select from. In the special styling of Peter Antonelli, with Progress Brand tailoring. $87.50.

And our money-back guarantee has no strings attached. If you aren't satisfied, then we aren't. P.S.: We're open till 6 p.m.

Hoberlin's

LIMITED

145 Yonge

EM. 3-7313

To-day

THURSDAY

1.00 p.m.—U. of T. C.C.F. — Sid Blum—Rm. 4 UC.
—NEWMAN CLUB — Lecture on Truth by Rev. P. W. Nash—club house.
—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — "The misunderstanding of the Church" — "Science and Religion" — SMC Room, Hart House.
—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP — "How to Know

God", by Rev. J. Robson.—Vic. Rm. 36.

4.00 p.m.—UC PARLIAMENT—Resolved that Democracy is a failure — J.C.R.

—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — "Records of the Life of Jesus" — Hart House.

4.30 p.m.—CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION—Recorded Concert — Staff Lounge,—Mechanical Building.

7.45 p.m.—FIRST YEAR ENGLISH STUDENTS (Arts) — Film of Hamlet — UC Women's Union Theatre.

8.00 p.m.—SMC STUDY GROUP—Church in Industry, speaker Charlie Millard — 143 Bloor.

8.30 p.m.—U. of T. CIRCLE K. CLUB—Music Room, Hart House.

—NEWMAN CLUB — Newman legal group — Club House.

COMING-UP

FRIDAY

8.00 p.m.—MODERN HISTORY CLUB — "French-English relations in Canada", — Professor Falardeau of Laval University—Falconer Hall.

8.15 p.m.—U of T FILM SOCIETY—The Work of Robert Flaherty by Mrs. Flaherty, members only—Village Theatre.

—WEST INDIAN STUDENTS ASSN. — Calypso Party — Women's Union.

REGISTER NOW . . .

Weddings, Dances, Graduations

TUXEDO JUNCTION

FORMAL RENTALS

"Formal Wear for Those Who Care"

WA. 4-8427

441 PARLIAMENT ST.

All New Garments
Special Student Rates
Complete Outfits $6

HILLEL FOUNDATION

Sabbath Eve Fellowship

Observance of Tercentenary —

"AMERICAN JEWRY —

PROSPECT and

RETROSPECT"

—M. Horowitz

—D. Rotenberg

—S. Edell

Friday, November 26th,

8.30 p.m.

NEWMAN CLUB

Four Day Spiritual Retreat—

Thursday, November 25th

to

Saturday 27th

Retreat Master: The Very Rev. Canon Emmett Carter, Ph.D.

Chaplain, McGill Newman Club.

General Topic: "THE SATANIC DISTORTION"

7.30 a.m.—Mass and Morning Instruction.

7.30 p.m.—Benediction and Evening Instruction.

Evening Topics:

Thursday — "Security"

Friday — "Freedom"

Saturday — "Love"

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 28th

10.00 a.m.—High Mass and Last Instruction.

11.15 a.m.—Communion Breakfast.

All Students are cordially invited to attend both morning and evening exercises.

University College Lecture Series

"The Magic Pilgrimage of Apuleius"

Dr. Frances Norwood

Today — 5 p.m.

West Hall — U.C.

IT'S THE BALL OF THE FALL

The Engineering Society Presents

"Cannon Capers"

The All-Campus Informal

3 BANDS — FEATURING FRANK BOGART

HART HOUSE

9.00 p.m. Fri. Nov. 26

Tickets: $2.00 Per Couple

On Sale in the Engineering Stores and at SAC Office

For schoolroom...or some enchanted evening...in cashmere-soft Lambswool... 100% Super Orlon. Full-fashioned, exquisitely hand-finished...shrink-proof and moth-proof...by Glenayr.

At good stores everywhere

s. s. pullover $6.95

l. s. pullover $7.95

cardigan $8.95

G-55

Sheik In Disguise

Nation-wide publicity has forced U of T's own Sheik to adopt the above disguise. However he hopes his bride will appreciate he is doing it "all for her" so that the wedding plans can continue, uninterrupted. He reports that as soon as the excitement cools down a little, he can again shine in all his glory.

—VSP Ted Sparrow.

Sheik Meets His Ideal And Retires To Persian Villa With Panting Bride

In order to escape the wrath of all the jealous women students (except his bride to be), the Sheik of Araby yesterday had to resort to a disguise, while preparing for his wedding today.

While he was secretly getting himself thoroughly drunk to prepare himself for the forthcoming ordeal, his sultry blonde fiancée was being given a shower at 239½ Jarvis Street by the Hopeless Helpers for Frustrated Females (HHFFF), an organization of 60 men over 60.

Included in the gifts were a can of arsenic from "your dear friends in UC", a burp gun from the Society for the Prevention of Blondes, a burlap veil, and a sump pump from "us heart-broken skulemen".

The beautiful bride, who was the former inter-collegiate chest-terfield wrestling champion, spent the morning getting back into shape, so she would not let down the reputation of the University. To the observing reporters she said, "I am so excited, I can hardly wait to get a divorce and do it all again."

The wedding will be at 8.30 p.m. today in the KCR, and the sheik yesterday invited all University students to come and pay for their own, and his, beer.

Married Students' Residence, Democracy, Debate Topics

Is a residence for student married couples a feasible project?

The Campus Co-op will debate this topic tonight, with Jack Dodds and Mick Brown defending it against Ron Burroughs and Tony Webster. After the speeches, discussion from the floor will be welcomed.

The Campus Co-op has been considering the establishment of such a residence, and it is expected that this debate will influence the final decision. Any interested students are urged to present their views on the matter.

The residence debate will take place tonight at 6:30, on 403 Huron Street.

Also among the campus oratory for the day will be a joint effort of the University College Debating Parliament and the Trinity College Literary Institute.

The topic for the inter-faculty debate, one of a series sponsored by the University of Toronto Debating Union, is "Resolved that Democracy is a Failure." U.C. speakers P. Martin and E. Taylor will defend the motion against N. McLean and J. Brewin, who will uphold the negative for Trinity. Following the speeches, the debate will be thrown open to speeches from the floor.

Torontonensis
YOUR YEAR

CALEDON WEEK-END

Due to a cancellation, Caledon Hills farm is available to a student organization for the week-end of December 3, 4, 5.

For further information call . . .

GRADUATE OFFICE
HART HOUSE
WA. 2-2716

Chinese Women's Social Position May be Superior to Canadians'

"Chinese women have risen from an inferior social position to one which is, in some ways, more superior to that of Canadian women," a group of thirty students attending the weekly Friendly Relations with Overseas Students meeting were told.

The question on the status of women in China was brought up during a discussion on the culture and society in China. It was stated that Chinese women, contrary to the Canadian idea, enter professions, and marry but continue to follow their chosen career.

The meeting was opened with a general discussion on the wealth of natural resources, the vastness of land and denseness of population in China by Mr. Small, staff adviser, who lived in China for many years.

Conditions in China were

Social Workers Make Field Trip To Reformatory

The Social Work Club will make its first field trip this year, to Brampton Reformatory on Saturday afternoon, December fourth. The Club, which has been organized to promote social work, is not confined to members of the school of Social Work.

This is the club's second trip to the reformatory, on their last trip they were shown around by the inmates. All those interested in making this trip please phone Ann Leitch at HU. 9-0336 before Tuesday, November 30th.

described first-hand by several Chinese students who were born and lived in China and who now attend the University. Prior to the change in government the Chinese were divided into two classes: wealthy land-owners and poor peasants. These peasants and their families lived on farms with as few as two acres of land. Mr. Small stated that these families did not live; they merely existed.

It was stated that the Chinese until recently were more interested in the liberal arts than with the scientific methods which would improve their land. There is not so much emphasis in China as in Canada on developing natural resources. Huge populations do not concern them so much as they do us.

This was the second in a series of meetings dealing with China. It was decided that next week the series would continue with a discussion on Chinese education.

walls, jazz, lights

SAC at Glance

The Students' Administrative Council last night besides having a lively Blue and White discussion, approving a letter to the librarian, and debating UTDU:

—heard President Angus ask adoption of an oral report on a committee which had not met. The Hoskin Light committee is waiting for a civic sub-committee to report before meeting.

—awarded a $9,325 contract for printing Torontonensis and heard nothing had been spent on Torontonensis to date.

—received $15,000 in fees from the University.

—learned that the first U of T Chorus and Orchestra concert would be given on Dec. 9.

—were asked to nominate a NFCUS Overseas Commissioner for IUS and COSEC.

—approved helping to promote a McMaster — Lawel Exchange Weekend by introducing them in Toronto.

—were given band equipment from COTC.

—ignored investigating an illegal tag day a week ago last Monday for which no SAC permission was granted.

—heard nothing from 8 (eight) representatives.

—were informed that the blood campaign starts Jan. 31.

—emphasized that all expenses in excess of five dollars must be signed for by Sec't — Treas. MacDonald.

—approved investigation of B & W sponsoring a Jazz Concert at Convocation Hall. This will not supplement nor replace Billy Graham on campus.

—discovered EAC had no attendance at their meets and hoped for improvement next Wednesday, December 1.

—interrupted NFCUS Chairman Hurlburt's study of the redevelopment of Toronto Island for his report.

—decided that the drop in the number of women debaters from mixed to separate debates could bring only one conclusion.

—laughed on hearing that the School of Social Work, if it can be located, is in the Inter-faculty Debate schedule.

—were asked for the whereabouts of the SAC mace; (terrible rumour: its in Trinity).

—had explained that an investigation of the strength of wall in the SAC building showed that the stress over the strain would permit hanging of a plaque.

HART HOUSE TODAY

NOTE: Great Hall — closing — Evening meal Friday, 26th November. Convocation Dinner for those receiving Honorary Degrees on the occasion of opening of the new University Library.

THURSDAY, 25TH NOVEMBER:

8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).

8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS — GLEE CLUB INVITATIONAL CONCERT — Hall Porter's Desk.

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — U.S.A. ART EXHIBITION. "Tools and Techniques." Also sculpture by Rae Katz.

Platner. Prints by Sybil Andrews.

10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS.

5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).

5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD HOUR INSTRUCTION CLASS.

6.00 p.m. — CARS LEAVE HART HOUSE FOR ARCHERY CLUB MEET with O.A.C. at Guelph.

7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.

ANOTHER NOTE:

Sunday the 28th November from 2.00 to 5.00 p.m. will be Visitors' Sunday. Members, girl friends, relations et al — all are welcome to visit the House. Tea available in the Great Hall at 3.00 p.m.

INVITATIONAL CONCERT INVITATIONAL CONCERT INVITATIONAL

170 VOICES

— FEATURING —

THE BUFFALO STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE CHOIR
ST. GEORGES CATHEDRAL CHOIR
HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB

In combined and individual numbers at the Invitational Concert to be held in the Great Hall of Hart House on Saturday, November 27th at 8.30 p.m. Tickets $1.25 on sale at the Hall Porter's desk, Hart House and the S.A.C. Office.

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

Saturday Nov. 27th to Saturday Dec. 4th at 8.30

BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN — 10 a.m. - 6 p.m.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE NIGHT EDITOR ASSISTANTS REPORTERS OBSERVER

Bob Brown
Elizabeth Allen Douglas
Ted Rogers, Arlene Rodgers, Reg Smart
John McFee, Sybil Strachan, Jo Thompson,
Mike Erdei, Janet MacDonald, Jane Kelly
Bill Angus

Responsibility

Last night's SAC meeting pointed up a lamentable lack of co-operation in the handling of financial affairs of the Council.

The situation in the Blue and White committee, in which the chairman disagreed with the figures handed down by the Finance Commission, was symptomatic.

It is difficult to understand why the Blue and White chairman and the Finance Commissioner should arrive at such widely varying amounts for the profit of that committee.

Whatever the reason it is inexcusable that the chairman of a committee which handles so much money should have been either uninformed of the exact total expenditure of his committee, or unaware because of his own lack of organization.

No one wishes to hamstring any committee unduly in their operation and the suggestion of having every expenditure over five dollars approved by the General Secretary-Treasurer would only involve undue effort on the part of both that official and the chairman involved.

It is equally untenable that every activity of any committee should be subject to the approval of the Finance Commission.

The proposed investigation of the constitutional structure of the Blue and White committee will likely produce more heat than light.

Clearly none of these suggestions are necessary for the Blue and White chairman is specifically charged with the responsibility for the operation of his committee.

All that needs to be done is to make the chairman answerable for the expenditures entailed. This would remove the possibility of unauthorized expenditure.

Athletic Abandon

There seems to be an increasing tendency to take out of athletics the element of individual enjoyment.

In intercollegiate athletics the concern with making them a paying proposition; the undeniable flavor of commercialization; the emphasis on "games", tend to make the football player of greater importance as an economic factor than as a sportsman.

Competition, in inter-faculty sports, for points and trophies diminishes the possibility of the player participating for the love of the sport or of physical exercise.

However, the most pernicious phase of athletic activity on this campus is the compulsory physical training program which is fit for neither man nor beast.

There would seem to be two justified premises in considering this compulsory program.

The player who wants to play sports will find outlet for his interests in either the interfaculty or intercollegiate spheres.

Secondly, the player who revolts against the enforced discipline of the program, will not benefit from it.

To force a man into athletic activity who has no inclination for such pursuits, will not likely achieve the aims of the P.T. program.

It would seem worthwhile to abandon this phase of athleticism and concentrate on improving and expanding the interfaculty leagues.

Friendship With the Soviet Union

By DAN ZAROWSKY

Addressing a convocation of delegates of "4-H" clubs President of the University of Toronto, Dr. Smith, said that Canada should go half way in meeting any overture of friendship from the Soviet Union (The Varsity, Nov. 17, 1954). Dr. Smith also pointed out that Russians distrust the West because in their opinion "the Western nations have been aggressors throughout history"; the top leaders in the West should not be discouraged by the distrust of the Russians nor by publications in U.S.A. questioning friendship with the Soviet Union, but should endeavour to work for co-existence.

It is possible to have a different opinion on the "historic perspective" of Russian distrust of the West; the five invasions mentioned appear rather pale when contrasted with the incessant and numberless wars raging all over Europe and the rest of the globe in those four centuries; Russia actively participated in "Western" affairs since 1700; and, finally, the Russians were by no means very peaceful or easily frightened by aggression, on the contrary, they succeeded in conquering vast spaces of non-Russian territory both in Europe and in Asia. All that, however, is of secondary importance, the main question is what reasons do we have to believe that the Soviet Union really wants friendship of the Western world?

When the threatening gestures of the Soviet Union awakened the Western world to the Soviet menace, the Western leaders were forced to abandon their illusions about the "changed character" of that country. Now, however, a few friendly overtures are enough to bring back those illusions and to convince the West that the Soviet Union actually is interested in peace and co-existence with the capitalists and their "followers" and various arguments are put forward to prove that Russia was never really interested in conquest and aggression.

The main reason for advocating friendship with the Soviet Union is, of course, fear that "atomic chaos" would be the consequence of a war. We must, however, not forget that war is not the only means available to the Russians to help them achieve their objectives. If anything, the post-war experience had convinced the Russians that war and direct aggression is not yet the best policy. The effect of such a policy under the aged and inflexible Stalin was to mobilize the world opinion against communism and the Soviet Union.

Most countries became acutely aware of the seriousness of the communist danger and adopted more or less successful measures to diminish it. In result of such a development the communist cause suffered a serious setback all over the world. It is only obvious that after Stalin's death the new men at helm in the Soviet Union would abandon such reckless and self-destructive policy. Nor can there be any doubts as to their immediate objectives: to gain time and to restore the pre-1946 status quo in international communism.

Although, on the whole, time is working for the Soviet Union as far as military and industrial potential is concerned, and all the West can do about it is to minimize the gap between its own and the Russian potential, the Western world can definitely do very much about the second Soviet objective. The West can both, offensively and defensively prevent the Soviet Union from achieving it. Effective measures taken to prevent development of conditions which provide fertile ground for the growth of communism on the one hand, and critical approach to all Soviet advances, to protect our way of life on the other can be a highly desirable substitute for a friendship of the Soviet type.

The communist theory does not recognize any co-existence between communists and non-communists; the latter can be only tolerated as long as they are useful to the former. That theory had been extremely skillfully and successfully applied in practice ever since 1917 and no exceptions to the rule had been tolerated. It always paid Russia to be friendly to her neighbours until she could take them by force.

Last night I happened to be walking along Hoskin Ave. with my tail in the air and in a rather Spencerian mood, when I saw a pretty old guy standing in front of the Trinity College Chapel. He was wearing some armour that you could see through. As a matter of fact, you could see right through him too, so I assumed he was a ghost.

Well, anyway, he was interested in buildings so we got to talking about architecture.

"Ah, myne hartie ys warmed bye yon vieu of Arckytectur as itte shoulde be builded. Eonge hadde I wayted for an retournier to bountyfull edyfices Gothique. Hadde I felte dyscomfyted the whyles when a-haunting in sombre house as yonder at Vycторыа, whych ist harkeneth 'Ye Studentes Uny-ion'. Lacks itte the atmospher parfit for a-haunting. Nathelless yon skiffull byldyng, named bye som 'Trynyte Chapelle', filleth myne dree-rie soule with musick. It harkeneth myne ydle thochts to home — to yon draughty, ill-constructked, ugle castels of Merrie England".

"Bee, nought agrieved, Syr Knight," quoth I, politely using his language, "for are ther other, more anciente buildyngs on 'yon' campus, whiche shoulde please thy hartie much."

And I showed him U. C.

"Ah, thys taketh my fauncy even mor. It hath the ayr of goodly hewen stone of valew, enhanced with a wanton yvie twine. Thys fayre halle, eftsoons, seemeth, betides, mought oldern that in whiche I hadde erstwhyles lyved. It is a fayre and goodlye mancyon, thinkest thou nought so?"

"Yesse, goode knight; butte praye lette mee shew you stil othair demesnes," I sayd, tryng to bracke the babyt.

(Continued on Page 7)

Training Tomorrow's Leaders

—Cartoon by Les Green.

PAGE FIVE

CRITIC IN THE DARK

Ava Gardner — Barefoot

Joseph Manciewicz's latest film, The Barefoot Contessa, at present on the screen of the Odeon Toronto, poses a neat problem to the critic: should it be criticized as film or as drama? For example, much that occurs in this latest film from the man who made All About Eve would, I think, have been better done on a stage, perhaps even in the pages of a novel, than on the cinema screen. Yet there is much brilliant film-making in The Barefoot Contessa; even though it may not be ideally conceived for the film medium, it still contains many flashes of outright genius, in cutting, photography, and in the direction.

Ava Gardner is the barefoot Contessa of the title; the plot outlines her almost involuntary rise from dancing in a Madrid cafe through a short, brilliant career as a movie actress, to the darling of the "International Set", and ultimately to her wedding to an Italian Count, her "Prince Charming", the tragic secret of whose impotence is only revealed on her wedding night. Humphrey Bogart narrates most of the story, and contributes a wise, comfortable performance as the movie director who befriends the unsophisticated dancer and is the last friend to whom the contessa can turn, though there is never the traditional romantic attachment between them.

The narration, as well as it is done, is one of The Barefoot Contessa's worst faults. It necessitates an involved, oblique style of storytelling which is quite incompatible with the proven capability of the movies to describe an incident with those sudden flashes of intuition and briefly noted moments which, assembled, make up a brilliantly observed tale. Poetry does somewhat the same thing, though on a non-visual level. Another major fault in The Barefoot Contessa is, Manciewicz's attempt to tell so much of the story in terms of a sustained exploration of character. This is a method far better suited to the drama or the novel than to the shifting, allusive nature of motion-picture technique. As a result, the pace is often incredibly slow.

Yet certainly no-one understands this allusive nature better than Manciewicz, for the most effective scene in the whole film is the early one in the Madrid cafe where Maria is dancing, when we are shown not her dancing, but the effect it had on the audience, in a short, but superbly photographed and cut sequence. A common-place idea, perhaps, but brilliantly realized.

Germaine Clinton.

h h gallery

Tools and Techniques

PAINTINGS and drawings illustrating "Tools and Techniques" are now in Hart House Art Gallery and will be there until next Monday evening. Media represented are oils, gouache, casein, water-colour, encaustic and various combinations of these. I was disappointed by the show. Experimentation with different means of creating graphic art is meaningless unless it serves to free the artist's creative energies from unwanted restriction. Furthermore an artist is not being true to his tools and to himself if he does not seek out the unique properties of his medium and use them. Variety for the sake only of variety is sterile. Too often the paintings in Hart House Gallery display these faults. While the paintings in conventional media are very ordinary, the pictures in other media tend to the same ordinariness. In very few cases does a picture seem to need its medium. Another evidence of this fault is that the vitality of a preliminary sketch is often missing in the final painting — lost, I presume, somewhere in the painter's tool kit. None of the pictures should be called art. They are not even good illustrations of tools and techniques.

Also in the gallery is a display of portrait sculpture by Rae Katz Platner. All the pieces are remarkably alike — one head would have been sufficient.

Lino cuts by Sybil Andrews are in the print room. Rich colour, and vigorous stylized forms characterize her work. While the stylization is sometimes banal, and the colour sometimes mud, her work often shows an exciting use of a very limited medium.

—Michael McMordie

King Magnus Off Duty

"Marry you? I'd rather marry the devil!" Rex Southgate as King Magnus and Sue Sanders as Orinthia in a scene from "The Apple Cart." The Shaw comedy opens on Saturday night at Hart House Theatre under the direction of Robert Gill.

To Whom?

Responsibility

By JO PATRICK

Each of us here at U. of T. has certain responsibilities as a student. Perhaps these responsibilities need to be clarified for some of us, for instance, girls who have wondered why they were forced to stay home Saturday nights.

A girl's prime objective in college is, of course, to obtain her "Mrs." degree, and the steps necessary to obtaining this goal are quite complex.

(1) She must spend every possible moment in the Arbor room, since this is the best possible site for catching a male off-guard.

(2) He practically goes unsaid that all social functions must be attended — don't miss a single opportunity to meet a member of the opposite sex. (This may involve taking a course in basket-weaving at another college, but just think of the potential husbands you may meet in this fascinating course!)

(3) Another good idea is to get out and join things—meetings of The society for the preservation of Tibetan Literature" hold unlimited opportunities.

(4) Once you have located a victim, er, that is, "goal", move in quickly for the kill. First, take great care in your dress — an orange sweater, pink taffeta skirt, chattrouse anklets and purple suede shoes worn with a great quantity of perfume will knock him over.

(5) Next, attract attention to yourself. This can be accomplished by smoking a pipe, roller-skating into class, or eating in a men's dining room (The only requirement necessary for this is a jacket.)

(6) After that, show him little attentions which will bolster his masculine ego. If you find yourself doing mounds of his homework, taking two sets of notes in all your classes, or washing and ironing all his clothes, don't complain! Remember — it's for a noble cause.

(7) You can also open doors for him, light his cigarettes, or carry his books. If he's tired, you should offer to go to football practice for him, he may even send you flowers when you're in the hospital.

(8) Imitate him. Arrive for classes dressed in a female version of his favorite outfit—white bucks, khakis, a button-down shirt and knit tie — and follow him around all day making witty comments about how much fun it is to wear "His" and "Her" outfits. This will cause much merriment from the rest of the class, but don't let anything sway you from your course.

Remember gals — no more of this laziness — take the bit between your teeth, and get out and get your man!

Corpses Galore

Student Teachers

If you should chance to stumble over a little mound of freshly-turned earth while prowling through the grounds of any Toronto collegiate, tread softly. I pray you. That little mound probably covers the corpse of an OCE student.

Admittedly I view the situation with a jaundiced eye, for I have just completed a nightmarish week during which I was supposed to be teaching music in a local collegiate. Now, before I entered that school, I looked with satisfaction on my qualifications as a musician: piano, choral work, theory, and appreciation are old friends of mine, and I envisaged a delightful week. But lo and behold, the teacher to whose care I was assigned taught nothing but band and orchestra, except for two classes. Consequently, in the first class I took I knew I was a big fraud; after my second class, the teacher knew it; by the third class, the students knew it, and my bubble was pricked, but good.

In this situation I jumped at the chance to teach a Grade 9 class to sing a song — "Goodnight, Ladies", I think it was. The critic-teacher's way of giving the assignment was hardly encouraging. "You've got to make this bunch of pug-uglies sing a song," he explained, "and keep them singing all the period if you can. If you once stop to talk, they'll mob you, so keep them busy."

Actually the Pug-Uglies were nice enough kids. They howled lustily, but their notion of pitch was something weird: when they weren't flat, they were sharp. My starched smile melted into anguish, and at the end of the first verse I longed to rake them over the coals. However, I remembered the teacher's warning to be laconic, and tried to rally them for another attack on the defenseless tune, "Once more!" cried I. "Come on, now! Pitches!" Before I could give the down-beat the Pug-Ugly in the back seat leaped up with fire in her eye. "What was that you called us, sir?" she demanded.

So you will not be surprised to hear that I have judged it wiser to transfer from music to home economics.

But people go on double-dinging and are absolutely convinced that the street-car will stop only if the bell cord is pulled twice, staccato.

On my many surveys on the subject of this sure-fire street-car-stopper, I have noticed that it is mainly the female species of street-car rider that is to blame. Why this is so, I had a great deal of difficulty in determining but I think I have finally found the reason. Have you ever noticed (those of you who happen to notice things; you know, little things, things that don't matter much and are a trifle useless) that in donating a transfer to a female passenger the conductor is more likely to receive a "Humph" than a "Thank you"? Or you perpetual strap-hangers, how much more often have you felt feminine elbows in your back than a polite "excuse me"? If you've noticed these petty things and others, perhaps pettier, you can perhaps make a diagnosis. My diagnosis is that, unfortunately, our modern women have an amazing lack of courtesy. But this is not the disease itself; it is only a symptom of the disease. The disease, and here we come upon the crux of the argument, is that women feel inferior. To hide this feeling, our female counterparts adopt a brazen attitude of disregard for others, a studied lack of "politesse"; in short, inconsiderateness. Now, a very large minority of my readers, who, because they are so numerous will immediately think they are the majority, will howl for my head for these views, but I assure them that my facts are based on scientific surveys, and, as all Varsity readers know, this type of survey is incontrovertable.

So these women go through life feeling inferior and in an attempt to disguise it, ding the bell on the street-car twice in order to command attention and only incidentally to stop the car.

But someday, and in my prophetic mood, I can see it coming in a very short time, a passenger will ding twice at a particularly distraught conductor, during an unusually busy rush hour, at an extremely miserable intersection, and the conductor will stop the car, and with Chesterfieldian courtesy and grace that so distinguishes the employees of the Toronto Transit Commission, pound hell out of h.m.

DOUBLE DINGING DUDS

It has always been a perpetual source of wonder and amazement to me why tram and bus riders must always ding the cord twice when they want to get off. I am a street-car rider of note — I use it every day — and I think I am qualified to talk, relatively without fear of violent contradiction, on this important topic.

It seems incomprehensible to me why that second ding has so much significance. I honestly believe, and I am sure that many of my readers will agree, that the conductor, if he doesn't hear the first ding, and this is almost inconceivable since the T.T.C. has very considerably placed the bell right next to his ear, he sure as hell is not going to hear the second, coming in such rapid-fire succession as they do.

MULOCK FINALS TODAY

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

Saturday afternoon, in London's J. W. Little Memorial Stadium, the Varsity Blues and the Western Mustangs tangle in the Intercollegiate football final, contesting the possession of the Yates Cup for the forty-seventh time.

When the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union was formed in 1898, Dr. Henry Brydges Yates, a graduate of McGill University in 1893, presented the trophy to the three major Universities then competing, Varsity, Queens, and McGill. Dr. Yates had been a member of the McGill football team for four years and had captained the Redmen in his senior year.

The Yates Cup has been in competition every year since 1898, except for the war years of 1915-18, and 1940-45. In the forty-seven years of football rivalry, at least five other universities have joined the original three to form a four-team league. The University of Western Ontario, which joined the league in 1929, has had the most success of all these challengers; such great success, in fact, that most people will have forgotten the time when Western was not an integral part of the union.

Ottawa College, was the only fourth team other than the Mustangs to win the title. Just after they had entered Intercollegiate competition, they walked off with the Yates Cup in 1907. Royal Military College of Kingston and Osgoode Hall have both seen seasons of contest with the original three, while McMaster University was admitted to the league last fall, but left after a winless season.

The University of Toronto has won the Yates Cup the most times, eighteen in all. Queen's effort is next best, with twelve championships going to the Gaels, the last one being in 1937. Western have copped the trophy eight times, once in 1931 and in 1939, and the other six times since the war. Old McGill have the weakest record with only seven titles, and none since the fall of 1938. Not once has the Yates Cup been shared by more than one university, although this is quite possible, especially this season, in which the Mustangs and the Blues have already tied two games. Should a tie occur after regulation time Saturday, there will be a fifteen-minute overtime period, and should the two teams still be tied, they will share the title.

The Blues will undoubtedly put on a stellar performance this Saturday, and even One-Eyed Benny, who has made incredible winnings on the Varsity crew this fall, has fears of a poor week-end. He can't find anybody who will bet on the Mustangs.

Water Polo . . .

. . . is a sport in which the University of Toronto has always excelled, and tonight the Varsity Seniors make their annual bid for the Ontario Senior League title at 7.00 in the Hart House pool. Their opposition will be the Hamilton Aquatic Club, one of the most powerful teams in Canada over the past several years. The Blues have lost five members from last year's championship team, including the first string forward line. Back to form the nucleus of this season's club are Bibi Stipitec, fastest swimmer and shot on the team, John Bates, who played in goal last season, Dick Glumac, Bernie Langer, and Barry Tobe. Paul Richards, Dave Price, and John Bullock have come up from last year's Canadian Junior finalists to take their place with the Blues.

From the Blue Room . . . Game time in London Saturday is 1.00 . . . Peter Campbell and Jock Maynard did not turn pro with the Argonauts in 1921 as we said on Tuesday. Evidently the Argos of those years were strictly amateur, as was all Canadian football . . . Only about 400 game tickets have been sold for the London game. Who wants to see the Alouettes lace the Eskimos anyway?

Basketball Blues Open Season

The Basketball season opens away from home for the Varsity Blues this year with an exhibition match scheduled against the Buffalo State Teachers in Buffalo on November 30. The Blues, who placed third in the Intercollegiate League last season are favoured to rank much better this year with an improved lineup counting most of their previous veterans with several new men of outstanding ability.

Back with the Blues this year are Peter Potter and Leo Madden a pair of guards who starred with Tri-Bells of the Senior Competitions last season, being ineligible for University play. Both proved themselves among the best in this country while out with the Tri-Bells club and should be excellent reinforcements for the Blues.

Missing from the lineup this year is Leapin' Lou Lukenda, the sharp-eyed dentist who scored a large portion of the Blues points through last season. Lukenda, whose deadly one hand "jump" shot figured strongly in the Blue attack, may be replaced by such as Norm Reynolds or Al Vaichulis both good with last year's Intermediates.

Football still holds George Stulac and Steve Oneschuk and it isn't certain whether they will be in shape to come in for basketball so soon after the football season ends on November 27, just two days before the opening exhibition game.

There is little doubt about the power of the Blues defensively. They have always been strong in that department and so long as they play most of their games on the Hart House splinter their zone press will give them the advantage over their opponents. The big question is in their offence and despite the great number of good shots on the club their lack of height may hamper them against the usual tall foes they meet.

This warmup match will be followed very shortly afterward by a Saturday Night Athletic Night meeting with the hoopers of Detroit Tech. The Detroit team are ranked above the Buffalions and will give the home town fans a better idea of the quality of the Blues.

Engineers Are At Full Strength St. Mike's Are Hit By Injuries

Today at 1.30 the two best teams, Engineers and St. Michael's College, will engage in the Mulock Cup finals at Varsity Stadium. Sustained rainfall yesterday and expected snowflurries today, however, could cancel the match. A meeting of the Intramural standing committee yesterday decided that rain or snow this morning would force a postponement of the game for some future date.

If the game is played the Skule team will be playing without the services of tackles John Cloake and Bruce Sutherland, injured in recent games. K. Selby of Skule, the leading scorer in regular season's play, and who missed Monday's game against Trinity will see action today as will John Copeland. For St. Mike's Ollie Babirad and Dan Driscoll are nursing injuries.

The Engineers have strong passing and running attacks, whereas the Irish have only a strong running attack. The Engineers also appear to be the more deceptive team as they have proved by varying, under the direction of Don Hart, their attack. St. Mike's, on the other hand, will line up in their American-type Spread Formation, relying on the running ability of their backs.

There is one factor that could make St. Mike's appear to be the better team. They own the distinction of not having been scored upon in the last four games. The big factors making the Skule team favorites are that they walloped Trinity, a team that has beat St. Mike's earlier in the season, and that Skule have more men of play-off experience than have St. Mike's.

Varsity's Steve Oneschuk is about to be knocked out of bounds by UBC's Herb Hayward in last Saturday's game with the Thunderbirds in Vancouver. Sprawled on the ground after missing Oneschuk end Gary Taylor. Oneschuk kicked the Blues to a close 5-3 victory. —Ubsysey staff photo by Denis Maze.

Vic Wins Division I Soccer Overcome UC 5-0 In Final

By DAVE WOOD

MULOCK FINAL

As rain or snowflurries today could cancel the scheduled game between SFS and St. Mike's, all coaches and managers are asked to get in touch with the Intramural office before game time, for the latest plans for the Mulock Final. Postponement until after the Grey Cup Game could be a result of bad weather which will necessitate leaving the tarp on the field.

It was a bit of a comeback but the Vic soccerites managed it with a resounding vengeance, trouncing the UC Redmen 5-0 in Tuesday's Division I final. UC had edged them out of the Group I leadership with a 1-0 win; however this return engagement was greatly out of proportion. The Red and White certainly missed the aggressive play of veteran captain Gord Rintoul, but in addition they played an uninspired, desperate type of game.

Meanwhile, the Vic squad was dragging out a bevy of beautiful cheerleaders, and bugles (thanks to Emmanuel), and even spectators to bolster their already buoyant spirit. The second half saw them emerge from between two rows of cheerleaders and buglers (sounds familiar).

Norm Sexton, centre forward for the Vicsters, played his usual stalwart game, making up in ball-handling what he lacked in size. He notched a good, clean goal from across the left side and set up two others. Left-winger Johnny Hart was Johnny-on-the-spot for two counters which he pumped home in his casual style. The other Vic scorers were big John Marshall and Frank Page.

Vic's John Hytton, who has played "dashing" all season, nicely blanketed the right side of the field and kept the ball up to the forward line. Terry Staples again proved strong in the backfield, protecting goalie Barry Truscott, who, although "framed" by the goal bars, managed to preserve his fourth well-deserved shutout.

We must mention UC's Hal Sanstrom, who protected mid-field for them and generally kept his team alive. Also, backfielder Mitalas cleared many dangerous Scarlet and Gold passes; and Dysart was probably the one bright spot on the forward line.

The Vic coach, Red Green of the Blues, deserves a big dandee for his work with the team. The result of Tuesday's game rewards his faithful training of the team, even when it was killing them.

It's a repetition of the old story to say the Northenders won because they had better control of the ball and more organized play, but little more can be said. They combined a careful, rushing backfield with a forward line which pulled off some nice passing plays. They did have some breaks, but the way in which they capitalized on them was decisive. They will be testing their form again in a final challenge match at Friday noon, against the Division II titlists, Emmanuel College.

When it was all over, the Scarlet and Gold squad, trailing behind buglers and cheerleaders, trooped across a bare Queen's Park, and with them departed another soccer schedule and a newly-won right to the Arts Faculty Cup.

BLUES PREPARE FOR MUSTANG TILT

Some people are talking of the possibility of a co-championship in Saturday's football game between the Blues of Varsity and the Mustangs of Western. Others talk of another Mustang finish along the lines of their victory over Queen's. Such talk ignores several important factors influencing the game and the old maxim about lightning never striking twice in the same place, which is to say that no football team can rely on prayer to win all their games for them.

Whereas the Golden Gaels of Queen's had only Ron Stewart to carry their big load, the Blues of Varsity have a rather ample stock of sterling backfielders, all anxious to rub the sooty snout of the Purple Horses into the muddy slime of Little Memorial Stadium. Time, and only time, certainly not the Mustangs, prevented the Blues from ending Western's unbeaten streak at home, in their last meeting this season.

The sharp Varsity attack which can run the ends, plough the line or move through the air on either of two passing quarterbacks gives the Blues a tactical edge over the Mustangs, whose passing game works in spurts, who have only one man who can throw and, with Fracas ailing and Ralph Simmons just coming back from injury, the Mustangs have no one who can hit the line in full power; none who can match Phil Muntz.

Then, too, there is the matter of Western's famous last second offensive. It worked against the Gaels because the Queen'smen, short on strong reserves had played most of their game with first-stringers, such as Stewart, getting almost no rest. The Gaels were tired going into the last minutes and the Western attack was able to score on them. Varsity has a much smaller bench problem than the Gaels had and isn't likely to tire so badly.

The most important point though, is the fact that the Blues have yet to play at their peak. They haven't reached it yet this season, while the Mustangs have and are already declining. If the Blues should hit their peak this Saturday as they are expected to do, the Yates Cup should come home to the Hart House Trophy Case.

The only Blues doubtful for

Blue Profiles

George Stulac

George Stulac is one Blue footballer who doesn't need an introduction to Varsity sports fans. He is already well known for his ability on the basketball court and as a swimmer. In his first season of football since high school he has come up with several fine pass receptions.

George doesn't like to talk about his athletic career but it has been a long and varied one and deserves mention. At Toronto's Western Tech, he divided his time between swimming and basketball, both of which he learned at the West End YMCA. In time the Stulac family was to become part of West End with George and his two brothers all very active in coaching and leadership activities there. His only football experience in high school was a year of Junior ball which makes his success this year rather remarkable.

Since entering the U. of T. he has developed into a great athlete. He now holds several Intercollegiate and one Canadian swimming record. In addition, George is one of the outstanding men in the Senior Basketball loop. It is small wonder that he is thought by many to be the greatest all-round athlete ever to attend Varsity.

A Physical Education grad, George is now studying for an Arts degree. His vital statistics show that he is a solid six foot, 185 pounder but he looks a lot bigger to the Blue's opponents.

Don Cheeseman

When big Joe Harris graduated from O.C.E. and signed an Ottawa Roughrider contract, he not only left a gaping hole in the Blue line, but he also left behind the oversize set of shoulder pads which made him so easy to recognize on the gridiron. The man who inherited those pads, Don Cheeseman is remarkably similar to Joe in both physique and style of play although Don is a line-backer and fullback and Joe was a tackle. Cheeseman is fast and rugged, abilities which are necessary for both his positions. He stands six feet tall and weighs a solid 200 pounds.

The "Cheese" was an All-Star fullback with Danforth Tech at a time when Danforth was a weak sister in Toronto high school football. His best play, the fullback trap right down the centre never failed to gain yards, though many times he had to make his own hole. Don was also something of a track star. A third year Engineer, he is in his second year with the Blues after burning up the Intermediate league for a season. With so many good fullbacks around he has been used mostly at line-backer where he has been a standout.

With Don Cheeseman filling in those holes on Saturday afternoon, Fracas, Simmons, etc. will find the going mighty rough.

CHAMPUS CAT

(Continued from Page 5)

So I took him to the Skule House.

"Whatte grate and goodly Arckytectur is thys. Whatte workemanship, yclept, and wondrous towres, withe divers rowmes and sondry fornaces burnyng whott. 'Tis indyd beutyous and maketh me to feel trull atte home, I trow."

"Aye, gentil knight, butte ther ys un mor." It ys amazing howe an accent stycks to wun. He took one look at the new men's residence and said:

"Bee I anciente and oulde, butte bee I nought so oulde as yon eddyfye. Are thy Arckytects oldern mee, thatte they bylde such olde houses?"

"Nay, lorde; mais they have the spyrt y anciente." Atte leest Y'm trying to stoppe itte."

Then I took him over to Bathurst above Bloor, to show him where they were building a new church.

"Butte ther ist nought heer, ladde," he said to mee, "ne un hole in yon grounde."

Which all goes to show that even a very old guy knows his apse from a hole in the ground.

Stromus

INTRAMURAL CHAMPIONSHIPS
BOXING — SWIMMING — WRESTLING — FENCING (FOIL)
FINALS — 'A' NIGHT — SATURDAY, DEC. 4th

BOXERS AND WRESTLERS — WEIGH IN & ENTRY
Tuesday, Nov. 30, 12.00 to 2.00 or 4.00 to 5.30 p.m.
Apply to the Intramural office.

SWIMMERS — Enter at the Intramural office.

FENCERS — Enter in Fencing Room.
For further information apply to the Varsity Coaches, Managers, or the Intramural Office.

GAMES TODAY

MULOCK CUP FINAL — 1.30 p.m. STADIUM — S.P.S. vs. St. Mike's—
Bush, Tobe, Dolman, Wallace

LACROSSE	1.00	SPS III vs. Med. I—Warren, Eagleson
PLAYOFFS	7.00	Pharm. A vs. Forestry—Warren, Uhrynauk
VOLLEYBALL	1.00	Sr. U.C. vs. Jr. SPS A—Sorra
	4.00	For. B vs. Emman—Glass
	6.30	St. M. C vs. SPS VI—Preem
	7.30	Wyc. C vs. Arch. B—Preem
	8.30	Wyc. B vs. Pharm. C—Preem
SQUASH	1.00	Sr. Med vs. U.C. II
HOCKEY	12.30	Pre-Med vs. Jr. U.C.—Yakimoff, Smith
	4.00	Wyc. vs. For. B—Yakimoff, McCracken

INTERMEDIATE HOCKEY

Team Practices will be held on THURSDAY and FRIDAY,
NOVEMBER 25th and 26th at 6.30 p.m.

VOLLEYBALL PLAYOFF SCHEDULE

DIVISION II
Group Playoffs (if necessary)
Fri., Nov. 26	1.00 Arch. A vs. Emman—Sorra
	4.00 Law A vs. Knox A—Diemer
PLAYOFFS
Game 1 Tues., Nov. 30	7.30 Arch. A or Emman vs. Pharm. C or Wyc. B—Kiplinlak
Game 2 Tues., Nov. 30	4.00 Arch. B vs. For. A, Law A or Knox A—Grosfield
Game 3 Thurs., Dec. 2	7.30 Winner (1) vs. For. A or Law A—Preem
Game 4 Thurs., Dec. 2	4.00 Winner (2) vs. Wyc. A—Sorra
FINAL Tues., Dec. 7	7.00 p.m.—Preem, Kiplinlak
DIVISION I
Group Playoffs (if necessary)
Fri., Nov. 26	5.00 Dent. B vs. Vic. III—Diemer
Mon., Nov. 29	5.00 Med. III Yr vs. Sr. U.C.—Preem
PLAYOFFS
Game 1 Mon., Nov. 29	1.00 Dent. C vs. SPS IV—Sorra
Game 2 Wed., Dec. 1	5.00 SPS I vs. Med. III Yr or Sr. U.C.—Diemer
Game 3 Tues., Nov. 30	6.30 Pre-Med I B vs. Dent. A—Kiplinlak
Game 4 Mon., Nov. 29	4.00 Pre-Med II B vs. Trin. A—Preem
Game 5 Tues., Nov. 30	1.00 Med. I Yr vs. Vic. III or Dent. B—Balchin
Game 6 Wed., Dec. 1	6.00 Winner (1) vs. Med IV Yr—Diemer
Game 7 Thurs., Dec. 2	6.30 Winner (2) vs. Winner (3)—Preem
Game 8 Fri., Dec. 3	1.00 Winner (4) vs. SPS III—Sorra
Game 9 Thurs., Dec. 2	1.00 Winner (5) vs. Jr. SPS A—Sorra
SEMI-FINALS
Mon., Dec. 6	5.00 Winner (6) vs. Winner (7)—Preem
Tues., Dec. 7	1.00 Winner (8) vs. Winner (9)—Sorra
FINAL
Wed., Dec. 8	5.00 p.m.—Preem, Diemer

Sports Schedule Week Of Nov. 29

HOCKEY
Mon., Nov. 29	12.30—SPS VI vs. Med. IV
	1.30—Sr. Vic vs. St. M. A
	4.00—Vic. IV vs. St. M. C
Tues., Nov. 30	12.30—Sr. Med vs. Sr. SPS
	1.30—Vic. III vs. SPS IV
	4.00—Knox vs. Emman
Wed., Dec. 1	12.30—SPS VII vs. Dent. C
	1.30—St. M. B vs. SPS III
	4.00—Jr. Vic vs. Trin. A
Thurs., Dec. 2	12.30—Jr. U.C. vs. Jr. SPS
	1.30—U.C. III vs. SPS VI
	4.00—Pharm vs. Law
Fri., Dec. 3	12.30—SPS V vs. Med. III
	1.30—Sr. SPS vs. Sr. U.C.
	4.00—Emman vs. Wyc
	5.00—SPS III vs. Dent. A

NOTE—

- Referee assignments will be announced in tomorrow's Varsity.
- MANAGERS — ALL ELIGIBILITY CERTIFICATES FOR HOCKEY MUST BE FILED IN INTRAMURAL OFFICE BY END OF THIS WEEK!

SQUASH
Mon., Nov. 29	1.00—Dent. E vs. SPS IV
	4.20—Vic. I vs. Jr. U.C.
Tues., Nov. 30	5.40—Pharm. C vs. Vic. II
	6.20—Trin. A vs. Dent. B
	7.00—Med. IV vs. Dent. D
Wed., Dec. 1	4.20—Law vs. Dent. C
	7.00—Pre-Med vs. Pharm. A
Thurs., Dec. 2	1.00—Med. III vs. SPS III
Fri., Dec. 3	5.00—Pharm. B vs. SPS V
BASKETBALL PRACTICES
MAIN GYM
Mon., Nov. 29	4.00—Vic
Tues., Nov. 30	4.00—U.C.; 5.00—Forestry; 6.00—Dent; 8.30—Wyc
Wed., Dec. 1	1.00—Law; 4.00—Arch; 6.30—Med; 7.30—SPS; 8.30—St. M.
Thurs., Dec. 2	4.00—Trin; 8.30—St. M.
Fri., Dec. 3	1.00—Med; 4.00—Vic; 6.30—Pharm; 7.30 to 8.30—SPS
Sat., Dec. 4	10.00—U.C.; 11.00—Dent
UPPER GYM
Wed., Dec. 1	1.00—SPS; 4.00—Trin; 7.00—Dent; 8.00—Pharm
Fri., Dec. 3	4.00—For; 5.00—Arch

SPECIAL VARSITY EXCURSION

Varsity vs. Western — NOV. 27

Excursion and ticket arrangements for those going to London for the game

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

$5.00 Return

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27

Leaving TORONTO 8.15 a.m.

GAME TICKETS IN STUDENT SECTION $1.50

Reserved Seats also available . . . $2.50 and $3.00

IMPORTANT! . . . KICK-OFF, 1 P.M.

Athletic Assoc. Game Tickets Only

Game tickets ONLY on sale at
ATHLETIC OFFICE

TICKET WICKET

from 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Prices $1.50 in Student Section
Reserved Seats $2.50 and $3.00

S.A.C. Offices will sell combination train and game tickets OR train tickets only.

NOW ON SALE

CUPRunneth Over

By CHARLES HUMPHRIES

Here are the latest gleanings from the papers of the Canadian University Press, and from other college papers.

Winnipeg—A motion to approach university Board of Governors with a request for a 50 cent hike in student fees was approved at a recent meeting of University of Manitoba Students' Union Council. The motion was carried by a 20-7 vote after an hour of heated discussion.

It was stated that the proposed increase was necessary because the cost of operating the University of Manitoba Students' Union was exceeding its financial resources. It was pointed out that the major reasons for the raise were the increased cost of maintaining The Manitoban, and other college functions.

Montreal—Premier Pierre Mendès France interrupted a busy schedule last week to give McGill students an impromptu speech on the steps of Redpath Hall.

He said that the example of French and Anglo-Saxon co-existence at McGill and in Canada should prove an example to the rest of the world.

San Francisco—City cops took a dim view of an impromptu bonfire victory rally here after the UCLA - California football game across the Bay at Berkeley. It seems that the L.A. school's supporters tossed No Parking signs, newspaper racks and park benches into a bonfire at Union Square, in the heart of San Francisco. One of the 10 routers carted off to the pokey was a UCLA student—others ranged in age from 25 to 59.

Chapel Hill, North Carolina—The campus newspaper of the University of North Carolina, the Daily Tar Heel, sends along the following story:

Chalk up another one for the Great American Midwest, home of McCarthy and Jenner and Dirksen, home of the lady who said Robin Hood was a Communist and should be stricken from our books, home of the harassment of great institutions like the University of Chicago by state loyalty commissions and of the attack on Girl Scouts by the big, bad American Legion.

Add to the list the fact that this week, the Indiana State Athletic Commission decided to require a non-Communist oath of all professional boxers and wrestlers on the grounds that "the state has no business sponsoring the public appearance of Reds".

Two Choirs with HH Glee Club Feature for Tri-Choral Concert

This Saturday evening at eight-thirty, in the Great Hall of Hart House, the University of Toronto will present the fourth edition of its annual Invitational Choral Concert. In the tradition of invitational concerts, the University of Toronto has invited two other groups, the St. George's Cathedral Choir from Kingston, and the Buffalo State Teachers' College Choir. Together with the Hart House Glee Club, there will be 170 voices in all, singing and breathing in unison.

The St. George's Cathedral Choir, under the leadership of George Maybee, is composed of 26 men and 30 boys. This past summer it gave 21 concerts in England's Westminster Abbey, and had the honor of being the first non-English choir to sing at the famous Abbey in over 900 years.

The fifty-nine members of the male and female Buffalo State Teachers' Choir, directed by Silas Boyd, have sung with the Buffalo Philharmonic and have given concerts in the United States over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Garth McDowell, Assistant Warden of Hart House, prophesied yesterday that this particular concert, judging from the arrangements being made, will be the best yet of the concerts in this series. Tickets may be obtained at the Hall Porter's desk at Hart House, for $1.25 for one, $2.50 for two. The concert is open to all interested.

To 1955 Engineering Graduates

Since the first heavier-than-air flight fifty-one years ago, the rapid advance in all branches of science and engineering has continued to find application in the aeroplane.

The problems of supersonic flight . . . the problems of automatic control that must be faster than human reaction . . . these are some of the challenges being met by today's engineer.

The complexities of modern aircraft make aeronautical engineering a composite endeavour utilizing engineers whose basic qualifications lie in one or more of the following fields:

AERODYNAMICS

CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

CIVIL ENGINEERING

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

ELECTRONICS ENGINEERING

ENGINEERING PHYSICS

MATHEMATICS & PHYSICS

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

METALLURGICAL ENGINEERING

THERMODYNAMICS

REPRESENTATIVES OF OUR ENGINEERING DIVISION WILL VISIT UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO CAMPUS ON NOVEMBER 29th AND NOVEMBER 30th.

See your Placement Office for appointment.

CANADAIR

— AIRCRAFT MANUFACTURERS —

LIMITED, MONTREAL

WHEN THE SNOW FLIES SO DO WE!

DON'T LET THE ONSET OF WINTER
DETER YOU. WE FLY ALL DURING
THE YEAR AND NOW IS THE PERFECT TIME TO LEARN.

THE

U. of T. FLYING CLUB

IS NOW OFFERING A SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY FLIGHT TO YOU
AT REDUCED RATES. TO MAKE ARRANGEMENTS CONTACT . . .

LENORE REILLY — MO. 6231

DAFFYDIL '54: SOLD OUT :*December 13, 14, 15, 16, 17

FANS URGE BEAT WESTERN

There are things to be settled this week-end. Grey Cups and Misses of the Cup crowd, the headlines, but the important thing happens in London between the Blues of Varsity and the Mustangs of Western. Their prize is the Yates Cup, championship of College Football in Eastern Canada, held at the moment by the Mustangs, likely to move home to Hart House after tomorrow.

The Yates Cup final is expected to be a match of powerful forces, on one side the strong football team of the Varsity Blues, on the other a mythical jinx and a record of surprising finishes to stand for the Westerns. Western supporters make much of the Varsity Blues inability to defeat their Mustangs in London, calling it a "jinx", and point to the many games the Mustangs have won even when vastly outplayed. This, by their reasoning, shows the drive and unbeatable spirit of their Horsies. It fails to impress the Blues, and the record of the two teams, games this year stands to favour Varsity.

In their two regular games this season the Blues and Mustangs each scored 21 points, but 12 of these were of the generosity of the Blues to their less able Mustang friends, leaving the edge in the Blues favour.

Western has a heavier line, but their play lacks the sharp efficiency of the smaller but faster Varsity front wall. In the backfield Western has Fracas—Varsity has Oneschuk, Pinkney, Riva, Stevenson, Wilson, Muntz and extras to spare. Man for man and team for team Varsity is ahead, but there is always what J. Metras called, after the Queen's game, "The Good Lord".

Only a few hundred Varsity types are going down to London to see their Blues play the biggest game of the year. To this morning only one hundred, and twenty-five, train tickets have been sold, and many will of course go by car, but still the turnout is not of the sort to let the Blues know how solidly we are behind them.

The Blues are in the best shape of the past three weeks, with only Tackle Jack Strapp out definitely. Strapp suffered a knee injury in the Vancouver game and thus must miss his last College game. Al Riva, star half, may also sit out tomorrow, his leg being somewhat injured.

Quarterback is looking strong for the game, with Harry Wilson and Bill Stevenson both in good shape. The elbow injury which hampered Stevenson's play in the late part of the regular schedule is cleared up and Varsity will have two passing pivotmen. Bill Horton, out for the season, for good reason, will miss this game and Bruce Day has been moved from end to wingback to fill the gap. Ends for the game are to be Frank Palermo, in his last game, Fred Smaile, likewise, George Stulac and Don Smith.

Muddy field or dry, it won't make too much difference for the Blues. Defence will be the important factor and the Blues have handled this detail better than any other club in the league. Offensive-wise they have at least matched the Horsies and have shown that they can produce in the clutch, not on the fluke-play of the Western variety, but on good hard work.

So let's not babble of Grey Cups and like nonsense. Let's get our sense of proportion to work and concentrate on the things that matter—BEAT WESTERN!

The Undergrad
Newspaper

THE VARSITY

25
Shopping Days
Left Till
Christmas

Vol. LXXIV — No. 44

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Friday, November 26, 1954

LIBRARY WING OPENED TODAY

Go, Toronto, Go

That's our Phil Muntz pulling away from a Mustang tackler for a good ground gain during the last Varsity-Western game. Phil will be one of the key men in to-morrow's final.

—VSP by Ted Sparrow

Fall Convocation Honors Librarians

University of Toronto's swank new $3,000,000 main library-wing will officially open today.

The opening will coincide with an annual Fall Convocation of the University which will see a total 267 persons receive degrees later in the day. An afternoon of ceremony will culminate at 6:30 p.m., with a special dinner in the Great Hall of Hart House.

The University's publicity department at Simcoe Hall said yesterday that, weather permitting, a special Library-opening procession will wind across the campus from Simcoe Hall to the new library.

The ceremony at 4:30 p.m., will be high-lighted by:

—Remarks of the opening-ceremonies chairman, Dr. W. E. Phillips.

—Presentation of the library key, by the Architect to Dr. Sigmund Samuel.

—Short address by Dr. Samuel.

—Brief address by Dr. W. Stewart Wallace, Chief Librarian Emeritus.

—A Prayer by Principal Ramsay Armitage of Wycliffe College. Specially-conducted tours of the new library will be conducted, Simcoe Hall said, following the opening ceremonies.

The convocation ceremonies will be staged at 8:30 p.m., today in Convocation Hall. Five internationally-known librarians will receive honorary Doctor of Laws degrees. They are:

A. W. S. Munthe, former head of the Norwegian National Library, and director of the Oslo University Library; Hon. Pres. International Federation of Librarians Associations.

J. N. L. Myres, Librarian of Oxford University's Bodleian Library.

K. De W. Metcalf, Director of Harvard University Libraries.

W. Kaye Lamb, Dominion Archivist and National Librarian, Ottawa.

W. Stewart Wallace, Librarian Emeritus, University of Toronto.

Wymilwood Concert Stars Goldschmidt

The second Wymilwood concert of this year will be given on Sunday, Nov. 28, at 9:00 p.m., by Nicholas Goldschmidt, baritone, one of Canada's most famous musicians.

The programme will consist entirely of the songs of Hugo Wolf, with commentary by Mr. Goldschmidt, whose uncle, himself a composer, was a close friend of Wolf. Mr. Goldschmidt is musical director of the Opera School at the Royal Conservatory of Music, and director of the annual Opera Festival at the Royal Alexandra.

Delegation Asks St. Laurent For Aid

A four-member delegation representing University students all across the Dominion are due to drop in on Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent in Ottawa, Monday to talk over a proposed $5,500,000-a-year federal aid fund for needy students.

The plan would provide substantial annual scholarships for some 10,000 Canadian students.

Students from the University of Toronto attending the Parliament Hill parley will be Peter Martin, Ontario Regional Vice-president of the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

The President of the Students' Administrative Council, here — William Angus — will also make the trip to the capital.

Others planning to call on the Prime Minister at 3 p.m. EST, Monday, are, Douglas Burns, University of Saskatchewan student, now full-time president of NFCUS, and Paul Piche of Laval University, Quebec regional vice-president of NFCUS.

The University of Toronto was mandated at a NFCUS national convention here recently to lead in representing other Canadian Universities at the Ottawa interview.

Both Angus and Martin discussed the matter with Toronto-area MP's in a meeting last Friday. Most Federal members present were favourably impressed with the scheme.

Surveys are being taken by universities across the country as interested students attempt to fathom the reasons students leave school. Such a survey, conducted by Toronto students in conjunction with their Psychology Department showed that the earning power of male students dropped by something like 10% last summer.

One-eye Sees All

Benny's Blues Mince Mustang Men

The other night I drop off to sleep when suddenly I am having a dream which tells me what is happening between the Purple Horsies of Western and the Blues from Varsity when they get together for the Yates Cup deal. Across my brilliant mind there are skipping seven fat beasts who look very much like Mustangs, which is because they have such smug bovine looks on their faces as they chew their cud. After them are coming a herd of seven more, very scrawny Mustangs who are chewing no cud, only their very hurt pride.

I jump from my bed and I am just waking up when into my hovel floats a little pink elephant who looks like —, because he has such a cherubarb face. I am looking closer and discovering that he is not really pink at all but only looks that way because my eyes are being so blood-shot.

But I pay this quirk no mind as all my faculties are busy trying to figure out my deep dream. I am trying everything, even my "no-snow" crystal ball with the 30 foot antenna, but I get nowhere. It is so frustrating that I am calling a cab to take me to the waterfront where I am deciding to take a dip, of a permanent sort, when this little elephant pipes up and tells me to think. As this is something which I never try before, and as I am being very desperate, I give it a whirl.

I go at it so hard that I am going into a trance when, in a flush, it comes to me. All my little fish will listen close, as this is very complicated.

The seven fat Horsie-cows are being the lucky seasons of the Purple-faces from Western, which are being the years when they stumble on the Yates Cup. Now, the seven scrawny Horsie-cows, with no cud at all, are being the future, which is being very lean pickings indeed for the Purples. It takes me some hours before I am puzzling this deal out and getting my predictions crystal-clear — but I do it, and here they are.

The good days are being finished for Metras and his Horsies. Now are starting the hard times, while my Blues, please do not think I am being biased for Varsity, but my Blues are moving to the start of their own fat years, and are winning the first of what comes out to a long series of Yates Cups starting from this year.

The Blues do it in London, break the Western Jinx and take the Yates home. They are doing it by two touchdowns and a field goal, with some converts and a single in the bargain, while the Horsies are very weak and are getting only a singleton in touchdowns and maybe a field-goal. It is very sad for Western.

CRINOLINES

From 3 and 4 dollars . . . long and short . . .
all shapes and sizes.
Drop in and See Them Between Lectures.

HELMAR

46 ST. GEORGE

WA. 1-5978

Elizabeth Arden Salon

Choose a

Casual

Cut . . .

for

Easier

Hair Care

You need a cut that takes a minimum of care, for busy campus life. A cut that adapts itself to daytime or date-time. A cut that's new, to match your new college clothes. In the Elizabeth Arden Salon, a corps of experts is ready to give you the cut you need . . . the style that's suited individually to you.

Phone first for your appointment—
call TRinity 9111, local 3041—
the Elizabeth Arden Salon.
Simpson's — Sixth Floor

Simpson's

Architecture Shows Over TV Island Plans

What to do with Toronto Island—to develop it into a natural parkland with nothing but ferry-boat connection with downtown Toronto or to link it by bridge with the city to become in time a Mecca for entertainment and night-club spots?

This will be the alternative which The School of Architecture will present Sunday night over CBC-TV's "Enquiring Minds". Program Time: 8 p.m.

Fifth-year students of Architecture School made aerial surveys of Toronto Island before drawing up plans which were favourably received by the Metropolitan Planning Board, the Local Council of Women and the Association of Women Electors.

—Courtesy School of Architecture

To 1955 Engineering Graduates

Since the first heavier-than-air flight fifty-one years ago, the rapid advance in all branches of science and engineering has continued to find application in the aeroplane.

The problems of supersonic flight . . . the problems of automatic control that must be faster than human reaction . . . these are some of the challenges being met by today's engineer.

The complexities of modern aircraft make aeronautical engineering a composite endeavour utilizing engineers whose basic qualifications lie in one or more of the following fields:

- | | |
|-------------------------|---------------------------|
| AERODYNAMICS | ENGINEERING PHYSICS |
| CHEMICAL ENGINEERING | MATHEMATICS & PHYSICS |
| CIVIL ENGINEERING | MECHANICAL ENGINEERING |
| ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING | METALLURGICAL ENGINEERING |
| ELECTRONICS ENGINEERING | THERMODYNAMICS |

REPRESENTATIVES OF OUR ENGINEERING DIVISION WILL VISIT UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO CAMPUS ON NOVEMBER 29th AND NOVEMBER 30th.

See your Placement Office for appointment.

CANADAIR
— AIRCRAFT MANUFACTURERS — LIMITED, MONTREAL

THE MUTUAL LIFE
of CANADA

HEAD OFFICE WATERLOO, ONTARIO
Established 1869

The Mutual Life of Canada offers low-cost life insurance combining savings with protection. Your local Mutual Life representative can show you actual policy results and will be glad to work out a plan devised to suit your needs. See him today.

TORONTO OFFICES:
Bank of Montreal Bldg., King and Bay Sts.
Richmond St. Branch, 133 Richmond St. W.
Yonge-Bloor Branch, 749 Yonge St.
North Toronto Branch, 10 Eglinton Ave., E.
New Toronto Branch, 746 Lakeshore Rd. at 3rd
Seaside Branch, 650 Bayview Ave., Leaside

Phone EM. 4-8371
EM. 6-8771
WA. 4-8491
MA. 9421
CL. 1-3383
HU. 8-2776

ENJOY Player's "MILD"

Canada's Mildest. Best-Tasting Cigarette

First Canadian Discrimination Trial Forced On Labour Department—Blum

Ontario Labour Minister Charles Daly and his department, were sharply criticized yesterday for "inefficient, slow and ineffective handling" of the Dresden situation.

The criticism was levelled in a speech to the C.C.F. Club by Sid Blum, Executive Secretary of the Joint Labour Committee for Human Rights. Mr. Blum said that pressure from the public and the press had forced the Queen's Park Labour Department to form a commission to investigate conditions in Dresden to see whether anti-discrimination laws were being violated. He said that despite the Labour Minister's comments on the reports that the "situation would adjust itself," he had personally seen two cases of discrimination several days after the report had been released.

Mr. Blum described an incident when he and a Negro companion entered a barbershop to get a haircut. The barber told the Negro, "get the hell out of here." When the Negro pointed out that there were laws prohibiting discrimination, the barber replied, "I don't give a damn about the laws."

Mr. Daly's statements to the press that outside groups were trying to stir up trouble were described by Mr. Blum as "blasts of fury." "These statements," he said, "were made despite the Minister's knowledge that eight out of the ten complaints lodged with the Labour Department were made by residents of Dresden."

Mr. Blum said the pressure on the Labour Department has finally become so great that they have been forced to prosecute an offender. He said the trial, which opens next Wednesday in Chatham, is believed to be the first in Canada dealing with anti-discrimination legislation.

The penalty for conviction under the law is fifty dollars. Mr. Blum said despite the fairly light penalty, he hoped that if a conviction was obtained the way would be open for numerous complaints to be lodged.

He applauded the co-operation of the press in their handling of the discrimination issue.

Women Debaters Have Trial Here

Four Women's intercollegiate debating teams will be teeing off here Saturday for an all-day competition involving teams from four Ontario Colleges—McMaster, Queens, Ontario Agricultural College and University of Toronto.

Two University College students, Nancy Donnell and Marg Riches will represent U of T.

Competition will begin at 10 a.m. and by 12 noon, two of the teams will be eliminated. The final debate will be staged from 2 p.m. All debates will be held in Carr Hall, fourth floor, St. Michael's College.

Coming-Up

SATURDAY
7.30 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB—Spiritual Retreat: Retreat Master: Rev. Canon A. Carter, Ph.D. to speak on SATANIC DESTORATION. All Students Welcome. In the Chapel.

SUNDAY
10.00 a.m.—NEWMAN CLUB — Chapel — last retreat instruction and high mass. Retreat master Rev. Cannon A. Carter, Ph.D. All students welcome.

11.15 a.m.—NEWMAN CLUB — Club House — Communion breakfast. Guest speaker: Rev. Canon A. Carter, Ph.D. All students welcome.

2.30 p.m.—UKRAINIAN STUDENTS' CLUB — Dancing Practice followed by Choir Practice at 4.00 p.m. At St. Vladimir's Church, 404 Bathurst St.

6.00 p.m.—EXPLORING MINDS—Programme from the School of Architecture, U. of T. CBC Television.

6.30 p.m.—NEWMAN CLUB—Meeting of Music Appreciation Group.

7.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—Chapel Service—Doctor Coleman to Speak on FAITH — THE LAST RESORT OF A FEEBLE MIND? At the Wymilwood Music Room.

7.30 p.m.—PRESBYTERIAN FELLOWSHIP U of T — Knox College Chapel — "Is Every Christian an Evangelist?" Speaker—Rev. J. Robson.

8.30 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—186 St. George St. Topic: Social Trends in the Building of Israel — Dr. S. B. Hurwich; Men and Their Ideas Series.

ST. JAMES' CATHEDRAL

Cor. King and Church Sts.

FIRST SUNDAY IN ADVENT

8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion

9.15 a.m.—Holy Communion

11.00 a.m.—Mattins & Litany

Sermon: The Dean.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

7.00 p.m.—Evensong. Members of Ionic Lodge A.F. & A.M. will attend this service.

Sermon: The Reverend Canon C. A. Moulton.

HOLY COMMUNION

Tuesday (St. Andrew's Day)

7:00 and 10:30 a.m.; Wednesday

7:00 a.m.; Friday 7:30 a.m.

Mattins and Evensong — daily

at 9:00 a.m. (Tuesday 10:00 a.m.) and 5:15 p.m.

Visitors Very Welcome.

BLOOR Anniversary Services

Ministers:
Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. Walter C. Sellars

Organist and Choirmaster
Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.
CONVOCATION HALL
FOR DAYS OF UNREST

Dr. Chester A. McPheeter
7.30 p.m.
TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

OUR GOSPEL FOR TODAY
Dr. Chester A. McPheeter

The Campus Club meets in
Bloor Street United Church
Assembly Hall following the
Evening Service at Trinity.

Church Of The Redeemer

Bloor St. West and Avenue Rd.
Rector:

REV. OWEN P. PRICHARD,
B.A., L.Th.

8 a.m.—Holy Communion.
11 a.m.—Morning Prayer.
Sermon: The Rector.

7 p.m.—Evening Prayer.
Sermon: The Rector.

PARK ROAD

11 a.m. — Dr. H. S. Hillyer
"Bolivia Faces Turbulent Times"

Baptismal Service
7 p.m. — "Faith is Practical"

Saturday, December 11 . . .
20th Annual Carol Festival.

Citizens' Forum Hit Federal Aid For Universities

A three-man panel of university and business officials last night decided against increased federal aid to students — but it was a split decision.

The panel debate was broadcast over CBL's "Citizens' Forum" from Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Que. Members of the panel were J. A. Corry, Queen's University, Prof. C. Clarivauz, University of Montreal, and A. Findlayson, president of Canadian Marconi.

Both Prof. Clarivauz and Mr. Findlayson spoke against federal aid because they feared federal intervention in what they said was essentially a provincial matter. They said if aid was required it should come from private sources.

Prof. Clarivauz said he was "unalterably opposed" to federal intrusion for political reasons. Education has been and should remain a provincial issue entirely, he said.

Dr. Corry, professor of political science, argued in favor of student aid. He said financial help could be given "with no strings attached" and felt the federal government was the only body that could give general coverage to needy students.

All three panel members agreed some form of aid was needed to get the "good" student into university.

Films

The U. of T. Film Society will meet at Village Theatre Sunday at 8:15 p.m., not tonight as previously reported.

TODAY

1.00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — The Christian Life. At the SCM room at Hart House.

4.00 p.m.—SLAVIC CIRCLE—Executive Meeting at the Flaville House.

8.00 p.m.—WEST INDIAN STUDENTS' ASSN. of the U. of T.—Calypso Party at the Women's Union.

8.30 p.m.—HILLEL FOUNDATION—Student Panel Discusses: AMERICAN JEWRY—RETROSPECT AND PROSPECT. At 186 St. George St.

"FAITH — THE LAST RESORT OF A FEEBLE MIND?"

Dr. Coleman

November 28 — 7 p.m.
Wymilwood

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

• Tomorrow Night and All Next Week at 8.30 •

BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN — 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

HART HOUSE THIS WEEKEND

NOTES:

Great Hall — closing — evening meal Friday, 26th November. Convocation Dinner for those receiving Honorary Degrees on the occasion of opening of the new University Library. Sunday the 28th November from 2.00 to 5.00 p.m. will be Visitors Sunday. Members, girl friends, relations et al — all are welcome to visit the House. Tea available in the Great Hall at 3.00 p.m.

FRIDAY, 26TH NOVEMBER:

8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m.—TICKETS — GLEE CLUB INVITATION CONCERT — Hall Porter's Desk.

10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m.—MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m.—U.S.A. ART EXHIBITION "Tools and Techniques." Also sculpture by Rae Kat; Platter. Prints by Sybil Andrews.

1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. —SING SONG (East Common Room)

5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. —EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).

SATURDAY, 27TH NOVEMBER:

Caledon Hills Farm — Varsity Christian Fellowship over the weekend.

8.30 p.m.

—GLEE CLUB INVITATION CONCERT

(Great Hall). Buffalo State Teachers

College Choir, St. George's Cathedral

Choir of Kingston and the Hart House

Glee Club.

SUNDAY, 28TH NOVEMBER:

2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m. —VISITORS' SUNDAY

HILLEL FOUNDATION

"Men and Their Ideas Series"

presents

DR. S. B. HURWICH

—on—

"SOCIAL TRENDS IN THE BUILDING OF ISRAEL"

Sunday, November 28, 8.30 p.m.

170 VOICES 170 VOICES 170 VOICES 170 VOICES 170 VOICES

INVITATIONAL CONCERT

TOMORROW NIGHT TOMORROW NIGHT TOMORROW NIGHT

St. Andrew's United Church

(Bloor, near Subway at Yonge)

Minister:

REV. W. MORRISON KELLY, M.A., B.D., S.T.M.

11.00 a.m.

Parade of St. Andrew's Society of Toronto

7.30 p.m. — CHORAL SERVICE

First Latvian Lutheran Church Choir

Fireside Hour at close of service.

Students cordially welcome at these Services.

Religion based on Reason

These are not the times of the liberal, but of the reactionary and conformist. Inevitably, in times of stress, men look for quick and comforting solutions to their problems. They turn hopefully to the impassioned evangelist, or the venerated authority of the church. Unitarians do not share the current distrust of liberal thought. We believe in reason. We believe in man's ability to solve his own problems. We accept the principle that all things change and flow, so we cannot return to the old ways of thought and worship.

If you are seeking a church that rejects creeds and dogmas and asks you to use your reason, we invite you to join in our service this Sunday.

FIRST UNITARIAN CONGREGATION

175 St. Clair Avenue West (Near Avenue Road)

Sunday Service: 11 a.m.

REV. WILLIAM P. JENKINS, Minister

Sunday Broadcast: "Let's Think Together"

CHUM (1050 kc) 10:30 a.m.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR C. CLYDE BATTEN
MANAGING EDITOR ROBERT D. BROWN
News Editor Mike Pengelly
Assistant News Editor Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Feature Editor Mary Alice Hunter
Makeup Editor Irene Meyers
A.M. & D. Editor Wendy Michener
Sports Editor John Wilson
Women's Sports Editor Jo Ratcliffe
Photo Editor Ed. Hoshkiw
CUP Editor Chuck Williams
Mortician Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-5742

IN CHARGE Irene Meyers
NIGHT EDITOR: Carol Hoffman
REPORTERS: Jim Ferguson, Rich Anco, One-eyed Benny ASSISTANTS: Roger MacQueen, Mae Helen, Pat Moser.

To Each His Own

This afternoon an addition to the University of Toronto Library will be opened.

For some years, construction has been going through the stages from conception to fruition. Now, despite the many irritating delays, it has reached completion.

Many people are confident that the library will fill a long-standing need in the university community.

They point to the fact that a university of this size needs such a library. They emphasize the overcrowded conditions in the old library.

The most legitimate need of all is the one which is scarcely ever mentioned. That is the need of the professor or research fellow who often finds himself hampered by the inavailability of certain necessary books.

Justifying the erection of the library is an easy task, but one wonders whether anyone has ever seriously questioned the wisdom of erecting this multi-million dollar testimonial to our concern for appointments and furnishings.

There it stands. Endowed by benificent old men, administered by harrassed middle-aged ones, tolerated by the brittle young cynics on the staff, and greeted with profound indifference on the part of the undergraduates.

For each it has its own meaning and value but its inherent worth is yet to be demonstrated.

Outlets

Recently a spate of publicity has been given to the efforts of an oil-happy Arabian sheik to find a wife.

The poor starved souls who allowed themselves to become embroiled in these abortive struggles are to be greatly pitied.

However it is symptomatic that the business of finding a life partner should be reduced to the level of furniture buying.

Our present age has highly unsatisfactory attitudes to the whole problem of relations between the sexes.

It is obvious that the prolongation of the period of maturation has produced unnecessary stresses among the young men and women of university age.

Strangely enough, the improvement of contraceptive devices and the loosening of the marriage ties have not been matched by corresponding improvements in the attitude of society towards extramarital relations or the problem of unsated mates.

We have vaguely prediluvian notions of premarital chastity and marital fidelity, but these are ineffective in the face of the rising tide of provisions for the opposite states. Since conception can be rendered practically impossible and marriage shed so easily, we need drastic measures to bring our attitudes into satisfactory alignment.

It would be healthier if we were to reject our delusions on these subjects, and frankly afford the "frustrated" soul the outlet he may need.

Otherwise, we must affirm them and devise some form of financial subsidy for those who wish to marry early and avoid the probability of either.

our readers write:

To the Editor, with the hope that he will put down his pencil and scissors long enough to read it.

Sir:

I was reading in your newspaper, the other day,

An author whose opinions were strictly passe

His argument ancient, his style was crude

In short, he was one of the Editor's brood.

Well, just as I took my pen in hand

To instigate such an injudicious stand

I happened to notice the author's name

And to my surprise mine was the same.

It was only then that I realized
It was my article that you'd disguised
And while to me its views you were crediting
They'd all been changed—you call it "editing".
Now I typed your copy with high fidelity
But what you published had no similitude
And I wrote it alone, as an isolationist
Yet you became my collaborationist.

It was written, sir, for those who cared

My intention being my beefs be aired

But you, poor soul, misunderstood

And erred my beefs as best you could.

So in future, sir, if you must cut

And it seems to me you're in that rut

I'd like to end on this happy note

Why the hell don't you cut your throat.

Scutum.

Irreligion

The Editor,
The Varsity.

The person who has written to you as irreligious Pogo has referred to a religious organization, with which he appears to be in some measure of disagreement, with something less than the objective and scientific accuracy which might be expected of one who walks the halls of higher learning. Surely an organization cannot fairly be accused of forcing its views upon non-sympathizers because it advocates a custom and seeks its adoption by process of law. That is everyone's privilege in this free country, and petulant Pogo should not complain because he lives in a democracy. He cannot logically deny to others the privilege of utterance which he claims for himself.

Mr., Mrs., Miss, (or should we say, Master?) Pogo seems proud of his irreligious attitude. Is he one of the religious illiterates to whom President Smith made recent reference? Does he mean to say that he is without religious knowledge, or religious spirit? In either case, we appeal to whatever better nature may be in him to remove the quotation marks from around "Christian" when he refers to a church organization. Does dear Pogo know any of the people whom he so roundly scorns; and is he yet willing to write that way? Surely a sense of fair play would allow him to write of them as Christians, without quotation marks.

If we have thought of subscribing ourselves as Ogogans, surely Pogo will forgive us if we put the notion under restraint. We remain,

Yours hopefully,
Ogo, Pogo's Brother.

Individuals or Joiners?

The Editor,
The Varsity.

In the course of my two and one half years at this university, I have heard it reiterated in The Varsity time and time again that the student body is ridden with apathy. Apathy has come to be a dirty evil word. It's very mention brings a sneer and a curl of the lip to the mind of the reader.

Why is this so? Why is The Varsity so pre-occupied with apathy? What business is it of The Varsity's how an individual student chooses to structure his life?

Must we all run out and join some club or organization so that we may escape the wrath of the Varsity? Must we all root and cheer for the Blues whether we're interested in football or not? Must we all become worried about the fate of NFCUS, IUS, SAC, XYZ, and MTZPLK? Must we all be chagrined by the fact that "so few people turned up for debating trials?" Must we all become intimately concerned with the issues of the yearly Mock Parliament?

I say let the individual make his own choice. If he decides not to participate actively in any of the so-called vital and fascinating extra-curricular activities, so what? Why belabor him with criticism? Why try to badger him into becoming a true blue "Varsity type?" Why try to make him conform to your ideals?

Is there no room for the individual as an individualist? Must everyone become a member of one of the many in-groups on this campus? Where is your tolerance?

Do you really believe that the individual who declines to participate in some extra-

Lovers

To the willowy campus blond:

Though not Sheiks and though we cannot "buy the whole dang University of Toronto a dozen times over" and though we don't have an "air-conditioned Persian villa", however, in our estimation we live in the finest edifice in British North America — casually colonial Sir Dan's Residence. There are thirty of us who feel like wiggling their little fingers at you. We would like now to advertize that we would like to go off with you anytime to any desert. We are lonely Loudon House Lovers "looking for any blond "that's got what it takes" and, honey, we think you've got it.

Rubber Rossilini,
III UC.

P.S.: We like Lizzy too.

P.P.S.: To hell with Hazel: she is too windy and besides we don't like phonies (Redheads, that is).

Fakirs

The Editor,
The Varsity.

While sitting astride our convertible camellac we ran across the Sheik from Kuwait. Being faced with a rather similar problem, we have adopted a grass roots policy of going out and getting it without waiting for it to come to us. Our agency is now handling girls for preliminary inspection. Appointments can be made any night after 6 p.m. at Tr. 1921, only principals need apply.

Two Frustrated Fakirs.

High Noon

—Cartoon by Peter Grant.

PAGE FIVE

CRITIC IN THE DARK

Father Brown's Body

Father Brown Detective, at the Odeon Hyland is an English movie with a faint message and much humour. The message concerns the good to be found in all men, if only we scratch deep enough, the humour concerns Alec Guinness, and is much easier to take.

Guinness is an English priest, wise in the ways of his flock, meaning Jude, burglary and pick-pocketing, knowledge which he considers essential if he is to correct their vices and bring them onto the straight and narrow. The knowledge alone does him no harm, but putting it into practice in attempt to right a wrong done by one of his sheep, proves somewhat embarrassing. The opening scene of the movie shows Guinness, in priestly habit, cracking a safe while a petty thief stands guard. The police break in, nab Father Brown, the thief escaping, while the priest is taken off to jail.

It turns out, as expected, that Father Brown was merely returning what the petty thief had stolen and he is released to face the wrath of his Bishop and further adventures. These bring him up against a fabulous thief, a phantom whom no one has ever seen, but who has stolen great art masterpieces from every gallery and museum on the continent. Father Brown, of course, sets about trapping him, and, of course, almost does so.

As a story, Father Brown Detective is lacking in originality, having a plot as old as the hills, with much less depth. The only value is the work of Guinness, but this is more than enough.

Somehow, Guinness manages to give subtly, even to the slapstick bits in the film. The seaisack act standard to all comedies with any boat scenes in them, is very well-done, with Guinness clawing for a place on the rail, despite his assurances that he knows how to avoid the sickness.

An attempt to build up suspense brings out one of the film's better slapstick parts. Close on the heels of the big criminal, Guinness, blind without his spectacles meets a librarian similarly short-sighted and between the two of them, stepping on each others glasses and generally staggering about they manage a very funny bit.

One of France's quaintest customs, the celebration of the harvest of the grape, slows Guinness in his chase of the thief, but is most enlightening, showing clearly why Frenchmen are always so inspired.

Moishe Reiter

sleepers, desk-hoppers et al

Inmates Of Libraries

By SANDRA SKY

We will all agree that everyone comes to university for one of two reasons: to work, or because they're too lazy to go to work. We can't help but notice, the subtle manner in which the university has arranged its facilities in order to inspire us, the up-and-coming leaders of society, on to greater things.

For intellectual discussions there have sprung up such places as the J.C.R., the K.C.R., and the Arbor Room. Hallways, telephone booths, stairways and lawns are also found to be hotbeds of arguments on science, spinoza or sex.

However, there are locations which are specifically, for no other purpose than to provide a place conducive to studying. Yet, these are the very places on campus where no work is done. I'm referring to the libraries. Let us take as a specific example, the library of University College.

One need only enter this spacious hall of learning to be inspired with overwhelming ambition. The straight-back chairs, key-hole windows and dangling fixtures of illumination all help to create the atmosphere. Of note, too, are the various works of art that adorn the walls... the charming sentiment of the "Poker-faced Girl With Pigtales" or the ever-enticing bowl of 17th century fruit.

But most inspiring of all, are the inmates, or rather the inhabitants, and their activities. As a psychological exercise we shall divide these characters into numerous categories. First are the Dreamers... the philosophical thinkers who sit or lounge, depending on the individual, no doubt meditating on some deep, indiscernible topic, with brow furrowed and eyes closed... on second thought, this category is called the "Sleepers."

Next, we have a strange, rather pathetic group who are somewhat physically handicapped, by an ailment known as

"Lefthand-itis". These poor creatures, mainly female, are afflicted with a malady of the left-hand which causes them to raise it into full view of everyone who enters into the room. Conversation with one of them is filled with left-handed gestures, and they have also originated the left-handed handshake. Some say their affliction has been induced by a glittering band which they wear on the fourth finger of this appendage.

The last category is filled with individuals known as "Desk-hoppers", slightly related to the well-known "Table-hopper" of night-club fame. These characters enter the front door, make a well-planned and precise jaunt up and down the aisles, stopping at each desk to chat with acquaintances whom they haven't seen since the day before at the same time, and end up at the back door, where, after a slight hesitation, as if trying to remember something, (perhaps the reason for coming in in the first place), they leave.

There are numerous other types, to be found in the library. For instance the coy cutie who opens a window, then asks to borrow the jacket of the brawny bruiser beside her. Or the latest victims of Cupid's bow, who sit shyly flipping and fluttering pages at each other whilst playing toises under the table.

King Magnus and Family

The Royal Family. King Magnus with his Queen and Princess as they appear in Shaw's THE APPLE CART, opening a week's run tomorrow night at Hart House Theatre. The players here are Gigi Nyberg, Rex Southgate and Celia Shachter.

—VSP by Ed Hoskiw

Tempora, Mores

By DOUG STEWART

We were crying in our beer last night because we have to miss the Grey Cup to see the Blues break the old Western jinx to-morrow. Just then, our old friend the Campus Ghost drifted through the door, dressed in armour. Seems he had been on his way to a masquerade when the Champus Chat stopped him outside Trinity.

I told him what a sad thing it is that Grey Cup and the Yates Cup are being won on the same day. As C. G. said, things in the old days were much better organized. Several decades ago, the winner of the Intercollegiate series went on to the Dominion Championship. The Blues took the Grey Cup five times — in 1905, 1909, 1910, 1911, and in 1920. Campus Ghost couldn't remember all the scores, but in 1909 they beat the Rough Riders 31-7, the Tiger-Cats by 16-7 in 1910, and the Argos by 14-7 in 1911.

The games were the greatest drawing cards in Canadian football. The reason was the colour and enthusiasm which is only found at college games. C. G. remembered the days when the Varsity supporters were supplied with red, blue, and white cards for grand-stand displays. On a signal from the cheerleaders, blue and white cards would be held over the students' heads, and a huge U. T. spelled out. The climax came when the student section became a Union Jack.

Campus Ghost was right when he said that this would never happen now. Partly because nobody would think it worthwhile to take the trouble to go to the practices that are essential to a display like this. In the early decades of the century, nobody was allowed to buy a ticket unless he had been to two rooting practices.

It was not until 1919 that coeds were allowed to attend the games without the formality of an escort.

Drinking at games does not seem to have been a problem in those days, but a more pressing problem had arisen by 1913. In an eloquent plea to the powers that be, one anguished member of the Varsity wrote: "Of all the bold and cheeky deeds committed in our Stadium, that of smoking in a mixed crowd of ladies and gentlemen... reaches the maximum. Could not something be done to keep the air from being so foully infected with this stifling smoke?"

After the game, five thousand students would march down Yonge Street to the City Hall escorted by a battalion of mounted police. A bonfire would be lit, cheers given, the mayor would wave from his office, and the mob would move back to the university to continue the celebration, each according to his several means.

Well, the Blues have won the Grey Cup five times and will never win it again. We lead the league in having won the Intercollegiate championship eighteen times in forty-six years of competition, and it looks as if it will be nineteen times at four-thirty to-morrow.

I asked C. G. if he had a few words of deep philosophic truth to convey to this generation. "Yes," he said, "I hate Western."

BLUES MEET MUSTANGS IN FINAL

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

Way back about 1905, when the football we play today was a relatively new thing to Canada, a couple of young College stars named Gus Dorais and Knute Rockne revolutionized the sport with their interpretation of a new play, the forward pass.

Although this invention had been part of the game for some time, these two young men from Notre Dame made headlines across the country with their amazing wizardry. They had spent the whole summer before the fall season of that year, practising on the sandy beaches of a Lake Erie resort. Dorais was the Irish quarterback and Rockne was their first string end, and throughout the season of 1905, the two athletes won game after game for the Fighting Irish, outwitting their opponents with football's newest play.

It was in that same year that thirty-two football players were killed in one of the most disastrous seasons ever. Teddy Roosevelt, then president of the United States, was the one who saved College football with his untiring efforts to rewrite the rules of the game, and make it less dangerous. That terrible death toll was also one of the prime reasons why the forward pass was made a legal play in football.

Through the years the play has become the biggest offensive weapon of any football team. Back in the '20's, when the forward pass first came to Canada, there was no one who could throw the ball. Football players of those days used a pigskin that was at least a half an inch bigger all around than the one we use today, and the only way the quarterbacks could throw it was to place the point of the ball in the palm of their hand, and heave it like a shot-putter.

With such experts as the Montreal Allouettes' Sam Etcherry, and Winnipeg's Indian Jack Jacobs, the forward pass has thrown the old game of two bucks and a kick into a wide open high-scoring contest, and football coaches everywhere light up at the mention of a young star who can toss a sixty-yard pass without effort.

Just such a game as that is likely to be the outcome of this Saturday's battle up in London, when the Mustangs' great quarterback Don Getty matches wits with Varsity's Bill Stevenson and Harry Wilson. Operating out of Johnny Metras' colorful new Diamond T, with Getty in the tailback slot and John Girvin over centre, the Mustangs have had great success this season with a potent pass attack. Just as much a threat as that of Western is the Blue pass attack which proceeds from Bob Masterson's Multiple Offence. Stevenson has completed thirty-one tosses in sixty-six attempts for 519 yards, while Wilson has thrown forty-five sure strikes in seventy-five tries for 675 yards.

There couldn't be a team more deserving of the Yates Cup than this year's edition of the Blues. Ever since that 20-0 beating the Blues took in Kingston in the second game of the season, it's been an uphill battle, climaxed by the great last quarter finish against the same Gaels just two weeks ago. In our books, the Mustangs should never win another Yates Cup, after last Saturday's surprise ending. Lucky breaks have come to be a habit for the Western club, but their streak should have run out by now, and the Blues will be out to whip them in royal fashion come Saturday.

This time there is no fooling, the Yates Cup is coming home, just like we said way back in September.

Jack Strapp, Capable Blue Tackle

Jack Strapp, twenty-eight year old tackle with the Varsity Blues, has ably filled a regular position on the 1954 roster, but will miss this Saturday's final with the Western Mustangs. Jack was the victim of the injury bug last weekend in Vancouver when the Blues played the UBC Thunderbirds.

Jack spent his early high school days at Chapleau, and later journeyed to Guelph to enter the Ontario Agricultural College. During his four year stay at Guelph Jack starred on the Aggie football team at tackle. Standing six feet and one inch in height, and carrying a massive 200 pounds, Jack was very effective for the Aggies.

After receiving his degree at OAC, Jack came to Varsity and entered Emmanuel College. Now in his graduating year, Jack will become a minister in the United Church next June.

As well as football, Jack is a better than average soccer player, and also holds down a stalwart defence spot on the Emmanuel hockey team. He now makes his home in Mount Pleasant, just outside of Hamilton.

Jack is a real football veteran with several seasons of College ball behind him. He played with the Blues in the fall of 1953, and was the outstanding lineman at the Blue training camp last September. After such a great season, it is disappointing that he will miss the biggest game of the year.

Last Championship Was 1951 This One Could Be Nineteenth

Tomorrow afternoon, up in old Londontown, the 1954 Varsity Blues set out in search of their first Intercollegiate championship since 1951, and their nineteenth title since the Yates Cup came into competition in 1898. Their opposition, the Western Mustangs, will be looking for their ninth title since they joined the league in 1929; and their seventh Yates Cup under Coach John Metras.

The Blues are at almost top strength for this crucial encounter with the Western team, and probably in their best physical and mental condition of the season to date. Coach Bob Masterson said last night that he had never seen the team in such high spirits as this week, and if the last series of practices are any criterion, the Blues should take this one right out of the Mustangs' back yard.

Top-flight halfback for the Blues over the season is Bob Pinkney, who racked up an amazing 9.1 yards-gained average in twenty-six carries. Playing in his last season with the Blues, as are sixteen other footballers, Pinkney will be expected to share a great part of the backfield duties on Saturday.

Phil Muntz, probably the best the workhorse of the team this fall, carting the ball for 312 yards and an average of 6.1 yards per try. Phil had an average of 6.3 yards per carry last season, after gaining 581 yards, to lead the league in that department.

Freshman halfback Rich Bethune, has an average of eight yards per try, and has steadily improved with each game into one of the best backfield performers. With several more years of Varsity football ahead of him, Bethune will undoubtedly become one of the best backs in the league.

Captain Steve Oneschuk, also playing his last game in a Blue uniform, has compiled a 4.7 average this season, while scoring forty of the Varsity points fullback in the league, has been to end up second place in the Intercollegiate scoring race.

Halfback Al Riva, who may miss the game due to an aggravated knee injury, carried the ball twenty-seven times for 143 yards and an average of 5.3 yards per try.

The Blues rushed for over 1200 yards this fall, and the passing arms of Bill Stevenson and Harry Wilson accounted for 1194 more. Weather permitting, the game could turn into a passing duel between two great offensive teams, but let's wait till tomorrow.

Blue Ruggerites Try Barbarians In Playoff Game

Now at the end of the regular season, Varsity Rugger Blues tackle their most formidable opponents of the year this Saturday for a place in the finals for the Carling Cup, The Toronto Rugger League trophy. Meeting them on the Back Campus at 2.45 p.m. are Toronto Barbarians II, who have gone undefeated for about two years and wound up this season's league champions.

Although Blues were swamped by the same team in their first game of the season, prospects still look fairly bright. With the exception of a loss to O.A.C. by only one try, the Varsity squad won every league game from then on. A 17-0 victory in their last game, in fact, prompted one of the downtown dailies to name them "Toronto's most improved team," and their new brand of aggressive play should give Barbarians quite a tussle.

The team will be playing at top strength for the first time in four weeks, with Big Tom Harpar back to help supply the push in the scrum. Playing are: Butt, Burger, Drummond-Hay, Chadwick, Loughton, Trillia; Lepper, Campbell, Dunsmaur, Kelly, Fayle, Ham, Baines, Anderson, Harpar, and Gamble.

UC Jr.-Sr. Gals Trip Vic 25-11

U.C. Junior-Senior came through with a very important 25-11 victory over Vic Seniors last night at O.C.B. The win for the Red and White broke a tie with Meds in their league and put U.C. in a very comfortable position as far as playoffs are concerned. Meds now have to overcome Vic in the win and loss columns to stay in contention for league leadership and a chance at the intramural playoffs.

Both teams got off to fast starts in the first quarter. Pat Swayze and Claire McMullen were the scorers for U.C. Jean Lak was outstanding on defense for the Red and White and Vic had to be content with three foul shots netted by Judy Wicks.

In the second quarter, Vic slowed down considerably on offense and defense, allowing the U.C. six to count up a 14-7 half-time score.

The third quarter saw Vic come to life again in tallies by Sally McRae and Judy Wicks, despite the heads-up guarding of U.C.'s Joan Haggert. In the final frame, U.C. cemented their win on beautiful scoring plays by Pat Swayze, Lorraine Rotman, and Lou Martin.

Blue Profiles

John Wismer

One of the Blues who is termed, "irreplaceable" by Bob Masterson is centre John Wismer the work-horse. And this is justly deserved as this wiry guy has almost never failed to play a steady game.

Before John entered Varsity, he played for Kitchener high school for three years. During one of those years his team entered the finals only to lose out to London Adam Beck for whom Don Gherty played the same year.

On entering PHE at Varsity John joined the Intermediate squad and helped them win a championship. Since that time he has been regarded by his team mates as the most conscientious, hard-working player.

In his second year at Varsity, last year, he joined the Blues and has never relinquished his first string position. Perhaps the best reason for John's success with the team is his ability to block and snap well. On several occasions he has set up scores even though his appearances on the field are not noticeable.

This modest, likeable red-head has the distinction of snapping the ball with both hands. For kicks he uses his left, for others his right.

Now in his third year at Varsity John hopes to go to OCE next year from which he will graduate as a Math teacher. He will also want to coach after he graduates. John hopes to be married next year also.

In case you might be wondering how John keeps in shape it might be interesting to note that he works on construction during the summer.

UC Tops Pre-Meds, 3-2

By JOHN VOJTECH

After a dismal showing during the football season, the Jr. UC hockey team brought the college a victory in the hockey wars as they defeated Pre-Meds, 3-2 in a fast, hard-fought hockey game over at Varsity Arena yesterday afternoon.

Murdock netted two goals for the Meds team as they fought gamely to stave off defeat.

Murdock scored the first goal in the first period and before that period was over UC tied it up as Naylor scored. Murdock gave Meds another goal lead as he scored a little after the opening whistle of the second period. Paul got the assist. The lead was short-lived however, as Scott scored from Lotocki scarcely a minute later. But it was left to Roth to notch the winner on a pass from Naylor and Taerk.

Ceccutti played a good game in the Meds' net. Lepointdevint played a good game in the UC nets although he wasn't as busy as Ceccutti. In the second period Scott came close to scoring again as he went around the net and shoved the puck right in front of the open net.

Only two penalties were called, but there were more infractions such as holding and elbowing that were not called by the referees. However, they kept the game well under control and immediately separated players whose tempers seemed to be frayed.

In the second game, Forestry eked out a win over Wycliffe in division II. The final score was 2-1. Wycliffe took advantage of a Forestry penalty as Shepherd scored to give Wycliffe the lead. In the second period however, Forestry came to life as Hatkoski and Canon scored in the last five minutes of the game.

The game was a rugged and fast-skating affair with the body checks coming hard and fast.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Badminton
The Drill Hall is now free for women students on Wednesday 7.30 - 10.00, NOT on Thursday.

Volleyball
Clinic for students wishing to officiate Tuesday 5.00 - 6.00 p.m. beginning Nov. 30th at L. M. Gym.

Fencing
Club meets every Wednesday 5.00 - 6.00 p.m. L. M. Gym.

Archery
Club meets every Monday 4.00 - 5.30 p.m. Drill Hall.

GAMES TODAY

SOCCER — CHALLENGE MATCH DIVISION I AND II CHAMPIONS
FRONT CAMPUS 12.30 — Victoria vs. Emmanuel

LACROSSE PLAYOFF — 1.00 St. M. B. vs. Dent. A—Eagleson, Uhrynuk
VOLLEYBALL — Group Playoff (if necessary) 1.00 Arch. A vs. Emman—Sorra

SQUASH 5.00 Pharm. A vs. Trin. B
HOCKEY 12.30 Trin. C vs. U.C. III—Naylor, MacLean
1.30 Law vs. Arch.—MacLean, Naylor
4.00 Trin. B vs. Dent. B—Riley, Stephen

HOCKEY REFEREE APPOINTMENTS FOR NEXT WEEK

Mon., Nov. 29 12.30 Dysart, Tilson
1.30 Tilson, Dysart
4.00 Lotocki, Nadin
Tues., Nov. 30 12.30 Fisher, Reid
1.30 Yakimoff, Smith
4.00 Prendergast, Siegel
Wed., Dec. 1 12.30 Stadeny, MacCormack
1.30 Stephen, Riley
4.00 Siegel, Prendergast
Thurs., Dec. 2 12.30 Nadin, Lotocki
1.30 Smith, Yakimoff
4.00 Riley, Stephen
Fri., Dec. 3 12.30 Naylor, MacLean
1.30 Reid, Fisher
4.00 Weinert, Naylor
5.00 MacLean, McCracken

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

O.C.E. 5.30-6.30 Vic Sr— Meds A Pharmacy— Meds B	Mon., Nov. 29	Tues., Nov. 30	Wed., Dec. 1	Thurs., Dec. 2
6.30-7.30		St. M's A— PHE II St. H's Sr.— UC Jr. Sr.	Playoff League I Vic Jr— PHE III	Playoff League I Winner League II vs. Winner League V Winner League III vs. Winner League IV Playoff League VI
7.30-8.30	Nurses Jr— St. M's B	POT Fr— Vic Fr	POT Sr— St. H's Jr
8.30-9.30	PHE III	Vic Sophs A— Nurses Sr
L.M. 5.00-6.00 6.00-7.00 7.00-8.00 8.00-9.00	Mon., Nov. 29 UC Fr. St. H Jr. Sr. Nurses PHE I	Tues., Nov. 30 Meds A Pharm. POT Sr. & Fr.	Wed., Dec. 1 PHE II UC Sophs UC Jr. Sr.	Thurs., Dec. 2 St. H's Fr. St. H's Sophs Meds B

NOTICE—
League I—If there is a THREE WAY TIE UC Jr. Sr. and Meds A will play off Wed., Dec. 1 at 5.30; winner will play Vic Sr. on Thurs., Dec. 2 at 5.30.
If there is a TWO WAY TIE teams involved will play off Thurs., Dec. 2 at 5.30.
If there is NO TIE winner will have a bye to semi-finals.
League II—If there is a TWO WAY TIE teams will play off Thurs., Dec. 2 at 8.30.
If there is NO TIE winner will have a bye to semi-finals.
Semi Finals — Tues., Dec. 7; Finals — Thurs., Dec. 9 — both at Hart House.

The LIBERAL CLUB

presents

PAUL HELLIER

M.P. for Davenport

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 30,

1.00 p.m.

Room 5 — U.C.

NO TIGHT, FUSSY CURLS HERE!

This hairdo was made with Bobbi
... the special home permanent
for casual hair styles

Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent is made to give you lovelier, softer curls... the kind you need for today's casual hairdos like the "Bobbi Bob" pictured above. A Bobbi wave is never tight, never frizzy. Right after using Bobbi your hair will have the beauty, the body, the soft, lovely look of naturally wavy hair. And it will stay that way for weeks and weeks!

Giving yourself a Bobbi is easier, quicker than you ever dreamed possible. You just put your hair in pin curls and apply Bobbi Creme Oil Lotion. A little later, rinse with water, let dry, brush out —and that's all! No clumsy curlers to use. No help needed.

Ask for Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent. If you like to be in fashion — if you can make a simple pin curl — you'll love Bobbi! $1.75

Just pin-curl as usual. Apply Bobbi, rinse 45 minutes later. When hair is dry, simply brush out. No neutralizer needed. No curlers, no re-setting. So easy, you do it yourself.

- Christmas Cards For Every Taste
- Ribbons ● Seals ● Wrapping Paper

all the trimmings

Right on the Campus at the

UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

for a really festive Christmas!

SPECIAL VARSITY EXCURSION

VARSLITY vs. WESTERN — NOV. 27

Excursion and ticket arrangements for those going to London for the game

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

$5.00 Return

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27

Leaving TORONTO 8.15 a.m.

GAME TICKETS IN STUDENT SECTION $1.50

Reserved Seats also available... $2.50 and $3.00

IMPORTANT!... KICK-OFF, 1 P.M.

Athletic Assoc. Game Tickets Only

Game tickets ONLY on sale at ATHLETIC OFFICE

TICKET WICKET from 9.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Prices $1.50 in Student Section Reserved Seats $2.50 and $3.00

S.A.C. Offices will sell combination train and game tickets OR train tickets only.

NOW ON SALE

4 DAYS TO APPLY FOR ARTS EXAMINATIONS
(College Registrar's Office)

wet weddingSophisticated Sheik Surrenders

The wedding of the Sheik of Araby took place last night in the King Cole Room, a well-known place of meditation in the city. The bride, a beautiful and well-publicized campus blonde, came attired in three-quarters of a gaudy Persian rug, and mounted on a two-humped camel.

Said the blonde: "I did so want to ride a three-humped one, but this was all that Kashmir (the Sheik's first name) could get on such short notice." After the ceremonies the camel became quietly inebriated in a corner and was last seen reeling back into the School of Law building.

The ceremonies were performed by the chef at the King Cole Room with all due dignity. But, interviewed later, the Sheik said, "No, %&$" (cat). He soon calmed down, however, and expressed the feeling that his "loneliness was over" and that he was "inexpressibly enraptured" with his "cuddly-ums".

The Sheik's new harem, meanwhile, had disappeared in the back room to sign the marriage documents, and sign her visas. "I know I'll just love Araby," she murmured softly. "What with all those lovely palaces, and servants, and money and things." "And don't you think it's so romantic to marry a real Sheik, like we took up in Arthrop."

A last minute communique was received from Lovesick Lizzy, whose light-hearted bloneness apparently did not inspire the Sheik. Here is the text of the letter:

My dearest darling cashmere, I am terribly sorry that it was not I that you chose to be your beloved. But remain sure, my lovely snook-ums, that your Lizzy will remain true to you. And if you ever find out that you have made a mistake (which I'm sure you must have, because all that creature talks about is money), then I'll be "waiting just for you."

Imploringly,
Lovesick Liz, the Rugger Whiz.

Hurricane Hazel could not be reached for comment. It is reported that she has been subjected to some humiliation, because of the publicity given the affair, and has voluntarily dropped out of the running. "I just want to get away from it all and start over again," she earlier said.

Your Last Chance!

HAVE YOU PLANNED YET FOR NEXT SUMMER?

Enjoy An Outdoorlife
Attractive Conditions

Interesting Work
Good Pay

Do Something Useful

Join The Canadian Officers Training Corps

See the Resident Staff Officer . . . 119 St. George St.

• ENQUIRE NOW •

RECRUITING ONLY TILL 1st DECEMBER

The Purple Spur Society of the University of Western Ontario

INVITES VARSITY STUDENTS

Western-Toronto
FOOTBALL DANCE

SATURDAY

9-12 p.m.

THAMES HALL

BOBBY DOWNS' ORCHESTRA

Tickets at $1.50 per couple may be obtained at the door

EATON'S"SNUGGLE-BUGS"

Fleece-lined and cuffed!

To cuddle your feet on cold Winter mornings . . .
or through a late session with the books!

Cosy, sheepskin "Snuggle-Bugs" . . . with a thick fleece lining and cuff all ready to pamper your feet! In natural-coloured sheepskin that should out-live the liveliest dorm parties! Sizes 4 to 9 in full sizes only!

Pair 2.99

Phone TR: 5111

EATON'S — Main Store — Second Floor (Dept. 233)

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR SALE
Men's English tailored two-piece suit,
27" waist, tall; never been worn.
Phone CL 1-0900 evenings.

WANTED
Ride from Wilson - Yonge Blvd.
district; mornings only. Phone MO.
6270 — after 6 p.m.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-9483 — 21 Russell St., (just off St. George St.)

CALEDON FARM
Due to a cancellation the Farm is available to a student organization for the week-end of Dec. 3, 4, 5.
For further information call the Graduate Office, Hart House, WA.
2-2716.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1343 anytime.

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00,
FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact
Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

LOST
U.T.S. student's O.C.M. hockey skates
in Varsity Arena dressing rooms.
Finder phone Reid, JU. 7950. Reward.

FOR SALE
'37 Dodge sedan, good running order, inside heater and block heater, only
$49. MA. 1916.

CREST THEATRE

TORONTO'S ONLY
REPERTORY
THEATRE

MT. PLEASANT
ROAD
HUDSON
9-9427

Murray and Donald Davis Limited present

FROM NOVEMBER 30

BETTY LEIGHTON in

"The Lady from Edinburgh"

Nightly at 8.30 — $3.00, $2.25, $1.75, $1.00
Matinees: Wednesday 2.30 - Saturday 5.30 — $2.50, $1.50, 75c

SPECIAL STUDENT RATE . . . 75c
On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of 2nd Weeks of Runs

GEORGE STULAC

HARRY WILSON

EARL FORD

BILL HORTON

BAZ MACKIE

AL RIVA

WALLY BULCHAK

JOHN PRENDERGAST

ALEX MACKLIN

BRUCE DAY

WE FIGHT

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIV — No. 45

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Monday, November 29, 1954

Yates
Cup Comes Home

A Smooth Start

Varsity Blues won a football game Saturday afternoon but lost one of their top backs for half the season. The new Blue offence, powerful in every department, easily defeated a weak Balmby Beach opposition 29-12 in an exhibition opening to the Intercollegiate football season, but at the cost of John Sopinka who is out for five weeks with a dislocated shoulder.

Disaster

A muddy field, and a series of disastrous fumbles in the third quarter, combined to aid the Sarnia Imperials to a 29-18 win over the Varsity Blues last Saturday in the oil town.

The Blues, exhibiting their famed passing attack, backed by powerful running by Jim Meehan and Steve Oneschuk, outplayed the Sarnia team from start to finish, and only relaxing for a few minutes in the third frame while the Imps tallied three converted touchdowns.

For the Nineteenth Time

Deadlock

Folowers of the Varsity Blues can prepare themselves for a football season of worry and excitement after Saturday's 9-9 tie

Oneschuk Sparks Blues to Victory

By MOISHE REITER

Bob Masterson waved his "magic hat" and an ugly jinx turned into the loveliest Yates Cup he ever did see as his Varsity Blues, detaching the Western Mustangs to football paralysis, destroyed the "jinx" of Little Memorial Stadium, and won in London for the first time in 18 years. Scoring first, the Blues still had to play to recent form and drive from behind in the last half to win the intercollegiate Championship 9-8 from the favoured Western Mustangs. It was a brilliant 35 yard field-goal by Blue captain Steve Oneschuk, playing his last game for Varsity, that put the Blues ahead and a third quarter touchdown when he ran off tackle and converted that brought them back and won the Yates Cup.

And getting the last yard's thrust, was almost lost in the last minute, on a very neat out of work by fullback Bob Kinnor, running a smart Western move. On third down, less than a minute to play, Steve Oneschuk kicked to Western's Don Getty at centre field. Getty stepped to ward and booted it right back to the Varsity ten where players of both teams swarmed. Steve Oneschuk, on the run, kicked

BOBBY WAUGH

COMING-UP

- TUESDAY, NOV. 30
- 1:00 p.m.—UC WOMEN'S UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION — Women's Union Theatre. Open meeting on What to do about the JCR.
- 1:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—room 212, Astronomy Building. Topic: What Is a Human Being?
- 1:00 p.m.—LIBERAL CLUB—room 5, UC. Paul Hellyer, MP for Davenport, on Will Twenty Years of Liberalism Prevent Another 1929?
- 1:30 p.m.—VICTORIA COLLEGE MUSIC CLUB — Music Room, Wymilwood. A recital by Lilian Petrie, soprano.
- 4:00 p.m.—OLD TESTAMENT CLUB — Common Room, Emmanuel College. Use and Abuse of the Old Testament by Eusebius. Speaker: Mr. L. R. O'Neill.
- 8:00 p.m.—UNIVERSITY COLLEGE RED AND WHITE NIGHT — Women's Union Theatre. Square, and round dancing.
- THURSDAY, DEC. 2
- 6:30 p.m.—CANTERBURY CLUB — room X, Trinity College. Discussion group on Nicene Creed.

TODAY

- 4:00 p.m.—CANTERBURY CLUB—Chaplain's Office, Hart House. —discussion group on Nicene Creed led by Rev. John Rowe.
- 4:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT and PSYCHOLOGY CLUB—room 8, UC—Dr. Cappon—The Family of God and the Family of Man.
- 4:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — Copper Room, Wymilwood. Topic—Christ According to St. John.
- 8:00 p.m.—MODERN HISTORY CLUB — Falconer Hall. Prof. Falardeau of Laval University speaking on French-English Relations in Canada.
- 8:30 p.m.—ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE — Carr Hall Auditorium —Dom Damasus Winzen, OSB, on Advent in Early Benedictine Art — Illustrated with slides of rare mediaeval manuscripts.
- SATURDAY, DEC. 4
- 1:30 p.m.—UNDERGRADUATE SOCIAL WORK CLUB — Field trip to Brampton Reformatory. Includes tour, tea and informal discussion. Everyone welcome. Phone Ann Leitch, HU. 9-0336, by tomorrow.

HART HOUSE

critic in the applecart

Shaw's The Apple Cart has the interesting distinction of saying absolutely nothing in a very entertaining and completely theatrical fashion. Characteristically, while its author comments pithily and with sparkle on topical occurrences, he is less successful in dealing with and shedding light on university applicable situations, and the play emerges as a collection of witty moments cleverly tossed together by a man whose knowledge of his audience and his theatre is sure and thorough.

Director Robert Gill and his actors gave the play, by and large, the performance it deserves and demands. Their touch was light and their enthusiasm vital and infective. To be sure, the pace dragged from time to time and certain scenes which should have been volatile fell with a heavy thud, but comedy pacing is a difficult matter, and the lapses of young actors in this respect may be excused.

The happily combined contribution of style and direction to the witty and fantastic mood which is inherent in the play was splendidly supported by the decor of Pat Corcoran's striking sets; the boudoir designed for Orintha, the king's mistress was so perfect an expression of that very interesting lady's personality that we could scarcely imagine her without it. Susan Sander's gay performance filled this somewhat overpowering role with admirable aplomb throughout, although we felt that her greatest achievement lay in living up to the costume designed for her by Judy Gianelli, a costume which can only be described as unbelievable.

The most all-round satisfying performance was Rex Southgate's King Magnus. In a part which demands that its player be always the centre of the stage and on top of the action, Mr. Southgate performed with wit and expression and truly royal dignity. He was, of course, fortunate in having so queenly a wife as Gigi Nyberg's gentle but indomitable Jimema. The air of sweet reason with which she treated Mr. Vanhatten, played with highly entertaining gusto and windiness by Leslie Lawrence, suited the whole scene to perfection.

Among the Cabinet members, John Finlay's Proteus was worthy of note for his consistency and timing, while Leon Major played the blustering Boanerges with a mobility of expression which lent considerable charm to that prickly character. Annette Oelbaum as Amanda was in the unhappy position of portraying a characteristically English phenomenon with an entirely Canadian accent, lending to the cheery barmaid the sophistication of an American flapper.

The play, the actors and the pacing shared a tendency to unevenness; like the little girl with the curl, when they were good, they were very, very good; but when they were bad, they most certainly were horrid.

Nancy S. Donnell

GIVE YOURSELF ROOM TO GROW...
WITH THIS NATION-WIDE COMPANY!

Procter & Gamble

of Canada Limited,

offers you an attractive management career with one of Canada's largest manufacturers... and its leading advertiser!

Tide, Camay, Ivory, Joy, Crisco, Cheer, Spic and Span... these are household words across Canada. They are just a few of the many nationally advertised products of the Procter & Gamble Company of Canada, Limited.

P&G is expanding steadily, through increasing demand for its many brands, and through the addition of new products. This constant growth creates new opportunities for aggressive young men—selected from within the organization—to win new advancement and executive responsibility in the Company.

Your Future May Be With P&G

YOU can build a successful career in the management of this nation-wide organization... a career that offers thorough training—financial reward—the opportunity to move ahead on your own ability.

Right now, openings are available for university-trained men who will have degrees in Arts, Commerce, Law, Engineering or Chemistry.

We offer you interesting careers in such important activities as ADVERTISING, SALES MANAGEMENT, BUYING, OFFICE MANAGEMENT and FINANCE.

How to Plan Your Career with P&G

We invite you to see for yourself how Procter & Gamble can open broad avenues of career opportunity to you. You may make arrangements for an immediate interview with a P&G representative, by contacting...

YOUR PLACEMENT OFFICE

INTERVIEWS TO BE HELD

Wednesday and Thursday, December 1st and 2nd

The Procter & Gamble Company of Canada, Limited

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR SALE
Men's English tailored two-piece suit, 27" waist, tall; never been worn. Phone CL. 1-0900 evenings.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-9483 — 21 Russell St., (just off St. George St.)

EXPERT TYPIST
Fifteen years' experience, specializing in short, double-spaced letter-size page. Mrs. Grossman, 966 Castlefield Ave., BU. 1-1041.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

FOR SALE
1937 Plymouth in good condition. See Prof. R. A. Ward, Room 26, Wycliffe College.

PART-TIME EMPLOYMENT

Well paid part-time job — evenings — particularly suitable for student in residence. Apply S.A.C. office for further information.

• TO START AT ONCE •

THE MOST COMFORTABLE SOCKS YOU CAN WEAR!

HAPPY FOOT

HEALTH SOCK

NEW! — comfy-cushion top

— Eliminates leg-binding, keeps sock up.

You'll be "at ease" from head to toe.

INSIST ON... HAPPY FOOT

The original cushion sole — for that "walking on air" feeling.

At your favourite hosiery counter.

McGregor

EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED FOR 90 DAYS WEAR BY

QUALITY SOCKS FOR MEN AND BOYS

2 DAYS TO APPLY FOR ARTS EXAMINATIONS
(College Registrar's Office)

— music and drama

h h orchestra

Dr. Boyd Neel and the Hart House Orchestra made their long awaited Toronto debut last Thursday evening in Eaton Auditorium. The concert, which was sponsored by the Women's Musical Club of Toronto, was well attended and well received by the audience. The orchestra is a string group of 22 or so members including 2 or 3 wind instruments.

The opening work was Karl Friedrich Abel's Symphony in E Flat. Dr. Neel's peerless skill as a conductor was well revealed here in an interpretation which embodied a very pleasing variety of accent and dynamic range of the exact amount necessary to bring the work to life. The slow second movement (andante) seemed to drag a little but I suspect that the players or inadequate rehearsal time were at fault rather than Dr. Neel's direction.

Haydn's Symphony No. 49 in F minor nicknamed "La Passione" was the second piece on the programme. The playing and interpretation were altogether excellent. The movement with its fairly simple development hung together very well with a wonderful climax towards the end. The second movement (Allegro di molto) was equally well realized — the rhythm swung along as it should and the various parts were carefully interwoven. The only flaw was an unpleasant harshness in the violin tone. The Minuet and Trio which forms the third movement was played at slow medium tempo and unfortunately did not bounce along quite as it should.

The last piece before intermission was Benjamin Britten's Simple Symphony which as Dr. Neel announced was an arrangement the composer made at the age of 19 of a number of dance tunes he had written when he was 9. Actually the piece isn't as simple as the title suggests. It is a fascinating and varied conglomeration of tunes and variations in which the influence of English and Scottish folk song could be detected amongst others. All this was bound up at times by modern harmonic and rhythmic ideas. As evidence of its variety the second movement is entirely pizzicato and has pleasing originality while the Sentimental Sarabande has a powerful section of almost Eastern character. The whole was wonderfully conducted by Dr. Neel but unfortunately marred by persistent roughness and harshness in the violins and cellos during the faster and louder sections.

The programme ended with Mozart's Symphony No. 29 in A major K. 201. The first movement (allegro moderato) and the second (andante) were very well done, the musical elements were clearly stated and developed, and a good string tone was maintained by the orchestra. The third movement (minuetto) is a difficult one since it is naturally broken up into small phrases and the proper proportioning of small details is necessary for a unified conception. It was not too well done — parts of it dragged and there was some sloppy playing. Harsh tone and sloppy playing harmed the conception of the last movement in a similar manner.

The performance showed, I think, that Dr. Neel is an extremely fine conductor but that the players in his orchestra were not quite up to his very high standard. In future I expect the group will improve considerably and Toronto may look forward to many fine concerts under Dr. Neel's direction.

J. Peter Denny

h h invitation to glee

On Saturday night the Hart House Glee Club acted as hosts at an Invitational Concert in which they participated in company with the Buffalo State Teachers' College Choir, conducted by Silas L. Boyd, and the St. George's Cathedral Choir, Kingston, conducted by George N. Maydeo.

The Buffalo group, consisting of male and female voices led off the concert with Scarlatti's Alleluia from the Graduale of the St. Cecilia Mass. In this piece, as in the others in which they performed the BSTCC exhibited a good over-all conception of the work with occasional lack of unison in the sopranos and tenors and a small degree of strain and edginess in some passages. Kountz' Prayer in particular exhibited fine control at extreme volumes, excellent balance between the section of the choir and a very fine overall interpretation.

The Hart House Glee Club were next in line, conducted as usual by Ward McAdam. Varsity may be very proud of this truly wonderful group — their overall tone is very fine indeed and their attack impeccable. They went through a varied program including a Welsh chorale, a spiritual, Morley's April is in My Mistress' Face, and arrangements by Mr. McAdam of Will Ye No Come Back Again? and Black is the Colour of My True Love's Hair in the same fine style, the only fault being a slight breakdown of unison in one or two of the more difficult tenor passages. Mr. McAdam could, perhaps, dig a little deeper into the interpretive possibilities of some of the pieces, for example, Will Ye No Come Back Again? and the Morley piece, neither of which seemed to put the meaning of the words across fully.

The performance of the St. George's Cathedral Choir completely bore out the reputation which had preceded them — they were altogether excellent — at times magnificent. The overall tone has a quality, which can only poorly be described in words as having tremendous clarity in the boys' voices and certain firmness in the men's, although they lacked some of the Hart House group's precise attack. Their program which consisted of English, Canadian and American church music of the last five centuries was marred once or twice by flaws in the men's voices. The boys' voices were extremely fine throughout. Outstanding amongst the works they performed were Healey Willan's Motet O Trinity Most Blessed Light and Sir Charles Stanford's Latin Motet for double choir, Caelos Ascendit Hodie.

The final section of the program consisted of three pieces, led in turn by each of the three conductors and sung by the three choirs combined into one — a total of 156 voices. The really incredible effect which they achieved at full volume was best shown in Handel's Hallelujah Amen (from Judas Maccabaeus) which ended the concert.

J. Peter Denny

PIANIST WANTED!

to accompany, and solo with, the
HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB

Contact Undergrad Activities Office, Hart House.

Hart House Theatre Auditions

AUDITIONS START TOMORROW FOR KING LEAR

For an appointment — Phone WA. 3-7193 or call at Theatre Office.
ROBERT GILL, Director.

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

Tonight and All This Week at 8.30

BOX OFFICE OPEN — 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK

MONDAY, 29TH NOVEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS! SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT COMING UP. St. Mary Magdalene Singers and Christmas music. This annual event brings a capacity house. Members — get your free tickets early.
- 10.00 a.m. - 6.00 p.m. — U.S.A. ART EXHIBITION: "Tools and Techniques" Prints by Sybil Andrews.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS: (Chapel) Daily
- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room)
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL — Ist tenors. (Debates Ante Room).
- 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel) Daily.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TABLE TENNIS (Debates Room). Running shoes required.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range)

TUESDAY, 30TH NOVEMBER:

- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW (Art Gallery)
- 1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR. (Record Room). Relax with Wax! "Othello" by Shakespeare — part 6 with Hagen, Ferret Robeson.
- 7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — FULL GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Music Room).
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.

WEDNESDAY, 1ST DECEMBER:

- 4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY — Open to women of the University of Toronto.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — 5 O'CLOCK CONCERT. Paul Helmer — pianist (Music Room). Women, with or without member-escort are welcome.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Beautiful mediaeval art works. Open to men and women (through reading room).
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL. (Debates Ante Room). 2nd basses.
- 7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. PRIZES.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB. (Rifle Range).

THURSDAY, 2ND DECEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).
- 5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).

FRIDAY, 3RD DECEMBER:

- 1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).

SATURDAY, 4TH DECEMBER:

Caledon Hills Farm. Open weekend to any Hart House member. If planning to go please contact the Graduate Office — WA. 2-2711.

SUNDAY, 5TH DECEMBER:

- 9.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel). The Celebrant — Principal J. S. Glen — Knox College. Communicants may obtain breakfast after in the Great Hall (50c).
- 11.00 a.m. — THIRD UNIVERSITY CHURCH SERVICE. Preacher: Dr. Paul Lemman of Princeton University.

THE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY OF TORONTO

"ERNEST DALE MEMORIAL FUND EVENING"

The Earle Grey Players

Shakespeare's "TWELFTH NIGHT"

HART HOUSE THEATRE

Tuesday, December 7, 8.30 p.m.

Tickets — $2.00 . . . Hart House Theatre Box Office

Learn your PRACTICAL ECONOMICS

at "MY BANK",
where students' accounts are welcome. You can open an account for as little as a dollar.

BANK OF MONTREAL

Canada's First Bank

Queen's Park Branch: JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
Bloor and Bay Streets: KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
St. George & Bloor Sts.: T. HARRY BRYSON, Manager

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

The Varsity

Published 5 times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of the University
of Toronto
Member Canadian University
Press
Publications Commissioner
Ian G. Scott

EDITOR D. CLYDE BATTEN
MANAGING EDITOR ROBERT D. BROWN
News Editor Mike Pengeley
Assistant News Editors Cathie Ereslin, Bill Smyth
Feature Editor Mary Alice Hunter
Makeup Editor Irene Meyers
A.M. & D. Editor Wendy Michener
Sports Editor John Wilson
Acting Assistant Sports Editor John Vojtech
Acting Women's Sports Editor Flo Middleton
Photo Editor Ed. Hoshkiw
CUP Editor Chuck Williams
Mortician Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

In Charge of the Varsity John Wilson
Night Editor Irene Meyers
Assistants: Roger McQueen, Flo Middleton
Reporters: Joe Aziz, John Rick

Surfeits

An editorial writer for one of the d.d.'s has seen fit to add his little bit to the present discussion revolving around the necessity of wearing gowns to certain meals in the new U.C. Men's Residence Dining Hall.

The writer himself could use a few lessons in logic.

He maintains that the students are already distinctive members of the community and that their argument that gowns would destroy their individuality, is invalid.

What he apparently does not see, is that the students in the Sir Dan Wilson Residence are not concerned with being individuals as members of society, but individuals as students.

The writer is laboring under the misapprehension that students and the university community are appendages of society.

What he has failed to realize is that the university maintains a separate existence. His claim that education is a function of society, if it is true, is lamentable. The more satisfactory position would be for society to be a function of the University.

However, when the writer asserts that the real loss of individuality occurs when the student loses his "receptive" attitude, he is treading on dangerous ground. Here his contentions enter the sphere of the reprehensible.

Does he want students soaking up, with tremendous expenditures of time and energy, the meaningless formulae propounded by society? Would he look askance at a university community which attempted to question accepted patterns and to act as leaders in the growth toward the better society?

Perhaps our editorial friend thinks that there is something rather costly quaint about the picture of rows of black-garbed students downing their cakes and ale in the quiet retirement of the dining hall.

Why should not this particular view be relegated to the trash-heap of ill-founded traditions as well as any other? Why should a custom without justification be retained?

We hope our writer friend dies of a surfeit of gowns.

sigmund

The New And The Old

Here is the exterior view of the new addition, which had its official opening on Feb. 1. The contrast in architecture is revealed between the old section and the new, which cost $1.5 million.

colour and contrast architect's approach

One of the most difficult tasks ever confronted by an Architect is to design a building which keeps with the original edifice as is the chapel of Trinity College, or the exact was to depart from the Romanesque style of the main library. This was a task of colour and coherence between the design of the two parts, separate, yet contiguous.

The extent of success of this venture is very readily apparent. The original elements of the library. The retention and merger of the original elements, ported by coloured columns, is indeed a very happy one. Also the Credit Valley marriage of the old and the new.

The loss in amenity to the University in so bulky a building is great, but east and the building to the campus is not out of scale with University College.

An attempt at monumentality for the main entrance was in the eyes of the architect, the continuity of the roof line, creating space in the grandiose entrance, heavy handed and pedestrian, hardly a true expression of our time. Even the two lighting fixtures are required for each desk, but throughout the rest of the elevation most genuinely expressive of our time fronts on Queen's Park.

The library's commodity or convenience at this present time is very evident, granting it only allows for an approximate growth of ten years for its book collection. It exists to satisfy a need and is a service to Toronto University. Its function, layout, flow and expansion is extremely well thought out, each minute detail being given careful consideration. The detailing is of a high calibre, the form fitting wood hand-rails of the stack stairs, the reading room coat racks with their rounded corners all with the exception of the foyer hand railings which are hideous to look upon let alone touch.

Talking to the librarians they are most enthusiastic about their new building and a fine job has been done to facilitate their good services. Most of them have had a hand in the planning, which they have lived and rightfully feel a part of. The library with proper controls welcomes you into the generous spaces of its innermost confines; to function as a complete organism.

The zoning of the different phases of library life from the casual reading to researching is highly commendable. The undergraduate remaining on the perimeter to peruse his assigned reading or contemplate the vista from Queen's Park traffic to power house smoke plumes from the Stewart Wallace Reading Room. One cannot help but feel that this huge room will soon be quite taken up with book stacks; already the one volume issue on these open shelves giving way to chronic lending problems of the old library at the central circulation desk.

The reference room with its transverse stacks gives the proper en loge atmosphere with tables adjacent to books. Here table tops for heavy books, atlas racks and note taking desks have all been designed by the people who use them most, the librarians. Even the book trucks wooden, small and easily managed were made up from the head librarian's specifications.

Below the main floor each stack level has a unique column colour scheme to aid the reader in finding the proper section and the call system for the stack men is by chime rather than buzzer. In the study carrels modern illumination research on areas of vision would indicate that the desk tops with their minimum contrast between page and desk surface is finished rather than "stained". The faculty reading room, present intimate interior could ask why students Wallace Room have to where animation and service rooms along the edge of the building. The full boons to easier management at the same time new.

What's This

David Burnhart, first student of Trinity College, is open. Thus, late in the day, the library wing's own

Double Dedication

After a season in which the tides of war changed often and drastically the big Blues from Varsity have come home with the Yates' Cup.

We offer them our sincere congratulations.

It was rather unfortunate that their victory came on a week-end when larger sports gatherings were on tap to overshadow their effort.

We would recommend that in future they clean up the business earlier in the season so a proper football championship week-end can be arranged.

We take pleasure in dedicating this issue to the team and its officials, and secondly to the great philanthropist, Dr. Sigmund Samuel, whose generosity has made possible the addition to the Library.

It is probably significant that these two events should vie with each other for notice in the undergraduate press.

Believing that each has its place we do not find this double dedication incongruous.

Bookworm's Hideaway

As illustrated here, one excellent feature of the new library's interior is the abundance of bright light, from both the modern fluorescent lighting and the natural daylight from the rear full-length west windows.

—VSP by Ed Hoshkiw

Varsity Holds Autumn Convocation

Dr. Samuel gave thankful acknowledgment to President Sidney Smith, chairman Dr. W. E. Philips, and others for their work in ensuring the place of the students in "Canada's great future". He mentioned that there might be some chance to keep the library open till 11 p.m. so

The ceremonies closed with a special prayer by Principal Ramsey Armitage, Wycliffe College.

Five internationally-known librarians received honorary Doctor of Laws degrees. They are; A. W. Munthe, director of the Ohio University Library, J. N. Myres, Librarian of Oxford University's Bodleian Library, K. De W. Metcalf, Director of Harvard University's Libraries, W. Kaye Lamb, National Librarian of Ottawa, and W. Stewart Wallace, Librarian Emeritus here.

Sarah Denny, pretty second-year Trinity College co-ed is clicked by cameraman as she takes advice from Miss Alice Moulton who has been appointed to take charge of Wallace Room. Miss Moulton has been on Library staff 12 years. —VSP by Ed Hoshkiw Colour treatment throughout the entire building is subtly and tastefully chosen, although its predominant lightness coupled with an over abundance of bronze trim will incur exacting service problems. The problem of noise reduction is well handled through two upper floors finished in rubber tile with acoustic ceiling.

A sepia-toned photograph of a woman in a long, light-colored dress standing in a doorway, looking out. To her left, another person is partially visible, standing near a window. The image is grainy and has a vintage feel.

War Victoria College student deposits a little bed-time reading next morning in new slot. Rule is: When library's open, slot is locked; when slot is locked, library is open. Returners can be nabbed at desk inside. Smiling, Sarah Denny, second year arts student. —VSP by Ed Hoshkiw

David Ba.², I STS

A political cartoon in a simple, sketchy style. On the left, a figure in a graduation cap and gown is seen from the back, with the text 'THE NEW EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM' written on the gown. On the right, a man in a suit and tie, labeled 'GP.' at the bottom, is seated at a desk and looking at the graduate. He holds a document and asks, 'WHAT FLAVOR POLITICAL ECONOMY DID YOU SAY?'. The drawing is signed 'G.F.' in the bottom right corner.

—Cartoon by G. Findlay.

RUGGER BLUES DEFEAT BARBARIANS

Speaking ^{OF} SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

There couldn't have been a better way to finish out this year's football season than the two dramatic battles that graced London and Toronto last Saturday. While the Eskimos were engaged in bursting the bubble of one of the most powerful professional teams ever to represent the East, our own Varsity Blues were slipping by the Mustangs up in Little Memorial Stadium, and each one did it by one lonely point. For the Eks it was the first Grey Cup, something to shout about. But for the Blues, it meant the end of an eighteen-year jinx.

There's a rather amusing story behind the Blues' uphill battle to the league championship. Way back on October 23, a week after they had absorbed a 20-0 shellacking from the Golden Gaels, Bob Masterson bought himself a new hat in Montreal. That was the morning of the game in which the Blues routed the McGill Redmen 43-6, and ever since that day Bob has worn the now shapeless chapeau and the Blues haven't lost a game. With a generous mixture of laughter and seriousness he showed us the hat after the game and commented, "It was the hat that did it, I'll never buy another".

But when you stop to think about it, there's a lot of people behind that Varsity victory. People like Howie Ringham, the Blue trainer who curses the players up and down, but keeps them in good shape at the same time. Or Bob Brock, the student manager, whose aimless wanderings in and out of the dressing room aren't as useless as you think. Then there is the crew of assistant trainers, headed up by Red Stephen and Doug Scott, and a host of others. Quiet, well not too quiet, but likeable guys without whom the team couldn't get along. There's Sid too, the cook who filled them with meals fit for a king.

Then the list gets longer than both your arms, those who followed the Blues even after that bitter game in Kingston, when everybody else had written them off. Our congratulations go to all the people that made this big day possible, and to the captains, Steve Oneschuk and Don Smith, and all the other members of one of the finest teams that ever played in the old blue and white. It must be a great feeling.

Swimmers Second UWO Wins Meet

Well, I guess we cannot be hogs all the time — at least, that is the general conclusion that can be drawn from Western's win over Toronto in the Intercollegiate swimming championships at Queens on Saturday. Western's victory was the big surprise of the meet, although some hint of a good showing had been forecast through the reliable old grape-vine; nevertheless nothing like first place was expected.

In a meet that probably will go down in intercollegiate athletic history as one of the most successful ever held because of the stiff competition and because of the improved standards in diving and synchronized swimming, the women of this campus won themselves an excellent second place standing.

The Blue and White squad took its only first in the 200 yard freestyle event with the quartet of Ada MacPherson, Jenny Borden, Pat Craig and Pat Laird, splashing home ahead of the rival colleges to assure Toronto of its perennial monopoly of this relay event.

More points were added to Toronto's total by Barb Gluck who came second in the individual medley and also in the breast stroke event. Another second was ours when Ada MacPherson, Barb Gluck and Pat Craig combined in the 150 yard medley relay.

Nancy Doubt won a second place standing in the synchronized solo and the synchronized duet of Mary Wingate and Janet Barnes also equalled the solo standing. The showing of the duet was exceptionally pleasing to the Toronto girls as they were approximately only three points behind the McGill duet which had placed in the Dominion Synchronized Championships earlier in the year.

In the diving competitions, Joan Archer placed second, but she was unfortunate enough to slip on some loose matting on her last dive. Who knows, if this had not have happened Joan might have been first because her diving was consistently good at each level.

Western not satisfied with just winning the championship, were the only university to put two new records into the books. The time for the individual Medley is now 54.5 and the breaststroke is 35.1. For those swimming enthusiasts in the crowd, it is interesting to note that the breaststroke record was made using the relatively new dolphin kick.

STATISTICS

	Vars.	West.
First Downs	10	17
Yds. Rushing	165	241
Yds. Passing	68	12
Passes Tried	9	12
Passes Comp.	3	2
Interceptions by	0	2
Av. punt in yds.	42	33
Fumbles	3	3
Penalties in yds.	15	25

Varsity's all star end Fred Smale goes for a big gain after gathering in a Wilson pass in the third quarter, to set up the Blue touchdown. Western's Doug Aitchison moves in to assist on the tackle, while Blue captain Don Smith is in the background. —VSP by Dave Wong.

Oneschuk Sparks Blues To Win

(Continued from Page 1)

The only statistical edge held by the Blues was in passing, as they threw 9 forwards, completing 3, while the Mustangs threw a dozen, completing 2. In rushing the Westerns led the Blues, but most of their yardage was made up coming out of their own end as the Blue kicking of Steve Oneschuk sent them back time after time. In the first quarter the Mustangs came out of their own end only as far as their own 47-yard line.

The most effective Mustang on the field was Ted Roman, playing nearly 60 minutes, kicking well for the Westerns and making up the strongest part of their front wall.

BLUE BITS: Some 200 fans came down to Western to root for "their" team. There wasn't much excitement after the game, the general feeling seeming to have been well put by one disappointed fellow who muttered, "You'd think they won championships every year." . . . One-eyed Benny smiled, for the first time, after the Blues won, saying "I know it all the time, which is why I am presently being engaged in the pursuit of happiness and surly debtors. I figure these Western Horsies who talk so much about a "Jinx" got nothing else to say for their team, so it is being a lead-pipe pinch.

Which reminds me, does anybody have a lead-pipe, as there are some fellows who are being a little slow about paying up, and maybe I am needing some persuasion." . . . Bob Masterson's hat, seems to be the Blues' good-luck charm. Right now the hopes are that it wears for about fifty years, but the Blues will still need great football teams to keep winning Yates Cups. . . . About fifteen men leave the team this year, giving Bob a major rebuilding job . . . Queen's and Western are still both talking about having the best teams in the league,—it seems the Blues haven't time to discuss the matter . . .

Varsity Ruggerites Now in Final

While the Eskimos were causing their big upset at Varsity Stadium Saturday, Varsity's Rugger Blues were doing a spot of giant-killing on their own account just down the road, Playing Toronto Barbarians II, the "strong men" of the Toronto League, in a Carling Cup semi-final, they staved off the powerful attacks to chalk up a victory by 11 points to six.

The win puts quite a few "firsts" in Blues' record-books — among other things, it was the first time for years that they've managed to beat the team, this year's League champions and last year's Cup-winners, who had lost only one game in the last two seasons. It also puts Blues into the finals for the first time, although they came out on top in last year's League play.

Blues started off on the right foot with a surprise try by Duns-muir in the first minute of the game. Breaking away with Kelly and Baines in a forward rush straight from the starting kick-off, he scooped up the ball from five yards out and went over to score through a bewildered defence. The convert attempt, made a few yards from the touch-line, grazed the upright on the wrong side.

From then until the halftime whistle, it was Barbarians almost all the way, as they piled on the pressure to snatch back the three points. With a definite edge in the scrums, the visitors time and again drove the ball down to the Blues' five, only to have it run back by a speedy defensive three-line. Well on in the half, the equalizer came with a penalty kick by Drynan from 35 yards out, and the teams changed ends with the score still 3-3.

After ten minutes of mid-field play in the second half, the fresher home team took over most of the forward play. Key men in the attack were Harpur and Ham among the forwards, whose safe catches in the lineouts kept the ball under the Blues' control most of the time. Lepper, Blues' standoff, also kept the Barbarians worried with his acrobatic catches of scrum-half Campbell's high spot-passes.

Following-up on the ball paid off for Blues when a long kick ahead by Trillia put the ball into the visitors' end-zone, to be touched down by Baines after Lepper had knocked it out of a defender's grip. Fayle added the two convert points, and then scored another three from an offside penalty kick.

The Barbarian three-line and fullback, who had always been a strong offensive threat, broke through with eight minutes to go, with Arthur scoring after a high short kick went over the heads of the Blue defenders. Bottled-up behind their own 25-yard line from then on, Blues managed to hold out grimly, keeping the Barbarians down for once with six points to their own eleven points. With the O.A.C. team winning their semi-final game against Toronto Nomads, the Cup-final will be an all-college affair for the first time since the league was founded eight years ago. The final tussle, which has all the makings of a real thriller, will be played at Millen Stadium (Danforth and Broadview) this Saturday at 1:30 p.m., and has more than a chance of getting television and newsreel coverage.

Jinx Busted

First Quarter
1—Varsity—field goal	(Oneschuk)
Second Quarter
2—Western—touchdown	(Girvin)
3—Western—convert (Fracas)
Third Quarter
4—Varsity—touchdown	(Oneschuk)
5—Varsity—convert	(Oneschuk)
6—Western—single (Fracas)
7—Western—single (Fracas)
Fourth Quarter
No scoring.

"Human Mind Triangle" Says Dr. Coleman at Vic

"The human mind is a triangle — on the base are the emotions, on one side are the impressions, represented by the senses, on the third side is the intellect. Now the intellect is as thin as the skin of a large onion and, therefore, a mere intellectual faith does not permeate the very heart of the mind."

This is how Dr. Coleman described faith to a group of students at the Victoria College Chapel last night.

"Faith is not the last resort of a feeble mind, but it is the first resort of all minds, because we all live by many assumptions," said Dr. Coleman.

Again Dr. Coleman said "faith is not trust in some proposition, nor in some future event, but in a being, because beings have power. This being is Jesus Christ". "Faith is a relationship between persons, between us and God as revealed in Jesus Christ."

"Just as Christ took the initiative in healing the blind man, he takes the initiative now and gives faith to our blindness."

"The opposite to faith is not reason, but self-centeredness and intellectual pride."

"Quite often people come to the Christian faith as a last resort, but to me," said Dr. Coleman, "this is wisdom, because when we

Druggists Win Move Into Final

Pharmacy A's advanced into the final round of the Division II box lacrosse championships last Thursday, posting a hard-won 6-5 victory over Forestry in the Hart House gym.

The two squads were deadlocked at 4-4 after regulation time, and played two periods of overtime to decide the team that will meet the School of Law in the final.

Doug Fatum tallied four goals for the Druggists to lead them to the win, while Williams and Smart scored one each. Bill Naylor and Taylor notched two each for the Woodsmen, and Crombie added another to account for the Forestry total.

Pharmacy will now meet the Legal Beagles on Tuesday at 7:00 in the first game of the best two-out-of-three final series.

Large Audience of Two See Queen's Win Women's Debates at Carr Hall

Queen's University won the Women's Intercollegiate Debates held at Carr Hall on Saturday before an audience of two persons. The University of Toronto and McMaster tied for second place in the three-team competition.

The judges, all from Toronto, adjudged Connie Cotnan and Elaine Weedmark the best debaters. The topic for all three debates, two in the morning and one in the afternoon, was "Resolved that a Federation of the World is an Idle Dream". Each team debated twice, arguing both sides of the topic.

Nancy Donnell and Marg Riches, chosen in the trials two weeks ago, represented Toronto. Anne Tusch and Maria Puz spoke for McMaster.

The debaters scheduled to come from MacDonald Hall at the Ontario Agricultural College, did not make an appearance, requiring a last-minute change in plans.

The UTDU gave the visitors a dinner and took them to the Applecart, now showing in Hart House theatre, in the evening.

Slides Portray Benedictine Art

"The Very Reverend Damasius Winzen, Prior of the Benedictine Monastery of Mount Saviour in New York, will give an illustrated talk on "Advent in Early Benedictine Art", tonight at 8:30 in the Carr Hall Auditorium of St. Michael's College.

There will be slides taken from a collection started by a brother monk, the Rev. Frowin Calender. They were taken in libraries all over Europe, and have now grown to several thousand slides of early Medieval miniatures. Some have been chosen to illustrate the coming of Christ.

Most of the slides to be shown are miniatures which originated in the early Carolingian epoch in Benedictine monasteries.

BEST STORY PRIZE

The Varsity will be offering a prize to the reporter who writes the "best" Story of the Week, starting with last Monday's edition. The story will be stapled to a large and gaudy plaque for all the world to read.

This custom is once again revived to urge on the intrepid Varsity reporters. Members of the Masthead are excluded — to give the others a chance.

PSYCHIATRY AND RELIGION

DR. DANIEL CAPPON

will lecture on

"THE FAMILY OF GOD AND THE FAMILY OF MAN"

TODAY

at 5.00 p.m.

in Room 8, University College

(Note change of room) "

UNIVERSITY CHRISTMAS CARDS

— ON SALE —

U.C. (near Rotunda) - - - - November 29—December 17

Vic. Rotunda - - - - - December 6—December 10

MILD
BURLEY
TOBACCO

at its best...

ENJOY Player's "MILD"

Canada's Mildest, Best-Tasting Cigarette

To 1955 Engineering Graduates

Since the first heavier-than-air flight fifty-one years ago, the rapid advance in all branches of science and engineering has continued to find application in the aeroplane.

The problems of supersonic flight . . . the problems of automatic control that must be faster than human reaction . . . these are some of the challenges being met by today's engineer.

The complexities of modern aircraft make aeronautical engineering a composite endeavour utilizing engineers whose basic qualifications lie in one or more of the following fields:

- | | |
|-------------------------|---------------------------|
| AERODYNAMICS | ENGINEERING PHYSICS |
| CHEMICAL ENGINEERING | MATHEMATICS & PHYSICS |
| CIVIL ENGINEERING | MECHANICAL ENGINEERING |
| ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING | METALLURGICAL ENGINEERING |
| ELECTRONICS ENGINEERING | THERMODYNAMICS |

REPRESENTATIVES OF OUR ENGINEERING DIVISION WILL VISIT UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO CAMPUS ON NOVEMBER 29th AND NOVEMBER 30th.

See your Placement Office for appointment.

CANADAIR
— AIRCRAFT MANUFACTURERS —
LIMITED, MONTREAL

ICK STRAPP

When the Western Mustangs, through the score shows a close game, at no time after the first quarter did the Varsity play up to the power of the Mustangs for more than the briefest spurts. Somehow, exploiting Western's fumbles, pushing opportunities for points, the Blues managed to tie it up, retaining their chance at first place in the league.

A Golden Gale

A football team gets breaks in two ways: it either makes them for itself or it has them handed to it on a silver platter. Was a combination of both that gave Coach Frank Radzick his best British Day present in years last Saturday when the Golden Gales whipped Varsity 20-0.

James Was Ill

McGill's persistent Redmen bobbed up for the third time from the intercollegiate league's flooded cellar in a desperate attempt to stay alive and in competition. Varsity's determined Blues, fresh from a 20-0 humiliation by Queens, turned thumbs down by a vote of 43-6 and pushed McGill right back under.

Blue, Redmen

Spring, and overconfident, Varsity's Blues took to the field against the McGill Redmen, the punching bags of intercollegiate football this season, and nearly were victims of the upset of the year. Varsity thoughts must have been entirely on the important game with Western next Saturday, because the Blues paid slight attention to the game with McGill. Toronto won the game 36-12, but not until they had come from behind a 12-0 McGill lead.

Jinxed Again

For sale, cheap—one twelve-point lead for use in football games: good only up until half-time, apply the Western Mustangs. London. For the second time in two games the Varsity team gave up a two-touchdown handicap in the first half. Last week it was to the McGill Redmen, and the Blues were able to march back with ease to win; this time it was the Western Mustangs getting the donation, and on their home field, and no one marches over Western at home. Still, playing their best of the year, Varsity Blues came back to tie it up 12-12, and fell, just one slip in the mud, short of winning.

Photo Finish

Varsity's football Blues continued their weekly giveaway show in Varsity Stadium last Saturday, spotting the Golden Gales of Queens University a 9-0 lead going into the last quarter of play. Then, to prove they weren't really that generous, and to save themselves from Yates Cup elimination by those sensational Tricolours, the Blues pulled away in the final nine minutes, winning 11-9 in the photo finish of the season. The victory, scored on a Queens club supposedly helpless because of the sickness of stars Ron Stewart and Al Kocman, moved the Blues into a three-way tie for first place, forced a playoff between Queens and Western, and gave 26,000 fans a look at the best inter-collegiate football of the year.

Surprise

The Toronto Varsity Blues, proving themselves to be the better second-half team for the fourth straight time, scored two tight quarter singles on the fine kicking of halfback Steve Oneschuk, to nip the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds 5-3 on Saturday afternoon.

The Yates Cup, emblematic of the Senior Intercollegiate Football Championship, won by the University of Toronto this fall for the nineteenth time since it was first competed for in 1898. The Blues last won the coveted trophy in the season of 1951.

Won Six, Lost Two, Tied Two

Toronto, September 25—Varsity 29 - Balm Beach 12
Sarnia, October 2—Varsity 18 - Sarnia 29
Toronto, October 9—Varsity 9 - Western 20
Kingston, October 16—Varsity 0 - Queens 9
Montreal, October 23—Varsity 43 - McGill 6
Toronto, October 30—Varsity 36 - McGill 12
London, November 6—Varsity 12 - Western 12
Toronto, November 13—Varsity 9 - Queens 9
Vancouver, November 20—Varsity 5 - UBC 3
London, November 27—Varsity 9 - Western 8

STEVE ONESCHUK

DON SMITH

ROSS WOODS

BILL SEAMISH

BOB FINNNEY

DON JOHNSTON

BOB KLIMOFF

WALT RADZICK

JOHN WISMER

GERRY LANSKY

FRANK PALERMO

stopped in to take the onrushing ball and ran unyield before the Westerns could even try for the precious possession. Two plays later, after Harry Wilson had eaten the ball twice, the gun went out and the Yates came home.

In the dressing room after the game, Elch Bethune kept saying, "Klimoff won it for us, on that kick, but he was only partly right. Because Jimmie had a job to do with it. It was a 24-yard end run by Jimmie that set up Steve Oneschuk's touchdown move, and another 20-yard run, also around end, that brought the Blues upfield and out on danger in the third period when the Mustangs stood a single point point.

The biggest factor in the Varsity victory was the play along the line, the same line that Western had handled with ease in the first game and a half between the two clubs—but this time line was not being handled at all, let alone with ease. The top Western aces, supposedly irresistible forces, were dented pettily by a charging Varsity wingline. Led Roman, Mustang kicker, had to rush his boots, barely getting most away, finally being nailed on a bad snap in the second quarter, as Don Smith and Frank Palermo broke through.

Laz Mackle, who suffered back trouble all season, was hurt again in the first period and had to be carried out, missing the rest of the game and finally leaving the Stadium in an ambulance. This left the Blues with three guards, one of whom, Don Johnson, was playing with a cast on his arm. First string tackle, Jack Strapp, another last-game man, was out with a bad knee. Flying Wing Bill Horton, also was out, and end Bruce Day moved to the wing-back position.

The Mustangs counted on their quick-opening plays, just pushing the Varsity back and back a few yards each time, making their yardage in snail crevices. They had made the system work all year, but they moved the Blue line successfully only once, got a touchdown, but were stopped from then on. So the Mustangs went to the air, but to pass effectively they needed time to find receivers. The Varsity line gave them no such time, and so Gerry's passes went largely to the dirt.

Another just-quarter injury, this one to Phil Muntz, threatened to cut the Varsity offensive strength greatly, but Bob Klimoff and Don Cheeseman ruled in adequately, both performing well on offense and defence.

Two Varsity errors very nearly gave away the game. A fumble by Cheeseman at the Varsity 29 was recovered by ballhawk Don ballinger, setting the stage for a wide field-goal attempt by Gino Fracas, which brought the Westerns just two points behind the Blues. Later in the third quarter Harry Wilson, whose running and play-calling were far better than his throwing, passed into the arms of Neil Desborough at the Varsity 38. Two plays brought the ball to the 17-yard line and Fracas kicked wide on another field goal attempt, cutting the margin to a single point.

Then, with less than three minutes to play, and the Mustangs marching from their own 45-yard line right to the Varsity 29, Ralph Simmons, Mustang fullback, ran the end, was tripped, lateralised wildly to Gelly, but Frank Palermo got to it first, and the threat was stilled.

The Western touchdown was the only evidence of effectiveness of the Western "Diamond T". John Gavin, taking the ball over centre, faked a handoff to Simmons, sent the Varsity line crowding after the Mustang fullback, then slipped around end and hurried the line for the score. The Fracas toe converted.

(Continued on Page 6)

TABLE STUDENT SUBSIDIES

A Friendly Chat

Canadian Federation of University students meeting Prime Minister St. Laurent to discuss federal aid in a scholarship-bursary plan are, left to right, To ny Enriquez, Bill Angus, Doug Burns, Peter Martin, Yves Pilon and Aubrey Golden.

Men of Jeanneret Deluged by Taylor Unprovoked Attack Provokes 50c Fine

The floors were flooded with water and the students were fined 50 cents each. This was the result of a battle between the Jeanneret and Taylor Houses of the new UC men's residence on Remembrance Day, November 11.

"It was a malicious and unprovoked attack", said John Roberts of Jeanneret House. He said the attackers suddenly came through the door between the houses, bringing their water with them, and forced Jeanneret House President Peter Martin into the shower.

The fine was levied by the Residence Caput, a judiciary body of students and Dons. Taylor House President, Jack Lewis said his House would appeal the punishment, since the students felt that only those participating in the fight should pay.

Jeanneret House have agreed to pay the fine, and intend to raise the money in a doughnut sale in UC in the near future.

The fight left water all over the floors of both houses as Jeanneret House retaliated in kind for the indignity suffered by their President.

This was the continuation of a tradition started two years ago on Remembrance Day, when the students of 85 Grenville Street attacked the 5 Wilcocks St. residence with garbage.

Last year the fight was between 5 Wilcocks and 73 St. George, and ended up in a pitched battle outside the latter residence. In this battle no weapons were used, and the students relied on their hands and their feet.

This year is the first occasion which resulted in official punishment.

Churchill Hailed on 80th Birthday

Sir Winston Churchill — the man of the half-century — is today's "man of the hour". The British Minister is 80 years old today.

Congratulations were reported pouring in to historic No. 10 Downing Street from all corners of the earth today as Churchill was preparing to celebrate with his wife and family.

The old war-horse, who led Britain and half the world through the blackest hours of human history will be the object of one of the greatest displays of public affection ever seen in the United Kingdom.

Congratulatory messages were not confined to home, however. Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and President Eisenhower of the U.S., were sending thank-you messages to the man whose indefatigable spirit and peerless oratory inspired so few against so many.

A money gift of $280,000 will be given to Sir Winston today — the donation of some 100,000 contributors throughout the U.K.

Even Russia was represented in the gifts which poured in to the Churchill Birthday club.

From the USSR came a gift of eleven rubles. A ruble is equivalent to about 25-cents in Canadian currency.

Another feature of the Churchill birthday will be two 90-pound cakes which bakers could scarcely squeeze past the threshold of No. 10.

It is seldom in the course of history that the greatness of a man is measured before his death. Sir Winston is one of the few that the public has recognized as a titan among men before the remoteness of death.

During the grim days of the Battle of Britain, Sir Winston was in the eyes of the free world as convincingly a legendary figure as Sir Galahad of old. The index and second finger of his puffy hand held up in the "V" sign and the resolute angle of the inevitable cigar and homburg hat were likely as much responsible for winning the war as all the bombs and guns of the west.

But what has made Sir Winston great is his extraordinary versatility: Unmatchable as an orator; probably the greatest writer of English prose since Shakespeare (although he fails English composition at Harrow); a soldier of rare valour; an artist and painter, bricklayer and businessman.

In this country we recall with heartfelt admiration, said Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and gratitude the peerless leadership he gave to us all in the grim days of the war when the Commonwealth, unaided, was fighting the forces of evil. Sir Winston. In those days was far more than the prime minister of any country; for all of us his voice was the voice of human freedom and he represented the symbol of unconquerable spirit of free men and women against terrible odds."

"Even with victory won, Sir Winston chose not to stand on his already matchless record but to continue to devote unstintingly his great talents of statesmanship to securing the peace."

Eisenhower hailed Sir Winston as "a world statesman, as unconquerable warrior in the cause of freedom, as our proven friend of many valiant years."

5 Million NFCUS Plan Not Justified Now—PM

Ottawa—(Staff Special) — No immediate action on suggestions that the federal government set up a $5,000,000-a-year scholarship and bursary fund for needy Canadian University students will be taken.

This appeared here last night as the outcome of a visit with Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent by a five-member student delegation, during the afternoon.

The Prime Minister told the delegates — two of them University of Toronto students — that the Ottawa government would not overstep what he called, "provincial rights" in the matter.

The two University of Toronto students in the delegation were Peter Martin, vice-president of Ontario Region of the National Federation of University Students, and Bill Angus, president of U of T's Students' Administrative Council.

Others attending the meeting were Douglas Burns, President of NFCUS, Antonio Enriquez past president of the organization and J. Yves Pilon, general secretary of NFCUS.

The plan as presented at the present time, the Prime Minister said, entailed a large expenditure which could not be justified.

The Prime Minister was reported to have made a definite promise to present a separate copy of the brief presented to him by the delegation to every cabinet member.

The Prime Minister was reported by the delegates to have been "receptive" to the idea of a Canada Council.

The question of setting up the Canada Council, to pursue the furtherance of education across the Dominion — a recommendation of the Massey Commission on Arts, Letters and Sciences — was not discussed at yesterday's conflagration.

The PM commented that NFCUS — (the five-man delegation was representing the organization) — in presenting the brief, had taken the proper channels. He said a Canada Council bill will come before the next session of Parliament.

The Prime Minister emphasized that humanities should receive the same support at graduate level as scientific research projects. Although undergraduate education is strictly the department of the provincial governments, the Federal government does and would continue to subsidize post-graduate work, he said.

Big Celebration

Southern Editors Build Sound Board

An organization of a new and progressive type was founded in Washington, D.C. last month, by the name of the Southern Association of College Editors.

This action was taken by a few white Southern college editors who, having considered the concept of promoting such an organization, brought their ideas to the recently held Associated Collegiate Press Conference in Washington. The purpose of the Association is to act as "A sounding board for student thought..." The Association has no racial barriers.

Reduced Rail Fare for Christmas Vacation

The Canadian Passenger Association has announced that reduced fare arrangements have now been authorized for the Christmas and New Year vacation period. Students and members of the teaching staff may obtain at College and Faculty offices forms which will permit them to buy a return ticket at current normal one-way fare and one-half.

These forms carry the dates of the University vacation period, December 17th to January 3rd, and no member of the University staff has any authority to alter these dates.

J. C. EVANS, Registrar.

Elizabeth Arden Salon

Choose a
Casual
Cut...
for Easier
Hair Care

You need a cut that takes a minimum of care, for busy campus life. A cut that adapts itself to daytime or date-time. A cut that's new, to match your new college clothes. In the Elizabeth Arden Salon, a corps of experts is ready to give you the cut you need... the style that's suited individually to you.

Phone first for your appointment—
call TRinity 9111, local 3041—
the Elizabeth Arden Salon.
Simpson's — Sixth Floor

Simpson's

City Traffic Department Explains Stoplight On Hoskin Not Feasible

In a recent letter to Bill Angus, SAC president, Comptroller A. G. Rankin expressed the interest which the City Traffic Department has shown in the traffic conditions on Hoskin Avenue. Representation to this organization has resulted in the present blinking lights and painted crosswalks.

At periodic intervals over the past five years the city has conducted traffic tests on Hoskin Avenue. The latest of these shows that the MAXIMUM delay in pedestrian crossing was only 33 seconds. The number of pedestrians is usually enough to halt motor traffic.

In 1954 to date there have been only two minor accidents involving pedestrians reported on Hoskin Avenue. There are at least 100 mid-block crossings in this city where the volume of pedestrian traffic is heavier and the accident experience much worse, said the report.

Scientific studies have shown that it is unwise to place stop lights at other than intersections, the letter went on to say. At one light three fatal accidents occurred because pedestrians relied on the safety of the light which the motorist failed to obey. In every case the motorist explained that he did not expect a mid-block light and was unaware of its existence.

Mr. Rankin felt sure that the City Traffic Engineer would be willing to meet a small group from the Council to explain why a stop light would not be the answer to this situation. He commended the SAC for setting up a committee to study the problem. In the meantime the Comptroller advises caution on the part of both motorist and pedestrian.

Coming-Up

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 1
1:00 p.m.—FROS — 45 St. George St. Final discussion on culture and history of China.
1:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — SCM room, Hart House. Study group — "Christianity and Race Relationships".
4:00 p.m.—U. of T. CCF — Room 11, UC. David Lewis, CCF National Chairman — "Why I am a Socialist".
4:00 p.m.—VICTORIA COLLEGE FRENCH CLUB — Wymilwood Music Room. M. de Coudekerque-Lambrecht — "La poesie de la Mer et d'Outre-Mer" — Refreshments.

5:00 p.m.—UNDERGRAD PHARMACEUTICAL SOCIETY — Lunch Room. All members—please attend:
5:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — SCM room, Hart House—"How we worship".
7:15 p.m.—HART HOUSE BRIDGE CLUB — Reading Room, Hart House. All welcome — prizes.
7:45 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — 143 Bloor St. W. Worship Service.
8:15 p.m.—U. of T. SPANISH CLUB — Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's — Slides on Spain, Dancing.
THURSDAY, DECEMBER 2
1:00 p.m.—U. of T. CCF — Room 14, Vici Ken Bryden, CCF Ontario Provincial Secretary — "Paying the Bill".

NO TIGHT, FUSSY CURLS HERE!

This hairdo was made with Bobbi
... the special home permanent
for casual hair styles

Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent is made to give you lovelier, softer curls... the kind you need for today's casual hairdos like the "Juliet" pictured above. A Bobbi wave is never tight, never frizzy. Right after using Bobbi your hair will have the beauty, the body, the soft, lovely look of naturally wavy hair. And it will stay that way for weeks and weeks!

Giving yourself a Bobbi is easier, quicker than you ever dreamed possible. You just put your hair in pin curls and apply Bobbi Creme Oil Lotion. A little later, rinse with water, let dry, brush out —and that's all! No clumsy curlers to use. No help needed.

Ask for Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent. If you like to be in fashion — if you can make a simple pin curl — you'll love Bobbi! $1.75

Just pin-curl as usual! Apply Bobbi, rinse 45 minutes later. When hair is dry, simply brush out. No neutralizer needed. No curlers, no re-setting. So easy, you do it yourself!

TODAY

NOVEMBER 30

1:00 p.m.—UC WOMEN'S UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION — Women's Union Theatre: Open Meeting — about the JCR.
1:00 p.m.—LIBERAL CLUB—Room 5, UC. Speaker Paul Hellyer, M.P. for Davenport — Topic: Will 20 years of Liberalism prevent another 1929?
1:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — 143 Bloor St. W. Christianity and the Social Sciences.
4:00 p.m.—BRIGADOON PUBLICITY COMMITTEE — Lit. Office in the JCR—UC. For anyone interested in helping with publicity.
4:00 p.m.—U. of T. SPANISH CLUB—Arbor Room. Coffee and Informal—Conversation.
4:00 p.m.—OLD TESTAMENT CLUB—Common Room — Emmanuel College. "The Use and Abuse of the Old Testament by Eusebius". Speaker—Mr. L. R. O'Neill.
8:00 p.m.—UC RED & WHITE NIGHT — Women's Union Theatre — Square and Round Dancing.

U. of T. FLYING CLUB

There will be a general meeting of the club tonight at 8.00 p.m. in the Reading Room at Hart House. All those who are not members but are interested are particularly welcome.

New Colours

OF YOUR

Kitten
Collection

Full-fashioned Kitten sweaters in cashmere-soft Lambswool...100% Super

Orlon. Hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof... by GLENAYR

s.s. pullover $6.95
l.s. pullover $7.95
cardigan $8.95

At good shops everywhere

C-57

WUS Exchange Plan

Asia, Africa Destination of Some

Are you interested in studying in Germany or Indonesia? If so, you can have the chance. The WUS International Exchange Scholarship Committee has announced that it has started negotiations for arrangements whereby a U.O.T. student could be sent for a year's study to a foreign country, preferably in Asia or Africa.

Although this is the first time this has been tried in the Toronto campus, it has been done successfully in both UBC and Saskatchewan. It has proven a practical way of promoting international understanding among students. An effort has been made toward this in Toronto by having students come from other countries to study here. Last year, we had Raj Mirra of India, while this year there is an Egyptian student, Mohammed Khalifa.

The exchange scholarships are open to both undergrads and grads, although preference will be given to students who are planning to return to Toronto so that the student body may benefit from their experiences abroad. The students will be responsible for their transportation to and from the other country, but their expenses there will be taken care of by the local WUS committee. A knowledge of the native language would be invaluable, but not necessary.

The choice of countries is wide and varied. The list of possibilities includes: Australia, Burma, Ceylon, Germany, Gold Coast, India, Indonesia, Israel, Japan, Malaya, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, Pakistan, South Africa, Uganda, and Turkey. Any people interested in these scholarships are asked to leave their name, address, and the name of the country they would like to study in, at the SAC office. Further announcement of the plan will be made in the next term.

wus needs new secretary must be free to travel

A salary of from $2,400 to $4,900 a year may be applied for now at the SAC office. Preference will be given to those willing to take the job of Executive Secretary of World University Service, in connection with which the original idea of the salary was conceived.

The position, now held by Graeme Ferguson, will be vacated when Mr. Ferguson leaves the organization at the end of the summer.

The Executive Secretary's duties are to work with the local WUS committees in all the universities across Canada and help them with their programs. He enters into the operations of, Treasure Van, fund-raising campaigns, the scholarship plan, summer seminars, and study tours, and he helps in the administration of the Canadian National Office in the various projects of WUS.

It is preferable for applicants to be free to travel, and to have some competence in public speaking, a good knowledge of World University Service, some international experience, and a knowledge of both French and English.

The applicant must be available for at least two years of service to WUS. The exact salary depends on the applicant's experience and marital status, and is in addition to travelling expenses.

Engineers Apathetic In Elections Are Not Worthy Of Self-Government

Engineers do not deserve self-government, debaters at the first Engineering Society decided last Friday.

The motion "Resolved that Engineers 'Do Not Deserve the Right of Self Government'" was upheld by a vote of eleven to ten.

Jim Vassoff, first speaker for the government said that the time has come for Engineers to look at themselves honestly, and judge themselves accordingly. He charged that there was general apathy in the faculty as far as elections were concerned. He said that the overall vote at last year's elections was less than twenty-five percent, and more than half of the positions on the executive were filled by acclamation. He felt Engineering students were responsible for the freshmen's vandalism.

"We have had self government, and the functions of the Engineering Society are social, athletic and cultural," said Walt Suboch, IV SPS, first speaker for the opposition. He felt that students, who were accepted by Industry are able to govern themselves.

"Graduates who are accepted by Industry do not go into responsible positions at first," said Thomas Virany, IV SPS, second speaker for the government. Their acceptance does not prove that they can carry the duties of self government, he added.

He charged that the Engineering Society had concealed its transactions, and did not protect the students' interests, and the human material was not sufficiently good in engineering. He praised the wise decision of the Caput in revoking the powers of the Engineering Society.

The engineers were not responsible for the freshman riot, said Morley Marks, IV SPS, second speaker for the government. He said that the Caput was responsible and passed the buck to the Engineering Society. "Whoever heard of a government without judicial and financial powers," he asked.

He said that the Engineering Society was a social organization, and the executive a bunch of promoters. He felt that self government should be tested in Engineering.

Laval Sociologist Is Gray Lecturer

"For successful day to day, face to face relations, we must recognize our differences . . . be loyal to ourselves and to our culture . . . be sympathetic to the other culture . . . sharing our cultures . . . customs wherever possible," said Prof. J. C. Fallardieu on English-French Canadian relations last night.

Prof. Fallardieu, a sociologist at Laval, was speaking to the Modern History Club at Falconer Hall as the first of several talks around the Toronto Campus as Gray lecturer.

He declared that the French-Canadians could not be assimilated to our particular way of life as the other new national minorities are being smelted in our melting pot of America. "The French have no desire to lose their customs, language and culture."

He called for an atmosphere of sympathy and understanding. Visites Interprovinciales and other organizations were playing a large part in smoothing relations.

He mentioned the evils of a bilingual education. One can be best taught to think in one language. The result is very obvious in places like Montreal where some people speak a mixture of English and French. For English Canada he thought a reading knowledge of French, and more knowledge of French culture would best help English-French relations.

Tea Luxury In Queen's Diet

Kingston CUP — Thirty-five medical students at Queen's rebounded all pleasure in eating last week. They volunteered to take part in a medical research experiment which began last Tuesday morning. Purpose of the experiment is to determine whether there is any relationship between the animal fat content of the blood and the incidence of hardening of the arteries, which is due to an accumulation of fat in the blood vessels.

The students will eat for 18 days a mixture of animal and vegetable fats, supplemented with proteins, vitamins and calories. As a luxury, they may drink as much black tea or coffee as they want with the controlled diet.

Each meal is packed in individual cartons, frozen, and comes in three flavours, chocolate, vanilla and straight. Before it can be eaten, warm water must be added until it reaches liquid form.

Prior to the experiment, each student was weighed and had his blood tested. If anyone loses weight on the diet, his share of food will be increased.

The subjects have accepted their fate quite passively. The preparation is referred to as "sludge" or "muck", or, more affectionately, as "the Doctor's super-soup, vitamin enriched—comes in three detestable flavors; Gemulcent going down and soothing coming up."

Thus far, the boys have spent considerable spare time exchange-ing recipes for better eating and somehow, their thoughts have turned almost exclusively to food!

They have even adopted a yell for the occasion.

"Regurgitate, regurgitate, Bring up everything you ate, V-O-M-I-T Vomiti! Vomiti! Vomiti!"

Happily for the students, the test ends before the Christmas vacation.

VICTORIA COLLEGE GRAD PORTRAITS

will be given out in Alumni Hall on Wednesday, December 1 ONLY from 12 noon until 2 p.m.

Hart House Theatre Auditions

AUDITIONS START TODAY FOR KING LEAR

For an appointment — Phone WA. 3-7193 or call at Theatre Office. ROBERT GILL, Director.

HART HOUSE TODAY

TUESDAY, 30TH NOVEMBER:

8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m.—TICKETS!—SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT COMING UP. St. Mary Magdalene Singers and Christmas Music. This Annual event brings a capacity house. Members—get your free tickets early.

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m.—NEW!—THE UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW. Also prints by Sybil Andrews. (Art Gallery and Print Room).

10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m.—MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel). 1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m.—LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room). Relax with all wax in the hall! "Othello" by Shakespeare—part 6 with Ferrer, Hagen, Robeson.

5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).

7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.—FULL GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Debates Room).

7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m.—ARCHERY (Rifle Range).

7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.—ART CLASS.

NOTE: During inclement weather, the East end of the Debates Room will be available as a Commuters' Lunch Room. No service will be provided.

Anniversary Sale

Men's or Ladies' Made-to-Measure Slacks

- TOP QUALITY ENGLISH WOOLLENS
- LARGE RANGE OF SHADES AND MATERIALS
- EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED

If not satisfied . . . Money Completely Refunded

• Don't Miss Out On This Special Sale •

Reg. $20.00 — $25.00 . . . NOW $14.85

KARN CLEANERS & CLOTHIERS

Students Save 10% On All Dry Cleaning — Cash & Carry 235½ COLLEGE ST. (opp. Dental College) Phone WA. 4-3072

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

TWO TICKETS ONLY ON EACH A.T.L. CARD

Tonight and All This Week at 8.30

BOX OFFICE OPEN — 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

BAHA'I STUDENT GROUP

DON DAINTY:

SCIENCE AND RELIGION

WEDNESDAY — 1.00 p.m.

Falconer Hall, 4 Queen's Park Crescent

"The source of all learning is the knowledge of God, exalted by His glory."—Baha'u'llah.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengeley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
Jo Ratcliffe
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE
NIGHT EDITOR:
REPORTERS:
ASSISTANTS:

Jim Ferguson, Rich Anco, One-eyed Benny
Roger MacQueen, Mae Helen, Pat Moser.

Churchill

Today the grand old man of British statesmanship, Sir Winston Churchill, is celebrating his eightieth birthday.

In a life which has seen the horror of two major wars, the advent and demise of several sovereigns, and the wax and wane of political fortunes, Sir Winston has won the admiration and respect of the world.

Most of us can remember the powerful eloquence of the man who rallied a staggering world to the glories of its "finest hour". Few will forget the indomitable courage of a colossus who seemed to carry the Empire through one of its darkest periods.

Recognized as the titan of his age, no political bias, nor any beggarly attack, can serve to dim the deserved honor of his name.

We trust that this great man will find in the course of his celebration, some moment of freedom from the saccharine sycophantry which must surround him, to reflect on the fullness of his life and to hear once again the voice of compulsion, and to feel the hand of a nation on his shoulder summoning him to his most vital task.

For in this age we shall "nobly save, or meanly lose, the last, best hope of earth".

Blind Destruction

The monthly bulletin of the Toronto Public School Masters' Association in attempting to assess editorially the blame for the recent "riot" on this campus, presents an interesting but highly superficial case for laying the responsibility at the feet of the parents.

"From the church", the editorial reads, "and the school has always come an honest endeavour to educate our youth against this kind of behaviour, but the success of such guidance has depended to a large extent on the ability of the home to do a similar job."

There seems, however, to be very little the parent can do when he finds himself confronted with a teenager who wants his freedom and passionately resists attempts to dictate to him the pattern he should follow.

It appears that the real problem is that we have not yet discovered a method of clearly defining the break between adolescence and maturity.

Many societies have had such systems which have worked advantageously.

However, in our own it is necessary for a young person to "prove" his right to adult status by driving high-powered cars at breakneck speeds, consuming large quantities of alcohol, indulging in sexual experimentation which often proves sterile and fumbling, or by physically destroying his unmanageable environment.

Could we but hit upon a method of making the break with childhood decisive, we should be well along the road to ridding ourselves of those tiresome personalities who destroy what they do not fully understand.

daringly naughty prevalent sins and patient souls

by HUGH McKELLAR

In last Friday's issue of the G.P.J. Monsieur l'Éditeur called our attention to the need for "drastic measures" to bring into satisfactory alignment our "highly unsatisfactory attitudes to the whole problem of relations between the sexes".

Well, bully for the Editor, say I. If we can't do what we like when we like where we like, obviously poor old society is at fault and needs overhauling. But before we rush out to attack our attitudes, let me tell you a little story.

Once upon a time, in a certain hive of bees, there came into power a new queen, who felt that many processes in her hive needed to be brought up to date. For instance, as long as she could remember, the cells of the honeycombs had been made with six sides. Surely, she thought, a better way could be devised; so she decreed that her bees should get out of the rut made by their ancestors and make cells with four sides. When this type of cell displayed an alarming tendency to collapse, the royal engineer called for five-sided cells; when they didn't work, she tried seven-sided ones.

On she went until the bees had forgotten that cells ever were made with six sides; so when one bright young bee proposed that six-sided cells be made, it was hailed as a revolutionary new discovery. When hexagonal cells proved entirely satisfactory, the young bee was heaped with honours for his brand new discovery of—what his ancestors had found through long experience to be the best way of constructing cells.

Such a nice little story as the foregoing obviously deserves to have a moral drawn from it, so here we go.

A long, long time ago people realized that men and women felt a certain way towards one another; and it was found that, so far as our society is concerned, at any rate, a system in which one man married one woman was most productive of happiness for all concerned. This relationship was obviously menaced if one person interfered with another person's spouse, or extended to any outsider favours which could be properly claimed by a spouse. The Seventh Commandment says the same thing in much less involved English; "Thou shalt not commit adultery."

But every so often somebody, like the adventurous queen bee, rises up and declares that the system which has been established as the best by human wisdom and experience—to say nothing of its being enjoined by Divine command—is outmoded, or obsolete, or "vaguely prediluvian", and should therefore be replaced by a better one in the light of modern knowledge.

Modern, indeed! And since when have people not wanted to have their cake and eat it too? Is ours the first generation in which people have longed for the pleasures of marriage without its responsibilities? Surely, if a workable system could have been devised which would allow that, it would have been set up centuries ago; for certainly there has been no lack of experimentation in this field.

Sometimes we tend to think that our age is daringly naughty in contrast to past ages of ordered virtue. I think we underestimate our ancestors if we don't recognize that they were remarkably proficient at all kinds of misbehaviour. Why do the Ten Commandments select for condemnation only ten acts when there are hundreds of sins for them to choose from? Surely it is because those particular sins were most prevalent in the society of that day; and at the very dawn of history we find a surprising refinement in committing these sins.

If we wish to be truly modern, then, we shall not seek to overthrow the laws which the experience of the race has set up. Rather we shall recognize their validity and try to live in accordance with them, which is more than any previous generation has been able to do. And this goes for relations between the sexes.

For I really cannot see why harassed university students who cannot possess their souls in patience until they can afford to shoulder the responsibilities of marriage are any more deserving of sympathy than a man who can't wait to turn off the light until he gets out of the bath-tub. In both cases experience has marked out the safest and best way; and those who depart from it must expect to get into trouble. And rightly so.

our readers write:

The Exercise of Force

It is not good that anyone compel someone else to do something, unless that compulsion is necessary to promote the greater welfare of the greatest number of people. This is intuitively believed by most people, and its truth is supported by the constitutions of all countries which are "free" and some that are not.

If it were pointed out to someone here in Toronto that he was using force on some other people, that certain someone would be promoting the welfare of others and safeguarding his own freedom if he sought for justification of that use of force and (1) let it be known if he found justification or (2) ceased the use of force if no justification could be found.

I point out to whoever is responsible for forcing the University College resident students to wear black gowns to supper and to whoever is responsible for forcing the Victoria College students to wear ties and jackets to lunch and supper, that they are using force on other people. It should be said that the resident students concerned can escape the compulsion if they wish by undergoing some inconvenience (leaving residence), but that even in this case their freedom has been impaired since they are forced to leave residence if they wish to avoid the original use of force.

I am fairly certain that this use of force is unjustified; and that its bad effects far outweigh its good effects. Here are some of its bad effects: (1) It tends to make the resident students feel that this and other similar uses of force require no justification. (2) It costs students money. Undoubtedly many find the cost of a jacket or black gown is a serious financial burden. (3) It tends to promote uniformity among the students, and hampers individuality and self-expression. (4) It tends to promote unhealthy conditions in the dining halls, since the relatively high cost of cleaning jackets (I don't know about gowns) discourages the students from having them cleaned often. A food-spotted jacket with an unpleasant odour is encountered all too frequently in Burwash Hall.

I will now discuss the two arguments I have heard in favour of this use of force: (1) It makes a favourable impression on the public, which is then more inclined to support the university with gifts of money. This is good in itself, but wouldn't it be better if we (a) pointed out to anyone who asks that there is no virtue, functional or otherwise, in jackets and gowns, and (b) win public support through our actions, which should promote public welfare in a better way than providing something pleasant to look at.

It should be said that public welfare in the past has been furthered most by the result of effort by individuals of the kind who could not flourish under such regimentation. If any of those who are doing the forcing are Christians, they will probably agree that Christ was one of those individuals, and he never adorned himself in such a way as to win the approval of the general public.

(2) The second argument has been expressed in many words, some of which are: "We want a high standard in our residence so we can be proud of it" or "It's a good thing to see the boys well dressed." This kind of argument misses the point by simply assuming that the standard is a "high" one, that the students are "well" dressed, and it boils down to the fact the arguer finds the forced dress pleasant to look at. It is good that people see what they enjoy looking at and that esthetical values be appreciated, but I do not think that this is sufficient justification for the bad effects.

If there are any other good effects of this use of force which I have not observed, perhaps they provide justification. But if there are not, and if there is not too much error in the above, it would be rather big of those who are exerting this force to think it over.

K. E. Money, II Vic.

PAGE FIVE

URTP

Jets and Jokes

By JOE AZIZ

Oh I have slipp'd the surly bonds of earth,
And danced the skies on laugh-ter's silver'd wings
Sunward I've climbed
And joined the tumbling mirth of sun-split clouds
And done a hundred things you have not dream'd,
I've wheeled and soared and swung high in the sunlit silence, Hovering there I've chased the shouting wind along
And flung my eager craft through footless halls of air.
Up, up the long delirious burning blue
I've down the windswept heights with easy grace
Where never lark nor even eagle flew
And while with silent lifting mind
I've trod the untrampled sanctity of space,
Put out my hand and touched the face of God.

Only those who have 'slipp'd
the surly bonds of earth' can appreciate the full significance and beauty of this poem, which was written by E.O. John J. McGee of the R.A.F. during the last war.

But there is a fortunate group of students on campus who have shared with the author the ecstasy of the "wild blue". These are the men of the University
Reserve Training Plan (URTP) who spend a few hours one night a week in preparation for the two to three hours a day flying time which they receive in the summer.

The first summer is spent on Harvard, after the flight cadets have completed a six week
Officer Training Course at R.M.C., which acquaints the students with the Air Force. The cadets log approximately sixty hours of flying time in this summer.

The next year is spent on advanced training in Harvard, but the big thrill comes with the transfer to jets in the third summer.

Bob Simpson, IV, Aeronautical

Engineering described his first jet take-off in this way: "its like riding in the front end of a roman candle, when you open the throttle." "It takes about six or seven trips", said Bob, "to solo on the T-33" (the jet now used by the Canadian Air Force as a trainer). After extensive training on the T33's at Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, the students are qualified for more advanced flying.

Since Portage is approximately at the centre of the continent, the student pilots sometimes venture home for the weekend — in the jets of course. One cadet flew home to Hamilton in two hours, a trip that would take two days
by train.

At the station at Portage, one great thrill is to buzz the airfield, making passes at low altitudes, doing 550-580 miles per hour. The authorities allow this, because they don't want the pilots to do their buzzing elsewhere.

Another stunt, this time quite illegal, is tail-chasing; here one jet chases another as fast as, and as close to, the other plane as possible. Actions such as these are frowned on, and good pilots do not indulge in these antics.

Night flying is very popular with pilots because of the smooth air and the clear star-filled sky.

Casualties occur, but in many cases can be and are prevented.

Doug. Hamlin

Campus Profile

Doug Hamlin's main claim to fame is probably that he has maintained a string of I's in his standing while being almost fantastically busy on the University of Toronto campus. Doug started off slowly — for him — in first year, being a member of the VCU assembly and on his class executive at dear old Victoria.
In second year he was managing editor of Acta Victoriana, the Victoria magazine, and represented Vic on the External Affairs Committee.

And so we might go on. This year Doug is vice-chairman of World University Service for Canada and is co-chairman of the Weekend Exchanges on the EAC.
When asked about all these activities, Doug said he found them both "interesting and satisfying".
This certainly must be a function of the time and effort which he spent on them — he likes to do things "thoroughly", because "its the only way to do things."

Last summer Doug spent his time in Europe, first representing the University of Toronto on the WUS study tour to Czechoslovakia, and then went off to Moscow to observe at the communist-dominated International Union of Students conference there. He found time to visit Paris, Geneva,

Kiez, the capital of the Ukraine.
In general he found the students behind the Iron Curtain very friendly and proud of their country. Unfortunately, because of the time of year he "didn't meet as many students as he would have liked to". Also the language difficulties made meeting people difficult.

Doug's ambitions are in the same sphere as his past activities
— he intends to come back next year to do post-grad work in International Relations of History, his present course. Eventually he hopes to get into "government service in the Department of External Affairs.

For the ladies: Doug is 21 years old and comes from Brantford.
His other vital statistics were undisclosed.

Miller By Karsh

This is Peter Miller, III St. Mike's, who toured Europe last summer with Karsh and his wife. It's not every university student who has a portrait of himself done by this master photographer.

Dream Jobs

UN and Flash Bulbs

By CATHE BRESLIN

"Great people are conscious of personality, not taste or class," decided Peter Mitchell Miller after his experiences of the past summer. "The greats have self-assurance, and higher ambitions than those of us who settle halfway up the ladder. They have that special something which we all share; but in us, this is potentiality; in them, it's genius."

Well, Peter Mitchell Miller ought to know. As assistant to Yousuf Karsh, whom he considers "the greatest portrait photographer alive," Miller travelled through Europe on one of the most extraordinary jobs that we can remember hearing of in quite some time.

Much of the work was new to Miller — but he learned fast.
The work consisted of driving
the car for Mr. and Mme Karsh,
setting up and looking after the equipment, and acting as general
technician and Man Friday, while Karsh photographed the leading artistic and military figures of Europe.

Among these personalities were
Tito, Pablo Picasso, the Oliviers,
Benjamin Britten, Augustus John,
Darius Milhaud, Paul Claudel,
Lord Mountbatten, Marshall
Montgomery, and Fernandel. In the words of Miller, "I shook their hands, lit their cigarettes, and drank their Scotch."

In thumb-nail sketches of some of his summer acquaintances,
Miller described Morna Shearer as "very very gay and fresh-looking." She called the sitting just like a picnic — great fun!
Christian Dior was efficient and business-like, temperamental and somewhat suspicious.

Christopher Fry impressed Miller as being especially "natural and friendly. He considers people as persons, not types. Dinner with him was a family affair".
One touch of colour added to Fry's sitting was the tumultuous interruption of Marlene Dietrich, attempting to arrange a seduction of the considerably amused playwright. Apparently one of Miss Dietrich's more successful and profitable hobbies is the conquest of men of fame.

Pablo Casals had "the humble way of living of a generous person". He reminisced with the Canadian photographers over his visit to Ottawa forty years ago, when he was so thoroughly frozen in the horse and buggy coming from the rail-road, that he was unable to play at the concert."

Join, the head of the French Army of NATO, provided the most dramatic and pressurized sitting of them all. He was "surrounded with awe and severity
— very hard to deal with.
His only light moment came when he laughed at me for knocking a lamp over."

Steinbeck "put on a bit of an act" when he was actually being photographed, but otherwise seemed quite charming. Herzog, the mountain climber who lost all his fingers from frostbite, had
the car for Mr. and Mme Karsh,
setting up and looking after the
equipment, and acting as general
technician and Man Friday, while Karsh photographed the leading artistic and military figures of Europe.

Perhaps the most memorable of their subjects was Albert Schweitzer, the fabulous musician-missionary. While Miller was preparing the equipment, Karsh and Schweitzer sat on the doorstep and chatted with the local electrician, who had been called in for the occasion. Later the electrician joined them at dinner, on Schweitzer's invitation; "and this was indicative of the sort of man he is."

"Karsh idolized Schweitzer," Miller said, "but he is much the same himself."

"Karsh could get anything done anywhere in the world, at any time", continued Miller. "He is as much a genius as any of those who sat for him this summer. For him, each picture represents an emotional catharsis and complete exhaustion at the end of it."

"Adaptable, cultured, intelligent, poised, creative, dynamic — these are the words that describe him."

For Peter Mitchell Miller, III St
Mike's, it was quite a summer.
Perhaps he has described it best as "a hell of a lot of hard work—and a tremendous experience."

Karsh and Casals

This must be a record of some kind. Here we have a picture of Yousuf Karsh having his picture taken. For a change Karsh has to say "cheese". With him, carrying a pipe, and the inevitable red im-brella, is Pablo Casals, the almost legendary musician, essayist and lecturer. (Karsh is the man with the cello)

MULOCK CUP FINAL GAME IS TODAY

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

Stopping by Hart House to watch Bob Masterson put his Basketball Blues through their paces in preparation for this Saturday's tilt with Detroit Tech, we came upon voluble Tony Canzano, holding forth in the Boxing Room.

Tony was feeling pretty confident about this year's edition of the Varsity boxing team, who have been working out in Hart House for the past five or six weeks, getting ready to defend the Intercollegiate Senior Boxing crown which the University of Toronto has won for the last two years.

Several of last year's championship boxers will be returning to the scene of the square canvas this winter, and one of the most promising is Trinity's John Whyte, who won the 150-pound title last season. Whyte doubles as a competent quarterback for the Trinity football team, late of Mulock Cup semi-final competition. Champion in the 145-pound class last year, Harold Nightingale will be back this winter and is looking very potent in workouts.

Only third year man with the team is Intermediate footballer John Iglar, who lost out in the heavyweight class in last year's Intercollegiate meet. Another Baby Blue footballer out with the team for his second season, is Walt Schmida, who boxes in the 175-pound division. Pete Young, who was defeated in the 130 pound class last year by the OAC entry, has moved up to the 135-pound division for this winter, and his place will be taken by newcomer Dave Setten.

Only other second year man still with the team is Billy Clarke, who was the runner-up in the 140-pound class in last year's championships. Ex-U.C.C. boxer, Charlie Gonsalves will fight in the 165-pound division for the Blue Boxers this winter, while the 155-pound class is left open by the graduation of Larry Corcoran, Intercollegiate champion of two years ago. St. Mike's John Lawler looks like a good prospect to fill Corcoran's boots.

The Blue team will meet squads from OAC, Queens, and McGill again this year in an effort to retain the Gibson Trophy, the symbol of the Intercollegiate Championship. Working out five nights a week in Hart House, Tony Canzano hopes to mould a winning team by February when the Intercollegiate meet will likely be held. He points out the fact that there is no favoritism involved in the selection of the Varsity team, as the winners of this Saturday's Interfaculty tournament will be allowed to challenge the present members of the team, and if they win they will take the deposed boxer's position. We asked him if he used films to instruct his boxers in the finer points of the art like Kirk Wipper does with his wrestlers, and Tony casually replied, "Well maybe those guys need it, but we've got it all upstairs". Hope you're right Tony.

From the Blue Room . . . Be sure to catch the Mulock Cup final today in the stadium . . . Weigh-ins are being held today for the Interfaculty boxing and wrestling championships from 12:00 until 2:30 and from 4:00 until 6:00.

Soccer Theologs Edge Victoria Davies, Fraser Score For Win

By DAVE WOOD

Friday's challenge match, between the two campus soccer champs, Vic and Emmanuel, began with a bang, both on the field and on the sidelines, where the infamous Emmanuel band held forth. Approximately fifty minutes later, the game ended abruptly with the theologs in front 2-1, as two of the players were carried off to hospital and the teams passively agreed to call a halt.

The mud flowed freely on the front campus, but despite this the first half was mildly exciting. Emmanuel took the lead on a clever goal polished off by Jim Davies. He was set up by a short pass from Sammy Snowden, who played an inspired game.

This was soon followed by Vic's answer as they finally got their passing play going up, the difficult conditions. Norm Sexton broke through on numerous occasions from centre, but had considerable difficulty controlling the ball and his footing; but, this time he managed a beautiful goal. Emmanuel goalie Cunningham successfully thwarted many Scarlet and Gold rushes, and fullbacks Burns and Flinsinger gave him thorough protection.

The Emmanuel squad continued to press, their second goal by Irv Fraser from Kirkwood being almost a repeat of the first. The Vic goalmouth also saw many close calls and was saved only by the steady defence play of goalie Truscott, and by Metcalfe, Gleneak and Hylton who all played a tremendous game.

After an intricate half-time routine by the band the teams again set out energetically; however the field conditions became more foreboding. Less than fifteen minutes had elapsed when the ball bounced out from a scramble at mid-field to the Stranders' goal. Vic's Gerry Hel-leiner, who has played hard and well all season, and Emmanuel's fighting halfback Eric Read, both rushed for the ball, and, unable to slow down or change direction, they hit in full flight. Soccer is a game uninhibited by padding, but of course a case like this is unexpected.

It will be clear that the only thing at stake in this game was the prestige of a win, and most of that prestige was lost in the muck on the front campus. It would probably be better, in the future, to play the game only when conditions permit. It is much easier to sacrifice a bit of prestige than the well-being of the players.

Engineers Are At Full Strength St. Mike's Hit Hard By Injuries

This afternoon, regardless of the weather, St. Mike's and Sr. SPS will once again meet in the final Interfaculty football game for the ageless Mulock Cup. Last year Skule defeated the Double Blue 17-0 to carry the trophy back to the little Red Skule-house for the eleventh time. This year they will be out to do a repeat on last fall's victory, while St. Mike's will be looking for their fourth championship.

The game was postponed from last Thursday in order to keep the field in Varsity Stadium in good shape for the Grey Cup game, but the CRU's famous tarpaulin has now been lifted for the Interfaculty final.

Both teams are evenly matched on the eve of the Interfaculty's biggest athletic attraction. On paper St. Mike's are the better team as they have had only seven points scored against them this season and that was five games ago. Four games without a point being scored on them; that's quite a record, but will the Irish defence stand up against the mighty Skule attack?

The Engineers have scored more points than the Double Blue over the recent season. Their passing and running attack has been going under full steam these past few games due to the wizardry of Don Hart, Ken Selby, and Don Comish, and this could very well spell disaster for the Irish twelve.

St. Mike's are still without Dan Driscoll, Ollie Babirad, and Leo McGuigan, while Ken Selby, who sat out the semi-final game with the Trinity Black Panthers, will be back in action for SPS.

The game will probably never rival the Grey Cup final for color, but the Irish and the Engineers will be giving it a good try today. The cheering section from St. Mike's will be proceeded into the Stadium by their Pea Pickers Philharmonic, while word from the Skule camp is that the famed Lady Godiva Memorial Band will put in an appearance.

Game-time is 1:30 today, and football fans are very likely to get a full afternoon's worth of football. One-eyed Benny, who is a well-known Irish supporter, refuses to make a prediction for the final, but offers this choice prophecy: "The best team will undoubtedly win".

Basketball Blues at Buffalo Play Detroit Tech Saturday

With the Yates Cup matter settled and done for the year interest in Varsity Blue Athletics shifts to Basketball and the next possibility of a championship for Varsity this year. The Blues, largely intact after last season, and strengthened with the addition of stars from former teams, have played just one game this season. In an exhibition match with the Nortown Motors squad, allegedly the city's most powerful hoop outfit, the Blues went down by a trifling two points, showing unexpected power for early season play. Missing from the lineup were George Stulac and Steve Oneschuk, two of last year's top men.

The Varsity team has two matches scheduled for this week, both against American teams. Tonight, in Buffalo, they take on the Buffalo State Teachers and, at home, Saturday night, they play Detroit Tech as the feature of the year's first Athletic Night. The A-Night begins at 7 o'clock with a full programme of swimming, boxing, all in intramural competitions, and the big Basketball game, plus an Intercollegiate Water Polo match, the first of a home and home series with McGill for the College title, in the pool.

The Blues, with George Stulac and Steve Oneschuk coming back and possibly playing to-night, will hardly be at top strength, but they should be much improved by Saturday for their first home game of the season. At this point they look to be the strongest team in years, and should they find a way to compensate for their lack of height, they could beat Western, one team which averages well over six feet throughout their starting lineup. The biggest worry in the Blue lineup at the moment seems to be centre. There are many "possibles" any one of whom may be able to do the job required, but they are all unproven and it will be in these exhibition pre-season matches that they will be tried and the future of the Blues determined. Big Alf Vaichulis could be the tall man the Blues need, but he hasn't yet shown the ability to outstar such as Girvin or some of the other league centres. Another big man is Marv Tile, but his value is mainly as a defensive player, in which department he stars, but he doesn't do as well in leading the attack.

Guards Leo Madden and Pete Potter, whose last season was spent doing nobly for TriBells, are wearing the Blue and White again this year and should be quite outstanding. Potter, probably the fastest man on the team and certainly the one who can jump the highest, teamed with Madden, a deadly set-shot artist, look as though they could be the class of the league this year.

Archers Defeat OAC In Guelph

Hart House archers defeated an Ontario Agricultural College team by a score of 155 to 141 last Thursday in Guelph. Due to the large turnout five ends rather than the usual ten were shot. High score for the evening was made by Vince Horbay, the secretary of the Hart House Archery Club.

A return match will be held in Hart House on the 18th of January. The eighth annual Christmas Tournament will be held on Friday, December the tenth in the COTC Drill Hall, 119 St. George St. at 8:00 p.m. All those interested in Archery are invited to attend.

The sports staff of the Varsity is in need of at least four sportswriters for the winter season. Anyone interested is requested to appear in the office on Wednesday at 1:15 in the basement of the SAC building.

Ottawa Drafts Fracas

In the annual Big Four draft, held last Sunday afternoon, the Ottawa Roughriders exercised the opportunity of first selection by grabbing off the pick of this year's Intercollegiate football stars, Gino Fracas.

Western's all-star halfback, who won the league scoring championship for the second straight time this season, was generally considered to be the choice plump up for the professional draft. However it is rumored that Fracas will attend OCE next fall, and this possibility would seem to rule out his playing for Ottawa.

The Argonauts' first choice was Varsity's Alex Macklin, who was one of seven Blues drafted by the Toronto club. Others were Bob Kimoff, John Sopinka, John Prendergast, Jack Strapp, Baz Mackie, and Bill Horton.

Intercollegiate all-star quarterback Don Getty was the first choice of the Hamilton Tiger-

Cats, who have already snagged the other choice plump in last year's draft, Varsity's Steve Oneschuk. The Golden Gaels' captain Jack Cook was another draft choice by the Hamilton club, along with team-mate Hank Zuzek.

The Montreal Alouettes led off with Ernie Daragh, a halfback with the McMaster Marauders, and made their second choice McGill's high-scoring fullback Lionel Quinn. Bill Stevenson, clever Varsity quarterback, was also chosen by the Montreal club, but Stevenson's football career is as yet undecided.

Other interesting choices were Bob Pinkney, who went to the Ottawa Roughriders in their second ballot, along with Murray Henderson, Western's last quarter flash. The meeting was held in the Royal York Hotel with representatives of the four Eastern professional clubs in attendance.

Rugger Blues In Final Baines Season's Star

For big Andy Baines, the first season with the Varsity Rugger Blues has been quite a season. Elected captain after his first game with them, he helped shape them into one of their best teams ever, and will be leading them out in Varsity Stadium this Saturday in the finals for the Carling Cup, the top Toronto League trophy.

Standing six feet two and weighing 185 pounds, Andy would be an asset to any football team — in fact he did play on the regular line for Lawrence Park Collegiate during his last two high-school years, before he "saw the light" and decided to switch to rugger full-time. He could hardly be called a newcomer to the game, having played on the forward line of the league-topping Toronto Barbarians ever since the Ontario League was founded in 1948. One of the most forceful players in one of the three leagues now functioning in this part of Ontario alone, he was a member of the provincial team that defeated Quebec three years ago, and was one of the "big seven" who won last year's seven-a-side championship for Barbarians.

A torn cartilage in pre-season practice kept him out of the game in his first year at Varsity, when Blues topped the league, but were ousted in the cup semi-finals. With Andy around, things might have been very different, and this time he's counting on the Blues going all the way. The team comes up against the O.A.C. Aggies, who pipped them in the league game by one try, and both college teams will be playing rugger at its best.

Kickoff will be at 1.30, with the Blues' game followed by the Ontario League finals between those Barbarians and Toronto Scottish.

Meds A Down Vic Sr. 27-22 Wallace and Wicks Shine

Two of the best squads in the women's interfaculty basketball league battled to a close 27-22 decision at OCE last night with Meds A coming out on top of Vic Seniors. Both teams started out fast at a fairly even pace with close checking and good shooting. Sally Wallace led Meds in the first quarter scoring 5 points while Judy Wicks tallied 4 for Vic. The quarter ended in a 7-all deadlock.

In the second quarter Wallace and Wicks again hooped 5 and 4 points respectively for their squads. Marg Platts set up most of the Meds plays standing in the bucket. The half ended in a tight 16-15 count with Meds holding the edge.

The third quarter began slowly, but a few quick baskets by Wallace set a faster pace. The line of Kerr, Platts, and Wallace combined most effectively for Meds in this quarter in which Meds held their biggest edge over Vic. Carol Broadhurst checked the Vic squad well and the quarter finished up, 23-19.

In the last quarter, Vic's guards checked terrifically, but their forwards could not find the basket which spelled the difference in the teams. Wallace was high scorer with 19 points for Meds, while Wicks with 8 and Roach with 6 were most effective for Vic.

Torontonensis

Any organizations which have not received space contracts and are interested in this immortal memento, get your contract at the S.A.C. Office immediately.

CORRECTION

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

League 6—If there is a THREE WAY TIE St. Mike's B and Pharmacy will play off on Wed., Dec. 1 at O.C.E. from 8.30 — 9.30. Winner of this game will play Nurses Jr. on Thurs., Dec. 2 at 8.30 — 9.30.
If there is a TWO WAY TIE teams involved will play off Thurs., Dec. 2 at 8.30 — 9.30.
If there is NO TIE league winner will have a bye to the semi-finals.

INTRAMURAL SWIMMING MEET

PRELIMINARIES — Thursday, December 2nd — 7.30 p.m.
FINALS — Saturday, December 4th — 9.30 p.m.
Entries will be received at Intramural Office until Wednesday, December 1 — 5.00 p.m.
BOXERS and WRESTLERS
Entry and weigh-in today, 12.00 — 2.30 and 4.00 — 5.30 p.m.

GAMES TODAY

FOOTBALL — NULOCK CUP FINAL — VARSITY STADIUM—1.30 p.m.
ST. MICHAEL'S vs. S.P.S. — Bush, Tobe, Dolman, Wallace
LACROSSE
PLAYOFFS 1.00—U.C. I vs. Dent. A—Warren, Sukmanowski
7.00—Law vs. Pharm. A—Warren, Ushynuk
VOLLEYBALL
PLAYOFFS 1.00—Med. I Yr vs. Vic. III—Balshin
6.30—Pre-Med I B vs. Dent. A—Kipliniak
7.30—Arch. A vs. Pharm. C—Kipliniak
5.40—Pharm. C vs. Vic. II
6.20—Trin. A vs. Dent. B
7.00—Med. IV vs. Dent. D
12.30—Sr. Med vs. Sr. SPS—Fisher, Reid
1.30—Vic. III vs. SPS IV—Yakimoff, Smith
4.00—Knox vs. Emman—Prendergast, Siegel
BASKETBALL PRACTICES
4.00 U.C. — 5.00 For. — 6.00 Dents — 8.30 Wycliffe

GIVE YOURSELF ROOM TO GROW...
WITH THIS NATION-WIDE COMPANY!

Procter & Gamble

of Canada Limited;

offers you an attractive management career
with one of Canada's largest manufacturers... and
its leading advertiser!

Tide; Camay, Ivory, Joy, Crisco, Cheer, Spic and Span... these are household words across Canada. They are just a few of the many nationally advertised products of the Procter & Gamble Company of Canada, Limited.

P&G is expanding steadily, through increasing demand for its many brands; and through the addition of new products. This constant growth creates new opportunities for aggressive young men—selected from within the organization—to win new advancement and executive responsibility in the Company.

Your Future May Be With P&G

YOU can build a successful career in the management of this nation-wide organization... a career that offers thorough training—financial reward—the opportunity to move ahead on your own ability.

Right now, openings are available for university-trained men who will have degrees in Arts, Commerce, Law, Engineering or Chemistry.

We offer you interesting careers in such important activities as ADVERTISING, SALES MANAGEMENT, BUYING, OFFICE MANAGEMENT and FINANCE.

How to Plan Your Career with P&G

We invite you to see for yourself how Procter & Gamble can open broad avenues of career opportunity to you. You may make arrangements for an immediate interview with a P&G representative, by contacting...

YOUR PLACEMENT OFFICE

INTERVIEWS TO BE HELD

Wednesday and Thursday, December 1st and 2nd

The Procter & Gamble Company of Canada, Limited

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOUND

In Hart House swimming pool, 10 carat gold signed ring. Three initials engraved. Owner may claim by identifying initials and paying for ad. Apply at SAC Office.

WANTED

University grad would like to share apartment with women students or grads already in occupancy in North Toronto or near subway. Days call — ST. 8-5661, local 31. Nights MO. 3131.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

LOST

Friday, November 26 — a pair of men's leather gloves. Contact A. O'Hori OL 5725 — or bring to the SAC Office.

FOR SALE

Tails, excellent condition, suit gentleman, 5' 11", weight 165 lbs. MO. 3693.

BLUE and WHITE

SOCIETY

MEETING — S.A.C. OFFICE

TUESDAY -- 5 p.m.

SWEET CAPS

Always fresh and TRULY MILD!

"Only a fresh cigarette can be truly mild."

Since 1887, Canada's First Cigarette

CORK or PLAIN

What's news at Inco*?

120 miles of Subway!

Here and there in the vicinity of Sudbury, tall headframes rise from the rugged landscape. Deep down, as much as a mile beneath the surface, more than 120 miles of underground railway have been built. On its tracks 146 electric locomotives haul ore from the working areas to the great hoists which lift the ore to the surface.

Most of these locomotives are powered by Edison nickel-iron batteries—which are themselves partly made of nickel—but some 20-ton giants, like the one in the picture, operate by trolley from overhead wires and can haul as much as 130 tons of ore in one train.

120 miles of subway would be a major undertaking anywhere. In the Inco mines, each mile is an example of the planning and engineering necessary when 13 million tons of ore have to be raised to the surface each year.

"The Romance of Nickel", a 72-page book, fully illustrated, will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

* THE INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY

OF CANADA, LIMITED • 25 KING STREET WEST, TORONTO

1 DAY TO APPLY FOR ARTS EXAMINATIONS
(College Registrar's Office)

Ice Skates Xmas Tree And Jazz!

A free skating party will follow this Friday's hockey game in Varsity Arena. The Blue and White Society yesterday announced that "a colossal party is planned."

"Spectators are to bring their skates to the game and change in the arena," said Blue and White representative, Paul Walters. He added that the Blue and White Band would be on hand during the game but records would provide music for the skaters. "As well, the Varsity cheerleaders will be on skates for the party," Walters said.

The Blue and White announced that the skating party was only the first of a series of activities planned for this winter. A spokesman of the Society said that the venture of having a reduced price for students to see Oklahoma had been a great success. Consequently, he said, further arrangements are being made with Royal Alexandra to have a similar reduction for future shows.

Plans for the Blue and White Christmas Tree are practically completed, Walters announced. The Great Hall of Hart House is the place, and the evening of Thursday, December 16, the time, he said. He added that the program would include the Glee Club, Santa Claus, Interfaculty gifts, and Carol singing by all.

One of the other winter activities tentatively planned for this year, said a B & W spokesman, is a Jazz Concert, to be held in Convocation Hall. However, plans for this are not yet crystallized, he added.

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIV — No. 47

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Wednesday, December 1, 1954

WEATHER

Cold. And Snowy
—Rather Miserable

SPS WINS MULOCK CUP

After Him, Boys!

St. Mike's clever halfback, Jude Fusco goes for one of his many jaunts down the sidelines as a Skule player tries in vain to get him and another Skuleman comes in with a determined look on his face. Skule won the game and the Mulock Trophy with a last minute passing play by the score of 6-2. —VSP by Ed Hoshkiv.

Hart and Selby Help Sink St. Mike's Ship

By JOHN VOJTECH

A third down gamble, a fifty yard passing play and a four yard end run into the end zone were the three successive plays in the second last minute of play of the game that retained for Skule possession of the Mulock Cup for another year. Skule on those three plays eclipsed a 2-1 lead that St. Mike's had held late in the game. The final score was 6-2 and the Irish were once again denied by the Skule team from winning the coveted trophy.

Don Hart was faced with an unenviable situation with two minutes to go in the game. St. Mike's were leading 2-1. Skule had possession of the ball on their forty-four yard line, third down, one yard to go for a first down. Should he kick or should he gamble for the one yard that might save Skule from possible defeat? He decided to run with the ball and ran it to his fifty-one yard line.

Then he tossed a long pass to Mike Grosse who had managed to get in behind the Irish defenders. The ball floated over his left shoulder and into his awaiting arms. He was stopped however, on the four yard line.

From there, Selby took the ball on an end run and crossed the line for the major. It caused considerable glee for the Skule fans but broke the hearts of the Irish fans.

With but a minute left to play, the Irish fought gamely to get back that touchdown. Jude Fusco, one of the hardest driving backfielders in the Intramural league, received the kick-off and drove up to the twenty-six yard line before he was stopped by Skule tacklers.

A roughing penalty against Skule brought the Irish to the fifty yard line. Tom Ahearn brought the ball down to the Skule fifty. The final play of the game came up and the Irish couldn't get a man in the clear and it was all over but for the shouting.

It was a close game all the way with the Irish taking a one point lead late in the second quarter when Dick Kosterski booted a single.

Again early in the third quarter Kosterski added another single when he booted the ball into the Skule end zone and the Irish trapped the Skule player there.

But at the eleven-minute mark of the third quarter the first point in four games was scored against the Irish as Moulton.

(Continued on page 7)

External Affairs Meeting Tonight Hear Angus on NFCUS Ottawa Visit

President of the Students' Administrative Council Bill Angus, will tell about his Parliament Hill meeting with Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent when he speaks tonight at a meeting of the External Affairs Commission. The SAC President was one of five Canadian university students who visited with the Prime Minister in Ottawa, Monday.

The general meeting of the EAC will be held at 7 p.m., tonight in Falconer Hall, a spokesman for the organization said.

"Everyone," the spokesman emphasised "is welcome — not just EAC members."

As well as a discussion over the conference with the Prime Minister, the results of the recent Treasure Van sale will be revealed. Plans for SHARE are up for discussion on the agenda, it was stated, and the Carabin weekend exchange will also be considered.

The visit of President Angus and the other four members of the NFCUS committee with the Prime Minister earlier this week came as surveys were being taken by universities across the country in efforts to fathom the reasons students leave college.

Such a survey, conducted by Toronto students in conjunction with their Psychology Department showed that the earning power of male students dropped by something like 10% last summer.

The absolute average taken from a representative one per cent of the students at the University of Toronto showed that women earn from $200 to $300 while the men earned $600 — about half of the bare minimum, $1200 per year, which it was said is required to keep a student in school.

During the survey, it was found that 2% have dropped out for financial reasons. This would suggest that as many as 200 of the 10,000 students at the University of Toronto may have dropped out this year.

(Continued on Page 2)

liberal says

No Big Depression Ahead

Speaking to the University of Toronto Liberal Club yesterday at 1:00 p.m. in room 5 U.C., Paul Hellyer, Member of Parliament for Davenport, predicted that in our time, we will never experience another depression such as we experienced in the 1930's. "The Liberal party, and liberalism, have brought this about," he said.

Hellyer analysed in detail the differences between the national economy of Canada and the world, now, as compared to 1929. The topic of his address was "Will 20 years of Liberalism prevent another 1929?"

"In 1929 we had cut-throat business with no rules or regulations, nationally or internationally, to prevent dog-eat-dog competition. At that time there were no transfer payments such as children's allowances, veteran's pensions disability allowance, and old-age pensions to maintain purchasing power" he said. "Today, unemployment insurance breaks the impact of unemployment and keeps purchasing power up when it is most needed," he said.

But, he pointed out, the monetary system in Canada had been changed much more than many other countries. "Instead of the gold-backed money system of 1929, we now have a variable money supply managed by the Central Bank of Canada, to help balance out an expanding economy," he said.

"Most important," he added, is the National Housing Act, 1954, wherein thousands more credit-worthy borrowers were created. Now, people on regular salary may borrow thousands of dollars for new homes. "Since then," he continued, "40 per cent of all money for new housing has been supplied by chartered banks, and housing production is up more than ever dreamed. — under private enterprise."

"The National Housing Act," he said, is acting as a national stabilizer, since all these homes must, also be equipped. "There are 200,000 people employed in Canada today," he said, "who owe that employment to the NHA, 1954."

Lewis on Socialism Today

The national chairman of the CCF will speak today at the University.

David Lewis' subject will be "The Socialist Position Today" when he addresses a meeting in University College at 4 p.m., in room 11.

In addition to his post as CCF National Chairman, David Lewis is a prominent labour lawyer. He was for many years National Secretary of the party on a full-time basis.

A Rhodes Scholar, he graduated in law from McGill University and from Oxford. He was co-author with Professor Frank Scott of McGill, of the CCF text, "Make This Your Canada".

CCF club officials explained that today's meeting is one of a series of four which are bringing four of the party's top spokesmen to the campus this year.

Hon. T. C. Douglas, Premier of Saskatchewan, spoke to students here earlier this fall. CCF

National leader M. J. Coldwell and provincial leader of Ontario Donald C. MacDonald will speak here later in the term.

CCF Chairman LEWIS

Reduced Rail Fare for Christmas Vacation

The Canadian Passenger Association has announced that reduced fare arrangements have now been authorized for the Christmas and New Year vacation period. Students and members of the teaching staff may obtain at College and Faculty offices, forms which will permit them to buy a return ticket at current normal one-way fare and one-half. These forms carry the dates of the University vacation period, December 17th to January 3rd, and no member of the University staff has any authority to alter these dates.

J. C. EVANS, Registrar.

An ANTHROPOLOGIST LOOKS at RELIGION

Group of Two Lectures by

MRS. R. C. PIRIE,

Dept. of Anthropology

Today's Lecture

"RELIGION IN PRIMITIVE SOCIETIES"

To-day — 4 p.m. — Room 19, University College

Sponsored by a group of Religious Liberals

Ottawa Report:

He Didn't Say No

By AUBREY GOLDEN

Ottawa.—How would you like to drop in to see "the most important man in Canada" and have a chat for 45 minutes or so? It's an interesting experience.

Even when Prime Minister St. Laurent tells you that he can't see a scholarships and bursaries program in the near future, you sit before him with a ping in your heart and respect in your eyes.

Sitting in his private office (after getting there with a surprising minimum of delay and red tape) one sees the news photos and posters come to life. This is the man who holds the beating heart of Canada in his hand.

You look out the window and see the rolling lawns of "Parliament Hill", the main building a stone's throw away from the East Block in which you are sitting. The green of the grass is lighter now than the green of your leather covered chair.

The whole office is decorated in different shades of green, from the lighter curtains, to the still lighter carpet and darker swivel chair in which the "P.M.", (as he is called on the "hill"), sits. Large windows illuminate a photograph of Mackenzie King on the wall and smaller, autographed ones of Harry S. Truman and Mme. St. Laurent.

Mysterious doors lead to an outer hallway, and at the rear of the room, the only door not covered with dark green felt leads to a private room where Canada's Cabinet meets and makes world history.

After his cordial greeting at the door of his office, and the formality of introductions are over he motions to the somewhat apprehensive NFCUS visitors to be seated and in his hands appear a copy of the brief which was so laboriously prepared.

"I read your brief with great interest." The words make the stillness even more quiet and there is a faint shuffling in the chairs as seven students make themselves comfortable.

"But . . ." — and the discussion begins in earnest. The students, led by NFCUS National President Doug Burns, who arrived in Ottawa short hours earlier, want something from the government on behalf of 10,000 would-be students.

The Prime Minister's reasons why he didn't think the federal government could implement such a scheme are met by counter reasons, proposals and animated discussion.

Behind his desk and still listening with a great deal of interest, the Leader of Her Majesty's Government, smiles. Not an election-time smile but one of recollection. He speaks of his days at Laval University briefly and the refreshing pause for reminiscences is lost in the conclusion of the discussion.

He mentions his plan to present each of his colleagues with a copy of the brief and a relieved smile appears on the faces of all.

There is a brief pause as a CUP photographer (the only one of many commercial photographers to be allowed in by the P.M.) enters and snaps a hurried picture.

He shakes hands with each of his visitors, thanks them for coming to see him and the door closes behind. As the reporters begin to pop flashbulbs and ask questions, one looks behind at the now closed door.

A thought enters your mind. "He's the kind of guy I'd trust my country with and by gosh, he didn't say no."

External Affairs

(Continued from page 1)

Bursary aid is now available to approximately 15 — 20% of students from existing sources. Dominion-provincial schemes, such as the one in effect now does help 3,000 students outside Quebec.

Canada lags far behind other countries in this matter, according to the NFCUS group. Over 70% of British students receive assistance while only 14% of Canadian students benefit from government programs.

Recently, Dr. Cyril James of McGill University estimated that in 1952, only 3% of those between 15 and 24 were attending university in Canada as compared to 15% in the U.S.A.

The U.S. President's Commission of higher education estimated that as much as 32% of the population could profit by college education.

The campaign is also aimed at getting more students from rural areas to the universities, claiming that, "The university population is drawn in very disproportionate numbers from business and professional homes."

They hope that the creation of the Canada Council will facilitate the administration of the plan which would give $5,500,000 per year to needy students. The specific campaign objective is 10,000 scholarships and bursaries.

Following their visit to the Prime Minister, the students now plan to discuss their objectives with provincial governments across the country.

"AFTER FIVE" FASHIONS IN Blouses and Skirts

You can just do wonders in making up glamorous "date-look" outfits at very little cost. And they're exclusively your own!

THE BLOUSES are especially smart in fine wool jersey and velveteen — off the shoulder styles or scoop necklines with cap or $\frac{3}{4}$ push up sleeves. White, Black, Blue, Cocoa, Red, Tangerine and Mint Green.

THE SKIRTS are in black taffeta with wide billowing flares, unpressed pleats, or all over shirring—really new and different. The velveteens in similar styles in Black, Red or Winter Green. Sizes 10 to 18.

$5.98 to $10.98

DON'T MISS THE SALE OF ORIENT HOSE

Save 60c on Every 2 Pair Purchase

Regularly $1.35 — 2 pairs $2.10

Regularly $1.50 — 2 pairs $2.40

Regularly $1.95 — 2 pairs $3.30

SALE ENDS SATURDAY

OPEN HOUSE
FRIDAY
EVENINGS
All Stores Except
Yonge & Adelaide

Evangeline
IN HAMILTON
King & John Streets

- 112 Yonge at Adelaide
- 786 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pape
- 82A Bloor at Bay

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL FOUNDATION TONIGHT

Wednesday, Dec. 1st,

8.30 p.m.

Debate . . .

HILLEL - Y.M.H.A.

Subject:

"Resolved that Religious Observance is Essential for the Preservation of Jewish Community Life".

at the Y.M.H.A.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

WANTED
University grad would like to share apartment with women students or grads already in occupancy in North Toronto or near subway. Days call ST. 8-5661, local 31. Nights MO. 3131.

FOUND
In the Arbor Room — one slide rule. Finder may claim by identifying same and paying for this ad. Apply S.A.C. Office.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

FOR SALE
Tails, excellent condition, suit gentleman, 5' 11", weight 165 lbs. MO. 3969.

FOR RENT
Large, front bedroom, 2 male students, breakfast optional, GL. 8745 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. only.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

LOST
Friday, November 26, a pair of men's leather gloves. Contact A. Ozogil, OL. 6725 or bring to the S.A.C. Office.

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3525.

UC HAS GARGOYLES, JCR, RESIDENCE

UC's Grinning With Gothic And Gargoyles

Interested in gargoyles? If you are, University College is just grinning with them.

Gargoyle — "Grotesque spout, usually with human or animal mouth, head, or body, projecting from gutter of (esp. Gothic) building, etc." Anyway, that's what it says here in the dictionary.

Well, we wouldn't call the front hall of University College a gutter, not exactly, but we suppose it's close enough. If you have a queer feeling of someone looking over your shoulder, relax, it's only the four-headed girls with the sixteen pigtails.

But where the gargoyle-carver really got carried away is in the West Hall. We counted them once, was it 171, or 271? Anyway, pink elephants have nothing on the things that man must have been seeing in his sleep. Frogs seem to have been his special mania. They play banjos, flutes, and just sit around in portrandial posture. His name was William McCormick in the nineties.

That was just after the fire, fortunately or otherwise.

The dragon is the most famous (or infamous) of all these efforts at decoration. Somebody was even crazy enough to steal it one dark night when the evening students were looking the other way.

Over the doors of the lecture rooms, and other rooms you will find a space, and it's a good thing to look off into, considering; a queer bird chewing away on a bunch of wooden grapes, and its about time it went on a new diet; a dog looking as if it had just swallowed a wooden bird eating some wooden grapes, etc.

There is also an abundance of musical frofs playing flutes and trumpets, melancholy choir boys, ugly monks, and uglier carvings of nothing at all in particular.

Going out, four miserable lions are holding a ribbon in their mouths. Undernourished, that's all. The last thing that strikes you as you leave in a hurry are the four pairs of vultures making love over the heads of an equal number of male hags. Anyway, Mr. McCormick had fun.

Gargoyle Issue

A special pink-coloured edition of the University College Gargoyle is due to be distributed in the college today.

The special edition salutes the 100th anniversary of the UC Literary Society. Much of the paper is concerned with historical data about the early life of the lit. Also featured is some feature

Plush Residence

—VSP by Ed. Hoshkiw

What To Do With The JCR?

UC Women Offer To Sweep

"What to do with the JCR" was the point of contention at the UC Women's Undergraduate Association meeting held yesterday at the Women's Union.

A motion was passed to the effect that WUA would support or help in any way to fix up the JCR. It is not definite how much money the Association will give to this cause until it is decided how much the proposed University College Union will cost.

This University College Union, a dream of the future, is being seriously considered but it is not to be expected in the very near future.

The last combined meeting of the WUA and the UC Lit set up a committee to consider the problem of what to do with the JCR (and if you've been in that haven lately, you must realize that something must be done about the JCR) but it hasn't met yet.

JCR History

Dining Hall to Co-ed Brawl

The Junior Common Room has a long and furious history in its evolution from a dining hall to its present function of a coeducational lounge. Its past has been enlivened by squabbles regarding cleanliness; about who should and who should not be admitted, and by constant degradation by Engineers, Vic men and everyone not in UC. In fact, off-the-record comments, slightly unfavourable, have been heard coming from loyal UC students.

The JCR started out as the dining hall for the men's residence in the Cloisters way back at the inauguration of University College. However, overcrowding of the residence forced this to be removed and the faculty took over the JCR as its dining hall. The quaint structure behind the JCR, now a classroom, was the kitchen.

In those days students of nature studying in the woods surrounding the University were called to meals by the pealing of the bell atop the building. This bell is now used to announce Parliamentary debates. When Hart House was constructed the JCR was turned into a classroom. The next change occurred when the University officials moved to Simcoe Hall, about 25 years ago, and the JCR became the Junior Common Room (for men only). Afterwards, co-education took over, and it now entertains both the sexes.

The Room is somewhat like a chapel in interior design, dignified and noble, with a massive stone fireplace, flanked by an out-of-place modern radio, and a battered speaker's chair. Dozens of chairs and tables crowd the room normally and the sunlight entering the windows emphasizes the smoke trails usually winding about the room. Choruses of laughter and chatter burst about the room to the beat of the piano playing anything from "Dixie" to Chopin.

And so the JCR, affectionately called, a proving ground for street cleaners and the "ne plus" in swinish living, continues to be a landmark in University College's history.

Reprinted from the UC centenary issue of The Varsity.

Posh, Plush UC Residence Opens Officially Saturday

By MIKE PENGELEY

Official opening of the $2,000,000 Sir Daniel Wilson Memorial Residence of University College — the most posh and polished men's residence in the country — will take place Saturday at special opening ceremonies.

Dr. Bruce Macdonald, the oldest living graduate of the college will open the new residence at 3:30 p.m., following an academic procession from the UC west arch to the dining hall.

Finishing touches on the 183 single-room residence were completed a week or so ago although students have been living there since the beginning of the fall term.

Dr. Macdonald, who will open the building was a member of the University first Board of Governors and was chairman of the board from 1932 until 1945. Members of the college alumni have been invited to attend the ceremony.

Principal F. A. C. Jeanneret regarded the opening of the residence as a dream come true after a wait of nearly 50 years.

Equipped with air-conditioning and television sets, the new residence is a far cry from men's living quarters at Oxford and Cambridge in post World War I days. Old-time die-hards at the tradition-steeped universities were known to have fought bitterly against inroads of electricity and hot-water facilities; such modern conveniences were likely, it was argued, to produce a generation of softies.

Pride of the residence is its $300,000 dining hall with five towering 12-foot-high windows and pine panelling in the Georgian style. Donor of the 100-foot long dining hall seating 220 students will be announced at the ceremonies on Saturday.

The residence, facing St. George street and set in a horseshoe quadrangular shape behind University College, is made up of six separate houses, each with a tutor's suite, a lounge and recreation room.

The six houses are named after heads of the college from the time of its establishment in 1853 until the present except from 1944-45 when University President Smith was principal.

The six college heads were: John McCaul, James Loudon, Maurice Hutton, Malcolm Wallace, W. R. Taylor and F. C. A. Jeanneret.

Guests will be invited in inspect the building on Saturday after the opening ceremonies, which will begin with an academic procession from the west arch of University College across the court to the residence dining hall.

An important part of the day's events for U.C. graduates will be the buffet luncheon in East Hall, to be attended by 300, and the dedication of the College's West Hall at 2:30 p.m. Restoration of the Hall's fine woodwork, 350 new chairs, a lectern and table were made possible by donations by alumni and friends of the College, and women graduates have given a grand piano in memory of the late Principal W. R. Taylor.

EAC MEETS
FALCONER HALL
TONIGHT -- 7 p.m.

PIANIST WANTED!

to accompany, and solo with, the
HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB
Contact Undergrad Activities Office, Hart House.

Hart House Theatre's Thirty-Second All-Varsity Production

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW'S

THE APPLE CART

Directed by Robert Gill

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH
A.T.L. CARD

Tonight and All This Week at 8.30

BOX OFFICE OPEN — 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

HART HOUSE TODAY

WEDNESDAY, 1ST DECEMBER:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS! — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT COMING UP. St. Mary Magdalene Singers and Christmas Music. This Annual event brings a capacity house. Members—get your free tickets early.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — NEW! — THE UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW. Also prints by Sybil Andrews (Art Gallery and Print Room).
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).
- 4.00 p.m. - 8.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY—Open to women of the University of Toronto.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — 5 O'CLOCK CONCERT. Paul Helmer—pianist (Music Room). Women, with or without member escort are welcome.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Beautiful mediaeval art works. Open to men and women (through Reading Room).
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Debates Ante Room) 2nd bases.
- 5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).
- 7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. Prizes
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner.....Ian G. Scott

EDITOR

MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor

Assistant News Editor

Feature Editor

Makeup Editor

A.M. & D. Editor

Sports Editor

Acting Assistant Sports Editor

Acting Women's Sports Editor

Photo Editor

CUP Editor

Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN

ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengeley

Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth

Mary Alice Hunter

Irene Meyers

Wendy Michener

John Wilson

John Vojtech

Flo Middleton

Ed. Hoshkiw

Chuck Williams

Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE

ASSISTANTS

REPORTERS

Bob Brown

Wendy Anco, Rich Michener

Sybil Strachan, Joanne Housely,

Aubrey Golden, Blythe Brown

Dark Glasses

There seems to be considerable well-founded attention being directed toward an examination of the present system of education at this university.

At the very heart of the discussion must lie the question of the nature and purpose of this or any other university.

There would seem to be two broad divisions of the responsibility of the university. Surely the university must be prepared to describe this and earlier societies, and to lay the foundation for the society of tomorrow.

All too frequently distortions of either of these duties result in gross travesties.

In fulfilling its function of describing society, the university must not feel obligated to perpetuate this society's formulae. Description of social order prevalent now and in an earlier age must be dispassionate, and chiefly productive of adequate ground for assessing what must be the constituent parts of the perfection to which we strive.

Nor is it necessary to carry into our framework of tomorrow a sentimental attachment to what we possess so vaingloriously today. To blind ourselves to our own deficiencies in the fabrication of the best society, would be to cling with unbecoming tenacity to the mote and beams which so darkly affect our vision.

There is another danger to be prevented.

In our stolid Canadian fashion we tend to be chary of controversialists. Members of the academic staff refrain from expressing themselves on many vital issues, and eschew not only the name but also the mantle of the radicals. In desperate attempts to retain and fortify that cloak of academic anonymity they love so dearly, they remain silent and hoard to themselves the benefit of their wisdom and intellect.

Yet, perhaps in some Utopian sphere we may see less darkly the fruition of this day's labour.

Gambit

While the efforts of the representatives of NFCUS and our own SAC who called on the Prime Minister this week in connection with the proposed program of aid to university students, seems to have met with little success this may not be the case.

The Prime Minister was reported to be "receptive", whatever that means. In any case the conference was not necessarily aimed at producing promises of co-operation from the Prime Minister since these are manifestly impossible.

As a preliminary to a full scale campaign the talks were a satisfactory curtain-raiser. Valuable attention was drawn to the need and the opening gambit was successfully carried through.

While some may feel that in the interminable bureaucracy of government the project of the NFCUS takes but a small part, there is considerable cause for optimism in the attitude of the Prime Minister and those who are charged with the responsibility of carrying out the NFCUS project.

In Reality

By RAY ATKIN

In Tuesday's Varsity Mr. McKellar put forward the postulate 'If we wish to be truly modern, then, we shall not seek to overthrow the laws which experience has set up. Rather we shall recognize their validity and try to live in accordance with them...' However, laws of experience have been built up over a long period of time by those who have walked the troublesome paths of life. How can we be 'truly modern' without dropping down to earth in search of reality?

It seems to be a tendency for the youth of this continent to float on a cloud of idealism which rarely so much as scrapes against the mountain of reality. We live from day to day, speeding through life with emotion at the wheel ready to crash us into our own mentally constructed chasms of destruction.

How many of us build up our petty problems to a gigantic size? The passing comment is turned into an immense personal insult to be avenged as soon as possible lest our pride be crushed. The foolish jealousies of the male-female relationship become matters which can only be solved in terms of life and death. Indignation is wrought up inside by human idiosyncracies without questioning the inherent causes, or estimating the resultant harm, if any, or even considering whose concern it really is. In short, we need to overhaul our value system once in a while, in order to have it coincide with reality. We can reminisce and laugh but we never foresee these humorous situations.

The world of sports often exemplifies life. How we idealize the word sportsmanship! Is it necessary to help a fellow up off the field, to pick up his hockey stick and to congratulate him on a good game, to be a good sport? No. The idea of 'that's not cricket' is fine and to be desired, but not essential. In reality sportsmanship only involves playing the game according to the rules. The same applies in real life. Many claim that it is not fair for the chain stores to push out the 'little man'. Initially small stores were on a competitively equal basis but someone had a vision of organization and expansion and chain stores resulted. It is a pity that some suffer because others are more ambitious and sometimes lucky, but it is reality and within the rules of the game.

We all remember how Queens lost on the last play of the game. It would be fair to say that all of us felt sympathy well up inside. Yet how many realized that that is life? We cannot afford to make one mistake or we may lose in the end. Western was the better team because it did not make such an error.

Idealism has taken a stranglehold on our everyday life and what better example is there than that emotional necessity, women, which we have idealized till now they are better off than mediaeval queens?

In conclusion, I heartily agree with your postulate Mr. McKellar, but would add that until we break our idealistic shell and get out into the world it will not work.

our readers write:

Step Down Elder Brother

The Editor,
The Varsity.

To whom it may concern:

Let it be known that I, Pogo, have nothing to do with the creatures collectively known as Ogo. By no stretch of the imagination is (are) he (it, they) a relation of mine.

Ogo leaps to conclusions with less than the scientific objectivity he advocates. Nowhere in my letter did I say or imply some of the things imputed to me. At no time did I SAY I was not a Christian. Nor is the fact that I criticize a so-called Christian organization any reason for making this assumption.

The Lord's Day Alliance is a minority. But it is able to wield a power far out of proportion to its size. As such I say it is FORCING its views on society. I do not deny the right of the Alliance to observe Sunday in its own way. The basis of democracy is the right of the individual to do as he pleases so long as he interferes with no one else's rights. The Lord's Day Alliance, however, is not content with observing their type of Sunday themselves: they demand, in effect, that every one else do so too.

Now are those who do not care to observe the Sabbath in this manner being undemocratic in thwarting the desire of the alliance? I think not. These wishes, by their very nature, violate democratic ideals. Toronto has seen many attempts to get Sunday entertainment. Witness the number of times that EVEN THE RIGHT TO VOTE has been denied. By pressure politics these puritanical bigots seek to evade the issue. Is this because they are afraid to test the tottering foundations of their support?

Ogo has made a correct assumption from an improper basis. I am not a Christian in the accepted sense of the word. But I can accept much that is good in its teachings. If I have given the impression of laughing at anyone's religious beliefs I must apologize. To be facetious, some of my best friends believe in God. However, Christianity (particularly some of the evangelical sects) by its own doctrine, is an intolerant faith. It demands the conversion of the "heathen".

Religions have every right to present their respective cases for the consideration of those who WISH to listen. But, if one wishes to be a "religious illiterate" that is his business. As Mr. Hartline says, one cannot and need not be interested in everything. Christianity's convert-making zeal cannot be allowed to go unchecked. The very democracy which protects it must also protect others — even from attempts at "salvation".

Yours truly,
Pogo

Conclusion

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Since I was given the privilege and pleasure of contributing to your Monday's issue in "An Architect's Approach to the New Wing" of the main library, I think it only reasonable that I be allowed to conclude the article and sign my name to it.

The last paragraph was written as follows:

"This new library addition neither expresses the brave wakeness of the future, nor the black sufferance of the past, only the gray of the present. Here in the sanctity of a University building complex was a magnificent opportunity to forward Canadian architecture, but we stood stalemated, not freely, but fearfully and apologetically clinging to a past now meaningless to us and a present which is at best only of a temporary permanence. Reading our society is, only a very small facet of the problem of building. Architecture must challenge and transcend the inertia of the present and turn the wheel of progress towards a better future."

R. Myles Allison,
V Architect.

Ed.'s note: The Varsity apologizes to Mr. Allison for the compositor's deletion of his last paragraph.

Clean, Healthy Fun

Jas.

—Cartoon by Jas. Weller.

PAGE FIVE

ROYAL ALEXANDRA

The Dark Is Light Enough

Christopher Fry's winter comedy, The Dark Is Light Enough, brought us to an interesting observation. His earlier plays, especially Venus Observed and The Lady's not for Burning, were pervaded by a spirit of infectious gaiety, a jolly, light-hearted facing of the facts and exuberance. And in all this, Fry's poetry played a leading part, lending to everyday events a gilding of improbability, pulling the cork of inhibition to let mirth come bubbling out. But in The Dark Is Light Enough the poetry no longer has the task of expressing youth and light and gaiety. Its humour is more precarious and more poignant, for it is so closely pressed against the tragedy of reality, which it lightens but cannot quite conceal. In this play, indeed, Fry does not seem to want his poetry to conceal reality, but to sharpen the point of our impressions. And here he fails. Laugh his verse does, and charmingly, but weep it cannot, nor can it confront us with the deeper meaning of the facts of existence. It laughs a little uncomfortably over their surface. It is, we think, an interesting point that none of Fry's memorable lines is serious. He expresses the comic, the striking, the ludicrous, with consummate skill, but none of his witty sparkles possesses the unwavering strength to illumine the dark places of life, to bring men to a realization of the true nature of their problems, to express universality.

None the less, The Dark Is Light Enough is a play to savour and enjoy; it is sufficiently lacking in grandeur to assume with ease the familiarity of old friendship. And it expresses a very special kind of courage, more happy than heroic, more common-sensical than philosophic, in the person of the vague, maddening, adorable, indomitable Countess Rosmarin. Katherine Cornell's performance as this great lady grew in warmth and expressiveness as the play progressed; her dignity was complete from the beginning. Tyrone Power as the enfant terrible, Richard Gettner, was most convincing when drunk. In his other scenes his harshness and woodenness, while expressive of the surface features of Gettner's remarkably unpleasant character, left no room for the subtleties and conflicts underneath. Besides, Mr. Power's style almost more than any other single factor, fell into the peculiar mood which possessed the whole production, a mood more suited to the spirit of the time when the story actually took place than to that of the play.

Nancy S. Donnell.

HH CONCERTS

At five o'clock today in the music room of Hart House another young artist will give a recital. Paul Helmer, pianist, will play the Bach-Busoni Chaconne in D minor, from unaccompanied violin sonata; Schubert's Impromptu Op. 90, three pieces of Debussy, including La Cathédrale engloutie and will close with Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 11.

As has become customary, women-folk will be welcomed, although not with open arms, be they alone or otherwise.

Once again the Great Hall of Hart House will resound with alleluias, hosannas and sweet dulcimer as the St. Mary Magdalene Choir sings in a jubant ring at the two hundred and sixtieth Sunday Evening Concert this Sunday.

It is a 13-year old tradition to open the University Christmas Season not with Rudolph the Red-Nose-Mouse or Two Back Teeth but with Bach's To us is born a little Child as sung by the choir conducted by Dr. Healey Willan.

The first half of the program consists of sixteenth and seventeenth century music. The program includes Jesu Dulcis Memoria by Tomas Luis de Vittoria, Mass for Four Voices by William Byrd, Cantate Domino by Hans Leo Hassler.

Three compositions by the conductor are included in the second part of the concert, Sun of Righteousness, A Christmas Lullaby, and The Twelve Days of Christmas, arranged by Healey Willan, a German Carol from the seventeenth century, Come Rock The Cradle is also included.

Tickets can be obtained at the Hall Porter's desk.

Paul Helmer

where, when and how

Ethics of Pinning

From the pages of the Mount Holyoke News comes this enlightening dissertation on that well-known object, the fraternity pin.

1. A pin, commonly sur-named 'fraternity' is a minute piece of jewellery, square, round, oblong, star-shaped, diamond-shaped, shield-shaped, oval or rectangular. It is made of any combination of gold, silver, platinum (not often), enamel, adobe, iron, or non-descript; and embossed with rubies, sapphires, diamonds, pearls, and/or ridged. It must bear secret symbols on the front, and even more highly secret symbols on the back. It is a hallowed object.

True Love?

2. It is donated, forced upon, or relinquished by a fraternity man who is a victim of: affection, infatuation or an intricate plot.
3. It is a symbol of true love.
4. This true love may last: forever, a year, a month, two weeks or till the donor is drafted.
5. The recipient may be: sung to, kissed, sent flowers, stared at or given a free beer by the rest of the fraternity.

Location Charted

6. A pin, being a sacred symbol of one thing or another to all concerned, is worn over the heart. To the consternation of the physiology department, controversy, still rages as to the location of this organ. Current settlement allocates it to the region anywhere between the shoulder and the waist on the left side of the wearer. Indiscreet locations are occasionally due to 7 a.m. lack of vision and poor aim by the female involved.

7. The recipient's dorm mates receive the big news by: cooing, cheering, singing, feeding or ignoring her. Her roommate customarily loses a night's sleep while gathering details.
8. This custom of pinning seems to be spreading.
9. Jewellers and pin manufacturers laud the tradition and speed up production of order blanks.
10. National fraternity leaders turn gray and tear their thinning fringes of hair as fraternity men ignore the fine old fraternity law that only brothers must possess the secret and sacred badges, and sweetheart pins are for the ladies. The victims themselves reject the ordinance as expensive fiddle-faddle.
11. Parents greet the glad tidings with: smiles, frowns, family diamonds, shot-guns, relieved sighs or hope chests.
12. An engagement ring often follows.

art, music and drama

CRITIC IN THE DARK

The Last Time I Saw Paris

The Last Time I Saw Paris, at Loew's, is an up-dated version of F. Scott Fitzgerald's story of the crazy era after the first world war, Babylon Revisited. Still set in Paris, the plot has been altered to cover the years just after the recent conflagration. As a result, the story, though still poignant, loses some of its motivation, since the essential atmosphere of the original story was the rowdiness of the twenties. Van Johnson plays an American soldier who marries an American expatriate (Elizabeth Taylor) whom he meets at a V-E Day party in Paris. The two spend the next seven years in an endless pursuit of pleasure, motivated, one is given to understand, by the hardships the war has inflicted on their young souls; at this point, the far greater appropriateness of the original post-World War I setting is most evident. The tragic ending is rather obscured by a lengthy and sentimental epilogue, but despite this affliction, and the lack of the requisite atmosphere, The Last Time I Saw Paris is an absorbing romance, chiefly by reason of a fine performance from Van Johnson and an excellent job of direction by Richard Brook.

Brook is the film-maker who undertook to expose the Hollywood system of production in a novel a few years back, called The Producer. His novel, though mediocre in many ways was full of indications that as a film-maker, he knew and loved his trade, and The Last Time I Saw Paris is further evidence that, given a worthwhile script and a certain amount of freedom, he may yet produce a great film. The Last Time I Saw Paris, though so conventionally romantic it should really be classified as a woman's picture, is full of the minute touches that indicate the work of a very perceptive film-maker.

Brook should perhaps in addition be credited with drawing from Van Johnson one of the best performances it has been my pleasure to see in a long time. Like Frank Sinatra, the other bobby-sox idol of the war years, Johnson's most recent performances have been way above average. He has developed a gift for characterization matched only by actors like Brando and Montgomery Clift.

By the way, The Last Time I Saw Paris has been given a beautiful visual production. I never cease to wonder at MGM's art department, whose high standards have rarely sunk throughout the years, regardless of the varied quality of the scripts they have had to work on. Perhaps Elizabeth Taylor should also be classified in the art department, since regardless of the sort of performance she gives she is one of its greatest assets. Her performance in this film is quite satisfactory, however, which is probably another instance of Mr. Brook's magic touch.

—Germaine Clinton

HOCKEY BLUES BEGIN HUNT FOR CUP

Speaking ^{1/2} OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

With yesterday afternoon's Mulock Cup final the 1954 football season, one of the most colorful in years, has come to an end. That's one major sport down, and two to go, hockey and basketball. And for those of you whose athletic interest does not fold up and die at the end of November, the Hockey Blues open the Intercollegiate season against the University of Montreal Carabins this Friday Night right here in Varsity Arena.

The Carabins, who were edged out of the possession of the Queen's Cup last winter by Laval, are one of the most colorful teams that will visit the Blues this year. Packed with temperamental Frenchmen, and their high-scoring first line of Claude Dagenais, Bernie Quesnel, and Claude Hotte, who between them scored over one hundred points last season, the Carabins will be adequate opposition to test the calibre of the Blues.

In addition to a hard and fast hockey game, fans will be treated to the cheerleaders, on skates, between periods; as well as the Blue and White band. On top of all this, there will be a skating party after the game for all the fans in attendance.

There isn't any other place in Toronto where you can get such a variety of entertainment for such a low price. The admission to the game and afterwards can be affected by your ATL card, while other spectators will only have to pay the small sum of fifty cents.

With the hockey team that Jack Kennedy has produced, we can look forward to a furious season of action, beginning Friday night, so take a look in Varsity Arena about 8:00.

If You Aren't Satisfied . . .

. . . with just one night of athletic entertainment, then Hart House is opening its doors wide on Saturday in the first Athletic Night of the winter season. The highlight of the evening's festivities will be an exhibition basketball game between the University of Toronto and Detroit Tech, which will be preceded by an Intermediate game at 7:00.

Meanwhile, in the pool, the Interfaculty swimming championships will be held, and after that an Intercollegiate Water Polo game between the Blues and the McGill Redmen, the first of a two-game series for the Intercollegiate championship. The Interfaculty finals of the boxing and wrestling tournaments will be held in the upper gym, while the foil competition of the University championships will be held in the Fencing Room.

And after all the excitement's over, there will be dancing in the main gym. For this all you have to pay is fifty cents. That's a full weekend of sports spectating for just fifty cents a person, if you're inclined that way, and if your wallet is getting thin like ours always does around Christmas.

From the Blue Room . . . Dave Patrick, six-foot four sports editor of the Western Gazette, must have a red face about now. In last Friday's issue he predicted a Mustang win by two touchdowns. The least he could do, to save his reputation if nothing else, is hide his infallible prognostications behind a pseudonym instead of adding his byline to the attempt. Shades of One-eyed Benny . . . The Football Blues will be received by the fathers of the city today at 11:30 in the City Hall, after their glorious victory on Saturday . . . Red Stephen, captain and centre of the Hockey Blues, was the only University of Toronto player on the Intercollegiate all-star hockey team last winter, picked by the four coaches.

Engineers Scrape By Meds 4-3

By SHELDON TAERK

In as fast and free-wheeling an exhibition of hockey as has been seen this year, the Senior Skulemen sextet eked out a 4-3 win over a tough crew from Medicine, yesterday.

The Engineers, who led 2-1 at the end of the first period, saw the score knotted at 2-2 when Jim Wilkinson blasted a drive behind SPS goaltender Geiger at 1:06 of the second frame.

The men from Skule, their armour dented, went ahead seconds later via a two-goal flurry. Sandy Davison put the Blue and Gold in front 3-2 as he took a neat pass from Harrison at 5:16. Two minutes later Bryan scored from Smith to make it 4-2 for the Engineers.

This seemed to take the starch out of the Medics' attack until 13:04, when Davison put them back into the game after potting a rebound shot by Marshall, who had carried the play into the SPS zone.

The Doctors put on a belated last minute spurt and yanked netminder Woody Fisher in favor of an extra attacker, but amid hard-hitting and scrambling, Geiger kicked out six successive shots to preserve the SPS one goal margin, and the game ended at 4-3.

Early goals for the Engineers were tallied by Hubicki from Smith, and Smith from Bryan and Hubicki. Meds first goal was scored by Welsh. Smith was the individual star of the game for the Skule Six as he countered for three points on a goal and two assists.

Although none of the goals were scored while either team was short-handed, penalties were at a premium, SPS getting three in the first period and three in the second while the Meds team got a total of five penalties.

In other action Victoria III lost to SPS IV by the score of 8-4. The game will be protested because Dave Reid and Clare Fisher of the Blues played for the Skule team as SPS didn't produce enough men. Reid got one goal while Fisher netted four, enough to beat Vic themselves. SPS didn't have anyone in goal throughout the game and didn't have any substitutes.

Montreal Carabins are Visitors In Intercollegiate Opener Friday

Fresh from a campaign of four exhibition games in which they tied two and lost two, the Varsity Hockey Blues will be opening the Intercollegiate hockey season this Friday night against the University of Montreal Carabins up in Varsity Arena. Monsieur Therrien and his bunch of fanatic Frenchmen will be taking the ice for their second league encounter, having dumped the Rouge et Or of Laval 4-3 last Saturday night in Verdun.

The Blues have been strengthened by the return to practices of defenceman Lou Appleby, who has been out for the last three weeks with a bad ankle. Dave Reid, big centre on the first line, is suffering from pulled ligaments in his knee, but may be in shape for the game on Friday. Only other casualty so far for the Blues, is Sam Ashton, who fractured two bones in his forearm in a game against the East York Lyndhursts.

The Carabins, who started off the season last year with a bang, racking up six wins in a row, faded in the stretch and won only one contest as Laval moved into the league lead and the championship. Biggest threat for the Montreal club is their high-scoring first line of Bernie Quesnel, Claude Dagenais, and Claude Hotte. The Carabin trio accounted for 38 of the 72 goals scored by the University of Montreal last season.

The Carabins opened their Inter-collegiate season last Saturday night in Verdun with a 4-3 win over Laval University, last year's Queen's Cup champions. Quesnel notched two goals for the Montrealeers in that game, and Hotte and Dagenais one each, in a furious second period highlighted by ten penalties.

The Blues, who stood third in the league standings, last year, boast one victory over the Carabins, that in their last league game, an 8-7 triumph in Varsity Arena. The Carabins had previously trounced the Blues 14-3 in Montreal. If the pre-season games are any criterion, the Blues' biggest scoring punch will be found in diminutive right-winger Paul Knox, a product of St. Michael's College. Knox has scored five of the Blue goals so far this season, which includes a hat trick in the game against East York.

H Dave Reid stays in shape, the powerful first line will be flying come Friday night, with Clare Fisher and Knox skating on the wings. But the strength of the Blue team this season will be determined by the fact that there will be at least three strong lines, something they lacked last winter.

Appleby's return adds strength to the defence corps, along with John Tolton, Bill Moreau and Dave Jackson. Captain Red Stephen may stay back on the blue line until the return of Sam Ashton sometime in January. Hugh Currie has improved in goal with every game, and the appearance of R. J. Gray as a substitute netminder makes things look pretty good all around.

There should be some very fast hockey entertainment in store for the fans who venture forth Friday night. The game will likely be about 8:00 in Varsity Arena.

PAUL KNOX

First Athletic Night Saturday Features Basketball Blues

The first Athletic Night of the year takes place this Saturday in Hart House, starting at seven o'clock. Featured in the Night are Basketball games, two of them, and Intramural competitions in Wrestling, Swimming, and Boxing with an added attraction in the beginning of Intercollegiate Winter competitions, as the Varsity Water Polo Blues take on the McGill Redmen in the first of a home and home game series for the College title.

The Basketball Blues are the main event of the night, as they meet the Detroit Tech. Club in their first home game of the season. The Blues, who last night played the Buffalo State Teachers are a much improved team over last year, and, if they solve the height problem, could well be one of the Intercollegiate's top outfits. Last year, playing erratically, they managed to come within a game of tying Western Mustangs and the Purple Raiders of Assumption College for the Championship. This time, reinforced by such former greats as Leo Madden and Pete Potter, Don Fawcett and rising Intermediates Al Vaichulis, Vic Kurdyak, Rube Richman, to go with established stars like George Stulac, the Blues are a strong club. The game with Detroit will be a good preview for the American tour they begin next week, and is their last home game before that event.

The preliminary game on the basketball court features the Blues baby brothers, the Varsity Juniors, against hitherto undetermined opposition. Coached by John McManus, the man who aided Bob Masterson in driving his Football Blues to the Yates Cup last week, the Baby Blues have a record of being a strong team, last year having supplied the Seniors with much needed strength late in the season.

The Water Poloists are defending College champs, having defeated this same McGill opposition last year by rather a one-sided score. Rebuilding is claimed to have bettered the McGill standard and graduation has weakened the Blues so this could be anybody's game and championship, everything being slightly vague until the game is played.

Wrestling competitions will give Kirk Whipper and spectators a look at the potential Inter-collegiate team for this year, likewise in boxing and swimming.

DAVE REID

Fencing Duels Saturday Night

The Foil competition of the University championships in fencing will be held in Hart House Saturday night in conjunction with the first Athletic Night.

Fifty-seven fencers have turned out to the afternoon practices under the direction of Julius Alpar, who coached the Hungarian Fencing team in the Olympics of 1948.

From these duels, and others to follow, the University Fencing team will be selected for competition with several American Universities during the winter months.

UC In Lacrosse Final Trounce Dentists 12-5

UC Redmen stretched their unbeaten streak to nineteen games as they defeated Dents A team by the score of 12-5 in the Group 1 lacrosse semi-final.

UC had a 5-0 lead at half time and could have preserved a shut out if they had continued their stiff checking. Unless UC get over their overconfidence before next Thursday, St. Mike's could come up with an upset in Thursday's game. The latter team led by Jim McKinnon upset a heavily favored Meds 1 team in their semi-final game last Monday to qualify for the Final.

Knobber Watson who has paced the team throughout the season notched five goals and should have had a dozen except for the sparkling goaltending by the Dents goalie. The return of Jack Rogers helped the team considerably and before he left at half time he scored once and set up a couple more. Other scorers for UC were Tom Riley and Bruce Sonley with two each and Bruce

Lee and Dave Stephen with one apiece.

Lundlak led the Dentistry team with three goals and was the spearhead of their attack. John Latosiewicz tallied twice for the losers.

Skule Wins Mulock Cup Again

(Continued from page 1)
kicked a single. The fourth quarter is now history. Right now the Irish are wondering if there's any justice in this world. Last year the Skule team beat them in the final game. This year the score was closer and the Irish are already saying "wait till next year."

The game was played on a muddy field. The center of the field was covered with little puddles of water which hampered both sides, running attack. It especially hampered the St. Mike's attack since they depend mainly on a running attack. They didn't have someone who could toss that long one which can do an awful lot to pep up a team's attack. Witness the Skule touchdown.

The Irish line played a tremendous game throughout. Donovan, Riordan, Fraser, Russell, Bulanda, Priestner, Ingsen and Vasko played exceptionally well. For Skule the play of Karpinski, Weaver and Krikorian, was very good.

A tremendous amount of spirit went into yesterday's game as both the Irish and the Skulemen brought forth their bands. The Irish marched over to Varsity Stadium from the College and they snarled all traffic on University Avenue and solved the problem for crossing Hoskins Avenue.

The Irish's Pea Pickers Philharmonic perhaps did not outclass the Lady Godiva Memorial Band but they did make more noise. It certainly was a tribute to the spirit of both faculties for the show that they put on.

Dick Koterski did a good job for the Irish as he took over the punting chores from injured Ollie Babirad. The breaks that go to make up the game did go to the Irish as the Irish line blocked two Skule kicks and bad snaps by the Skule center also helped. The Irish tried hard when they got deep into Skule territory but a penalty inevitably brought them back into center field where the field was muddy and slippery. Where was the tarpaulin?

The Mulock Cup: Mud, Mud, Mud

—Staff Cartoon by Jas. Weller

PHE III Make Playoffs Beating St. Mike's Gals

Last night as UTS PHE II assured themselves of a playoff spot, by downing St. Mike's A's 30-25. The Phys-Ed. club in traditional style finished on top of their league.

The game was fast and hard fought, the teams seeming to be evenly matched. At the end of the first quarter the score was 8-8.

In the second quarter, PHE made good use of St. Mike's fouls to take the lead. Arlene Seaman and Sylvia Kerr tallying well for the Phys-Eders. The half-time score was 18-16.

In the second half SMC came back strongly, spurred on by Susie McLoughlin, to tie the score once more, but the opposition proved too strong, and the game ended 30-25 for PHE.

Top scorers were, Arlene Seaman, and Susie McLoughlin both good for ten points.

Eagleson Leads Law To Win

Sparked by the three goal effort of Al Eagleson, the School of Law "Beagels" defeated Pharmacy A's 9-4 to take a one game lead in their best of three Division 11 lacrosse finals.

R. J. Gray opened the scoring for the Beagels when the game was just two minutes old to give them a lead they never relinquished. Eagleson with two and Bill Angus with one added to their lead and the first period ended with the score 4-0 in their favor.

In the second period each team tallied twice and at half time the scoreboard read 6-2 in favor of Law.

In the third period the checking stiffened on both sides with the result that only one goal was scored. Again it was Al Eagleson leading the charges as he bulldozed his way through the entire Pharmacy team to pick the corner with his third tally.

Doug Eaton led the Pharmacy boys with two goals while Phillips and Williams added singletons. Other scorers for Law were Proverbs, Ted Luck and Ruttly.

Ace Reporter Wins Story-of-the-Week

The Varsity has revived its custom of recognizing the best story of the week.

The purpose of this award to act as an incentive to reporters to produce good work.

Since no members of the masthead are eligible for the award, all reporters have an equal opportunity to win.

The winning story for the week ending Friday November 28, was written by Jo Thompson about the discussion in last week's SAC meeting concerning the Blue and White.

Reporters are urged to take their hot little typewriters in hand and start pounding out those prize-winning stories.

Register Your Wedding Now

TUXEDO JUNCTION
FORMAL RENTALS

All New Garments

WA. 4-8427
441 PARLIAMENT ST.

Bird In The Bank

There's a parakeet in Georgia that opened a Savings Account with an initial deposit of $15. This represents one week's pay from a jewellery store which put the bird on the payroll after winning a contest for repeating the store's slogan "It's okay to owe Kay". An imprint of the bird's foot was used as identification, and as it has virtually no expenses, the bird should be able to bank his entire pay, except for tax and pension deductions. Whenever he makes a deposit, he perches on a teller's shoulders and chirps wolf calls.

Though we've had several unusual creatures on the books of the Royal Bank, we count no parakeet among our customers. We do have quite a few Varsity people, though—all of them the nicest birds we could hope to meet. We're always glad to add more Varsity names to our books, so if you'd care to open an account, drop in. No foot prints required. Royal Bank branches nearby include Yonge & Bloor, Yonge & College, Harbord & Spadina, and Spadina & College. The Royal Bank of Canada.

TODAY

WEDNESDAY

1:00 p.m.—SCM "Christianity and Race Relationships"—Hart House. FROS Discussion on China — 45 St. George. BAHAI "Science and Religion" — Don Dainty — open meeting.
—VCF: Meds; Room 212, Anatomy Building — "Limitations of Science"—Rev. Chambers.
3:30 p.m.—YIC FRENCH CLUB: "Wymilwood Music Room: "La Poesie de la Mer et d'outre-mer".
4:00 p.m.—SOCIALISM — Dave Lewis — National Chairman of CCF — "Why I am a Socialist". Anthropology: Mm. M. Pirie speaks on "Religion in Primitive Societies"—Room 19, UC.
5:00 p.m.—PHARMACEUTICAL SOCIETY: Meeting - Lunch Room.
7:00 p.m.—EAC MEETING — Reports on Treasure Van, SHARE, and Scholarships. — Falconer Hall.
7:15 p.m.—HH BRIDGE CLUB—meeting in Reading Room.
7:45 p.m.—SCM—Worship Service, 143 Bloor St. W.
8:00 p.m.—PSYCH CLUB: Film—"Psychiatry in Action." Discussion on treatment of War Shock—Toronto Psych. Hospital, 2 Surrey Place, Main Floor—lecture hall.
8:15 p.m.—U of T SPANISH CLUB: Meeting — St. Hilda's.
8:30 p.m.—HILLEL — Debate vs. YMHA at YMHA.

VICTORIA COLLEGE Grad Portraits

will be given out in Alumni Hall TODAY, December 1. ONLY from 12 noon until 2 p.m.

COMING-UP

THURSDAY
4:30 p.m.—CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION: All Wagner Program—Mech. Building.

FRIDAY
4:00 p.m.—ITALIAN CLUB: Conversation — Arbor Room.

JUST PUBLISHED

BY WALT KELLY

Yes, Oyez, here's the brand new book on the hilarious stalwarts of the Okefenokee swampland. It's not better than, "Pogo", "I go Pogo", "The Pogo Papers" or "The Pogo Stepmother Goose" just newer. Be prepared for more wonderfully enjoyable episodes from the same little people who are making the same, and more, big people happier.

At all bookstores $1.35

The MCGRAW BOOK COMPANY L.M.

"EXPORT"
CANADA'S FINEST CIGARETTE

GAMES TODAY

VOLLEYBALL	5:00—SPS V vs. Med. III—Diemer
PLAYOFFS	6:00—Med. IV Tr vs. SPS IV—Diemer
SQUASH	4:20—Law vs. Dent: C
	7:00—Pre-Med vs. Pharm. A
HOCKEY	12:30—SPS VII vs. Dept. C—Stadnyk, McCormack
	1:30—St. M. B vs. SPS III—Stephen, Riley
	4:00—Jr. Vic vs. Trin. A—Siegel, Prendergast
	BASKETBALL PRACTICES
MAIN GYM	1:00 — Law; 4:00 — Arch; 6:30 — Med; 7:30 — S.P.S.
	8:30 — St. M.
UPPER GYM	1:00 — S.P.S.; 4:00 — Trin; 7:00 — Dent; 8:00 — Pharm.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
SKI TRIP
JANUARY 28 — JANUARY 31st, 1956

To St. Sauveur, Que.

Organized and arranged by the
Students' Administrative Council
ALL EXPENSES — Hotel, Railway, Meals, Checking

$29.50

Leave Toronto — 8:15 p.m. by special C.N.R. Train, FRIDAY, JANUARY 28 — 57
Return — St. Sauveur Sunday 6:25 p.m. arriving Toronto — about 6:45 a.m. Monday, January 31, in plenty of time for breakfast and school.

6-66 a.m.

2 FULL DAYS SKIING IN THE HILLS!
APPLICATION
may be made at the
S.A.C. OFFICE
Deposit of $5.00 required
Balance by January 10, 1956

CUP

Runneth Over

By DOUG STEWART and GLENDA ROBINSON

Western: At long last the Western Gazette staff has started to send out copies of that august journal. We have just received two copies which had been mailed before the game. On one was scrawled "Tough, eh" and on the other, "Too bad boys". Far be it from us to laugh at anyone for wistful thinking, though.

Since our acquaintances frown on us for reprinting jokes from the Saskatchewan Sheaf (bless their ivory-pure minds), we are including in their stead a sports story written by a Gazette reporter.

"In the event of a wet field, the Mustangs have a first rate ground attack. If it's dry, we can run them off the field and/or pass them dizzy. The team is superior, the team is up, and I can't see anything but another Yates Cup for the Mustangs."

Sic transit gloria.

Acadia U: Keeping alive their traditional Cane Sunday custom, the Senior class turned out for a Church parade supported on canes of all manner, size and shape, borrowed from the local retired population, or hastily hewn from a nearby alder clump.

The custom originated when the class of '24—then Seniors—made their carrying of canes to church and campus events a senior privilege. When carrying canes became no longer fashionable, the custom declined until now only the institution of an annual Cane Sunday keeps alive the proud tradition.

McMaster: Fought in "This Guy has to Go" department. Some bird who didn't sign his name wrote a letter to the editor of The Silhouette asking "What does CUP stand for—Complete Useless Prattle?"

Ulysses: The University of British Columbia plans to have two swimming pools. When a fire broke out at Brock Hall recently, it destroyed the roof over the pool. A committee has discovered that it will be cheaper to build a small roofed pool and maintain the old one than to build a new roof.

Our worthy night editor is screaming for more copy, but far be it from us to pad, or fill this column with anything but world-shaking news items. Next week we think we will go back to jokes from the Sheaf, which we find shaking, shattering and shocking. Amen.

The Varsity needs Staff

A limited number of openings are still available to those interested in working for the Campus Newspaper. Please report to the Varsity Office—Basement, SAC Building—at 1.00 p.m. or in the evening.

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

STUDENT TOURS TO EUROPE

LIMITED TO STUDENTS BETWEEN THE AGES OF 19 AND 26
Under the personal guidance of a well-known University Professor.

TOUR # 1 81 DAYS $1,270.00

England, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Germany,
Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 1

TOUR # 2 74 DAYS $1,135.00

England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland,
Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 8

Both Tours sail on the well-known CUNARD LINE

Write, call or telephone for illustrated descriptive folder.

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

(Kenneth B. Conn, President)

2 College St.

WAlmont 4-1494

the truth is told

Varsity Vulgate

By MARY ALICE HUNTER EX-FEATURE EDITOR

One of the many mysteries of The Varsity is its lingo, or as English professors put it, its frame of reference. It is possible in a very short time (four years) to pick up enough slang to completely bewilder your friends, mystify your enemies, and generally frustrate everyone.

Herewith follows a short but incomprehensive course in Varsity Vulgate, for the ambitious freshmen. (No freshie need apply).

The time, 11.30 p.m., the place, a certain dank sanctum of dubious notoriety, known as the Varsity News Office. One candle is lit (along with the editor). A sinister group is huddled around a table, over a still white form, the page proof. The make-up editor (not a cosmetics manufacturer, but the poor fool who is stuck to stick the stories on the page, so it will be edible, I mean readable), shrieks hoarsely, "Where's the dummy". She is not referring to the sports editor, but to the page-proofs.

Then her eye (she has another one, but it went on strike the other day) lights on a make-up assistant. "Ah, ha" she chortles, "Hey there you with the holes in your head, hurry up and make some headlines." If you should ever happen to be in this position, don't run out and murder a professor in order to make the headlines personally, it is enough to sit down, and figure out a suitable headline for the story, e.g. — if it is about a girl who spent the summer in New Zealand chasing butterflies, write a title like "Girl Gets Belgian Bugs". The Varsity will sell its collective souls for alliteration, and the fact that a girl is mentioned is accurate enough.

Another favourite expression used by the more daring minions, is "batten down the hatches Clyde". This means, let's get this mast-head meeting over pronto, buster.

Old Man Brown, affectionately known to his confederates as "Bonehead" is another source of bright bons mots — such as "X? 1/2 xplq?"

Finally we come to an all-important word; "dupes". And if you think this means that The Varsity is an international spy-ring, hiding under the guise of a newspaper (some people say the disguise is not too convincing) luring hapless freshies down and turning them into hardened Mata Haris, you're absolutely right.

Headman Stokes At Psych Club

Professor A. B. Stokes, head of the Department of Psychiatry here and head of the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, will show a film, "Psychiatry in Action", to the U of T Psychology Club tonight. The Club will assemble in the large lecture hall on the main floor of the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, 2 Surrey Place (behind the Parliament Buildings), at 8:00. After the showing Professor Stokes will hold a discussion and question session on the film.

"Psychology in Action" deals with the treatment of war-shock and is the outcome of Professor Stoke's work in England for the government during the last war.

LAMBS' CLOTHING FOR WOLVES, AND OTHERS!

Mind you, we don't entirely endorse "wolfishness." But, if you must make a hit with the fair sex, you'll do better in one of our coats of Mohara (lambs' wool and mohair).

The lambs' wool makes the fabric soft, light and smooth-draping. The mohair makes for exceptionally long wear.

These casual coats are cleverly styled by Savile Row. That great tailoring house has come up with an ingenious new sleeve idea that allows complete freedom for your arms... ideal for driving. Colors from muted greys to the new deep tones. $69.50.

Many other styles to choose from, here at Hobberlin's. Best selection in town, in fact.

And our money-back guarantee has no strings attached. If you aren't satisfied, then we aren't.

P.S.: We're open 9.30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Hobberlin's
LIMITED

EM. 3-7313

445 Yonge St.

The University of Toronto

Symphony Orchestra

— and —

The University of Toronto

Mixed Chorus

Will Present a Concert in
Convocation Hall

Thursday, December 9th, 1954 — 8.15 p.m.

For Staff, Students, Graduates of the University
and their friends.

There will be no Admission Charge.

A Students' Administrative Council activity.

EATON'S

BELTED,
If You Please!

Waistlines are still "in"! And nothing favours them more than a trim leather belt as tie-up between your favourite kilt 'n cashmere, shirt 'n slacks! We've a whole, colourful array of belts now at Eaton's... see them soon!

A—1/2" suede belt in black, brown, navy or red. Eaton Price, each 1.00

B—2" cowhide belt in black, red, navy, tangerine, wheat, avocado or tan. Each 2.00

C—Contour cowhide belt with military buckle closing. Natural colour, size 24 only. Each 3.50

EATON'S — Main Store — Main Floor (Dept. 203)

T. EATON CO. Ltd.

CARABINS, BIENVENUE!

Parbleu!

By BILL SMYTH

Parbleu! they're here again. The Carabins from the University of Montreal will arrive at Union Station at 9:45 tonight, to be welcomed by cheerleaders and bandsmen of the U of T.

Then ils will be swept up in a mad swirl of social activity, which doesn't stop until they leave again on Sunday afternoon. Les Carabins — forty in all — come down every year and are entertained here by forty U of T students. Then later on in the year, some students here move down to Montreal for a week-end. In short, a good time is had by all.

"Carabin" is defined by Cassell's French Dictionary as "a horse-soldier, armed with a long arquebus", which is more or less a non-committal remark.

A coffee party will be held in Brennan Hall at 10 p.m. more or less, depending on how soon the band stops blowing. Friday will be occupied with lectures in the morning, followed by one discussion in the Vic Union, concerning "Ontario (or Quebec) as we see it, and Quebec (or Ontario) as it is". This will be followed by dinner in Hart House, which adjourns to see the hockey game between Les Carabins and the U of T. Then comes une autre soirée at 174 Dunvegan Road.

On Saturday there will be a discussion in Carr Hall at 2:30, which breaks up for a party at Nobleton — une danse carré pour Les Carabins. On Sunday morning a special Mass will be held. And then after a dinner at their hosts' homes, they take their leave again. Parbleu! they're gone so soon.

Carabins Mangeant

This is a picture of some of last year's Carabins as they happily eat their way through some Toronto food. —VSP by Aubrey Golden.

Dans La Métropole...

par JIM THATCHER

Cette fin de semaine on entend la fameuse chanson des Carabins,

Dans la métropole
Passer pour têtes folles
Courir toutes les nuits
Crier, chanter et faire du bruit

Si on la comprend bien, on a l'impression que ce week-end n'est qu'une grande partie, au contraire, c'est une occasion inestimable de discussion entre Canadiens - Français et Canadiens - Anglais, comme le programme du week-end vous l'indiquera.

Le jeudi 2 déc., 9.45 à la gare Union: arrivée des Carabins, avec la musique Bleue et Blanche, et les Cheerleaders de l'Université de Toronto. Dix heures, réception à Brennan Hall.

Vendredi matin les Carabins assistent aux conférences de leurs hôtes, l'après-midi ils discutent les problèmes actuels entre les Canadiens de langues française et anglaise.

Le sujet de discussion est, "La province de Québec comme nous la voyons, la province d'Ontario comme elle est." Six heures: le directeur de Hart House, M. Joseph McCulley, offre une réception dans ses appartements, suivi d'un dîner dans la Grande Salle de Hart House. Après le dîner les Carabins sont invités à la partie de hockey entre Toronto et Montréal. Après la partie Mlle Haas donne une soirée chez elle.

Samedi après-midi on continue les discussions à Carr (Continued on Page 4)

THE VARSITY

Vol. LXXIV — No. 48

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Thursday, December 2, 1954

WEATHER
Cold, Snow, Sleet
Imported From
Montreal

NATIONAL AID 'NOT IMMINENT'

Capitalistic Society 'Unjust,' Says D. Lewis, CCF Chairman

Two major changes in social and economic thinking in the past 25 years make for the need to re-think socialist programs, said David Lewis, CCF National Chairman. In his talk yesterday on "Why I am a Socialist," Mr. Lewis stressed the fact that the concentration of power nationally and internationally and the freeing of individuals to find their own worth is still the valid aim of Socialists.

The major change in social and economic thinking in the past few years is partially the result of the development in capitalist states of welfare measures popularized in the past by socialists, according to Mr. Lewis. He went on to say that the whole social fabric which the depression of the 30's posed made all countries look for remedies to prevent depressions.

Mr. Lewis continued that with the development of industry along international lines, the areas of political domination and economic exploitation are much smaller. Local self-growth has resulted in freedom from political domination in larger areas and more indirect economic exploitation.

The CCF Chairman said that the great disappointment of the work since 1945 is the failure of building an effective international organization to guarantee peace in the world. In this second important point, he stressed, his support of the UN, but felt that because of east-west conflict and Soviet imperialism the UN is not adequate to guarantee peace. Mr. Lewis ascribes a mission to the socialist movement today; that of learning to fight on two fronts at the same time. These fronts involve a fight for justice in a basically "unjust" society in a battle against capitalist exploration and the fight against totalitarian Communism the world over which is opposed to socialism, he said. He added that socialists must be on guard against being enslaved by either side in their struggle.

Mr. Lewis ended his discussion by stating that the need for socialism is as great today as ever, although the socialist's task has become more difficult. He said that economic activity in Canada is high, but drop in farm income was almost an agricultural depression with farm costs rising and farm income falling. He stated that in industrial Canada the situation of pockets of unemployment and depression is one which socialists have always argued would be found in Capitalism even in the midst of prosperity.

what women marry

The Truth About Men

Men are what women marry. They have two feet, two arms, and sometimes, two wives, but never more than one idea at a time.

Like Turkish cigarettes they are made of the same material; the only difference is that some men are a little better disguised than others.

Generally speaking, they may be divided into two classes, husbands and bachelors. An eligible bachelor is a man of obstinacy entirely surrounded by suspicion. Husbands are of three varieties: prizes, surprises, and consolation prizes.

Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest plastic arts known to civilization. It requires science, sculpture, common sense, faith, hope, and charity, — especially charity.

It is a psychological marvel that a soft, tender, violet-scented thing like a woman would enjoy kissing a big, awkward, stubbly chimned, tobacco and bay rum scented thing like a man.

If you flatter a man, it frightens him to death, and if you don't flatter him, it bores him to death.

If you permit him to make love to you he gets tired of you in the end and if you don't, he gets tired of you in the beginning.

If you agree with him in everything you soon cease to interest him; if you argue with him you soon cease to charm him. If you believe all he tells you he thinks you are a fool and if you don't he thinks you are a cynic. If you wear gay colors, rouge, and a startling hat, he hesitates to take you out. If you wear a little brown beret and a tailored suit he takes you out and spends the evening staring at the women in gay colors, rouge, and startling hats.

Reprinted From Western Gazette

Frat Bootlegging Condemned

Beer bought in a fraternity house bar has resulted in a ten-day jail sentence for Paul Baxter. Baxter, a business college student, was involved in a three-car accident on Davisville Ave., and was convicted for drunken driving.

When Baxter testified that he had bought eight or nine drinks at a fraternity bar, Magistrate Thoburn commented, "A fraternity house where liquor is sold? Things must have changed!" He warned Baxter not to identify the fraternity house, saying that it was not relevant to the case.

"I know through personal experience that it (beer) is sold," remarked defence counsel K. E. Howie. An official of the liquor control board later said that fraternity houses selling liquor "would be just simple bootlegging."

"There are no licensed fraternity houses in Toronto," reported Liquor Control Board officials. "Unless a fraternity has a banquet permit — good for one night only — the selling of liquor to anyone is illegal," they said.

Bursaries and Scholarships May Be Nationwide Project

"National scholarships are not in any sense imminent, but as a long range project they are definitely something to be looked forward to," said SAC president Bill Angus at the External Affairs Commission meeting last night.

He was giving a report on the recent visit to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent concerning the feasibility of receiving national bursaries and scholarships to benefit one-fifth of the university population of Canada.

Angus said that the Prime Minister was "very impressed with the need for more student aid" and "interested in supporting the programme". This programme is sponsored by the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

However, said Angus, two good objections were brought up by the Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, meaning that scholarships on a national basis will not be established next year, but are not by any means "shelved".

The objections, commented Angus, are, first, that the National Government cannot carry out such a programme without the full co-operation of the provinces. Education is constitutionally a provincial affair. The second objection is that such a scheme cannot immediately be fitted into the national revenue, went on Angus. This will in part be the function of the Canada Council, now being formed, which will look into the possibility of post-graduate scholarships.

The Prime Minister is submitting the brief on bursaries and scholarships to his Cabinet for their consideration. But he advised that, as Angus put it, the students "start from the grass roots and work up". "To get a national scheme involves convincing people at the local level that bursaries and scholarships are needed," said Angus.

Toronto is the focal point of the campaign, Angus emphasized, and it is up to us to provide leadership. "In short he said, "we were favourably received in Ottawa."

Carabin Activities

—Varsity Cartoon by Jas. Weller.

TORONTONENSIS

— THE SHOWS RECAPTURED

Thrilling
new colours
to add to your

"Kitten"
Collection

A full-fashioned sweater with a pert new scalloped turtle neck, very new ¾ bracelet sleeve... in cashmere-soft Lambswool. Daintily hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof... by Glnayr.

At good shops everywhere

$8.95

campus profile

Norm Chalmers

By CAMPUS WRITER

Norman Chalmers, University of Toronto law student, who sparked the campaign from its official inception at the 18th annual conference of the National Federation of Canadian University Students in Toronto last October, was unable to present his own brief to the Prime Minister. The reason— he is working his way through college.

After initial campaign plans were laid and a great deal of contact work had gone out to the 21 member universities, he announced that he would be unable to come to Ottawa for the appointment.

As well as going to law school — a full-time job in itself, the 25 year old student is the Local Registrar for the War Claims Commission. The campaign, he finds, takes up to four hours of the remainder of his time.

In a way, the energetic campaigner, who secured a NFUS mandate for his Toronto Committee to take the lead in the promotion of a government scholarship campaign, finds himself in an ironic position. He speaks from experience when he says, "Part time work interferes with studies in almost any course".

Interested Canadian students have a great deal of respect for this Chairman of the Government Scholarships Campaign Committee, who devotes his time and energy to aiding others in the same position as himself with no possible chance to gain from the results himself.

Said one third year arts student, "I don't see how he does it, but thank God he's here. If he is successful, 10,000 students will have him to thank for the opportunity of a university education each year."

Dallying Co-eds?

To all you girls who must imbibe,
And all you others of that tribe,
A word of warning if, I may,
That while you drink and while you play

Remember all you females gay,
If your virtue is compromised
From society you may be ostracised,
And your immoral drunken capers
May make headlines for the papers.

—Wilf Caplan

MINES DINNER

Ontario's Minister of Mines Phillip T. Kelley will speak at 6:45 tonight at a dinner given by the Mining and Metallurgy Club. The dinner will be held in the Great Hall at Hart House. Non-members, including ladies, are welcome to attend the dinner.

THIRD CHURCH SERVICE

FOR ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY
Sunday, 11 a.m. — Great Hall, Hart House

University College

extends an invitation to all its friends to attend

Buffet Luncheon, East Hall, at 12.45 p.m.

Dedication of West Hall, at 2.30 p.m.

Opening of the Sir Daniel Wilson Residence
at 3.30 p.m.

Saturday, December 4th

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR

MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor

Assistant News Editor

Feature Editor

Makeup Editor

A.M. & D. Editor

Sports Editor

Acting Assistant Sports Editor

Acting Women's Sports Editor

Photo Editor

CUP Editor

Mortician

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE

ASSISTANTS

REPORTERS

C. CLYDE BATTEN

ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengelly

Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth

Mary Alice Hunter

Irene Meyers

Wendy Michener

John Wilson

John Wojtech

Flo Middleton

Ed. Hoshkiw

Chuck Williams

Ralph Berrin

Marianne Farrell, Arlene Ross

Carol Hoffman, Jo Thompson, Sue Delman,

Jane Kelly, Marg Parkhill.

Divided University

The university of Toronto is the largest university in Canada, and a fair-sized educational body in any text of reference. Yet it is not a unified body; it is divided into many separate colleges and faculties, each for the most part pursuing its separate way without reference to the rest of the campus. This disunity is not the inevitable result of largeness; many colleges in the United States, with far larger enrollments have far more university-wide enthusiasm.

Yet at Toronto, aside from the relatively weak efforts of the SAC, there are few activities of a campus-wide nature.

Fraternities and other like organizations tend to accentuate this disunity by further weakening university ties. Hart House, although certainly a unifying factor of sorts, cannot overcome this division. And it rests on a certain restricted basis itself.

The lack of a University spirit is one of the reasons for the weakness of the SAC. It is one of the reasons for the weakness of interfaculty and intercollegiate debating. It is one of the reasons for the general student apathy on all matters not directly or immediately affecting the students' local interests.

It is to be doubted if the various and varying parochial loyalties to the separate colleges and faculties can fill this gap. Loyalty to Engineering and SPS, or to good old Vic, is not the same thing as loyalty to a University. The colleges and faculties have too small and restricted a base to enable any strong feeling of university purpose and belief to spring up.

This lack of University-wide spirit is to be deplored, as it means a deficiency in the atmosphere which is essential to the enthusiastic pursuit of truth, the reason for a university.

—RDB

Campus Radio?

In recent years there has been quite a great deal of interest raised on this campus in connection with the establishment of a campus radio station. For the past one or two years little has been heard in this connection, although earlier a Radio Committee of the SAC had been quite active.

There are, of course, many and perhaps insurmountable obstacles that would have to be overcome before such a project as a Varsity radio station could be established. But such an undertaking, even if only on the limited scale of a campus-wide hook-up through the heating system, would be very worthwhile.

Does the present lack of interest in the idea prove its impracticability, or merely illustrate some more of our much publicized "Student Apathy"?

—RDB

NOTICE

Correction: The phrase "with a ping in my heart" in the article published yesterday titled "He didn't say No" should have read "with awe in my heart".

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Lecture Series

"SPINOZA'S LIFE AND HIS IMAGINATION"

Professor D. Savan

TODAY at 5 p.m.

West Hall, U.C.

Buffalo State Cagemen Edge Varsity's 62-60

The thin air of Buffalo was too strong for the Varsity Basketball Blues and their Junior brethren Tuesday night, as the two Varsity clubs dropped games against teams from Buffalo State Teachers. For the second time in as many games the Blues were beaten by a margin of a single basket, this time, in the final three seconds of play. Last week the Blues dropped a close one to the Nortown club, also by a score of 62-60. The Baby Blues were cut by a count of 59-54.

Fresh off the football field, George Stulac, Blue hoopmaster, played far below form, scoring a mere three points, but working himself into the necessary shape to be once again the outstanding basketball player in Canadian College ball. Returned veterans Leo Madden and Pete Potter, last year with Tri-Bells, were the strongest men offensively for the Blues, getting 16 and 15 points respectively. Another old hand, Don Fawcett, a Varsity star of two years ago, and last year coach of the McMaster Buccaneers, showed strong form against the Buffalos, hitting for a dozen points. Johnny Braithwaite, several years ago top man on the Varsity Orfuns, came through with six for the Blues in his return this season.

Rube Richman, after playing in the preliminary game with the Baby Blues and dropping 8 points, came through for another 4 in the Senior behalf. Richman started last season with the Baby Blues, moved up to the Big Blues half-way through the year and stayed there. Now he is working with both clubs pending the final cut of the Blues.

The Baby Blues, strong in the first half of their game pulled to a 31-29 lead over the Buffalos, but the Yanks came back in the last quarter, outscoring the Varsity team by 7 points and winning by 5.

John Dacyshyn was top man for the Baby Blues, the former Bahurst Heights ace hooping ten, while Ed Rigby hit for 9 and Richman for 8.

The two teams play again this week in the main bill of the Hart House Athletic Night, the Baby Blues meeting the Toronto Hustlers and the Senior squad taking on Detroit Tech.

OCE Is Scene Of B-Ball Clinic First in Canada

Women's basketball in Canada received a shot in the arm on Saturday, November 20. A basketball referees' clinic which was the first of its kind was held at the OCE gym. Attending the clinic were about 200 physical education teachers from all over Ontario as well as many high school referees.

Better officiating was one of the aims of the clinic. A separate Canadian rule book was another. As it is now the American rule book is used as there is no separate Canadian book of rules. Instead there is a short section of Canadian rules added, to the American rules.

During the morning, several physical education instructors spoke about nearly all phases of refereeing. Following the speeches the group divided into four smaller groups in which questions could be asked. In the afternoon the entire group met to discuss the questions which were brought up in the individual groups. Then there was a demonstration of good officiating by two national referees, Gwen Ann Miller and Mary McDonald. This was followed by a practice period in which everyone had an opportunity to practice officiating.

It is hoped that the clinic will become an annual fixture. The people who took part in the clinic should promote better officiating in their separate districts. Credit for the idea is due to Miss Nancy Simpson who is head of women's basketball at U of T and to Miss Helen Gurney who is a teacher at Forester Collegiate in Windsor.

Irish B's Top SPS Thirds Kennedy Nets Three Goals

St. Mike's B team yesterday trounced the Skule Thirds in a fast-skating and body bruising hockey game at Varsity Arena to the tune of 6-2. John Kennedy scored three goals for the Irish as he led his team to victory.

Skule opened the scoring early in the first period as Kee scored. Pete Robinson got that one back for the Irish as he netted one just a minute after the Skule goal. Don Raleigh made it 2-1 for St. Mike's and John Kennedy scored his first goal to end the period with the Irish leading 3-1.

Skule also opened the second period with a goal by Flint but the Irish came back to score three more. Kennedy scored as he grabbed a pass in front of the Skule net and slammed it home. Moreau scored one from a scramble around the Skule net.

With but five seconds remaining in the game Kennedy scored his third goal on a shot from twenty feet in front of the net.

Fred Parrot played a good game for the Irish on the forward line while Gerry Manale starred on defence.

Dents C team defeated SPS VII by the score of 5-4. Watka scored two goals for the victors while Hugh Brown and Joe Duffy scored two goals each for Skule.

Other Dent scorers were Hunter, Scott and Shaw, who fired the eventual winner.

Skule tried hard to get the equalizer through the efforts of Brown, Duffy and Scanlon but they just missed on their chances.

Players should take heed that from here on in the persons getting penalties will sit their two minutes out at stop-time even though the game is played on non-stop time.

McGill Students To Benefit From Anonymous Gift

Montreal (CUP) The Students' Executive Council last week approved the spending of up to $5,000 for capital expenditures by the various undergraduate societies. The money will be taken out of the reserve for unbudgeted events, which was increased recently by an anonymous donation of $5,000.

The money will be split up among the societies according to need, rather than according to the number of students per society.

Reduced Rail Fare for Christmas Vacation

The Canadian Passenger Association has announced that reduced fare arrangements have now been authorized for the Christmas and New Year vacation period. Students and members of the teaching staff may obtain at College and Faculty offices forms which will permit them to buy a return ticket at current normal one-way fare and one-half.

These forms carry the dates of the University vacation period, December 17th to January 3rd, and no member of the University staff has any authority to alter these dates.

J. C. EVANS, Registrar.

DANCE

The Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto

Girls' Residence

"WINTER WHIRL"

with the STARDUST'S ORCHESTRA

Friday, December 10 — Recital Hall — Semi Formal

Refreshments

Tickets $3.00 per couple . . . available Conservatory Office and S.A.C. Office.

GAMES TODAY

LACROSSE FINALS 1:00—L.C.I vs. St. M. A—Warren, Ibrnyuk, Urquhart

4:00—Vic. III vs. Jr. SPS A—Sorra

4:30—Fur. A vs. Wye. A—Sorra

5:30—SPS V of Med. III vs. Dent. A—Preen

7:30—Law A vs. Arch. A—Preen

9:00—Med. III vs. SPS III

12:30—Jr. U.C. vs. Jr. SPS—Nadin, Lotocki

1:30—U.C. III vs. SPS VI—Smith, Yakimoff

4:00—Pharm. A vs. Law—Rudy, Stephen

BASKETBALL PRACTICES

MAIN GYM 4:00 — Tr. 6:30 — Forestry; 7:30 — 9:30 — St. Mike's

HART HOUSE TODAY

THURSDAY, 2ND DECEMBER:

8:00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).
8:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m. — TICKETS! SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT COMING UP. St. Mary Magdalene Singers and Christmas Music. This Annual event brings a capacity house. Members — get your free tickets early.
10:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m. — NEW! — THE UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW. Also prints by Sybil Andrews (Art Gallery and Print Room).
10:00 a.m. - 10:15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel).
5:00 p.m. — AMATEUR RADIO CODE PRACTICE. (Debates Room Loft).
5:05 p.m. - 5:20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel).
5:15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.
7:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
7:30 p.m. - 10:30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
NOTE: During inclement weather, the East end of the Debates Room will be available as a Commuters' Lunch Room. No service will be provided.

The University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra — and — The University of Toronto Mixed Chorus Will Present a Concert in Convocation Hall

Thursday, December 9th, 1954 — 8.15 p.m.

For Staff, Students, Graduates of the University and their friends.

There will be no Admission Charge.

A Students' Administrative Council activity.

Anniversary Sale Men's or Ladies' Made-to-Measure Slacks

- TOP QUALITY ENGLISH WOOLLENS
- LARGE RANGE OF SHADES AND MATERIALS
- EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED

If not satisfied . . . Money Completely Refunded

• Don't Miss Out On This Special Sale •

Reg. $20.00 — $25.00 . . . NOW $14.85

KARN CLEANERS & CLOTHIERS

Students Save 10% On All Dry Cleaning — Cash & Carry
235½ COLLEGE ST. (opp. Dental College) Phone WA. 4-3072

SWIMMERS Please report to Intramural Office for information re preliminaries which will be held where necessary tonight at 7.

SPORTS SCHEDULE

Week of Monday, Dec. 6, to Friday, Dec. 10

SQUASH

Mon., Dec. 6 1:00—Law vs. Trin. B
4:20—Trin. C vs. Dent. E
Tues., Dec. 7 5:40—Sr. Med. vs. Dent. A
6:20—Jr. SPS vs. Dent. C
7:00—Pharm. B vs. SPS IV
Wed., Dec. 8 4:20—Trin. A vs. SPS III
7:00—Pharm. C vs. SPS V
Thurs., Dec. 9 1:40—St. SPS vs. U.C. II
Fri., Dec. 10 5:00—Pharm. A vs. Jr. U.C.

HOCKEY

Mon., Dec. 6 12:30—SPS IV vs. St. M. B—Dysart, Tilson
1:30—Jr. SPS vs. Pre-Med—Tilson, Dysart
4:00—For. B vs. Knox—Naylor, MacLean
Tues., Dec. 7 12:30—Trin. A vs. Jr. U.C.—Reid, Fisher
1:30—Dent. B vs. SPS V—Smith, Yakimoff
4:00—St. M. A vs. Sr. Med.—Stephen, Riley
Wed., Dec. 8 12:30—Med. III vs. Trin. B—Yakimoff, Smith
1:30—St. M. C vs. SPS VII—Naylor, MacLean
Thurs., Dec. 9 12:30—Med. IV vs. Trin. C—Reid, Fisher
1:30—St. M. B vs. Vic. III—Riley, Stephen
4:00—Jr. U.C. vs. Jr. Vic.—Smith, Yakimoff
6:50—Arch vs. For. A—Smith, Yakimoff
Fri., Dec. 10 12:30—Sr. Med vs. St. Vh—Naden, Lotocki
1:30—Pre-Med vs. Trin. A—Siegel, Tilson
4:00—Dent. C vs. Vic. IV—McCracken, Weinert
5:30—Dent. A vs. SPS IV—Stadnyl, Weinert

Basketball Practices

MAIN GYM
Mon., Dec. 6 4:00—Tr. A
Tues., Dec. 7 1:00—SPS; 4:00—Law
Wed., Dec. 8 1:00—Vic; 4:00—Law
Thurs., Dec. 9 4:00—Med.
Fri., Dec. 10 1:00—Trin; 4:00—U.C.; 6:20—St. M. 6:00—St. M.
Sat., Dec. 11 10:00—Tr. 11:00—Law
UPPER GYM
Mon., Dec. 6 1:00—SPS; 4:00—Tr.
Tues., Dec. 7 4:00—U.C.; 6:30—Med.
Wed., Dec. 8 1:00—SPS; 4:00—Vic; 6:00—Wye
Thurs., Dec. 9 1:00—Vic; 4:00—U.C.; 6:30—For; 7:30—St. M.
Fri., Dec. 10 1:00—Arch; 4:00—Pre; 5:00—Dent.

Prize For Debate Winners Is Free Europe Trip—NFCUS

The winning team at this year's National Debating Finals will receive as a prize an expense-paid trip to Europe in early spring, where they will debate against European teams. Peter Tanguay, NFCUS debating commissioner stated that this offer is part of the Canadian University Debating Association's attempt to reorganize the league in a more tangible association.

The Debating Association represents 40,000 potential debaters on over 30 Canadian University Campi. Misunderstandings in the minds of students and student leaders brought delegates at the Toronto NFCUS conference to the conclusion that in the future CUPA should be organized to operate as a true debating association, said a NFCUS spokesman.

CUPA receives its main support and yearly continuity from NFCUS. At the same time it has its own organization, regulations, membership and fees.

CUPA, as in past years, is in charge of organizing the National Debating Finals, from which the winners will be awarded the European trip. It is through the support of NFCUS that the association, for the first time, has been able to offer an award of this nature.

Winners of each of the four league competitions will meet for the Canadian title and the trip to Europe at some location in Central Canada.

CUPA brings the various individual regional debating leagues together, thus bringing together Canadian debaters on a National level. The four leagues participating in CUPA are: The Maritimes Inter-Varsity Debating League (MIDL) in the far east, the Inter-University Debating League (IUDL) in Quebec and Ontario, the McGoun Cup Debating League among the four far-Western Universities, and lastly the Villeneuve League comprising the three French-Canadian Universities.

CUPA's work does not stop with the organization of the National Debating Finals. Suggestions of its future program include the publication and organization of a standard list of debating rules which may then be put into use at all member colleges. Another part of the CUPA program is to re-establish the custom of having foreign teams come to Canada to debate.

● The NFCUS spokesman said "This year should consequently see a great advancement of the CUPA in Canadian student opinion; this year should show the CUPA as a true National Debating Association."

CUP Transmits First Wirephoto

A university journalistic first occurred last Monday afternoon when Canadian University Press transmitted its first wirephoto to Toronto and Montreal university dailies.

The photo appeared in last Tuesday's issue of the Varsity. It was taken at a meeting between Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and delegates from the National Federation of Canadian University Students at a conference in Ottawa last Monday.

The idea of the wirephoto started with the problem of getting the picture to Toronto and Montreal university dailies the same day as the conference took place. Wirephoto was the only possible solution, and the necessary facilities were not available.

However, through arrangements with Canadian Press, the Montreal Gazette and the Toronto Globe and Mail, the photo was transmitted in the nick of time for Tuesday editions.

It is hoped that the precedent set by the transmission of this first wirephoto will mean a continuation of this system for future CUP photos.

TODAY

THURSDAY

- 1:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—SCM room, Hart House. Study group—"The Misunderstanding of the Church."
1:00 p.m.—U. of T. C.C.F.—Room 14, Vic. Socialism 1A.
1:10 p.m.—VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP—Room 35, Vic. Rev. S. J. Mikolasy, "The Christian and Philosophy."
4:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—SCM room, Hart House. Records of the Life of Jesus.
4:30 p.m.—CARNegie RECORD COLLECTION—Mechanical Bldg., 3rd floor. All Wagner Program.
6:30 p.m.—C'ANTERBURY CLUB—Room X, Trinity. Discussion group on Nicene Creed.
8:00 p.m.—STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT—143 Bloor St. W. "Christianity and Industrial Life".

COMING-UP

FRIDAY

- 8:30 p.m.—ISO—UC Women's Union, 79 St. George St.—Social evening—"Snowflake Whirl".

a national ideal?

A Look at Canada

This Article on Canada and its cultural and ethical problems was written by Jim Goldsmith, IV Knox, and Tom Wickett, IV UC. In it, they attempt to explain the real meaning of Canadian Nationalism.

To the great majority of people of Western civilization Canada to-day is a sprawling half-continent of great wealth and fantastic potential. She is envied in her position as a major "little state", and admired for her role of cultural insulation between the two great Anglo-Saxon power blocs. She appears, in short, the young giant for whom the future is destined.

In the opinion of her own citizens, however, she is far too often something else. One misses the extended vision, the analytic point of view, the interest even in the wider issues, and one loses one's criterion of values in the exaggerated turmoil over sectional problems. The popular concept of the Dominion in any locality is little but the projection to a national scale of that district's worries and pretensions, circumscribed by a lively mistrust of regions which do not hold the same views.

This localised attitude to all problems, and the resultant disharmony has a valid explanation—Canada is the product of as many ethnic, geographic, religious, cultural and economic groups as any country in the world, and she has never been forced to a recognition of herself by the searing fusion of a War of Independence or of a great national movement. Certainly, our disunity has the justification of history; but nothing could be more fatal than to continue our thinking in the old parochial terms. Our great need now as in the past is for the blending of all that is universal in our small regionalistic preoccupations into an over-riding and identifying credo, under the aegis of tolerance for the sectional characteristics which remain unincorporated.

The forging of a national ideal is an act of faith which has been neglected too long.

The danger of this argument, of course, is that some one will rush to the hysterical defence of local customs, ideas and individuality against this encroaching horror of flavourless conformity and regimentation, but that is to misinterpret the entire thesis. The basic impossibility of doing away with regional diversities is evident, and even were it not, their influence is far too salutary for the attempt to be made. The interplay of theories and principles from the different sectors of a country is invaluable to its development, as a vital and rejuvenating force. The destruction of the sectional cultures, all of which add to Canada's personality as a nation, would be the strangling of the very element one was trying to create. It is the forging or strengthening of a supra-regional sentiment, and not the extirpation of valid sectional divergences, which is Canada's perpetual internal problem.

This idea being that of Confederation, it is perhaps ninety years late; but the present article is on an individual, not a constitutional level. The governmental frame-work is functioning as expected, give or take a few principles, but the correlated chimera of a national ideal which would unify while respecting diversity has expired of neglect. It might be restored only by an analysis of ourselves and of our attitudes, by the jettisoning of our bucolic prejudices and intolerances, and by the acceptance of the possible validity of precepts from regions different from our own. Without this mental re-orientation, Canada can never progress beyond her present stage of retarded national adolescence.

visit to ottawa

NFCUS at a Glance

By BILL ANGUS

Besides shaking hands with Prime Minister St. Laurent in Ottawa, the Toronto NFCUS representatives:

— were told that the NFCUS brief on government scholarships and bursaries was impressive.

— found support for an approach to provincial M.P.'s.

— were advised that the constitutional question and other considerations would delay immediate implementation of the NFCUS scheme.

— were informed by the Prime Minister that public support was the key to government action.

— visited the NFCUS National Office at Carleton College and observed it to be small but orderly and efficient.

— lunched with NFCUS National President Doug Burns, just arrived from a tour of Western Canada universities commencing with his home University of Alberta.

— arrived and departed in the lovely Ottawa rain!

Treasure Van

At the External Affairs meeting last night, the final results of the recent Treasure Van sale were announced. The project, sponsored by World University Services, gives aid to underprivileged universities around the globe.

The sale of handicrafts grossed over $5,000 in its four-day stay, about three-quarters of which went to the expenses incurred for publicity, travelling costs, and the original price of the articles. About $1250 was netted from the sale.

THIRD CHURCH SERVICE

FOR ALL MEMBERS OF THE UNIVERSITY
Sunday, 11 a.m. — Great Hall, Hart House

EUROPE

1955

STUDENT TOURS Sail May 28 or June 14 tourist class on S.S. Homeric from Quebec on special conducted tours limited to Students. A week in London, Holland, including Volendam and Isle of Marken, Brussels, Cologne, the Rhine by steamer, motor tour of the Black Forest, Liechtenstein, Austrian Tyrol, Barvarian Castles, Dolomites, Venice, Adriatic Coast, tiny republic of San Marino, Rome, the Hill Towns, Florence, Italian and French Riviera, French Alps, Switzerland, Paris, Motor tour of Scotland, English Lakes, North Wales, Shakespeare Country, Exmoor, Glorious Devon. Returning tourist class on the S.S. Homeric arriving Quebec July 26 or August 12, respectively.

INDEPENDENT TRAVEL Choose your departure and return dates; include as much or as little as you wish in the price category of your choice — all on a pre-arranged, prepaid basis. An itinerary that is made to order for you.

Ask for descriptive folders

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD.

57 BLOOR ST. WEST, TORONTO — WA. 4-1139

Management: J. F. & G. H. Lucas

Dans La Métropole

(Continued from page 1)

Hall. Le soir tous les Carabins vont à Nobleton pour une sauterie.

Dimanche matin le Père Lavery du Collège St. Michel dit la messe pour les Carabins. A deux heures une réception d'adieu à Wymilwood, Victoria College.

Nous sommes certains que le week-end sera un très grand succès comme dans le passé et contribuera à resserrer les liens d'amitié et de compréhension entre les Canadiens d'expression française et anglaise.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR RENT

Room, pleasant place to live, excellent meals; walking distance of University. WA. 3-7830.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1843 anytime.

FOR RENT

Large front bedroom; 2 male students; breakfast optional. CL. 8745 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. only.

STUDENT RATES:

TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE

Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details! Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

Enjoy a pipe with Sir Walter Raleigh

MILD BURLEY
TOBACCO

at its best...

Enfin Les Voila, Nos Carabins

—VSP by Ed Hoshkiw

Carabin Crowd Arrives Here To Attend Parties And Kibitz At Lectures

By ROGER SMITH

Drums were thumping, trumpets were screaming and short-skirted college cheerleaders pranced as 36 high-spirited University of Montreal students chugged into union station here last night for a four-day annual Carabin week-end.

The French-speaking students will sit in on lectures, attend parties and make general merriment during the stay.

Later this year a group of 40 U of T students will make a return visit to the Quebec metropolis.

On hand to give the Montrealers a royal college welcome was a group of about 50 U of T students who managed to make themselves sound like 500.

The station concourse, already teaming with about a thousand immigrants awaiting friends on a boat train from Quebec City, began to bounce when the first of the Carabins poked through the doorways leading from the station platforms.

A hastily got-together Blue and White band blazed into the Toronto song and the cheerleaders gave out with the appropriate yell. Then amid the bustle and confusion, came "Allouette" with lusty vigour.

As station officials tried to clear a path through the display for other passengers getting off the train, the students pushed their way gradually toward exits where they were piled into cars and whisked up to Brennan Hall for their first taste of Toronto hospitality.

Noon dinner for the Carabins will be staged in Hart House, to be followed by a hockey game in Varsity arena between the Carabins and a U of T scrub team.

Saturday will see a discussion in Carr Hall at 2.30 p.m., which is due to break into a party.

On Sunday a special mass will be held, according to student arrangers and at 4 p.m., the students are due to leave again for home.

UC Opens $2 Million Men's Residence To Celebrate Lit Society Centennial

Big things are in store at University College over the week-end.

On Saturday afternoon, the new $2,000,000 Sir Daniel Wilson Men's residence will be officially opened. Also, a newly-renovated West Hall of the college will be rededicated at a special ceremony.

Tonight, a special meeting of the college's Literary and Athletic Society will mark the 100th anniversary of that organization.

Students leaders at the college said they expected about 350 ex-students and friends of the college would be on hand for the celebrations.

The week-end gets underway tonight with the meeting of the literary society at which, according to Lit President Marty Friedlander, the controversial "tangible gift" matter will be thrashed out.

The tangible gift is an accumulated fund of some $400 which has been collected by the Literary Society over the past several years. The money was earmarked as "a gift" to the college.

Princeton Prof, Rev. Dr. Lehman To Give Sermon

The Reverend Dr. Paul Lehman will deliver the sermon at the third All-University Church service in the Great Hall of Hart House at 11 a.m. on Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Lehman was a pupil of two celebrated European theologians, Emile Brunner and Karl Baith. He later taught at Wellesley College where he rapidly established himself as one of the best known names in the revival of Orthodox Protestantism in the United States.

He is now professor of Applied Christianity in Princeton Theological Seminary.

At a meeting earlier in the term, the idea of using the money to purchase a television set for the new residence was turned down.

Following the Lit meeting a debate is due to be staged in the JCR between graduates and undergraduate students.

A luncheon in the Library of the College — which will be renovated for the occasion in to the East Common room — will lead off an afternoon of special features Saturday. The banquet will be primarily for graduates, an official of the college stated.

At 2:30 in the afternoon, the newly-renovated West Hall of the college will be re-dedicated. Alumnae and Alumni of UC financed the cost of placing some 350 new chairs in the Hall.

The new men's residence will be officially opened at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Bruce MacDonald, the oldest living graduate of the college will officially open the building.

An academic procession from the west arch of University College will wind across to the new residence, reputed to be the most modern in the country.

Swiss Miss

Likes Land's Looks

By SANDRA SKY

Elizabeth Disler of Basel, Switzerland, is a charming and intense young woman, in fourth year Physics and Biochemistry, with some strong impressions of Canada and its way of life.

She got her first glimpses of Canadian landscape when she came over in 1953 to marry her geologist husband. Although she has never been to the Rockies, and so was unable to compare them to the Swiss Alps, she nevertheless was struck by the vastness and solitude of Canadian territory, particularly as viewed in Northern Ontario. "In Europe," she said, "one has the feeling that every square inch is occupied. Here, there is an unbounded extension of freedom." "It's a thrilling experience to go into bush country where no one before you has settled." This, Elizabeth was able to do, when she was cook for her husband's mining camp.

Of course, the hackneyed question was posed, of how she found her reception in Canada. There was no hesitation at this point. Mrs. Disler asserted immediately, that it was much easier to come here as a stranger than to go elsewhere in Europe. "At a European university, you can go an entire year without meeting any more people than you knew when you first came there. Here, people seem to be naturally helpful, warm, and friendly."

But perhaps the most enlightening part of the interview, was Elizabeth's impression of post-war Europe. In talking with her, we found that many of the popularly pre-conceived ideas of Europe . . . a holiday land with a holiday people . . . were nothing more than fantasy.

"Europe is a country predominantly blanketed with fear and insecurity," she said. Apparently, there is a duo-enigma which adds even more to the confusion. Although Europeans realize the need for a close Western alliance, because of the proximity of the threat from Russia, there is no desire for complete dependency on the West.

Another current controversy . . . European sentiment towards the United States was also discussed. "It is true," Elizabeth verified, "that right after the war, there was a tendency on the part of the young German crowd to imitate its American counterpart. But, on a recent return home, I have noticed this fad disappearing, and a general resentment towards the States is found in many parts. This is prompted partly by tourists, and partly by commercial reasons, but, nevertheless, the attitude is there."

In closing the conversation, Betty struck a note, which we would all do well to remember and appreciate. "The youth in Europe are a disillusioned lot," she said. "Although the general apathy towards life which existed right after the war is gradually subsiding, there is still an overwhelming pessimism . . . a sense of futility, in building for a future that may not even be there. In Canada, there seems to be an unlimited future. One is fairly certain of attaining one's goals, with a little bit of effort."

If ever there was a stimulus to inspire, this must be it.

Philosophy of Spinoza Outlined At Savan Lecture UC West Hall

"Spinoza possessed an uncompromising vigour with which he transferred his philosophy into his life," said Philosophy Professor D. Savan in his lecture on Spinoza's Life and Philosophy yesterday afternoon.

Professor Savan described Spinoza's life with passages from his autobiography, and said that Spinoza, who rejected the benefits of fame and wealth to seek after a new principle, "not only lived his philosophy, but every event in his life illustrates some passage in his writing."

Spinoza stripped away imaginary finery to reveal the single command — "do justice and love thy fellow man," and said that virtue is Heaven itself and vice its own reprobation, said the philosophy professor.

"Contradiction bestrewn his writings," Spinoza states that God loves no one and later declares that God loves himself and therefore men also. "Clarity is neither given in his writings or his life," said Prof. Savan.

Ontario Region Uranium Centre Mines Minister

Ontario will be one of the most important uranium regions in the world, stated the Hon. P. T. Kelly, Ontario Minister of Mines, speaking to a meeting of the Mining and Metallurgy Club in Hart House last night.

The Hon. Mr. Kelly said that over 40,000 new mining claims of all kinds were recorded in Ontario during the first ten months of 1954 — a figure unsurpassed in Ontario's mining history. He described the new mining areas that have been opened up in Ontario recently, and said that the recent Manitouwadge base-metal discovery "promises to be one of the greatest mineral finds in Ontario."

The Mines Minister also went on to speak about the "two great areas of iron ore development — the Steep Rock Lake area and Sault Ste. Marie."

Mr. Kelly told the assembled students that their future life would be both an interesting and a profitable one. He said that "without the benefits of the science of metallurgy, one of the world's richest mining areas (Ontario) would be a shadow of its present self."

CHARLES PEAKER

— with —

MARIE PEAKER

A. Major Concerto . . . Liszt

Saturday, December 4th at 4 p.m.

St. Paul's Anglican Church

Gifts to Last
CHRISTMAS BOOKS*Fiction:LEAVEN OF MALICE, by Robertson Davies.
THE CHARTERED LIBERTINE, by Ralph Allen.
A FABLE, by William Faulkner.Biography:ATOMS IN THE FAMILY, My Life with Enrico Fermi, by Louis Fermi.
EMILY CARR AS I KNEW HER, by Carol Pearson.
LORD M. The Later Life of Melbourne, by Lord David Cecil.The Arts:FIFTY CENTURIES OF ART by Francis Henry Taylor.
ART NEW ANNUAL 1955 Edition.
THE PICTURE HISTORY OF BALLET, by Arnold Haskell.Poetry and Drama:UNDER MILK WOOD, by Dylan Thomas.
THE DARK IS LIGHT ENOUGH, by Christopher Fry.
THE CONFIDENTIAL OLIVER, by T. S. Eliot.
CANADIAN POETRY IN ENGLISH, by Bliss Carman.
Lorne Pierce, and V. B. Rhodentzer.
COLLECTED POEMS of Dylan Thomas.
TWICE HAVE THE TRUMPETS SOUNDED, by Tyrone Guthrie.
Robertson Davies and Grant MacDonald.And for Relaxation:FRESHWATER FISHES OF EASTERN CANADA, by W. B. Scott.
CANADA'S FLYING HERITAGE, by Frank H. Ellis.
SILKEN LINES AND SILVER HOOKS, by W. Sherwood Fox.
ABC OF BARBECUE
PICK OF PUNCH.A book for every taste and every ageSpecially Gift-Wrapped at theUniversity Book Store*For December Parties For New Year's Eve

BE CORRECT!

Go Formal

The

Syd Silver WaySPECIAL STUDENT RATES
MAKE SURE YOU ASK US ABOUT OUR SPECIAL RATES
FOR UNIVERSITY STUDENTS.MAKE AN EARLY RESERVATION.
CALL US TODAY!THE SYD SILVER CLOTHES SHOP

500 Yonge St. WA. 2-9105 83 Bloor St. W. WA. 3-1281

Hurricane Names Denote Indecision, Weather Festival Meeting Is Told

"If the Mama Hurricanes and the Papa Hurricanes never get together how is it that we get any Baby Hurricanes?" asked, Rupe A. Hornstein of the Toronto Weather Festival last night, explaining that female Hurricanes spin Northwesterly from the Equator while their hubbies spin to the South. Speaking in the Royal Ontario Museum on the subject of Hurricanes, Mr. Hornstein, Director of the Dominion Weather Office in Halifax, followed the history of Hurricanes from their earliest recognition, in the time of Columbus right down to their present activities.

Hurricanes, such as our own Hazel, are nothing new, said Mr. Hornstein. They have been happening in a pattern which has stayed regular since 1492, with slight changes from year to year, but no major or lasting deviations from the routine. The average number is 7 per year, 1933 having been the peak year on record, when 21 occurred, and the past 2 years seeing 8 each.

Hurricanes, as opposed to Tornados, storms which cover small areas, are built of whirling winds, which sweep over areas of thousands of square miles attaining wind-velocities of as high as 250 miles per hour about the "eye". Mr. Hornstein pointed out that the top wind speeds had not yet been measured because no instruments have yet been made which could withstand the tremendous force of the Hurricanes.

Canadian History has been changed by Hurricanes. Mr. Hornstein described a Hurricane of 1745 which destroyed a French Fleet sent to recapture Louisbourg from the English. The French ships arrived on the Atlantic Seaboard in September of that year, the worst month for Hurricanes, and were wiped out, their Admiral dying shortly after of heart-break.

Answering questions about why Hurricanes are given feminine names, Mr. Hornstein listed their characteristics, "unpredictable "traditions are not static," and "sometimes change into something strange. Skule Night changed from rowdy and uncouth Skule Nights of the past."

Earlier, Walter Suboch, president of the Industrial Chemical Club, asked for a constitutional amendment to change the name of his organization to the Chemical Engineering Club. The motion was passed on a show of hands.

vaccillating, capricious," saying, "surely these are attributes . . . feminine in nature." This line of masculine reasoning was challenged in a letter from one "slightly perturbed old lady" in Halifax, who wrote Mr. Hornstein that "anyone knows men are bigger 'blows' than women." The lady advised Hornstein to "name the next one 'Elmer'."

The whirling nature of Hurricanes, which enables them to lift huge objects from their foundations and carry them along in their path, was not known, said Mr. Hornstein, until 1650. Hurricanes, he said, are born only in Tropical regions and then they develop only over water. The water must be at least 81 degrees Fahrenheit for the air over it to react and create the Hurricane.

The North-Atlantic Hurricane Season lasts from May to December, with the peak month being September. Mr. Hornstein said that by the time most hurricanes reach the Maritimes they are in their decaying stages.

Forecasting Hurricane motion and route was described by Mr. Hornstein as "one of the most challenging and exciting" of the Meteorologists' jobs. He said that "Hurricanes tend to be rugged individualists in their actions . . . delight in breaking all the rules."

Reject Negroes In US College

Texas: Eight Negro students were denied admittance to Texarkana, Texas Junior College by a federal judge recently because they were unable to prove they met scholastic qualifications required by the college. The case, which has been before the court for almost seven years, was an attempt to force trustees of the college to admit the Negroes on an un-segregated basis to an all-White institution.

THEY'RE HERE!You can order your Torontonensis Now.*Nensis Reps. pick up your Sales Receipt Books in the SAC Office.*Campus capers
call for Coke

The accent's on hi-jinks at the Winter Carnival and a happy part of the occasion is refreshment . . . with delicious ice-cold Coca-Cola.

7¢Including
Federal TaxesCOCA-COLA LTD.

*Coke is a registered trade-mark.

CUP

Runneth Over

By MIKE CASSIDY

For those in the know, CUP stands officially for Canadian University Press. The purpose of this department is to receive all college papers from across Canada, and cull what is most of interest to Toronto students. Jokes are thrown in to fill space and to amuse Toronto students. Jokes from the Saskatchewan Sheaf? — well their only purpose can be to instruct.

That official purpose is really about last on the list of what a CUP editor does. In trying to find news, he has to cull through 15 or so American college papers. As well, he runs across such games as the Trainman News, "Official Weekly Publication of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen". Or the "Scintilla Tineretului" published in Bucharest. Those Communist students really make sure. Their paper is addressed to "The Varsity, Hart House, University of Toronto, Editorial Office, University College Basement, Room 78, Toronto, Canada". We can figure neither the name or the address. Dear reader?

Two days before the election, the "Democratic Digest" forecast a stunning Democratic victory in the States. "This is Britain" this month gives an article on Churchill. And the American Engineers is continually keeping the CUP editor up to date in science.

New York students should now have an easier time with their fraternities. Some 20 fraternities have been ordered to break their ties with national fraternity organizations, because of racial and religious discrimination clauses in the national constitutions.

Out in Manitoba, The Gateway reports that the Engineers at the U of M have published their own paper, The Gateway. Their traditional symbol, Lady Godiva, appeared on the front page, much to the despair of other students.

In the first place, they claim, her picture is historically inaccurate — Godiva did not wear a sheet. Also, medical students claim that the muscular development of The Gateway's Godiva indicates a more powerful frame than would seem probable in a female of the species. They charge that fraud has been perpetrated; and nothing in the picture would positively disprove this charge. Says the writer, Disappointed Critic: "We cannot be content with mere insinuation; we must know the facts. There is only one way the engineers can convince us that they are providing the genuine article. We propose that they do this as soon as possible."

The Gateway sports department reports; "Delta Gammas square off against Pembina 'B' girls". Would someone please give us the names of the "B" girls?

Up in Montreal, Sir George Williams College played host to 50 American students a week and a half ago. They came from nine New York Universities, including Columbia, Rochester and Syracuse. The visitors were wine and dined, met Montreal's new Mayor Jean Drapeau, and were received in Ottawa by students from Carleton College. They toured the Parliament buildings and were given a brief picture of Canadian government.

As well, they found time to attend various meetings on the George Williams campus. They heard lectures on Canadian Literature, Canadian Music, and a history of George Williams College. The weekend extended for four and a half days, and both Americans and Canadians report it a tremendous success.

ISSUE?

The Varsity will have four more issues before Christmas. These priceless journalistic documents will appear on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday of next week.

The Friday Issue will be The Varsity's annual Christmas Number, containing 12 pages of the best writing done this century. Watch for it, you lucky people!

Church Of The Redeemer

Bloor Street W. and Avenue Rd.

Rector:

REV. OWEN P. PRICHARD,

B.A., L.Th.

8 a.m.—Holy Communion.

11 a.m.—Holy Communion.

Sermon: The Rector.

7 p.m.—Evening Prayer.

Sermon: The Rector.

Park Road Baptist Church

Park Road and Asquith Ave.

Rev. C. G. Stone, D.D., Minister

Muriel Gidley Stafford, Organist

11.00 a.m.—Communion Scripture

Meditation

7.00 p.m.—"How People Are Changed"

TWENTIETH ANNUAL

CAROL FESTIVAL

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11th

8:30 P.M.

ST. ANDREW'S

UNITED CHURCH

Minister:

REV. W. MORRISON KELLY,

M.A., B.D., S.T.M.

EDGAR GOODAIRE, Organist

and Choir Director

11 a.m.—"Sunset into Sunrise".

7:30 p.m.—"Religion and Life

—4. The Problem of Suffering"

HOLY COMMUNION will be observed at both Services.

CCF Provincial Secretary Explains Essentials Of Financial Policies

"The CCF does not propose to lower taxes, but to give the people the full value for the taxes they pay," CCF Provincial Secretary, Ken Bryden told a Socialism la gathering yesterday. He charged that the provincial treasurer, Mr. Frost, has not yet been able to keep within his estimated budgets.

The greatest expenditure always seems to fall upon the highways, he said.

"The essence of CCF finance policy will be to convert a reasonable proportion of Ontario's enormous resources into provincial revenues, he said, to finance programs benefiting all the people.

Sickness benefit plans and

Other plans, such as a hospitalization plan, a supplement to the old age pensions, education and welfare are estimated to cost about 100 million dollars. No increase in taxation is needed, to achieve these goals, he declared.

"We in the CCF believe that by getting some sound business administration in the government money can be saved".

Each year Mr. Frost has a surplus which he keeps adding to the sinking fund over and above its required amount. Mr. Bryden felt that either the people are being overtaxed, or they are not getting the value of their money.

Mines, he said, which are nearly all on crown land, pay levies to the crown each year amounting to about six million dollars and still make a tremendous profit.

He said that the profits breweries and distilleries earn are too high in proportion to the taxes they pay. The government, he said, could take far more from them without affecting prices and still leave huge profits.

Ken Bryden

automobile insurance will be self-financing through a fund built from levied premiums.

Humanity Needs Both Religion, Science—Baha'i

"Humanity is like a bird whose wings are religion and science; it cannot fly with one wing alone", quoted Don Dainty, Graduate Studies, in expression of the theme of a talk on "Religion and Science" which led off the Baha'i sponsored discussion group Wednesday at 1:10 P.M. at Falconer Hall.

The historical conflict between science and religion was briefly sketched to illustrate the misery and waste produced by it. Present day tolerance of one for the other is thoroughly endorsed and indeed taught by the Baha'i faith, he said.

"Social problems which have resulted from the developments of science are resolved by the Baha'i teachings," he added.

According to Baha'i teachings, then, both religion and science must be recognized sources of truth for the further progress of mankind.

ST. JAMES' CATHEDRAL

Cor. King and Church Sts.

SECOND SUNDAY IN ADVENT

8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion

8.30 a.m.—Mattins.

9.15 a.m.—Holy Communion.

11.00 a.m.—Choral Eucharist.

Sermon: The Reverend R. E. Armstrong.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

7.00 p.m.—Evensong.

Fourth Sermon in Series on

CHRISTIAN FAITH AND

PRACTICE.

Sermon: The Dean.

Holy Communion — Tuesday

10.30 a.m.; Wednesday 7.00 a.m.;

Friday 7.30 a.m.

Mattins and Evensong — daily

at 9.00 a.m. (Tuesday 10.00 a.m.)

and 5.15 p.m.

VISITORS VERY WELCOME

BLOOR

MINISTERS:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse

Rev. Walter C. Sellars

ORGANIST

and

CHOIRMASTER

Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.

CONVOCAION HALL

Communion and Consecration

DR. HOWSE

7.30 p.m.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

Dr. Howse

The CAMPUS CLUB meets in

Bloor Street United Church

Assembly Hall, following the Evening Service at Trinity.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 5th,

1954

Freedom of the Pew

We often hear Protestants speak of the "freedom of the pulpit." But the freedom of the pulpit is no more important than the freedom of the pew. More than one clergyman has lost touch with his people and grown totally ineffective because free theological expression has been denied the members of the church.

Many people are afraid to say what they really think in the presence of their minister. This is an unwholesome condition that leads to religious dictatorship and a drying up of the springs of the spirit.

Unitarians believe in the freedom of the pew. We are not afraid to question our minister's statements. We feel completely free to disagree with him, and often do. Thus the faith of all is clarified and tested by the thought and experience of all.

If you believe in this kind of religious democracy, we invite you to join in our service this Sunday.

FIRST UNITARIAN CONGREGATION

175 St. Clair Avenue West (Near Avenue Road)

Sunday Service — 11 a.m.

REV. WILLIAM P. JENKINS, Minister

Sunday Broadcast: "Let's Think Together"

CHUM (1050 kc.) 10:30 a.m.

Third University Church Service

The Rev. Dr. Paul Lehman

Princeton University will preach

In The Great Hall, Hart House Sunday, Dec. 5, 11 a.m.

ALL Members Of The University Are Welcome

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Acting Assistant Sports Editor
Acting Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Wojtech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Carol Hoffman and Tom Virany
REPORTERS: Pat Moser, George Ingram, Mark Parkhill, John Gehl, Moisha Reiter.

ASSISTANTS: Roger McQueen, May Heland, Marg Kell
KIBITZERS: Rich Anco, Bob Brown, Mike Erdei

Yellow Roses

One of the great dangers, to which university students are subject, is the pitfall of supersophistication.

Many students are so painfully self-consciously intellectual that it becomes a barrier to the influx of ideas and a bulwark against that attitude of judicious inquiry which should govern their university experience.

Erroneous concepts of how a university student should disport himself, lead certain misguided souls to feign an attitude of intellectual pursuit.

Often they confuse the issue still further by affecting habits of mind and manner, which they believe to be the hallmark of the student.

G. K. Chesterton has aptly said that this age has lost its sense of wonder. Nowhere is this more evident than among certain students who consider honest curiosity a hangover from childhood.

Would a person be an individual in this his academic environment? Then let him not conform to a stereotyped non-conformity. Would he be an intellectual? Let him not take refuge in blasé indifference to the challenging problems common to all the ages. Would he achieve a happy, balanced life? Let him live like the stars, "unaffrighted by the world around them".

There is no virtue in being the fisherman's float that dances the tune played by the turbulent streams of pseudo-intellectual thought.

Or as they say, "You keep the grapefruit and I'll take the yellow roses."

Builders of Nations

Today our friends Les Carabins are on our campus for this university's famous annual Carabin week-end.

The purpose behind this exchange is to promote understanding between the students of the so-called French-Canadian and English-Canadian districts of Canada.

It was pointed out before Confederation by D'Arcy McGee that there was no room for talk of Irish-Canadians, or French-Canadians or Scotch-Canadians; but only of Canadians.

The very use of the phrase "French-Canadian" suggests a division of our country which we have allowed to become more real than we should.

However, since we have permitted, and in some sense reinforced, this unwelcome division, let the students of our country be in the first ranks of those who seek to destroy it.

While we do not believe that this age could accept the development of an overweening nationalism which would be a let and a hindrance to our satisfactory participation in international affairs, we do believe that there is room for the growth of a feeling of unity in our country—a sense of corporate strength which transcends the physical and linguistic barriers.

To this end we welcome our friends from the east, and add our little verbal brick to the superstructure we hope to see erected on such foundations.

Voice of Experience

by R. J. ROOKS

What I have to say is based on experience obtained in the process of graduating from an Honour Arts course.

The chief purpose of University education, it is often said, is to teach students how to think; a second object would appear to be to create an appreciation of the cultural achievements of mankind; and a third: to instill in the student some knowledge of his particular field.

Is the lecture system the most efficient means of achieving these ends, or is it, though not the best method, retained as a means of separating the wheat from the chaff; for it certainly tends to discourage some students, and to prevent others from acquiring the knowledge necessary to pass into the next year?

I would suggest that this is not the most efficient means in courses where the emphasis is on theoretical argument rather than factual knowledge.

Under the lecture system, a student must attempt to gather information in the form of notes, examine critically the statements of the professor, and at the same time follow the general trend of his narration. This is quite impossible, at least in the advanced years, and explains the absence of questions in most lectures. From talking to my classmates in their third and fourth years, I have come to the conclusion that almost all have only a very vague idea of what the professor is talking about — in courses which are at all abstract, and the tragedy is that this is more true in the courses given by the more brilliant professors, whose ideas are probably of most value.

Why not instead have the professor's notes mimeographed and circulate them among his students at the beginning of the year? The chances of their forming an adequate impression of his ideas would be increased many times. They would learn a good deal more from him than they can in the fast oral presentation of a lecture. Moreover students would be expected to study these notes in their spare time, and the lecture hours could be given to group discussion with the professor. The course would be covered in the same logical sequence, meeting by meeting. I am sure that many more students would then take a very active interest in their courses, for they would be able to appreciate and share in the discussion.

As it is most students rely a good deal on their reading to give them the ideas and information they require, while lectures are frustrating experiences whose net effect in interest is decidedly negative. One need only look around in the next lecture to see this. I am not advocating less than reading — this is essential; but under the new system it would be motivated by genuine interest and not the desperate need merely to get essays written and to pass the final. The discussion group would also much more effectively provide the student with the perspective towards his reading that is so essential, and it would give him a far more extensive and less superficial knowledge of the subject. I submit that the revision would also be far more pleasant and intellectually stimulating to professors.

It may be argued that some discussion groups are not successful either in awakening interest or improving the students' knowledge. This is true mainly in the first two years, and depends to some extent on the group leader. But the main reason is lack of interest on the part of students in the subject matter of the course. I believe that given written presentation of the professor's ideas, and the chance to discuss them, perhaps bolstered by allocation in rotation, of responsibility to lead the discussion, groups could become very successful.

It may also be argued that this system would make it too easy to pass the exam so that the purpose of the exam to differentiate between students would be frustrated. Now for the question whether exams are the best means of achieving this end and the possibility of this happening could be removed simply by broadening the exams to include a wider knowledge of the subject and to reward wider reading, with a wide choice of questions available.

Another approach which might receive more emphasis is the exposure of a student to the wealth of interesting information and ideas contained in the Main Library. It seems ridiculous that the student who is expected to realize a respect for, if not a liking of, cultural achievement, should be debared until his final or post-graduate years from browsing through the stacks, reading outside his field as well as within it, and gaining an appreciation of the interest books can have even for the average red-blooded citizen. Why, this is most needed in his first two years at college! In this regard, the location of book-shelves within the new Wallace Room is a step in the right direction.

—Robert J. Rooks,
Grad, Economics.

our readers write:

Little Blue Stickers

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Progress! Modernization! Keep up with the times! Some mottoes of the U of T? That's what we read in the Varsity and our city dailies. A new and modern residence, new and up-to-date library, new residence, new chapel, a snack bar with a juke box, have all been built. Yes Sir! The University of Toronto is meeting all the up-to-date needs of the student.

In the rush to meet these needs, it appears that one very important convenience is lacking and must be forgotten. — Proper parking facilities. No attempt whatsoever appears to have been made to create a convenient parking area for the students of this university. Unless he has a blue sticker for his windshield a car operator might as well have stood in bed. The Lord only knows how many uniformed and plain clothed guards are employed by the University to keep students with cars off campus and off parking areas within a reasonable vicinity of the campus.

Now I know the reason why Commerce and Finance students must pay higher fees than those in the other arts courses, it is to pay the salary of the sentry who vigorously guards the entrance of the economics building parking lot.

I mentioned a blue sticker, that "wonderful password to the stars". To obtain one of these, a student must live in North Bay and commute every day or he must be without the use of arms legs and head.

I could continue along with this topic, endlessly criticizing the meaningless parking tickets given to offenders who manage to slip into the "Back Entrance" when the janitor isn't looking, or the fee charged students to park behind the museum, etc. Something must be done! The majority of students no longer live in residence, or in the woods surrounding U.C. Those that do live in residence have no place to park their cars. This is the age of "the home in Bayview", not St.

George St; the age of the "two car family", not the horse and buggy. We have a bigger library, a larger residence, why not bigger and better parking facilities.
Mort Eisen, IV C & F.

What Are Women Like?

—Cartoon by Jas. Weiler.

IN DARK CORRIDORS

It is perhaps symbolic of Canadian sensibilities that the best work now on view at the Toronto Art Gallery should be found in dark corridors, and in the passing of neglected corners. Everyone who is concerned about artistic expression should make the journey, ten minutes by foot, to see a dozen drawings by Honore Daumier and six or seven of Picasso's illustrations for the Greek Comedy Lysistrata. You will have to look hard to find them but they are well worth it, moving in their simplicity, a source of comfort after seeing the official exhibitions. They are able to speak for themselves.

PANTON

For intellectual stimulus the seacher should go upstairs to a collection of three Canadian artists, L.A.C. Panton, R. York Wilson, and Yvonne McKague Hauser. This is very interesting as an example of the artist's search for truth, or whatever it is that makes him click. Mr. Panton found his media some time ago, I should imagine; at any rate in this collection there is nothing but soft uniformity saying nothing monotonously. His pictures bear the usual Canadian titles: Atlantic Elegy, Study No. 2 — but they could just as easily be Mosque at Sunrise or Perplexity in Brown.

WILSON

Mr. Wilson is busy changing his media: he's found a new gimmick. Time was when you could stand on the south side of Bloor St. at Avenue Rd. in the middle of the five o'clock rush and look over to Laine's Gallery and say, "Ah, another York Wilson". Mr. Wilson realized this finally and is changing. But don't be fooled. For an example of his old style, a late example, there is Una Familia, painted in 1952. This picture is held strongly together through a use of line which connects and relates every form and shape in the canvas. This gradually changes, in Janitzio Island and Mysterious Patcuaro, until we have in Cactus Forms and Indian Dance a sophisticated tranquillity brought about by a much looser composition and either softer and more mysterious colours or else using a palette that is predominantly brown with distinct shades. Mr. Wilson, in my opinion, still is saying very little and can appeal only to those whose desire to be modern is basically a timid and conventional one.

HAUSER

Finally we have Yvonne McKague Hauser. As a rule I dislike women who paint; but in Yvonne Hauser there is much power. Her earliest work shown is Moonlight Night, 1947. As the title may suggest this is bad. At any event there is no concept of form and a vulgar use of colour. Gradually, however, she works her way through Abstraction No. 1, a poor experiment in abstraction, through Silent Night, in which she is acquiring a sense of form to Sand, Sea and Space in which she gives us a window on a rather wistful world of considerable beauty. Then in Sugar Bush, October, and in Sunbathing, Georgian Bay she begins to wrestle with a convex form, used very differently by Oscar Cahen, and solves her problem brilliantly in This Green World. With the strength gained from this she proceeds to Sunset at the Sea, one of the better abstractions now on view in the Gallery. I do not know how long she can keep this up but she is important, especially in comparison with her co-exhibitors.

T. Daly.

5 p.m.

Wednesday afternoon's 5 o'clock piano recital provided an hour of very pleasant relaxation. At the age of sixteen, Paul Helmer is a capable student. Mr. Helmer comes from Kirkland Lake but studies now at the Conservatory. He has won a scholarship in composition and a Gold medal as a pianist.

He played first the Bach Chaconne in D minor from unaccompanied violin sonata, arranged by Busoni. The characteristic stately and sober bass theme and the accompanying harmonic variations were played with thoughtful care. Mr. Helmer paid a great deal of attention to the phrasing which was only occasionally marked by an abundance of pedal. In the Schubert Impromptu Op. 90 however, the pianist was more at ease. He seemed to be conscious always of the flowing melodic line. In general Mr. Helmer played in an intelligent way throughout the program, but especially in the Schubert Impromptu and the Liszt Hungarian Rhapsody No. 11 did he display controlled fingering and even tone, indicative of a good pianist.

The three Debussy pieces, including La Fille au Cheveux de Lin, are somewhat disjointed in structure and therefore are likely to be uninteresting. However, they were performed with a delicacy surprising in a pianist so young. It was unfortunate that the Hart House piano was slightly out of tune. Just a few flat tones in the upper register were enough to make some of Debussy's harmonies unpleasant.

In this program Mr. Helmer did not demonstrate a powerful technique. He did, however, play with more musicianship than most of us will have acquired long past the age of sixteen.

Joan Fisher.

THE CREST

The Lady From Edinburgh

The Lady From Edinburgh is an ingloriously glorified soap-opera pretending to be a play. It contains some of the most expected situations, obvious platitudes and unfortunate lines ever written, contrived or perpetrated, and it is not even fun. Every turn that events are going to take, including the messily sentimental denouement, is perfectly apparent within the first five minutes of the play. The rest of the three acts, five scenes is spent in Presbyterian moralizing and the definition of love. The latter is so often repeated that the audience is seriously tempted to join in as chorus.

The fact that the Crest company gave this very bad play a very good production should have been a cheering thought, but produced instead a morose reflection on the unfair rewards of sin. Noreen Mallory's setting was so good that it was unobtrusive, while the valiant determination of the actors to speak perfectly idiotic lines as if they made sense kept us so interested in what can be done with a reading that the pain was lessened if not quite cured.

However, even Murray Matheson's loveably vague and squeaky professor, Betty Leighton's strong-minded Acot and Eric House's choleric nonentity of a father could quite dispel the gathering gloom. Amelia Hall's portrayal of the fluttering, scheming mother was so thorough that we cast her as the villainess, and the hope that she would get her come-uppance in the end strengthened us considerably throughout the middle. Joan Westlake as the dragon of a maid exhibited the most awe-inspiring back we have encountered in many moons, and George McGowan as the young doctor gave a more relaxed and sympathetic performance than in any role we have yet seen him play. Barbara Chilcott, on the other hand, so far deserted her usual dramatic style that she gave the impression of dropping in to say a few lines before dropping out again. All things considered we conclude that the Lady from Edinburgh was advertised as a domestic comedy because it was considered unfit for export.

Nancy S. Donnell

PAGE FIVE

Undergraduate Art Show

The Undergraduate Art Show is in the Hart House Art Gallery. A vigorous show this year; an improvement over last year's show if I can trust a short memory. More people are coming to see the show too; unfortunately not a result of increased interest in painting but of the picture the Art Committee saw fit to hang opposite the door.

A lot of the painting is undergraduate painting; some of it escapes the label — it's just good painting. All the artists show an enthusiasm for painting which in some cases is expressed in tube colours only. A few of the artists, —Gerald Finley, Jean Galt, Robert Bateman — obviously have a thorough acquaintance with the ways and means of picture-making that distinguishes them from the rest. These artists should perhaps try to extend their artistic means, in one case find a greater task to accomplish. Robert Bateman is the only one who is noticeably interested in experiment; of the others, Gerald Finley has developed an often successful technique, but his landscapes are so small it seems wasted — these are colour sketches. Jean Galt shows some well drawn — but not so well painted — portraits in pencil and oil or water-colour wash. Her drawing is excellent, the pictures speak of their subjects in lines, but the colour is something added later — like the colour in a tinted photograph.

The undergraduate painting usually expresses the artist's enthusiasm but a lack of discipline often interferes with the creation of a painting. A painting is an intelligible experience for the painter and the viewer only if it is created with respect to some frame of reference. The painter must try for coherence and consistency if only to give value to his inconsistencies. The inexperienced painter often misses this, and in so doing, misses the point of the job he is trying to do. None of the painters in the show are completely literal; this implies that they have rejected one possible frame of reference. In most cases they have not produced an alternative, and their painting in consequence lacks the organization that makes art of the artist's raw material.

Certainly the raw material is present. The painters have life and vigour — sometimes sharp insight, but they must use a little more thought, and make it serve their feeling.

The painting the Destruction of Sennacherib deserves mention. The artist has spread a small talent over a great area. He must have a colossal conceit.

Wood cuts and wood engravings by Alistair Bell are hung in the Print Room. This artist has a very nice feeling for his medium and the results are very good.

Michael McMordie

Destruction of Sennacherib

Destruction of Sennacherib by David Taylor. This picture appears in the Hart House undergraduate art show now in the gallery for another week. It is the largest canvas entered in the exhibit.

—YSP by John LeGallais

Tempora, O Mores

By DOUG STEWART

We looked around for Campus Ghost the other night but didn't see him. In view of this unforgivable failure to turn up, we are asking any other ghosts who happen to read this column to submit material or suggestions for future stories.

Twenty-five years ago to-day a professor expelled a talkative student from his class. "I will not be unfair," he threatened, "but I am going to do everything in my power to prevent your getting through this year. Disturbances annoy me."

Twenty-five years ago to-day, the University Anti-War Society decided to send a delegate to the International Student Congress Against War and Fascism. In the same issue, the Varsity contained a reference to the fact that several federal politicians accused some members of the faculty of fascist sentiments and demanded that they be expelled.

Fifteen years ago to-day, the Varsity contained an editorial about Russia's attack on Finland. "Imperial Russia is marching," wrote the editor, "There have been few who held to the illusion that the Soviet Union was a centre of idealism after the Nazi-Soviet pact, but they have always hoped against hope that perhaps the country that is ostensibly building a new social order would not indulge in unwarranted aggression, would not bomb hospitals and use incendiary bombs. There is little doubt now where Russia stands."

We read almost the same editorial in a down-down daily fifteen days ago.

Ten years ago to-day a crowd of two thousand youths, including students from the University of Montreal paraded through the streets of Montreal in protest against the Government's order-in-council sending home defense men overseas. It was Canada's largest anti-conscription demonstration.

Toronto students did not respond to the urgings of various groups that they stage a similar demonstration.

Five years ago to-day, the Wallberg Building was officially opened by Lord Alexander, Governor-General of Canada. Plans for the building were begun five years previously.

To-day students from the University of Montreal begin their week-end at Toronto. Vive les Canadiens!

FIRST ATHLETIC NIGHT SATURDAY

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

We have discovered to our amusement that there are three sports editors in the College newspaper world instead of just one, who will have red faces after the Blues won the Yates Cup last Saturday up in London.

Dave Patrick, of the Western Gazette, we have already mentioned predicted that the Mustangs would swamp the Blues by two touchdowns. For the amiable Mr. Patrick, we suggested at least disguising his infallible prognostications behind a pseudonym, or else not making them at all. Jim O'Grady, from the Queens Journal, was not so sure about Western's chances. Although he said that they "should upend the Varsity Blues", he at least expressed the hope that Varsity might come through with a win, and understandably so after the untimely demise of the Golden Gaels.

But down in Montreal, Mitch Klein, writing for the McGill Daily, advised not putting any money against the Mustangs. Not only that, but the extremely wise Mr. Klein went way out on the limb and took a large slap at Intercollegiate football in general, and at the University of Toronto in particular, in what looks like a choice bit of libel to us.

Said the erudite McGill writer, referring to the Blues' close shave out in Vancouver, "unassuming Bob Masterson, in order to dispell any worries which might have arisen in the minds of his wealthy alumni who foot the bill for his football squad, said modestly after the game, 'We could have won by a lot more if there was anything at stake'". Firstly, we don't think Bob said anything like that, as he himself called the Thunderbirds the most underrated football team in Canada, and secondly, Mr. Klein has for the umpteenth time this fall raised the interesting question of athletic scholarships, while levelling a bony finger at our own Alma Mater.

Whether our friend in Montreal knows it or not, we couldn't say, but athletic scholarships don't exist anywhere. There are at least one thousand students who attend this University every year, whose tuition is paid by some interested person. And only about ten of those students have any real athletic ability. Furthermore, in order to get into this College, you have to pass Grade XIII, and that's a great deal harder than most. We recall the time the championship football team from Humber-side went almost en masse to Western because most had missed parts of their Upper School and couldn't get into Toronto. Sour Grapes Mr. Klein.

From the Blue Room . . . The Yates Cup arrived yesterday from London, with a blue and white ribbon draped around it. Western have failed to place the championship plates for the last two years on the coveted trophy, they must have expected to keep it for awhile . . . Hockey game at 8:00 tonight, let's take a look at the Blues.

Rugger Blues Play OAC In Final

Come rain, hail or snow, Varsity Rugger Blues will make positively their last appearance for the season this Saturday, when they tangle with the OAC Aggies at Varsity Stadium in the finals for the Carling Cup, the championship trophy of the Toronto English Rugby League. For Blues, it will be the end of their biggest and best season since the top-dog prewar days. A look at the records of both teams, shows that things should wind up with the trophy coming to Varsity for the first time.

During the regular season, Blues ran roughshod over the other teams in the league, after a disastrous start when they were swamped by Toronto Barbarians. This they made up for last Saturday when they defeated the same team 11-6 in the cup semi-finals, giving Barbarians, last year's champions, their first loss in two years.

Aggies, newcomers this year from the Ontario League, also had a big year. They defeated the Blues at Guelph in their last meeting by one try, in a closely fought game where the Varsity team went over three times in the last three minutes, only to be called back each time as the referee had not been up on the play. With the cup at stake, Blues will be all out for revenge.

This year, Blues were given a shot in the arm by an unusually large number of recruits, ranging from rugger veterans who had been playing the game in Britain for ten years or more, to local talent new to rugger this year. One of the prime examples of the first group is Malcolm Drummond-Haye, Saturday's fullback. Scots-born, he's been playing rugger on all sorts of days in all sorts of ways, ranging from Trinity College, Glenalmond, near Perth, all the way to Egypt, where he played while serving his National Service stint — with the Coldstream Guards, yet.

TOM HARPUR

Big Tom Harpur, who will be throwing his 200 pounds around on the forward line, is playing this year for the first time, although he spent the last three years at Oxford watching the game at its best. While there he played for the university hockey team, but switched to rugger when he returned to Toronto.

The full team is: Drummond-Haye; Burger, Loughton, Butt, Chadwick; Lepper, Campbell; Kelly, Dunsmuir, Fayle, Baines, Ham, Harpur, Anderson, Gamble; Trillia reserve. Blues will kick off at 1.30 p.m. The afternoon, as always, will be the rugger event of the season, with Toronto

Puckmen Play Carabins Tonight Hoopsters Try Detroit Saturday

The first opportunity for the customers to see the Blue Hockey and Basketball teams in action comes up this weekend. To-night, at 8:00, Monsieur Therrien and his Flying Frenchmen from the University of Montreal invade Varsity Arena in the Intercollegiate Hockey opener, while Detroit Tech provide the opposition for the Blue cagemen in Hart House tomorrow night, as the feature attraction of the season's first Athletic Night.

Coach Jack Kennedy leads his Blue puckmen into their first league game against the Carabins almost at full strength. Only regular missing from the lineup will be hard-hitting defenceman Sam Ashton, who fractured his arm in an exhibition game, and is lost to the club for at least five weeks.

Hugh Curry, who has improved steadily in the last few games, will start in goal for the Blues, while Bill Moreau, John Tolton, Lou Appleby, Red Stephen, and Dave Jackson will form the defence corps.

The return of Ross Woods from the football field will add to the Blues' strength up front. Woods will work at right wing on a line centred by Don Caesar, last season's high-scorer. Johnny Akitt will play at the other wing on that line.

Ex-Marlie Dave Reid will centre the first line, flanked by Clare Fisher, and ex-St. Mike's flash Paul Knox, who is the Blues' high-scorer so far this season. Ernie Bodnar, John Adams, and Ken Lawson make up the other line, and Coach Kennedy will use no extra forwards for this encounter, as both Stephen and Jackson can capably fill a hole up front.

The Carabins have already opened their league season, with a 4-3 victory over Laval University last Saturday night in Verdun. Forward aces Bernie Quesnel, Claude Hotte, and Claude Dagenais will all be back to spark the Montrealeers' attack, while Cyrille Guevremont will be in goal. He played two seasons ago with the Carabins, when they won the Queen's Cup.

The game will begin at 8:00, and should provide some fast and furious action for the followers of the ice lanes, as the Blues set out in search of their first Intercollegiate championship in several years.

DAVE STEPHEN

PHE III Topple UC Gals 30-10 In Playoff Game

In intramural basketball playoffs last night, P.H.E. III downed U.C. Frosh 30-10, and P.H.E. II defeated P.H.E. I by a 26-11 count.

In the first game, the Phys. Ed. girls had just a little too much for the surprisingly powerful Red and White freshmen. The first two quarters were hard fought and Phys. - Ed's lead at half time was 9-3. In the third quarter, both teams found their scoring eyes. Irma Savagari, Marg Houey, and Anne Miller netted shots for U. C., while June Hansford, Mary Haza, Inger Olsen, and Joan Simpson were the scorers for P.H.E. In the final frame, Phys. Ed. cemented their victory with a seven point attack led by Mary Haza.

In the second tilt of the evening, P.H.E. II, led by Sylvia Kerr and Marilyn Charters, outplayed their freshies all the way. Sonny Axsmith with five and Ann Kiseck with four were the leading scorers in the 'I's losing effort. Other scorers for the victors were Georgia Brock, Ruth Marshall and Arlene Seaman.

The strongest collection of Varsity Blues, in Basketball terms, of many seasons, takes to the floor in its first home game of the season Saturday night in the year's first big Athletic Night. The Blues, whose record thus far in the season, is perfect, with two losses and no wins to their credit are well on the way to straightening out the troubles that have lost them their last two matches in the final three seconds of play.

The Blues, strengthened by the return of top ace George Stulac after the end of Football last week-end, are in the process of developing and organizing the team. Speed and snappy passing are the main themes of the Blues this year, with an excess of top ranking players making it impossible for any one-man shows.

Though the Blues are short compared to their opposition Saturday night, they are expected to control the rebounding, with such players as Potter, Marv Tile and Al Vaichulis going for them.

The Detroit team, having lost to the Blues by some 18 points in their single encounter last year, are back, bigger and better than before, out to even the record and show how good they really are. Centering the Detroiters will be big Dan Perkins 6' 4", the man who last year hooped a neat total of zero points against the Varsitys.

GEORGE STULAC

UC Whips St. Mike's

By AL EAGLESON

Playing before a capacity crowd in Hart House gym, the University College Redmen scored an 18-13 win over a never-say-die St. Mike's team to take a one game lead in the best-of-three finals for the Dafoe Cup.

Jack Rogers was the outstanding star of the game with eight goals, which ties a record set by teammate Nobber Watson two years ago. Watson was right behind with five goals for the winners, while Patterson had three, and the Riley twins, Terry and Tommy, had one each. Curt Russell and Terry Wheeler led St. Mike's with five each, and Jim McKinnon had three.

UC displayed their vaunted power in the first quarter and scored ten unanswered goals. Watson had four, Rogers and Patterson three each. Brown, in the UC nets, handled two shots with ease.

In the second quarter, Nobber broke his stick, and his attempts to acustom himself to another one were fruitless. From that time on, Rogers could not connect on his shots. Rogers, meanwhile, added two and Terry Riley one to offset Russell's trio of goals, and the score at half-time was 13-4 for the Redmen.

The boys in blue started off the second half with a flurry of five goals, four by Wheeler and one by McKinnon and closed the gap considerably. Tom Riley with one and Rogers with three more made the score 17-9 at the three-quarter mark.

In the fourth quarter the UC squad was content to rest. Nobber Watson amazed the crowd and the opposition with his amazing backhand passes to players in the clear. St. Mike's outscored them 4-1 in this quarter with Nobber tallying UC's final goal and McKinnon with two, Wheeler and Russell with one each, finished off the scoring for St. Mike's. Final score read 18-13 for UC.

Barbarians playing the Irish Canadians for the Ontario League championship immediately after the Blues' game is over. For the benefit of the uninitiated, an announcer will be explaining the finer points of the game

Baby Blue Cagers Play Hustlers Saturday Nite

If you are planning to attend the Athletic Night on Saturday, it would be worth your while to drop in early and take a look at Coach John McManus' Baby Blue basketball team. Rumour has it that this year's B.B.'s are the best in recent history, and a line-up loaded with former High School and Intercollegiate stars provides justification for this optimism.

Although the team's final make-up is still uncertain this early in the season, Saturday's starting club looks powerful. At centre is John Dacyshin, a T.D.I.A.A. all-star from Bathurst Heights C.I., who hooped 10 points against the Buffalo State freshmen on Tuesday. Harold Rotman, with the Blues last season and Jerry Wodjin, who played for West End Y's Canadian Juvenile Champs complete the forward line. Mike Balda, an Intermediate veteran, and Ed Rigby also of West End Juveniles are the guards.

This quintet will be backed up by several highly rated ball hawks including the Stroud brothers, Ron and Barry, from East York, who play guard and Intermediate footballers Mike Syron and Jack Rogers. Syron, a 6' 8" centre, was a standout for Etobicoke. C. I. Rogers, a third year Phys. Ed. student is probably the only Baby Blue ever drafted by a Big Four club, Ottawa having named him as one of their choices.

The team will number about 18 men before final cuts begin. Three players are expected down from the Seniors to add further strength.

The opposition on Saturday, Toronto Hustlers, also play in an Intermediate league and have several familiar names in the line-up, including former Blues Jack Gray and Bill Huyke. Gray holds the Hart House Senior scoring record, with 29 points in a game with McGill. Quarterback Harry Wilson also plays a strong game for the Hustlers. This game should be a colourful affair. The starting time is 7:00 p.m.

Wrestling Boxing At Athletic Night

Sideline attractions to the scheduled Blue Basketball game tomorrow night in Hart House will be the Interfaculty wrestling and boxing finals.

Weight-ins were conducted on Tuesday and the preliminaries have been held all this week. The winners of the wrestling titles in each weight will constitute the Intercollegiate Senior wrestling team, while the runners-up will be the Intermediates. Members of last year's Blue wrestling team, who are ineligible for Interfaculty competition, will have to challenge the Intramural winners for a position on this year's team.

The Boxers are doing things just the other way around. The Intercollegiate boxing team is pretty well selected, but each member is open to challenge by the Interfaculty champ in his weight, and should the Intramural winner defeat the Senior boxer, he will take his position on the Senior team.

In addition to this, there will be some Interfaculty swimming races, and the foil competition of the University championships in fencing. Following the evening's athletic activities there will be dancing in the main gymnasium.

TORONTONENSIS

— THE SHOWS RECAPTURED

GAMES TODAY

BASKETBALL PRACTICES

MAIN GYM — 1.00 — Med: 4.00 — Vic: 6.30 — Pharm: 7.30-9.30 — S.P.S.
UPPER GYM — 4.00 — Forestry: 5.00 — Arch.

Saturday a.m. MAIN GYM — 10.00 — U.C.; 11.00 — Dent.

VOLEYBALL PLAYOFFS SQUASH HOCKEY

1.00—SPS III vs. Trin. A—Sorria
5.00—Pharm. B vs. SPS V
12.30—SPS V vs. Med. III—Naylor, MacLean
1.30—Sr. SPS vs. Sr. U.C.—Reid, Fisher
4.00—Enman vs. Wye—Weinert, Naylor
5.00—SPS III vs. Dent. A—MacLean, McCracken

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

LOST

One pair of glasses, dark frame upper half; vicinity of Bay and Bloor and Victoria College, Charles St. Contact S.A.C.

FURNISHED APARTMENT

Lower duplex, five rooms, two bedrooms, always warm. January 5th to April 5th, $120 per month; references required. WA. 1-4079.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE

Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—RU. 6-3923.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

STUDENT RATES:

TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $1.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

FOR RENT

University district, flat house; good board; shared rooms. WA. 4-6923 — 18 Willocks St.

Coming-Up

SUNDAY

11:00 a.m. — NEWMAN CLUB—Medical Faculty Sunday — "The position of ethics in the sciences"—Rev. John Kelly.

2:00 p.m. — UKRAINIAN STUDENTS CLUB—Choir practice—404 Bathurst St.

2:15 p.m.—U of T FILM SOCIETY—"Way Down East" at Museum Theatre.

7:30 p.m. — VICTORIA CHURCH STUDENTS UNION—"The Creative Third Dimension"—Rev. Ian MacLeod in Wymilwood Music Room.

6:30 p.m. — NEWMAN CLUB—Music Appreciation Group in Club House.

8:00 p.m.—HILLEL — Choosing of delegates and policy — Hillel House.

8:30 p.m. — INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS ORGANIZATION—coffee hour and "Buddhism"—Dr. Robinson.

—NEWMAN CLUB — General monthly meeting — Club House.

MONDAY

1:00 p.m.—SCM—Race relations—"Testing groups and techniques"—Mrs. Donna Hill in SOM room, Hart House.

4:00 p.m. — SLAVIC CIRCLE—Executive meeting in Flavell House.

7:00 p.m.—VCU — Monthly meeting of the Assembly in Alumni Hall.

8:00 p.m.—UKRAINIAN STUDENT'S CLUB—General monthly meeting in UC Women's Union.

SKIERS

The first meeting for men interested in the Intercollegiate Ski Team, (preferably with racing experience) will be held on Monday, December 6th at 5:00 p.m. in the Staff Room, Athletic Wing, Hart House. For further information check with the Athletic Office.

Women's Basketball

SEMI FINALS AND FINALS

Hart House
7:00-8:00 Tues., Dec. 7th Winner League 1 vs. Winner League 6
8:00-9:00 Winner of Leagues 2 and 5 playoff vs.
Winner of Leagues 3 and 5 playoff

NOTICE—All teams supply own oranges. All teams supply one timer and one scorer. Come dressed ready to play. Coats may be left in the Fencing Room.

Please return any stray basketball pinnies to locker at O.C.E. — WE NEED THEM!

INTERCOLLEGIATE BASKETBALL TRY-OUTS

O.C.E.—Tues., Dec. 7th — 5:30-7:30.
Thurs., Dec. 9th — 5:30-7:30.
There are many openings on both the Intermediate and Senior Teams. All those not involved in playoffs this week are welcome. Games are scheduled for January and February.
COME AND TRY OUT! ... IT'S FUN!

Women's Volleyball Schedule

L.M. Mon., Dec. 6 Tues., Dec. 7 Wed., Dec. 8 Thurs., Dec. 9
5:00-6:00 P.H.E. U.C. Vic.
6:00-7:00 Meds. POT Dental Nurses St. Mikes
7:00-8:00 Pharm. Nurses
8:00-9:00 St. Hilda's

BLUE & WHITE SKATING PARTY

TONIGHT

AFTER THE GAME

10.30 p.m. to 12.30 p.m.

FREE — FREE

BLUE & WHITE BAND MEMBERS

HOCKEY GAME TONIGHT

Varsity Arena : No Uniforms :

TORONTONENSIS STAFFERS

Crucial meeting to discuss
SALES and CONTRACTED SPACE

Monday, December 6, at 5 p.m. in the office.

CREST THEATRE

TORONTO'S ONLY
REPERTORY
THEATRE

MT. PLEASANT
ROAD
HUDSON
9-9427

Murray and Donald Davis Limited present

UNTIL DECEMBER 11TH

BETTY LEIGHTON as

"The Lady from Edinburgh"

Nightly at 8.30 — $3.00, $2.25, $1.75, $1.00

Matinees: Wednesday 2.30 — Saturday 5.30 — $2.50, $1.50, 75c

SPECIAL STUDENT RATE . . . 75c

On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of 2nd Weeks of Runs

NO TIGHT, FUSSY CURLS HERE!

This hairdo was made with Bobbi
... the special home permanent
for casual hair styles

Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent is made to give you lovelier, softer curls . . . the kind you need for today's casual hairdos like the "Juliet" pictured above. A Bobbi wave is never tight, never frizzy. Right after using Bobbi your hair will have the beauty, the body, the soft, lovely look of naturally wavy hair. And it will stay that way for weeks and weeks!

Giving yourself a Bobbi is easier, quicker than you ever dreamed possible. You just put your hair in pin curls and apply Bobbi Creme Oil Lotion. A little later, rinse with water, let dry, brush out — and that's all! No clumsy curlers to use. No help needed.

Ask for Bobbi Pin-Curl Permanent. If you like to be in fashion — if you can make a simple pin curl — you'll love Bobbi! $1.75

Just pin-curl as usual. Apply Bobbi, rinse 45 minutes later. When hair is dry, simply brush out. No neutralizer needed. No curlers, no re-setting. So easy, you do it yourself.

Water Polo Blues In Action Play McGill Saturday Night

As a feature of tomorrow's first Athletic Night, the Water Polo Blues will be playing their opening Intercollegiate match against McGill University in the Hart House Pool.

The Redmen, who were very badly beaten by the Varsity club last year, have a much improved team, with several veterans returning. The Blues, on the other hand, have been seriously weakened by graduation, but have been steadily improving in recent practices. They have lost only one contest this season, that to the Hamilton Aquatics club two weeks ago.

Bibi Stipitec, the fastest shot on the team, is returning for the clash with McGill, while forwards Bernie Langer, Dick Gilmac, Barry Tobe, and John Bites should provide the Blues with plenty of scoring punch. In goal they have John Bullock, an Intermediate of last winter.

The Intercollegiate championship, the Hershorn Cup, is settled by a two game series between Toronto and McGill, this being the first one. The second contest will be held in Montreal next weekend.

The Intermediate Water Polo team saw action Wednesday night, when they lost out to the Hamilton Y in an Ontario Junior League game. The game was won by the Hamiltonians 13-12 on a disputed goal.

Ray Mandel potted five goals for the Baby Blues, while Len Rambush and Marty Kosoy tallied three each, and Steve Janes one. The Intermediates were behind 9-6 at the half but couldn't seem to catch the Hamiltons. McAndrew scored six for the winners, while Wallace with four, and Laing and Giedraitis with one each rounded out the Hamilton scoring.

Ha - Ha

Today I am hearing that at one o'clock in The Varsity office there is being a Workshop for all reporters and I am hoping there is being a meeting of all my old friends and colleagues and also I am seeing many new faces. I am believing that all the campus fish are eager to hear the Story - of - the - Week winner. So I am seeing you there.—

One-eyed Benny.

TODAY

1:00 p.m.—SCM — "The Christian Life" — SCM room, Hart House.
— VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP — Dr. L. Morgan, in room 101, School of Nursing.

4:00 p.m.—ITALIAN CLUB—Conversation in the Arbor Room.

8:30 p.m.—INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS ORGANIZATION—Social Evening "Snowflake Whirl" — at UC Women's Union.
—HILLEL—Student seminar of reconstruction by Alex Epstein—at 186 St. George.

Ho Hum, Another Centennial Food, Debates, But No Sex

Oh dear. More anniversaries, more grand smasher openings—more speeches, more officials, more receptions and banquets.

Ho Hum. The University College Literary and Athletic Society is having a special meeting to-night to celebrate its one hundredth anniversary. It will be followed Saturday by dedications, banquets, and things.

Seems we'd better say something about the Lit. It does things around UC.

Come to think of it, though, it has had sort of an interesting history. In 1904, for instance, President Hunter vowed to celebrate the semi-centenary by "holding the wildest, fiercest, and wickedest election ever". Wonder what they'll do this year — probably burn down Skule or something.

And just last year, the Lit. survived all sorts of nasty comments about the Junior Common Room, including aspersions on the quality of the coffee — ptomaine — coffee was the term used.

Actually, things might be interesting this week-end too. The meeting at 7.30 tonight includes debates and refreshments and all kinds of humour. And there'll be a fellow around tomorrow, who is only four years younger than the Lit.

But then, nobody's ever interested. Not pornographic enough. Ho Hum. Can't get sex out of the UC Lit.— there's only men in it.

Some people say that UC types are apathetic, but not more than U of T types, really.

Who goes to meetings anyway? Never anything but dry old talk about scads of initials. Lit. meeting might be different all the same — refreshments, you know. And you might even find out something you didn't know about this University of ours. Surprising as it may seem.

Ho Hum.

U.C. Lit. CENTENNIAL MEETING

To-night, 7.30 p.m.
JCR

- The Tangible Gift Question
- Debate With Grads
- Refreshments

B'NAI B'RITH HILLEL FOUNDATION

SABBATH EVE
FELLOWSHIP
"Reconstructionism"
A. EPSTEIN

Friday, December 3rd,
8.30 p.m.

Some tips on Christmas Hinting

Let's face it . . . you really need a Royal portable this Christmas.

So do your Christmas hinting early. For example, you might complain a bit about eyestrain (from studying hastily scribbled notes). Or, if you're away from home, a letter they can just about read should do nicely.

If you're extra adroit, you might even tell about one of those eager characters who make some extra money for themselves by typing notes for their long-suffering fellow-learners.

Remember . . . the fastest you can go in longhand is 30 words a minute—it doesn't take much practice to go twice that on a Royal portable!

WHAT TO HINT FOR: A sturdy, sweet-looking, fast-typing Royal portable! Has all the big machine features: Magic Margin™, Tabulator, Touch Control, Speed Selector, Line Meter, etc. In Tan or Grey, with smart Fiberglas carrying case, priced from $79.95.

the new rugged

ROYAL portable

®R.T.M.R.T.C.

THE WORLD OVER, MORE PEOPLE USE ROYAL TYPEWRITERS THAN ANY OTHER KIND!

EATON'S

Campus Favourites

You, too, will appreciate the feeling of comfort in these fine tailored in England trousers. You'll appreciate their trim lines, their exclusive waistband and the careful needlework throughout. Noteworthy, also, is the choice of woollens . . . worsted flannels and gabardines in blues, greys, browns, sepia, chrome yellow and venetian red. Waists 30 to 46.

Each. 25.00 to 32.50

Eaton's Budget Plan Terms with 10% DOWN may be arranged if desired.

Phone TR. 5111 Men's Clothing

Eaton's — Main Store — Second Floor (Dept. 229)
and Eaton's — College Street — Main Floor

The University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra

— and —
The University of Toronto

Mixed Chorus
Will Present a Concert in
Convocation Hall

Thursday, December 9th, 1954 — 8.15 p.m.

For Staff, Students, Graduates of the University
and their friends.

There will be no Admission Charge.
A Students' Administrative Council activity.

DOUBLE WINS FOR BLUES

He Keeps It Out

Varsity goaltender Hugh Curry blocks a Montreal thrust in the second period of Friday's Intercollegiate hockey opener in Varsity Arena. Poking at Curry's pads is Carabin winger Claude Dagenais who scored both Montreal goals, while Bernie Quesnel moves in for the kill. Blue captain Red Stephen comes in from behind to assist Curry. The Blues won the game 7-2.

Hockey Blues Win 7-2 Overwhelming Carabins

By JOHN WILSON

Playing in their best form of the season to date, the Hockey Blues opened the Intercollegiate schedule on the right foot, Friday night, trouncing the University of Montreal Carabins 7-2 in Varsity Arena. Highlight of the game was the Blue checking, which allowed the Montrealers only fifteen shots on goal, while the Varsity attack kept goalie Cyrille Guevrement busy handling fifty-one shots.

Ross Woods and Ernie Bodnar both tallied twice for the Blues, while Dave Reid, Red Stephen, and Paul Knox added a goal a piece. Claude Dagenais scored both the Montreal counters in the second period.

The Carabins appeared to be only a shadow of their former strength, when they whipped the Blues 14-3 in Montreal last winter. With virtually the same team back, aided by the acquisition of Gerard "Butch" Houls from Laval, the Montrealers were expected to ice a rough contender, after beating Laval 4-3 only a week ago. However the absence of clever winger Claude Hotte, who tore knee ligaments in the Laval game, hindered the effectiveness of the Carabins' famous first line, composed of Dagenais, Hotte, and Bernie Quesnel.

Ried opened the scoring for the Blues at 7:02 of the first period, taking a pass from Stephen to put Varsity in front 1-0. Montreal were shorthanded at the time, with Jean Desrochers off for elbowing. The Blues held the upper hand throughout the first stanza, allowing the Carabins only one shot on Hugh Curry, a long, easy one, while making twenty-two themselves.

B & W Christmas Tree Brings Gifts, Song

John McKellar of the Blue and White Society announced that the Blue and White Christmas Tree will be held on Thursday, December 16 at 8:15 p.m. in the Hart House Great Hall. The HH Glee Club will provide special Christmas music.

As in the past, Santa Claus, some prominent campus personage will be there to pass out the Interfaculty Gifts. Each faculty or college will exchange. "Appropriate" gifts with one another. Each gift will be accompanied with a few words or a skit.

A new regulation this year limits each exchange to three minutes. The "Gag Rule" will be strictly enforced to avoid the recurrence of last year's "run-ons".

The HH carillon will be played for a half-hour before the Christmas Tree begins.

All male students and coeds with their escorts are invited. As the students will probably be sitting on the floor for the evening, they are advised to bring blankets or pillows to sit on.

Knox made it 2-0 after a goalmouth scramble and less than two minutes later the Blue power play paid off again as Woods got his first tally of the night while Gastin Perrault was sitting out a hooking fine.

Stephen gave the Blues a lengthy 4-0 lead with the second period less than two minutes old, on a clever solo effort, shifting the Montreal defence completely out of position. Bodnar made it 5-0 at 4:32 and the Blues settled back to enjoy their lead.

Now trailing by five goals, the Carabin attack began to find its feet, and Dagenais put them on the scoreboard at 6:10 and 13:22 with two nice goals, one coming while the Montrealers were shorthanded themselves. The Carabin splurge was shortlived however, as the big first line, with Norman Bradley replacing the injured Hotte, showed only flashes of their vaunted brilliance. Bodnar increased the Blue margin to four goals at 15:59 with his second counter of the night, as the Blues came

(Continued on Page 7)

Basketball Blues Edge Detroit Leo Madden Hoops 26 Points

By MOISHE REITER

Varsity's Basketball Blues hinted at great things as they defeated the visiting Detroit Tech 68-63 in their Hart House debut last Saturday night, but proved only that they have a long way to go. Though they led all the way, the Blues, who defeated the Detroiters by 18 points in last year's match, were not the better team on the floor. The Varsity edge lay completely in their accurate team-play and working of the ball was done by the visiting Purple team.

On paper the strongest team to represent Varsity in several years, the Blues, after three exhibition games, still lack a penetrating attack, and except for a fast break must rely completely on the accurate eye of

Leo Madden and the speed of Peter Potter and Don Fawcett. Madden scored 26 points, topping all scores, while Fawcett hit for 16 and Potter followed with 15. Most of these shots were scored from well outside the keyhole. Even against the Detroit defense, which they penetrated so easily last year, the Blues could find no way of working the ball in.

Even the much-acclaimed Hart House zone defense, which has won a large number of games for the Blues in the past was cut open by the Detroiters. Beginning with a fast, sharp passing routine, the Detroiters cut the Varsity zone apart, pulling the three front men from side to side, and confusing the two back players. Then with Jim Tatsac and Dan Perkins throwing from either corner, the Detroit team began to hit on an average of one out of every three shots, pulling even with the Blues.

The biggest surprise of the night was the comparatively dull play of George Stulac, undoubtedly the best basketball player the Blues have ever had. Stulac seemed a little stiff in his play, at times fouling unnecessarily, and generally lacking the smooth confidence that is his trademark. This may be explained by the fact that he has only this past week returned to basketball, after playing at end with the championship football Blues. In spots George showed his usual form, but seemed much displeased with his own work. It is perhaps a tribute to his skill that despite this, he was among the outstanding players on the floor.

The big Varsity problem was to find the tall men to fit the speed and precision passing of the deft small men. Bob Masterson will have to find a solution to this before the season opens. The best of the tall men working Saturday night were Marv Tile and Art Binnington. But neither did more than grab rebounds. The best rebound man on the floor was also one of the smallest, Peter Potter of the springy legs.

The absence of Johnny Braithwaite, former Varsity and Tri-Bell star, could mean a great deal to the Blues, and he was missed Saturday night. The play-making skill of this expert basketball player, who watched the game on crutches, having suffered a chipped bone in his ankle maximum delays?

(Continued on Page 7)

Hoskin Stoplight Vetoed

After "examining the facts in detail", the City Traffic Department will not give approval for the installation of a pedestrian-operated stoplight at the student crossing on Hoskin Ave. Such was the nature of the reply made by Traffic Engineer Burton to the facts and figures presented him by the Toronto Safety Council, a civic body, in the face of an informal approval of the project said to have been given to Trinity College enquiries by their Finance sub-committee.

The reasons for this decision are said to center about the relative traffic density at the crossing. It was reported that there are approximately 100 other mid-block crossings in the city where the accident experience is worse and the traffic flow heavier. These were not enumerated. Another point was made that the maximum delay to pedestrians was insufficient to warrant stopping the flow of automobile traffic.

"Burton has side-stepped the whole issue," complained Bill Angus, President of the Students Administrative Council. SAC feels that the motorist is getting off too easily in the eyes of the City Traffic Department when they pay so much attention to his convenience and not enough to the safety of the students who hourly must take their chances at the crossing. He feels that in view of the two-way flow of high-speed traffic past this spot, some means of compelling the motorists to give the students a break is absolutely necessary. Always stressing safety, he pointed to the measures adopted to control the one-way flow of traffic on Queen's Park Crescent for the benefit of Victoria College students.

Growing concern is now being evinced over future prospects of the Hoskin crossing. The members of the Phi Chi fraternity on the north-west corner of Harbord and St. George Streets have been given until June 1955 to vacate their present house on that site. It is to be expropriated by the Traffic Department for the purpose of straightening out the present dog-leg at Hoskin-Harbord-St. George. It is feared

(Continued on Page 5)

All Set For The Weekend

Here is part of the Carabin group from the University of Montreal as they arrive in Toronto to spend the weekend with forty U. of T. students. In the centre is Claude Dupras, the leader of the French-speaking students.

Ils Sont Arrivés

As the train for Montreal pulled out of Union Station yesterday afternoon with cries of "Quel week-end", "Dans la metropole . . .", "we're counting the days" still lingering in the air, the hosts of Les Carabins rested for the first time in their long, long weekend with the happy assurance that the visit from the University of Montreal students was a complete success, both intellectually and in the acquisition of new friends.

At the start — last Thursday night — there was perhaps a slight note of hesitancy, of skepticism visible in the actions of both the welcoming U of T students and their visitors. But the discussions — both formal and informal, the lunches, the parties, the friendly atmosphere throughout the weekend left the hesitancy far behind. Said Jane Farquharson, SAC chairman of the Weekend Exchange Committee, (sleepily), "It was a tremendous weekend. We really felt that we got to know them, and became their friends."

It all started with the welcome at Union Station, complete with cheerleaders and the Blue and White band. After more and more tired businessmen went by the colorful welcoming committee, finally came Les Carabins, quite conspicuous with their blue hats, complete with yellow whoozits and pom-poms. They even had the conductor singing 'Alouette'. Principal Jeanneret welcomed them in what one girl described as "better French than I speak".

The group then repaired to Brennan Hall where a skit "The Highwaymen" was presented by the U of T representatives. Jane Farquharson was received with loud cheers when she opened her welcome with "mes chers amis". Claude Dupras replied for Les Carabins. Then the group literally sang themselves to sleep, complete with such numbers as 'Hallywettah', the 'English' version of Alouette.

Friday morning was taken up with lectures — all the Carabins went to at least one lecture with their host. One dietitian at the U of M made the sacrifice of going to an international relations lecture here, which shows that conviviality was well under way.

Elizabeth Arden Salon

Choose a

Casual

Cut . . .

for

Easier

Hair Care

You need a cut that takes a minimum of care, for busy campus life. A cut that adapts itself to daytime or date-time. A cut that's new, to match your new college clothes. In the Elizabeth Arden Salon, a corps of experts is ready to give you the cut you need . . . the style that's suited individually to you.

Phone first for your appointment—
call TRinity 9111, local 3041—
the Elizabeth Arden Salon.
Simpson's — Sixth Floor

Simpson's

Attention Masthead

It is imperative that all members of the masthead who have not had their pictures taken for the Christmas issue to be in the Varsity office from 5.00 to 6 p.m. today Monday December 6.

There will be three more issues this term. Tomorrow's paper will be four pages, Wednesday eight pages and Friday's twelve page edition.

Organizations wishing publicity for the following week are advised to take notice of this schedule.

For a Light Smoke and a Pleasing Taste

Call for

PHILIP MORRIS

THE MOST COMFORTABLE SOCKS YOU CAN WEAR!

HAPPY FOOT

HEALTH(SOCK)

NEW!—
comfy-cushion top

—Eliminates
leg-binding,
keeps sock up.

You'll be
"at ease"
from head to toe.

INSIST ON...
HAPPY FOOT

The original cushion sole — for
that "walking on air" feeling.

At your favourite hosiery counter

McGregor

EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED FOR 90 DAYS WEAR BY

QUALITY SOCKS FOR MEN AND BOYS

Entrez-vous mes amis

Warden McCulley and Jane Farquharson extend a hearty welcome to Father Gregoire and Claude Dupras, leaders of the visiting Montrealers, at a reception in the Warden's apartment, Hart House.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

LOST

One pair of glasses — dark frame upper half. Vicinity of Bloor and Bay and Victoria College, Charles St. contact S.A.C.

FURNISHED APARTMENT

Lower duplex, five rooms, two bedrooms, always warm — January 5th to April 5th — $120 per month. References required. WA. 1-4979.

UNIVERSITY DISTRICT

Flat house: good board; shared rooms. WA. 4-6025 — 18 Willocks St.

BAND

Tri-o or small dance band available for dances or parties. Call Johnny. CHerry 1-5939.

STUDENT RATES:

TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

EXPERT TYPIST

Fifteen years experience, specializing theses, maximum charge thirty cents per double-space letter-size page. Mrs. Grossman, 966 Castlefield Ave. HU. 1-1041.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1843 anytime.

SALES PEOPLE

Major Airline requires immediately sales people, male or female. Salary $270.00 per month, regular increases, company benefits. Excellent future. Phone EMpire 8-4967.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE

Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3928.

The University of Toronto

Symphony Orchestra

— and —

The University of Toronto

Mixed Chorus

Will Present a Concert in
Convocation Hall

Thursday, December 9th, 1954 — 8.15 p.m.

For Staff, Students, Graduates of the University
and their friends.

There will be no Admission Charge.

A Students' Administrative Council activity.

... et Partis

A tour of Hart House and lunch followed, the fraternities, and—yes—the new University College Men's Residence.

In the afternoon Les Carabins took over the Victoria College Union with a discussion of "Regionalism". Leo Gray, IV SPS, spoke for Toronto and M. Gaboreau spoke for Les Carabins. Then the discussion broke up into groups with such varied topics as religion, education, family life, Duplessis, bridges, Duplessis, and Maurice "the Rocket" Richard coming up. Said John McKellar of the discussions: "They aired a lot of prejudices and gave us a real basis for mutual understanding."

Then off they went again—to coffee, to Warden McCulley's apartment for a reception, to a banquet in the Great Hall. Although the Carabins lost the hockey game that night, their supporters were far from discouraged. Indeed, they gave lessons on how to say "You wuz robbed", and "the ref is bribed" in French. Afterwards a party was held at the home of Dianne Haas, which was nothing short of 'smashing'.

Saturday was busy too. Some went shopping, on a tour of the city, or just stayed in bed in the morning. Then it was off to an 'excellent' luncheon, sponsored by Molson's brewery. The afternoon was taken up with more discussions, livelier this time. Father Lavery summed it up with "there are certain basic things upon which we all agree—much disagreement is only a difference in language."

Probably the most informal and cheerful get-together of the weekend was the party and square-dance held in Nobleton Saturday night. There were bunny-hops and cheers and Mexican hat dances—and Joe Shlunk the midget sang and danced.

Then it was time to go—after mass Sunday morning, and lunch with their hosts, they went off—singing, shouting, and yelling, to Union Station. They formed a circle—they did a kick-line—they sang Auld Lang Syne both in English and French. Then the Carabins broke from the group to take their train. "Au revoir, Carabins".

Weekend Highlights—

—the casualties included, among other things, 1 car, 1 shoe, 1 scarf, and 2 frat pins.

one boy said that he "hadn't lived until this weekend."

—English Canadians (male) were described as "blond and nice".

—French Canadians (female) were described as "relaxed and feminine"—but U of T girls were much admired for the spirit and industry they showed in doing things on the campus.

—then there was the girl who couldn't decide whether the Toronto yell had "Ripperly" or "Rhapsody" in it.

—most were surprised to learn that 42% of those in Ontario are Catholics.

Miss Quartier-Latin—Louise Poirier—was present and was quite a hit—Les Carabins were surprised that there was no such similar institutions here—perhaps we can use imports.

Au revoir, nos amis.

In A Calmer Moment

Dr. Farquharson (second from right) and Doug Hamlin (far right) chat over teacups with five Montreal students. This tea, a farewell salute to the visitors, was held in the modern Vic Union Building.

Vic Music Club Hails Mikado

One of the brightest flowers in this spring's theatrical garden will be the Victoria College Music Club's production of Gilbert and Sullivan's sunny satire THE MIKADO. The seventy-five year young opera will be presented in Hart House Theatre early in February, with a cast of 50 under the direction of Messrs Godfrey Ridout and Geoffrey Hatton.

Vic Music Club is considered to be one of the finest of Toronto's half-dozen semi-professional G & S companies.

Recent rehearsals saw the nine coveted principle roles awarded. The Mikado of Japan is James Medcove; his son Nanki-Poo is Grant Brooks. The post of Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner of Titipu, will be filled by Ray Carl, that of Poon-Bah, Lord High Everything Else, by Bill Metcalf. The roles of Yum-Yum, Pitti-Sing and Pkep-Bo, the three wards of Ko-Ko, are in the competent hands of Anne Hossack, Jean McNeil and Marg Kerr. Dave Watts will play Pish-Tush, a noble lord. Mary Thomas has the part of Katisha, an elderly lady in love with Nanki-Poo.

TODAY

MONDAY

1.00 p.m.—SCM—"Testing Groups and Techniques"—Speaker Mrs. Donald Hill—Hart House—HILLEL FOUNDATION—Discussion Group—Hillel House.
4.00 p.m.—CANTERBURY CLUB—Discussion Group on Nicene Creed—Rev. John Rowe—SCM Office—Hart House. SLAVIC CIRCLE—Executive Meeting—Flavelle House.
5.00 p.m.—SCM & PSYCHOLOGY

LECTURE

F. E. WINTER
Dept. of Art and Archeology
"FAMOUS SEIGES OF ANTIQUITY"
Illustrated Lecture

Monday, Dec. 6th

4.30 p.m.

Royal Ontario Museum Theatre under the auspices Archeological Institute of America.

Many A Slip

The Carabins took time out in their busy weekend festivities for a light snack. Giving the refreshment committee a helping hand is Father Lavery of St. Michael's College.

Literary Canada Topic at Library Night-Hart House

The Third Library Evening of the year will be held on Tuesday, December 7th at 7.30 P.M. in the Hart House Library.

The speaker for the evening is Mr. John Gray, the managing director of MacMillan's Publishing Co. Mr. Gray is a graduate of the university and admits to having wasted many hours in the Library. He spent some time teaching before joining MacMillan's. His hobby, as well as his work, is books.

Mr. Gray will introduce a topic entitled: "Canada—A Nation in Search of a Literature." He will mention problems of the Canadian writer, and the problems of the publishers of Canadian writing, as a springboard for discussion.

This is the second time Mr. Gray has spoken at a Library Evening. Men and women of the University are invited to attend.

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK

MONDAY, 6TH DECEMBER:

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m.—UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW. Also prints by Alistair Bell (Art Gallery).
10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel) Daily.
1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m.—SING SONG (East Common Room)
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m.—GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL—2nd tenors (Debates Ante Room).
5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m.—EVENING PRAYER (Chapel) Daily.
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m.—TABLE TENNIS (Debates Room) Running Shoes Required.
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m.—REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

TUESDAY, 7TH DECEMBER:

1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m.—LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room) "Murder in the Cathedral—Part I by T. S. Eliot. Produced by Robert Helpmann; Old Vic Company with Robert Donat.
7.00 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.—FULL GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL. (Music Room). Please be on time—timing for C.B.C. Broadcast.
7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m.—ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.—ART CLASS.
7.30 p.m.—LIBRARY EVENING. John Gray will speak on "Canada: A Nation in search of a Literature." Women are welcome.

WEDNESDAY, 8TH DECEMBER:

1.10 p.m.—COLOUR SHOW CRITICISM (Camera Club Rooms). Mr. W. J. Blackhall, past President Toronto Camera Club will give a criticism. Members invited to bring their transparencies.
1.25 p.m. - 1.55 p.m.—MID DAY RECITAL (East Common Room) Joan Faron—pianist.
4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m.—ART GALLERY—Open to women of the University of Toronto.
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m.—LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Mediaeval Art Works. Open to men and women (through Reading Room).
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m.—GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Debates Ante Room). 1st basses.
7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m.—BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). All Members of Hart House welcome. Prizes.
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m.—REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m.—HART HOUSE DEBATE: Resolved that "This House Wishes that the World were flat." Honorary Visitor—Professor W. J. Ruddock.

THURSDAY, 9TH DECEMBER:

8.00 a.m.—HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).
5.15 p.m.—WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.
7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.—ART CLASS.
7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m.—ARCHERY (Rifle Range).

FRIDAY, 10TH DECEMBER:

1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m.—SING SONG (East Common Room).
8.00 p.m.—9TH ANNUAL CHRISTMAS SHOOT. (C.O.T.C. Drill Hall, 119 St. George Street). All Archers invited to attend.

SATURDAY, 11TH DECEMBER:

Caledon Hills Farm—Victoria College Union Meeting over the weekend.

SUNDAY, 12TH DECEMBER:

2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m.—VISITORS SUNDAY. Members, and friends, relations et al.—all are welcome to visit the House. Tea available in Great Hall at 3.00 p.m.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR C. CLYDE BATTEN
MANAGING EDITOR ROBERT D. BROWN
News Editor Mike Pengelley
Assistant News Editor Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Feature Editor Mary Alice Hunter
Makeup Editor Irene Meyers
A.M. & D. Editor Wendy Michener
Sports Editor John Wilson
Acting Assistant Sports Editor John Wojtech
Acting Women's Sports Editor Flo Middleton
Photo Editor Ed. Hoshkiw
CUP Editor Chuck Williams
Mortician Ralph Berrin
Business and Advertising Manager E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742
IN CHARGE: Irene Meyers
NIGHT EDITOR: Roger MacQueen
REPORTERS: Jo Patrick, John Rick, Jack Ellis,
John Gehl, Tony Raniowski,
George Ingram
ASSISTANT:

The Lower Register

One of the more irritating characteristics of university professors is a certain condescension toward undergraduates, which manifests itself in a profound disregard for the validity of the ideas of the undergraduates.

No one can doubt that the professor's knowledge on any subject is superior to that of the student. However, the belittling of the student's opinion is not conducive to the development of his capacities.

To express contempt, either in word or deed, of the fumbling attempts of the undergraduates to reach a higher level of self-expression, is to mark oneself down as unfit for the teaching profession.

That teacher who places the "classics" above examination, who has no respect for the mind of his students, and who meets with ill-concealed contempt the intellectual offerings of those in his care, has betrayed his position, made a mockery of his task, and perpetrated what must surely be the gravest of crimes in an academic community.

There can be no room for intellectual conceit in such a community. We are all here to pursue one goal, the goal of truth.

In the university the criterion for any idea is its validity, not the fact that it is espoused and promulgated by some "authority".

It is to be hoped that in our common search we may eschew such personal vanities as lower us to the common register.

Civic Apathy

Toronto's Traffic Engineer, R. L. Burton, does not think that the stoppage of traffic occasioned by the installation of a stoplight at the Hoskin Avenue crossing is warranted.

Not only that but the demolition of a fraternity house at the corner of St. George and Harbord has been approved in order to facilitate the flow of traffic along Harbord and Hoskin Avenue.

In the near future it will be possible for motorists to travel along these streets with a minimum of delay.

It is unfortunate that the traffic engineer is so embroiled in the problems of moving traffic more quickly that he cannot consider the increased threat to student safety these two decisions constitute.

While it is all very well to talk in terms of "minimum delays" and traffic flows, where the safety of large numbers of students are concerned these figures must be relegated to a minor place.

A stoplight has been in operation for some time at the Vic crossing where traffic is moving in only one direction. Surely the situation which exists at Hoskin Avenue, where traffic is moving in two directions, and where many students are involved, demands at least equal consideration with the one at the Vic Crossing.

There seems to be no argument which can be raised against the erection of a stoplight except the unwillingness of civic officials.

national realignment

by HAL JACKMAN

The visit of the University of Montreal Caribins to our campus last weekend has once again brought to our attention the problem of a distinctive Canadian national culture. An article on this page in last Thursday's "Varsity" focused the problem and pointed out the need for a "national ideal" or a "super-regional" sentiment which would enable Canada to gain recognition in foreign eyes as an independent sovereign nation and not merely as an overgrown British colony or else as a Northern appendage of the United States.

However in this modern age of one world concepts, might it not be proper to re-examine the need for a distinctive Canadian culture. From an objective point of view, nationalism can never be a subject for a moral judgment. At best, nationalism can only be of benefit to a country which expresses its sentiments. To a Frenchman, German nationalism is a bad thing; to a German, French nationalism is a bad thing.

Perhaps in the twentieth century objective people should think of nationalism of any sort as a bad thing. But what about Canada? Do the proponents of a distinctive Canadian national culture have the same type of nationalism that leads to the principles of military self-sufficiency that have been the cause of countless wars and plagued Europe for the last one hundred years? I would hope not. In Canada, nationalism has always been identified with a struggle for autonomy. Previous to the early part of this century, Canadian Nationalism had been directed against Great Britain. At the present moment, Canadian Nationalism is a struggle to find some countervailing force which might offset the economic and cultural implications of living in such close proximity to the United States.

Therefore in order to justify Canadian nationalism it is necessary to prove that there is something in American Culture that is repugnant or ought to be repugnant to the Canadian people. We must ask ourselves what is there in the American way of life that adversely affects our own Canadian way of life.

In many respects Canada and the United States have a common heritage and common traditions. Both are "new" countries in the sense that their peoples are descended from those who, dissatisfied with conditions in Europe, migrated to America in search of a newer and fuller life. Both countries are melting pots in the sense that their citizens come from every conceivable culture and nationality in the Eastern Hemisphere. Thirdly and most important, both countries have offered and will continue to offer to their citizens undreamed of opportunities to create a newer and better life.

There can be no doubt that the American way of life is more than a total of all the various cultures of these peoples. There is a definite plus factor. That factor is the concept of individual freedom which is the product of an almost unlimited frontier, not merely a geographic frontier, but also a frontier for advancement in time — a frontier which has been widened by increased technology and the resulting needs of our society to adjust to the tremendous industrial advancement in the last fifty years. American culture based on this concept of the frontier is dependent on progress, individual liberty and unquestioned democracy.

Distinctive culture and nationalism can never be considered ends in themselves. Culture and nationalist tenancies should only be used as means to establish a basic set of spiritual values which will give to all of us that kind of life that a young and vigorous nation like Canada should exemplify.

Culture is merely a means of realigning our basic values, and these values are nowhere represented better than by the American way of life.

It is perhaps then difficult to see what purpose a distinctive Canadian Culture would serve. Canada must be careful in her attempts to foster a distinctive Canadian Culture not to do anything that would be inconsistent with the basic Canadian and American way of life, the preservation of which should be the aim of all national sentiment.

our readers write:

Gaudy Trinkets

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Congratulations on your editorial "Athletic Abandon". Not only is it true that forced athletic activities are of little value, but it seems that in introducing and maintaining a compulsory athletic system, even if beneficial, a University is acting just a little beyond the call of duty.

It has been surprising to note the outcry against the suspension of a body of students on the grounds that such interference is not in accordance with truly "democratic" principles, and at the same time to see the complete acceptance of a system embodying the petty paternalism which has no place in any real University. Such a system is only symptomatic of that terrible disease in which the fevered patient becomes so intent on grasping the gaudy trinket, the degree, glittering in all its intrinsic worthlessness, that he is even willing to support an absurd program of forced athletics to attain it.

Perhaps the modern University will never become the ideal place where students come to learn, but it seems that too many believe that a degree can effect some marvellous transformation. Anyone with enough guts to match the brains he must have had to have been able to enter University would realize the futility of this belief and would treat the athletic system as the absurdity which it is.

Finally, I should like to maintain that it is the right of any student to exercise as much or as little as he likes; nay, that he may allow his muscles and body to degenerate to any state of impairment which he may deem advisable, and still further, that he may remain completely motionless for a period of days, weeks, months or years, as long, in fact, as he may wish, or until he is pronounced dead.

Tony Noxon, Trinity I.

Willing Horses

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Although Varsity saw fit not to print my letter correcting the misleading caption accompanying an excellent picture of U.C.'s one-turreted tower, I refuse to believe that Varsity is not interested in accurate facts and therefore venture on a further correction. Sandra Sky, in her recent article on local library inmates, says: "Let us take as a specific example the library of University College." There is no library in University College. Since U.C. is the College of the University, its only library is the University Library, upon whose shelves all books ordered by U.C. departments are placed. The sign on the door of East Hall is "Reading-room".

The Reading-room's necessarily scanty shelf-space contains a strictly limited number of duplicates supposedly in frequent demand, housed there by the University Library for the sole convenience of immediate reference. Sandra Sky's lively and depressing article would seem to indicate that the intended usefulness of the U.C. Reading-room is regarded with the same "profound indifference" which, according to last Friday's editorial, is felt "on the part of the undergraduates" toward the new University Library building.

In any case, thanks to Varsity, those people who have worked hard and long to obtain improved library facilities for this campus now know the most suitable motto to put up over their efforts: "You may lead a horse to water, etc."

Robert Finch,
Department of French,
University College.

Literary or Athletic

—Cartoon by Jas. Weller.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY

UofT Symphony Sixty Perform Premiere At Annual Concert In Convocation Hall

by MIKE PENGELLY

Bows will be tightened, fiddles tuned and brasses polished here this week as the 60-piece University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra prepares for its first public performance of the current concert season in Convocation Hall, Thursday night.

This year marks the 20th consecutive season that the orchestra has appeared under the official auspices of the Students' Administrative Council.

Sharing foot-lights with the orchestra will be the nearly 100-voice mixed chorus under the direction of Dr. Richard Johnston, an associate professor of the Faculty of Music. The chorus has been a regular feature with the orchestra since its formation about eight seasons ago.

Highlight of the concert will be the premiere performance of Charles M. Wilson's Lament of David over Saul and Jonathan, for chorus and orchestra.

The work was commissioned by the University symphony and chorus three years ago and was to have been given its first performance during the 1952-53 season. The composer, a graduate of the Faculty of Music, is now an instructor in music at the University of Saskatchewan.

Others works to be played on the program include the orchestral Overture to Stradella by von Flotow; The Faithful Shepherd Suite by Handel as arranged by Sir Thomas Beecham; the Paul Bunyan Suite for orchestra by William Bergsma; a group of carols arranged by Randall Thompson for chorus alone; and a new and permanent conductor was appointed in the person of mild-mannered Robert A. Rosevear, an associate professor in the music faculty. Professor Johnston was appointed to lead the chorus.

Of the 60-odd musicians who make up the orchestra this year, only 15 of them, according to Dr. Rosevear, are receiving credits in music courses.

Students registered in any Faculty of Music course must belong to the orchestra or the chorus or to the Conservatory orchestra, Prof. Rosevear said.

The orchestra and chorus have been preparing for Thursday night's performance in a series of two-hour rehearsals for the past 10 weeks. Students from nearly every faculty of the University are included in the two-fold orchestra-chorus organization, Dr. Rosevear stated.

Michael Oliver, the Faculty of Music representative on SAC said last night that, "members of the orchestra and chorus have worked very hard to prepare the program . . . they have worked particularly hard," he said, "on the Lament, and I think we shall be able to turn out a credible performance."

—VSP by John LeGallais.

a Toccata by Girolamo Frescobaldi.

The University of Toronto Symphony orchestra has a sporadic history dating back as far as the year 1904.

It was in 1934, however, that the orchestra came under the permanent wing of the SAC. John Weinzwieg was first conductor under the new setup.

Last year, the orchestra and chorus underwent a further reshuffle. The organization remained under sponsorship of the SAC but the Faculty of Music agreed to take a more active participation in its maintenance.

ArtReviewArtReviewArtReviewArtReviewArtReview

Downstairs in the Art Gallery there is the Group of Painters and disappointment after disappointment. This collection is bad, and while it is unfair to judge an artist by one work — no exhibitor has more than two — the over-all affect is depressing. Of the senior school of painters only Dr. Comfort in Derelict, Split Rock Island, is able to prove that his vision is still strong and still growing. Everyone else, Casson, Jackson, Muhlstok, and the rest, seem to be weakening, fading into dusty whispers of outworn ideas. This is very saddening. Both the Harris', for instance, have been able to give us no more than the most static, uncommunicative abstracts, whose flatness is almost violent in its sterility.

Of those who are seeking a more contemporary window on reality few are more than stumbling. Jack Nichols, back from Mexico, is off on a new path which I think will not let us down. Faena, a picture of the Mexican bullring, is worth a visit to the Gallery. Of the rest Alexandra Luke maintains the good impression she made in the Group of Eleven show this Spring. Miss Gilson makes a harsh but uncertain impression through her vivid colouring and strong lines. Gustay Weisman has changed, and I think with good affect, from his sombre colours to give us the warmth of Sunset in the Streets. Harold Town has not abandoned the influence of Oscar Cahen but is giving us more of his own ideas. The remainder of the non-objective painters may be attempting to give us a new window on reality but so far they have succeeded only in messing up the window, as if we had a nest of jackdaws in the eaves.

Jacques de Tonnancour's The Owl I liked very much and I hope that he will give us more of his work: his absence from the scene has been regretted. Two new-comers, Gordon Smith and Gentile Tondino are very encouraging. The former is very much under the influence of Graham Sutherland, a good influence, but has some ideas of his own which I think he should get busy and express. Gentile Tondino is in my books the best in the show. He has a wonderful use of colour and form and in the simplest of compositions is able to convey worlds of meaning. I gather, since he is exhibiting by invitation, that he is a new arrival in Canada. For this reason I would urge you to see him now, for as a Country we lack the maturity necessary to the life of an artist and it may be some time before Tondino can find in our people the joy that is the inspiration of his painting.

T. Daly.

THE UNIVERSITY of TORONTO ORCHESTRA and CHORUS

AGGIES DEFEAT RUGGER BLUES 3-0

Speaking ^{1/2} OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

At the risk of sounding overconfident, or just a little bit overenthusiastic for this apathy-studded campus, we would venture to say that from all appearances this is the University of Toronto's year to clean up in the world of sport.

The Hockey Blues looked far too good for the Carabins Friday night while they were sweeping the ice with Monsieur Therrien's Frenchmen 7-2. The Basketball Blues fell short of expectations, but gave promise of an interesting season while holding off Detroit Tech to win by a 68-62 count. The wrestling team, although still rebuilding, should be strong enough to capture the Intercollegiate laurels they won last year, while Tony Canzano's boxers should do a repeat of the last two seasons if the Interfaculty champions are any indication of the team's strength.

That leaves the Water Polo Blues to beat McGill by more than five goals this weekend, and Cressy McCatty to mould a championship swimming team, and we'll walk off with just about all the Intercollegiate titles this winter. Add a sailing trophy, three soccer titles, the Senior Intercollegiate track championship, and that big beautiful Yates Cup, and we've won about four-fifths of the Intercollegiate titles available. Let's face it trouts, this is our year.

From the Blue Room . . . The Senior football team will have their picture taken along with the newly arrived Yates Cup tomorrow at 1:00 . . . The UC lacrosse Firsts will be out to trample St. Mike's today at 1:00 in the Hart House Gym. They may well do just that if Nobber Watson gets his magic stick fixed. Let's take a look . . . Some 2,000 fans took in the Intercollegiate Hockey opener Friday night. If the Blues keep up their present rate, there ought to be a packed house for their next home encounter on January 14, when the Rouge et Or from Laval invade the Arena.

Polo Blues Downed McGill Redmen Win

The Varsity Water Polo Blues took on the McGill Redmen in the first of their two-game series for the Heishorn Trophy last Saturday night in the Hart House pool and dropped the contest 13-8.

The Redmen had a superior team all through the game, probably due to the invaluable experience gained in several games in the Montreal senior league. The Varsity checking was slow and was the giveaway to several McGill goals.

Bernie Langer was high man for the Blues, potting five goals, while John Bates, Barry Tobo, and Paul Richards each added one. Toporowski was the Red-men's big gun, tallying eight times, while Milosavick added three and Novick two.

The Blues were trailing 7-3 at half-time, but put on a second frame spurt, added greatly by good goaltending by freshman Blue John Bullock. The Blues still have a chance to retain the trophy they won so handsily last winter, when they meet the Redmen in Montreal this weekend in the second game of the series.

The Blues also have a game in Hamilton Wednesday night against the Hamilton Aquatic Club. The evening will feature a double header, as the Intermediate Water Polo team will also have a game along with the Blues.

Hustlers Outhustle Intermediates Dacyshyn Star For Baby Blues

By WALT SCHMIDA

In the preliminary game of the Athletic night twin-bill, Toronto Hustlers outhustled the Intermediate Blues for a 70-57 victory. The more experienced Hustlers ran up a 35-28 half-time lead and never had it cut to less than 3 points.

The Baby Blues showed that they are potentially a very strong club, but because of the short time the team has played together, both the defence and offence were rather ragged, even so but for some erratic shooting the Blues would have been much closer. First game jitters had a noticeable effect on several key men, especially Harold Rotman who in his usual form, would have doubled his 10 point total, tops for the B.B.'s.

Varsity had an edge in height, but they couldn't control the backboards, although centre John Dacyshyn snared several rebounds, as well as hooping 10 points. Ruby Richman, on lend lease from the Blues got 9 with a nice set shot, and played a fine game at guard Jerry Wodjion with 3 and Jack Rogers with 6 were the other top men.

Ex-Blues Jack Gray and Bill Huycke dropped in 23 and 8 respectively for the Hustlers. Gray was easily the best man on the floor. He'd look good with any team in the country. Gary Glover added 13 points to the cause. Huycke and centre Jack Wallace were murder on those rebounds. The Hustlers used a man to man defense rather effectively, an unusual feat on the small Hart House court.

A new rule this year has the teams playing 20 minute halves with no quarter-time rest periods.

The Baby Blues should be a real contender after the Senior cuts arrive and the squad has had a chance to develop its teamwork.

Varsity Lose In Close Struggle OAC Are Rugger Champions

By DAVE DUNSMUIR

The hopes of Varsity Rugger Blues for their first Toronto League championship were tumbled in Saturday's finals, at Varsity Stadium, in a last despairing dash by their co-finalists, the OAC Aggies. Played on an iron-hard surface, and for the most part in driving snow, the game stayed scoreless right up to two minutes before the final whistle, and before that had seen sawed up and down the field in a way that showed neither side was daunted by weather conditions.

There was enough action to make the 700 spectators forget the cold, although a real picture-finish from Blues' point of view was spoiled by the whistle going 30 seconds too soon for them. When "no side" went, they were within ten yards of Aggies' goal-line, having sliced up the field in an all-out comeback effort. As it was, Aggies stayed the only scorers, to take the cup with a 3-0 win.

Probably the chief factor in the defeat was the weakness in Blues' scrum, the big question mark right through the season. Aggies had a definite superiority in this department, but when Blues did get the ball out they showed the superiority of the home three-line. Chadwick especially beat a long and deep path down the centre of the field, while Trillia made several near-breakaways on the wing. Paul Butt, who played at centre-three, deserves to win some sort of "Most Injured Player" award, as his left shoulder was thrown out in a hard tackle, for the third time this year. Gately coming back out on the field, he was dazed shortly after by a kick on the head.

Apart from their scrimmaging, Blues' forwards put on one of their best shows of the year, with Harpur and Kelly making considerable ground gains. The trouble was, though, that it was a kicker's day. Drummond-Haye saved Blues more than once with his long kicks for touch, but in Bartlett, their full-back, Aggies had the league's finest kicker, and Blues too often ran the ball 20 yards, to have it kicked back for 40. To top it off, Bartlett went to centre-three midway through the second half, and scored the one try of the game, after a dazzling cross-field run.

Saturday's result makes Blues narrow losers for the second time in two years. Last year, when the Toronto League came into existence, they wound up on top of the league, but were defeated in the cup playoffs by Toronto Barbarians who went on to take the trophy. There is some consolation this year in the Carling Cup going to the only other college team in the league, but to lose the laurels twice in two seasons by an unconverted try must be a mite discouraging.

on the sideline

By FLO MIDDLETON

What is the matter with old U.C. is no longer the question of the day, as it has been replaced by a more pertinent one concerning the lack of enthusiasm and college spirit shown by the females of the campus. The annual second term slump has hit the university just a month too soon this year. Numbers turning out for hockey this year have decreased and the lengths of the lists of names for volleyball is nothing to brag about.

If you want some fun next term, enter into some athletic past times. The decision has to be made within the next few days because after that your chances for joining a college sport for next semester will be down the drain. All that is necessary is a signature on your athletic notice board signifying that you are interested in what goes on around your college and university in the way of sports.

Girls, you are not signing your life away or for that matter your pocket book. You are just writing your way into a winter of fun and new friends. What could be easier or more rewarding?

The excuses start now. It's the books next term, you moan. Oh yes, it is. Excuse the sarcasm, but somehow I think you mean that your schedule cannot include both the muscle-building activities and the coffee shop. Have your choice, but the Faculty of Medicine can prove to you the superiority of Athletics over the coffee-nicotine habit.

In girl's sports, this is a big week—coming up. On Tuesday, the interfaculty basketball semifinals are being held, followed on Thursday by the finals. Who will win the glories this year? At this point, it is anybody's guess, but one thing we can count on, there will be a strong Phe team in there somewhere.

Speaking of basketball, the try-outs for the Intercollegiate Blue Team are to be held on Tuesday and Thursday at 5:30 at the old O.C.E. stamping grounds. All those interfaculty stars or for that matter anyone who is at all interested in B-ball are invited to turn up. Many of last years point-getters have graduated; consequently, there are many openings both on the Senior and Intermediate teams for freshies as well as the experienced fourth year gals. Stars like Sally Wallace are still at Varsity, but remember Sally is only one of the required six players; so zzzz, let's show some life and get over to O.C.E. come Tuesday.

Boxing, Wrestling, Fencing Meets Held at Hart House Athletic Night

Interfaculty championships in boxing, wrestling, and fencing were held in Hart House last Saturday night in the first Athletic Night of the winter season. Skluemen dominated the bouts winning four boxing events, five wrestling events, and placing first in the foil competition of the University Fencing championships.

Two exhibition boxing bouts were held along with the regular finals as a result of preliminaries conducted last week. In the heavyweight class, Walt Schmida from SPS fought John Wilson from OCE and a draw was declared. Also a draw was the fight between SPS' Harold Nightingale and Baryl Henry from Architecture. Best fight of the evening was the bout between Jerry Masuda and Charles Mayer, won by Masuda on a unanimous decision. Two exhibition bouts were held in wrestling, and the highlight of the fighting was another upset victory by Ben Hooyer of SPS who pinned Pete Beck, also of SPS, to win the 157-pound title. Mike Vasko was unable to find competition in the heavy-weight class, while John Wesley won the 177-pound title by default as his opposition was absent due to sickness.

The winners of the boxing titles will be able to challenge members of the Intercollegiate team in order to gain a position with the Varsity team. The wrestling winners however, constitute the Senior Intercollegiate team and members of last year's team will have to challenge these men to make a spot on the team. George Montgomery of SPS successfully defended his foil title before the largest crowd ever to witness a fencing event in Hart House. He won eight bouts and lost none and had only fourteen hits against him. John Andru was second with six wins and two losses and had eighteen hits against.

The Senior fencing team will begin its Intercollegiate schedule after Christmas with matches against the University of Buffalo, the University of Detroit, Wayne University, and finally the Intercollegiate championships at McGill sometime in February.

RESULTS

Boxing — 130-pounds — Goodman (UC) defeated Haarsrud (For) by a TKO at 1:23 of the

STUDENTS EARN TWO-THIRDS COSTS

London — (CUP) — Western students earn only two-thirds of the money they spend during the college year.

A poll taken by the Business School Research Department last week revealed that the average male student's summer savings totaled $800, while expenses, which include tuition, room and board, and entertainment came to from $1,235 to $1,375.

The results apply only to single students. Of those who responded to the poll 90 per cent are from outside London.

The University of Toronto recently conducted a similar poll and found that while the average Varsity undergraduate earned $800 in the summer he spent approximately $1,200.

HATS, HORNS, BALLOONS, NOISEMAKERS

Favours for your Christmas or New Year's parties—wholesale prices.

PARTY FAVOURS SALES CO.
LL. 5330

third round. — 135-pounds — Marsh (SPS) defeated Tippins (Pharm) by an unanimous decision. — 140-pounds — Armstrong (SPS) defeated Shapero (UC) by an unanimous decision. — 145-pounds — Naddon (SMC) defeated Edmunds (SPS) by an unanimous decision. — 155-pounds — Masuda (SPS) defeated Mayer (SPS) by an unanimous decision. — 165-pounds — McNair (Meds) defeated Leibel (SPS) by an unanimous decision. — 175-pounds — Kaunismaa (SPS) defeated McKenna (SMC). — Heavy weight — Schmida (SPS) and Wilson (OCE) drew. — Exhibition — Nightingale (SPS) and Henry (Arch) drew.

Wrestling — 123-pounds — Wood (Vic) defeated Kani-Kata-hara (SPS) 7-6 (Exhibition) — 130-pounds — Ross (Dents) pinned Hanley (SPS) in second period. — 137-pounds — Stevenson (SPS) pinned Dart (SPS) in first round. — 147-pounds — Proctor (SPS) pinned Calzavara (SPS) in second round. — 157-pounds — Hooyer (SPS) pinned Beck (SPS) in second round. — 167-pounds — Hickey (SPS) pinned Smith (SPS) in third round (Exhibition). — 177-pounds — Wesley (Meds) won by default. — 191-pounds — Salem (UC) pinned Elliott (SPS) in first round.

Fencing — Montgomery (SPS) 8-0, Andru (UC) 6-2, Kostiw (SPS) 6-2, Gilchrist 4-4, Penciner (UC) 4-4, Nash (UC) 3-5, Stalmack 3-5, Huiskens 1-7, King 1-7.

Hockey Blues Win 7-2

(Continued from page 1)

out of an even period with a 6-2 lead.

Taking the initiative again in the third frame, the Blues proceeded to tie the Carabins up in knots, while still unable to finish off their rushes with goals. Woods ended the scoring at 12:02, after taking a pass from Johnny Akitt, who had caught the Montreal defence asleep at the red line and stole the puck. The Blues outshot the Carabins 13-6 in this period but were weak around the goalmouth.

The highlight of this team is an iron-bound defence, led by John Tolton, Lou Appleby, Red Stephen, and Dave Jackson at the blueline, as well as furious and effective backchecking by all the forwards. Lacking only the finishing touch to an already powerful attack, the Blues served notice to a fast, interesting season, establishing themselves as the team to beat in the Intercollegiate league this year. Knox, the notcher on the first line, hit the goalpost six times, as an example of the team's weakness about the opposition's net.

The Carabins received six penalties to the Blues' four, scoring one goal while the Blues were shorthanded. Often, when the Montrealers outnumbered, the Blues, they couldn't get the puck out of their own end, indicating the strength of the Varsity defence. Only two of the Blue tallies came while the Carabins were penalized. Hugh Curry, while having little work to do in the Blue net, handled most of the Montreal shots with ease.

The Blues are now tied for first place with the Carabins, each with one win. They will travel to Montreal this weekend for two games with Laval University and the McGill Redmen. Three wins before Christmas would leave the Blues sitting pretty for their New Year's drive to the league championship and the Queens Cup.

Bang, No Birds

A series of big bangs in the wee hours of the morning disturbed sleepy dons and pigeons at the UC men's residence.

The noise was caused by five dozen large economy sized firecrackers suspended from a window-ledge in one of the residence houses.

No pigeons could be reached for comments.

Register Your Wedding Now

TUXEDO JUNCTION
FORMAL RENTALS

All New Garments

WA. 4-8427
441 PARLIAMENT ST.

GAMES TODAY

LACROSSE FINALS (2nd Game) 1.00—St. M. A vs. U.C. I—Warren, Uhrynyk, Urquhart.

VOLLEYBALL SEMI-FINAL 5.00—Med IV Yr vs. Dent. A—Preem.

SQUASH 1.00—Law vs. Trin. B.

4.20—Trin. C vs. Dent. E.

HOCKEY 12.30—SPS IV vs. St. M. B.—Dysart, Tilson.

1.30—Jr. SPS vs. Pre-Med.—Tilson, Dysart.

4.00—For. B vs. Knox—Naylor, Maclean.

WATER POLO—Standing Committee meeting — Wed., Dec. 8, 1 p.m. Staff room, second floor, Hart House. Entries will be accepted at this meeting.

Basketball Blues Edge

(Continued from page 1)

last week, could have helped the Blues overcome their erratic ways of working the ball. Speed was the greatest factor in the Varsity favor. Even Leo Madden, generally considered a slow man, showed bursts of speed in breaking down the floor, but the real fasties were Potter and Fawcett, who left the Detroiters way with a 32% average.

Shooting was surprisingly good on both sides, with the Blues hitting for a 35% average on the night after ending the first half with a 40% average. Detroit, on the other hand, went all the way with a 32% average.

A gentleman named Higgins, coach of the Detroit Club, was heard by those around him to wonder about the accuracy of certain calls by the referees. From where I sat, he could have been right on several, but the referees are both known to be good, and will probably sharpen by the time the season opens.

The best man for Detroit was Tatsac with 21 points, close behind were Dan Perkins with 13, and Captain Niea Sica with 9.

Number One

First Period

- 1-Varsity—Reid (Stephen) . . . 7:02
 - 2-Varsity—Knox (Tolton, Reid) 11:45
 - 3-Varsity—Woods (Jackson, Stephen) . . . 13:19
- Penalties — Desrochers (elbowing), Perrault (hooking), Reid (tripping), Houle (hooking).

Second Period

- 4-Varsity—Stephen . . . 1:52
 - 5-Varsity—Bodnar (Stephen, Adams) . . . 4:32
 - 6-Montreal—Dagenais (Houle, Quesnel) . . . 6:10
 - 7-Montreal—Dagenais (Houle) 13:22
 - 8-Varsity—Bodnar . . . 15:59
- Penalties — Tolton (charging), Day (holding), Hebert (broken stick)

Third Period

- 9-Varsity—Woods (Akitt, Tolton) . . . 12:01
- Penalties— Adams (interference), Gratton (interference), Jackson (interference)

Sell Pink Donuts To Pay Fight Fee

At 8:30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week 40 dozen pink doughnuts will go on sale around the campus residences.

Last week the men of Taylor and Jeanneret Houses in the new UC residence were fined 50 cents each as a result of a water fight. The sale is an attempt by the latter house to raise the money.

The fine followed a complaint by Mr. Woof, the don of Taylor House. One resident wondered whether the don would condone the fight by purchasing a doughnut.

It is not known whether the colour of the doughnuts has any significance. The SAC has declined to investigate.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada's First Bank

Queen's Park Branch: JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager

Bloor and Bay Streets: KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager

St. George & Bloor Sts.: T. HARRY BRYSON, Manager

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

WILSON RESIDENCE OPENED

West Hall Rededicated

Assembled in the new Dining Hall are the important members of the opening ceremony. The dedicational plaque was unveiled by Mrs. Howard Ferguson, in memory of her late husband.

About 600 people were present Saturday as West Hall was rededicated to celebrate the University College Literary and Athletic Society's Centennial. After a luncheon in the UC library, a colourful procession walked across the hall to perform the ceremonies conducted a short 100 years ago.

A prayer of rededication was repeated before the gathering, which included President Sidney Smith of the University, Principal Jeanneret of UC, Col. Phillips, chairman of the Board of Governors, and E. H. Goodman, President of the UC Alumni.

The academic procession then moved through the snow to officially open the new Sir Daniel Wilson Men's Residence. Colonel Haldenby presented the gold key to Principal Jeanneret, and Mr. MacDonald, ex-Chairman of the University Board of Governors, officially opened the residence.

Mrs. Howard Ferguson unveiled the plaque dedicating the new dining room in memory of her late husband, a prominent member of the Board of Governors. She expressed the hope that "all the students in University College would be loyal to their country and the British Empire."

In his speech, Dr. Smith paid tribute to Principal Jeanneret, who, he said, was instrumental in giving University College its new Men's Residence. In short, he said, Principal Jeanneret "hatched the egg".

A tour of the new residence and a coffee hour followed.

UC Lit Centennial Held Over Weekend

Hoskin Spotlight-

(Continued from page 1)

in concerned quarters that this will further enhance both the "speedway appeal" of the route to the motorist and the "death-trap quotient" of the crossing to the student.

Thus it is that the SAC has taken over the project on behalf of the whole university, following the efforts of Trinity and Wycliffe Colleges. They have now formed a special sub-committee of three members, Bill Ridpath, Architecture, Barb Flint, Nursing, and Ron Anco, Pharmacy. These three are to make a direct approach to the City Hall about the matter, looking in particular for Traffic Inspector Kerr, Traffic Engineer Burton, and the members of the Toronto Safety Committee. They will endeavor to reconcile the Traffic and Safety view points to investigate the procedure to have City Hall reconsider the matter from the student safety point of view.

forms bear the dates December 17 and January 3rd, the extent of the University Vacation period.

The University College Literary and Athletic Society celebrated their centennial this past weekend. The celebrations started with a special meeting on Friday night.

A $400 gift was allotted to the college. The resident block managed to push the vote to present a $200 cut to the UC residence for books, especially Canadian modern novels. The other $200 went to the JCR to be spent by a special renovation committee.

A motion of criticism was passed against the University of Toronto Debating Union disapproving of the methods used in cancelling one of the Debating Tours to the United States.

Ron Gould, SAC representative, was mandated to bring up the question of Debating Tours again at the next meeting.

A debate was next on the agenda for the evening. The resolution was "Resolved that the UC Lit. fails to fulfill its function". The motion was supported by Gordon Purdy and Tom Hammond, opposed by two UC Graduates, Gary Clarke and Eric Hardy. The motion was defeated — the graduates far outnumbered the undergraduates.

Mr. A. Gibson, UC Lit president of 1891, was in attendance.

Rubber Topic At Institute Lecture

"The future of the world's rubber supply lies in the field of synthetic rubber," declared Edwin R. Rowzee S. B. & S. M., Vice-President and Manager of Sumia's Polymer Corporation, in a lecture given at the Royal Canadian Institute Saturday. Mr. Rowzee also stated his belief that the increase in synthetic rubber production would be located in North America.

In the next ten years, said Mr. Rowzee, there will be "great changes in the field of synthetic rubber — more effective processes — new types of rubber — rubber of superior quality."

"I know that Canada's Polymer Plant will do its share and perhaps more," said Mr. Rowzee, speaking of the predicted increase in the demand for synthetic rubber products and the consequent expansion of facilities for their production.

Discussing the incredible variety of synthetics in rubber production, Mr. Rowzee described two new forms — Vulcollan and Alfin. The two, though still in the test stage, are being readied for common production. Vulcollan, a crosslinked polyester, having rubber-like qualities, is exceptionally tough with an unusual abrasion resistance. Alfin rubber, produced by rapid bulk polymerization of butadiene, using a highly active organosodium catalyst, developed by Dr. A. Mortor of MIT, shows no great advancement over regular cold rubber, but promises improved skid resistance. Both synthetics, said Mr. Rowzee "are certain to be high in price."

Mr. Rowzee also mentioned a new fibrous rubber developed by American Viscose Company that may compete with foam sponge. Another rubber, a fluorinated hydro-carbon, has properties qualifying it for use under high temperature conditions. This is "currently needed by the aircraft industry."

A film "Polysar", depicting work in "Canada's only synthetic rubber plant" was shown. The lecture was concluded with an experiment performed by a Polymer expert demonstrating the qualities of certain synthetics.

Travel Fare Cut

Students and members of the faculty may travel home during the Christmas-New Year vacation at three-fourths of the usual round-trip price, the Canadian Passenger Association has announced.

The reduction may be obtained if the student or faculty member fills out an application form, which may be found at the college and faculty offices, and presents it at the station. The

Univ. of Alberta Has Radio Program News, Views, Music

The University of Alberta Radio Society has a regular evening broadcast in Edmonton. The Radio Society is completely run by students, who edit, direct and do the technical work. Two hours of programming is broadcast a week over a local station.

The program includes University news and interviews by the staff of The Gateway, campus newspaper debates, and musical concerts selected by the student. Each week, a University of Alberta student will speak on his native country. The students produce radio plays, and have invited some of their professors to give talks.

Psychiatry and Religion

DR. DANIEL CAPPON will lecture on "The Family of God and the Family of Man" Part II in West Hall University College at 5 p.m. today. Chairman: Prof. J. A. Irving

Enjoy a pipe with
Sir Walter Raleigh
MILD BURLEY
TOBACCO
at its best...

THE Defence Research Board

requires

SCIENTISTS . . . ENGINEERS

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES EXIST
IN MANY FIELDS INCLUDING:

- GUIDED MISSILES
- ARMAMENT FIRE CONTROL
- AEROSOL FILTRATION
- RESPIRATORY PROTECTIVE DEVICES
- EARLY WARNING DEVICES
- Hydro-Mechanics
- UNDERWATER SOUND RESEARCH
- ANTI-CORROSION
- BATTERY SYSTEMS
- RADIO PROPAGATION

CHALLENGING POSITIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT OUR MODERN RESEARCH ESTABLISHMENTS FOR STUDENTS WITH A GOOD ACADEMIC RECORD WHO ARE GENUINELY INTERESTED IN RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT WORK.

Our Representatives will Visit This University Soon to Conduct Interviews. Watch This Newspaper and Bulletin Boards for Exact Dates of Their Visit.

End Of Mock Parliament?

The Spirit of Christmas

Seen here is the Nativity Scene greeting one in the lobby of Hart House. In the last few years this display has become a Christmas season special.

Nativity Scenes Decorate Campus

For the second consecutive year the lobby of Hart House is decorated with a Nativity Scene. This scene is comprised of figurines, sculptured in wood, arranged to represent the adoration.

Arrangements for the display are under supervision of the "House Committee" of Hart House. The actual work of erecting it is carried out by the display department of one of the large downtown stores.

Trinity's customary Nativity Scene has been moved this year, due to the construction of the chapel. In former years their adoration scene was placed on the front lawn but it has been elevated to the balcony over the main door for this Christmas season.

Workers were busy yesterday building an Adoration Scene in front of Carr Hall, at St. Michael's College.

Victoria College's contribution to the Christmas decoration is a similar scene.

Many of these scenes are erected as part of the work of the committee which has been formed on the campus to "Bring Christ Back Into Christmas".

London Times Praises U. of T. 'Letters In Canada'

Letters in Canada, the annual supplement to the University of Toronto Quarterly, was given particular praise in an article in the London Times Literary Supplement on the state of Canadian Literature.

This year, Letters in Canada is edited by Professor J. R. MacGillivray. Critical works by Professor Northrop Frye and by Professor C. T. Brissell were also praised by the Times article.

The article speaks of the dilemma of the Canadian writer, living as he is in a vast country, with no cultural capital and little cultural communication between no stoplight?

Subcommittee Goes To Work

Efforts to get the city to place a push-button traffic-light on Hoskin Avenue at one of the University's most "death-trap" crosswalks, are going to be pressed to the limit, it was learned last night.

The proposed traffic light was turned down over the week-end by a special sub-committee of the Toronto Police Commission.

Nevertheless, a special sub-committee of the Students' Administrative Council, including President Bill Angus is due to meet at city hall with city traffic officials over the matter today.

The 2 p.m. meeting will see the SAC representatives sit down with Traffic Inspector Kerr and the City's Traffic Engineer to thrash out the no-light decision.

Mr. Angus outlined the programme. "We wish to discuss with them the procedure used in applying for a stoplight". They also propose to determine the respective positions of the Safety and Traffic Commissions, in order to proceed through the "recognized, normal channels". The committee will discuss with the traffic officials the specific merits of the Hoskin Ave. situation. "In particular with respect to safety measures in crossing", and the advisability of installing a pedestrian-operated stoplight.

A full report of the meeting and the efforts of this committee will be given at the SAC meeting on Wednesday night.

Arrangements for the meeting were made by committee chairman Bill Ridpath, Architecture. Others on the committee are Barbara Flint, Nursing, and Ron Anco, Pharmacy. Our reporter was unable to reach Mr. Ridpath for comment.

Earliest attempts, to have a stoplight erected at the Hoskin Avenue crossing were made by officials of Trinity and Wycliffe Colleges. Tom Symons, Acting Dean of Residence at Trinity College and now chairman of the SAC, was instrumental in the first petitions.

These efforts were nullified last week when Traffic Inspector Burton of the Civic Administration rejected the recommendation of the Finance Sub-committee that a stoplight be placed at the crossing.

While the committee of the SAC was formed before the requests of the colleges were turned down, they have not as yet acted. They were apparently awaiting the outcome of the first overtures, and now that these have failed the task has fallen to the SAC committee.

Student Heads Blasted

Ottawa—(CUP)—Ottawa University's last Student Federation meeting was the scene of a stormy battle royal that lasted for the unprecedented length of well over two hours, and brought about the resignation of two members of the Federation's executive. The fireworks started when a seemingly innocent item on the agenda was reached — what was the cause of Federation unpopularity. This was the signal for Tony Enriquez to unleash an attack at the executive and the Federation in general.

Claiming that the organization did nothing to justify student faith in it, he said, in a later summary, "It's our money, our Federation, and supposedly our leadership, let us never forget this and as long as we demand and question and criticize we shall keep our officers awake to the fact that we want results and not words and Commissions."

No Non-Confidence
Mr. Enriquez finished by saying that he could think of no less severe a measure than a vote of non confidence in the present executive. Mr. de la Chevroliere, the Federation president later commented, "I was the object of a premeditated attack".

Student Reps Visit O.M.A. Council Here

Delegates of the Canadian Association of Medical Students and Interns from each Medical School in Ontario will attend a two-day Council meeting of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Medical Association at the Royal York Hotel, here, December 6th and 7th.

The C.A.M.S.I. delegates will also attend the official opening of the Association Home at 244 St. George St. It will be their duty to report the proceedings of the conference to their respective Medical Schools.

CCF'ers to Decide Parliament's Fate

Fate of the University of Toronto mock Parliament appeared to lie in the palm of the CCF club today — at least that is what informed campus political sources hinted at last night.

If the CCF says "yes" to the mock Parliament idea at its scheduled membership meeting today, there will likely be a parliament this year, they said.

If the club says "no", according to the political weather cocks, the mock parliament will be a "has been" — at least for this year.

Difficulties arose on the mock Parliament horizon earlier this year and culminated with a meeting of the student-run Political Economy club and campus political parties about 10 days ago.

Allan Millard, president of the Political Economy Club said he put forth "certain proposals" to representatives of the political clubs at the meeting.

"There were several suggestions put forward," said Liberal Club President Ed Lowry, "including a proposal to drop the annual elections and to hold a different kind of meeting."

Lowry said that he and Progressive Conservative club President John Gamble were unable to come to an agreement with the Political Economy club over the proposals and that the meeting broke up in disagreement.

"The situation now is," Lowry said, "that we — the Liberal and Progressive Conservative clubs — have invited the CCF club to join us in formation of a mock parliament."

Asked what would happen if the CCF club decided to turn down the invitation, Lowry replied, "That will probably be the end of it."

Financing of the mock parliament in past years has been backed by the Students Administrative Council, it was explained, through the Political Economy club.

However this year, according to Lowry, SAC passed a motion which would give the University of Toronto Debating Union a more direct control of the mock parliament.

"In the light of the small amount of money which came for support of the parliament," Lowry said, "we could not see our way clear to recognizing such an organization."

Knox Robbed Chase Thief Pyjama-clad

A wild thief-chase in pyjamas across the University of Toronto main campus ended in police court yesterday when a 28-year-old railway-worker — Bruce McMillan, — was arraigned on an attempted theft charge.

McMillan was remanded in custody by police pending investigation of his record.

McMillan was hotly pursued across the U of T front campus early Saturday by three Knox College students, one of them attired only in pyjamas, after, they claim, he entered the residence and made off with a wallet containing $10.

"I noticed him as I was returning to my room," said Bob Howald a Knox residence student. "He was coming out of my room and I stopped him but he put on the drunk act when I asked him what he was doing."

Howald said he let McMillan continue on his way while he investigated to see if anything was missing.

When Howald discovered $10 gone, two other Knox College residence students — Bill MacEachern and Malchom Muga — joined him and they chased McMillan across the campus nabbing him in front of the Univ. City bookstore.

ALL STUDENTS WELCOME

Anniversary Sale

Men's or Ladies' Made-to-Measure Slacks

- TOP QUALITY ENGLISH WOOLLENS
- LARGE RANGE OF SHADES AND MATERIALS
- EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED

If not satisfied . . . Morley Completely Refunded

• Don't Miss Out On This Special Sale •

Reg. $20.00 — $25.00 . . . NOW $14.85

KARN CLEANERS & CLOTHIERS

Students Save 10% On All Dry Cleaning — Cash & Carry
235½ COLLEGE ST. (opp. Dental College) Phone WA. 4-3072

New Colours

for your

Kitten

Collection

Full-fashioned Kitten sweaters in cashmere-soft Lambswool...100% SuperOrlon. Hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof... by GLENAYR

s.s. pullover $6.95

l.s. pullover $7.95

cardigan $8.95

At good shops everywhere

C-57

The Varsity

Published 5 times weekly by
The Students' Administrative
Council of The University of TorontoMember Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner
Ian G. Scott

EDITOR C. CLYDE BATTEN
MANAGING EDITOR ROBERT D. BROWN
News Editor Mike Pangelley
Assistant News Editors Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Feature Editor Mary Alice Hunter
Makeup Editor Irene Meyers
A.M. & D. Editor Wendy Michener
Sports Editor John Wilson
Acting Assistant Sports Editor John Vojtech
Acting Women's Sports Editor Flo Middleton
Photo Editor Ed. Hoshkiw
CUP Editor Chuck Williams
Mortician Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Irene Meyers
NIGHT EDITOR: May Helland
REPORTERS: John Gehl, G. Ingram,
Jane Griffen.

Student Savings

Once again reprints of last year's examinations are being sold in the University's Book Store. It has become the custom for students to spend some time in careful perusal of these reprints.

Without, for the moment, questioning the wisdom of such procedure we would like to comment upon the price being charged.

Reprints of last year's examinations are being retailed for one dollar and fifty cents. Those of previous years for one dollar and thirty-five cents.

Since these reprints will continue in demand for some years it must be possible to produce them more cheaply than these prices indicate.

Not only are these reprints themselves priced beyond reason but the sale of books is conducted at a cost to the student in excess of that offered by the downtown establishments.

We cannot but believe that this phase of the operations of the University of Toronto Press could be managed so that some saving could be passed on to the students.

our readers write:

Wrong Conclusion

Mr. Jackman in Monday's Varsity has, I think, drawn the wrong conclusion from the right analysis. It is certainly true that the influence of the frontier has both in this country and the United States been similar and profound. However I feel he has overlooked two factors.

The first is that a large percentage of those English speaking people who came to Canada in preference to the U.S. came because they were more conservative. They preferred, and I believe the majority of British people in Canada still prefer, the British form of democracy, even in its modified Canadian form to the American.

Secondly, the Americans never had to deal with such a solid minority as the French Canadians. The American culture is a synthesis, it is a result of fusion, it came out of the melting pot. French Canada has never melted and it is my belief and hope that it never will. It is certainly unlikely that it will ever become as Americanized as we have.

Thus because of a different heritage, I believe that Canada will follow a different path than the U.S.

Perhaps we will eventually develop for example, a culture based on a common desire not to be like the Americans or even like each other. This hypothetical culture might feed on the problem of utilizing the northern half of this continent and have as each cardinal feature a certain pride in having accomplished

Unwarranted

The Editor,

The Varsity.

Your editorial, Athletic Abandon, was excellent as far as it went, but you failed to consider the root of the problem, namely, has a University the right to enforce on its members a programme of compulsory athletics.

That the granting of a degree, the climax of several years of intellectual endeavour, should be dependent on completion of a two-year programme of utterly useless and ludicrous physical activity seems highly incongruous. The student with a healthy attitude will almost invariably participate in some phase of interfaculty or intercollegiate athletic activity, but the choice should be his, and his alone.

The student body, by an overwhelming tide of public opinion, can impress the autocratic administration of this University with the ridiculousness of the present programme and in this way free both ourselves and posterity from this unwarranted encroachment on our liberty.

H. C. Soltan,
IV St. Mike's.

the development of our common physical inheritance without sacrificing the identity of two major and a dozen minor cultural groups.

Geoff Johnston
IV Vic

Tasty filberts...with

Neilson's JERSEY NUT

Jersey milk chocolate

Jr. Skule Downs Pre Meds 2-1 Engineering IV's Lose To Irish

By TOM WILLIAMS

Featuring a fast skating, smooth passing attack, Jr. Skule downed Pre Meds, 2-1, in the feature match of yesterday's hockey action. St. Mike's B beat SPS IV, 3-2, in the other noon hour game.

Pre Meds looked as if they would run the junior engineers out of the rink in the early minutes of their game, scoring on the first shift. Paul slapped in Murdock's pass-out for the score; however, after that brief surge, Skule gradually took command of a close-checking game.

Engineers broke through on several occasions for clean shots on Cecutti in the Pre Meds' nets. It was only fine work on his part that kept Skule from running away with it all in the later stages of the period.

The Blue and Gold tied the court at the twelve minute mark, when Stan Surtel broke away from one of Pre Meds' infrequent ganging attacks. He was in the clear from the centre line, skating right in to make no mistake.

With three and a half minutes left in the initial period Cecutti received a cut over his right eye, in a goal-mouth scramble. He retired to the dressing room for repairs, with the remaining time being tacked onto the second period.

In the second frame, Pre Meds repeated their early surge only to be turned back by a strong Skule defence, led by Topping.

Skule then regained the edge, and never lost control.

Pre Meds seemed unable to organize an attack, and defensively, Cecutti was frequently unprotected. He made several saves on labeled shots, at times bordering on the sensational. Skule finally cracked his armour when, with six minutes remaining, Patterson pounced on Rentsis' rebound and flipped it home. Close checking resumed with no further score.

Engineers were led by the line of Patterson, Surtel and Rentsis, both ways. Bielawski also played well, frequently serving a double shift.

The individual star for Pre Meds was Al Cecutti. The line of Murdock, Rudd and Paul carried most of their attack; however, it would be an exaggeration to say that Germain, in the Engineers' nets, was busy.

Bulanda, with two, and Robinson, with one, led the Irish to a scrambly victory over Skule IV. Bishop and Payne netted for the Engineers.

Emminent Artist Leslie Holmes Honors Chorus

Unknown to the 65 choral class members under Dr. Charles Peaker, a surprise was provided yesterday by the presence of the eminent Canadian-born vocal teacher and artist, Dr. Leslie Holmes.

Dr. Holmes returned to Toronto in September, 1954, after 25 years in England, to teach at the Royal Conservatory of Music in London since 1947.

After beginning his studies in Toronto under the tutelage of Dr. Albert Ham, well known organist in Toronto musical circles, he furthered his work in London at the Royal College and in France and Germany. This prepared him for principal roles with the leading choral societies and music clubs in England.

The London Times commented on Mr. Holmes' artistry: "There are apparently no limits to his powers of interpretation. He has been given the distinction of becoming an honorary member of the Royal Academy."

After a short discourse on the rudiments of phonetics in singing Mr. Holmes launched into a program of four short English folk-songs, "Till-lim-bom" — a ments on diction. The songs in sequence were "Bingo" and "Dashing Away with the Smoothing Iron" both Somerset folk-songs, "Till-lim-bom" — a nursery rhyme by Stravinsky, and "The Fair" by Charles Stanford.

Dr. Holmes was accompanied on the piano by Dr. Peaker who commented that the university can well be proud to have acquired such an inspiring stimulus to its staff.

GIVE a
TORONTONENSIS
(YEARBOOK)
This Christmas

"EXPORT"
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

STAFFERS

There will be a short meeting of all sportswriters, male and female, on Friday of this week at 1:15 in the Varsity office in the basement of the SAC building.

It is necessary that all present members of the sports staff be in attendance in order that we may organize our winter schedule. Anybody who is interested in working on the sports staff, either as a reporter or in make-up and page layout, is welcome to appear on Friday also.

The Sportswoman

By JOY TAYLOR

At this time, before the winners of the finals are decided, should come the praise and thanks to all the hidden people in the sport.

First of all, the schedule could not have been arranged without the president of the Basketball club. To Gwen-Anne Miller and the heads of the different colleges, who gave up many hours in meetings, hashing over the problems, should go a great vote of thanks.

Then, there are the many coaches of the various teams and the multitude of referees who have given up hours of their time. As usual Phys. Ed. students have come through again. All coaches except for the UC, Meds, Nurses, and St. Mike's teams have been students from first, second, and third year P.H.E. Noted grads are coaching the other teams. Mickey Barnett leads Meds A for the second year. Joan Mooney is handling the reins for UC Jr.-Sr. while Jane Timmins is coaching St. Mike's. Donna Parr is looking after Nurses, and Nancy Kercher, a graduate of Phys. Ed., now at OCE, is helmsman for the Phys. Ed. third year team.

Again this year, the refereeing was done by Phys. Ed. students and grads of PHE now at OCE. It is very much hoped that Arts students attending the classes for basketball referees will carry a big part of the load in future years.

Last of all, a big pat on the back should be given to all the members of the various teams that have made this a good year in basketball. A large thank you should be given to Miss Parkes as usual for all her efforts.

Good luck to the finalists, Phys. Ed., UC, and Pharmacy, and to the Senior and Intermediate teams. Let's keep the Bronze Baby in Toronto.

Torontonensis

Any organizations which have not received space contracts and are interested in this immortal momento; get your contract at the S.A.C. Office immediately.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for repairs, parts and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

LOST
Pouge gabardine overcoat. Monday noon, Nov. 28. Also dirty poplin coat left in Varsity office last Thursday. Phone Mike Cassidy—WA. 3-8752.

FURNISHED APARTMENT
Lower duplex, five rooms, two bedrooms, always warm. January 5th to April 5th, $120 per month. References required. WA. 1-9079 evenings.

WANTED
Control surveys and mapping by Whitmore. Contact V. Vonase, WA. 4-8298.

FOR SALE
Sports car, '54 MG PP wire wheels, heater, very reasonable. Color—red. Telephone WA. 2-2555, evenings after 7:00 p.m.

UNIVERSITY DISTRICT
Flat house; good board; shared rooms. WA. 4-6025 — 18 Willocks St.

LOST
10 inch slide rule, blonde case, name "ortoway" on back. Vicinity of Mechanical Building, Friday, Dec. 3. Please call EO. 4843.

UC Wins Boxla Crown

By AL EAGLESON

UC Lacrosse Redmen swept to their third straight championship yesterday with a close 11-8 win over St. Mike's A. in the Hart House gym.

Though the Double Blue could not stop the UC squad from winning their twenty-first straight game, they did something that no other team has been able to do in the past three years. For the first time in approximately thirty games the Redmen's ace, Bob Watson, was held scoreless.

While the St. Mike's team were busying themselves checking Watson, Jack Rogers, Baby Blue footballer and an excellent lacrosse player, potted six goals. In the three playoff games Rogers scored fifteen times and Watson ten. Other scorers for UC were Tom Riley with two, twin brother Terry Riley with one, and George Patterson and Dave "Red" Stephen added one a piece. For the losers, the three players who have carried the load all year, and who incidentally played the whole game yesterday, were once again the stars. They are Terry Wheeler and Jim McKinnon who each had a hat trick, and Curt Russell who scored twice.

The game was nip and tuck from the very start. Rogers started the scoring with a tricky bounce shot, only to have McKinnon tie it up with a screen shot from well out. Rogers added three more himself before Russell tallied for St. Mike's to make the score 4-2 at the quarter mark. In the second quarter, Rogers added his fifth and Wheeler and Russell replied for St. Mike's before Patterson drove one behind Tim Donovan in the St. Mike's net to make it 6-4 at the half.

In the third quarter, only the sparkling goal-tending of Blyth Brown and Donovan kept the score down. Nobber Watson seemed to have Donovan at his mercy. at one time, but the goalie made a sensational stop of a rising shot. Brown thwarted Russell and Wheeler on numerous occasions. Rogers and Stephen managed to penetrate Donovan's armour and Wheeler replied for St. Mike's to make the score 8-5 at the three-quarter mark.

In the last quarter, a quick goal by McKinnon cut the lead to 8-6, but Terry Riley came through with a sparkling shot which gave U.C. a three-goal advantage once more. McKinnon and Wheeler tallied one each and the score was 9-8. Just when it appeared that St. Mike's were on their way, Tom Riley got a goal after taking a perfect pass from Watson. With St. Mike's pressing once again, "Red" Stephen, who shone on defence, came out of his end with the ball, deked the St. Mike's defenceman, and fired a beautiful pass to Tom Riley, who had little difficulty in salting the game away with his second goal. That made it 11-8 with a minute remaining, and that's how it ended.

The University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra

— and —
The University of Toronto

Mixed Chorus Will Present a Concert in Convocation Hall

Thursday, December 9th, 1954 — 8.15 p.m.

For Staff, Students, Graduates of the University
and their friends.

— There will be no Admission Charge.

A Students' Administrative Council activity.

GAMES TODAY

VOLLEYBALL
SEMI-FINAL
DIVISION II
FINAL
SQUASH
1.00—SPS III vs. Jr. SPS A—Sorra.
7.00—Law vs. Forestry A—Preen, Ripniak.
5.40—Sr. Med vs. Dent. A (Postponed).
6.20—Jr. SPS vs. Dent. C.
7.00—Pharm. B. vs. SPS IV.
12.30—Trin. A vs. Jr. U.C.—Reid, Fisher.
1.30—Dent. B vs. SPS V—Smith, Yakimoff.
9.00—St. M. A vs. Sr. Med—Stephen, Rely.
HOCKEY
BASKETBALL PRACTICES
Main Gym 1.00—S.P.S.; 4.00—Law.
Upper Gym 4.00—U.C.

Knox College Carol Service

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8th

8:00 p.m. KNOX COLLEGE CHAPEL

HART HOUSE TODAY

TUESDAY, 7TH DECEMBER:
10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW. Also prints by Abstar Bell (Art Gallery).
10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS: (Chapel).
1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR. (Record Room). "Murder in the Cathedral"—Part I by T. S. Eliot. Produced by Robert Helpmann; Old Vic Company with Robert Donat.
5.05 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER. (Chapel).
7.00 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — FULL GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Music Room). Please be on time — timing for C.B.C. Broadcast.
7.30 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).
7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
7.30 p.m. — LIBRARY EVENING. John Gray will speak on "Canada: A Nation in Search of a Literature." Women are welcome.

PAGE FIVE

h h sunday concert

The St. Mary Magdalene Singers sit in intense concentration just before the opening of the concert in Hart House this Sunday. Conducting them is Dr. Willan who composed much of the music on their programme. Dr. Willan is the University of Toronto organist and the organist and choirmaster of the church of St. Mary Magdalene's. The programme consisted mainly of motets and Christmas carols.

261

No more pleasant way could be found to open the Christmas season than by listening to the small but effective choir — the St. Mary Magdalene Singers.

The opening chorale: To Us Is Born A Little Child by J.S. Bach, was sung almost hesitantly. The St. Mary Magdalene Singers seemed to lack the virility which the Chorale rightly deserves. Well practiced diction was evident throughout the programme and particularly in Jesu Dulcis Memoria and O Quam Gloriosum by Tomas Luis de Vittoria. Thomas Tallis' Gloria Patri in fugue-like form was precisely sung and showed to advantage the neat entries of each small section of the choir.

The choir was happier in singing the carols of the second part of the programme, but the characteristic sweetness of tone turned slightly sour. The fifteenth century Alleluia pro Virgine Maria and King Jesus Hath A Garden were perhaps the best numbers of the evening. Here the pitch was constant and the tone was richer as they sang in unison for the first of these. The second was suitably light and lilting.

The lack of tonal variety and dynamic range were excusable in the two lullabys which followed. But it was a welcome relief to hear the brighter Gems of Day by Marc-Antoine Muzet. The sopranos revealed a thinness of tone, but never did they fail to sing with precision.

It was in the final three numbers that the slip in pitch became most noticeable. The beautiful Christmas Lullaby composed by the conductor was marred by the slight sharpness of the tenor solo. This poor intonation, however, did not detract from the expressiveness and clarity of the tenor's singing. The soloist gained assurance as he lost his nervousness, but whole choir failed to do justice to Dr. Willan's composition.

Perhaps because it was a new work, Dr. Welford Russell's Who is at my Window, Who was sung in an uncertain and disjointed manner. The Twelve Days of Christmas has become a traditional part of the St. Mary Magdalene Singers' Programme and is almost always given an encore. The clever arrangement by Dr. Willan brings in the lower parts one by one so that the parts mount up as the days do. The first sopranos who carry the melody throughout performed a difficult task. The second sopranos and later the altos, tenors and basses gave clear and distinct phrasing to the accompany counterpoint.

Dr. Willan has moulded a group of pleasing voices into a choir of intensity and warmth although the singers do not individually possess a rich or well polished tone, when singing as a unit, they overcome this handicap. It would seem that Dr. Willan, when conducting the choir, is putting his fingers on the keys of a human organ.

Molshe Reiter

Sylvia Fisher

CRITIC IN THE DARK

Spillane Covers A Ring Of Fear

A great new first has been scored by Warner Brothers, with the collaboration of Mickey Spillane, in revolutionizing the writing of scripts for Hollywood movies. Initiating their new twist in A Ring of Fear, a mystery of circus life, starring Spillane, the producers have substituted for most of the standard common human dialogue the eloquent roars of jungle cats. The pitiful thing about Ring of Fear and Mr. Spillane is that these roars do make much the more sense and realistic effect than the childish lines and stunned acting.

The second male lead, a man named Pat O'Brien is supposed to be mad, with homicidal tendencies yet, but there was greater evidence of unbalance in the movie's direction than in O'Brien's portrayal. The whole picture is sadly muddled, from the opening scene to the bloody finale. In the beginning O'Brien is in a mental hospital appealing to a group of doctors for his release on the grounds that he knows himself to be cured. A questioning takes place, lasting some three minutes, at the end of which he is pronounced a homicidal maniac. This brilliant insight of the psychiatrists is to be wondered at. I certainly thought O'Brien did well, when he left the interview, to smash his guard in the face, leap some fifty feet to freedom, beat up the truck driver, and then hop a speeding freight to get away.

It is at this point the movie's real story begins with Dublin O'Malley (O'Brien), setting on a murderous path to revenge himself on Clyde Beatty an animal trainer and circus owner who once laughed at him. A flash-back shows how it all started. O'Malley is shown in the centre of a cage, being mauled by a large beast; Beatty steps in, cracks his whip, frightens the poor animal away and rescues O'Brien after which he chuckles good-naturedly, — an insult which is obviously answerable only by murder. The puzzling part though, is that O'Brien never had any part of the lion taming routine having served the circus only in the capacity of director. Then what was he doing in the cage, dressed as a trainer? That is a secret known only to Warner Brothers and Mickey Spillane.

It was no trick to foretell the ending, not after the first meeting of O'Brien with the cats that had occasioned the great insult from Beatty. The finale, poetic in its justice, just had to happen. It was fate.

As the private eye who solves the case, Spillane disdains the usual methods of brilliant reasoning, courageous action, trapping the killer by intuition. It was positively thrilling to watch the crafty killer sneer at Mickey's facts and deductions which were quite sneerable. But it was absolutely amazing to see O'Malley crack when told that Mickey's intuition had deduced that he was crazy.

The magnitude of this detective work was the straw that broke O'Malley's back, but it wasn't strong enough to carry the picture.

COMING-UP

- WEDNESDAY, DEC. 8
- 1.10 p.m. — HART HOUSE CAMERA CLUB — Club Room — Colour Show. A Criticism by Mr. W. J. Blackhall (Chairman International Colour Salon) Members are requested to bring their large slides as well as 35 mm. transparencies for criticism at this time.
- 5.00 p.m. — UNDERGRAD PHARMACEUTICAL SOCIETY — Lunch Room — Meeting to plan for Open House.
- 5.00 p.m. — STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — S.C.M. Room, Hart House — "How We Worship".
- 7.15 p.m. — HART HOUSE BRIDGE CLUB — Reading Room, Hart House — Play Bridge in the Reading Room, Prizes — All Welcome.
- 7.45 p.m. — FOOD CHEMISTRY CLUB — U.C. Womens' Union — Dr. J. Beaton of School of Hygiene on Research in Vitamins — Refreshments — Everybody Welcome.
- 8.00 p.m. — ITALIAN CLUB — Reading Room, Hart House — Mr. Nuti, Italian Consul — Topic Marco Polo and Amerigo Vespucci. Musical program arranged by Maestro Virici of the Royal Conservatory of Music.

TODAY

- 1.20 p.m. — VICTORIA MUSIC CLUB — Music Room Wymilwood Professor Field on Beethoven.
- 1.00 p.m. — LIBERAL CLUB — Room 9, Trinity — General Meeting.
- F.R.O.S — 45 St. George St. — Informal discussion on Egypt.
- STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — 143 Bloor St. W. — "Christianity and the Social Sciences".
- STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT — Room 212, Anatomy Bldg. — "What is a human being?"
- 4.00 p.m. — U. of T. C.C.F. — Room 11 — U.C. — membership meeting. Election of new 2nd vice-president and discussion of participation in Model Parliament.
- 4.00 p.m. — U. of T. SPANISH CLUB — Arbor Room — Tertulias — Come and speak Spanish over a cup of coffee.
- 5.00 p.m. — CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION — U.C. Womens' Union — Regular Meeting — Everyone welcome.
- 8.15 p.m. — U. of T. GERMAN CLUB — Falconer Hall — Annual Christmas Party — readings, carols, refreshments.

WANTED

MORTICIAN'S ASSISTANT

- No Experience Necessary.
- Interesting Work.
- Negligible Rewards.
- Quiet Surroundings.
- Never a complaint etc.

Apply VARSITY OFFICE

NOTICE

Before all your money is spent on Christmas presents treat yourself to a

TORONTONENSIS

Order it from your Rep. or in the SAC office (the old Observatory).

Watch for the amazing new individual index!

The Graduate Committee of Hart House offers a limited number of tickets to undergraduates for

THE NEW YEAR'S EVE BALL

- Stanley St. John and his Ensemble
- Dancing in three rooms from ten 'till three
- Splash party in Hart House pool at 3 p.m.
- Supper after midnight in the Great Hall

Tickets $7.50 per couple

Dress Optional

ONE TICKET ONLY ON EACH A.T.L. CARD

GET YOUR TICKET TODAY AT THE GRADUATE OFFICE, HART HOUSE

U. of T. FLYING CLUB

Sunday, Dec. 12 at 7:30 a.m. there will be a breakfast flight to Peterborough, Oshawa and Toronto. If you wish to go either as a pilot or passenger please contact Lenore Reilly — MO. 6231 as soon as possible.

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT ARENA GARDENS BOX OFFICE

NEW YEAR'S EVE

Battle of the Bands

STARRING PEE WEB RUSSELL

Tim Wood's 15-piece band & Boyd Valleur's 12-piece band

ARENA GARDENS

Mutual Arena EM. 8-1554

TICKETS $2.00 per person

DOOR ADMISSION $2.50

Hart House Tree

—VSP by John Le Gaillais.

SAC To Consider Proposal To Revamp Blue and White

Suggested measures for the re-organization of the Blue and White Society will be presented to the Student's Administrative Council to-night by SAC President Bill Angus. These measures are contained in a notice of motion for constitutional amendments. In order for these measures to become effective, they must be passed by a two-thirds majority of the SAC at the first meeting in January.

In the notice of motion it is suggested that an executive of the Blue and White Society be created; an executive which would be responsible to the SAC. "It shall be the duty," it reads the motion, "of the Executive to be responsible to the Council in all matters of policy and finance concerning the Blue and White Society."

The executive members would consist of the Chairman of the society, a Vice-Chairman, the President and Vice-President of the SAC, the Secretary-Treasurer and Associate Secretary of SAC (without a vote), a member of the Finance commission, the Public Relations Commissioner, a treasurer of the society, a secretary of the society, and representatives from the Blue and White Band and from the cheerleaders.

The position of the vice-chairman is a new feature in the Blue and White. As well (if the measures are accepted) this will be the first time the Band and cheerleaders have been represented on the Society. For the first time the treasurer has his duties defined; he will prepare a budget and shall "be capable of presenting a complete and accurate report of the financial position of the Society whenever called upon to do so."

One of the recommendations of the motion is that regular meetings of the Executive should be held on the Monday immediately following the week of the Council meeting, a new feature for the B. & W.

"No radical changes are being contemplated in connection with the Blue and White Society," said Bill Angus, SAC president. "It is hoped," he said, "to set the Society up in accordance with the other commissions and committees of the Council."

"The new features for the Blue and White are an executive and provision for an appointed vice-chairman," he added. He said that these constitutional provisions were intended to make the Blue and White Society responsible in practice to the SAC in matters of policy and finance. "It is in no way an effort to minimize the flexible nature of the Blue and White activities," he said.

PC's "Not British—Stuff Ballot Boxes"

CCF Out If Election On

At an open meeting yesterday, the CCF accepted their executive recommendation not to "participate in the Mock Parliament as it is presently constituted," but also agreed that they wanted to join in a Model Parliament if organized on different lines.

The club's official statement is "we are not opposed to the idea of a Model Parliament. We are opposed to the mockery that has passed for a Model Parliament in past years, and refuse to participate in another repetition of such a Parliament." They then proposed five conditions as a basis of negotiation for CCF participation. These are: supervision by a body outside the political clubs, such as the UDTU, that each club form the government on one night; that CCF would not have any financial burden from the Mock Parliament, as in the past; that all sessions be held in the Legislature with the speaker presiding "to avoid the fiasco of last year's third night which was ruined by the childish antics of the Conservatives and Liberals who apparently must be supervised by someone of prestige to behave themselves"; and that "the clubs put the effort formerly used in unproductive campaigning into stimulating student interest in the Mock Parliament itself."

The decision not to participate in a Parliament of last year's type was passed before the second motion was adopted. "It is not to our advantage" said Bill Grant III UC, President of the CCF. He added that it takes a lot of work, and that "certain prominent members" of the Progressive Conservative club "have done things on this campaign, which, to put it in the mildest possible way, are not British." He cited the destruction of posters, ballot-box stuffing, and incidents with a "certain publication."

Allan Millard III UC, First Vice-President of CCF said "the point is whether Parliament will go on without us. The story in the Varsity admittedly put us on a spot . . . We don't have the power to kill the Mock Parliament. What we're saying is that it doesn't serve our purposes, and as far as I've seen, it serves no purpose . . . We can't be blamed for killing the Mock Parliament if we haven't the power to do it."

After speeches from the floor stating that Parliament could be of value for experience and publicity, Arthur Kruger IV UC proposed the plan adopted as the official statement. It reads: "The aim of Parliament is to provide the opportunity for all on campus who are interested to see Parliamentary Democracy in action while at the same time comparing the different programs of Canada's major political parties. Unless there is a greater interest shown in the debating of the Parliament through a larger audience attendance, then we fail to achieve this end and do no more than debate among ourselves — a highly unproductive effort."

CCF are "Frustrated Petty Politicians"

No Vote—No Support—PC's

"A frustrated bunch of petty politicians," were the words used last night by Mr. John Gamble, President of the Progressive Conservative Club, to explain the actions taken earlier in the day by the CCF club.

At four o'clock yesterday afternoon, the CCF issued a statement that they were in favor of the mock parliament plan proposed by the Political Economy Club, which is an organization set up to stimulate interest in political activities, but which has no authority over the political clubs. This plan differs from that which has been in effect throughout the four-year history of the mock parliament in that it does away with having elections prior to the session of parliament in order to discover the majority.

Gamble said that his party would not tolerate a mock parliament without first having elections. He claimed that the CCF are frustrated because they have not been able to win a majority under the old system and that this plan is the only way they can get control of the government.

The Liberal Club will participate in any plan worked out by the other parties, President Ed Lowery said last night.

Political Economy Club President Allan Millard's plan is to have a three-parliament, in which the different parties draw straws to determine which group becomes the government and has the majority. "The function of the mock parliament is to get a reflection of the views of the people on the campus," Gamble insisted, however. "The move of the Political Economy Club and the CCF would make it nothing for the job. This was the solution agreed on yesterday when the SAC subcommittee on the safety problem met with city hall officials.

The committee found that officials had discussed the students' plea and were quite willing to clarify the stand they took last week. Traffic Inspector Burton repeated that a light would not be an adequate solution, as it would lead to lack of caution in both pedestrians and motorists, and as the system the department had already arrived at for regulating the complicated flow of traffic provided maximum safety.

The metropolitan councillor produced his facts: there are 4,500 intersections in the city without lights and 260 with — and the latter have a much higher percentage of accidents. The officials said they could guarantee that if a light was placed in the middle of Hoskin the accident rate would increase considerably.

Hoskin has had two recorded accidents in the last year, Bill Angus, SAC president, said he knew of others. This brought

(Continued on Page 2)

Flat or Round?—H H Debate

"That this house wishes the World were Flat" That is the question which will be argued in the Debates Room of Hart House at 8.00 tonight, in the final debate of 1954. It is the custom to end the year with a rather lighter topic than is usually discussed.

Speaking for the affirmative are Barry Watson (IV Trinity): "The world must be flat; if it were round there would be something in it," and Charles Mark (IV Trinity): "Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill made low." Opposition speakers Earl Berger (IV UC) and John Schonleber (St. Mikes) could not be reached for comment.

The Speaker of the House will be George Kell (IV Vic). Professor Ruddock, assistant professor of French at Trinity, will be honorary visitor.

Christmas Issue

The annual Christmas Issue of The Varsity — chock full of interesting and fascinating material — will hit the newsstands Friday morning. It will contain 12 pages of campus news, Christmas Features, and a special Sports Roundup.

There will be no Varsity tomorrow.

HART HOUSE TODAY

WEDNESDAY, 8TH DECEMBER:

- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW. Also prints by Alistair Bell (Art Gallery).
 1.10 p.m. — COLOUR SHOW CRITICISM (Camera Club Rooms). Mr. W. J. Blackhall, past President Toronto Camera Club will give a criticism. Members invited to bring their transparencies.
 1.25 p.m. - 1.55 p.m. — MID DAY RECITAL (East Common Room) — Joan Faron—pianist.
 4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY—Open to women of the University of Toronto.
 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Mediaeval Art Works. Open to men and women (through Reading Room).
 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Debates Ante Room).
 7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB. (Reading Room). All Members of Hart House welcome. Prizes.
 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

8.00 p.m. Tonight

DEBATE:

"This House Wishes That The World Were Flat"
Your Annual Debate For Your Christmas Laugh!

TORONTONENSIS — 1955

N.B. — All Biographies must be handed in by the end of this week to your College Reps.
 Office — WA. 3-8741

EDITOR — DAVE WOOD — MO. 4231

Activities	Clarke Deller	WA. 3-6856	Fraternities	Nickie Cohen	MO. 1385
Theatre	Barb Ham	WA. 3-8451	Photo Editor	Fraser McIntosh	JU. 4287
Ads and Index	Nona Nelson	MA. 3185	Secretary	Shella Kent	HU. 9-2240
Athletics	Al Tough	ST. 8-8988	Publications	Sally Denny	HU. 9-0315
	Men—Gerry Helleiner	BU. 4287	Residences	Joanne Price	MO. 2717
	Women—Jo Ratcliffe	OX. 1785	Sales	Mike Hare	HU. 1-2478
Clubs and Organizations	Robin Colling	LA. 3723		Colin Graham	WA. 2-0317
	Shirley James	LA. 3723		Bill McLean	WA. 2-0317
	Kay Russell	LA. 3723	Student Gov't	Eileen Cleary	WA. 4-2121
	Dorothy Parsons	LA. 3723

FACULTY AND COLLEGE REPRESENTATIVES

Architecture	John Shaw	HU. 8-6864	Nursing	Shella Kent	HU. 9-2240
Commerce and Mort	Eisen	HU. 9-0573	Pharmacy	Wm. Laing	EM. 8-7361
Finance	Annabelle McEwen	WA. 4-2275	P.H.E.	Garnet Banks	BL. 6970
Dental	Helen Curtis	EE. 9220	P.O.T.	Bette Kempton	WA. 3-7712
Hygiene	Al Taylor	WA. 3-0478	Social Work	Kay Hooke	WA. 4-8961
Dental	Fraser McIntosh	JU. 4287	St. Hilda's	Frances Ryan	WA. 4-2121
Nursing	Douglas Stringer	HU. 8-8904	St. Joseph's	Peter Miller	WA. 3-9201
Dentistry	Dave Murray	WA. 3-0641	Trinity	John Kirkwood	WA. 3-8411
Engineering	Wm. F. Duffy	WA. 1-1316	U.C.	H. Malcolmson	WA. 2-5733
Emmanuel	R. J. Gray	JU. 8705	Victoria	Eleanor Burton	WA. 2-5733
Forestry	Rita Monahan	WA. 1-5301	Univ. Extension	Mrs. Cross	WA. 3-6611
Knox	Ken McQuarrie	GR. 9963			Loc. 10
Law	Norma Siefrid	GR. 9963
Loretto	George Varcoe	HU. 8-6042
Medicine
Music

These reps. will also take your order for TORONTONENSIS.

McCurdy Talks on God and Literacy

Dr. W. J. McCurdy, department of philosophy, University College, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the University of Toronto Philosophical Society. His topic will be "Literacy and Literacy in Religion".

"Our own president's remarks about religious illiteracy point to a real interest and need, not only here, but in other centres of educational interest," said Dr. McCurdy when asked about his subject. "Although an institution could correct illiteracy if it was merely a question of giving information," he said, "this isn't so easy when the worst kind of illiteracy consists in misapplication of religious thought and concepts."

Professor McCurdy said that nevertheless he believed this translation and mutual understanding to be possible as well as enjoyable.

This Thursday's meeting, the third held by the Philosophical Society, will be the last for this year. It will be held in the Rhodes Room, Trinity College, at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, December 9.

SAC's Safety

(Continued from page 1)

no comment. The metropolitan representative was asked if he had ever tried to cross Hoskin between Trinity and Wycliffe. He replied with more figures proving that the intersection was not dangerous.

Traffic officials at the meeting agreed that lights are not a safety measure; that a constable is the best solution, but too expensive to use at all danger points. The SAC committee agreed to the idea of a university policeman, stressing the need for expediency. The officer, plus caution on the part of students, should make an accident-free crossing, according to city officials.

The committee, however, is not content to rely on past good safety records. They feel that the cause of the light is not lost. They have merely been forced into a watch and wait position: they must wait for an accident to get further action. Despite the danger of the crossing the official accident rate is low, and the SAC has none of the facts so dear to the city officials. The committee urges students to report all accidents, no matter how minor, near misses and license numbers to the SAC.

★
EVANGELINE
GIFT BOXES
FOR ALL YOUR GIFTS
★

LAST SHIPMENTS BEFORE CHRISTMAS!

Fully Fashioned
English Sweaters

Made for Evangeline by Meridian;
I & R Morley and Wolsey.

Pullovers (short sleeves) $6.98 and $7.98

Pullovers (long sleeves) $7.98

Cardigans $8.98

Sizes 34 to 40

What wonderful Christmas gifts these famous sweaters make! Fully fashioned of the finest pure botany wool—they fit perfectly, are shrink-resistant and are available now in the staple colors and 10 high fashion shades. There just aren't any sweaters to compare with them at Evangeline's low prices. Pick out your gifts now while we have the colors and sizes. A small deposit holds any purchase.

V Neck Cardigans — $8.98

Sizes 36 to 42

For those who prefer the coat style cardigan, this is a lovely one—fully fashioned by I & R Morley in a medium weight of fine botany wool. White, Ice Blue, Turquoise, Grey mix.

Evangeline

IN HAMILTON
King & John Streets

UPTOWN STORES
OPEN FRIDAY
AND SATURDAY
TO 9 P.M.

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 786 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 636 Danforth at Pope
- 62A Bloor at Bay

Ottawa • Brockville • London • Guelph
Kingston • St. Catharines • Peterborough

COMING-UP

THURSDAY

- 1.00 p.m. — GAMMA DELTA LUTHERAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION—Front Vestibule—UC—speaker Rev. Anne Kristo.
 4.30 p.m. — CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION — Mech. Bldg. Staff Lounge. Music by Bartok.
 6.30 p.m. — CANTERBURY CLUB—Rm. 10 Trinity College—"Nicene Creed"—Rev. G. Haworth.
 7.00 p.m. — HILLEL FOUNDATION—185 St. George St.—Rabbi Kamenling's Classes—7.00 p.m.—Yiddish—9.00 p.m.—Philosophy.
 8.00 p.m. — SCM Study Group—143 Bloor W. — "Church and Industry".
 — THE MODERN LETTERS CLUB—Falconer Hall — Discussion—Prof. F. Priestly.
 — ITALIAN CLUB — Hart House Reading Room—Discussion and Musical Program.

PHOTOGRAPHERS

- Interesting Work.
- Little Experience Necessary.
- Negligible Remuneration.

Anyone interested in doing photographic work for The Varsity report at The Varsity Office.

"EXPORT"
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

STUDENT TOURS TO EUROPE

LIMITED TO STUDENTS BETWEEN THE AGES OF 19 AND 26
Under the personal guidance of a well-known University Professor.

TOUR # 1 81 DAYS $1,270.00

England, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Germany,
Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 1

TOUR # 2 74 DAYS $1,135.00

England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland,
Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 8

Both Tours sail on the well-known CUNARD LINE

Write, call or telephone for illustrated descriptive folder.

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

(Kenneth B. Conn, President)

2 College St.

WAlton 4-1494

A WINTER CARNIVAL FOR TORONTO!

Snowgirl

Jan. Festival on Campus and Caledon Hills Farm

An All-Varsity Winter Carnival—an innovation at the U of T—is being planned for mid-January! A Carnival Campus Queen, an inter-faculty sports competition, and a human dog-team race will highlight it. There will be hiking, skiing, skating, sauna bathing, bob sledding, rock climbing, barn dancing, and snowman building—a varied programme.

The Caledon Committee of Hart House, original organizers of the plan, are intending to hold the Carnival events on the Campus and at the Caledon Hills Farm of Hart House. The Carnival will take place at Caledon on the weekend of January 22 and 23, but campus activities will be going on throughout the preceeding week.

The Blue and White Society and the U of T Ski Club are co-sponsoring the event along with the Caledon Committee of Hart House.

"It has long been realized that there is no major all-University event of the Easter term comparable to the football games in the Autumn"; said the Chairman of the Caledon Committee, Bosko Loncarevic. "We hope that the Winter Carnival will fill this need."

He pointed out that nearly all Varsity students indulge in some form of Winter sports—skating, skiing, tobogganning, or winter hiking. He said that a winter Carnival on this Campus would serve two major purposes. It would be a co-ordinating Campus Caper and it would provide an excellent opportunity for recreation in winter sports. The Carnival could become a colourful part of Campus life, he said.

fox fur for fun

Carnival Trophy

By ALEX GIGEROFF

Behind this Trophy-pelt is a story of a swamped river boat, a sandbar machine shop, 96 hours of bailing and a trading post on fire. But let me tell you about it because I was there when Ben Cork with the cork leg gave it to Bill Angus, our SAC President.

It was at the end of last summer that Bill and I hitch-hiked about 200 miles north of Prince George to the Parsnip River; the first part of a trip that was to take us into the Peace Pass area in Northern B.C. We had arranged the trip under auspices of the Exploration Society of Hart House. We hitched a ride in Ben Cork's long flat bottomed boat loaded down with staple supplies for Fort Grahame.

Fate stalked us throughout the trip, but we were first made conscious of her presence when only two hours down stream. A broken sheer pin and a twisted shaft in the middle of the river came first. We poled our way into shore and repaired the damage. That night we camped at a trapper's cabin. While we were asleep the river went down, the boat tipped and swamped, soaking three tons of cargo, including Quaker oats, tea, boxes of lard and dry goods. Two of the three motors we carried were drowned and rendered useless. Resignedly we unloaded the boat and tried to dry out the goods in fitful sunshine.

We were loaded again by mid-afternoon and all went well until we lost a propeller. Again we managed to pole safely to shore where we camped. By this time the boat was leaking so badly that it was necessary to bail it 24 hours a day. I bailed until three in the morning at which time Bill would crawl out of the one sleeping bag we had, and I would crawl in. We bailed the boat in this way until we reached Fort Grahame three days later.

The next day about noon we had to draw into a log-jam and sandbar in the middle of the river because the one good motor we had left was acting up. In the end we had to do a ring job on it and could only fit the thing together again with parts that had been cut and filed out of Bully Beef tins.

A day and a half later we reached the fort a little the worse for wear. We bedded down in a tent, which had been pitched by the Indians for us just outside the log cabin that acted as the post. At 2:00 o'clock in the morning the same voice that had awakened us announcing the swamping of the boat announced the post was on fire. Bill with a well-aimed bucket put out the worst of it and together with some prospectors we managed to put out the fire.

I think as a reward for saving his cargo, bailing his boat for four days and nights and saving his post from a gasoline fire Ben Cork, God and Economic Czar of the Indians, presented Bill with this mixed Red and Silver Fox fur. So you see it is a trophy with a wealth of back-ground. Although it does not have sterile longevity to its credit in a sense it has more. It is symbolic of the trading out of which we began and which, unknown to most of us is still being carried on to-day. So you see it carries the flavour of the past cupped with the drama of a present day expedition.

Oh, by the way, I also have a mixed Silver and Red Fox furlpelt, given to me at the same time, but I'll be damned if I'm going to part with it after having worked so bloody hard to get it.

Carnival Program

The Program of the Winter Carnival provides for both competitive sports and for individual participation in activities. The competitions will be on an inter-faculty or inter-organization basis.

All competitions during the Winter Carnival will be divided into two groups—expert and novice. The various faculty and college teams will be awarded points on the basis of percentage participation and standing. The winner of the total point competition will be awarded the Carnival Trophy—a fox pelt.

On The Campus . . .

WEEK OF JANUARY 17

The Carnival will be opened on the Campus by a human dog team race. During the week the candidates from the various faculties for the Campus Queen will be introduced. A snowman competition, for all faculties and fraternities, will continue through the week.

. . . And At Caledon

The competition eliminations will be held on Saturday, with the finals and the presentation of the Trophy on Sunday. The Carnival Caledon Program is as follows:

SATURDAY, JANUARY 22

10:00 a.m.—Crosscountry Skiing, Snowshoe Race.

11:00 a.m.—Orienteering around the Caledon Hills Farm.

1:00 p.m.—Downhill Ski Race.

Woodchopping Competition.

2:00 p.m.—Slalom, Ski Competition.

Skate Racing and Tobogganning.

Evening—Sleigh rides across the snow.

Square Dance and Sing-Song at the farmhouse.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 23

Morning—Finals in the Skiing and Skating Competitions.

1:30 p.m.—Figure Skating Exhibition.

2:30 p.m.—Official Opening of the Sauna.

All Afternoon—Open Skiing and Skating.

Evening—Award of the title, Campus Queen.

Presentation of the Fox Fur Pelt to the winner of the Carnival Competition.

The Details . . .

Teams entries for the Winter Carnival will be accepted from any group which wants to enter the competitions. The total number of points from all events will be taken into account in choosing the winner of the Fox Pelt; the Carnival Trophy.

Registration for the Winter Carnival will start on Jan. 10. The registration forms together with programme pamphlets will be available at Hart House, SAC office, Vic, U.C. and Engineering Stores. All the competitors must register in order to get credits for their respective group teams.

The Carnival at the farm is essentially a two one-day series of events. However, for those who wish to spend the whole weekend at the farm special but limited accommodations are being planned.

Private cars, chartered buses, and possibly a train will provide the transportation.

We Have It Now!

The University of Montreal has it, Laval has it, McGill has it—no, it's not Molson's—it's a WINTER CARNIVAL, complete with snowmen, a carnival queen and human dog-team.

In keeping with my newly-acquired apathetic attitude, I feel that this is not a good idea. Who wants to go skiing, sleigh-riding, snowman-building and skating (aside from square-dancing and wood-chopping)? How are we sophisticated types to look soignée and blasé outdoors enjoying ourselves? We want to sit inside looking world-weary and bored, not to race about being chosen carnival queens (I hope, I hope, I hope).

However, I must admit that the idea does have its attractions. Figurez-vous your favourite professor valiantly trying to fell a mighty oak.

Will his divine effluvia help him?

For years I have suffered from an inferiority complex, induced by the sneers and pitying smiles of friends from McGill. Football is all very well for lower mentalities; they imply; but it takes finesse to produce a carnival. Prenez garde Montrealers, the carnival even has a theme song; it is "The Twelve Days of Christmas" rearranged—i.e. —

The twenty-fourth day of Christmas my true love said to me,

A carnival for Varsity and a partridge in a pear-tree.

Woodman

NOTE

A meeting of all residence representatives will be held on Fri. Dec. 10 at 4 p.m. in the Debates room of Hart House. The agenda will also include proposed skeleton committees, which will be set up at the same meeting. The following departments are required to carry on the program: Promotion, Publicity, Transportation, Finance, Sports, Accommodation and Odds and Ends. All students interested in helping organize coming Carnival are asked to attend this meeting.

editorial

A Good Idea

This page of The Varsity contains an account of a University-wide Winter Carnival now being planned by the Caledon Committee of Hart House. This project is praiseworthy, as Toronto has a lack of campus-wide events to interest students during the winter months.

The Carnival will aid in the development of winter sports at this University. It will, it is hoped, become an annual tradition, and prove a unifying factor on the campus. Besides, it should be lots of fun.

The Caledon Committee of Hart House, The Blue and White Society, and the University of Toronto Ski Club, the co-sponsors of the event, should be commended for their efforts. Yet it should be realized that the Winter Carnival will not be a success unless it receives the enthusiastic backing of all the various college and faculty organizations, and of the students themselves. —RDB.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Acting Assistant Sports Editor
Acting Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Vojtech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Bob Brown
NIGHT EDITORS: Carol Hoffman, Roger MacQueen
REPORTERS: Jane Edgar, Tom Virany, John Siehl, Peggy Donnelly, John Gehl.

Floundering Politicos

The political scene on the campus is becoming more confused everyday.

In point of fact the trouble dates from the ill-starred attempt of the Independent Progressive Association to gain recognition from the Political Economy Club.

Two years ago a group of campus independents organized themselves into a group which espoused none of the theories or practices of any of the major parties.

Their application to have members stand in the election was refused on the ground that they were not a recognized campus political organization.

However, they proceeded to get recognition from the Caput but the Political Economy Club still denied them official sanction.

Members of the I.P.A. then demanded a write-in ballot, and while no official results were announced, they got twelve per cent of the total popular vote.

The following year, members of the I.P.A. applied once more for recognition and the right to have members stand for election to the Mock Parliament.

This was refused them, but in a gesture of magnanimity, the Pol. Econ. Club decided to allow five independents to sit in the house.

At the meeting which was called to decide which independents would sit, the business was badly managed and many recriminations resulted from the unfortunate handling of that affair.

While the members of the I.P.A. complained vigorously and the campus political leaders replied just as vigorously, the election was held last year without any I.P.A. members on the ballot.

After the election the three major parties had great difficulty seating enough members to keep the house operating effectively.

This year, the U.T.D.U. decided to strengthen the control they nominally exercise over the Mock Parliament. The result of this was a motion which said in effect that if the Pol. Econ. Club did not allow all recognized campus political organizations to be represented on the ballots, they would receive no financial aid from the SAC.

The indirect result of this was that the Mock Parliament plans were called off.

Now the CCF wants to have a parliament which will not be elected by a popular vote of the students but will be just a group of interested individuals. The Progressive Conservatives want an election, but a Mock Parliament organized outside the fold of the SAC. The Liberals are agreeing, in their customary manner to co-operate with whichever method is devised for the operation of the Mock Parliament.

During the last two years the Political Economy Club could have had the services and the support of the one group of individuals on the campus who were vitally interested in the Mock Parliament. That group had gone to considerable trouble to make themselves eligible for participation in the Mock Parliament.

Now the Club is suffering the natural result of their refusal to recognize the fact that large numbers of students on this campus have no pronounced political views, and their unwillingness to permit the representatives of that group to have recognition within the Mock Parliament.

We hope they enjoy their floundering.

student scholarships

by NORMAN CHALMERS

It's been suggested that $5,500,000 a year is more money than eleven Canadian governments, ought to be asked to chip in for three things the current student scholarship campaign is asking for.

The three demands are:

(1) An assurance that some at least of those who do not come to University for financial reasons will henceforth attend.

(2) An assurance that those who now drop out of University for financial reasons will no longer need to do so.

(3) Relief for students whose studies are hampered by the lack of the minimum amount of cash needed to attend university.

There are three reasons which those of us who are conducting the scholarship campaign feel more than justify the expenditure we ask.

First, and most generally, there is in any nation a perennial shortage of trained minds — of sheer brain power. We owe it to ourselves to develop what human talent is at our disposal to the full. We spend scores of millions to develop natural resources, to build up our manufacturing plants. Why not five and a half million, less than .025% of the net national income, to build up our human resources to make best use of our natural heritage?

Secondly, $5,500,000 isn't the amount it sounds when compared with other government expenditure programs. The total of the current federal Estimates — not including supplementary estimates voted since — is $4,404,976,236. Our request is for an increase of .12% — one-eight-hundredth, even if it were all met from federal funds. And we're not asking that it be met entirely from federal funds.

The federal government now budgets $9.8 million for Indian education; $5.8 million for representation abroad (actually a good deal more); $9.9 million for penitentiaries; $6.5 million for civil defence; $3.3 million for the expenses of the Privy Council Office; $11 million for gold mine subsidies. These are all worthy causes on which comparable amounts are spent, but surely no more important to the national welfare than government scholarships.

Larger expenditure programs besides which the scholarship demand looks like piggy-bank material, include family allowances ($349 million in Estimates), Old Age Security ($345 million), Defence services ($1,960 million), Department of National Revenue ($50 million), capital assistance to defence plants ($60 million), tax rental payments to provinces ($301 million), and unemployment insurance contributions, and administration ($58 million), and health grants ($30 million).

Thirdly, the proposition that governments should out their spending when the economic going gets a bit rough is a dubious one. The present federal government's own White Paper on Employment and Income (1945) committed government to a policy of cyclical financing, of spending more when jobs were scarce, purchasing power low and private spending reduced. Said the government in 1945:

"The Government will be prepared, in periods when unemployment threatens, to incur the deficits and increases in the national debt resulting from its employment and income policy." (p.21)

Certainly there is no hint here of the sentiment expressed by one Toronto M.P. who felt that a recession was the time to cut government spending.

For these reasons, your scholarship campaign committee feels justified in sticking to its 5,500,000 guns.

our readers write:

Intelligent Participation

The Editor,
The Varsity.

I agree heartily with the sentiments expressed by Robert Rooks in his article entitled the 'Voice of Experience' which appeared in Friday's Varsity but I feel some of his suggestions should be modified.

I sense a bit of the idealist in his suggestion that professor's notes be mimeographed. I suspect most people are as lazy, or almost as lazy, as I am, and in most instances receipt of mimeographed notes wouldn't jar me from my lethargy. Why not suggest that professors end each lecture with a summary of the points to be covered in the next lecture along with suggestions for reading? The student, if he was interested, could prepare himself for intelligent participation; if he was not interested, he could attend for any of the various reasons these people attend lectures, ranging from a desire to see their friends to accumulating copious notes.

I think this is where I disagree with Mr. Rooks' article. In attempting to improve on lectures he suggests a system which would make it too easy for most students; who instead of responding to the system would take advantage of such

'gimmicks' as mimeographed notes.

Discussion groups, which receive cursory treatment in Mr. Rooks' article, have been a pet peeve of mine for some time. The honest attempts of some Departments to encourage discussion by organizing groups are being frustrated because they are ignoring tested techniques of encouraging discussion in groups. I am sure the School of Social Work could assist by providing a short course in the techniques of group leadership for the group advisors.

Yours for better lectures,
Alan Clarke,
Second General.

Early End

The Editor,
The Varsity.

The editorial entitled "Outlets" which appeared in last Friday's issue of the Varsity has indeed struck a vital point in our society. The effect of this state of frustration is rapidly being shown by the degeneration of our moral standards on this continent.

It is rather evident that our society will not "afford the frustrated" soul the outlet he may need. It is even more obvious that "some form of financial subsidy" cannot be devised to facilitate the early marriage of our young men and women of university age. However, there is a much more satisfactory alternative.

The solution of this problem envalues the system of education which is used in Australia. In our sister country grade and high school students prefer a very brief summer holiday of a few weeks. As a result, they are promoted at a more rapid rate and graduate from grade XIII at sixteen. Consequently they are finished their college education at an early age and do not have to endure the unnecessary stresses with which we are presently concerned. This practical solution only sacrifices the students' long summer vacations rather than our moral code and pocket-books.

This does not solve the issue of unsuited mates; however, our common sense reminds us that it is extremely unsatisfactory to break the marriage bonds.

Douglas Love
I U.C.

P.T. or Not P.T.

—Cartoon by Jas. Weller.

FANFARE FOR STRATFORD

by DAVE DUNSMUIR

Twice Have the Trumpets Sounded, by Tyrone Guthrie, Robertson Davies, and Grant Macdonald; Clarke Irwin, Toronto, $4.00.

ONTARIO'S Stratford had its second Shakespearean Festival this summer, and the record of the 1954 season serves the double purpose of appreciation and prophecy. True to its title, Twice Have the Trumpets Sounded, it deals with the triumphs of the second season, but shows that even these but prepare the way for greatness. The fanfare still sounds, and director Tyrone Guthrie hopes that it heralds Canada's emergence into cultural maturity.

Produced by the collaborators of last year's Renown at Stratford, the new work is far more of a "year book" than the first, which had some of the marks of a rather hasty occasional piece. Last year the portraits by the Kingston artist, Grant Macdonald, were the mainstay of the book; the writing of Robertson Davies, served almost solely to illuminate them. This year the roles have been reversed, and Davies is left free to indulge in his own brand of rambling and eclectic scholarship, with a detailed analysis of the three plays presented. Also, with the first flush of the "Stratford miracle" over,

Dr. Guthrie can take as a premise the continued existence of the enterprise, and deal with its aims, prospects, and future influence.

Guthrie's influence is felt throughout the book — and rightly so, as his was the creative force that made the Festival an astounding artistic success from its first year. Davies' opening essay, in dealing with the director's extemporaneous inventiveness in rehearsal, attempts to explain why Guthrie is perhaps Europe's foremost exponent of the view of the play as an organism, growing constantly from the first rehearsal to the final performance.

This view is expounded by Davies in his studies of the plays, Measure for Measure, The Taming of the Shrew, and Sophocles' Oedipus Rex. The writer disengages himself from the snap first-night judgements that are the downfall of many productions, that came close, in fact, to condemning Measure for Measure this summer. He gives the key to this difficult play's inherent worth by a brave psychoanalysis of its characters that sheds considerable light on its puzzling action.

For the work of Grant Macdonald, "illustrations" is too narrow a term. Working with pen-and-ink, pencil, and water-colors, the artist has thronged the pages with life. If any criticism can be made, it is the same as that applied to the performances of the Festival's star, James Mason. The artist has a delicate sensitivity, the ability to depict character by a few airy strokes, but his range is limited. A startling change comes with the portrayals of the characters of the Greek tragedy, for which the artist has used strokes of colour on a black background. His two facing black pages, with their gloom relieved by the draped figures of four minor characters, is most effective, but the portrayals of the protagonists themselves has little of their real monumentality. The frontispiece especially seems a little too contrived in its grouping, while the figure of Oedipus, has lost much of that magnificent leonine quality that leaped to the eye on the king's first awe-inspiring entrance.

The need for a well-spring of Canadian culture, and incidentally the place of the artist in modern society, is described by Guthrie himself, in "A Long View of the Stratford Festival". In a sparkling essay, chock-full of quotes (like "Hamlet") he describes the artist's function, demolishing vague and sterile concepts of Do-goodery with sardonic capitals. Here, as elsewhere, the work becomes more than the entertaining record of astonishing achievement. It strives after a definition of indefinables — undoubtedly scholarly, it is never pedantic and certainly never dull.

Dave Dunsmuir is a student in third year English Lang. and Lit. who was drama critic for the Stratford newspaper this summer.

a robertson davies' composition

The Leaven Of Malice

By WENDY MICHENER

ROBERTSON DAVIES penetrates the smooth exteriors that men provide themselves and reveals the inner activity like the light that comes on behind a scrim and makes a seemingly solid wall as a window to the scene behind it. He does this mostly by a satiric 20-20-vision, but partly also by a slightly short-sighted sympathetic vision.

In his latest 'novel' Leaven of Malice, Mr. Davies exercises his usual perspicacity and talent for the terse antithetical phrases. For example: "Waverly, like all Canadian universities, was perpetually short of money, whereas its store of doctorates was inexhaustible." But there is more than the combination of an incisive essay style and ability to create dramatic and humorous situations; there is the beginning of a fusion of the two into something like a human comedy instead of theories of human comedy. Some of his characters are mere actors; Mr. Snelgrove who is described as the "stage lawyer to the life", is really the stage lawyer to the stage, with no back-stage existence. But some of his characters such as the pink-faced Mr. Higgins are pure homo, sapiens or otherwise.

The plot, which is as much in acts as any drama, is a tightly-knit expose of the events succeeding a false notice of engagement inserted in the Salterton Evening Bellman. The engagement involves the children of two families who like each other as little as the Capulets and Montagues. The editor, Mr. Ridley, is sued, and Pearl Vambrace is pursued long enough to give Mr. Davies time to make profuse comments on the running of a newspaper and certain aspects of university life before he resolves his mesh of threads with a short tug on one string.

Generally, the comments are well worked into the story to have significance for both character and plot, especially in the case of his revelation of an editor's psychology. Mr. Davies hands you an aside such as "To be an editor was to be a geyser of opinion; every day, without fail, Old Faithful must shoot up his jet of comment", and then proceeds to illustrate it so minutely that you wonder if he has forgotten his story. The next minute you realize that all of it was necessary exposition for someone else's entrance. But occasionally Davies' desire to get across a cherished opinion leads him out of the story.

One of the most effective methods he uses is that of describing the same events through different people's illusions of what happened (somewhat like the effect of Rashomon). Sometimes its ironic and its almost always amusing. Leaven of Malice represents an advance in the literary career of Robertson Marchbanks Davies, and should spread a leaven of lightheartedness in the constant reader.

Wendy Michener is a student in third year Eng. Lang. and Lit. and AM & D Editor.

STUDENT LIFE IN RED CHINA

By Sally Green

The Umbrella Garden by Maria Yen, Macmillan's $4.00

THE UMBRELLA Garden is a book impressive by its sincerity and honesty. It is not a book written to justify or dramatize a sudden conversion, nor is it a book written to recriminate those who were not converted. It is the account of a student, Maria Yen, with no particular pretensions to literary or political fame, attempting to describe as justly as possible her experience of the People's Liberation and her thoughts and reactions as a student.

At first Maria Yen had thought that the Liberation Army was to bring a new life and liberty, the kind of life that students particularly are prone to dream of.

She and the rest of the students worked for the People's Army when it entered Peking in 1949. In fact the University became one of the strongholds and the centres of activity. She describes her original enthusiasm and opposed to that her later disillusion and discovery that many of the student demonstrations had been forced upon them and planned by communist cliques that she had not suspected.

All student activities one by one became compulsory instead of spontaneous — this was their new found freedom. The process of revelation was not sudden but came through a long series of disillusionments and hardships. They had had hardships before, and now they had given up their freedom to find even more hardships. I found the scene in which she describes the envy and spying of one student upon another to check up on the orthodoxy of the party spirit particularly revealing. Living in residence is hard enough upon occasion under the best of conditions and with the kindest of relationships, but it was impossible in the misty and inhumanity to which the new "democratic regime" reduced them.

As the restrictions became more and more severe and action and speech more and more uniform and organized, Maria Yen realized that she could no longer stay there and must escape from her homeland. She did so and in this book draws the implications for the outside world and other universities in a most human and perceptive account.

Sally Green is an M.A. student in anthropology

Thirty-Three Canadian Comments

Thirty and Three; by Hugh MacLennan, The Macmillan Co. Ltd., $9.75.

by MARG NODDER

"THE Greeks, who knew everything, understood that without the orgy there is no middle ground between bedlam and Toronto." This is a quotation from "Orgy at Oriol", an essay in Hugh MacLennan's latest collection, and in case your interest is aroused, I shall tell you that this particular essay goes on to describe some Oxford undergraduates celebrating, rather riotously, the victory of their college boat. There is an amusing account of the dignified Scottish provost's pants being tossed, torn and finally burned at this orgy, which unfortunately had to terminate at midnight, because there are no late leaves for orgies. Cocktail bars and back rooms, MacLennan finds, are but pallid substitutes for the emotional release of an orgy, and he heartily recommends it, especially for women.

This is an example of the delightful contents of this collection, which has been made from essays previously published in such magazines as The Montrealer and Saturday Night. Whoever cannot find a subject which interests him must have a narrowness of interests verging on the absurd, because Mr. MacLennan runs the gamut from politics to literary criticism, including in between such things as a description of April in Canada and bureaucracy in Ottawa. One essay is devoted entirely to praising the present younger generation and condemning Mr. MacLennan's own, which is encouraging for us and broadminded of Mr. MacLennan.

This collection throws some light on the mind of the man whose novels are among the best Canada has been able to produce, and whose first collection of essays, Cross Country, won a Governor General's Award. It shows him to be an essentially warm man, of catholic tastes and interests, a lover of the arts and (hardest of all to understand) a defender of the Canadian climate. His insight into literature is displayed in the essay on Hemingway in which he ranks him as a superb prose-writer, but a second-rate

These are no earth-shaking ideas or revolutionary, new thoughts in any of the essays, but then this is not his purpose, he merely wants to entertain. His informal and intimate style is completely fitted to his subjects, none of which are grave enough to demand a harder or more concrete expression. Pleasantness and readability are the marks of the book and make it the sort of thing to relax with. As you read it you will find you are smiling gently at a particularly delightful turn of phrase, or an apt comparison, or thinking a little about Canada's future, or her beauty. May we ask Mr. MacLennan not to delay so long before he publishes another collection.

Marg Nodder is a student in fourth year Eng. Lang. and Lit. novelist, who has restored order and clarity to the English language.

UC AND PHE III IN BASKETBALL FINALS

Speaking ^{1/2} OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

The final round of playoffs for the Victoria Staff Cup are under way this week, deciding the Interfaculty volleyball championship for this season. And for all you birds who regard this game as just another way to get athletic credits we have discovered that in Europe at least, volleyball is a game of great skill, and is a major interest to the average European.

There have been two referees in the Interfaculty this fall who both carry a string of volleyball experience with their names. An idea of the importance of this sport in Europe can be gained from the record of Uno Sorra, the referee-in-chief in the Interfaculty league. Sorra has officiated at two invitational tournaments in Germany, and has played on a representative team of the British zone, also in Germany. In addition to this, he has played on the Central YMCA's senior team, who have been all-Canadian open champions for the last four years.

Sorra explains that the probable reason for the importance of volleyball in Europe is the necessity for the people in those countries to play indoor sports, and also the lack of huge stadiums such as we have in Canada and the United States. The game is on almost every school curriculum in Europe and all students learn the finer points of the game long before they graduate.

Another man who has contributed to the improvement of Interfaculty volleyball this fall is John Diemer, who also boasts an impressive record in Europe. He has played for two years in senior national volleyball competition in Holland, as well as refereeing in that league, and officiating and judging at two international matches.

Between these two, the rules of Interfaculty volleyball have been in some cases changed and in many more cases clarified. Interesting is the change that makes a ball still within the limits of the court if any part of it, or even any part of its shape is touching or above the borderline. It is of course necessary to hit the ball with the fist, but a new interpretation of the rules shows that only two fingers may touch the ball during the serve or at any other time. The man who plays closest to the net is the one who "spikes" the ball, but if he follows through with his shot it is known as palming the ball. Contact must be made and the hand immediately withdrawn to make a fair shot.

Those are just a few of the innovations the Interfaculty rules have undergone this season under the direction of Sorra and Diemer. Between the two of them, it is their intention to scare up some interest on this campus in a sport that has long been regarded here as definitely minor. That alone is a fairly large undertaking anywhere, and their efforts in that direction are strictly commendable.

Bad News . . .

. . . is the word from Western Canada that the proposed reorganization of a western Intercollegiate football union has been shelved for another year at least. The president of the University of Manitoba has turned thumbs down on the Bisons' entering intervarsity play with the Universities of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia, the cost being at present too high for the Winnipeg school. This turn of events is doubly unfortunate as such a league would make for additional spectator interest in the east-west series started this fall by the University of Toronto and the British Columbia Thunderbirds.

UC Gals Swamp Pharmacy 52-6 PHE Seniors Topple Second Year

By NORMA WALSH

It's going to be P.H.E. III and U.C. Seniors in the Intramural basketball finals on Thursday night at Hart House. This was determined in last night's semi-finals in which U.C. swamped a game Pharmacy squad 52-6, and the Phys. Ed. Seniors defeated P.H.E. II by a 48-32 score. If the evening's play is to be counted as any criterion of what will happen on Thursday evening in that final encounter, it will be an outstanding championship game.

Pharmacy was simply out-classed in the first semi-final affair, U.C. had command all the way on offence as well as defence. The Red and White got off to a fast start in the opening quarter, netting 18 points to Pharmacy's single score. Pat Swayze led the way with 8, closely followed by Di Walker with 6, and Claire McMullen with 4. The second quarter saw the pace slow down somewhat;

U.C. netted 11 more and the half-time score was 29-1.

The second half was again dominated by the Red and White scorers. Swayze added 14 more points to her evening's total and Lorraine Rotman came through with 7. Sandy Paulumbo and Jan McCabe were the only Pharmacy marksmen with 3 and 2 points respectively.

The second game of the evening was by far the better contest of the two. The Senior Phys. Ed. crew, led by the outstanding play of June Hansford, found a match in their fighting Sophs.

The first quarter was quite even on defensive play, but the III's had the edge on offense with Hansford's 11 points and Inger Olsen's 3. The Soph scorers were Sylvia Kerr with 5 and Arlene Seaman with 3.

The second and third quarters were quite even, but again Hansford's eagle-eye made the difference in the III's winning drive. In the last frame, the II's made a very determined effort to overcome the 12 point bulge of the Seniors, but their drive fell short. Sylvia Kerr with 14 and Georgia Brock and Arlene Seaman with 8 each were the best for the Sophs.

At 7 p.m. on Thursday, the two defeated semi-finalists will play: the final game will start at 8 o'clock.

Hockey Blues Visit Quebec Play McGill Redmen, Laval

The Varsity Hockey Blues will be looking for two more victories to insure them of first place in the league standings when they set out Thursday for games with the McGill Redmen and the Rouge et Or of Laval University.

The Blues will play the Redmen in the Montreal Forum Friday night in the first encounter of the weekend doubleheader. Coaching the McGill entry is former McGill football and hockey star Rocky Robillard. The Redmen have not played a league game yet, but are expected to ice a strong team with most of last year's men returning. Herb English is back, but word from Montreal puts him back on the blue-line for this season, while Rick Adrian who was a spark for the last-place McGill club last year, is back to centre the first line.

Blue coach Jack Kennedy will use the same team that trounced the University of Montreal Carabins 7-2 last Friday night in the Arena. Highlight of the Blue team this year is a strong defensive unit led by ex-Marlie Dave Jackson, who is considered by many to be the best defenceman the Blues have had in years. All the Varsity crew will have to do in order to virtually clean up in the Intercollegiate league this season, is put the finishing touch to an already powerful attack. That is, they've got to start scoring goals instead of coming close. Paul Knox, right-winger on the big first line, hit the goal-post six times in the game against the Carabins.

The Saturday night game will be played in the Quebec City Coliseum, the largest ice surface in Canada. The Coliseum also has the largest seating capacity in the Dominion, with room for some 2,000 more spectators than the Maple Leaf Gardens. Hockey is the major drawing sport in old Quebec, and even after the graduation of Jean Beliveau to senior ranks, the fans are there in droves.

The Blues' opposition Saturday night will be Laval, who are supposed to be embarked on a rebuilding plan after winning the Intercollegiate laurels last season. One great loss to the Rouge et Or will be Gerard "Butch" Houle, who is attending the University of Montreal this year. The new Laval sextet lost a close game to the Carabins two weeks ago 4-3, and if scores mean anything, the Blues should be able to win in Quebec.

However the two games on successive nights have always been a problem to Blue teams, and anything could happen. Whatever does happen, the Blues will be sitting pretty, high atop the league, if they can return from the east with two wins. It will put them four points ahead of the Carabins, and leave them in a fairly golden position for the post-Christmas drive to the title, last won by the University of Toronto in 1951.

STAFFERS

Will the following sports-writers please appear in the office on Friday at 1:15 for a short meeting: Peggy Cain, Joanne Housley, Norma Walsh, Jane Kelly, Walt Schmida, Chuck Dolman, Wilf Caplan, Bill Eckersley, Lloyd Fraser, Tom Williams, Sheldon Taerk. If it is not possible for you to be present, please let one of the sports editors know by telephoning the office tonight or Thursday night. Anyone else interested in joining the sports staff as a reporter or to assist in make-up and layout is welcome to attend the meeting also.

Saunderson Quashes Western Intervarsity

Saskatoon, December 6, (CUP)

— Edmonton's hopes for the re-introduction of a Western Canadian Intervarsity football union have been quashed by Doctor H. H. Saunderson, president of the University of Manitoba. In a letter to Ed Zahar, Gateway sports reporter, Doctor Saunderson said he did not see any probability that the University of Manitoba would be able to take part in such a union within the next few years.

"Such a league would cost more than we are prepared to spend on it in our present budget," he added. The U. of M. was first approached on the idea two years ago, when Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia agreed in principle on the setting up of a football league. However, it refused to comment until now.

Hopes have been bright that the league would be reintroduced, but it is believed that the refusal of Manitoba will kill the idea for certain. Previously, Saskatchewan and Alberta stated that they would prefer a four-team league, while British Columbia was so enthusiastic that it would have taken part in even a three-team league. However, the consensus is that without Manitoba the league would be financially unsound.

The withdrawal of Manitoba from the football league of the 1930's brought about the collapse of the original league. Shortly after that the remaining teams were in financial difficulty. B.C. dropped out of the league in 1946, and by mutual agreement Saskatchewan and Alberta dissolved the league.

Two years later, the U. of A. students' council appointed a committee to discuss the possibility of reintroducing the league. Last Tuesday they appointed a committee of five students to study the immediate possibility of a league. The committee checked costs on Sunday, and decided that to be financially feasible the league would have to be composed of four teams. It will meet again Wednesday to consider the latest move.

Cost to the University of Alberta would have been 9,500 dollars per year, while costs to the University of Manitoba, because of its non-central location, would have been slightly higher.

Hockey Intermediates Start Grind

With the forceful reminder, weather wise, that winter is here hockey claims its place in the limelight. With the fine showing by the Blues to date to inspire them - Varsity's intermediate hockey hopefuls, under the direction of coach Jack Weldrake, are hard at work. The return of only a few of last year's squad promises an almost complete new look to this year's addition.

Winners of last year's intercollegiate competition, Varsity will retain the Shaw Trophy, the intermediate hockey cup, as no official league will operate this winter. Instead the intermediates will play a series of exhibition games starting after Christmas. Twin bills with Western, Osgoode, Ryerson, and Queen's have at present been arranged with the possibility of a single encounter with R.M.C. This leaves only O.A.C. missing from last year's opponents, but their new athletic policy, of being unwilling or otherwise to play Varsity intermediates teams, makes any meeting unlikely.

Returning to action from last year's team are Herb Tilson and Barry Smith on defence with the appearance of John Prendergast, late of football fame, a strong possibility. Up with the senior team this season are Clare Fisher on the forward line and Hugh Currey, the towering gentleman guarding the twine for the Blues. Joe Primeau and Gene Robillard, who had seen hockey action with the Redmen when at McGill are two notable losses through graduation by the club.

With this season's team rounding into shape Al Flemming in goal and Bill Naylor, both from U.T.S., are showing well. Outstanding newcomer, late of the Brantford Junior B team, is Dud Kearney who has been playing a strong game to date at center. This year's club, although lacking the outstanding stars of last year's promises to be a better balanced and therefore stronger squad.

Cagemen Travel South For Exhibition Contests

The Basketball Blues leave tomorrow for a four-day tour of New York State to meet some of the top College teams south of the border. With only three games on the record for this season, and losers in two of them, the Blues are poor bets to bring back victories on their trip. The point of the tour however, is to give the team experience, and an idea of how the top American quintets work, with a view to applying it in their own play.

Leaving at midnight tomorrow, the Blues will play in the New York area on Friday, Saturday, and the following Monday. Their opposition will be teams from Fairleigh-Dickinson College, Iona College, and St. Francis College. All teams well qualified to give them a rough time — and teach them a great deal. As they are still in the early stages of organization, the Varsitys are not likely to show much, their only weapon being exceptionally accurate shooting. If they can develop a smooth attack before they return from the United States however, they will be a good bet to win the Intercollegiate laurels this year.

The potential power of the Blues is the greatest in years. They no longer rely on one-man arrangements as in last season, when George Stulac carried them almost alone. With experienced men like Leo Madden, Peter Potter, Don Fawcett, Art Binnington, and Marv Tile to support Stulac; there are enough top-quality men on the club to match the best of Western or Assumption. They need only to work themselves into a team and this trip should do it.

Name Top Grid Stars

Although it arrives at least two weeks after Canadian Press has picked their team, the Canadian University Press yesterday released its annual Intercollegiate all-star football team, picked by a poll of the four College newspapers concerned.

The team does not differ much from that picked by Canadian Press, although Western's Ralph Simmons is included in the backfield at fullback along with Fracas, Stewart, Oneschuk, and Getty, who got the nod for the quarterback spot unanimously. The writers picked three halfbacks and a fullback, observing Western's introduction of the Diamond T.

The Mustangs' Don MacGee plays at centre on the dream team, flanked by guards Bob Waugh from Varsity and Sherm Hood from Queens. Tackles are Ted Roman of Western, and Clyde Whitman of McGill, while ends are the Mustangs' Bob Turner and Varsity's Fred Smale.

Other men who received lone votes of the four cast for each position were Wally Mellor of Queens at quarterback, Bob Pinkney of Varsity on the half line, and Toronto's Phil Muntz at fullback. The Golden Gaels' Lou Bruce drew a vote for an end position, as well as Varsity's Alec Macklin at tackle.

BAHA'I

Student Group Invites You To Hear
KEN McCULLOCH Speak On
"THE NEW DAY OF GOD"

At Falconer Hall
To-Day, Dec. 8, 1:00 p.m.
Discussion Welcome.

For Christmas --

A University of Toronto BLAZER CREST available at the office of the

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

ENJOY Player's "MILD"

Canada's Mildest, Best-Tasting Cigarette

Christmas Gifts

Every Shopping Problem can be Solved Right Here on the Campus!

BOOKS

the most enduring gift — fiction, biography, art, history, humour, sports, poetry, drama.

U. of T. STEINS

handsome ceramic mugs decorated with the University of Toronto Crest

ART FOLIOS

of the great masters

BRIEFCASES

in fine leather

FOUNTAIN PENS

and matching pencils

GREETING CARDS
GAY CHRISTMAS
WRAPPING PAPER
SEALS & RIBBONS

University Bookstore

A rave of new colours for your

"Kitten"

Collection

Prettiest way to go to school... in a full-fashioned Kitten sweater. In cashmere-soft Lambswool... 100% Super Orlon. Exquisitely hand-finished, shrink-proof and moth-proof... by Glenayr.

At good stores everywhere

s. s. pullover $6.95
l. s. pullover $7.95
cardigan $8.95

G-54

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT ARENA GARDENS BOX OFFICE

NEW YEAR'S EVE

Battle of the Bands

STARRING PEE WEE RUSSELL
Tim Wood's 15-piece band
Boyd Valteau's 12-piece band

ARENA GARDENS
Mutual Arena EM. 8-1554

TICKETS $2.00 per person
DOOR ADMISSION $2.50

SKIERS

There will be a meeting for men interested in the INTERCOLLEGIATE SKI TEAM on Wed., Dec. 8th at 5 p.m.

in the Staff Room, Athletic Wing, Hart House

BASKETBALL and WATER POLO OFFICIALS URGENTLY NEEDED!
GOOD REMUNERATION — APPLY NOW INTRAMURAL OFFICE
A Basketball rules clinic is planned for next week. Inquire at Intramural Office.

SPORTS SCHEDULES — WEEK OF DECEMBER 13th

HOCKEY

Mon., Dec. 13 12:30 — Sr. U.C. vs. St. M. A.—Naylor, MacLean
1:30 — Trin. B vs. SPS V.—Dysart, Tilson
Tues., Dec. 14 12:30 — Vic. IV vs. SPS VII.—Fisher, Reid
1:30 — For. A vs. Law—Yakimoff, Smith
Wed., Dec. 15 12:30 — Trin. A vs. Jr. SPS—Riley, Stephen
1:30 — SPS IV vs. SPS III—Reid, Fisher
End of schedule for Fall Term — Re-commences Tues., Jan. 4

SQUASH

Mon., Dec. 13 1:00 — Pre-Med vs. Law
4:20 — Dent. E vs. Dent. D
5:40 — Dent. III vs. Dent. B
Tues., Dec. 14 6:00 — Trin. C vs. Pharm. B
End of schedule for Fall Term — Re-commences Tues., Jan. 4

BASKETBALL PRACTICES — From Monday, Dec. 13 to end of term. Team Managers apply to Intramural Office for reservations starting Today.

GAMES TODAY

LACROSSE — DIVISION II FINAL — 7:00 Law vs. Pharm. A.—Warren, Uhrynuk, Brown
VOLLEYBALL — DIVISION I FINAL — 5:00 Med. IV Yr. vs. Jr. SPS—Preem, Diemer

HOCKEY

12:30 — Med. III vs. Trin. B—Yakimoff, Smith
1:30 — St. M. C vs. SPS VII.—Naylor, MacLean

SQUASH

4:20 — Trin. A vs. SPS III
7:00 — Pharm. C vs. SPS V

GAMES THURSDAY

LACROSSE — EXHIBITION GAME — 1:00 Med. IV vs. Med. II
HOCKEY 12:30 — St. M. B vs. Vic. III—Reid, Fisher
1:30 — Med. IV vs. Trin. C—Riley, Stephen
4:00 — Jr. U.C. vs. Jr. Vic.—Smith, Yakimoff
6:30 — Arch. vs. For. A—Smith, Yakimoff

SQUASH

1:00 — Sr. SPS vs. U.C. II

CUP

Runneth Over

By DOUG STEWART

British Columbia: The Student Council here recently investigated the possibility of taking over the University bookstore. It was decided that the student body could not afford to do so because of the high cost of the existent inventory, rent rates and janitorial service charges.

The suggestion to take over the book-store was made by the university board of governors. Surprisingly enough, the president of the AMS feared the Student Council might be buying "a pig in the poke." Seems to us that if prices in the Uhyssay book store are at all comparable to ours, the venture couldn't help but be successful.

Queens: Sadie Hawkins Day took a new twist here, and ended up as Susie-Q Week. As one co-ed said: "For the price of a cup o' coffee, we can dazzle the man whom we've been silently worshipping for the last two months so that he'll do the asking next time."

Coffee dates were most popular, but some men emerged with a full course meal. Most notable were the few who braved an intemperate, early morning climate for early morning breakfast.

Of the girls interviewed, over 58% took out seven or more men during the week.

Minnesota U. The topic: "Resolved that the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China" will be debated by seven college teams in the face of extensive criticism by other educational groups.

The charge of "too controversial" has been raised by four Nebraska state teachers' colleges, the military academies of West Point and Annapolis, and various other colleges in the country. These schools refuse to debate on any topic referring to Red China.

This might seem just a little incongruous in a country which prides itself on freedom of thought and expression.

Saskatchewan: Back to "The Campus Cow", humour (?) section of the Saskatchewan Sheaf. These are just fair for humour, but hell for purity.

"Hey, have you got a picture of yourself?"

His roommate: "Yeh!"

"Then let me have the mirror to shave with."

Two trains were steaming along toward each other at a great rate of speed, but they didn't crash. It seems that a Swede was driving one and a drunk was at the throttle of the other. As everyone knows, Norse is Norse and Souse is Souse and never the train shall meet.

Beefcake or Cheesecake?

Torontonensis Now For Sale
Many New Features This Year

Torontonensis — the Year Book of the U of T — will contain many new features this year, said Dave Wood, Torontonensis Editor.

This year's book will have an entirely new feature — an index which will list alphabetically the names of all students who are pictured in the book in any of the group pictures. "This should prove a very useful and popular feature of this year's Torontonensis," said Editor Wood. He denied that they were any plans afoot to also list the addresses, phone numbers, and ages of all the pretty girls whose photos appear in the book.

This year's Torontonensis will, as usual, contain many pictures of campus activities. However, some dissension seems to have arisen among the staff. The Editor and the Sales Manager both insist that to be a success the book should contain a preponderance of cheesecake. But the 15 female members of the Torontonensis staff say that they want more "beefcake" in the year book.

Among the features which have been decided upon are a new white cover, improved layout of te pages, and more artwork by the Torontonensis staff artist.

The price of the book is $4.50, and the sales campaign will move into high gear today. The names of the various faculty and college reps, from whom the books can be ordered, appear in today's Varsity on page two. Books can also be ordered from the SAC Office in the old observatory in front of Hart House.

Christmas Cards
For Sale Daily—

Students may buy their U of T and UC Christmas cards through the SCM. Cards are on sale daily at the office in Hart House and from 9.30 to 2.30 in the UC rotunda; and for this week only in the main hall of Vic.

Orders will also be taken for Bede House cards — put out by a group interested in producing cards with a Christian theme and the modern touch.

All proceeds of the sale go to the SCM, for use in its national and international budget.

YOUR HOBBERLIN
HINTING HELP
FOR THIS WEEK

Hey there, you with the blear in your eyes . . . Couple of weeks ago we ran the hint-sheet below in this so-called newspaper with notable lack of response. This just won't do. You're not trying. We assume you're bleary-eyed from studying — or something. Here is how to use the HOBBERLIN HINTING HELP. Clip it out and put it where the folks will be sure to see it. (On the handle of the liquor cabinet for example). Or send it in the mail if you live elsewhere. Good luck!

Dear perplexed parent:

Here is Christmas rolling around again and you don't know what to get for that big oaf of a son of yours, do you?

Well, if you're prepared to squander something like $35 to $40 on the good-for-nothing, we have a suggestion or two:

Why not make him at least look presentable by giving him a Hobberlin Harris Tweed Sport Jacket. When he opens the package he'll probably show the first signs of life you've noticed since he started University.

If size is a problem, don't fret. Just buy him a Hobberlin jacket, any Hobberlin Jacket. (Your taste is probably years out of date anyhow). Then the ungrateful wretch can bring it back if he wants, for alteration, exchange or refund.

Harris Tweed jackets from $42.50; Blazers from $37.50. Crests for most of the more acceptable fraternities, from $10.50.

Incidentally, it won't be a bad idea to get your son started on the Hobberlin habit. We have a sobering influence on some of the racier dressers, which may be due to the fact we've been in business for 69 years.

Hobberlin
LIMITED

145 Yonge TEL. 3-7813

EATON'S

Pull Up Your . . .

SOCKS!

Higher, higher . . . right up to the knee! That's it — just about the brightest fashion on the campus! One that's destined to stay — for obvious reasons — all Winter long! Pick out an argyle to match your favourite kilt . . . stripes and solid colours for variety!

The wool argyle, various colours. Sizes 9½ to 10½. 3.25
Pair

The cotton cable, in red, yellow, green or navy. 1.29
Sizes 9½ to 11. Pair

EATON'S — Main Store — Main Floor (Dept. 201)
and EATON'S — College Street — Main Floor

T. EATON CO. LIMITED

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3326.

NORTH BAY
Driving to North Bay on weekends. If interested in transportation contact Ted Guppy, GL. 7763.

LOST
10 inch slide rule, blonde case, name "Ottaway" on back. Vicinity of Mechanical Bldg., Friday, Dec. 8. Please call HO. 4843.

LOST
Belge gabardine overcoat, Monday noon, Nov. 29. Also dirty poplin coat left in Varsity office last Thursday. Phone Mike Cassidy, WA. 3-5742.

FOR SALE
Sports car, '54 MG PF wire wheels, heater, very reasonable. Color—red. Telephone WA. 2-2553, evenings after 7.00 p.m.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes: new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

LOST
One pair of palace gates. Finder please return to Willie Moreau, c/o MacBeth's Castle, O.C.E.

The Students' Administrative Council presents the

University of Toronto
SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

ROBERT A. ROSEVEAR, conductor

and

University of Toronto
CHORUS

RICHARD JOHNSTON, conductor

Convocation Hall
Thursday, Dec. 9th—8.15 p.m. Sharp

This concert is for Staff, Students, and Graduates of the University and their friends.

There will be no admission charge.

Women Eat

The Great Hall of Hart House will be open off and on during the Christmas vacation. Ladies will be allowed to eat in Hart House in this period. A list of dates when the Great Hall will be open will be posted on the Hart House bulletin board.

University College
Lecture Series

"DELACROIX and LITERARY INSPIRATION"

by Prof. C. R. Parsons
Room 8 — U.C.

Tomorrow . . . at 5.00 p.m.

ON Thurs.
Dec. 16
8.15 p.m.

Great Hall
HART HOUSE

SAC

blue and white
CHRISTMAS —TREE—

— GLEE CLUB — CAROLS
— GIFT EXCHANGES — SANTA

FREE — ALL STUDENTS WELCOME

MERRY CHRISTMAS

FROM THE VARSITY

JAS!

odds and ends of campus news

What's Going On?

Circle-K Is No Ranch

The Circle-K is coming to the University of Toronto — but it's not a ranch. It is a Kiwanis affiliate, dedicated to service in the university field. Already Circle-K has done some work at the University Settlement, and is planning a Christmas activity at the home for incurable children. The charter was presented last Friday at a dinner-dance at Casa Loma. The club so far has a membership of thirty, including Fred Pamender, II Vice, President, John Storey, II Arch, Vice-Pres., and Allan Kullas, OCE, Treasurer.

The U of T Circle-K is now one of 85 clubs in an international organization.

Radio to Home At HH Dinner

The annual Christmas Dinner for overseas students will be held on the 17th of December in the Great Hall of Hart House.

All students from overseas countries and from distant points in Canada and the rest of the American Continent who can not return home during the Christmas vacation are invited.

Invitations have been sent out to many students. Those who did not get one should inquire at the Warden's office.

The Amateur Radio Club will have a transmitter set up in the East Common Room, and will transmit messages to all possible destinations in the world.

Last year, greetings went out, among others, to Ex-Warden J. B. Bickersteth who is now in England. The Warden and the House Committee will be joint hosts of this dinner.

"Sell" Gargoyle For Kids

Next Monday's issue of the UC Gargoyle will be "sold" by Santa Claus to raise money for the children of the University Settlement. Aubrey Golden, Gargoyle Editor, announced that the UC undergrads would be asked to contribute to a fund for the Settlement when they went to pick up their papers — which will be distributed by a Santa Claus from the Settlement House.

Golden said that the money raised by the donations of the UC students would go to buying a junior-sized pool-table and other gifts for children of intermediate ages at the University Settlement. He said, "We are in effect selling our paper for whatever people think that the charity is worth".

The papers will be "sold" in the rotunda of University College from 9 a.m. to 12 noon Monday; then they will be distributed free as usual throughout the college.

Socialists Meet

A big nation-wide caucus of the Co-operative Commonwealth University Federation (CCF) is being planned here during the Christmas vacation; it was stated last night.

CCF student delegates from University CCF clubs in over a dozen colleges from coast to coast are expected to attend the convention December 29, 30 and 31.

University of Toronto CCF club will play host to the visitors who will make Woodsworth House on Jarvis Street headquarters for the three day convention.

Matters planned for discussion include, it was stated, a discussion on the purpose of the student federation and a thrashing over of the projected NFOUS dominion scholarship plan.

CUP Conference

Delegates from over 20 Canadian University Newspapers — including The Varsity — will meet on December 27 to 31 in Ottawa for the annual CUP Conference.

For a Light Smoke and a Pleasing Taste

Call for
PHILIP MORRIS

PM-14

CREST THEATRE

TORONTO'S ONLY
REPERTORY
THEATRE

MT. PLEASANT
ROAD
HUDSON
9-9427

Murray and Donald Davis Limited present

FROM DECEMBER 14TH

Christmas in the Market Place

A Modern Version of the Christmas Story

Nightly at 8.30 — $3.00, $2.25, $1.75, $1.00

Matinees: Wednesday 2.30 - Saturday 5.30 — $2.50, $1.50, 75c

SPECIAL STUDENT RATE . . . 75c

On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of 2nd Weeks of Runs

Learn your PRACTICAL ECONOMICS

at "MY BANK",
where students' accounts are welcome. You can open an account for as little as a dollar.

BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada's First Bank

Queen's Park Branch: JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
Bloor and Bay Streets: KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
St. George & Bloor Sts.: T. HARRY BRYSON, Manager
WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

EUROPE

1955

STUDENT TOURS Sail May 28 or June 14 tourist class on S.S. Homeric from Quebec on special conducted tours limited to Students. A week in London, Holland, including Volendam and Isle of Marken, Brussels, Cologne, the Rhine by steamer, motor tour of the Black Forest, Liechtenstein, Austrian Tyrol, Barvarian Castles, Dolomites, Venice, Adriatic Coast, tiny republic of San Marino, Rome, the Hill Towns, Florence, Italian and French Riviera, French Alps, Switzerland, Paris, Motor tour of Scotland, English Lakes, North Wales, Shakespeare Country, Exmoor, Glorious Devon. Returning tourist class on the S.S. Homeric arriving Quebec July 26 or August 12, respectively.

INDEPENDENT TRAVEL Choose your departure and return dates; include as much or as little as you wish in the price category of your choice — all on a pre-arranged, prepaid basis. An itinerary that is made to order for you.

Ask for descriptive folders

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD.

57 BLOOR ST. WEST, TORONTO — WA. 4-1139

Management: J. F. & G. H. Lucas

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

STUDENT RATES:
TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE. Save money by buying the above magazines at student rates. TIME $3.25, LIFE $4.00, FORTUNE $7.50 per year. Contact Roger Earle — LY. 3526.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

LOST
10 inch slide rule, blonde case, name, "Ottawa" on back. Vicinity of Mechanical Bldg., Friday, Dec. 3. Please call HO. 4943.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson — HU. 8-3923.

LOST
Wallet vicinity of U.C. Men's residence quadrangle, on Saturday evening. Papers and identification urgently required. Contact S.A.C. or Dick Ogilvie. WA. 3-6856.

FOR SALE
Tails — size 38, suit, vest, shirts, studs, ties, complete. $65.00. Tel. BE. 1-8854.

WANTED TO BUY
1. "Living Body", Best & Taylor, 3rd edition; 2. "Chemical Clinic Pathology" by C. & H. Gray; 3. "Biochemistry" by Thorpe—late edition. Call Mr. Kunnant, BE. 1-2052.

CAR
Want a new or used car for Christmas? — C. & F. students can arrange a lovely deal for you. Manny, OR. 7135 after 7.

DANCE BAND
Trio or small Dance Band available for dances or parties. Call Johnny Cherry 1-5939.

LOST
Man's large black onyx ring. Monday afternoon. Between Museum and Walberg Building. Contact S.A.C. or G. Huffman, PL. 5-5881.

MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR
Drive to Ottawa Friday or Sat., Dec. 17 or 18. Will share expenses. Call Ron Gould, WA. 4-8925.

TORONTO MENDELSSOHN CHOIR and TORONTO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Sir Ernest MacMillan, Conductor
Handel's

MESSIAH

TUES. and WED., DEC. 28 and 29 at 8.00 P.M.

SOLOISTS: LOIS MARSHALL, Soprano; ROBERT REID, Tenor; MAUREN FORRESTER, Contralto; JAMES MILLIGAN, Bass
Seats Monday at Massey Hall — $1.50, $2.00, $2.50, $3.00

THE MOST COMFORTABLE SOCKS YOU CAN WEAR!

HAPPY FOOT

HEALTH SOCK
NEW! —
comfy-cushion top

— Eliminates
leg-binding,
keeps sock up.

You'll be
"at ease"
from head to toe.

INSIST ON...
HAPPY FOOT

The original
cushion sole — for
that "walking on air" feeling.
At your favourite hosiery counter

McGregor

EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED FOR 90 DAYS WEAR BY

QUALITY SOCKS FOR MEN AND BOYS

Fall Frolics Hit Headlines

By CAROL HOFFMAN

The fall term started off with President Smith's appeal for courtesy as well as courage, in his opening address. "Good manners are of the utmost importance," he said. The next day reported the Engineering frosh rampage. Much property damage was done, and Professor McAndrew, Registrar of University College, was cut on the side of the head. At first, the engineering society officially disclaimed all responsibility.

The final result of the engineering incident came with the suspension of the Engineering Society. A statement of Caput blamed the incident on mob violence and fined the Society $4,000. The teaching body of the faculty was given authority over all the Society decisions.

To some students at least, the most exciting news this fall was in the athletic world. The Blues opened the season by tying Western (an accurate preview of what was to come). They ended the season by winning the Yates cup. It took a one point win over Western in the finals to do it, after an unusual three-way tie at the end of the season, and fantastic last minute spurts all year.

The opening ceremonies for several different institutions occupied a large part of this fall's news. The one most widely hailed was the opening of the new wing of the library. During the fall a great deal of controversy arose over the delay in library services. Originally it was planned to have all ready by September 7; in the end the official opening took place on November 29.

"The living room of the campus", the Hart House Arbor Room was an important innovation for 1954. The invasion of women into Hart House was officially recognized at the beginning of October. St. Mike's opened their Centennial Hall, and University College officially opened, first a dining-hall, and then the whole new University College Men's residence.

The opening of the new residence highlighted the celebration of UC Lit Centennial this year. At this time a controversy arose over the JCR and whether or not it should be redone.

Weekends and conferences hit the headlines this fall. A University Christian Mission was held here for a week. The World University Service held a three day conference here "to promote international understanding". The NFCUS conference was held at Toronto this year, previewed by a visit of NFCUS president, Tony Enriquez. IUS, 20c fees, and the departure of Montreal made news here.

Toronto received the mandate to look after government scholarships at the NFCUS conference. This was followed by publicity campaigns at all the universities, meetings with members of parliament, and a delegation to the Prime Minister.

The Carabins came for a weekend this fall, to attend parties, lectures, discussions, and a hockey game. The weekend was adjudged a "complete success, both intellectually and in the acquisition of new friends."

Raising money for Hurricane fund and the Settlement made news this year and so did SHARE, raising money for Patna, with the Indian Sale. So did the loss of money of the Blue and White. Finally it has been suggested that the Blue and White have its constitution re-organized and added to.

The fall is winding up with heated arguments for and against a Mock Parliament, and with the brand-new suggestion of a January Winter Carnival for the University of Toronto.

A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS

THE VARSITY

AND A HAPPY
NEW YEAR

Vol. LXXIV — No. 53

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

TWELVE PAGES

More Culture For U of T SAC Suggest Opera Night

An opera night at the U of T was recommended by the SAC at their meeting last Wednesday night. The Opera Festival will be held from the end of February to the beginning of March at the Royal Alexandra.

The Board of Governors of the opera have offered the U of T one night of the festival. If the University can fill 1400 seats, the SAC will gain $1000, but they must guarantee the company $3,121. The seats would be sold at regular rates.

Discussion followed the presentation of the report:—

- this interferes with exams
- we may be able to sell certain sections of seats only
- proposed reduction of ticket rates for students was met with the reply that the festival is operating at too close a margin.
- "With this $1000 more we would have 11 more issues of the incomparable journal, the Varsity," said Mr. Editor
- forego it this year and wait for next year
- can't promote every function in Toronto
- have a committee under Miss Stark to report to the executive

Debaters Decided Flat World Ungood

It was resolved at the Hart House Debates Wednesday night, that "This House does not wish the World were flat." The motion was resolved by a vote of 30-7 against the government which supported a resolution wishing for global flatness.

Everything was cleared up by Jim Vasoff, of Engineering who, speaking from the floor, announced "I shall assert, as my argument, in this debate, that this world is flat. Therefore the problem is solved."

Guest speaker, Professor W. J. Ruddock, of Trinity, quoted extensively from his favourite bard "Omar the Tentmaker", who spoke in quatrains. Proving that this world is undoubtedly round Prof. Ruddock then asked his listeners what interest there could be in "The Globe and Mail" if its name were The Flat and Mail?

A novel thesis came from Oxford Union representative George Eaton who said, "The world is populated by Gnomes who ride Bicycles and its much easier to pedal uphill in a flat world. Ergo . . ."

committee of the SAC, who will then discuss the recommendations and give the final decision. "The executive council can act only on small matters. 3000 dollars is no small matter", said Miss Gibson

A straw vote was taken by the SAC on the following suggestions on the opera night. The council vetoed (1) taking over the entire Royal Alexander for an opera night and (2) taking over the less expensive seats of the theatre for students and giving the more expensive seats to some business organization, which would have resulted in a drastic reduction of profit to the SAC.

Two alternative proposals are to be presented to the Board of Governors of the Opera Festival. These are (1) reduced rates for students and (2) the opportunity of returning unsold tickets by a certain date.

Carnival Queen

For many years, the male members of the Varsity have felt frustrated, because unlike other camps, the University of Toronto never has beauty-contests. Well boys, here's your chance. One of the highlights of the Winter Carnival to be held at Caledon Hills Farm, January 22-23, will be the crowning of a carnival queen the last evening of the week-end.

This will not be a mere beauty-contest, however, said Bosco Loncarevic (IV SPS), chairman of the Carnival. Personality will be vital, and the queen chosen will be the best all-round carnival queen there. A major consideration will be the girl's abilities in the great out-of-doors — if she can survive in an igloo. Certain specific tasks will be assigned, such as cooking a meal on an open fire on the snow.

Each team will have its own candidate chosen at the beginning of the carnival.

Member Of SAC Beweeps Sad Plight Of B & W Band

The Blue and White band is in a sad state, feel members of SAC. The band boys are badly treated. It is costing the members 30 to 40 dollars every season—too much for the mere glory of being in the band. Many of the band members are using their own instruments, with the exception of 4 or 5 usable instruments donated by the C.O.T.C. to the B & W band, and some instruments owned previously by the band.

It was established that the Blue and White Society has no control over the finances of the B & W band who are directly responsible to the Finance Commission.

The report of the Blue and White Society on the Band also included a recommendation, accepted by the SAC, that the 2 dollars spending money for each cheerleader on every game week-end away from home be discontinued and the money thus saved be added to the funds of the band.

Another recommendation was that complimentary tickets to the

B & W dances be given to every band member. Bill Harris, president of the B & W objected, on the grounds that he budgets for the sale of tickets to a full house and cannot afford so many free tickets. He added that already as many as 100 complimentary tickets are given away for one dance.

The B & W band's finances by 1000 dollars from the B & W matched by 1000 dollars from the SAC. The only additional revenue was the stipend gained on the sale of student tickets to the out-of-town games. Out of this money this year came transportation, insurance, depreciation, music, cymbals and party expenses.

Copp Trophy Winner

1954 — Steve Oneschuck

Steve Oneschuck, one of the finest football players ever to attend the University of Toronto, has been named the 1954 winner of the Johnny Copp Memorial Trophy.

First awarded in the season of 1933, the trophy is voted annually to "that member of the Senior rugby team who, in that season, by his sportsmanship, character, and playing ability, is adjudged the most valuable member of the team". The vote is cast by the members of the team in that season. First winner of the award was Johnny Copp, in whose memory the trophy was given after the season of 1933.

Steve first came to the University of Toronto in the fall of 1951, entering the first year of PHE, and in that year he made both the Blue football and basketball teams. So great was his ability in that season, that he was chosen on the Inter-collegiate all-star team, and he has been on it every year since. Also in that season, he made the second team of the Eastern Canada all-stars, which included the pros.

The sport Steve excels in most is, of course, football, but he is an accomplished man on the basketball court, and played lacrosse in high school in St. Catharines.

After graduating from PHE last year, having obtained first-class honors all the way through, Steve entered OCE this fall. At the end of the 1953 football season, he was the first draft choice of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, and he may possibly turn his talents to professional ball next fall, while pursuing a teaching career.

The Oneschuck football history at this University goes back a long way, and covers many colorful events. In his second league game with the Blues in the fall of 1951, Steve scored a touchdown and kicked a single as Varsity whipped the Mustangs 16-7. His touchdown came on a sixty-five yard gallop, after intercepting a Western pass. That was when Oneschuck first came to be respected as a football player, and ever since then, he has always been the core of the Blue team.

Last fall against McGill, he scored twenty-two points to set a league record. He totalled forty points this season to run second in the scoring race. And to make the story complete, Steve scored all the Varsity points when the Blues trepped the Mustangs in the final championship game.

This was his last year of Blue football, and as is fitting he captained a championship team, his second during his football tenure at Varsity. Steve has won six first colors in the last four years, four on the gridiron and two playing basketball. The tribute which has been paid to him by his team-mates in voting him the Copp Trophy, is an added flourish to the already oft-spoken praises of the press, and of the fans who watched Steve Oneschuck play top-notch football for the University of Toronto.

STEVE ONESCHUCK

Festival of Lights Origin of Wreaths

Did you know that the lit Christmas trees and the holy wreaths that decorate our homes during the Christmas season originally came from the ancient Jewish tradition?

At the winter solstice the Jews celebrated the Festival of Lights, or the Festival of the Birth of the Sun. This was the natural thing for a naturalistic religion. This was the time of the year chosen by the early church to celebrate the birth of the Son.

Large family feasts were held during this festive season. Friends and relatives exchanged gifts, and trees with lights were to be seen in the homes of the Jewish folk.

Christmas Tree!

The Annual All-Varsity Christmas Tree will be held on December 16 at 8:00 p.m. in the Great Hall of Hart House. All students—male and female—are welcome to attend this affair. There will be carols, singing, music, and interesting

Merry Christmas!

This is the time of year when once again it is customary to wish everyone a Merry Christmas. Presents are exchanged, Christmas Cards mailed, and a special holiday spirit pervades the atmosphere.

Yet Christmas is also the time to snarl at salesgirls, to say "I'm glad Christmas comes only once a year", and to calculate to the cent how much we ought to give to all our friends and relations.

Christmas is quite a season. It is a season of feasting and merrymaking — and of gluttony and drunkenness. It is a season of fun and jollity — and of auto accidents. It is a season of kindness and generosity — and of meanness and rudeness. It is the season of the greatest religious significance — and of the greatest commercial activity and prominence.

Christmas carols from a street loudspeaker mingled with the noise of a tired and irritated crowd of shoppers . . . Christmas cards, so much the dozen . . . Christmas music to sell jewellery on credit . . . Christmas holly to decorate a brassiere ad . . . Christmas spirit used to a nicety by Parish Priests and by ministers to raise money for the new church roof . . . Christmas is quite a season.

And yet — even with all the commercialism, all the cheap tawdriness of our modern and maudlin sentimentality, Christmas is a wonderful time of year.

There is far more to the Christmas message than the selling of 10 extra gross of shirts — and even the most blatant Holiday season advertising brings out a faint remembrance of that Message.

Christmas spirit, Christmas cheer, Christmas charity and kindness — these are all wonderful things. And neither the all-pervading dull commercialism of our age of reason, nor the cheapness of modern thought can completely take away the wonder.

So when this season brings the Christmas story again to our minds, when we remember the real Christmas spirit — then we consider that it is really worth while to wish you and everyone the compliments of the season, and say . . .

A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS

—RDB

... Happy New Year

There remain but three weeks of a tired old year, — a year which was greeted with the same merriment, the same pious or impious resolutions, the same sense of failure, the same resolve to improve, and the same conceited braggadocio as thousands before it.

Once again this New Year's Eve the bells will ring, and nervous little people will maliciously destroy the old year with the shrill crescendo of their artificial gaiety, or quiet desperate people will reflect over cold beer and greet with jaundiced eyes the heralds of a brave new year.

To indulge in unrelieved self-flagellation over the commissions and omissions of the past year would be as fruitless as the errors themselves.

Yet one cannot help but wonder how the year 1954 will appear in the catalogue of accomplishments. As students we tend to be parasitic; living, as it were off the fat of the land. Judged by absolute standards we contribute little to the world, or society, or whatever other vainglorious way you choose to describe the rat-race in which we become embroiled.

Which one of us can look back at the year to some one achievement which might set us apart from the common herd. Were we to attempt such a stock-taking, would we point with baseless pride to a list of activities and clubs to which we have given our time and energy. Would we not register dismay at the futility of our activity and the taste of the bitter ashes of success, and chagrin at our unhesitating compliance with the great eddy of purposeless dust?

To few of us is given the privilege of making some contribution of distinction and yet to each is given the opportunity of making the effort to climb with great labor from the cave of blind activity and Weltschmerz in which we wallow.

The irony of the whole situation is that we cannot escape the platitudes with which we reinforce the weakening structure of our lives. Eternal verities, and common truths seem somehow to find fresh life and new vigour with succeeding days, years, and generations.

While we aspire with common assent to great achievements, noble deeds, and unsurpassed beauty, we find ourselves limited by the universality of human experience.

We cannot find new frontiers, new paths to follow, new lives to lead. We can, however, bring to the common, the banal, the platitudinous, a new sincerity, a fresh enthusiasm, and a more refined awareness of the infinite value of life itself.

And so we leave this year and wish for you a fuller, richer, more rewarding and . . .

HAPPIER NEW YEAR

Staffmembers

Mike Cassidy, Ed Hosni, Marg Parkhill, Charles Knapp, Rita Ubric, Margery Stern, Jack Ellis, Sue Delman, Pat Sanderson, Joe Aziz, Dave Powell, Lloyd Bowen, Marg Brison, Nancy Kushnir, Wilf Kaplan, James Knechtel, Nancy Hanks, Pat Atkinson, Sandra Bracken, Morty Greenglass, David Dennis, Stanley Taube, Pat Moser, Jim Madge, Jo Thompson, Tom Williams, Pete Brawley, Barry Spiegel, Marlene Stevens, Al Tough, Pat Hand, Nancy Powell, Anne Plaxton, Kim Maloney, Marianne Farrell, Betty Reilly, Sue McLaughlin, Katherine Fallon, Sally Ward, Sybil Strachan, Marg Stevenson, Liz Jan Every, Catherine Pills, Maureen Mogan, Mary Pawluk, Eileen Patterson, Duncan Campbell, Doug Love, John Vojtech, Emil Luck, Doug Boyle, John Rodway, Ethel Roberts, Roderick Macgregor.

Doug Stewart, Walter Petronishin, Jane Edgar, Elizabeth Demongiot, Richard von Hendy, Ruth Worth, Jim Ferguson, Mary Fulton, Gwen Thomas, Carolina Schmidt, Paul Kyselka, Nancy Clark, Olivia Lorch, Mary Littlepage, Jo Patrick, Jane Griffin, John Rich, Tony Raniowski, Ed Hill, Dennis Walton, Peggy Donnelly, G. Ingram, Adrian Adamson, Tom Mitchell, Harold Strom, Sandra Sky, P. J. Lewis, Jack Ragetsu, Evan Smith, Nancy Banks, Hugh McKellar, Mary Fulton, Hubert Crackanthorpe, Clarke Deller, Les Lawrence, Michael McMorde, Tom Daly, Germaine Clinton, Gilda Fine, Michael Olver, Milton Barnes, Murray Schaefer, Erwin Biener, Peter Denny, Dave Simonoff, Elinor Bernstein, Nancy Donnell, Martin Hunter, Dave Dunsmuir, Margaret Nodder, Mary Burbidge, Sally Green, Joan Seymour, Guy Groen.

Peggy Cain, Joanne Housley, Jane Kelly, Norma Walsh, Walt Schmida, Max Rosenthal, Fred Gray, Sheldon Taerk, Bill Eckersley, Lloyd Fraser, Phil Church, Arlene Ross, Barbara

The Varsity

Published 5 times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of The University
of Toronto

Member Canadian University
Press

Publications Commissioner

Ian G. Scott

EDITOR C. CLYDE BATTEN
MANAGING EDITOR ROBERT D. BROWN
News Editor Mike Pengelley
Assistant News Editors Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Feature Editor Mary Alice Hunter
Makeup Editor Irene Meyers
A.M. & D. Editor Wendy Michener
Sports Editor John Vojtech
Acting Assistant Sports Editor John Vojtech
Acting Women's Sports Editor Flo Middleton
Photo Editor Ed. Hosni
CUP Editor Chuck Williams
Mortician Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager

E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office

Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Clyde Batten, Bob Brown

NIGHT EDITOR: Irene Meyers

ASSISTANTS: Jane Edgar, Maureen Mogan

REPORTERS: Pat Moser, Sue Delman, Marg Stern,

Sandra Bracken, Doug Stewart, Carol Hoffman

Baggs, Janet McDonald, Paul Bacon, Griff Cunningham,

Don Gordon, Ron Gould, Colin Graham,

Barbara Grinnell, Gail Hoaken, Marg Kell,

Adele Krehm, Moira Maugoban, Chris McCall,

Pat McCall, Wendy McQueen, Stan Schiff, Many

Thaler, Tom Virany, Dave Wong, John LeGallais,

Al Manning, George Gihra, Ted Sparrow.

our readers write:

Welcome Criticism

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Alan Clarke's criticism of my suggestion that in some subjects the lecture system be abandoned in favour of group discussion based on mimeographed copies of the professor's notes distributed at the beginning of the year, was particularly welcome I had begun to think that there were no students sufficiently interested to hold or express opinions on the subject.

First I must apologize for not making it clear that I intended the revision to apply only to the last two undergraduate and the graduate years.

As I see it his criticism rests on two contentions: That the new system: (1) will not increase the student's interest in his course and he will stay away from the discussion group, (2) will "make it too easy for most students"; I assume he means to pass their courses.

To answer the second objection first: Passing would depend, as it does now (explicitly or implicitly) on term (essay) marks would reflect the amount of work done by the student and his grasp of the subject. The exam requirements would be raised so that a student could not pass merely by repeating the professor's opinions but would have to have some knowledge of the theories of other authorities in the field. His ability to assess the worth of their views would be greatly enhanced by testing them in the discussion groups, so that it would be to his (practical) advantage to attend them. I heartily agree with Mr. Clarke that attention should be directed to techniques to improve participation in such seminars. This is closely related to his first contention — that most students would not attend the groups.

As regards his first contention, it is my experience that in small classes where questioning and discussion are encouraged, student interest runs high.

R. J. Rooks
(Grad — Economics)

Exaggeration

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Your editorial of Wednesday contains many assumptions, presumptions, and exaggerations about the current political "confused" situation, and gives undue importance to the IPA as a cause of that "confusion". However, that is your privilege and it would take much too long to deal with your remarks in this respect.

I must, however, correct one statement in your editorial which is an out-right error of fact, since it detracts from the reputation of the U of T CCF Club. You state that "the three major parties had difficulty seating enough members to keep the house operating effectively". This statement is true where the Conservative and Liberals are concerned, for though they used largely the same members on each of the three evenings there were always many empty seats on their side of the house and on the third night they were barely able to get enough members BETWEEN THEM to outvote the CCF.

However, the CCF not only used largely different personnel each night but had their seats full at all times and even had some members sitting in the seats of other parties. This incidentally, is just one reason why we are opposed to campus-wide elections.

William G. Grant,
President, U. of T. CCF

Modern Times

—Cartoon by Jas. Weiler.

Shortly Before the Morning After The Night Before Christmas

(or if you prefer shorter titles)

"Sam"

'Twas the night before Xmas, and all thru Bop City,
The tubs were arranging a Christmas type ditty;
The hipsters were hung up but they didn't care,
For that crazy cat Santa Claus soon would be there;
With the sticks they'd smuggled they go on their heads,
Impatiently awaiting the man in red threads;
Zoot beamed in reports from his post on cloud nine,
That he had a fast track for conditions were fine.

When out in left field there arose such a clatter,
We leaped from our pads to see what was the matter;
Away to the window we made a fast move,
Doing a step that was right in the groove;
There on the snow and just past the stoop,
Was a real frantic Santa with his nine-piece group.
Donder and Blitzen, they all hit the porch,
Fronted by Rudolph with the craziest torch.

Then with a bound Santa came from the roof,
Saying, "Man, what a chimney! Did somebody goof?"
Chirped a doll from the corner, "Do you know who it is?"

"Don't let this beard fool you, it isn't old Diz."
Taking toy trumpet he got off some licks,
Knocking us out while he played for his kicks.
Then he took six and smiled at the lass,
Saying, "Gone is this party — man, it's a gas!"

Then all of a sudden there was a great hush,
For a new tune was heard from an invisible thrush;
"Peace on earth", sang the angel, "to men of good will;
"With love of thy neighbour let your hearts fill."
"And remember, good people, as you go your way, Keep holy this Christmas, for it is Christ's Day."

Said Benny a side man, in tones not satiric,
"The melody's nowhere, but I'm digging that lyric;
With eyes slightly moistened and heads that were bent,
We gave our approval, nodding solemn assent;
We shook hands with Santa, and ere he went out of sight,
Sang a rectangular version of "Oh Silent Night".

By BOB DUNCAN

Education—For What?

The Host Committee of W.U.S. has announced a Seminar Week-end to be held at Caledon Hills Farm, January 14th to 16th. The chief topic of discussion is to be Education — For What? with Carmen Guild, Graduate Secretary of Hart House, as Director.

The Weekend party will be composed equally of Canadian and Overseas students, graduates, and undergraduates from all faculties of the University. Application forms will be available beginning this week, at the S.A.C. office and the F.R.O.S. office, 43 St. George St.

Kathleen Leonard, a spokesman for F.R.O.S., said that the weekend will concern itself with such topics as "Why are we being educated?" — What value will education be to us ultimately?

and — Is there such a thing as pseudo-intellectualism?"

ORGAN RECITAL

by

Dr. Healey Willon

Monday, Dec. 13 5 p.m.

CONVOCATION HALL

ST. JAMES' CATHEDRAL

Cor. King and Church Sts.

THIRD SUNDAY IN ADVENT

8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion.
9.15 a.m.—Holy Communion.
11.00 a.m.—Mattins.
Sermon: The Dean.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

7.00 p.m. — Evensong — Fifth Sermon in a course on Christian Faith and Practice.

Holy Communion — Tuesday 10:30 a.m.; Wednesday (Ember Day) 7:00 a.m.; Friday (Ember Day) 7:30 a.m.; Saturday (Ember Day) 7:30 a.m.

Mattins and Evensong daily at 9:00 a.m. (Tuesday 10:00 a.m.) and 5:15 p.m.

VISITORS VERY WELCOME

St. Andrew's United

Bloor, near Subway at Yonge

Minister:

REV. W. MORRISON KELLY
M.A., B.D., S.T.M.

Organist and Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11.00 a.m.—White Gift Service.

7.30 p.m.—"Who is this Jesus?"

Another in the series to answer the questions of students. A warm invitation is extended to attend the Service and the FIRESIDE and Question Period which will follow in the Church Parlour.

IT'S FROM BIRKS

blazer crests

Illustrated:

University of Toronto . $11.00
Upper Canada College . 9.75
R.C.A.F. . 9.75

Not Illustrated:

Queen's Own Rifles . 12.50
Toronto Scottish Regiment . 13.50
Royal Canadian Navy . 9.75
University of Toronto School . 7.75

Now available at Birks
... a complete range
of military and college
crests.

Inquire for crests of all colleges, clubs and units of armed forces.

TWO TORONTO STORES

BIRKS
TEMPERANCE 33 BLOOR W.
AT YONGE AT BALDWIN

HART HOUSE THIS TERM END

Please save for future use — final term issue.

FRIDAY, 10TH DECEMBER:

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — UNDERGRADUATE ART SHOW. Also prints by Alistair Bell (Art Gallery) Until 17th December.
1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).
8.00 p.m. — 9TH ANNUAL CHRISTMAS SHOOT. (C.O.T.C. Drill Hall, 119 St. George St.) All Archers invited to attend.

SATURDAY, 11TH DECEMBER:

Caledon Hills Farm—Victoria College Union Meeting over the weekend.

SUNDAY, 12TH DECEMBER:

2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m. — VISITORS SUNDAY. Members, girl friends, relations et al—all are welcome to visit the House. Tea available in Great Hall at 3.00 p.m.

MONDAY, 13TH DECEMBER:

1.30 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Debates Ante Room). 1st tenors.
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TABLE TENNIS (Debates Room). Last meeting of the term. Running shoes must be worn.

TUESDAY, 14TH DECEMBER:

1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room). "Murder in the Cathedral"—Part II by T. S. Eliot. Produced by Robert Helpmann Old Vic Company with Robert Donat. Last of term.
1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LAST SING SONG OF TERM (East Common Room). Christmas carols.
7.15 p.m. — CAROL RECORDING FOR C.B.C. Old Zion Church (north-west corner College and Elizabeth).

WEDNESDAY, 15TH DECEMBER:

4.30 p.m. — UNIVERSITY SETTLEMENT PARTY.
4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY—Open to women of the University of Toronto.
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Mediaeval Art Works. Open to men and women (through Reading Room).
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL (Debates Ante Room).
7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room) All Members of Hart House welcome. Prizes

THURSDAY, 16TH DECEMBER:

8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).
5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS. Last of term.
8.30 p.m. — BLUE AND WHITE CHRISTMAS TREE (Great Hall open at 8.00 p.m.)

FRIDAY, 17TH DECEMBER:

6.45 p.m. — WARDEN'S CHRISTMAS DINNER for students from overseas and distant places Attendance by invitation through the Warden's Office.

Elizabeth Arden Salon

Choose a

Casual

Cut . . .

for

Easier

Hair Care

You need a cut that takes a minimum of care, for busy campus life. A cut that adapts itself to daytime or date-time. A cut that's new, to match your new college clothes. In the Elizabeth Arden Salon, a corps of experts is ready to give you the cut you need . . . the style that's suited individually to you.

Phone first for your appointment—
call TRINITY 9111, local 3041—
the Elizabeth Arden Salon.
Simpson's — Sixth Floor

Simpson's

Church of the Redeemer

Bloor St. West and Avenue Rd.
Rector: Rev. Owen P. Prichard,
B.A., L.Th.

8 a.m. — Holy Communion.
11 a.m. — Morning Prayer
Sermon: The Rector
3 p.m. — Church School
7 p.m. — Evening Prayer
Sermon: The Rector
C. H. Densmore:
Organist and Choirmaster

Park Road Baptist Church

Park Road and Asquith Ave.
Rev. C. G. Stone, D.D., Minister
Mabel G. Stedford, Organist

11.00 a.m.
"Men Who Met the Master"
(including sermon in series)
White Gift Service
7.00 p.m.
"The Secret of Power Release"
SATURDAY - 8.30 P.M.
20th Annual Carol Festiva

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

Of all the ridiculous things that have come into existence since universities were first thought of, way back in the dark ages, the most idiotic, and certainly the most pretentious, is the quick-witted College sports editor, who knows not only all the answers in the athletic picture, but on the rest of the campus too; and can settle the great affairs about us with absolute finality three, or even five days a week.

Being one of these myself, I have come to wonder how we ever came into existence. Some, I know, have been spouting for years now, and have come to regard themselves as intellectual landmarks and university institutions as permanent as Hart House. But I am one of the greener ones, and my confidence in the vast importance to the campus, to say nothing of the sanity, of my opinions, has not become a fixed mania. It takes nerve to sit down at a typewriter every night and tell, or presume to tell the public what it is all about to the extent of anywhere from fifty to one hundred and fifty lines.

What would you like to be told all about by your favorite sports-minded intellect. Politics, birth control, the War of 1812, student apathy, the history of the Mucklock Cup, the law, the split-T, economic theory, or the reasons why the McGill Redmen have the worst team in Intercollegiate football? Just name something we can't tell you all about with absolute, irrefutable authority, and no two in agreement on any single point.

We include resounding experts on the intricacies of football who don't even know the difference between a flying wing and Northrop's latest mechanical wizardry; infallible prognosticators for football games who can't find the midnight train to Montreal on the CPR's latest timetable; and authorities on the ability of private-school ball players who never set foot outside the basement of Sudbury High.

We are, in short, the best of the Fourth Estate, so passionate and self-important in our opinions in the last few years that, not content with telling you what and why on paper, we even rear back at football games, and snort in the faces of our fellow students with voluble outbursts intended to make them think we know.

What causes us? Well, as near as I can figure out, we started in business because the paper needed a little higher circulation than debate stories and student riots provided. Actually now, at our worst, we aren't twelve to seven with the question of Pogo adding to the students' culture. You might think that once in a while we would run out of intelligence, and some of us even wonder at the inexhaustible fund of knowledge, but it just keeps on bubbling up.

Maybe I shouldn't be writing like this, revealing the secrets of the trade and all that, but honest to God it's getting downright ridiculous.

A Merry Christmas

...is what the sports staff of the Varsity wishes to you all. From the female members; Peggy Cain, Joanne Housley, Jane Kelly, and Norma Walsh; and from the men too; Walt Schmida, Max Rosenthal, Fred Gray, Sheldon Taerk, Bill Eckersley, Lloyd Fraser, and Tom Williams; all of whom have labored unceasingly this fall. To all of you who take the time to read the drivel we write on this page; to the North Toronto Herald, who print the stuff; to the Athletic Association who are so generous with passes; to the members, both male and female, of that group who have assisted us with such good grace; and to all the athletes who make it a pleasure to cover sports on this campus whether we win or lose; a Merry Christmas and may 1955 be prosperous for you all.

Hockey Blues Travel In Holidays

The Hockey Blues entrained last night for Montreal and two league games this weekend with the McGill Redmen and the Rouge et Or of Laval.

With only one man missing from the regular lineup, Sam Ashton, the Blues should be good bets to take both these games and end up in first place before Christmas. The McGill crew are as yet untied, but Laval dropped a 4-3 contest to the University of Montreal Carabins two weeks ago. The Blues will play Laval Saturday night in Quebec City, after the game with the Redmen tonight at the Forum in Montreal.

When the Blues return from Quebec captain Red Stephen will enter the hospital for a fairly critical operation, but should have recovered in time for the next league game on January 14, against Laval here in Varsity Arena.

The Blues have come up with one of the strongest teams ever to represent the University of Toronto. In four exhibition games they tied two, and lost the other two by one goal scored in the last minute of play. In their first league encounter, the Blues smothered the highly-rated Carabins 7-2, and showed the best defensive hockey seen in the Arena in years.

During the Christmas vacation, the Blue team will travel to Troy, New York, for an invitational tournament with Yale University, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, and St. Francis Xavier University of Antigonish, N. S. The R.P.I. team is reputed to be one of the strongest of American College sextets, and boasts a victory over the University of Michigan this season.

The tournament will take place during the last week of December, and the following weekend on January 8, the Blues will play St. Lawrence University, another top American team.

After that session of action away from home, the Blues return for their first league contest of 1955, against Laval on January 14. With their showing so far, the team should have no trouble coping the Intercollegiate laurels last won by the University of Toronto in 1951.

Western Colts Snapped Varsity Winning Streak

By FRED GRAY

The past Intermediate football season was highlighted by a loud publicity roar from Ryerson: the collapse of the league, and last, but most important the end to a Varsity domination of the league after twenty-two consecutive triumphs.

Ryerson supporters worked themselves into quite a frenzy proclaiming their inclusion in the league. This not only proved to be incorrect, but their squad set out to strongly establish the fact by their dismal showing over the schedule. In two meetings with the Baby Blues, the Rams managed to collect only a single point.

The Intermediates, in the hunt for their fourth consecutive league title, ran into a stone wall in the form of a hard-plunging Western Club featuring the running and passing of Willie Casanova and the plunging of one John Bell. Small consolation though was the retention of the Shaw Trophy. When Western, billed as the only other team officially in the League, dressed more men than officially allowed, the trophy was withdrawn from competition for the year.

The Baby Blues started off the season in a winning way trampling the luckless Rams 11-0. Outplaying Ryerson by more than indicated score-wise, the Blues were unable to unleash a strong enough offensive to capitalize on their advantage. The strong showing by the defensive squad led the way though as Don Mucci and John Ramsell collected the majors and quarter Larry Joynt converted Ramsell's TD for the remaining point. Their second outing saw Varsity take a close one from a hard fighting Queens team. Trailing until late in the third quarter, Jack Rogers and Joe Whitmore provided the scoring punch while Santo Martini and Ted Lansky shone defensively for the win.

In their second encounter with the Ryerson Lambs, the Baby Blues found their scoring eye as they ran up their highest score of the season. Joe Whitmore, Jack Rogers, and Dave Creswell led the backfield to the 27-1 victory while Walt Schmida stood put on the line. October 29 proved to be a black date in the lives of the Intermediate team though as Western Colts handed them their first defeat in almost four years. Unable to stop the Colts hard plunging backs the Baby Blues were dropped 18-5 in a hard struggle that saw Al Wong, playing his usual fine game, leave the field with a rib injury. Back in Toronto the following week-end it was the same story as the Colts proved their power with a 18-11 triumph. To finish out the year in a winning way the Intermediate club travelled down to London. Joe Whitmore, again the top-Blues back provided the winning touch with a fourth quarter field goal to lead the team to a 16-15 win. Rogers and Creswell also turned in a strong game along with Bill McKenna.

Although toppled from their throne Varsity's Baby Blues have a worthy successor in this year's Western team, many of whom should make their presence felt in senior competition next fall.

Five Intercollegiate Crowns Won By Varsity This Fall

While the highlight of the fall sports season was the winning of the Yates Cup, the University of Toronto became Intercollegiate champions in three other fields of athletic endeavor, and won five other trophies.

The soccer teams won three titles, the Senior Intercollegiate championship, the Intermediate Intercollegiate championship, and the CIAU crown in the Eastern division. The Blue team trapped the McGill Redmen in a home-and-home series for the Eastern title, while literally walking all over their opposition in the Western division to cop the Blackwood Trophy. The Baby Blues' championship did not come so easily, but they managed to dump OAC in the last game of the season to win the Intermediate title.

Norm Williams and Dick Harding each won three events to lead the Senior track team to the Intercollegiate title back in October, while McMaster won the Intermediate crown in their first year of competition. The meet was held in Toronto this fall, and the Blue team ended up well in front of Queens, their nearest competition.

The other Intercollegiate title won by Varsity was the Colonel Graht Trophy for sailing. At the meet held in Kingston, with RMC as hosts, the Blue crew won two of three races to retain the cup they had won two years before. The competition had last been held in 1952.

Other Blue teams did not fare so well this fall, but still upheld the tradition of the University. A valiant rugby team upset the Barbarians 11-6 in a semi-final playoff, then bowed to OAC by a single try in the final game of the season. The Senior tennis team journeyed to Montreal and ran second behind a near-perfect Carabin squad in the Intercollegiate tournament. The golf teams placed third in their tournaments, while both Senior and Intermediate harrier teams bowed to the superior crews from Western in autumn meets.

That's five championships in three months for the University of Toronto, an enviable record, and one to be proud of.

Reed Trophy

DIVISION I

SPS	5181
Medicine	4668
St. Mike's	4415
Dentistry	4065
Trinity	4052
Victoria	3878
UC	3092

Varsity's Bob Pinkney, leading Blue ground, against the McGill Redmen, in the game the Blues carried, scored two touchdowns, and was a

Pages From . . .

The Blues

In the final triumph of winning the Yates Cup, November 27, there was much to be broken the Western jinx—of how, after eight years in London—but little was said of the hard ship.

Coming from behind throughout the a giveaway club, spotting the opposition a head, they won the name of a clutch club, each often with minutes remaining.

Preseason play gave the Blues a victory, great praise; as the team to beat. The Blues were fortunate in securing a 9-9 tie in the surprisingly powerful Golden Gaels victory.

In the second game Varsity learned their lesson. Then against McGill, they began their comeback 43-6. Back in Toronto the following week 12-0 McGill lead to win 36-12 on a second-half drive.

From here on in, the road to the title the stretch drive Varsity handed Western to tie it up and leave themselves in sudden-death week. With only nine minutes remaining 9-0, but the Blues scored eleven points in the three-way tie for first place.

While Western were defeating Queens for glory to their record, the Blues edged by the birds 5-3 in the first east-west college match.

The Yates Cup finale, expected to be a game, excellent in its solid and forthright finish which had become the characteristic Varsity took the lead, but still had to fight 9-8, and break the Western jinx. Led by the Oneschuk, the Blues brought the Yates Cup. Masterminded it was his third championship and for the team, fifteen of whom are to a pleasurable season ever.

on the

By JO R

It's getting round to that time of year some of the things we've done since old But for us, it's a very special occasion you on the sideline. Many things have So let's leaf through a few issues of the Varsity of the things that have gone on.

One of the first events that comes to mind is the year Mal Crawford won the Yates Cup. That was the year Mal Crawford won the Yates Cup. The whole issue happened overnight; the face of the Varsity for the rest of the year. The whole issue happened overnight; the face of the Varsity for the rest of the year.

Well, the fall of '53 rolled around, the softball crown from PHE. The Phys. sparked her squad on to win the Intercollegiate round that fall, Beryl set the only backstroke.

We won the Bronze Baby at McGill badminton. The first Interfaculty archery silver arrow to the winning team which Cup that year either.

But this year we won the Yates Cup. It's home to stay for awhile. Things have changed this year, but we've still around the end of February when the Well, our term on the sideline is things but the time has come to move on much as it disappoints us, that's what to know that we can leave things to the staff for the past year.

We would like to take this opportunity to wish you all a very Merry Christmas and all the years following.

...after over the season, sets out on a jaunt
...ues won 36-12. Pinkney averaged 9.1 yards
...major part of the Varsity offensive.
—VSP by Paul Kyselka

Thrilling Season Saw SPS Win Mulock Cup

By JOHN VOJTECH

The 1954 football season ended for the Intramural leagues on the first day of December and the Mulock Cup was once again snared by the Men of Skule. It was a thrilling season with many upsets taking place. It was also a season in which a team's scoring attack was all that mattered.

Two teams in the first division amassed a total exceeding one hundred points during the regular season. Victoria College was the first to hit the century mark with 106 points. Skule hit that mark in the last game of the season with a final total of 106. Needless to say, this is a new Interfaculty record.

The unique spread formation of St. Mike's caused quite a flurry around the football field as no team seemed to have an adequate defence against this type of attack. However, this new offence did not outshine the terrific defensive team that the Irish had. They went through four and a half consecutive games without being scored upon. Oddly enough the next touchdown—that was scored against them—was enough to eliminate them in the final game of the season.

During the season we saw many individual stars carry their teams to the fore. Frank Ebenhardt, and Bill and Norm Williams led their Vic team to the top of Group One. We also saw Don Hart come back to pass his Skule team to a first place tie in the same group. Jim Wheeler led a desperate band of Doctors. They almost upset Vic, as they held a five-point lead with but three minutes left to play in one game during the season. The Scarlet and Gold, however, came back to win that game.

We also saw that same Vic team rack up forty-eight points against a hapless and winless UC team. This was another scoring record. Vic had a terrific year as they handed Skule its first defeat in thirteen consecutive games by the score of 11-0 on October 29. It was ironic to note that two years previous on the same date, Vic beat Skule 12-0, the last game the Engineers had lost. Who said lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place?

Trinity College came up with their best performance in quite some years as they went through an undefeated season in Group Two. They also owned a 7-6 victory over St. Mike's, defeating them in the first game of the season. Those were the only points the Irish had scored against them in regular season play.

In the playoffs, Skule defeated Trinity handily 29-12, while the Irish eked out a 5-0 win over Vic.

The final game was played at Varsity Stadium on a muddy and slippery field. MacIntyre, Renzetti, and Fusco led an injury-riddled St. Mike's team into the fray. At the end of the third quarter the Irish held a slim 2-1 lead which looked as though it was enough to win the game. The Double Blue defence stiffened and it looked like that would be the final score.

With but 65 seconds remaining in the game, Skule got rolling and a Hart to Selby pass brought them to the Irish four yard line. SPS scored and it was all over but for the shouting.

To the victors we say "Congratulations" while to the losers we offer our consolation with the sage and Brooklynish advice of "Better luck next year!"

e Book

...es Cup from the Western Mustangs on
...joying that Varsity's Blues had at last
...teen years, they had won their first game
...way they had to come to their champion-

...season, the Blues won the reputation of
...althy lead in half their games. But, as well,
...ne working their way back to winning.

...ory over Balmy Beach and a loss to Sarnia,
...e league opener spoke differently, as the
...ame dominated by the Mustangs, while
...e mauling McGill 46-13 in Montreal.

...st hand of the Gaels' strength, losing 20-0
...back for the Yates, overwhelming the Red-
...ek, the Blues had to fight from behind a
...half drive.

...was to be a rough one. In the first part of ...a 12-0 first-half lead, then surged back
...death position against the Gaels the follow-
...g in the regular schedule the Tricolor led
...ve minutes to win the game, and cause a

...ens in the playoff, on a play that added no
...he University of British Columbia Thunder-

...e the most thrilling ever, was a colorless
...football, but lacking in the usual thrilling
...e of both teams during the regular season.
...ht from behind to win by a single point,
...chman Rich Bethune, and veteran Steve
...up home for the nineteenth time. For Bob
...seven years as head coach of the Blues,
...graduate this year, it was certainly the most sideline

AFOLITTE

...an when we all like to sit back and recall
...54 was ushered in almost twelve months ago.
...s for because it's the last time we'll be meet-
...happened since we first met two years ago.
...rty together and see if we can recall some

...to mind is the banning of the sports page in
...a sports editor, and John Ellis was assistant.
...SAC backed it and we were wiped from the ...eat. While it caused much commotion in the ...effect on sports on the campus. The women's
...rtize Baby which was played off in Toronto,
...top in the Intercollegiate loop.

...and we tied for first place in tennis that year,
...didn't clean up in was archery. That was the
...lympics to lead the Varsity band around the
...Yates Cup that year.

...Sports retrieved page six, and Vic captured
...adders had their chance when Beryl Lewis
...win. When the time for the Intercol splash
...econd of the night, with a brilliant display of

...as well as capturing top spot in tennis and
...meet was held and Miss Slack donated the
...happened to be PHE. We didn't win the Yates

...We're darn glad it's home, and let's hope
...been too rosy for us gals in the Inter-
...got a lot of competition ahead, particularly
...Intercollegiate basketball is played off.
...over. We hate to leave right in the middle of
...to the stands and take things easy. And as ...we have to do. It is most gratifying however,
...Milton who has been doing excellent work

...runkly to thank everybody who has been in-
...helped us keep up to date. We would like
...and the best of everything in the New

UC Gals Win B-Ball Crown Smother PHE III's 41-16

By FLO MIDDLETON

U.C. just had a little too much to offer against the injury riddled PHE third year team. The red and white Jr.-Sr. team walloped the Physeders 41-16. In the other game held at 7, second year PHE downed the Pharmacy gals 35-13.

The first game which featured the two losers from the Tuesday semi-finals saw a classy PHE team outshine the Druggists in every department. By half time the blues had racked up 18 points to Pharmacy's 6. The line of Charters, Brock and Kerr was far too powerful for the loser's defence.

In the second half, it looked at first as if Pharmacy had got their second wind when Sandra Polomba and Shirley Inouye combined to plough through PHE's defence; however, the PHE team was far too superior to be outscored for long.

Whether PHE felt they had the game too well in the bag or whether they were too tired, out, the game on the whole was extremely sloppy and uninspiring. Travelling and loose balls seemed to be the only outstanding features of the game except for the sharp shooting of Marilyn Charters who hooped in 19 points for PHE.

In spite of their defeat, the girls from Pharmacy are to be congratulated for their outstanding showing in the basketball league since this was the first year Pharmacy has entered a team. What other team can boast a placing in the semi-finals on its first try?

U.C. truly deserves to be the championship team of the campus. Both their forward line which was sparked by the outstanding ball-handling of Daph Walker, Clare McMullen and Pat Swayze and their fast guard line were far too much for Dr. Ebb's girls. In the first five minutes the championship could have been anyone's, but after that UC pulled ahead never to be again threatened. By the end of the second half, the snappy UC forward line had rolled up a total of 21 points to PHE's 12.

Reed Trophy
DIVISION II
Law	6602
Enmanuel	5221
Forestry	3798
Pharmacy	3459
Wycliffe	3040
Architecture	2768
Knox	2069

Speaking OF SPORT

By MOISHE REITER

Rule changes by the legion have been thrust upon Basketball in the past few years. Few have added anything to the game, having been conceived with the intention of satisfying the customer, but this year the American Pros have instituted a basic improvement which is likely to do the double service of both pleasing the fans and bettering the sport.

To the usual addition to the mess of variations on the free-throw rules, the NBA has added a time-limit regulation governing possession of the ball. Within 25 seconds after passing the 10-second line, the team in possession must work a scoring attempt or surrender the ball to the defending squad, which itself then becomes subject to the rule.

Clearly, in professional ball, this rule will speed up play, increase scoring and lessen the emphasis on height for height's sake. The standard pattern of having the outside men work the play around, waiting for an opening to pass in to one of the tall men on the inside for a short hook or jump shot, will surely change, with more importance being given the fast man and the accurate shot.

The strongest motive for the introduction of this change, however, seems to be the practice of stalling the game to retain possession of the ball and protect a small lead in the last minutes. This "freezing" of the ball, though not generally regarded as true sportsmanship, is a very effective means of winning. While denying the opposition any scoring chances, it often gives the team in possession a few free-throws for extra points, as the losing club, desperate to gain possession, will try scrambling fiercely and end up fouling the "freezing" squad. With this new rule such practice becomes officially illegal.

The value of such a rule to Intercollegiate ball could be great. In our league, where the game is supposed to be "the thing" and winning or losing of no real importance, there have been many cases of "freezing" that have won games and lost tempers. Just last Saturday, when a friendly exhibition match was played between the Blues of Varsity and the men of Detroit Tech, an eager fellow named Costello was seen to offer violence to one of the Varsitys when, in the final three minutes, the Blues were running the ball and making no attempt to put it in play.

Having accepted the latest free-throw variation—the bonus throw—it would be a good idea for the College League to consider the time-limit also. Bob Masterson, Coach of the Blues, though he hasn't had much chance to see the time rule in actual play, feels that "It might be a good thing". With the season over a month away it should be possible to add this rule to the College Book.

And A Happy New Year . . .

. . . greeting comes to Varsity, by letter, from One-Eyed Benny, who scribbles thusly: "As I am having a very good year and the money comes in like it had eyes and knew its Uncle Benny, I am feeling like a king, which is what I am. After all who is there that doesn't admit I am being 'King of all the books that ever was and is'. This year is being very pleasurable for little Benny because most of my hard-scrunged profits are coming in from betting on the Blues, which is the team that wins the Yates Cup for me and Varsity."

"In fact, I am feeling so happy being as I am full of New Year's Spirits and my moneybags are bulging with loot, which is being all in unmarked bills, that I am offering to split with all my friends at Varsity. So here is what I do. I am splitting it right down the middle—you are taking all the Spirit—I am taking all the loot. Fair is fair and foul is Western. So long fish . . . I am seeing you next year . . . but until then I am warning all welchers that are not paying their debts to me before January that in the future they are losing the privilege of dropping their dough to Benny".

We echo Benny and stumble quietly away — till next year.

Basketball Blues Visit New York

Last night, at midnight, a train left Union Station carrying Bob Masterson and his Basketball Blues to New York City for their most important series this year. On this trip many things will be decided and much will be learned of the true strength of the Blues.

Meeting three top American clubs, the Blues will have to put out their best play, the scramble-type ball they are forced into on the Hart House splinter being far below the level required against the Yankee clubs. Opposing the Varsitys on the trip are Fairleigh-Dickinson, St. Francis and Iona College, all teams with national reputations in the U.S., all teams that Varsity at top strength would find hard to match. Varsity, however, will not be near top strength on this trip. Two top men, Marv Tile and Johnnie Braithwaite, are out for the trip anyway, and Leo Madden, the club's leading scorer, will play with a sprained ankle. Leo should be in shape by Saturday, as his ankle is growing stronger and he was able to work out last night.

This trip will give Bob Masterson an opportunity to experiment with new defense and offense tactics, while giving the team experience against the best they could hope to meet in College competition. As well there will be the opportunity for the hoopers to equal their football brethren in the matter of big trips this year. The football squad went to Vancouver, much farther than the present trip of the Basketball club, but the thrill of playing in the big ring of New York makes up for it.

The trip could mean the Intercollegiate title for the Blues, as one of the advantages such teams as Western and Assumption have always held over the Blues has been the superior seasoning competition with top American teams has always given them, while the Blues have sparred only with mediocre outfits.

PAGE FIVE

Christmas Carols

Bede House

A surprisingly large number of people will receive Christmas Cards bought at Bede House this year end. The number is surprising because the organization was begun only last year and because it strictly avoids the "scotty dogs" and ballet dancers of the popular market in favor of distinctly religious cards of sophisticated modern design.

The whole thing began when two girls studying at Trinity, Blanche Donovan and Claire Slater, discovered one day in the Honey Dew that they were both discouraged with the Christmas cards "either soupy or silly" which were the only cards available on the popular market. Not knowing quite what was needed or what could be done, the girls soon found themselves in the Christmas card business mostly on the basis of their own enthusiasm and some striking designs by Sidney H. Watson now president of the Ontario College of Art.

As manufacturers of Christmas Cards of a sort unusual and unsuited to its market, the newly founded Bede House was a surprising success. The 50,000 cards they sold were not enough to put them in competition with the giants in the field, but it meant that the enterprise was well worth continuing. The growing success and prestige of the organization demanded a reevaluation. What began merely as an attempt to put Christian cards on the secular market became a dedicated effort to put the principles of good design, as practiced by Canadian Artists, to the service of the church. Bede House now carries many kinds of religious art and is interested in almost all other religious art, the Bede House stalwarts have dealt themselves into a difficult game. Religious art these days can be really inspiring when it manages to be vigorous. More often it is either sentimental or dull. The problem is complicated by conservative leadership and an apathetic public. With the exception of Bede House and Les Ateliers St. Gregoire in Montreal there is almost no place in Canada where Christian art of taste and sophistication can be purchased.

Things being what they are, Bede House is an experiment. As long as they maintain their championship of "the vitality of the Christian tradition in modern art" in the face of "sentimentality, religiosity and bad taste in art" we wish the experiment the best of luck.

Les Lawrence

This is the season in which, in spite of reminders of shopping days and references to Santa Claus, we are occasionally brought to remember the true meaning of Christmas by the sound of beautiful music. Christmas carols are with us again for their brief and welcome stay.

Like so many Christian customs, singing, dancing and festivities on religious holidays are carry-overs from pagan festivals. But it was not until Saint Francis of Assisi brought warmth and joy back to Christmas with his "presepio" that the custom of composing and singing carols especially at Christmas-time became widespread among the laity.

Every facet of the Christmas story has been commemorated in song. One triumphant little Italian carol, Erode Morio celebrates the death of Herod. Many carols of the Wise Men help to perpetuate the popular but doubtful idea that the Magi were present at the first Christmas. Still another side of the story is presented in German and Spanish carols which consist of dialogues between the heartless innkeeper and Mary and Joseph. In Mexico this type of carol forms a part of an elaborate door-to-door Christmas pilgrimage.

Many curious legends have been woven into carols. One French carol D'Ou Viens-Tu Bergere has Saint John the Baptist present at the crèche. And who has not sung the legends of Good King Wenceslas and The Three Shepherds?

In addition to the true folk-song carols, there are many whose composers are known. Two of the all-time favorites, Silent Night and O Little Town of Bethlehem are among these.

Perhaps the most beautiful and touching of all carols are the lullabies to the Baby Jesus. Maria Auf Dem Berg, Dormi Bambino, Repousa Tranquillo from Germany, Italy and Brazil respectively are part of an international heritage of lovely slumber songs. One of the most heartwarming sounds of Christmas is that of a children's choir crooning Away in a Manger or Little Jesus, Sweetly Sleep.

One little child when asked to sing a Christmas carol began to sing "Happy Birthday". His mother protested, but the child continued bravely: "Happy birthday, dear Jesus, happy birthday to you." We might do well to remember the unconscious wisdom of that child when we gather to sing our carols.

A. D. F.

Callboard

ART

Begging in the Laing Galleries. Not good, but important. The Canadian group of Painters still in the Dundas St. gallery. The Swiss Posters are on view in the Alumni Hall of Victoria College until Dec. 17.

MUSIC

Dec. 16, the final presentation of the Carnegie Record collection of this term. On the program: the Toscanini version of Beethoven's Missa Solemnis which includes soprano Lois Marshall and the Robert Shaw Choral. Time: 4:30 p.m. in the staff lounge of the Mechanical Building.

At 3 p.m. in the Art Gallery there will be a concert by baritone, James Whitcher on December 12th and by St. Paul's Anglican Church Choir on December 19th. Free.

The Leslie Bell singers, conducted by none other than, will sing in Eaton Auditorium on Dec. 15th and 16th.

The Toronto Symphony Orchestra's Christmas Box will take place on Dec. 21, 22, 23. As usual Sir Ernest's talents in the comic vein will be displayed.

DRAMA

The Faculty of Medicine's Daffydil starts in Hart House on Monday and continues through to Friday.

The Old Vic's presentation of A Midsummer Night's Dream starts in the Maple Leaf Gardens on Tuesday and stays till Thursday. A cast of 150, including Helpmann, Shearer and Holloway plus corps de ballet and full symphony orchestra will play in Toronto's largest "theatre".

At the Crest this week is The Lady From Edinburgh starring Betty Leighton and Murray Matheson.

Starting Dec. 27 the Ballets Espagnols, headed by Teresa and Luisillo present an evening of Spanish dance in the Royal Alexandra.

The Vic Drama Club will present Noah by Andre Obey in Hart House Theatre on Jan. 6, 7, 8, HH. It is directed by the drama critic of our rival morning paper.

The University of Toronto is in charge of the coming three programs of Exploring Minds on CBLT. Each Sunday at 6:00 p.m. On Dec. 12: Profs. Brieger and Comfort on the Artist and his Medium, Dec. 19: Prof. Moyer on the Artist and Reality and on Dec. 26: Profs. Cooke and McNairn on the Nativity in Art.

The New Play Society presents Sunshine Sketches starting in the Royal Alexandra on Jan. 6th.

Helpmann and Shearer

Robert Helpmann and Moira Shearer, the dancer-actors who star in the Old Vic presentation of Shakespeare's A Midsummer Night's Dream which comes to the Maple Leaf Gardens for three evenings performances beginning Tuesday, Dec. 14, at 8:30 p.m.

Holiday Movies

Most of the following films will be around town during the Christmas season, at one theatre or another, so except in the case of the most obvious long-runs, we won't mention where they are at the moment of writing.

First and foremost, of course, is the immortal Charlie, in Modern Times, which will probably be at the Towne Cinema till the cows come home. Ideal holiday entertainment. The Egyptian is beginning its second run, we see. Fun for the "spectacular" fans, and those who read the book. Tales of Hoffman, everyone's favourite of a couple of Christmases ago, has arrived at the International. Overlong, and rather tenuous in interest, but mighty pretty to look at and listen to.

Alec Guinness is back, in a rather old-fashioned murder mystery, Father Brown, Detective, from one of the G. K. Chesterton stories. Ideal for the Guinness fan. Barefoot Contessa is still at the Odeon-Toronto: one of those films you can't help arguing about. Ava Gardner gives her best performance yet as the Most Beautiful Animal in the World.

The Glenn Miller Story has reappeared at the Uptown. Wonderful music, James Stewart, and a really smashing sequence in Harlem make this one worth the bother. White Christmas is still at the Imperial, and Danny Kaye and Vera-Ellen raise it well above the average, with the help of some songs by Irving Berlin, of course.

The Barkleys of Broadway, the musical of a few years ago which reunited Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, is floating around the neighbourhood theatres, as are Hans Christian Andersen, On the Waterfront (Brando is the greatest), Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, O.K. Nero (an Italian spoof on the supercolossal spectacles Hollywood makes in the Old Country, and easily worth a trip to Scarboro or Willowdale), The Maggie, Carnival Story, The Kidnappers, Executive Suite, Royal Wedding, The Wild One, and numberless others.

Oh, don't miss a chance to see an unpretentious little film called Salerno Beachhead, which, under the title A Walk in the Sun, is recognized as one of the finest World War II films to come out of Hollywood.

Wendy Michener

Germaine Clinton

A Hallmark RECORDING

There is a new Christmas offering on the Hallmark label. Lois Marshall, Sir Ernest Macmillan and the Toronto Symphony Orchestra are on both sides of this 12 inch record, and Mozart's Exultate Jubilate is on one side with Bach's Cantata No. 51—Jauchzet Gott In Allen Landen on the other.

The Mozart work, scored for two oboes, two horns, string and keyboard (harpisichorde in this case) is a young work. Written when Mozart was 17 years of age it is full of the happiness of youth as befits a Christmas hymn of rejoicing. The TSO's rejoicing is a bit heavy-handed. Sir Ernest has made it more than firm, almost Bach-like. This would be the main criticism throughout, for apart from this, the recording is well-done. Lois Marshall sings brilliantly with her usual soaring notes and a new depth to her lower notes. She phrases intelligently and lightly, making the joins between the wide intervals with an amazing smoothness and cleanness.

Her best singing is done in the recitative in which she has a warm, easy and tender tone. In the Allierya at the end, which is so often sung by itself, she reveals the accurate flexibility and brilliance of her voice. Just at the end she ruins her record by straining on the top note to get volume, but apart from this she gives a top-notch performance.

It seems that Lois Marshall is the only Canadian singer who has a large enough reputation to guarantee a record, and she undoubtedly is an excellent singer, but we have heard her do better work, than on this particular recording.

music reviews

UTSO

Last night's recital by the University Orchestra and Choir was the result of long hours of training and its effects were in general gratifying. Yet even considering the non-professional basis of this group, one cannot escape noticing a number of shortcomings. Oddly enough the errors were rather technical than interpretational in nature.

We feel however that there was an equal balance in beauty and intelligence which covered up much of the loopholes.

From Frescobaldi to William Bergsma the orchestra was challenged by the stylistic demands of at least three different periods. Of these the symphony has tackled the modern idiom at best. There was most admirable playing in the Bergsma's Paul Bunyan suite in which Mr. Rosevear's suggestive direction prevailed in expressing the rhythmically and harmonically intriguing score.

The most problematic part of the evening Charles M. Wilson's David's Lament over Saul was marred by the imbalance between the orchestra and the singers. This highly contrapuntal composition of intensely dramatic content requires the most minute interaction of the two groups. The instruments with their implicitly dramatic intensity have a great many times drawn out the explicitly evocative choir. This was the more disappointing because the singing with orchestral piano parts has shown through as a beautiful contrast to the strident playing of the instruments.

After the intermission our longing for the choir was satisfied in most intelligent singing. We were particularly impressed by young John McIntosh who has shown very great talent in exploiting the dynamic potentialities of the singers in Randall Thompson's serene "Alleluia". Mr. Johnson's arrangement of the "Huron Carol" was most interesting in his use of harmonies reminiscent of the Gregorian Chants.

Erwin J. Biener

TSO

Wednesday's concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra with Paul Scherman conducting opened with Jan Sibelius' En Saga. This music is pretentious, but never important; there are some nice melodies, but with much repetition and no development, the work is twice as long as it should be. Stravinsky's Petroushka was played badly, since Mr. Scherman could not conduct it. Only the Waltz came near being successful.

The playing of the Brahms Double Concerto for Violin and Violoncello by Hyman Goodman and Roland Pach emphasized again that our orchestra is, potentially, as good as most on the continent. The whole performance, but especially that of the soloists, suffered nothing by comparison with the recent broadcast by Isaac Stern, Leonard Rose and the New York Philharmonic under Bruno Walter. Goodman and Pach achieved fine integration in their parts, and played with considerable musical understanding, especially in the slow movement. Much of the time the orchestra was able to give them sympathetic support. The music, unfortunately, is some of Brahms' worst. Dismally devoid of musical ideas, any development is invariably reduced to arpeggio passages tossed about by the soloists. The beginning of the second movement always seems silly to me; only the third movement, short and condensed, makes some musical sense.

Dave Simonoff

CLC

On Saturday evening at the Royal Conservatory the first concert of the annual series of chamber and orchestral presentations by the Canadian League of Composers got well under way with a full rostrum of composers presenting a varied programme of chamber works. Space only permits me to treat a few.

Opening the concert was a Piano Sonata by Murray Adaskin. His four-movement work moved from a moderately exclamatory contrapuntal first movement to a sprightly rhythmic second, through a broad slow section to a final lush and brilliant last movement much like a toccata in style. Physically the work is well built, harmonically rich, but lacking a sense of contrast in temperament and colour in the work as a whole.

The Sonata in One Movement by John Weinzeig was a revelation of musical experience. His work is a tensely romantic contrapuntal work that has a definite meaning and very convincingly proves itself throughout the work.

Rhapsody by Harry Somers is a passionately virile and energetic work. Mime, also by Mr. Somers is a highly amusing and picturesque piece. One feels that it has been slightly overdone but in its proper medium, say a comic reel or following the mime of a dancer, the music would then justify itself.

Milton Barnes

TWELFTH NIGHT

drama review

The Earle Grey Shakespeare Festival Company (to give it its entire name), performed Twelfth Night at Hart House on Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Shakespeare Society of Toronto, in support of the Ernest Dale Memorial Fund. This is the same production of Shakespeare's comedy that the Earle Grey Players performed in the Trinity College quadrangle during the summer, to which it is infinitely better adapted than the stage of the Hart House theatre.

Unfortunately, without the use of the apron stage, and confined by the convention of the proscenium and the 'box' stage, their permanent set and the series of scenes following on each others' heels presented a rather muddled and occasionally ludicrous spectacle. Even under these disadvantages, much could have been forgiven by an imaginative use of lighting to show the passage of time, change of scene, or to set the tone of the action. But none of this was attempted, even with the considerable resources of the theatre at their disposal — an even and monotonous yellow glow pervaded every scene.

As for the play itself, it was acted in two levels throughout. This does not refer to the two levels of comedy that Shakespeare contrasted and alternated, but to two levels of dramatic skill. The comedy scenes with Sir Toby Belch and his cronies (acted by Charles Palmes, Norman Green, Glynne Morris and Barbara Flynn), were performed with expert timing and hearty enjoyment; they, redeemed an otherwise tedious two-and-a-half hours. Less said about the other level the better, the high proportion of amateurish and uninspired performances ruined the scenes, that in their own way, rank among the best scenes in Shakespeare's plays, if given half a chance. Pam DeBulnes.

SWEET CAPS

Always fresh and TRULY MILD!

"Only a fresh cigarette can be truly mild."

Since 1927, Canada's First Cigarette

CORK or PLAIN

B'nai Brith

Hillel Foundation

In Observance of Anniversary of Moses Maimonides

Friday, Dec. 10-8.30 p.m.

Sabbath Eve

Aaron Weinstock on "Life and Times of a Great Philosopher".

Rabbi Aaron M. Kamerling on "Ethical Teachings".

Sunday, Dec. 12-8.30 p.m.

Symposium on

"The Philosophy of Maimonides".

Prof. E. Fackenheim and Prof. L. E. M. Lynch.

The Graduate Committee of Hart House offers a limited number of tickets to undergraduates for

THE NEW YEAR'S EVE BALL

- Stanley St. John and his Ensemble
- Dancing in three rooms from ten to three
- Splash party in Hart House pool at 3 a.m.
- Supper after midnight in the Great Hall

Tickets $7.50 per couple

Dress Optional

ONE TICKET ONLY ON EACH A.T.L. CARD

TICKETS ON SALE AT GRADUATE OFFICE, AND HALL PORTERS DESK, HART HOUSE

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT ARENA GARDENS BOX OFFICE

NEW YEAR'S EVE
Battle of the Bands
STARRING PEE WEE RUSSELL
Tim Wood's 15-piece band
Boyd Valleau's 12-piece band
ARENA GARDENS
TICKETS $2.00 per person
MUTUAL ARENA EM. 8-1554
DOOR ADMISSION $2.80

Last Minute Shoppers!

There is a book for every member of the family at the UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

We Recommend:

ATOMS IN THE FAMILY, by Laura Fermi
UNDER MILK WOOD, by Dylan Thomas
CANADA'S FLYING HERITAGE, by Frank H. Ellis
LEAVEN OF MALICE, by Robertson Davies
FRESHWATER FISHES OF EASTERN CANADA, by W. B. Scott

PICK OF PUNCH
TWICE HAVE THE TRUMPETS SOUNDED, by Tyrone Guthrie
SILKEN LINES AND SILVER HOOKS, by W. S. Fox

Further Suggestions:

U OF T CERAMIC STEINS
FOUNTAIN PENS AND PENCILS
BRIEF CASES IN FINE LEATHER
SCHOOL CRESTS AND PENNANTS
ART FOLIOS AND ARTISTS' SUPPLIES

If Undecided -- Send A BOOK TOKEN
from

UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

Register Your Wedding Now
TUXEDO JUNCTION
FORMAL RENTALS
All New Garments
WA. 4-8427
401 PARLIAMENT ST.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	12:30	-Sr. Med vs. Sr. 4/10-Naden, Lotocki
	1:30	-Pie-Med vs. Trin. A-Siegel, Tulson
SQUASH	4:00	-Dent. O vs. Vic. IV-McCracken, Weinert
	5:30	-Dent. A vs. SPS IV-Weinert, Stodnyk
BASKETBALL PRACTICES	5:00	-Pharm A vs. Jr. U.C.
	1:00	Trin. 4:00-U.C. 6:30-SPS
Main Gym	1:00	-Arch. 4:00-For. 5:00 - 7:00-Dent
	Upper Gym

WOMEN'S INTERCOLLEGIATE BASKETBALL TRYOUTS

Tues and Thurs., Dec. 14 & 16, 7 - 9:00 p.m. at Ryerson gymnasium, Church and Gould Streets.
There are many openings on both the Senior and Intermediate teams. Games are scheduled for January and February for both teams. These are the last try-outs before Christmas.
Found — one pair hornrimmed glasses at O.C.E. gymnasium. They may be claimed at the S.A.C. Building.

HOCKEY SCHEDULE WEEK OF JAN. 2, 1955

Date	Time	Games	Referees
Wed., Jan. 5	12:30-1:30	Med vs. U.C. I	D. Stephen
Thurs., Jan. 6	12:30-1:30	POT I vs. Vic. I	T. Riley
Fri., Jan. 7	4:00-5:00	St. Hilda's II vs. P.H.E. II	C. Yakimoff

Second Team mentioned in Home Team
Managers hand Medical Certificates into S.A.C. Office immediately.

AN ANTHROPOLOGIST LOOKS AT RELIGION

The Second of Two Lectures by

MRS. R. C. PIRIE

Dept. of Anthropology

"AN EVALUATION OF CONTEMPORARY RELIGIONS"

Discussion following

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 15
4.00 p.m.

FALCONER HALL

Sponsored by a group of Religious Liberals

Treat Yourself to a
'NENSIS
This Christmas

CLUB NEW YORKER ANNUAL DANCE
BRANT INN
Burlington

GEORGE HOUSLANDER ORCHESTRA

MONDAY, DEC. 27
$3 COUPLE

All members who have gone on trips are welcome.

TICKETS ON SALE AT:

BURLINGTON:

Hainsworth's Drugs

HAMILTON:

McFadden's Drugs

1002 King St. W.

Sam. Manson

71 King St. W.

Hainsworth's Drugs

815 Main St. E.

Anderson's Smokeshop

655 King St. E.

Delta Drugs

1099 Main St. E.

DANCE

EVERY SATURDAY NIGHT

1st five U. of T. couples admitted free

"THE CLUB HOUSE"

Eglinton Park

Eglinton Ave. between Avenue

Rd. and Yonge

RON PINTO

and his Orchestra

$2.00 per couple

SAC At A Glance

The Students' Administrative Council, Wednesday night, besides discussing the band and appointing a committee for the opera night:

—were told that the report of a majority decision of the UTDU favouring debating trials and U.S. tours was not brought before SAC but an opposing statement was expressed and acted upon.

—authorized a brief on membership in and increased revenue for the SAC. This would include a lengthy report on the power and restrictions of student government, recommendations to the Board of Governors, proposed budgets and hopes for ratification. Action on this brief will determine if Toronto stays in NFCUS.

—learned that the Treasure Van made over $1000.

—accepted with regrets the resignation of the Public Relations Commissioner, and appointed Ridpath, (IV Arch.) as its new Commissioner.

—were told a proposal that the UC reading room be closed at 5:30 in order that the U of T library remain open until 11:00, had received considerable dissatisfaction.

—were invited to a Carol Fest on Thurs., Dec. 16 at the conservatory.

—wondered what to pay last year's Torontonensis editor.

—applauded the Hoskin Ave. Safety Sub-committee report.

—had the chairman interpret the intent of the constitution ruling in favour of a French 'quinze jours' over an English 'fortnight'.

SKULE PARTY

The Skule Society will sponsor on Tuesday afternoon a Christmas party for children from the University Settlement. It will be held in Hart House.

The program will include swimming, movies, a magic lantern, supper and gifts.

BASKETBALL RULES CLINIC

All referees, managers and coaches are invited to attend the clinic to be held Monday, Dec. 13 at 1:00 p.m. in the Pencil Room, Hart House. The session will be conducted by Barry Lowes, Intercollegiate referee, and member of the T. & D. Board of Officials.

THE INTERESTING JEWELLERY SHOP
GIFTS of SENTIMENT and SURPRISE
685 YONGE ST. (next to Charles St. Post Office) OPEN FRIDAY NIGHTS

NOW

ceramics with the University of Toronto
crest

For a Christmas gift or your personal collection, these ceramics are ideal at moderate cost.

The University crest in rich colour is fired under glaze on ivory background.

On black background:	Standard Mug—16 oz.	5.00
	Miniature Mug—2 oz.	1.40
From top to bottom:	Plain Crested Mug—16 oz.	4.00
	Falstaff Favour Mug—12 oz.	3.25
	One Shot Mug—2 oz.	1.25
	Decorative Wall Tile or Ash Tray, 7½"	5.00
	Ash or Pin Tray, 5¾"	3.50
	Decorative Wall Tile, 4½"	1.50

TWO TORONTO STORES

BIRKS

TEMPERANCE 33 BLOOR W. AT YONGE AT BALMUTO

Also on sale at University of Toronto Book Store.

Life
Insurance is the best way
to save
for future
security...

MUTUAL LIFE

ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA

For your best life insurance

For ample protection at low net cost, see your local Mutual Life of Canada representative.

TORONTO OFFICES:
Bank of Montreal Bldg., King and Bay Sts.
Richmond St. Branch, 133 Richmond St. W.
Yonge-Bloor Branch, 749 Yonge St.
North Toronto Branch, 10 Eglinton Ave., E.
New Toronto Branch, 746 Lakeshore Rd. at 3rd
Leaside Branch, 650 Bayview Ave., Leaside

Phone EM. 4-8371
EM. 6-8771
WA. 4-8491
MA. 9421
CL. 1-3383
HU. 8-2776

The Toronto Humanist Association

Presents a Series of Free Lectures on

COMPARATIVE ETHICS

by Professor John A. Irving, of Victoria College

Dealing with the development and meaning of several schools of Moral and Social Thought and their relationship to behavior in various Societies

Next Lecture: Sunday, Nov. 12 at 8:00 p.m.

"THE EMERGENCE OF CHRISTIAN ETHICS"

THE UNITARIAN CHURCH

175 St. Clair Ave. West (at Avenue Rd.)

In Excelsis Deo

About two thousand years ago in one of the more insignificant provinces of the Roman Empire a boy was born to an illiterate carpenter and his wife. The boy grew up in one of the small mean towns of the district, and spent his youth in learning the rudiments of the carpentry trade. Then, when he was about thirty years of age, he set off on a preaching tour of his native land.

During his entire lifetime, he never set foot outside of his native country. He never addressed any of the rich or important people of his land—he spoke mostly to the poorer and baser sorts of people.

He never set a word down on paper. He never achieved even moderate wealth, nor did he seek it. He was not known in his time beyond the narrow borders of his country. He was not powerful—he never commanded an army, he never ordered another man's death, he never held any political post.

When he was only thirty-three, he was betrayed by one of his closest friends and supporters. He was imprisoned by the civil authorities, and was beaten and mocked. Then he was sentenced to death as a rabble-rouser, and executed between two thieves.

And yet this man has exerted more influence on the course of human events than all the armies that ever marched on the land, all the navies that ever sailed the seas, all the statesmen and emperors and dictators and kings that have ever lived.

He never uttered a word during all of his life on economics. Yet he has had more influence on the economy of the world today than Karl Marx and Adam Smith and all other economists put together. He never commanded a soldier in his life, yet in his name entire continents have been subdued. He never wrote a word at any time; yet more books have been written about him than about any other person or subject in the universe.

He stands as the most absolute proof of the proposition that a life does not have to be brutal or hateful to succeed.

Observe 750th Anniversary Of Great Jewish Philosopher

The 750th anniversary of the death of Moses Maimonides, the great Jewish thinker, is being observed this weekend by the Hillel Foundation.

Aaron Weinstock and Rabbi Aaron M. Kamerling will speak on the life and teachings of the philosopher at a meeting of the Sabbath Eve Fellowship tonight.

This Sunday "The Place of Maimonides in the History of Philosophy" will be the subject of a symposium to be led by Prof. Emil Fackenheim, of the Dept. of Philosophy and Prof.

L. E. M. Lynch of St. Michael's College.

Maimonides' genius covered many subjects. Among other things, he was an outstanding philosopher, theologian, and astronomer, and his intellectual influence since his death has been widespread.

MAN WHO TAKES FITS

Not long ago an otherwise grammatical customer asked us, "Where is the man who takes fits?"

He was referring to our Vice-President, Herb Wickenden, who takes fits only when people refer to "fittings" as "fits." His sense of le mot juste, of exactitude, propriety and all that sort of thing carries over to a nice degree in his work.

Herb has been here at Hobberlin's for 32 years, and when he has you in for a try-on, his long-practised eye will spot things even your wife wouldn't notice.

Herb's pretty keen about a new worsted flannel we have these days, the way it drapes, the way it sits trimly on your shoulders. He has a suit in this fabric himself and he says that though he even slept in it (one trying Sunday afternoon) it held its crease for several weeks. Glenshire, it's called, and it's a sort of half-way between a worsted and a flannel, with the best qualities of each. Resists shine, like a flannel, wears like the hardest worsted. About 20 shades, including an almost-black. These suits are styled by Peter Antonelli, and tailored by the famous Progress Brand organization. $97.50. Ready-to-wear, $79.50.

Another Antonelli masterpiece is the Moordale line of overcoats and topcoats. It's an English Velour with a little more texture than our cashmeres. Warm and snug on a cold day, you'll be amazed at how light these overcoats are. And roomy, too, with a new "hinge sleeve" that lets you have lots of forward reach for driving the car. Full-weight overcoats, middleweight overcoats, topcoats.

You'll find that Herb Wickenden is helpful without (heaven forbid) pressure. Why not come in and meet him soon. It may be the most fitting acquaintance you'll even make. Any time before 6 p.m.

Hobberlin's
LIMITED

145 Yonge St.

EML 3-7313

SKI TRIP

to St. Sauveur, Que.

Make your Reservations for Ski Trip

JANUARY 28 to 30
at S.A.C. Office — NOW

BEST WISHES TO ALL FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS

and

A HAPPY NEW YEAR

From

KARN CLEANERS & CLOTHIERS

Students Save 10% On All Dry Cleaning — Cash & Carry

235½ COLLEGE ST. (opp. Dental College) Phone WA. 4-3072

Toys for Xmas

Broken toys will be collected from students on the campus to be repaired and donated to charitable institutions, announced Bill Helps, spokesman of The Industrial Arts Club of OCE. He stated that the club will collect broken and disused toys of all sorts from the students of this university, and then repair them in the OCE workshops.

Helps asked all students to bring any toys in reparable condition to the Committee Room in the front hall of the SAC Building (The Old Observatory) on Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday of next week. Helps said that wood or metal toys would be the best to bring in, as plastic is difficult to repair.

The Industrial Arts Club then plans to renovate the toys and donate them to a charitable institution for distribution to children for Christmas.

Clothes

There will be a used clothing collection on January 10 for the University Settlement.

BLOOR

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. Walter C. Sellars

Organist and Choirmaster:
Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.

CONVOCATION HALL

The Need for Reverence

Dr. Howse

7:30 p.m.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

How Real is God to You?

Dr. E. Crossley Hunter

The CAMPUS CLUB meets in Bloor Street United Church Assembly Hall following the Evening Service at Trinity.

National Research Council Of Canada

Applications are invited from high-ranking

Graduate and Undergraduate Students

Interested in Full Time and Summer Work

in

Engineering and Science

in the following fields:

AERONAUTICAL ENGINEERING

BIOCHEMISTRY

BIOLOGY

CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

CHEMISTRY

CIVIL ENGINEERING

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

ELECTRONICS

ENGINEERING PHYSICS

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

PHYSICS

RADIOPHYSICS

STATISTICS

Positions are available at Ottawa, Saskatoon and Halifax.

Standard starting rates for 1955 graduates appointed to continuing positions will be: Ph.D.—$4950, M.Sc.—$4200, B.Sc.—$3750 per annum.

Information on full time openings is available in the Placement Office, 5 Willcocks St., and in your Department.

Application forms may be obtained from the Placement Officer and should be forwarded to the Employment Officer, National Research Council, Ottawa, early in December, for consideration in January.

A Modern Miracle

Christmas Revisited

By MARY ALICE HUNTER

"Silent night ho-o-o-ly night - There they go again", sighed Matt, as the discordant harmonies of the carollers drifted through the window "I've nothing against Christmas", he added, turning to his friends, seated comfortably by the roaring fire, "but this soggy sentimentalism gets on my nerves all times. All the rest of the year people lie and cheat and steal, but come Christmas and they all get lumps in their throats and start going to church. Why my father won't even let me have the car to go to Bill's party Christmas Eve, because he wants to go to the Midnight service."

Groans of "you're so right" came from the circle of college friends gathered in Matt's living-room. Exams were over and they had settled down for the evening to watch television.

Suddenly a light flickered on the screen and music flooded the room. A picture of what was obviously ancient Judea appeared. "O my God" gasped one. "Another boomang. Na-tivity pageant. If the productions were ever decent it would be different, but they're always so sufficably saccharine that I get absolutely fed up. Let's switch to something else."

But a sudden hush fell over the group as the tired little donkey staggered bravely under the burden of the beautiful young woman in the blue mantle, while the gray-bearded man veiled protectively beside her. "Where did they get that gal?" asked Matt. "She has maddened the queen's beater by a mile".

Gloria in excelsis Dea, Peace on earth good will to men", and the traditional chorus of angels appeared singing with unusual feeling and sweetness. The grizzled shepherds came lumbly from afar into the stable, hugging the fleecy lambs for warmth. A tiny shepherd boy, rubbing his eyes from weariness, pillowed his head on the soft flanks of the drowsy oxen, and had to be aroused by the shepherds for the long journey back to the flocks. "This is tremendous", said Matt, "that touch about the little kid is really realistic. Makes the whole story seem more human somehow."

With touching simplicity and sweeping grandeur the ancient story proceeded. The three crowned Magi entered from afar presented their rich gifts and departed with many a backward glance.

At last came the flight into the desert, and the little group vanished into the darkness.

Mark was the first to break the silence. "That's the best production I've ever seen," he said emphatically. "The way the whole thing faded into the darkness at the end was just superb. If they'd muddled it up with producer's credits and so on, the whole atmosphere would have been ruined."

"You're right", said Matt reflectively. "You know I think I might take in that service with my Dad after all. Will you turn the set off John, somehow I don't feel too much like Liberace now."

John walked over, but turned with an odd expression on his face. "The set isn't on, Matt."

FREE — ALL STUDENTS WELCOME

When you pause...make it count...have a Coke

7¢

Including Federal Taxes

C-28

"Coke" is a registered trade-mark.

COCA-COLA LTD.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

from
EATON'S
Canada's Christmas Store

THE Defence Research Board
requires
SCIENTISTS . . .
. . . ENGINEERS

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES EXIST
IN MANY FIELDS INCLUDING:

- GUIDED MISSILES
- ARMAMENT FIRE CONTROL
- AEROSOL FILTRATION
- RESPIRATORY PROTECTIVE DEVICES
- EARLY WARNING DEVICES
- Hydro-Mechanics
- UNDERWATER SOUND RESEARCH
- ANTI-CORROSION
- BATTERY SYSTEMS
- RADIO PROPAGATION

CHALLENGING POSITIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT OUR MODERN RESEARCH ESTABLISHMENTS FOR STUDENTS WITH A GOOD ACADEMIC RECORD WHO ARE GENUINELY INTERESTED IN RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT WORK.

Our Representatives will Visit This University Soon to Conduct Interviews. Watch This Newspaper and Bulletin Boards for Exact Dates of Their Visit.

U.C. GRAD PORTRAITS

will be given out in the U. C. ROTUNDA

Wednesday, December 15 ONLY
12 - 2 P.M.

FOR SALE

Torontonensis

Reps. — pick up your sales receipt books in the S.A.C. Office immediately.

Ideas for Christmas?

University of Toronto

CRESTS

on Embossed Oak

$5.00

Walt shields of English oak, heraldic shields hand painted and embossed

All proceeds to University Settlement

WE DID IT AGAIN!

for story and CUP conference report see centre spread — pages four and five

"THE UNDERGRAD
DAILY"

THE VARSITY

HOLDER OF THE SOUTHAM TROPHY

Vol. LXXIV — No. 54

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Friday, January 7, 1955

Nude — A La Phillip

This is Hermes, the messenger of Jove who stands in the Hart House Quad. He has been covered over to prevent his nudity offending the sensibilities of U of T students.

—VSP By Ed Hoshkiv

Three Pics. Will Remain Despite Mayor's Attack Art Committee Decides

BY MIKE PENGELLEY

The much-sensationalized pen-sketch of a boy and girl embracing one another in the nude is back on the wall of the Hart House Art exhibit.

And, according to members of the exhibition committee, it will stay there until the closing of the display at the end of next week. That gives art enthusiasts approximately 10 more days in which to view the notorious paintings and sketches. The public will be granted general admission — free of charge — on Sunday, according to Alex Gigeroff, chairman of the Exhibition committee. This means that co-eds will get a second chance to view the exhibit — including all three drawings.

Home, Office Called Mayor Unavailable 1735—No Answer

"There's no answer in either room," said a pert telephone girl's voice Wednesday afternoon when The Varsity attempted to contact Mayor Nathan Phillips for comment on the Hart House art exhibition.

The reference was to the notorious suite 1735 at the Royal York Hotel — the happy hunting ground of municipal big-wheelers.

Efforts to contact the mayor were frustrated all afternoon. Repeated calls to the mayor's City Hall office brought repeated news that the mayor was out and no one was quite sure when he was due to return.

A call to his downtown law office also proved unsuccessful. "You won't get him here," a surprised secretary cooed, "he'll be at the City Hall!"

The mayor wasn't at home either — at least it had to be assumed he wasn't . . . a woman answering to the mayor's number said: "The mayor has a new number now; it isn't listed in the phone book."

The sketch of the two nudes embracing was one of three pen-drawings which Toronto's new mayor-elect, Nathan Phillips, found "objectionable" when he made a newspaper-incited "flying visit" to the campus on Tuesday — the day of his inauguration.

The mayor's censure ignited the biggest bombshell to burst in Toronto art circles since a member of city council complained about "nudes" being shown at the Canadian National Exhibition art display four years ago. A similar fuss was stirred up seven years ago when a city controller learned much to his dismay that James Joyce "Ulysses" was being read by University of Toronto students.

The current art row burst like a ten-ton blockbuster Tuesday night when the two Toronto evening newspapers carried stories that the mayor had ordered the three paintings taken down: that Hart House Warden Joseph McCulley said "no — not without consulting with the art committee".

(As it turned out, the Warden had discreetly removed temporarily one painting which Mayor Phillips found most objectionable.)

Next day, literally thousands of undergraduates — and the odd faculty member too — swarmed down to the little art exhibition room in the basement of Hart House to grab a peek at the forbidden creations which, it appeared, might be taken down at any moment.

Chairman Gigeroff said attendance skyrocketed to ten or twelve times normal.

"I've been here for six years and I've never seen so many people turn out for an exhibit," he said. "Hardly anyone as a rule goes into that little sketch room at the back," he added, "but you could hardly turn around in there."

And yesterday when the contentious drawing was replaced, a fresh surge of interest was focussed on the exhibit. At noon hour, one could scarcely find standing space.

The story behind the scenes as far as The Varsity could determine ran something like this:

Someone — an anonymous person so far as could be ascertained — phoned the Toronto Telegram with news that

(Continued on Page 3)

OUR CELEBRATION ISSUE

BLOOD CAMPAIGN COMING UP

Appointments Made
Jan. 17-22

Donations Given
Jan. 31 - Feb. 7

TORONTONENSIS — THE SHOWS RECAPTURED

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR SALE
2 Tuxedos — excellent condition — sizes 38 and 40 — private. Very reasonable. Phone MA. 6167.

KITCHENER
Driving to Kitchener on Fridays at 4 return Sunday nights. Phone Jack Hahn, WA. 1-1316 after 6.30 p.m.

ROOM & BOARD
Young girl — room and board in exchange for light housekeeping duties. HU. 8-5461 after 7 p.m.

FOR RENT
Single or double room close to subway Parking space. HU. 8-3202.

LOST
Ronson men's pocket lighter at Hart House New Year's Eve Dance. Phone Dave Hyde, WA. 1-5060

FOR SALE
Trombone, used good condition Call Jo Thompson, WA. 1-2064.

FOR SALE
1930 Model A Ford — very good condition. Practically new tires and battery $80.00. G. James, WA. 1-3828

ROOM TO LET
North Toronto, convenient to subway, large room, twin beds, students or teachers preferred. Board optional. HU. 9-7329.

OPPORTUNITY
An opportunity for a willing student. A cheap warm quiet room in exchange for housework help on Saturdays. WA. 1-281.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Co-convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details: Call Norman Richardson — HU. 8-3929.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented or sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RL 1843 anytime.

FOR RENT
Free room, bath and board for female student in return for occasional baby sitting and a few very light duties. HU. 9-6424 evenings between 7.30 and 9 p.m.

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK-END

FRIDAY, 7TH JANUARY:
10.00 a.m. - 10.15 a.m. — MORNING DEVOTIONS (Chapel)
10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION by Michael Snow and Graham Coughtry (Art Gallery).
1.30 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room)
5.00 p.m. - 5.20 p.m. — EVENING PRAYER (Chapel)

SATURDAY, 8TH JANUARY:
Caledon Hills Farm — psychology Club weekend.

SUNDAY, 9TH JANUARY:
9.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION in the chapel, Celebrant: Rev. Dr. J. S. Glen, Principal Knox College (Breakfast will be served afterwards in the North Common Room)
11.00 a.m. — The fourth University Religious Service. Speaker: Rabbi William Braude of Providence Rhode Island.

THE CAT'S NEW YEAR'S HONORS LIST

Herewith follows the annual New Year's Honors List of the Cat:

To the Engineers; for their manners, Emily Post's etiquette for schoolchildren.

To President Sydney Smith; to read to the religious illiterates, a Biblical Concordance.

To Joseph Slogan; to aid in his "Improve The Varsity" Campaign, three full pages of free space in The Varsity.

To Michael Oliver; so he can put his journalistic ideas into practice; a world of his own.

To Mayor Phillips; in appreciation of his fine work in defending the morale integrity of this University, membership in the Art Critics' Club and a full-sized portrait of a nude—Lady Godiva.

To the Sheik of Araby; for companionship, a brunette.

To Queen's; for consolation, better luck next time.

To Western; for their fine effort, a membership in the "I Hate The Mustangs" Club.

To The Women of the University; for their beer-drinking prowess, a swimming pool, not necessarily in Hart House.

To the SAC; so they will increase The Varsity's budget, a profit.

To the Cavalier of the Streets; for his chivalry, a horse.

To the Arbor Room; for 100 decibels of noise—quite an achievement—a silent juke box.

To the University Authorities; For vigorously upholding the principle of student self-government in the case of the engineering riot, a copy of "The Law of the Soviet State", by A. Vishinsky.

To the Students of the University; for their whole-hearted defence of their right of self-government, and for the intelligent, courageous use that they have made of their right, a copy of "The Road To Serfdom" by Von Hayek.

To the Star and The Telegram; for unbiased, accurate, and non-sensationalized news coverage, especially of campus events, three sex murders and a bucket of red ink.

To One-Eyed Benny; for his urbanity, a monocle.

To the IPA; for solace, representation.

To the Library; for a glass house, some window blinds.

To the Hoskin Avenue Policeman; for saving our lives, a new spotlight so he can go and get some coffee.

To The Varsity Blues; for winning the Yates Cup, three tigers and a cheer.

To the Varsity; for winning the Southam Trophy, an issue to raise hell about.

And To The Cat; for his brilliant wit and humour, a saucer of milk-laced with whiskey.

By Order
The Cat

Rabbi Braude Speaks at U. of T. Service

Rabbi William G. Braude, spiritual leader of Temple Beth El, Providence, R.I. will give the address at the Fourth University Religious Service this Sunday at 11 a.m. in the Great Hall of Hart House.

President Sidney Smith and the Reverend John Rowe, chaplain of Hart House, will participate in the service. Rabbi Aaron M. Kamerling will conduct, and the service will be a traditionally Jewish one.

The University of Cincinnati and the Hebrew Union College.

The University Religious Services during the current academic year are intended to provide a religious platform within the University community for the various faiths.

The liturgical responses will be rendered by Cantor Samuel Stolnitz.

Rabbi Braude is a graduate of

St. Andrew's United

Bloor, near Subway at Yonge

Minister:
REV. W. MORRISON KELLY,
M.A., B.D., S.T.M.

Organist and Choir Director:
EDGAR GOODAIRE

11 a.m. "Religious Immaturity"

7.30 p.m. "What is man?"

A special invitation is extended to students to attend this evening Service and the FIRESIDE HOUR which will follow in the Church Parlour.

BLOOR

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse
Rev. Walter C. Sellars

Organist and Choirmaster:
Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.

CONVOCATION HALL

The Virtue of Impatience

Dr. Howse

7.30 p.m.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

The Strategy of Peace

Dr. E. Crossley Hunter

The CAMPUS CLUB meets in Bloor Street United Church Assembly Hall following the Evening Service at Trinity.

GOD OR NO GOD?

Does it make a difference?

CHAPEL

JAN. 9 — 7.30 p.m.

Vic Union

Park Road Baptist Church

Park Road and Asquith Ave.
REV. C. G. STONE, B.D., Minister
Muriel Gidley Stafford, Organist
11:00 a.m. - 7:00 p.m.
DR. CHARLES G. STONE

Church Of The Redeemer

Bloor Street, W. and Avenue Rd.
Rector: Rev. Owen P. Prichard,
B.A., L.Th.
8 a.m. — Holy Communion.
11 a.m. — Morning Prayer.
7 p.m. — Evening Prayer.
Preacher at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.
The Rector
C. H. DENSMER, Organist and Choirmaster.

Fourth University
Religious Service

Rabbi W. G. Braude

Temple Beth El, Providence, R.I. will speak

In The Great Hall, Hart House
Sunday, Jan. 9, 11 a.m.

ALL Members Of The University
Are Welcome

A Visiting Team of RCAF Specialist

Technical Officers will present

Information

for 5T5 Graduates in Engineering
and Honour Science

ABOUT TECHNICAL OFFICER CAREERS IN THE RCAF

Wallberg — Room 1035

Mon., Jan. 10 — 4 to 5 p.m.: Tues., Jan. 11 — 1 to 2 p.m.

Canada's Only College
Daily

THE VARSITY

WEATHER
COLDER
BUT CLEAR

SMITH, RUSSELL COP RHODES

Committee Announces Rhodes Winners Two Are From University of Toronto

EUAN SMITH

Calling All Varsity Staff

All members of The Varsity staff-reporters, make-up assistants, CUP reporters, etc., — are requested to make their appearance in The Varsity office as soon as possible.

There will be a very important meeting of all members of The Varsity staff today at 1:05 p.m. in the News Office. All those who have worked on the paper in the past, as well as anyone who would like to join now, are to attend.

In particular, there is need for reporters who are willing and able to cover Campus News Stories and write these up for publication.

To Euan Edward Smith, IV, U.C., the award of a Rhodes Scholarship means a chance to return to his native land. Born in London, he crossed to Canada at the age of 15, graduated from secondary schools in Windsor, and came to the University as a preparation for a career in foreign service.

Working his way through by an impressive collection of scholarships, and by a series of summer jobs that varied from grocery clerk to sleeping car porter, Smith entered the modern history course at Toronto.

His extra-curricular activities included work on Varsity staff, the Modern History Club, and the U.C. Lit, where he serves as Fourth Year Secretary.

Smith plans to read for Philosophy, Politics and Economics in his two years at Oxford, as a supplementary to his modern history course, and as a background for his intended career with the Department of External Affairs.

Oxford will be the twenty-first school to have been attended by this much-travelled young man. Among these was an English progressive school directed by Bertrand Russell, where the emphasis was laid on personality rather than education and where the results were somewhat amusing to recall. Smith himself favours the more conservative systems, and looks forward to the opportunity to study at Oxford.

"I am certainly pleased to be able to go," Smith said of the award, "I feel it is a golden opportunity put into my hands — a valuable chance to widen the range of my experience." His dominant reaction to the scholarship is "still surprise."

Basically, Smith feels, the main problem of our age is one of a lack of international understanding. His interest in foreign affairs and international relations accounts in part for his desire to become a Rhodes Scholar, and for his future plans.

One of the two Toronto students chosen to be Rhodes Scholars for 1955, Peter Howard Russell, IV, Trinity, competed with eleven other candidates from Ontario for the highest academic prize of the Commonwealth.

Russell has held numerous scholarships in his four years as a philosophy student at Toronto. He was graduated from the University of Toronto Schools, and resides in Leaside.

Among his university activities are playing manager of the Trinity hockey team, and manager of the athletics of the college. He has been literary chairman of the Alpha delta Phi fraternity, and on the Trinity Board of Stewards he serves as president of the 5T5 year.

Also among his university positions was his chairmanship of the Student Help for Asian Relief in Education, otherwise known as SHARE, in its campaign to raise funds for the University of Delhi. Russell felt the SHARE had an important part in contributing to understanding between students of East and West — a far more important part than the average contributing student realizes.

PETER RUSSELL

During his summer vacations, Russell has travelled from coast to coast with the UTDU, and has worked in Jasper, Alta. The summer in Jasper began with an unsuccessful attempt to establish a weekly newspaper, and ended with a job at the Jasper Park Lodge. Despite the outcome of the venture, Russell feels that he might someday go into journalism as a career.

Another plan for the future is a possible share in the business world. Russell plans to read for Philosophy, Politics and Economics at Oxford, and to make use of the opportunity abroad with considerable travel between terms.

The scholarship awarded to the Trinity student will amount to $1,700.00 annually, for a period of two years. Two such scholarships are offered each year to the students of Ontario; this year, as in many years of the past, both grants were won by students from the University of Toronto.

Rhodes Founder Of Awards

As one of the youngest of a large collection of sons, in a day when younger sons ranked among the more unfortunate members of society, Cecil Rhodes set off to seek his fortune by farming in Africa. Somehow the farming venture turned to mining — first in gold, then in diamonds. Before the end of his career, the dynamic imperialist and businessman had amassed one of the largest fortunes ever made by a single man.

After his death in 1902, the bulk of this wealth was used to establish a fund providing Oxford scholarships to promising young men of the Commonwealth. This bequest of Rhodes resulted from two convictions: that Oxford provided the best education of any university, and that the British Commonwealth was the greatest thing that had ever happened.

Rhodes saw the future of the world to depend on the concerted development of the Commonwealth, Germany, and the United States, and thus the number of scholarships was divided among these. At present, two amounting to $1700 annually for 2 years are allotted to most states and provinces in North America. This year both the grants for Ontario were awarded to Toronto students.

Many Engineers Are Cut Failed Pre-Christmas Exams.

The axe has fallen early this year for freshmen of the Engineering Faculty.

Forty-three of 660 students received notices during vacation period stating that, "due to their low standing on the Christmas term examinations," held this year for the first time, they were declared ineligible to write the final examinations in January and April. This is the first year such action has been taken.

Explaining the dropping of the 43 students, Dean R. R. McLaughlin said that the decision to hold such examinations was made last March by the Faculty Council. The reasoning behind the decision was their concern over the high failure rate at the end of first year, which in recent years has averaged 25 — 30%. "The Christmas examinations were expected to serve the double purpose of helping the student to know where he stands, and to indicate to those of extremely low standing that they were deriving little benefit from the course and should drop out as soon as possible," he said.

The Dean stated that those cut from the enrolment had averages of 34% or less, while those from 35—39% received sharp warning letters from the Faculty to improve their standing. In commenting upon the difficulty of the tests, he said that they were of average difficulty, comparable to the April examinations in this respect, and the subjects selected for examination were mainly those common to all courses. Some individual lecturers, however, had the feeling that the tests were somewhat easier than finals. It was also revealed that only 35% of the students passed all of the five examinations.

In spite of the fact that they have been cut, a few students are still attending classes in the hope that they can successfully appeal the ruling. The Dean indicated a willingness to look into any individual case on its own merits, but at the same time pointed out to all concerned that to pass the year in the final analysis, they would need a weighted average of 60% and would theoretically fail their year by obtaining, say, 55% in each subject. Speaking personally, he said, "We are trying to do the best thing for the student. It won't do a really low man much good to remain, and in any case he could be re-admitted next fall if he so desires."

McGill Seeks Government Aid —Scholarships

The campaign for increased government scholarships to university students has opened at McGill.

Students will be asked to sign a petition prepared by the local committee of the National Federation of Canadian University Students asking for immediate action by both Federal and Provincial governments to increase the number and value of scholarships open to Canadian students.

The petition will later be presented to the governments. Campaigns at other Universities have so far been confined to efforts by individual students. This is the first all-university action taken in the nation-wide campaign.

U. of T. Acquires -No Mystery Lab Expansion Room

The next move has been made by the University of Toronto in the University's continuing program of expansion. Last week, notices went out to thirty-odd householders in the block south of the Hospital For Sick Children giving notice that the University was expropriating their property.

The block is bounded by Elm Street, Chestnut Street, Centre Avenue, and Edward Street. The area contains many citizens of Italian ancestry, and the block selected by the U of T for its expansion is the site of Angelo's Tavern.

The site will be used for the building of a new teaching establishment for either the Medical or Dental Faculties. Earlier rumours that the area was to be used for a "Hush-Hush" Atom Lab were later denied by the University authorities. Officials have not yet revealed definite plans for the land, however.

The price that the University will have to pay and the date when construction of the new project will start are also not known. The cost will certainly run in the multi-million dollar class, however. The project must still receive the final approval of both provincial and Federal governments, a university official stated.

Other areas have also been recently expropriated, on St. George St. and Orde St. The University has had the right of expropriation since it was given it by Legislation in 1947.

Three Pics. Will Remain

(Continued from Page 1)

offensive paintings were being displayed at the Hart House art exhibit.

Hot on the trail of a good yarn, the Telegram dispatched two legmen over to the City Hall office of Mayor Phillips and the three made their reported "flying trip" to the University at about 3 p.m., Tuesday. The mayor was reported scandalized not only by the drawing of the two embracing nudes but a false title which someone had attributed to a second sketch — that of a reclining nude clutching the beak of a large rooster in her hand. The true, original title of the work was "La Manana" (The Morning). One other pen-drawing is also reported to have distressed his Worship.

Unable to contact Warden McCulley who had not then returned from a vacation-trip to Florida, the Mayor and his convey of reporters slipped back downtown.

Later in the afternoon when Warden McCulley arrived back in town, he was phoned by the mayor who requested the paintings be removed. The warden made no promises; he said he would look into it.

At about 5 p.m., the same afternoon, the mayor, reinforced by a whole retinue of newsmen this time — including some from The Toronto Star — returned to the exhibit where his Worship made an official pronouncement upon the art . . . unmindful that the two young artists — Graham Goughtry and Michael Snow — were standing a few feet away and keeping quite silent.

By 6 p.m., the papers were carrying the story front-page and later in the evening, the airways were bristling with the news. CBC used the story on its 11 o'clock newscast.

Next day, Warden McCulley called a special emergency session of the Hart House Art Committee. At 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, while the controversy still raged in the press and on the radio, the committee reached its decision: the painting which the Warden had removed during the height of the fuss would be replaced; the other two drawings of which the mayor disapproved would remain on the walls of the exhibit room.

The resolution said: "After careful consideration, the Art Committee of Hart House has decided that the present exhibition will remain as originally selected."

Advised on the decision yesterday, the Mayor told newsmen downtown that "I'm no censor. I only had made a suggestion. If the university officials have decided it should remain, that is their concern . . . as far as I'm concerned the incident is closed."

The mayor called the art a kind which "a young man or woman of impressionable age should not see."

The mayor, in answer to reporters' questions of whether he would take any official action as chairman of the city's Police Commission said "By this time the police should have full knowledge of what is going on and if they want to do something that is up to them."

Paper Wins Varsity's Second

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Acting Assistant Sports Editor
Acting Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Wojtech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Irene Myers
NIGHT EDITORS: Clyde Batten, Robert Brown, Carol Hoffman
Jane Edgar
ASSISTANT: Jack Ellis, Pat Moser
REPORTERS:

Golden Spurs

Staffmembers of The Varsity have been honored by the receipt of the Southam Trophy. This trophy symbolizes supremacy among English language university papers which publish twice weekly or more.

To a large extent this trophy is a recognition of many hours of work and self-sacrifice on the part of each and every individual who has given of his time and energy to help to make this paper worthy of the recognition it has received.

While we are naturally pleased to have the Southam Trophy with all that it implies, we intend that it shall be a tangible incentive to all staffmembers to continue to merit the commendation of the judges.

western propaganda slick, obvious: only russia gets intelligent asians

The western world is failing dismally in its efforts to reach the intelligent and educated Asian youth, said Mr. Charles Woodsworth, Editor of the Ottawa Citizen, last week. At the final banquet of the Canadian University Press Conference in Ottawa, Mr. Woodsworth said that the problem of reaching the Asian mind was not just a question of bringing in the odd guest but of bringing in students on a mass scale. The time that is left is running out," he said.

Mr. Woodsworth said that the West was not reaching the young and intellectually included Asians because of many reasons. High communication costs, he said, were an important factor in the West's general unawareness of the Asian situation. He added that usually only catastrophes were reported from Asia because it seemed so remote from the West.

C. Woodsworth

Because of the high illiteracy rate, people are using the wrong methods to reach the Asian mind, said Mr. Woodsworth. Western propaganda is crisp, slick, and obvious, designed for an illiterate mass, he said. Food for thought on an intelligent level is lacking from the Western civilizations, and this the Russians supply. He pointed out that the Asian population is so very great, that despite an illiteracy rate of about 99%, there are still many millions of educated Asians.

It is the intelligent and educated youth, the literate population, who are Asia's leaders for the future and who exert a tremendous influence even today, said Mr. Woodsworth. In failing to reach them, and in actually antagonizing them, we are driving Asia into the communist camp, he said. He pointed out that Hollywood movies, some showing ravening yellow hordes sweeping down on the white man, were common in Asian countries, with people queued up for blocks to see them. He said that a scarcity of good Western periodicals in the East was quite obvious, and added that Time was one of the few to be found there.

"I was glad to see the resolution passed by last year's CUP conference condemning the biased reporting of Time magazine," commented Mr. Woodsworth.

He questioned whether Canadian universities were doing enough to help the Asians establish democracy firmly. The Russians, he said, are bringing in students by the masses to Russia. There is little comparable efforts in Canada, he said, and no effort to get the Asians "the intellectual capital they need." He mentioned the different scholarships and plans in which Canada is involved in connection with Asian students, and commented on their inadequacy.

Thank You, Mr. Mayor

Last Tuesday a "private citizen" at the instigation of an unknown "someone", viewed the present exhibit in the Art Gallery of Hart House. He found some of the art "controversial" and certain pictures, "objectionable". He requested the chief official of Hart House to have the picture removed lest "impressionable" students should be affected by it.

However, the private citizen was the mayor of Canada's second largest city, and Hart House is a private club endowed by the Massey Foundation and operated by fees paid by members. The private citizen is not a member of this club, and was not invited to view the exhibit by a member of the club. He came uninvited, and departed, unwelcome. This private citizen had no more right to make a request for the removal of the picture than he has to enter the humblest home in Toronto and request them to change the wallpaper, or to ask the Granite Club to remove a painting.

Mayoral prerogative does not extend to this area of the university community. His opinion of the painting was not sought, but even if he felt compelled to mouth some fatuous remarks, twenty-eight years as a member of the council of this city should have taught him that the appropriate place would have been the privacy of the Warden's office. The fact that he carried on his investigation in the full glare of newspaper publicity leaves a very bad taste in the mouths of many citizens of Toronto who find a great deal to keep them busy without censoring or censoring private clubs to which they hold no title of membership.

But thank you, Mr. Mayor, for demonstrating conclusively to the people of Canada that the mayor of this country's second largest city has nothing better to do on his first afternoon in office than to make a pointless "inspection" of the art show a private club.

And congratulations, Mr. Mayor, for proving beyond a shadow of reasonable doubt that four-star, triple-plated, gold-spangled, 19th century, pompous bigotry is still firmly entrenched in Ontario.

We hope Mr. Mayor that the paper, which has called the tune for so long now, and which brought electoral victory, has not also taken to writing the harmony, for we think we can detect a few sour notes.

But do remember, sir, that even the hogs are naked in this town.

Manitoba New Exec

During the conference, the Manitoban was elected Executive Paper for the forthcoming year. This will entail such general organizational work as a financial report, and the agenda for next year's conference. The McMaster Silhouette was also nominated for the post and was defeated by a single vote.

All In Favour!

Last week's conference of the Canadian University Press in Ottawa is represented pictorially. On the far left is Charles Woodsworth, editor-in-chief of the Ottawa Citizen, who was guest speaker at the final banquet. Mr. Woodsworth also presented the Southam Trophy on behalf of H. D. Carpenter who was the chief judge but was unable to attend.

Directly above is a picture of the plenary session which met in the Banking and Commerce committee room of the Parliament Buildings. Of the three days two and a half were spent in plenary and the remaining time was devoted to the work of the four major committees on finance, editorial policy, trophies and wireservice.

Lower right is a study in serious thought. Delegates to the conference devoted a great deal of such thought and mental energy to improving the service of the C.U.P.

Upper right is a banquet. From left to right, winners of the 1954-55 C.U.P. competition: Gaspard, University of Ottawa; best French-language Western Gazette; language papers of The Varsity and papers publishing.

Featured top rounded by the was based.

and Cup At CUP Conference

"For excellence among papers of the Canadian University Press", there are the words inscribed on the front of the Southam trophy won this year in competition with six other English language Canadian University newspapers published at least twice a week.

This marks the second time the Varsity has won the trophy since it was first donated to the Canadian University Press by H. S. Southam.

Chief Judge in the competition for the trophy was H. D. Carpenter, editor-in-chief of the Montreal Gazette. He was assisted by Ralph Allen, editor of Maclean's magazine, and Douglas McFarlane, managing editor of the Toronto Telegram.

In his report, which was read at the conference by Charles Woodsworth, editor in chief of the Ottawa Citizen, Mr. Carpenter expressed extreme enthusiasm for the high calibre of writing which he found in the papers competing for the trophy. These parts include, besides The Varsity, the McGill Daily, The Manitoban, the University of Saskatchewan Sheaf, the University of Alberta Gateway, and the University of British Columbia Ubysey.

Mr. Carpenter expressed disappointment that so few papers used editorial cartoons to back up the policies. The chief judge gave voice to the opinion that University papers were "still bright" and that the writing showed evidence of "pains-taking pride". He felt that more attention could be given to format and suggested there was "room for improvement". Mr. Carpenter concluded his report by saying that his experience as a judge had been pleasantly interesting and enlightening, and had left him reassured about the future of journalism in Canada.

The three judges awarded the following points to the competing papers: The Varsity 4½, the Manitoban 4, the Ubysey 3½, McGill Daily 3, Sheaf 3.

In receiving the trophy Clyde Batten, Varsity Editor, expressed a deep feeling of personal pride but said the real credit went to the whole staff of the Varsity.

The Bracken Trophy for the best editorial writing went to Le Carabin student paper for Laval University in Quebec city. Judging was by G. V. Ferguson editor-in-chief of the Montreal Star.

The Jacques Bureau Trophy for the best English language university paper published less than twice per week went to the University of Western Ontario Gazette. The judges expressed some disappointment and said they felt the paper's in competition for the Bureau trophy were not a real indication of the best writing that is being done by university students. The Acadia University Athenaeum, the Carleton University Carleton and the Sir George Williams Georgian were mentioned as runners-up to the Gazette.

La Rotonde published by the French-speaking students at the University of Ottawa won Le Droit trophy for the best of the French Language university papers.

New Wire System Will Now Relay Redhot CUP News

One of the practical advances made at this year's CUP was the simplification of the wire service. In days gone by member papers depended on a complicated and impractical re-file system for "red-hot" news.

With Chuck Williams CUP editor of the Varsity and Lee Master, managing editor of the OAC Ontario, a small committee re-vamped the whole system in a workshop session at the CUP conference held in the Parliament buildings at Ottawa during the Christmas vacation.

Now only four member papers will be required to refile stories; they include the Varsity, the McGill Daily, the Brunswickian and the Manitoban.

Williams and Master are collaborating on a circular describing the new system. It will be mailed to member papers late in January. The Ontario will bear the expense and responsibility for publishing the circular.

Twenty-three Papers in CUP Have Exchange, Wire Service

The Canadian University Press is an organization of 23 university papers across Canada. Its membership stretches from the Muse in Newfoundland to the Ubysey in British Columbia, and it includes French and English-speaking papers, both dailies and bi-monthlies.

The CUP is an example of a loosely-knit though well-functioning organization for it has no permanent executive, no permanent home, and no group whose permanent job it is to look after CUP. There is a permanent treasurer in CUP, and each year at the annual national conference an honorary president, a host paper, and an executive paper are chosen.

The last two named are responsible for the arrangements of the next year's conference. As well, on each paper, there is a special editor in charge of CUP news.

CUP came into existence on New Year's day, 1938. It was organized by the National Federation of Canadian University Students as a nationwide news agency. For two years it stayed under the wing of NECUS, and then became an autonomous organization.

The purpose of CUP has been not only to exchange news and award trophies but also to create national consciousness in Canadian students and to build up student solidarity.

Members of CUP exchange papers with each other at least weekly by mail. However, if a big story breaks, it is telegraphed by relay all over Canada, through the CUP wire service. Thus nationwide coverage of news is provided for members papers of the CUP.

A Happy Lot!

ative, Laval Host

The host paper for next year's conference will be Laval's Carabin in Quebec. Duties of the host are to entertain supply accommodation for delegates from approximately fifteen papers. This is usually done through student fraternity houses, students who want to meet students from other universities, and the occasional boarding house.

Pictures Courtesy McMaster Silhouette

At the meeting of victors after the final contest, left to right are Maurice Trahan of the Bracken Trophy for the best editorial writing, editor of La Rotonde of the University of Ottawa, which won the trophy "Le Droit" as the best French language paper; Lois Battam, editor of the Varsity, which won the award as best English language paper; and Clyde Batten, editor of the Varsity, which won the award as best English language paper among the English-language papers published twice weekly or more.

In the center is the Southam Trophy surmounting the three contest issues on which the judging was based.

Ryersonian 'Too Professional' Denied Member Status In CUP

The Ryersonian, a tri-weekly newspaper published by the students of Ryerson Institute of Technology, was refused membership in CUP at the annual conference in Ottawa. This is the second time that paper has applied for membership and the second time it has been refused.

The main reason given rejecting the paper was that it is not a university paper. The constitution requires that all member papers be published by the students of a degree-granting institution.

Some delegates objected that the paper was too professional since it was put out by the students and staff of the journalism course alone, that it would be unfair competition for the CUP trophies. Others objected that the paper was staff-controlled and did not perform one of the most important functions of a students' newspaper—criticism of staff and student organizations.

Speaking in favor of admitting The Ryersonian, the delegate from The Ontario, the paper from The Ontario College of Agriculture, said that The Ryersonian was an excellent paper, and that most of the members of CUP (23) could learn a lot from it.

Chuck Williams, CUP editor of the Varsity moved that The Ryersonian be refused membership, but that the member papers of CUP should be encouraged to exchange papers with The Ryersonian. This motion was adopted.

The St. Mary's Journal, an affiliate member was not given a full membership because of their failure to participate fully in the activities of CUP, but it was continued as an affiliate member.

Conference Headquarters

This year's CUP conference was held in the Senate Bursary and Commerce Committee Room in the Main Block of the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa. Permission was obtained from the Government to use this and other Parliamentary facilities for the conference.

Concentration

ICE BLUES WIN RPI TOURNAMENT

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

It was very relieving to discover that Sports Illustrated, America's newest and probably finest sports magazine, started off the New Year on the right foot by retrieving the error made previously by the Associated Press. In the midst of the eleventh hour recaps on sport, and the thousands of selections of outstanding athletes, AP voted Willie Mays the top athlete for 1954 in — get this — the world.

SI came through as expected with a full-color front page effort of Dr. Roger Bannister in a preliminary heat at the British Empire Games, and named him their "Sportsman of the Year" for having cracked the four-minute mile last May with a 3:58.9 time at Oxford.

While we don't want to take anything away from Mays, who is undoubtedly a fine ball player, it is nevertheless disturbing to see our friends south of the border exhibiting their usual pride and self-esteem in the sports world. True to the form in which they declare the Cleveland Browns world's professional football champions, the New York Giants world's professional baseball champions, to say nothing of the countless other things that irritate us about these people, the Associated Press took a poll of 122 sportswriters and sportscasters across the country and arrived at the world-shaking conclusion that Willie Mays was tops for 1954. And in the same year that the sporting world's greatest goal was reached — the four-minute mile.

Ever since the summer of 1924, when a stocky little Scandinavian named Paavo Nurmi sliced the mile record to 4:10.4, just about every distance man in the world has taken a crack at the mark. Just ten years later Glen Cunningham put the U.S. in the picture with a mark of 4:06.7, and from then on such well-known names as Gunder Haegg, Fred Wilt, Gil Dodds, and Fred Dwyer took successive tries at the record, and then Haegg posted a mark of 4:01.4 in 1945 and the attempts died out. After all this effort, England's Roger Bannister finally cracks the four-minute mark, a feat regarded as nearly impossible as short a time as five or six years ago, and the Associated Press don't think this is the greatest thing that happened in the world of sport in 1954. We think it is, and as a matter of fact it's probably the greatest thing to happen to the sporting world in quite a few years.

Thus we were relieved to see that at least one of the institutions of our great next-door neighbours saw their way clear to doing justice to a fine competitor from another country.

From the Blue Room . . . It seems we're right back in the thick of it with the new year's first Athletic Night on tap for Saturday. The Basketball Blues are host to Alfred College, while the Baby Blues, cagemen tangle with Ryerson . . . Meanwhile the Hockey Blues, decked out in all-tournament bucks etc., will be in Canton, New York, for an exhibition tilt with St. Lawrence University . . . Bill Corcoran, former Blue basketball star and last year's captain, will be doing a series of weekly articles on the cage sport for this page beginning next Wednesday. So watch for it . . . Latest word from the Cave of the Green Og is that the outcome of this Saturday's game in Canton is not accurately predictable, but we'll eat Laval.

Hockey Blues Return To States Play St. Lawrence On Weekend

Jack Kennedy's Hockey Blues will be out for their seventh victory in an undefeated string that runs back to December 4 when they visit Canton, New York this weekend for an exhibition contest with the St. Lawrence University sextet.

The Americans are considered to be one of the top teams in the United States this season, and boast a record of six wins and two losses thus far this term. They have lost only to Michigan State and Harvard, and among their victories is a win over Yale, the team the Blues defeated 3-2 in the last game of RPI's invitation tournament.

The game will be played under American College rules, which don't permit body-checking outside the defending team's blue-line, as well as no red line, and a variety of other differences. The Blues should be well prepared for this encounter, having just completed three games under the American system. The Senators will be without team captain Red Stephen, who is still recovering from an operation undergone in December. However the clever defenceman should be ready for next week's league game with Laval here in Varsity Arena. Only other casualty is Sam Ashton, who broke his arm in November. Ashton is expected to return to the lineup by the end of January and is already skating in practice. Mert Wright has dropped down to Jack Wheel-drake's Intermediates but is subject to recall by the parent Blues. St. Lawrence defeated the Blues 3-0 last season in an exhibition game, and the Blues have gone winless on Canton ice for the last two years in a series that has been going on for five or six winters. Kennedy's crew will have to sharpen around the opposition's net to be ready for the invasion of the Red and Gold of Laval next Friday. They outshot the Yale University squad 54-5 but only won 3-2 in their last exhibition game.

Puckmen Win All Three Games Place Three on All-Star Team

The Hockey Blues returned from the holidays as champions of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute's fourth annual Invitation Hockey Tournament held in Troy, New York during the last weekend of the year. The Blues won all three games of a round-robin series with Yale, St. Francis Xavier University, and the host RPI club, and placed three men on the all-tournament team picked after the close of the meet.

Clare Fisher, who replaced Dave Reid at centre on the first line, received all-star mention, along with right-winger Paul Knox, and defenceman Dave Jackson. Frank Chiarelli of RPI, Gil Cyr of St. Francis, and George Scherer of Yale were the other members.

Toughest team to face the Blues was the big blue and white crew from Antigonish, N.S., whom the Varsitys dropped 3-1 in the meet's second game. The Blues had met RPI in the opener and won 3-1, but found clever opposition in the St. Francis club on New Year's Eve. Ernie Bodnar, Ken Lawson, and Paul Knox gave the Blues this second victory, after Fisher had scored twice the previous night along with Knox's lone tally.

The Blues edged Yale 3-2 in the final game on New Year's Day, while outshooting the Elis 54-5. Only the spectacular net-minding of Yale goalie Scherer who made the all-tournament team prevented the Blues from running up a high score. Akitt, Lawson, and Knox scored in this game, making Knox the all-tournament high-scorer with three goals. American College rules, used in all three contests, made it difficult for the two Canadian entries, although St. Francis finished second to the Blues.

Athletic Night Saturday Cagers Meeting Alfred

The Basketball Blues of Varsity are a powerful unit — on paper. Tomorrow, at the Hart House Athletic Night the Blues make their sixth start of the season, trying for their second victory. Opposing them are the Alfred College men, who, last year, broke the Varsity zone and scored an 18-point victory on their home floor in New York State. This time the Blues have had a longer warm-up period before the game and have had a chance to meet some top-notch opposition, so that the team, stronger this year than last, is likely to be a match for the visiting Alfred Saxons on the Hart House court.

In last year's match the Saxons were led by 6'7" centre Bob Corbin whose total of 31 points was almost enough to sink the Blues and teammate Bill Balle's 17 points added the rest, these two alone outscoring all the Blues by three points. Both men are back this year and are leading the Saxon attack tomorrow, while other veterans completing the lineup for Alfred are 6'1" forward Chet Martling, and guards Gino Greenberg and Len Rapkin. Something of a basketball midget, Rapkin stands a mere 5'4" and will be the smallest man on the floor.

The Blues recently completed a three game tour of New York, facing the Fairleigh-Dickinson, Iona and St. Francis teams, losing by rather definite scores to each. The heaviest defeat given the Blues was that handed out by St. Francis which club won by a 40-point edge. The others managed only 25 points. The Varsity team, however, played with a skeleton crew, Leo Madden suffering from an injured ankle, Art Binnington, the tallest man on the club, going with an injured back, and Marv Tile not making the trip at all. Tomorrow both Madden and Tile will go at top effectiveness, though Binnington is still out, his back being injured still and the doctors having advised him to take a rest. Johnny Braithwaite, who also did not make the New York trip — he had a chipped bone in his ankle — will be back tomorrow and adds great experience and playmaking skill to the lineup.

In the preliminary game the Varsity Baby Blues come up against the Ryerson Lambs. The Varsity Seconds have developed a fine starting team, with such freshmen as John Dacyshyn, Ed Rigby, and Jerry Wojdon, while veterans Ruben Richman and Norm Reynolds add savoir-faire to the team. Both old-timers have been up with the Blues at one time or another and both are expert shots.

Old pro Don Fawcett is proving quite spry for an elderly fellow with the Blues. Fawcett, who last year coached the Master Buccaneers, has hooped an average of 16 points a game through the first five matches of the season, holding a total of 80 points, while Peter Potter and Leo Madden come close behind with 59 and 42 respectively. Star George Stulac, whose total last year was 15 points a game through 21 contests has only 31 points in five games this year and is due to break loose. The preliminary opens at 7 p.m. and the feature at about 8:30.

Water Poloists Lose To McGill

Varsity's Water Polo Blues travelled to Montreal in the wake of the Senior hockey team last term for the second game in their home-and-home series with McGill for the Intercollegiate championship. Trailing by five goals on the round, the Blues defeated the Redmen 10-7 but lost out in the final total, giving McGill the Hershorn Trophy for the first time in several years.

Bernie Langer spotted eight of the Blue goals while Richards and Bibi Stipitec got the others. Going into the fourth quarter the Blues were in front 9-1 but confusion set in and McGill took advantage of this to pot five goals, enough to insure the title. Bullock was outstanding in the Varsity net.

Blues Top McGill 9-1; In 5-2 Win At Laval

In Montreal for two league games just before the close of last term, the Hockey Blues came home with double victories, swamping the McGill Redmen 9-1 on December 10, and slipping by Laval 5-2 on the 11. The wins showed the Varsity squad into undisputed possession of first place in the Intercollegiate standings, four points ahead of the second place University of Montreal Carabins.

The first game was a runaway effort played before a scanty crowd in the Montreal Forum. The Blues rocketed into a 6-0 first period lead, then settled back with two more in the second and an insurance goal by Dave Reid in the third. Peter Constable saved McGill from a shutout with a late last period goal with less than four minutes remaining.

Reid scored three times, once in each period, and collected an assist, and this, along with a goal against Laval the next night, was enough to put him in first place in the individual scoring race with seven points. Paul Knox notched two goals for the Blues, while Ross Woods, Lou Appleby, Don Cossar and Ken Lawson got the other counters.

In the second game, played on Saturday in Quebec City, the Blues managed to outthrust a big, rough Laval crew 5-2, after spending most of the day entrained between Montreal and Quebec. Laval took an early lead in the first period on a goal by Robert Lafreniere, just after Red Stephen had been taken to hospital following a boarding accident in the opening minutes.

The Blues came back strongly with three goals in the last ten minutes of the opening frame by Cossar, Lawson, and Fisher. Reid scored in the second period to give the Blues a 4-1 lead and Tolton banged home a long shot in the third to end the Blue scoring. Maurice Lagace added the last counter for the Red and Gold with five minutes left in the game.

While the Blues appeared to have the edge Laval served notice that they will be top contenders this season, and next week's game here in Toronto should be one of the best of the season.

art, music and drama

Temporary Amnesia

Memories Of Dentantics

A few top performers, one bright song, and consistently good sets combined to make Daffydil 1954 one of the better campus shows of the season.

The plot, which fades out after the first scene but is frequently recalled throughout, concerns the search by two medical students for a cure for baldness. After the first number the story ceased to interfere with the rest of the show. Although the show could not be termed well-built with respect to continuity, the individual numbers were competently staged.

Probably the most professional scene in the show was A Sunday at Home, a take-off on the faculty of the School of Medicine. Unfortunately, although the material was readily comprehensible to the layman, the force of the impersonations of staff members was lost. However, the applause of medical students indicated that the interpretation of personalities was successful. The set, depicting first a boat and then the interior of a whale.

The other good scene, Museum Mummery, came closest to professional musical comedy of anything seen this year. The song Anthropologists We had good lyrics and was well sung by the quartet. The rest of the music, despite the souped-up version of The Queen at the beginning, was adequate and sounded better with Harry Davidson's singing as St. Peter in the excellently staged Celestial Shakedown.

Saust and Video Visissitudes were less successful from an all-over point of view, but both had good ideas. Flesh Gordon, on the other hand, had several bright spots—the television sequences and the set—but the idea was just too weak to carry it through.

The lapse of time between the show and the review is regrettable but unfortunately The Varsity had stopped publication before Daffydil was staged.

Elinor Bernstein.

Torontonensis Reps.
Important Meeting
Monday
January 10
at 5.00 p.m.
TORONTONENSIS
OFFICE

"EXPORT"
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

for
FOR SCIENTISTS and ENGINEERS

with the

Defence Research Board

- JOIN A VITAL, GROWING RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION!
- CANADA'S DEFENCE RESEARCH PROGRAM OFFERS GRADUATES AT THE BACHELOR'S, MASTER'S, AND DOCTOR'S LEVEL INTERESTING FULL-TIME POSITIONS WITH AMPLE OPPORTUNITY FOR ADVANCEMENT.

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BOARD
WILL BE AT YOUR UNIVERSITY ON:

JANUARY 12, 13 & 14

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN DISCUSSING EMPLOYMENT WITH THEM, OBTAIN AN APPLICATION FORM FROM YOUR UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT OFFICER. WHEN COMPLETED, THE FORMS SHOULD BE RETURNED TO THE PLACEMENT OFFICER WHO WILL THEN ARRANGE AN INTERVIEW FOR YOU WITH OUR REPRESENTATIVES.

COME IN AND LET US TELL YOU ABOUT
CANADA'S DEFENCE RESEARCH PROGRAM

BADMINTON

Men interested in Intercollegiate Badminton please sign entry list in Athletic Office by Wednesday, January 12th.

UNIVERSITY STUDENTS MAY APPLY FOR MEMBERSHIP IN THE TORONTO SKI CLUB AT THE ATHLETIC OFFICE. SPECIAL FEE OF $5.00 FOR UNDERGRADUATES.

BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (Games in upper gym, Hart House)

Mon., Jan. 10	1:00—II Eng Bus vs U.C. Commerce—Gray 4:00—Trin Salts vs Vic Cannibals—Glass 5:00—IV Eng Bus vs IV Geol—Glass
Tues., Jan. 11	1:00—U.C. FHE vs II Geol—Iglar 4:00—St. M. Days/Hops vs Trin. Tigers—Iglar 6:30—Med. I Yr. vs II Chem. A—Giblon 7:30—Med. II Yr. vs II Aero—Giblon 8:30—II Civil vs U.C. Hutton Giblon
Wed., Jan. 12	1:00—III Eng Bus vs II Elec—Gray 4:00—Pre-Med I A vs Trin Salts—Zelitt 5:00—Med. III Yr. B vs II Metal—Zelitt 6:00—Med. IV Yr. B vs Dent. II Yr.—Sone 7:00—Pharm Pestles vs For IV Yr. Sone 8:00—I Chem. A vs St. M. House 63—Sone
Thurs., Jan. 13	1:00—II Chem. A vs St. M. Fisher—Kostiw 4:00—U.C. Commerce vs. Pre-Med II A—Glass 6:30—For. II Yr. vs. Pharm Mortars—Shpunarsky 7:30—U.C. Hutton vs. Dent. I Yr.—Shpunarsky
Fri., Jan. 14	1:00—Trin. Tigers vs. I Mech. A—Kostiw 4:00—St. M. House 63 vs. Vic M & P—Neiman 5:00—Law B vs Pharm Pestles—Neiman

BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (Games in Vic Gym — 1 block east on Charles St., just beyond the Vic Union and across from Burwash Hall)

Mon., Jan. 10	4:00—St. M. House 13 vs. Vic L'I Oakers—Caplan 5:00—I Mining vs U.C. Jeanneret Caplan 6:00—I Mech. B vs U.C. Omegas—Caplan
Tues., Jan. 11	4:00—St. M. House I vs. Vic Thugs—Grosfield 5:00—Pre-Med I C vs. I Elec B—Grosfield 6:00—Pre-Med I B vs. I Metal—Grosfield 7:00—I Mech. C vs. U.C. McCaul—Gryfe 8:00—St. M. House 10 vs. Vic Ryerson—Gryfe
Wed., Jan. 12	4:00—Vic Boobs vs. Trin Fox Trotters—Fitzgerald 5:00—Vic River Rats vs. I Chem. B—Fitzgerald 6:00—I Chem. C vs. I Mech. D—Fitzgerald
Thurs., Jan. 13	4:00—U.C. Tigers vs. St. M. House I—Moriarty 5:00—I Eng. Phys vs. Trin 99ers—Moriarty 6:00—U.C. Omegas vs. Pre-Med II B—Moriarty 7:00—Wyc B vs. Pharm Anions—Stroz 8:00—Pharm Cations vs. Knox Cadavers—Stroz
Fri., Jan. 14	4:00—Vic Globe Crawlers vs. Pre-Med I C—Helsel 5:00—I Civil vs. St. M. House 10—Helsel

TEAM MANAGERS PLEASE NOTE! — ELIGIBILITY CERTIFICATES FOR EACH TEAM MUST BE FILED IN INTRAMURAL OFFICE PRIOR TO FIRST GAME. BLANK FORMS ARE ATTACHED TO EACH GAME BOARD. YOU MAY FILL IN THE CERTIFICATE AT GAME TIME AND GIVE TO REFEREE.

SPORTS SCHEDULE — Week of January 10th

HOCKEY
Mon., Jan. 10	12:30—St. M. A vs Sr. SPS—Fisher, Reid 1:30—SPS IV vs SPS III—Dysart, Yakimoff
Tues., Jan. 11	1:30—Dent. B vs. Med. III—Naylor, MacLean 4:00—U.C. III vs Med. IV—Smith, Yakimoff
Wed., Jan. 12	1:30—St. Med. vs. St. U.C.—Smith, Riley
Fri., Jan. 14	12:30—St. M. C vs. Dent. C—Dysart, Topping 1:30—Jr. U.C. vs. Pre-Med—Reid, Fisher 5:00—Pharm vs. Aitch—Lotocki, Nadin
WATER POLO
Tues., Jan. 11	1:00—St. M. A vs Arch Wilson, Gryfe 5:00—Vic. I vs. Med. I—Rambusch, Giumac 1:00—Med. V vs. Vic. II—Wilson, Gryfe
Wed., Jan. 12	4:15—Trin. A vs. St. M. B—Wilson, Callahan
Thurs., Jan. 13	5:00—Wyc vs. For. A—Giumac, Rambusch 5:45—SPS I vs. Med. II—Rambusch, Gryfe
Fri., Jan. 14	1:00—Law vs. For. B—Rambusch, Giumac
BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE
Mon., Jan. 10	1:00—Jr. SPS vs. Jr. U.C.—Love, Matthews 4:00—Pre-Dent vs. Med. IV—Scott, Juriga
Tues., Jan. 11	1:00—Pre-Med vs. SPS III—Mandel, Sachar 6:30—Sr. Med. vs. Sr. SPS—Banks, Dolman 7:30—Dent. B vs. SPS IV—Banks, Dolman
Wed., Jan. 12	8:30—Pharm B vs. Wyc. A—Banks, Dolman 1:00—SPS IX vs. U.C. VI—Thompson, Turack 4:00—Law A vs. Sr. Vic—Thompson, Sukmanowski 5:00—Med. III vs. SPS V—Scott, Kalus 6:00—Pharm A vs. Arch A—Scott, Kalus 7:00—Dent. IV Yr. vs. SPS VI—Callahan, Stefanliw 8:00—Dent. I Yr. vs. SPS VII—Callahan, Stefanliw
Thurs., Jan. 13	1:00—Jr. Vic vs. Jr. SPS—Holt, Turack 6:30—U.C. III vs. Dent. B—Juriga, Sheppard 7:30—For. B vs. Pharm. B—Juriga, Sheppard
Fri., Jan. 14	1:00—St. M. A vs. Sr. Med—Mandel, Sachar 4:00—Sr. Vic vs. Trin A—Sheppard, Thomson

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO INDOOR TRACK MEETS, 1955

Mon. Jan. 10	— 50 yd.	Relay (4 x 1 lap)
Mon. Jan. 17	— 100 yd.	600 yd.
Mon. Jan. 24	— 880 yd.	Relay (2 x 1; 1 x 2; 1 x 3 lap)
Mon. Jan. 31	— 220 yd.	1,000 yd.
Mon. Feb. 7	— Shot Put	Relay (4 x 2 lap)
Mon. Feb. 14	— 440 yd.	Relay (4 x 6 lap)
Mon. Feb. 21	— 300 yd.	1 mile
Mon. Feb. 28	— High Jump & Standing Broad Jump	Relay (4 x 2 lap)
Mon. Mar. 7	— Distance medley relay	(2 x 3; 1 x 6; 1 x 12 lap)

ALL INDIVIDUAL EVENTS WILL BE RUN IN TWO CLASSES: (JR) CHAMPIONSHIPS & UNIVERSITY (SR) CHAMPIONSHIPS

Campus capers
call for Coke

No matter if the big act goes wrong, you can't beat a skating party on a winter night. Be sure there's Coke along... for refreshment.

DRINK
Coca-Cola
MADE IN CANADA

7¢
Including Federal Tax

"Coke" is a registered trademark

C-11

COCA-COLA LTD.

Need Four Hundred Fulltime Workers Civil Servants Go On Recruiting Tour

Recruiting teams for Federal Government positions, will be sent to Canadian Universities this spring, it was announced recently in Ottawa. Four hundred permanent employees from among this year's prospective graduates and 850 undergraduates for summer positions will be sought.

While graduates from all faculties will be sought for the permanent positions, the main demand will be for those in Engineering, Commerce, or Agricultural Science. There will be openings for approximately 180

Commerce graduates who will be used as income tax assessors. Job Training will be provided for these and other graduates before they assume their posts.

No comment was available as to whether this demand for income tax assessors was part of the Government's drive on income tax violators, which has recently received some comment in local papers.

The starting salaries for graduates will be from $280 to $310 a month, with some post-graduates receiving up to $400.

The summer jobs will be mainly for those students in forestry, surveying, geology, and agriculture.

Literary Issue

Entries for the annual Literary Issue of The Varsity must be in the hands of The Varsity staff before the 15th of February. The various categories for which entries are invited are: Essays, Short Stories, Poems, Cartoons, and short articles. Entries in any class may be either serious or humorous.

The Contest Judge will be announced at a later date. The prize-winning articles will be published in The Varsity in a special Literary Issue.

However, if the entries are of number or merit to justify publication, then no Literary Issue will be published.

25 YEARS AGO

The Varsity, Jan. 3, 1929: General Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa was awarded an honorary degree at the University of Toronto.

DANCE

to the band that's the walk of the campus

RON PINTO

and his orchestra

"THE CLUBHOUSE"

Eglinton Park

Admission

FREE

this week to first 30 U. of T.
students presenting this ad.

Indian Floods Disastrous Many Students Fall Victim

Recent Indian floods have claimed many student victims, says a recent bulletin of the Canadian World University Service. Nine colleges, including two large medical colleges, are in the affected areas which cover parts of Upper Assam, West Bengal, and Uttar Pradesh.

Over 17,000 square miles have been inundated in the North Western districts of India. The WUS Bulletin says that as many as 10,000 students may be affected by the floods and the emergency conditions that have resulted.

The World University Service has issued an appeal for aid to help these students.

TODAY

THURSDAY

8:30 p.m. — INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS' ORGANIZATION:
Social Evening — Women's Union, 79 St. George.

COMING-UP

SUNDAY

8:30 p.m. — CAMPUS CLUB: At
Bloor United Church, A. B.
Pigott speaks on "When I Consider The Heavens."

SALE brand new CRINOLINES

LONG AND SHORT . . . FROM 2 AND 4 DOLLARS

ALL SIZES

DROP IN AND SEE THEM

HELMAR

46 St. George St.

WA. 1-5978

GRADUATES AND UNDERGRADUATES 400 CAREER POSITIONS in the PUBLIC SERVICE OF CANADA

Representatives of the Civil Service Commission and of several Departments of Government will interview Graduates and Undergraduates who are interested in full time Government employment as follows:

Commencing at 9.00 a.m. and 2.00 p.m. on January 10th, at 5 Willcocks Street; on January 11th and 12th at 5 Willcocks Street and in room 404 in the Mechanical Building.

Opportunities exist in the following specializations:

ADMINISTRATION
ACCOUNTING & AUDITING
ACTUARIAL SCIENCE
AGRICULTURAL SCIENCE
ARCHITECTURE
BACTERIOLOGY
BIOLOGY
CHEMISTRY
ENGINEERING (all types)

COMMERCE
ECONOMICS
FINANCE
FORESTRY
GEOLOGY
INTERNATIONAL TRADE
PERSONNEL
SOCIAL WORK
STATISTICS
SURVEYING

See your Faculty, College, or Department Bulletin Board for location of your application forms and appointment sheet.

Summer positions: Application forms should be obtained from the men's and women's SAC employment offices and sent directly to the Civil Service Commission as shown in the information sheets at those offices.

EATON'S

News...

in colours and styles
in waistcoats

Eaton's has come up with a new, sophisticated collection of men's fancy vests as modern as the latest jet plane... lustrous rayons both plain and brocaded, Viyella, (wool and cotton) tartans, printed cotton corduroys and many other distinctive types including tattersalls, to harmonize with your sport tweeds or conservative worsteds!

Each 6.95 to 14.95

Phone TR. 5111 Men's Clothing

Eaton's Main Store - Second Floor - (Dept. 229)

Similar lines at Eaton's College Street, at Bay Street

THE T. EATON CO. LIMITED

CREST THEATRE

TORONTO'S ONLY
REPERTORY
THEATRE

MT. PLEASANT
ROAD
HUDSON
9-9427

Murray and Donald Davis Limited present

UNTIL JANUARY 15TH

Frances Hyland and Murray Davis
— in —

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST

Nightly at 8.30 — $3.00, $2.25, $1.75, $1.00

Matinees: Wednesday 2.30 - Saturday 5.30—$2.50, $1.50, 75c

SPECIAL STUDENT RATE . . . 75c

On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of 2nd Weeks of Runs

FAREWELL TRAVEL SERVICE

Personally Escorted Student Tours of Europe

Specially Prepared for College Students and Recent Graduates
by TREASURE TOURS

Tours Departing Quebec June 15th and 29th

53 Days All Inclusive Rate — $995

Visiting 7 Countries

Call, write or telephone for complimentary folder.

68 YONGE ST. (At King)

EM. 3-5191

HH PAINTINGS HANG ON

—VSP By Ed Hoshkiw

"Objectionable" Paintings Draw Crowds to HH Gallery

Epstein Awards To UC Students

Winners of the awards made each year by the Norma Epstein Foundation for the best entries in drama, short story, novel and poetry, have been announced. Mr. Epstein gave $30,000 several years ago in honor of his daughter, the interest to be used to encourage creative writing in University College.

The awards are: to David Taylor, IV Eng. Lang. & Lit, $250 for the best play; to Vello Sermat, II Psych, $125 for the draft of a novel and $50 for a play; to John Gray, Occasional student, $50 for a short story; Peter Martin, III Philos. & Hist, $25 for a short story; and to Olga Skey, II Moderns and Charlotte Schragar, IV Eng. $50 for poetry.

Work submitted by students must not have been published previously, but after the contest students retain the copyright.

Several previous winners have become quite well-known. James Rainie, whose winning story The Box Social was reprinted in several magazines, is now teaching creative writing at the University of Manitoba.

Graham Coughtry, the artist who drew the now-famous "embracing nudes" commended Warden McCulley for his firm stand against Toronto's Mayor Phillips' claims of obscenity in his paintings. Speaking to Varsity reporters at the Sunday afternoon public exhibit, Coughtry said, "the affair caused me some sleepless nights, but the Warden felt that the paintings were Hart House's own business. It seems to be turning out all right, though."

He referred to the crowds who came to the exhibit Sunday — Warden McCulley estimated three or four hundred — at an rate a substantial increase over usual Sundays. But as Assistant to the warden Garth MacDowell pointed out, there were very few, if any, curiosity seekers. "The type of patronage is essentially the same as artists and those really interested in art."

The controversy over the pictures began last week when the Mayor made two whirlwind visits to the gallery, accompanied by a battery of reporters and photographers from the downtown newspapers. He referred to three pictures as "objectionable" and "something I would not want my children to see". Both Michael Snow and Coughtry, the two young artists giving the display, knew nothing of the affair until they read of it in the newspapers. "The Star phoned me for an interview and that was the first I knew of it," said Snow.

All last week the exhibit was filled with curiosity seekers; "there was scarcely standing room," commented Warden Joseph McCulley.

Concerning the publicity given the display, both artists felt that it was in general a beneficial thing, but Snow commented, "I'd rather people came here to look at art — good or bad — than to peer at an oddity."

Neither artist felt that the paintings were in any way obscene. Coughtry observed that "the obscenity comes in the interpretation, not in the drawing itself. I

(Continued on Page 3)

Empire Will Stand or Fall at H H: Cambridge Men to Defend Its Name

A declining British Empire may be allowed to fall during Tuesday night's debate in Hart House. The occasion will be the "Cambridge debate", in which two men from Cambridge, J. D. Waite and J. D. G. Shaw will defend the British Empire in the face of colonial Weltanschauung.

Two of the university's top debaters, John Roberts, IV UC and Bill Morris, I Emmanuel, have been chosen to officiate at the final obsequies of that grand old institution.

John Roberts is convinced "that even Humpty-Dumpty couldn't put it back together again", and is afraid lest some lesser breed of mortals should essay the task.

Older Boys' Parliament

Jim Evans, II Pre-Meds, was the official representative from the U of T to the Older Boys Parliament. This Parliament consists of delegates from all over Ontario, who represent clubs in their constituencies and the Universities, and was held during the Christmas Holidays.

The clubs are sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches. The time is taken up with Bible study, discussions, speeches, and legislative acts.

"The purpose of the parliament is, to sum it up, to make better Christian citizens," said Evans.

There will be a get-together of ex-members of the parliament this Thursday at 8:30 in the Vic Union.

Bill Morris of Emanuel replied in typical theological manner, "The British Empire is obviously the phenotype of a genotype which no longer exists. What this has to do with angels dancing on pins is anybody's guess. However, since ontogeny recapitulates phylogeny, we may be sure that the formation of astral rays in the second phase is only temporary and we may confidently await a period when the whole is sunken in a mire of self-destruction."

Naturally the men from Cambridge can be counted on to turn in a fine demonstration of forensic style since they have been sent on this trans-Atlantic trip. Toronto's representatives have also done some travelling in their careers as debaters. John Roberts went to McGill last year for the debating trials there and Bill Morris accompanied David Gauthier on a tour of the Northeastern United States. This year Roberts was chosen as a member of the ill-fated debating team in trials held earlier in the year.

The Cambridgians will be arriving in Toronto on Tuesday afternoon. Before the debate they will go to the television studios where they will be interviewed for "Tabloid". At 8 p.m. the debate will commence in Hart House.

Elmer Sopha, the grand old man of Hart House debating will preside over the proceedings as Speaker of the House.

A special feature of this debate will be the presence of women. As is the custom the visit of an international team is declared a special occasion by the Board of Stewards of Hart House. Unfortunately for the fairer sex they will be restricted to one section of the house and the right to speak will be denied them.

At the conclusion of the debates all the speakers on the paper and those who have spoken from the floor in the course of the open debate, will be invited to participate in a bull-session in the committee's common room.

U of T Host for CCUF Elect National Leaders

The National Leaders of the Co-Operative Commonwealth University Federation were elected this year from the University of Toronto, the host club to the CCUF's eighth Annual Convention.

The executive is elected each year from one of the nine universities across Canada who were represented at the Convention on December 29th to 31st. The president for 1955 is Allan Borovoy (II Law), vice-president Doug Browne (III UC) and the secretary Bob Fenn (II UC). Eastern and Western Regional vice-presidents were elected from McGill and UBC.

David Lewis, in his address to the Convention, urged interest in all political issue on the university campuses as a means for realizing one of the university student's first duties — that of examining the basic premises of his society. The Convention passed a resolution attacking the political insularity and political prohibitions of many universities.

The Ontario Leader of the CCF, Donald McDonald spoke to the CCUF on the Colombo Plan, calling the Canadian government's program a "two-bit effort" and comparing Canada's generosity unfavourably with the United States.

On the subject of German rearmament, Bob Fenn, the National Secretary said the Convention felt that the Canadian Parliament was "rushing" ratification of the Treaty of Paris. A three month delay was favored by the CCUF so that further negotiations could be carried out with the Soviet Union, Fenn said.

Among other resolutions discussed was the NFCUS campaign for scholarships. The Convention advocated more support for this project.

Editors Request Rights Campaign

At the conference of the Canadian University Press in Ottawa a motion was passed requesting the National Federation of Canadian University Students to undertake a campaign for student rights and responsible, autonomous student government.

This motion arose, out of the work of the editorial commission in which certain general editorial policies for member papers are decided. In reply to the speech of Peter Martin of Toronto, who represented NFCUS at the conference, delegates drafted this resolution.

Mr. Martin stressed that NFCUS felt that criticism of NFCUS in member papers of CUP had been too negative in the past. He called on delegates to present to NFCUS positive suggestions for programs which could be implemented by the national federation.

In addition to this decision the editorial commission passed a resolution requesting members of student councils contemplating motions of censure against editors to consult with the editors before taking such a step.

An attempt to have the CUP conference each year turn out a paper to be distributed across the country immediately after the conference, was defeated because, it was said, practical considerations made it impossible to carry out effectively.

student news from far and near

What's Going On?

Alberta Drinking Survey

Edmonton, (CUP) — Seventy three percent of the students on the Alberta University campus drink alcoholic beverages to varying degrees, a Gateway survey conducted recently indicated.

The survey, based on a cross-section of 100 students, shows that while only 69 of every 100 male students drink, 81 percent of the co-eds do.

But some of these co-eds admit they shouldn't: only 64 percent of the girls approve of co-ed drinking, whereas 78 percent of the males see nothing wrong with girls drinking if they want to.

Out of every 100 girls, 64 think that drinking contributes to a lower moral standard, 28 percent say it doesn't, and eight percent don't know.

Only 22 percent of the males think drinking contributes to a lowering of moral standards. Of the rest, 71 percent say it doesn't, and seven percent don't know.

While the percentage of male drinkers is less, those who do drink generally are heavier drinkers than girls. Sixty-four percent of the males go on "occasional binges", 19 percent drink often but sparingly, and 15 percent drink very sparingly.

Only two percent of the women who drink are consistent drinkers; 42 percent drink often but sparingly, 33 percent drink very rarely and four percent go on occasional binges.

Only nine percent of the men who drink started after they were 21. The other 91 percent—many not yet of legal drinking age when interviewed—started drinking at 20, and most of them in their later teens. Only 73 percent of the co-eds who drink started before they were 21.

Of those polled, 27 percent of the men think fraternities contribute to excessive drinking, and 56 percent say they don't. However, of those who said fraternities contribute to excess drinking,

Frats Hit By U.S. Court

U.S. Supreme Court upheld the right of 22 University of New York schools to order fraternities and sororities to sever connections with their national headquarters.

The order was made to bring about elimination of policies which "bar students on account of race, color, religion, creed, national origin, or similar artificial criterion."

From the Ubysses

Co-ed Writes Home

West Virginia: A Memphis State College coed has devised a new method of writing home to her parents — she uses checks. June Wilson just jots down a note on the back of every check she writes on her home town bank account, telling her father and mother how she is doing in college.

Mrs. Wilson, June's mother, is a bookkeeper in the Bank of Ripley, Tenn., and receives the cancelled checks as they come in. Mrs. Wilson then relays the messages on to her husband.

The number of "letters" the parents receive depend of course on the number of checks June writes. Probably she is one of the few college girls whose parents do not ask her to write more often.

Montreal Security Council

There will be a meeting of the United Nations Club tonight to discuss plans for attending the Model Security Council to be held in Montreal on Feb. 11 and 12. Although the number of Toronto delegates to the Council has been limited, all interested students will be welcome at the meeting, said Elizabeth Scantlebury.

Invitations to the Model Security Council have already been sent to all universities and colleges east of Lake Superior. It is the first such council to be held in Montreal, but the response indicates it could become an annual institution. Solid support has been received from Montreal businessmen, who have offered to sponsor the project in part at least, said Miss Scantlebury.

The meeting is at 154 Davisville, two stops from the Davisville subway station. For information phone Elizabeth Scantlebury, MO 4254.

Democracy's Press

"The Press Democracy's Friend or Foe" will be the topic of a panel discussion in Strachan Hall on Wednesday, Jan. 19. Special panelist will be J. B. McGeachie, who has appeared on many radio panels.

Panelists for Trinity College will be Dr. P. A. Child and Dr. F. B. Beare; for the Trinity College Literary Institute, Martin Hunter and Douglas Hill.

The joint discussion is a special event in the Centenary Year of the Literary Institute. An open discussion will follow. All alumni and friends are welcome to this discussion.

TRINITY COLLEGE DRAMATIC SOCIETY
presents

Arthur Miller's

THE CRUCIBLE

Wed., Jan. 12

TO

Sat., Jan. 15

8 P.M.

at

HART HOUSE
THEATRE

TICKETS $1.00

Theatre Box Office

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

LOST

Ranson men's pocket lighter at Hart House New Year's Eve Dance. Phone Dave Hyde, WA 1-3060.

ROOM TO LET

North Toronto, convenient to subway, large room, twin beds, students or teachers preferred. Board optional. HU. 9-7829.

OPPORTUNITY

An opportunity for a willing student. A cheap warm quiet room in exchange for housework help on Saturdays. WA. 1-881.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE

Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3923.

FOR RENT

Single or double room close to subway. Parking space. HU. 8-3202.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1843 anytime.

PLEASE

Would the person who borrowed contact camera and equipment from a room in Trinity College shortly before Christmas holidays. Return coloured slides that were with the camera, as they can be of no use to anyone but myself. A parcel labelled J. Bonnycastle could be left without question in Porter's Lodge, Trinity College, anytime.

FOR RENT

Free room, bath and board for female student in return for occasional baby sitting and a few very light duties. HU. 9-6424 evenings between 7.30 and 9 p.m.

ROOM & BOARD

Young girl — room and board in exchange for light housekeeping duties. HU. 8-5461 after 7 p.m.

The Carnegie Record Collection will open the New Year on Thursday, Jan. 13, 1955 at 4.30 p.m. in the Staff Lounge of the Mech. Building with a presentation of

Beethoven's Missa Solemnis

(Toscanini Conducting)

All Welcome

— REFRESHMENTS —

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

announces

Second Engineering Society Lecture

"THE COMMON DAY"

By DR. SAMUEL R. LAYCOCK, retired Dean of

University of Saskatchewan

Convocation Hall

Wednesday, January 12

8.15 p.m.

ADMISSION FREE

Your TORONTONENSIS Year Book

See One

Read One

Order One

◀ TODAY ▶

THE NEW PLAY SOCIETY

presents at the

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE

2 WEEKS BEG. MON. EVG., JAN. 10

EVGS. AT 8:20. MATS. WED. and SAT. AT 2:20

MAJOR MOORE'S MUSICAL VERSION OF

STEPHEN

LEACOCK'S

"SUNSHINE TOWN"

"FAST MOVING AND HILARIOUS WITH BRIGHT TUNES!"

—N.Y. Variety's review of Radio Presentation

SEATS ON SALE: 10 A.M. TO 10 P.M. (No Phone Orders).

EVGS.: $1.25, $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50. SAT. MATS.: $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50

WEDNESDAY MATINEES: $1, $1.50, $2

STUDENT MATINEE PRICES $1.00

(on presentation of A.T.L. Card)

EVERYONE

on the

Blue & White Society

Important Meeting and Picture

Tuesday, January 11 — 5.00 p.m.

S.A.C. OFFICE

Jewish Students Campaign For Funds For Development, Relief In Israel

The State of Israel will receive a shot in the arm from a fund raising campaign launched to-day among Jewish students in the University. This campaign on the campus is part of a single Jewish Community-wide drive — "a campaign for campaigns". In addition to Israel, the drive will offer an opportunity for student participation in offering aid to the needs of Jewish communities at home and abroad.

In Toronto, the newly-built Jewish Home for the Aged, a pride to the whole community, will be supported by the United Jewish Appeal as well as the Jewish Public Library, the YMHA and the B'nai B'rith Youth organization, groups in which many Jewish students have spent happy hours, receive financial aid. The U.J.A. maintains the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society which receives Jewish immigrants to Canada and guides them in their settlement. Funds sent to Israel in 1955 will improve agriculture by establishing new settlements and increasing equipment, thus effecting, eventually Israel's economic self-sufficiency. Industrially, money raised will facilitate prospecting of minerals in the Negev, for processing nitrates and phosphates in the Dead Sea and for continuing oil-drilling operations in the Haifa Harbour. Israel will benefit scientifically from funds sent to the Weizman Institute of Science, the Canadian Friends of the University and the Hebrew University in Jerusalem. The newly-arrived immigrants, the aged and the needy will be relieved.

In North America, Kindergartens, schools and colleges will be serviced. Examples are the Workmen's Circle Schools, the Hebrew Day Schools, and the Hebrew Theological Seminary of America.

Chairman of the University Division of the UJA are Harold Margles and David Perlmutter, both in third year U.C. Canvassers will solicit contributions towards the $3,000 objective of Varsity, Ryerson Institute of Technology, Ontario College of Education, Toronto Teacher's College, and the Ontario College of Education, Toronto Teacher's College, and the Ontario College of Art.

The Campaign will run from to-day, January 10 to January 24.

make poster for brigadoon win record, tam, surprise

"Brigadoon", which goes on in Hart House on February 14-19, is the subject of a Poster contest announced the publicity committee of the show last night. An original cast recording given by the Promenade Music Shop, a tartan plaid tam and scarf set donated by The Rob Roy Shop, and a "surprise" by Eaton's will be the prizes.

Every member of the University sits not connected with the show is invited to enter. How well the poster captures the particular spirit of this musical will be the judges' main criterion. Other deciding factors will be neatness, originality of design, and excellence of art work. Entries may be in any medium, but should be a minimum of one foot by a foot and one half. They may be done on poster paper or any stiff surface. Entries should be labelled on the back with the contestant's name, year, and faculty and turned into the Lit Office at UC by Friday, January 21.

These posters will be exhibited so that student art critics, after having seen the show, can judge the decision of the judges. For these people, the committee also announces that tickets to "Brigadoon" are now on sale at the SAC office at a special student rate.

Retraction

Due to a regrettable case of temporary amnesia (which may be left over from the CUP conference, who knows) Daffydil 1954, was reviewed under the headline, Memories of Dentanties. Dentanties is not Daffydil. Daffydil is Daffydil.

Initial Frustration

By HUGH McKELLAR

Really, I think it's time that somebody revolted against the custom of entering people on class lists and other official documents around this university as a last name and a pair of initials.

Now, I don't deny that such a system may be convenient for the office workers involved. No doubt it is easier to type "Smith, M.A." and "Jones, Miss V. R." than "Smith, Methuselah" and "Jones, Verschoyle". Also, it looks more businesslike.

But I think that the secretarial staff ought to be willing to make some concessions in this matter in favour of us poor students, who are faced with the embarrassing situation of not being able to call the people who sit next to us in class by name.

This state of affairs wasn't quite so bad two months ago, but by this time of year it is awful. Let me illustrate. Three times a week in French class I sit next to a swell kid, with whom I have had some stimulating conversations; and I think it would be nice if when he came into the room I could say, "Hi, George." But I have no idea what his first name is. He told me at the beginning of the term, yes, but about 200 other people told me their first names, and I have them all mixed up. And I hate to spoil our beautiful friendship by innocently inquiring, "What's your name?"

I have tried to find out by consulting class lists. There he appears as "Chase, P. I." Fine: I can call him either "Mr. Chase", which would make him think I was making fun of him, or "P.I.", which would make him think I was crazy. I have asked other people in the class what his name is; they can tell me that his home is in Vancouver, that his hobbies are skiing and chess, that his second cousin is a fourth-string football player at Yale, that he likes Rice Krispies for breakfast, and a whole range of other interesting information. But his name? Well, they heard, and they've forgotten. Maybe it's Peter, maybe Patrick, maybe Parthenon.

I have tried desperately to peek inside the covers of his textbooks, in hopes of finding his name on the fly-leaf; and it's there, too, but his handwriting is so vile I can't decipher it. So there we are. And I hate to call him "Chase"; that reminds me of the servants in English novels.

Accordingly I am convinced that the greatest happiness of the greatest number could be secured if students' Christian names were used officially instead of initials. For how shall I be able to keep in touch with this friend after we graduate in the spring? I can't write a letter to him, for I can't very well start off "Dear P.I." In fact, there seems to be only one stratagem left; I shall send him a Christmas card, with my own name signed in full; this may prompt him to send me one in return with his name on it, and our friendship will be unimpaired.

On second thought, though — what if he thinks I wouldn't recognize his given name, and signs his card "P. I. Chase"?

Maple Leaf Concerts

present

Calliope Shenos

Greek-American Contralto

and

Beauna Somerville

Canadian Violinist

EATON AUDITORIUM, SATURDAY, JAN. 15th, 8:30 p.m.

Prices 2.00, 1.50, 1.00

Students Half Price

Box Office — TR. 1144

BOX OFFICE OPENS THURSDAY

FEDERICO GARCIA LORCA'S

The House of Bernarda Alba

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
.75c

Directed by
ROBERT GILL

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH A.T.L.
CARD

SAT., JAN. 22nd to SAT., JAN. 29th - at 8.30

Hart House Theatre's 33rd All-Varsity Production

WUS Seminar at Caledon 'Education.. For What?'

Objectionable -

(Continued from page 1)

certainly didn't do this (pointing to the controversial work) to be obscene."

Coughtry went on: "To me, there is nothing 'dirty' in this painting. I think that the human body is a beautiful thing, not ugly or degrading."

There was little evidence of anyone else but art-lovers at the display, but one couple went along from one painting to another. At each, the woman asked in a hushed voice: "Is this it? And the man would wearily reply, "No, dear." Warden McCulley noted that "probably a large number of students found out for the first time that there was an Art Gallery in Hart House." Which shows that all's well that ends well.

There was scarcely a person who, passing the 'embracing nudes' — that someone, not the artist, entitled 'Fantasy' — could keep from smiling. Comments such as "I don't see what's obscene about that" were heard frequently in a half-hour spent in the exhibit room.

"Education — For What?" is the subject of the year's World University Service Seminar Weekend at Caledon Hills Farm on January 14-16. The committee has decided that to assure the widest possible scope in discussion the student group will be composed equally of Canadian and Overseas students.

The director of the Weekend is Carmen Guild, Graduate-Secretary of Hart House. The three group leaders, who will direct discussion of the three sub-topics, Miss M. Prang of the History Department, Mr. R. Robinson, Professor of Mathematics, and Mr. D. Savan, Professor of Philosophy.

The precise sub-topics have not yet been definitely decided upon, but will probably be on such matters as "Education With An End in View"; "Education with No Purpose"; "Education Beyond Time"; and "Pseudo-Intellectualism."

Members of any faculty connected with the University are urged by the committee to attend the Weekend. Application forms are available now at the SAC and FROS office, 45 St. George St. The deadline for applications will be Monday at 5:00 p.m.

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK

MONDAY, 10TH JANUARY:

8:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m. — TICKETS! SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT COMING UP. The Hart House Orchestra under the direction of Boyd Neel. Members may pick up their free tickets at the Hall Porter's Desk.

10:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION: by Michael Snow and Graham Coughtry.

1:30 p.m. - 2:00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).

5:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL — 1st tenors (Debates Ante Room).

7:30 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. — TABLE TENNIS (Debates Room).

Running shoes required.

7:30 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range)

TUESDAY, 11TH JANUARY:

1:15 p.m. - 2:00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room) "Murder in the Cathedral" — part 4 by T. S. Eliot.

7:15 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. — GLEE CLUB FULL REHEARSAL (Music Room).

7:30 p.m. — ARCHERY: Canadian Indoor Mail Match Commences. (Rifle Range). To Continue for eight weeks.

7:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. — ART CLASS: (Art Gallery).

8:00 p.m. — DEBATES: "The British Empire is Declining: Let it Fall." Opposed by two Undergraduate debaters from Cambridge, England. This is a special occasion when women of the University of Toronto are invited to attend.

WEDNESDAY, 12TH JANUARY:

1:25 p.m. - 2:00 p.m. — MID DAY RECITAL (East Common Room) Presented by members of the Music Committee. Here is a programme you will never forget — no matter how hard you try!

4:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. — ART GALLERY: Open to women of the University of Toronto.

5:00 p.m. — QUARTET CONTEST MEETING: (East Common Room). Informal meeting for those interested in participating in the annual Hart House Quartet Contest.

5:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL — 2nd Bass. (Debates Ante Room).

5:00 p.m. - 6:00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Beautiful mediaeval Art. Open to men and women (through Reading Room).

5:00 p.m. — ART TALK on present show by Snow and Coughtry.

7:15 p.m. - 10:30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. Prizes.

7:30 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range).

THURSDAY, 13TH JANUARY:

8:00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION (Chapel).

5:15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD ROOM INSTRUCTION CLASS.

7:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m. — ART CLASS.

7:30 p.m. - 10:30 p.m. — ARCHERY (Rifle Range).

FRIDAY, 14TH JANUARY:

1:30 p.m. - 2:00 p.m. — SING SONG (E.C.R.)

SATURDAY, 15TH JANUARY:

Caledon Hills Farm. World University Service Weekend.

SUNDAY, 16TH JANUARY:

9:00 p.m. — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT: The Hart House Orchestra under direction of Boyd Neel.

NOTES:

1. Sing? Sing? The Annual Hart House Quartet Contest is a whale of a lot of fun. Drop over to the East Common Room shortly after 5:00 p.m. Wednesday, 12th. Get the information you need, or phone WA. 3-1302.
2. Camera Club: Entry forms now available from Hall Porter for the 33rd Annual Photographic Exhibition. Closing Date, 11th February, 6:00 p.m.

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Acting Assistant Sports Editor
Acting Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengeiley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Vojtech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE:
NIGHT EDITORS:
ASSISTANT:
REPORTERS:

Irene Myers
Clyde Batten, Robert Brown,
Carol Hoffman
Jane Edgar
Jack Ellis, Pat Moser

Willing Dupes

One aspect of the recent disturbance over the Mayor's ill-advised sortie into Hart House has received little comment. That aspect is the art work itself.

While we suppose that this should legitimately fall to the Art Music and Drama department we should like to register our plaintive protest. Should this protest take on a faintly wheedling air we hope that everyone will be kindly considerate, overflowing with an extra dose of Christmas "good-guyism", and forgive us this extravagance.

But really, we are becoming almost convinced that our campaign is in vain and that we are doomed to an everlasting procession of mishapen female forms without grace, beauty or appeal.

We are sorry that the Art Committee of Hart House has aligned themselves with those who choose to perpetuate the emaciated, flat-chested, spavined-backed female form presently being foisted upon us from all directions.

Since we are bound to have nudes, let us have the strong, sensual nudes of Rubens, whose flesh tones and substantial contours could lend an air of permanence to the fleeting world of modern art.

Give us the strong athleticism of Hermes in the Quad, the full-chested etherealism of the chapel's angels or the sad-eyed yearning of the reading room's negress; but spare us please, the formless ciphers which disguise the fundamental animality of human kind.

We are willing dupes in all kinds of deceits practiced in the name of art. We accept without question many artificialities of stage and written page. However, our rebels instinct forces itself to the fore and our hackles rise when the eternal beauty of a Venus is reduced to the fleshless shadow of the Christmas turkey.

SAC Finances

Last June the Board of Governors of this University saw fit to reject the request of the Students' Administrative Council for a one dollar increase in their annual student levy. This request was made on behalf of the students of this University by their elected representatives, and as such deserved more consideration than it evidently received. To the best of our knowledge, no explanation of their action was offered by the Board of Governors.

This session a special committee of the SAC has been appointed to go into the complete question of the SAC's revenues. Besides considering the matter of a student fee raise, this committee will also examine the problem posed by that considerable body of students on this campus who, although making use of many SAC services, pay no SAC fees.

It seems grossly unfair that one portion of the student body should have to pay the complete cost of such services as the Housing Service, the Employment service, The Varsity, and the Symphony Orchestra which all students use. These activities are run by the SAC for the benefit of all students, and as such all students should share in their support.

It has been evident now for some time that the present basis of the SAC's finances is unsatisfactory. Toronto may even be forced to drop out of NFCUS at the end of this month because of inability to raise the required NFCUS fees.

Unless an answer to the entire problem of the SAC's revenues is found, a deterioration in Council services may be inevitable as rising costs and a declining or stationary number of contributing students impose on the SAC's budget.

It is to be hoped that the brief which the SAC committee is to present to the Board of Governors will convince these gentlemen that the SAC's finances should be placed on a sound and university-wide basis.

—RDB

present role of India

By J. G. KEOGH

There is a view current today in many parts of North America, and a thoroughly subjective one, that since the policy of the United States is undoubtedly in the right, it is entirely up to every other nation to ally themselves with her. Naturally implied is the burying of "petty qualms" about her potential political and economic imperialism, and setting up a diametrical opposition to Russia.

The country so singularly urged at the present moment is India. And yet, in India's consideration, this is all too remote and unrealistic a proposition to have much weight. It is more of a salve to North American ideals of righteousness and democratic leadership and defence — than of a genuine concern for India herself. We have cause enough to feel safe in our good intent, but certainly there is no worse way to convince other countries of the same than by dogmatically asserting there is one recourse only; that if they disregard it, they will eventually be proven wrong.

To the contrary, we must primarily show India that it is in her interest to participate in an alliance which will slough off once for all the obfuscating skin of neutrality which has lingered since 1947. And for the nonce, it would seem this is impossible.

Consider: India has had enough taste of British imperialism over a period of 300 years to have an understandable distaste for it, or any hint of it, from any country only eight years after the attainment of her independence. Her fervent nationalism was acquired at a time when the entire East showed signs of upheaval; a nationalism more or less curbed from onlookers by partial economic dependence upon the West and the pacifistic policies of Gandhi.

But India is also unique in another respect. The Thirteen Colonies were as pitifully weak in the world as they were new when they came of age. They could not afford entanglements destroying their neutrality, even with the French, especially since they were so distant from their allies' succour. Yet, here is India achieving her independence, and already a world power... but an insignificant one and in a dangerous position because three-quarters of the globe has divided itself into two massive armed camps; and they antithetically preach "preparedness," "massive retaliation," and "peaceful co-existence and co-survival." While the attitude of Russia is of the species "Pardon, but thou standest where I am about to shoot."

May India, with all propriety of principle and conscience, take sides definitely and immediately with one or the other? Russia has continued maneuvering for India only so long as the latter has played mugwump. Russia senses imminent conflict even now, decentralizing the Kremlin. She plays cat and mouse with the economic situation, and so long as there remains a powerful neutral, she will refrain from all-out war attempting to woo her to her camp.

India, just as the England of a century ago, maintains a grip on the balance of power in Asia — in the world — though relatively weak compared to the two gigantic camps of the West and East. Mr. Nehru has already mentioned the prospect of India and her few independent neighbours joining loosely to form a third power. But that power is assuredly a passive power, a neutral power. She would not throw away all her hopes by abandoning her own interests for the West's.

Indeed, perhaps India's judicious diplomatic juggling has succeeded so far in forestalling the beckoning catclysm. Her co-alliance might very well convince Russia to hazard a throw... and the material odds are well with her... at World War III.

J. G. Keogh
Eng. Lang. & Lit. I

our readers write:

Pouty Children

The Editor,
The Varsity.

I was very interested in your article "C.C.F. Out if Elections On". However I was far more interested in their meeting, which I attended by invitation of a C.C.F. member.

Their decisions, motivated by the feeling of frustration which they experience at every election, both on and off the campus, in themselves explain their failure to obtain the confidence of the people. Their decisions showed pettiness and childishness. Their whole discussion and the various reasons advanced for and against the Model Parliament showed an astonishing intellectual immaturity.

The accepted method of forming democratic government, i.e., free elections, does not suit them. They do not like the means of democracy. The Parliamentary system is "not to our advantage". So like pouty children, tired of a toy, they angrily cast it aside and demand another. But what other system do they want? The result of abolition of free elections is well known and inevitable. For these young people, engrossed in the pursuit of political theory (fine in itself) seem to have lost sight of the political fact that in casting aside the means of democracy, they destroy democracy itself.

John Le Clair—II St. Mikes
Sec'y. U. of T. Prog. Cons. Club.

Sportsmen

Sports Editor,
The Varsity.

I just want you to know how proud the Toronto Alumni of the North East U.S. are of our hockey team. At the recent tournament in Troy, N.Y. they not only won all their games but displayed throughout clean play and sportsmanship worthy of the highest traditions of the game. Our university can hope for no finer ambassadors of international good-will.

J. Grant Irving,
Meds '32,
Hartford, Conn.

Sam's Philosophy Column

the other night joe the board of pubs threw a party
naturally i was there and as i sat listening to the same old songs
listening to the same old jokes and drinking the same stale old drinks
this boheme character a real gone lad slapped me on the back and says
well sam howre you doing hovering i answers just hovering
how about you
well you know sam he says ive been thinking for instance look at those seniors over there
just look at them

they talk about politics and nfcus their heads are just full of mature and logical nonsense their talk is dull and their ideas worn out
but we you and i we are the new regime
we are the new song from the old pianola
and pretty soon they shall dance to us
the seniors shall pass into obscurity
but our midnight oil shall throw forth glorious light we are the rising generation of the bop
yes sire the new regime and he took off his glasses and peered at me solemnly listen bud i says
you'd better get off that biscuit
or before you know it you'll be up before mccarthy they say theres one in every crowd.

sam
Reprinted from McMaster Silhouette.

The Realization

—cartoon by Jas. Weller.

Witch Hunter of Salem

Judy Cunningham as Elizabeth Proctor, wife of John Proctor who defies the fraud and superstition of the witch trials, in the Trinity production of THE CRUCIBLE. The play will be presented in Hart House, Wednesday to Saturday of this week.

—VSP by Henri Pratt

Nudes Revued

Coughtry and Snow

Michael Snow and Graham Coughtry are two young Canadian artists who have just recently completed their formal training, travelled briefly in Europe, and are now working in Toronto. A much publicized exhibit of their work is currently in the Hart House Gallery and the Print Room.

The group of paintings that Snow has exhibited confuse me. The pictures are made with different techniques and they do not show a consistent viewpoint which would help me comprehend individual pictures. However, some of the pieces I do like very much. I found most pleasing the non-objective Wall Panels one and five. The colours used, in one earth colours, and in five blues and greens, are pleasing to me and I like the surface textures; these elements are well composed into a satisfying whole. For me, looking at these pictures is analogous to handling a small piece of sculpture as the eskimos do; delighting in form and texture and the consequent rhythms instead of looking at it to determine the accuracy of representation. The large canvases by Snow are bright and gaily coloured but still unconvincing. At the Jazzband Ball in particular has a strong atmosphere developed by colour which is contradicted by the static feeling of the composition.

In his drawings Snow uses a rough, broken brush line or nervous, jagged pen line to depict mostly female figures in situations of strongly sexual connotation. His drawing style is unrelated to his painting styles. The drawings do not have for me any beauty of style or subject.

Six drawings by Coughtry are displayed. The two portrait heads are drawn with delicacy and restraint which make them very appealing; Fantasy is a quite innocuous picture of an embrace, the figures have a rubbery feeling that makes the drawing quite unconvincing.

Graham Coughtry's paintings are, for me, the most successful work in the exhibition. He composes female figures and broad areas of colour contrasted with careful drawing of lines to create effectively a mood or atmosphere. In End of Summer the painting glows with the warm light of a summer afternoon filtered by an ochre blind and the delicate tracery of a translucent curtain. A nude female lies on a purple and red spread which is a jarring incongruity. It is painted in a heavy glossy surface instead of the unobtrusive matt finish of the figure and the room; it seems to separate the figure from her surroundings. Standing Figure is a quiet study in luminous green, relieved by soft red, of a young girl.

I found this exhibition most interesting, and I hope that there will be in the future shows of work by other young Canadians; if possible, I would again like to see drawings displayed concurrently with paintings.

You could sail a schooner with the combined breath of the people who last week made remarks starting "I'm no art critic, but . . .". Some of these non-art critics even turned up writing in the daily papers. The words are undoubtedly intended to suggest supreme humility, but I doubt if they really represent anything more than intellectual and emotional laziness. Art critics are useful only if their readers make the same effort to understand the art that the critics make. Professional criticism provides a means of improving the general appreciation of art, not a substitute for it. Granted that the critic should work with a superior knowledge of art and a more experienced eye than most of his readers will have; nevertheless, if his readers are sincere they will make the same kind of effort that he makes. The people I've heard saying "I'm no art critic" seem to feel that this preface excuses them from any effort at all. If Mayor Phillips, Frank Tumpane, Wessely Hicks and the anonymous ones feel that their criticisms are worth making at all will they please have the courage to make them without excuses. Perhaps the rest of us will listen and learn.

Michael McMordie

art, music and drama

CRUMPETS TO WITCH-HUNTS TRINITY PLAYS CRUCIBLE

Set against the background of the Salem witch trials in early New England, Arthur Miller has built a play on the larger theme of human panic and terror and the tragedy of the man who tried to battle against his society's superstitions. The Crucible which has had a successful run in Broadway and is currently playing in London, will be presented by the Trinity College Dramatic Society in Hart House from Wednesday to Saturday of this week.

Miller says of the play in a preface: "The Salem tragedy is developed from a paradox; it is a paradox in whose grip we still live and there is no prospect yet that we will discover its resolution. Simply it is this: for good purposes, even high purposes, the people of Salem developed a theocracy, a combination of state and religious power, whose function was to keep the community together, and to prevent any kind of disunity that might open it to destruction by material or ideological enemies. The witch-hunt was a perverse manifestation of the panic which set in among all classes when the balance began to turn toward greater individual freedom."

Playing the role of John Proctor, the man who defies the superstitious tyranny of the Salem authorities and battles for the rights of the individual is John Saxton, who has had some acting experience in England and Germany in University groups. The spiteful, petty Parris who leads the initial attack against the supposed witches will be played by Rex Southgate, seen earlier this year in Robert Gill's production of The Apple Cart. Proctor's virtuous but cold and unforgiving wife will be played by Judith Cunningham, the deputy governor who enforces the majesty of the law even when it conflicts with individual liberty will be played by Martin Hunter, and the girl who is willing to murder anyone who stands in the way of her own desires by Judith Teague.

Vic's "Noah"

Complex Simplicity

Andre Obey's Noah is not only an interesting example of the revolt against naturalism as a theatrical device and its replacement by agreed theatricality; it is also a successful one, for the device whereby it conceals and makes palatable its sentimentality and human interest does not become, as in, for instance, Thornton Wilder's Our Town, more sentimental than what is expressing.

Noah tells exactly the story which one would expect, but in a rhythmic dreamy tone, suggestive of the images in a child's mind, a sort of complex simplicity. Director Herbert Whittaker gave the production a visual interest and motion which added enormously to the merry-go-round sense of being caught up in a land of Faraway where anything can happen and generally does. Several effects build up this cloudy and delightful world. Brilliant costumes and lighting, like the solid simplicity of the set, suggest rather than explain, create a physical impression of surroundings rather than an intellectual one.

Again, the naive jollity and peevishness of Noah and his friends, symbols joined to the forces of sun and storm, catch the audience in an experience which is the more fascinating for being unconscious, John Douglas especially, in his portrayal of Noah, was strong and suggestive, his moods more sudden than subtle, his nature open and sympathetic. Ham, on the other hand, as the serpent in this toyland paradise, was played by Terry Sheils with a twisted secrecy and sharpness—the scepticism of the outside world when it encounters the world of dreams. The general effect was rather that of a psychiatrist interpreting a fairy tale. Lastly, and I think, most effectively, very clever use of the chorus provided the ritual repetition of folk songs and children's games, the expressive movement of gesture translated by its rhythmic dreaminess into symbolism and, far from least important, a bond between audience and actors established by the fact that the chorus is not only spectator but performer.

Nancy Donnell

Critic In The Dark

For More AM&D See Page 8

Plains, Pagans and Pupils

Of the many new films available in Toronto over the holidays, I managed to see three, one excellent, one interesting, if less memorable, and one appalling. Fleeing into the Odeon Toronto to sit down before the threat of a sudden nose-bleed became a reality, I discovered myself becoming utterly absorbed in Gregory Peck's latest film, one of the two he made in Britain during his recent tour of the world studios. The Purple Plain was, as a matter of fact, shot in Ceylon, and purports to take place in Burma. It is an excellent dramatization of the H. E. Bates novel about a Canadian in the R.A.F. whose interest in life disappears when his bride is killed in a London air raid. Posted to Burma, he is the despair of the Base doctor, and does his best to get himself shot up, until he finds peace in the wistful smile of a somewhat reserved Burmese doll, played by a young lady with the improbable name of Win Min Than. Most of The Purple Plain is devoted to his subsequent crash-up in the dry plains of Burma and his resolute attempt to beat death and return to . . . etc. etc. etc.

Unpromising as these ingredients sound, the director, whose name I cannot for the life of me recall, has concocted a fine and absorbing film from them. This is chiefly by reason of his superb use of the Ceylonese landscape—sere, brooding, and distant. Although the performances in The Purple Plain are all well above average, it is the purple plain itself whose ominous presence infuses the film with a hot, brilliant languor.

Sign of the Pagan is one of those pesky historical dramas which make me wish I had put those somnolent hours of History 1b to better use. For example, was Attila the Hun really killed on the morning of his invasion of Rome by a fractious wife? Did Jeff Chandler really become a Roman emperor and he but the son of a sandal-maker? Alas, I don't know, and cannot, therefore, vouch for the authenticity of this episodic delineation of the career of the terrible hun. The cinémascope presensation, however, has a certain style, most often, perhaps, when there are hordes of mongols sweeping across the screen, and there is Jack Palance's excellent version of a towering, soft-voiced Attila. Unfortunately, Attila's weakness for the fair sex is not sufficiently emphasized to account reasonably for his demise, but wot the hell.

Over The Belles of St. Trinian's let us draw a discreet veil. After the first amusing reel or two, I found this attempted representation of Ronald Searle's classic cartoons of schoolgirl life, and all the mayhem that implies, repellent in the extreme. This is because I count myself among the most rabid of Searle fans, and because I do not count myself among the devotees of the art of Alister Sim. Quite the contrary. The only funny thing about the whole abominable creation is George Cole's riotous Flash Harry, spiv and reformed bootboy, who, as far as I can recall, doesn't appear in Searle's cartoons at all.

Germaine Clinton.

CAGE BLUES ARE CAGED BY ALFRED

Speaking OF SPORT

Pete Potter Game's Top Scorer But Varsity Wilts In Late Stages

By WALT SCHMIDA

By JOHN WILSON

Here it is the second week in January, with the Intercollegiate hockey season almost a third over, and they're still talking football. While the Big Four and the WIFU are waging a player war with the National Football League to fill half the winter headlines, Robert Hall, the former Director of Athletics at Yale University comes out in last week's issue of Sports Illustrated charging three of the oldest institutions in American College football with ruining the athletic programs of the other U.S. Colleges by their eagerness to monopolize the pot of gold offered by television.

Hall has charged that the Big Ten, the Pacific Coast Conference, and Notre Dame are trying to remove the limitations set down by the NCAA for TV control in 1952. These were, firstly that a team could appear on TV only once in the season, and secondly that there was to be at least one telecast a season from each of the eight regional divisions of the NCAA. From the article we discover a most interesting fact — the reason why the NCAA set these limitations on the telecasting of College games.

It appears that in 1950, when the opportunity was first recognized for the televising of football games, the NCAA requested a statistical report on the effect of TV to attendance from the University of Chicago's National Opinion Research Center. "The NORC's" first report, submitted in 1951, stunned everyone," says Sports Illustrated. "It shows that unlimited football telecasting had a 40% adverse effect on attendance. And its later report showed that even under the NCAA's controlled program the gate was still off 27%."

This amazing trend obviously could have far-reaching effects on Universities in the United States, most of whom depend on football attendance for the support of the rest of their athletic programs. And yet there appears to be very little we can do about it. The public is fast becoming more discriminating in the spending of their dollars; they won't pay to see a second-rate attraction in the flesh when they can have a telecast of something bigger right in their living-rooms. Hollywood found the same trouble, and their answer was 3-D and wide screen with stereophonic sound, but even that is falling off.

We wonder if the same difficulty was met on a smaller scale when radio took to broadcasting athletic events. Likely it did, but the problems seems to have waned, and now there is a much bigger one in sight, and one that is indescribably more difficult to solve. The Big Ten and the others cannot be condemned for their efforts to lift the NCAA ruling; they've got to get the money somehow and the going price for a TV game last seasons was $141,666.66, a fairly tidy sum.

Since London Life has elected not to continue sponsoring our own Intercollegiate football games, perhaps College football in Canada is in danger of a really serious drop in attendance although this was not the case this last season. It is highly unlikely that another sponsor will be found for the Intercollegiate games, and that means there will be no way to see or hear the action next fall except by going to the game. We wonder what will happen.

Rebounding Edge Pays Dividends As Baby Blues Topple Ryerson

By CHUCK DOLMAN

In the preliminary game of Saturday night's athletic proceedings, the Varsity Seconds came up with their first win of the young basketball season, when they defeated the Ryerson Tech Rams, 72-63. The Seconds had previously lost two exhibition encounters while Ryerson, with this defeat, now has a record of two wins and two losses.

The game was a fast and furious affair with Varsity gaining its 9-point edge through superior rebounding and a better shooting average from outside. Varsity's John Dacysyn, Mike Baida and Harold Rotman consistently out-jumped their taller opponents, Bruce Paterson and Ed McLay, 6' 5" and 6' 4", respectively, who did most of the rebounding for Ryerson.

The afore-mentioned Mr. Mc-

Lay was by far the outstanding performer of the game as the big Ryerson centre scored 27 points, a rarity on the Hart House floor. Many of his points resulted from a spectacular driving layup shot not often performed well by taller men such as McLay. Another top performance was given by Ryerson's Don Peters, who supplemented his 15-point production with a fine defensive display.

Coach John McManus of the Seconds substituted his twelve players quite freely, offsetting the chance for a 20-point total for some of his men. John Dacysyn again led the Varsity attack with 16 points, due mainly to his effectiveness under the Ryerson basket. Mike Baida dis-

The usual overflow crowd Saturday night watched a powerful Alfred College squad hand Varsity's best basketball team in years a 70-53 lacing. The Saxons deservd their margin of victory, mainly be cause of the two serious weaknesses of the Blue club, lack of height and poor inside shooting.

Coach Masterson started Vic Kurdyak and Al Vaichulis, his two tall men, at forward and centre in an attempt to control the boards, and they did a good job for the first 15 minutes while Varsity ran up a 6 point lead. Unfortunately they seemed a bit nervous and were having trouble with their shooting. But for this, the Blues could have had a healthy lead at halftime. Pete Potter and Don Fawcett were the scoring leaders in the first twenty with 6 and 10 points respectively. They were very effective in breaking up the Alfred attack, Potter setting up fawcett for several alert fast-breaking baskets. The Collegians started a comeback, led by the rebounding and accurate one handed set-shot of John McNamara to tie the score 24-24 at the half.

From then on, the trio of centre Bob Corbin and forwards McNamara and Bill Balle, ranging from 6'7" to 6'4" took over both backboards for Alfred. Corbin was deadly with a right-handed hook and used his height for several tip-in baskets. Balle threw some nice one-handers from the corner. Pete Potter sank three set-shots from 30 feet out to keep the Blues close for a while but Alfred just had too much height. George Stulac made several appearances in the second half but didn't approach his form of last season. The Blues tried a man-to-man defence for a while but it backfired when diminutive Potter had to check towering McNamara. Fiery Johnny Braithwaite, a real scrapper and a smooth playmaker, provided the thrill of the game, driving around three defensive men, leaving the floor ten feet from the basket and dropping in an underhand lay-up.

For the losers, Potter scored 18 points, Fawcett 15 and Braithwaite 7. These three men make this a tremendously colourful team, exciting to watch even when they lose. They could do a lot to revive basketball in Toronto, given a big enough gym, in playing area and seating capacity. Bill Corcoran's excellent commentary also made the game more interesting for the fans.

For Alfred, the trio of Corbin, McNamara and Balle hooped 17, 17 and 14 points respectively, while guard George Wright had 13.

Asides . . . Steve Oneschuk got a well deserved ovation when he made his first appearance near the end of the game.

Trinity A's Top SPS 3-2 Goodwin, de Pencier Shine

By JOHN VOJTECH

Trinity A's defeated Jr. SPS 3-2 in an intramural hockey game played last Friday at Varsity Arena. DePencier scored two goals for the Trinity team while McTaggart added another counter. For SPS Surtel and Worthy scored singletons for a losing cause.

It was a rough free-skating game with Trinity taking a one goal lead early in the first period through McTaggart's goal. Surtel tied it up but DePencier put Trinity out front again as he notched the first of his two goals. Worthy tied it up again and that's the way the first period ended in 2-2 deadlock.

DePencier scored again in the second period and this counter proved to be the winner.

Trinity's Lovering was given a penalty shot when, as he broke in all alone on the SPS goalie, Topping of SPS tripped him. However, he missed the shot. The work of both goaltenders was outstanding as Goodwin of Trinity and Germain of SPS put on a dazzling display of thwarting opposing forwards.

In the second game the SPS VI team trounced the Trinity C team by the score of 8-0. Three SPS players scored two goals each. Mann, who scored the first goal of the game scored against a goaltenderless Trinity team. Trinity was forced to put a forward in the nets until a goaltender was made available.

Mann, Close and Gore scored two goals for the SPS team while Taylor and Shugg each added singletons.

This year, as was the case last year, the beginning of each game is delayed until a team can ice its players. This means that the games are delayed sufficiently to cause the games to go beyond their allotted time.

This happened in the first Trinity A-Jr. SPS game. The arena bell sounded the end of the allotted period for the game with twenty seconds of playing time still to go in the game. Since Trinity had a man in the penalty box at the time conceivably the other team could have scored. This would have deadlocked the teams. Of course, Trinity may have been able to add to their total in the same manner. But it would have provoked a little more interest in the way the game ended. But as I've said this is all speculation. Twenty seconds aren't much to ask for but they help the losing team a lot. It would be better if each game were played to its conclusion.

Sportswriters

Will the following members of the sports staff please appear in the office today at 1:15: Wilf Caplan, Dave Wong, Tom Williams.

There are opening on the sports staff for at least two basketball writers with a minimum of work involved. Anybody who is interested is welcome to appear in the office in the basement of the SAC building any day between 1:00 and 2:00.

Gals on Ice in Arena

The most entertaining and amusing interfaculty sport, both from the standpoint of the spectator and participant got underway last Wednesday when the hockey starlets from Meds and UC met at the Varsity hockey cushion.

With only three league games having been played it is rather difficult to say who will win Varsity's Stanley Cup; however, it is fairly certain that the perennial rivals PHE and St. Hilda's will be battling it out for the ice honours. Last year's winners, PHE, still have a strong team as many of last year's stars are still around. On the other hand, the Trinity women are not as fortunate because many of their sparks like Scotty Mathews have graduated; nevertheless, the Saints are not to be underestimated as many of the newcomers show great promise.

Friday afternoon saw these two rival hockey centres meeting, but this time it was a game between both their second teams and the score of 7-0 for the Saints is hardly indicative of what the Sr. Saints might do to the Sr. PHE white team is a much superior team in every respect in comparison to its Junior squad.

St. Hilda's skated all over PHE both defensively and offensively from the start of the first period until the bell went to end the game. With the forward lines of Trinity monopolizing the puck through out the first period, the PHE goalie was continually in hot water and she did an excellent job in stopping as much of the rubber as she did. The period ended with the score 3-0 in favour of St. Hilda's with Kay Sladen, Ann Jeffrey and Flo Middleton getting the tallies.

In the second and third periods, the Saints continued their attack and managed to keep the puck for the most part near the PHE nets. Rhona Curtis and Marg Munnock each scored a goal and Tibu Eaton was the "rocket" with two. In comparison to the PHE goalie, Nancy Banks, in the nets for the Trinity machine, had only three shots to handle. No wonder the Saints won!

Hockey Blues Tie 3-3 On St. Lawrence Ice

Varsity's Hockey Blues extended their unbeaten streak to seven games last Saturday night as they fought to a 3-3 tie with St. Lawrence University in Canton, New York. It was almost a repeat of the game with Yale two weeks ago, when the Blues had about ten times as many shots on goal as the Elis but only won 3-2. This time Jack Kennedy's crew outshot St. Lawrence 46-17 but came away with only a draw.

Big factor in preserving the tie for the St. Lawrence club was goaltender Bill Sloan, who single-handedly kept the Blues in check in the third period when the pressure was strongest. With minutes remaining in the game, Dave Reid snagged a loose puck and skated in on Sloan alone only to be thwarted by the clever netminder who fell on the puck in the crease.

The Blues had a goal disallowed midway in the third frame when a hard shot by Paul Knox deflected off Reid into the St. Lawrence cage. Evidently, under American College rules this play is illegal, although it often happens on our own ice.

St. Lawrence took an early lead in the first period but Woods got it back for the Blues at 13:32 and then Lawson finished off a nice play just a minute later to make it 2-1 for Toronto. St. Lawrence held a 3-2 first period lead after Zifcak and McFarlane scored in the late minutes of the frame.

Dave Reid got the equalizer at 18:24 of the second as the big first line of Knox, Reid, and Fisher paid off again. The Blues held the superior edge by far in the last period, and St. Lawrence got the puck out of their own end about six times in all fighting the Blue pressure. The American team very nearly had the winning goal with twenty seconds remaining in the game, but the score was nullified by an offside whistle and the 5,000 odd fans in Appleton Arena just about brought the roof down.

St. Lawrence are by far the best opposition the Blues have had to date, although St. Francis Xavier gave them a rough time in the RPI tournament. A rough, fast-skating team, they gave the Blues plenty of practice for Laval this Friday night.

Draw Three

First Period
1—St. Lawrence-Fournier (Lundberg, O'Brien)	7:28
2—Varsity-Woods (Moreau)	13:32
3—Varsity-Lawson (Adams, Bodnar)	14:21
4—St. Lawrence-Zifcak (McFarlane, Smith)	16:26
5—St. Lawrence-McFarlane (Smith)	17:23
Penalties — Jackson (highstick-ing), McFarlane (highstick-ing)
Second Period
6—Varsity-Reid (Knox, Fisher)	18:24
Penalties — Appleby (holding), Torrey (holding).
Third Period
No Scoring.
Penalties — Adams (interference).

Fred Foot New Blue Coach As Track Season Resumes

The University of Toronto indoor track season gets under way tonight with the first of the interfaculty competitions. Following the custom of former years, there will be two events contested every Monday night.

Competition is divided into two groups, senior and junior. Everyone in the university is eligible for the senior events. The junior events are limited to those who have never competed on an inter-collegiate track team and have never won any senior inter-faculty events.

Tonight's events will be the senior and junior 50 yards and a relay. The relay will be made up of four 160 yard laps. Teams for this event may be entered for any of the colleges or faculties.

Practise sessions are being held every week-night between five and six at the Hart House track. Everyone who is interested is invited to attend.

Fred Foot, coach of the East York Track club has taken over the position of assistant coach, replacing Don McEwen. McEwen, who produced two Inter-collegiate championship track teams during his two years of coaching at Toronto, has been transferred to Windsor by the Shell Oil Co., where he has received the position of assistant sales Manager for the district.

Mr. Foot is the current president of the Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and has had wide spread experience in coaching. One of the more spectacular runners produced by the East York track club in recent years, is Joe Forman, the eighteen year old flash who won the 440 yard dash in the Canadian trials for the B.E.G. in the sensational time of 4.5 seconds, in the pouring rain. Another product of Foot's coaching is Varsity's own Dick Harding, four-event winner in the C.I.A.U. this year. Dick began his track career with the East York club while still in High school.

Head Coach Hal Brown has outlined an extensive indoor schedule for the team which includes trips to Detroit and Ann Arbor, as well as many Canadian meets. Teams will be chosen to represent the University, according to the results of the weekly interfaculty meets.

Aquatic Blues Dunked

Varsity's swimming Blues were no match for the Buffalo State Teachers' College team in the aquatic portion of Saturday's athletic night at Hart House. The visitors had just a 44-40 edge in overall points but won seven of 10 events.

Veteran Bibi Slipitec was in on two of Varsity's wins. He won his specialty, the 150-yard individual medley race, in a minute and 37.4 seconds, then joined team mates Hill, McGinnes and Wallbank in winning the 400-yard sprint relay.

The other U. of T. winner was Doug McCulloch whose time of five minutes and 45 seconds was best in the 440-yard freestyle event.

Wallbank and Hill collected seconds for the Blues, as well, in helping Varsity to come close in points, if not in firsts. Wallbank was just behind Buffalo's Lavell, who took the 50-yard freestyle in a slow 25.9 seconds. Lavell also won the 100-yard freestyle in 57.5 seconds, with Hill second.

Women's Basketball Try-outs

Want to play Intercollegiate Basketball. Come and try out. O.C.E. every Tues. — 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. every Thurs. — 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. There are openings on both the Senior and Intermediate teams. Out of town games have been arranged for both teams before the Senior tournament.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	12:30—St. M. vs. Sr. SPS — Fisher, Reid
	1:30—SPS IV vs SPS III — Dysart, Yakimoff
BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE
	1:00—Jr. SPS vs. Jr. U.C. — Love, Matthews
	4:00—Pre-Dent vs. Med. IV — Scott, Juriga
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE — HART HOUSE
	1:00—II Eng. Bus vs. U.C. Commerce — Gray
	4:00—Trin. Salts vs. Vic. Cannibals — Glass
	5:00—IV Eng. Bus vs. IV Geol. — Glass
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE — VIC GYM
	4:00—St. M. House 13 vs. Vic. L'll Oakers — Caplan
	5:00—I Mining vs. U.C. Jeanneret — Caplan
	6:00—I Mech. B vs. U.C. Omegas — Caplan
INDOOR TRACK
	5:00—50 yds., Relay (4 x 1 lap)
	Competitors please sign lists in Intramural office.

TODAY

MONDAY
5:15 p.m.—CANTERBURY CLUB: Discussion Group on Nicene Creed, at Chaplain's Office, Hart House.
7:00 p.m.—VCU ASSEMBLY: Alumni Hall, Vic.
8:00 p.m.—UKRANIAN STUDENTS' CLUB: Meeting, UC Women's Union.
8:00 p.m.—UNITED NATIONS CLUB: Meeting at 154 Davisville Ave. to discuss forthcoming Model Security Council in Montreal.

COMING-UP

TUESDAY
1:00 p.m.—FROS: 45 St. George Street, Informal Discussion on Greece.
1:00 p.m.—SCM: at SCM Office, Hart House, Group on "Christian Pacifism".
FRIDAY
8:30 p.m.—CAMPUS CLUB: Square Dance, Bloor Street United Church.

DELTA GAMMA FRATERNITY presents

ANCHOR BALL

Saturday, January 15, 1955

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

Proceeds for C.N.I.B.

For Tickets: Phone HU. 9-3873 — Couple $3.00
Dancing 9 - 12 p.m.

When you pause...make it count...have a Coke

7¢

Including Federal Taxes

"Coke" is a registered trade-mark.

COCA-COLA LTD.

A Visiting Team of RCAF Specialist
Technical Officers will present

Information

for 5T5 Graduates in Engineering
and Honour Science

ABOUT TECHNICAL OFFICER CAREERS IN THE RCAF

Wallberg — Room 1035

Mon., Jan. 10 — 4 to 5 p.m.: Tues., Jan. 11 — 1 to 2 p.m.

Xmas A M & D

THE CREST

It is rather late to be talking about the Crest's production of Henri Gheon's Christmas in the Market Place, but the impression it made has lasted longer than the holidays or a house-trained spruce tree. The story is basically the nativity story, but personalized through the reactions of a family of roving gypsies that act it out on Xmas eve. In front of an effective backdrop of flashing city lights, the individual members of the family move from role to role while father Melchior (Donald Davis) narrates. In its direct appeal to the audience for participation in a religious experience and its effects of pageantry it is much like the medieval miracle plays. There is much more to be said about this play and its production, but here I can only mention quickly the effective use of music and the excellent character bits of Amelia Hall, and the convincing performance of 10-year-old David Sniderman. W.R.M.

Nicholas Stuart Gray's "Beauty and the Beast" is the current production of the Crest Theatre. The most memorable features are the settings and costumes by Carolyn Souter. These are very lovely and create a most satisfactory composition at all times and, six in number, were changed quietly and rapidly. As the wizard Hodge Eric House flitted and dithered in an effortlessly consistent portrayal. Murray Davis was the Prince and of course the enchanted Beast. In the latter capacity he growled and whimpered most effectively and from behind his fur and whiskers conveyed much emotion. But as the Prince he lacked the necessary grace to be convincing. Of the three daughters Frances Hyland was most worthy of the name Beauty. Yet it is a danger of any member of a repertory theatre to let certain mannerisms appear in every role and I should like to see Miss Hyland in a role of a much different nature, more mature and not quite so sweet. The other two daughters, Rose Mary Sowby as Jessamine and Joan Blackman as Jonquiline were horrid little creatures. But Beauty was generous and at the end they are all to live in the castle.

It was a very good production and with but minor exceptions both enchanting and convincing. But I wonder if the Crest Theatre would not have been better off with a children's fantasy that was more in the classic tradition. Tiz and Dooz

EXPLORING MINDS

Over the holidays the Art and Archaeology department of the University of Toronto in co-operation with the CBC-TV produced three programs in the series "Exploring Minds". I am sorry to have seen only the latter two of them, for they were the best in the series that I have seen yet.

The first of these followed the development of tradition of painting from early Egyptian up until modern theories such as surrealism and abstractionism.

The ideas were made vital by having actors represent the different theories and illustrate them practically, by their methods of drawing. One object, a tree, was traced down or it up, through the ages in its varied appearances and given appropriate background music. Roy Moyer prepared the script — a much more unified and coherent one than usual.

The second traced the Nativity through artists from early Christianity to the renaissance. This program was very interesting pictorially.

Wendy Michener

Issues

There will be a four-page Varsity published on Tuesday morning, and eight-pagers on Wednesday and Friday mornings. There will be no Varsity published Thursday morning.

Dr. Laycock, Saskatchewan Educator Second Engineering Society Lecturer

The second Engineering Society Lecture is to be given in Convocation Hall on Wednesday, January 12, at 8:15 p.m., by Dr. Samuel R. Laycock, retired Dean of Education of the University of Saskatchewan. In keeping with the purpose of the lectureship which deals with objectives in engineering, Dr. Laycock has selected as the title of his lecture, "The Common Day".

The Engineering Society Lectureship was established in April, 1950, by the Board of Governors of the University through the gift of an anonymous donor. It is to be a series of occasional lectures, the purpose of which, as set out in the resolution, "shall be to aid the young engineer in his self-development after graduation by leading him to an analytical study of his objectives, and of the means by which objectives are reached." This lecture by Dr. Laycock is the second in the series. The first was given in March, 1953, by James F. Lincoln, president of the Lincoln Electric Company, Limited.

Dr. Laycock is a prominent figure throughout Canada in the field of education and psychology. He was born in Ontario and graduated with his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Toronto and the University of Alberta. In 1927 he received his Ph.D. from the University of London, England, where he studied under Dr. Charles Spearman, one of the world's leading authorities on mental ability. For twenty years he served as Professor of Educational Psychology at the University of Saskatchewan.

From 1947 until his retirement in 1953 he held the position of Dean of Education at the same university. He has taken an active part in many Canadian and American organizations in his field of work, including the Canadian Mental Health Association. He has written a number of books, and has been broadcasting for twelve years over the C.B.C. More recently he has frequently appeared on Canadian television. During his retirement,

Dr. Laycock plans to continue writing, speaking and broadcasting. At present he is engaged in a two-month speaking tour of the National Association of Canadian Clubs.

The lecture promises to be a stimulating and objective one of a somewhat unusual nature. Although directed in particular toward the undergraduate and recent graduate engineers, it should be of interest to all students and staff of the University.

Canadian for U.N. Show Foreign Film Try to Gain Money

On three Sunday evenings this term the Towne Cinema will be used by the Canadians for United Nations to show foreign films representing the best of their nations films.

The three features will be It Happened in Europe (Jan. 16), a French satire on the Franco-Prussian war, with English subtitles; The Stars Look Down (Feb. 27), a British film about a depressed Welsh mining community; and Birth of a Nation (Mar. 20), the controversial American Civil War picture. All three will be accompanied by several shorts representing other European and Asian countries. Showings are at 8:30.

Canadians for United Nations is a group of Torontonians who are convinced that the U.N., despite its faults, is the best hope for world peace. It tries to implement U.N. ideals by providing U.N. news to Ontario weekly newspapers, by holding forums and meetings to rouse public interest and by raising money for UN agencies by projects such as this film showing.

NFCUS Tours Attractive Special Rates to Europe

Do YOU feel nervous, run-down, worried? Do you feel that you want to get away from it all? Do you look with jealous eyes on the sons of the indolent, corpulent rich, who fritter away their days in Cadillac cars and making trips to southern Slobovia?

Well, YOU TOO can gain that feeling of ease and well-being by applying to go to Europe next year via the NFCUS Travel Service. You can do this because this tour costs less. The Travel Service gets special rates for students with chartered sailings to the continent.

The tour itineraries have been made up and cover much of the continent and Great Britain. Think of it — Paris au printemps. Germany in June, Yugoslavia in July — places you have always wanted to see, but have never made up your mind to — until now.

Or so says Yves Pilon, who's handling the tours this year. If you are at all interested, contact Bill Smyth for further information or details regarding that precious green stuff.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

for

FOR SCIENTISTS and ENGINEERS

with the

Defence Research Board

- JOIN A VITAL, GROWING RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION!
- CANADA'S DEFENCE RESEARCH PROGRAM OFFERS GRADUATES AT THE BACHELOR'S, MASTER'S, AND DOCTOR'S LEVEL INTERESTING FULL-TIME POSITIONS WITH AMPLE OPPORTUNITY FOR ADVANCEMENT.

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BOARD
WILL BE AT YOUR UNIVERSITY ON:

JANUARY 12, 13 & 14

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN DISCUSSING EMPLOYMENT WITH THEM, OBTAIN AN APPLICATION FORM FROM YOUR UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT OFFICER. WHEN COMPLETED, THE FORMS SHOULD BE RETURNED TO THE PLACEMENT OFFICER WHO WILL THEN ARRANGE AN INTERVIEW FOR YOU WITH OUR REPRESENTATIVES.

COME IN AND LET US TELL YOU ABOUT
CANADA'S DEFENCE RESEARCH PROGRAM

GRADUATES AND UNDERGRADUATES 400 CAREER POSITIONS in the PUBLIC SERVICE OF CANADA

Representatives of the Civil Service Commission and of several Departments of Government will interview Graduates and Undergraduates who are interested in full time Government employment as follows:

Commencing at 9.00 a.m. and 2.00 p.m. on January 10th, at 5 Willcocks Street; on January 11th and 12th at 5 Willcocks Street and in room 404 in the Mechanical Building.

Opportunities exist in the following specializations:

ADMINISTRATION
ACCOUNTING & AUDITING
ACTUARIAL SCIENCE
AGRICULTURAL SCIENCE
ARCHITECTURE
BACTERIOLOGY
BIOLOGY
CHEMISTRY
ENGINEERING (all types)

COMMERCE
ECONOMICS
FINANCE
FORESTRY
GEOLOGY
INTERNATIONAL TRADE
PERSONNEL
SOCIAL WORK
STATISTICS
SURVEYING

See your Faculty, College, or Department Bulletin Board for location of your application forms and appointment sheet.

Summer positions: Application forms should be obtained from the men's and women's SAC employment offices and sent directly to the Civil Service Commission as shown in the information sheets at those offices.

Yearbook Displays Begin Campus Tour

If you're anywhere near the Economics building, today is the big day. They claim it's a chance of a lifetime when Torontonensis sets up its sales booth. They will be displaying last years book and will be glad to illuminate you on some of the innovations in the new book,—the milk-white cover, the index of every individual pictured in the book, the modern presentation and the art design.

And if you are not near the Economics Building don't despair. The 'Nensis display will be moving around the campus, to U.C., Vic, St. Mikes, S.P.S., and Trinity. If you escape the various captivations you can find four attractive sales books in the S.A.C. office, behind the Bookstore. Keep your eye open for the distinctive 'Nensis salesmen around the campus. There's one in every college and faculty.

Musical Treat For Hart House Midday Concert

Hart House will resound with mysterious noises Wednesday at 1 p.m. The Music Committee of Hart House will perform at the Wednesday midday recital.

According to Garth McDowell this event will be of unparalleled cultural significance. Members of the Music Committee are very capable administrators. They are, however, not generally musicians.

Master of Ceremonies John McKellar referred to his distinguished band as the Hart House Orchestra, but this is not the same one as Boyd Neel's.

Although McKellar did not attempt to impress anyone concerning the musical quality of the event, he predicted that none will forget it easily.

Shades of Thomas Wolfe

By HUGH MCKELLAR

Last Sunday night on the train headed for Toronto I happened to be sitting besides a chap with a Varsity crest on his blazer, and just to start a conversation I inquired whether he had spent the Christmas holidays at home.

"Yes, I did," he replied; and then a strange look crossed his face. "Well, when I come to think of it, I'm not really sure whether I was home for the holidays or not."

My first reaction to this statement was to wonder whether he had entirely recovered from New Year's Eve. But then I asked whether perhaps his family had moved to another town since last Christmas. No, he said, they were still in the small town where he had been born and attended public and high school. And he had spent the holidays there. But somehow something was wrong.

Gradually the story came out. He is in his sophomore year here, and he spent last summer working in northern Ontario. So he has not spent any length of time in his home town for a year and a half. He took off for there joyfully before Christmas, intending to have a wonderful time with the kids he knew in high school and with his old friends generally.

So what happened? He went to a Christmas party where he met several of his cronies from high school days. They were as glad to see him as he was to see them. But somehow they couldn't keep a conversation going very long. So much had happened to his friends that he hadn't heard about. Most of the girls who had been in high school with him were engaged or married, or had moved away to work. With friend after friend he reached the point where there just seemed to be no more to say. And he felt himself an outsider among the very people from whom he had so recently been inseparable.

The same thing happened when his relatives gathered for Christmas dinner. They greeted him cordially and asked how he liked Toronto, whether he had to work very hard at his studies, and whether he went to all the hockey games at Maple Leaf Gardens.

(Continued on Page 4)

Why Use "Off-Campus" Personnel In College Amateur Production?

Roberts, Morris Debate Against Cambridge Tonite

Women will be allowed to enter the sanctified portals of Hart House this evening. According to all reports, the culture-minded females will not be treated to further displays of naked colleagues.

Lest this be greeted with disappointed outcries, it should be pointed out that the evening's entertainment will consist of a demonstration of the forensic skill of two continents.

Two of the University's top debaters, John Roberts, IV UC and Bill Morris, I Emmanuel, will debate against the Cambridge representatives, J. D. Waite and J. D. G. Shaw in the year's top debating event, the "Cambridge Debates".

The outcome of the debate, "Resolved that the British Empire is Declining and should be allowed to fall", is expected to shape most of Britain's future foreign policy.

Both of Toronto's representatives have had a good deal of debating experience. John Roberts went to McGill last year for the debating trials there and was this year chosen as a member of Toronto's debating team.

Last year Bill Morris accompanied David Gauthier on a debating tour of the North-eastern United States.

The fact that the Cambridge men have been chosen to represent their University in a tour of North America speaks for itself.

The Britishers will arrive in Toronto this afternoon and will appear on the television show "Tabloid". At eight o'clock they will participate in the trial of The British Empire. Whether they will be there in the capacity of council for the defence or of crown attorney has not been established. In any case they will support the retention of that fine old tradition.

Following the debate, all those who have spoken from the floor will be invited to join the speakers in a bull session in the committee's common room.

nude controversy painters outline personal attitude

"I think that every damn tree in Canada has been painted" was the way in which Graham Coughtry (coffry) expressed his idea about the school of naturalistic painters of this country. Graham is one of the two painters of notorious fame currently exhibiting in the Hart House Gallery. He was born in St. Lambert, Quebec where he received his high school education.

He was formally trained at the Montreal School of Art and Design and at the Ontario College of Art where he graduated as the top student in Drawing and Painting in 1952, winning the first Eaton Travelling Scholarship. With it he worked and travelled in Spain and France for about a year returning to Toronto in June 1954.

While in Paris he was greatly excited by the intimist painters Bonnard and Buillard. He says, "I regard the human figure as the most significant nucleus for a painting. I am interested in the relationship of the human being to his interior surroundings. It is really an attempt to reach the basic situation of person to room."

Talking about his work, Coughtry said "For me, making the painting is the experience rather than the interpretation of an experience." Usually each painting is made over a period of a few months. "A process of building and feeling out towards a simple direct statement, and often changing the painting completely half way through," he says.

Coughtry says, "Counterpoint is important in colour, shapes and images. The whole is a play of an undulating vibrant surface against a static structure. Sometimes it is repose, sometimes an almost movement or a frozen instant."

"My jazz interests," says Mike Snow, who is the other half of the duo in the current exhibition, "is related to my painting; not in the end result, but in the procedure of working out a painting. In both, one starts with a theme and through improvisa-

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

"I don't think it's right," the complainant said, "and I wish you'd look into it."

He added that he was directing his comments to what he called "an associate". — Dan McCarthy, a graduate student who is taking the part of "Tommy", one of the leading roles.

"He's not even going to University now. He's holding down a big job with the CBC," the informant said, "and it doesn't seem right to me to bring in outside talent like that who are professionals, or nearly professionals . . . there might be others on the campus who would like to take the part."

Norm Griesdorf, one of the big main wheels behind the show, gave no indication of concern when advised last night of the complaint. He said that any off-campus personnel now rehearsing with the show would remain.

"We had quite a time getting suitable talent for the parts," Griesdorf said, "so we had to go outside St. Mike's and University college to get it . . . You can tell them that tickets are still on sale for the show, off-campus talent or not."

Griesdorf said that McCarthy graduated from St. Michael's college two or three years ago and that he helped coach a production there last year.

Controversy over the Brigadoon casting came up several months ago when first news of the show was announced by Griesdorf.

The news had got through the grapevine at that time that "professional" talent would be used in the show.

Griesdorf denied the rumour at that time saying that "the explanation may be that many of the cast have worked professionally at some time — myself included."

Griesdorf also called some of the cast at that time "slightly off-campus" but he denied that anyone would be paid for taking a part in the production.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

Mike Snow was born in 1928 and has lived in Montreal and for one year, during which time he helped design and build the Vic mobile, he went to Europe.

(Continued on Page 4)

tion and organization one places his personal stamp on the work.

Although the process is free from rules, after it is born I expect it to be a statement, something one can stand on, not just a better-sketter salt and pepper effect." Snow is a jazz musician, (piano and trumpet) who has played with Pee Wee Russel and Sydney Bechet in Chicago and New York. He was also part of a group that introduced new jazz techniques in Yugoslavia last year.

our readers write:

Pursuit of Principles

The Editor,
The Varsity.

The Mayor's recent comment and suggestion have caused quite a hullabaloo. However, in spite of different opinions expressed against him on the campus, I wish to say that his suggestion shows his good will and concern at least to a certain extent.

As students pursuing true principles and true knowledge we should first consider the basic question—whether the pictures do impress young men and young women of impressionable age or not, before firing any paper-bomb at the mayor. However such a question has taken very little attention and discussion in the Varsity. What is dominant is the argument on the mayor's authority, his membership, etc., which by no means count as the first important.

Satire on others would give us no credit. We should either debate rationally with the mayor or show the public the justification of our action by relevant and well-supported arguments.

A. Wong, S.P.S.

Pauline

To the Editor,
The Varsity.

Somewhere St. Paul observes that "Unto the pure all things are pure". Might one suggest that Mr. N. Phillips (1) memorize this observation before he next goes viewing art exhibits and (2) if he finds his sensibilities outraged, consult his spiritual adviser before he consults the Telegram? Le Coq d'Or

Production Schedule

The following production schedule will be followed by the Varsity for the remainder of the year.

This week there will be issues on Wednesday and Friday. Next week there will be the regular five issues with a four page issue on Thursday.

The following week, commencing January 24, four issues will be published, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

For the next four weeks the Varsity will be published three times a week, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Two issues only will be printed in the first week of March and in the second week of March one large round-up issue will be printed.

Publicity chairmen and other interested persons are asked to take note of this schedule and govern themselves accordingly.

BLUE & WHITE SOCIETY

Skating Party

THIS FRIDAY
AFTER THE HOCKEY GAME
'TILL MIDNIGHT

IMPORTANT

If you have any used clothing in good condition, would you leave them at the depot in your faculty.

The University Settlement is in need of clothing. It would be appreciated if you would do this before next Friday, January 14th.

N.B.—
If the S.A.C. reps of any Faculty have not been contacted, would they please assign a depot in their Faculty and post a notice of its location.

Campus Caucus

For all Campus Ex-members of Older Boys' Parliament

Thursday, Jan. 13th

8:30 P.M.

Copper Room — Vic Union

For information—
JIM EVANS — WA. 2-4390

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner—Jan G. Scott

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Acting Assistant Sports Editor
Acting Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician
Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE:
NIGHT EDITORS:
ASSISTANT:
REPORTERS:

Irene Myers
Clyde Batten, Robert Brown,
Carol Hoffman
Jane Edgar
Jack Ellis, Pat Moser

Invasion

Today we are welcoming to the campus two representatives from that part of the world across the pond.

These gentlemen will uphold the honour of the Motherland in a debate tonight in Hart House. Appropriately the subject for debate is the British Empire, or as the resolution reads, "The British Empire is declining; let it Fall".

Our friends from Cambridge are opposing this uncharitable dismissal of the Empire.

International debating on this campus received a mortal wound with the decision of the SAC to forego the customary tour of the United States. We are glad that Hart House has found it possible to maintain at least this semblance of internationalism in campus debating.

It may well be that this debate will witness a temporary revival of that form of debate for which Hart House has been justly famous. Except for few highlights, debating in Hart House in particular, and on the campus in general seems to have fallen into the doldrums. It may well be that the modern craze for passive entertainment has entered the debating field as well as others and that people prefer not to become embroiled in the forensic combats in which undergraduates once took delight.

We hope that the infusion of new life from the gifted speakers from Cambridge will bring new life to the declining figure of campus debating lest we be forced to allow it to fall.

SPORTS SCHEDULES

As there is no Varsity, Thursday, Sports Schedules for next week, will appear on Wednesday.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY 1:30—Dent. B vs. Med. III — Naylor, MacLean
4:00—U.C. III vs. Med. IV — Smith, Yakimoff
WATER POLO 4:15—St. M. A vs. Arch — Wilson, Gryfe
5:00—Vic. I vs. Med. I — Rambusch, Glumac
(Water Polo games must start on time)
BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE
1:00—Pre-Med vs. SPS III — Mandel, Sachar
6:30—Sr. Med vs. Sr. SPS — Banks, Dolman
7:30—Dent. B vs. SPS IV — Banks, Dolman
8:30—Pharm. B vs. Wyc. B — Banks, Dolman
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE — HART HOUSE
1:00—U.C. Louder vs. II Geol — Iglar
4:00—St. M. Day Hops vs. Trin. Tigers — Iglar
6:30—Med. I Yr. vs. II Chem. A — Giblon
7:30—Med. II Yr. vs. II Aero — Giblon
8:30—II Civil vs. U.C. Rutton — Giblon
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE — VIC GYM
4:00—St. M. House 1 vs. Vic Thugs — Grosfield
5:00—PreMed I C vs. I Elec B — Grosfield
6:00—PreMed I B vs. I Metal — Grosfield
7:00—I Mech. C vs. U.C. McCaul — Gryfe
8:00—St. M. House 10 vs. Vic Ryerson — Gryfe

WATCH THE BIRDIE!

Blue and White Society Meeting

and

OFFICIAL PICTURE

TODAY 5 p.m. SAC OFFICE

Camp WAWANANOWIN
ON LAKE COUCHICHING

HIRING STAFF

REQUIRE: Arts and Crafts Instructor, Riding Instructor and Male and Female Counsellors.

For information see Dave Powell or call Ben Wise, HU. 8-0185 or Harold Nashman, HU. 1-1438.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

for

FOR SCIENTISTS and ENGINEERS

with the

Defence Research Board

- JOIN A VITAL, GROWING RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION!
- CANADA'S DEFENCE RESEARCH PROGRAM OFFERS GRADUATES AT THE BACHELOR'S, MASTER'S, AND DOCTOR'S LEVEL INTERESTING FULL-TIME POSITIONS WITH AMPLE OPPORTUNITY FOR ADVANCEMENT.

REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BOARD
WILL BE AT YOUR UNIVERSITY ON:

JANUARY 12, 13 & 14

IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN DISCUSSING EMPLOYMENT WITH THEM, OBTAIN AN APPLICATION FORM FROM YOUR UNIVERSITY PLACEMENT OFFICER. WHEN COMPLETED, THE FORMS SHOULD BE RETURNED TO THE PLACEMENT OFFICER WHO WILL THEN ARRANGE AN INTERVIEW FOR YOU WITH OUR REPRESENTATIVES.

COME IN AND LET US TELL YOU ABOUT
CANADA'S DEFENCE RESEARCH PROGRAM

RICH, DARK CHOCOLATE

WITH ROASTED ALMONDS

Cruise, Bannister Are Marksmen As SPS Blanks St. Mike's 2-0

Two goals in forty-five seconds proved to be the margin of victory as Sr. SPS downed St. Mike's A in the hard-hitting feature of yesterday's hockey action. Cruise and Bannister netted the only goals of the game early in the second period.

By TOM WILLIAMS

The scoring outburst, coming after a wide-open but scoreless first period, completely turned the tide in favour of the Engineers. The Irish, who had been right in the game to that point, seemed completely demoralized and never really threatened again.

Cruise opened scoring at the 6:35 mark of the second, stealing the puck from Frennette at centre and coasting in to pick the top-left corner. Andrews had no chance on the play.

Just forty-five seconds later Bannister scored, after a scramble, picking the lower-right corner from a difficult angle.

In the first period, wide open, hard-hitting hockey was the keynote, with action sweeping from end to end. Both goalkeepers, Andrews of St. Mike's and Lister of Skule, handled several tough shots in that frame.

The highlights of the period were a pair of break-aways, one by each team. Martini of Skule got free at centre, only to be foiled by Andrews on his shot to the short side.

Shortly after this, 'Dub' O'Neil, who played a strong game for the Double-Blue, picked up a loose puck at the blue line and went right in on Lister, who sprawled to save.

Despite the rough play throughout, referees Stephen and Fisher called only two penalties, one to each club. Neither sentence figured in the scoring.

The line of Davison, Cruise and Harrison was best for Skule offensively, while Moore and Paulett shone on defense.

O'Neil and Lawless were the pick of the Irish forwards, with Wadsworth and DeCarlo leading the defense.

A family feud filled the other half of the noon-hour twin bill, SPS IV drubbing SPS III, 5-0. (a fine way to treat your own flesh and blood!) Payne, with the hat-trick, and Wolfe with two, were the fratricides.

Standings

INTERCOLLEGIATE

Team	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Varsity	3	3	0	0	21	5	6
U of M	2	1	1	0	6	10	2
Laval	2	0	2	0	5	9	0
McGill	1	0	1	0	1	9	0

Future Games

Wednesday—McGill at Laval
Friday—Laval at Varsity
U of M at McGill

LEADING SCORERS

Players	G	A	Pts.
Reid (Tor)	5	2	7
Stephen (Tor)	1	5	6
Knox (Tor)	3	2	5
Dagenais (U of M)	3	2	5
Quessel (U of M)	2	3	5

INTERFACULTY

Division I

Group I	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Sr. SPS	3	3	0	0	6
Sr. Meds	4	3	1	0	6
St. M. A.	3	2	1	0	4
Sr. Vic	4	1	3	0	2
Sr. UC	4	0	4	0	0

Group II

Jr. Vic	4	3	1	0	6
Jr. SPS	4	3	1	0	6
Trin. A.	4	2	1	1	5
Jr. UC	4	1	3	0	2
Pre-Meds	4	0	3	1	1

Group III

St. M. B.	4	4	0	0	8
Dent. A.	4	3	1	0	6
Vic III	4	2	2	0	4
SPS III	3	0	3	0	0
SPS IV	3	0	3	0	0

Group IV

SPS V	3	2	0	1	5
Dent. B.	2	1	0	1	3
Trin. B.	3	1	2	0	2
Meds III	2	0	2	0	0

Group V

SPS VI	3	3	0	0	6
Trin. C	3	1	2	0	2
UC III	2	1	1	0	2
Meds IV	2	0	2	0	0

Group VI

Vic IV	3	3	0	0	6
Dent. C	2	1	1	0	2
St. M. C.	2	0	1	1	1
SPS VII	3	0	2	1	1

Division II

Group I	P	W	L	T	Pts.
Pharm.	2	2	0	0	4
For A	2	1	1	0	2
Law	2	1	1	0	2
Arch.	2	0	2	0	0

Group II

Wye.	3	2	1	0	4
Emman.	3	2	1	0	4
Knox	3	1	2	0	2
For. B	3	1	2	0	2

BOX OFFICE OPENS THURSDAY

FEDERICO GARCIA LORCA'S

The House of Bernarda Alba

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
75c

Directed by
ROBERT GILL

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH A.T.L.
CARD

SAT., JAN. 22nd to SAT., JAN. 29th - at 8.30

Hart House Theatre's 33rd All-Varsity Production

HART HOUSE

TODAY

TUESDAY, 11TH JANUARY:

- 8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m.—TICKETS! SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT COMING UP. The Hart House Orchestra under the direction of Boyd Neel. Members may pick up their free tickets at the Hall Porter's Desk.
- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m.—ART EXHIBITION: by Michael Snow and Graham Coughtry.
- 1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m.—LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room) "Murder in the Cathedral" — part 4 by T. S. Eliot.
- 5.00 p.m.—AMATEUR RADIO CLUB code Practice Debates Room Loft.
- 7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.—GLEE CLUB FULL REHEARSAL (Music Room).
- 7.30 p.m.—ARCHERY: Canadian Indoor Mail Match Commences. (Rifle Range). To Continue for eight weeks.
- 7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.—ART CLASS: (Art Gallery).
- 8.00 p.m.—DEBATES: "The British Empire is Declining: Let it Fall." Opposed by two Undergraduate debaters from Cambridge, England. This is a special occasion when women of the University of Toronto are invited to attend.

NOTES:

1. Sing? Sing? The Annual Hart House Quartet Contest is a whale of a lot of fun. Drop over to the East Common Room shortly after 5.00 p.m. Wednesday, 12th. Get the information you need, or phone WA. 3-1302.
2. Camera Club: Entry forms now available from Hall Porter for the 33rd Annual Photographic Exhibition. Closing Date, 11th February, 6.00 p.m.

BLOOD CAMPAIGN

COMING UP

Appointments Made
Jan. 17-22

Donations Given
Jan. 31 - Feb. 7

TRINITY COLLEGE DRAMATIC SOCIETY presents

Arthur Miller's

THE CRUCIBLE

Wed., Jan. 12

TO

Sat., Jan. 15

8 P.M.

at
HART HOUSE

THEATRE

TICKETS $1.00

Theatre Box Office

Maple Leaf Concerts

present

Calliope Shenas

Greek-American Contralto

and

Beauna Somerville

Canadian Violinist

EATON AUDITORIUM, SATURDAY, JAN. 15th, 8:30 p.m.

Prices 2.00, 1.50, 1.00 Students Half Price

Box Office — TR. 1144

THE NEW PLAY SOCIETY

presents at the

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE

2 WEEKS BEG. MON. EVG., JAN. 10

EVGS. AT 8:20. MATS. WED. and SAT. AT 2:30

MAJOR MOORE'S MUSICAL VERSION OF

STEPHEN

LEACOCK'S

"SUNSHINE TOWN"

"FAST MOVING AND HILARIOUS WITH BRIGHT TUNES"

—N.Y. Varsity's review of Radio Presentation

SEATS ON SALE: 16 A.M. TO 10 P.M. (No Phone Orders).

EVGS $1.25 $2. $2.50, $3 $3.50 SAT MATS $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50

WEDNESDAY MATINEES: $1, $1.50, $2

STUDENT MATINEE PRICES $1.00

(on presentation of A.T.L. Card)

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

LOST

Ronson men's pocket lighter at Hart House New Year's Eve Dance. Phone Dave Hyde. WA. 1-5060

ROOM TO LET

North Toronto, convenient to subway, large room, twin beds, students or teachers preferred. Board optional. RU 9-7529.

OPPORTUNITY

An opportunity for a willing student. A cheap warm quiet room in exchange for housework help on Saturdays. WA. 1-881

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE

Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for you. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—RU. 8-5929.

FOR RENT

Single or double room close to subway. Parking space. RU. 8-3202.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RE. 1845 anytime.

PLEASE

Would the person who borrowed contactless camera and equipment from a room in Trinity College shortly before Christmas holidays. Return coloured slides that were with the camera, as they can be of no use to anyone but myself. A parcel labelled J. Bonnycastle could be left without question in Porter's Lodge, Trinity College, anytime.

FOR RENT

Free room, bath and board for female student in return for occasional baby sitting and a few very light duties. RU 6-6224 evenings between 7:30 and 9 p.m.

ROOM & BOARD

Young girl to room & board in exchange for light housekeeping duties. RU 8-5461 after 7 p.m.

Soup Strainers

By BILL SMYTH

"Being true UCers, we are wallowing in apathy," said one University College student of the gowns being worn in the new Sir Daniel Wilson residence. This perhaps expresses the general feeling — most of the students still vaguely resent the gowns, particularly paying for them and cleaning them, but no active opposition is in progress.

The glamour associated with these gloomy items does not seem to have struck the residence yet. We tried on one to see how it felt; immediately an overpowering feeling of intellectual superiority smote us. Even after the gown was removed, we went around with our hands in our lapels, sneering sagely at the juvenile undergraduates around us. To find we were without a gown made us feel quite naked controversy

(Continued from page 1)

There he travelled extensively including France, The Netherlands as well as Toronto. He was educated at Upper Canada College and graduated in design from the Ontario College of Art in 1951. After working free lance lands, Yugoslavia, Spain and Morocco. He has exhibited in Paris, Montreal Spring Show, Graphic Art Show as well as four years in the U.S.A.

Snow says, "Actually all I want to do is present some kind of moving image using all the elements of painting, colour, line, form, texture. It must end up being an object which rewards, invites, provokes contemplation, awareness.

A painting is a small experience in feeling and thinking, that is, living. It can be gay, sad, evil, sexy, soothing but in that it is, it must be human. Like a person, there are many facets of its personality that are provocatively hidden." In summarizing his ideas, Snow says, "All phases of human activity, ancient, eating sweet and sour spare-ribs, musing click, yesterday, up, making love, the last day of August, arguing, fat, smooth, and such are the property of everyone and the themes of the artist."

Alex. K.Gigeroff
III School of Law.

— it was like ending a dream by falling out of bed.

The next thing we'll do is to buy a gown — a world of infinite grandeur will be ours until they take us away. John Woods, I UC, thought the gowns impractical: "When you reach for the salt and slather your sleeve in butter, it's time to give up tradition for practicality." But others seem to think that gowns are good things to absorb gravy stains with. Perhaps UC will become known as "the College of Brown Gowns."

Nelson H. F. Watson, IV UC, thought the tradition "meaningless for fourth year students." But Noga Kaplansky saved the day by giving the woman's point of view: "they're very distinguished-looking," she said.

Which just goes to show that those uncouth engineers don't stand a chance. Gowns, it seems, are THE COMING THING.

Vic Over SMC In 1-0 Shutout

Before a large crowd of very enthused hockey fans at the Arena yesterday afternoon, Vic II came up with a well deserved 1-0 win over St. Mike's. Vic had command for most of the game and gave netminder Eileen Dillon a busy time in the goal for the double blue.

The first period was sparked by Vic's first-string offensive line which accounted for the only goal of the game. This was scored by Jean McNeill on a rebound shot after a Vic rush. The second period saw the St. Mike's defense come to life and stop the frequent attacks of the Red and Gold pucksters; however, St. Mike's failed to come up with any organized offensive power. Peggy Cain of S.M.C. was penalized for tripping, the only misdemeanor of the game.

The teams continued at a pretty even pace during the third period, although Vic again showed superiority on offense. In the last minute of play, St. Mike's took goaltender Dillon from the nets and used six attackers in an effort to get the equalizing goal. This attempt proved futile, however, and Vic came very close to scoring on an open net.

F. G. Spendlove Baha'i Speaker

F. St. George Spendlove, archeologist, lecturer and writer, will address an open meeting sponsored by the Baha'i Student Group, Wednesday, 1.10 p.m., at Falconer Hall.

Born in Montreal, Spendlove has lived in the United States, France and England, where he graduated from the London University School of Chinese Archeology, and has travelled in the near and far east.

Archeology has been Mr. Spendlove's profession for a number of years. He was at one time in charge of East India and Japanese collections at the Royal Ontario Museum and later curator of Modern European Collections. For the last two years he has been Curator of Canadiana Collections of the Museum. He has four fellowships, with the Royal Society of Arts, the Royal Geographical Society, the Royal Asiatic Society and the Museum Associations.

Exploring the history of early experimental chemistry around the seventeenth century claims much of Mr. Spendlove's interest, as does Reforestation.

Associated with the Baha'i Faith for thirty-three years, Mr. Spendlove has spoken on it in many countries in the eastern and western hemispheres. His knowledge and varied life experiences make his comments especially worthy of note.

The topic of Mr. Spendlove's talk will be "Body, Mind and Spirit, based on Abdul-Baha's teachings on the subject.

Eleven Students To Get WUS Aid

Eleven scholarships for overseas students will be offered at Canadian universities during 1955-56. They will be issued under the auspices of the World University Services in Canada and will be open to students from Asia, the Middle East and Africa.

The scholarships, which are mostly for post-graduate students, will include board and lodging, tuition fees, books and other incidentals and pocket money, but will not cover travel expenses to and from Canada.

Only one of the eleven scholarships will be tenable at Toronto.

Seal Of Approval

—cartoon by Jas. Weller.

TODAY

12.00 a.m.—CHEM. ENGINEERING CLUB — Wallberg 1035— Film "Grey Cup final 1954."
1.00 p.m. — S.C.M. — S.C.M. office, Hart House—Christian Pacifism.—F.R.O.S. — 45 St. George St.— Discussion of modern Greece.
4.00 p.m.—SPANISH CLUB TERTULIAS — Arbor Room.
5.00 p.m. — S.C.M. — Rm. 103, Conservatory — Study of St. Mark.
—W.U.S. — deadline for applications for Caledon Seminar.

COMING-UP

WEDNESDAY

1.00 p.m. — BAHAI STUDENT GROUP — Falconer Hall — Mr. St. George Spendlove — Body Mind and Spirit.
8.15 p.m. — U. of T. SPANISH CLUB—Vic Union Music Room —Movies, Pinata Pageant.

THURSDAY

1.00 p.m.—C.C.F. CLUB—Socialism 1a — Background of British Socialism.

Varsity

A Varsity reporter, inquiring about missing property, found a source of missing news last night. After being told at a half-dozen places that they had no thefts to report, he reached one caretaker who said simply that "of course he wasn't allowed to give any statements to that Varsity."

The last letters written by Marquis de Montcalm and his Plains of Abraham vanquisher, General Wolfe, are preserved in the Public Archives in Ottawa.

Shades of Thomas Wolfe

(Continued from page 1)

When he explained that if a student's work schedule would allow him to do that, his budget wouldn't, the conversation resorted to generalities, which grew vaguer and vaguer. He was glad to turn on the TV so they wouldn't have to try to talk when they seemed to have no common ground on which to meet.

Even with his parents there seemed to be a barrier which could not be scaled, hard as they tried. Living in residence, he had learned to make his own decisions and be generally independent; his parents could not get away from regarding him as they did when he lived at home. They didn't do it intentionally, and he knew their attitude shouldn't have galled him the way it did, but apparently he couldn't help it.

And then there was the contract of a small town with a metropolis, to which he had become more accustomed than he realized. So it was almost with relief that he took the train back to college — and yet he felt something was out of place somehow.

Well, there wasn't much I could say, and nothing I could do to help him. To be sure, I had faced the same problem a few years ago, but my solution couldn't help him, because, as Alice in Wonderland put it, "He's he and I'm I".

When you decide to come to college, people tell you all the grand things university and a great city will do for you. They don't tell you that there is a reverse side to the coin: you gain a great deal, yes but you give up a lot, too. Slowly but inevitably you are cut off, in some measure, from people who didn't come to college. There is nothing snobbish about this, and you would give anything to keep it from happening. But happen it does; diversity of background and interests operate until you can walk down the street in your home town, greet everyone you meet, and still feel a stranger, an outsider. I suppose people don't tell you this because it is so hard to put into words: I know I have only partly succeeded, and I have no suggestion to offer to overcome it.

Except that it is just part of life, and Christmas is a pretty tragic time to find it out.

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

announces

Second Engineering Society Lecture

"THE COMMON DAY"

By DR. SAMUEL R. LAYCOCK, retired Dean of University of Saskatchewan

Convocation Hall

Wednesday, January 12

8.15 p.m.

ADMISSION FREE

By Vote of 116-51

BRITISH EMPIRE STILL STANDS

UC Crumbles Too?

Worthy debaters from Cambridge University last night referred to their own institution as a crumbling remains while above is seen another structure — on this campus — which could conceivably answer the description. Nevertheless, University College is known as one of the best examples of Romanesque architecture on the north-American continent.

Modern Ministers Are Moribund
Line Claims Before Ph.I. Society

"Don't try to prove the existence of God by a stream of events or by vicious abstract analysis," warned Rev. Dr. Line in his address at U.C. yesterday. "Just put religion on its feet and let it talk for itself," he said.

The U of T Philosophical Society heard Dr. Line say that they should know their religion for itself and then learn the process by which they came to their conclusion, not the other way around.

"But Religion's Waterloo is that it can't promulgate itself without concepts — and concepts are not the heart of religion," said Dr. Line.

"Religious concepts are not rational hypotheses and have nothing to do with God, claimed Dr. Line.

He said that when people speak of "saving power" and "peace which passeth all understanding" — they are speaking of fact and it is fact which is the heart of religion.

Rev. Line said that on a hot day one craves something to drink — and the drink, when taken, fills a need. "Similarly a person when in personal need finds that religion satiates that need."

Religion is real when "man's abasement to an infinite beauty or holiness makes a difference in that persons life and personality," he said.

Dr. Line described the Church as now being cluttered up with "organizations and petty projects." He claimed that it needed to re-discover those basic elements that created it. The ministers of the church, he said, are moribund and uninspired, and unless we return to the "real heart of religion" we will not see Church unity.

Cambridge Debate
Team Again
Goes To Victory

Two Cambridge University debaters last night lead the noes to victory in Hart House. The motion, resolved that "In the opinion of this House the British Empire is Declining; Let it Fall," was defeated by a vote of 116 to 51.

First speaker for the ayes, John Roberts, IV, UC, said there were only divided ties of loyalty with no common ties of language and three distinct religious groups in the Commonwealth. Christianity, he said had less adherents than either Hinduism or Islam.

Wide spread dissention in Honduras, Kenya, and other areas gave strong indication, he stated, that many areas of the Empire were not satisfied with their positions.

Canada, Roberts said, is now a social and economic appendage of the United States rather than of England.

Britain could perform more valuable service as a leader in a European federation rather than as head of a dying and decaying Empire.

John Waite of Cambridge, said "The old days are gone, when England was governed by a landed gentry which spent its time hunting and shooting. It is now governed by a railway union which spends its time shunting and hooting."

"In the past its leaders dreamed of such schemes as Imperial preference, and voluntary pooling of power in an empire parliament. To-day these dreams have filed as all dreams do, but a trace of them remains.

"The British, he said, could not be accused of 'hanging on' to the colonies. They have always shown themselves glad to bear the burden of their upbringing and to let them go when they attain maturity.

"The empire is held together by the loosest of ties. But looseness, is the cornerstone of its strength. The British Empire is an institution by whose community of purpose, by whose common institutions, love of freedom and toleration of empires we have established a bulwark against the future," Waite concluded.

Second speaker for Toronto, Bill Morris, Emanuel I, spoke in favour of the resolution. Rather than point out the shortcomings of the British Empire, he asked the house to consider what good

(Continued on Page 2)

No Alternate to Liberals—Underhill

Professor Frank Underhill, of the department of history at the University of Toronto, said recently at Queen's University the breakdown of the two-party system in Canada has made it impossible to have general elections in which the voter is presented with a choice between possible alternate governments. He gave as a reason that "there is no party except the liberals which is capable of forming a government." This, he explained, was due to Mackenzie King (late Liberal Prime Minister) who had destroyed the possibility of any real opposition by his kindness to radical groups which had arisen during the depression.

"All our experience shows that this country cannot be governed so long as it remains free and democratic, he said except by some party of coalition which attracts support from all the major interest groups." He added that "the Canadian people have apparently decided that, since freedom depends on the balance of power, they will balance the monopolistic power of the Liberal Government at Ottawa by setting up effective countervailing powers in the provincial capitals."

Professor Underhill was guest lecturer in the Dunning Trust series at Queen's University.

u.s. colleges report on

Liberty of Press

College newspapers in the States show a wide variety in the amount of "official supervision," a recent survey revealed. Approximately 25% of the country's college papers are governed rather harshly from above, the survey showed.

Another 25% has all that could be desired in the line of press freedom, said the survey. The remaining 50% are distributed along the middle road, having small run-ins with their administration occasionally, but pretty well off the rest of the time.

The survey was conducted by Donald M. Levenson, a senior in the school of journalism, of the Ohio State Lantern. Levenson was anxious to discover whether college publications today are the free voice of the student, or whether they are beset by official "guidance" and censorship.

Nine questions, relating to the university's policy in regard to the newspaper and its freedom, were sent to fifty of the collegiate papers across the country. These ranged from large dailies to small weeklies, and of these about 70% answered.

The majority of the papers answering felt that they had a fair degree of freedom. However, fourteen papers indicated that they felt themselves below the average position in regard to freedom of the press. Eight papers reported faculty supervision in their newsroom; one reported someone other than a student or supervisor "corrected, edited, or censored" the content of the paper; five said that their departmental heads in journalism had the prerogative to examine copy if they so desired, but that they rarely did so.

"Do you sense, or are you aware, of any pressure as to what you can print and what you can't?" was one of the questions asked. Nineteen of the papers did. Of these, nine felt strong pressure, five only moderate, and five "a certain amount."

Louisiana State University's paper, (one of the nine feeling strong pressure), said however, that most of its censorship problems were behind it. Sixteen students of journalism were expelled there during Huey Long's day, for daring in print to go against his policies.

Another of the nine, the Maryland Diamondback, gave an instance of trouble earlier the same year. A picture of crowded dormitory conditions was run (24 women students living in basement quarters); the dean of men confiscated several thousand copies of the paper and destroyed them before they could be distributed. Earlier in that year, an effort had been made by the administration to keep the story that the dean of women had been arrested for a traffic violation from both city and campus papers.

Temple University reported that the university regarded itself as the publisher and "as such, does not like being criticized." Campaigns in the past have been frowned on by the administration and pressured out of publication. "The editor is given a fairly free hand to comment on anything so long as it is not adverse criticism of university policy," the paper added.

Levenson said that there were two main arguments on the question of how much a university-supported paper can print. The administration may say "As the publisher of a newspaper, we should have full control of what appears in print. Don't criticize your publisher nor deviate from his policies in your editorial opinion", such, they may add, is the case on a city paper.

College editors, Levenson pointed out, reply that a university does not play the role that a city publisher does. A paper, printed under university auspices, is not the voice of the administration, they say, but should be the voice of the students, who deserve the right to comment on their immediate environment.

Material taken from Review of Associated Collegiate Press.

Sunshine

A Special student price for the show "Sunshine Sketches" now playing at the Royal Alexandria, has been arranged by the Blue and White Society.

For today's matinee performance only, which starts at 2 p.m., students can purchase tickets at the special rate of one dollar each on the presentation of their ATL Card at the Royal Alex box office. Two tickets only per ATL card.

From far and near -- here's what's happening

STUDENT NEWS BRIEFS

Yen For Barbershop Blues? Hart House Has The Answer

"All you need is the urge, to enter the quartet contest", Assistant to the Warden of Hart House, Garth McDowell said last night. No trained voice is necessary.

The annual Quartet Contest has grown by leaps and bounds since it was started in 1949, to become a very popular event for members of Hart House.

Last year McDowell examined his slide rule, and announced that out of the 6000 members it was possible to have 1500 enter the contest. He promised that if turnout approximated this figure, he would move to Madagascar. This year he refused to comment.

Entry forms are available at the undergraduate activities office. They have to be filled out and returned there by January 21. Regulations will be discussed at a meeting this afternoon at 5 p.m. in the East Common Room.

Red Classes

An affirmative 210 to 43 was the answer to a Student Union Poll at Northeastern University on "Would you be interested in a series of lectures on the nature and effects of Communism?"

As a result of this reply, three lectures will be sponsored by the Student Union. They will cover the theory of Communism, Communism in the United States, and International Communism.

U.S. Version of Bicycle Thief Practices Nightly Pranks

East Lansing, Mich. — (ACP) — In the wee hours of the morning, someone has been taking parked bicycles at a Michigan State College dormitory and piling them atop one another into jumbled mounds of handlebars.

The prankster's first pile was only a small one about 10 feet high, the Michigan State News estimated, and contained about 20 bikes. He got braver on his second try and made a pile a little higher, with a few more bikes added.

The third time he really reached new heights. Students awoke to find their bicycles piled in a heap that reached the windows of the first floor of the dormitory.

No Ear-Marked Funds

The Denmark Committee of the World University Service has decided to abandon the practice of "ear-marking" funds for special adopted overseas projects. In future, the committee decided that all funds will be allocated to the total international program as a whole.

The Danish decision conforms to the Program of Action which was internationally agreed upon by the WUS General Assembly. The purpose of this move is to enable WUS to respond immediately to the needs of individual projects as and when they arrive, according to a WUS bulletin.

The Toronto WUS Campaign funds are allocated directly to the Student Health Centre in Poona, India.

Cambridge Debate

(Continued from page 1)

it had done. It set out to spread civilization to the savage, and was able to give them Christianity and guns. It set out to bring them enlightenment, and gave them gin, sin and chastity.

In reply to Waite's statement that independence was freely given on the attainment of maturity, Morris cited the American colonies as an excellent example that the opposition neglected to point out.

In discussing Britain's policy, he said that many felt it was summed up in the quotation "Ask and it shall be given, seek and you shall find". Others, he suggested, thought that it might be contained in another — "Blessed is he that dasheth the brains of his little ones against a stone".

Final speaker against the resolution was Giles Shaw of Cambridge who said it is ridiculous to stand by and let a machine that has something wrong with it fall apart. By saying "let it fall", we are striking at everything the Empire was meant to maintain.

Shaw said that it is in the validity of British institutions that the British Empire should be judged.

England can perform an invaluable service in the fulfillment of her role of guiding the opinion of the world along a saner road, he said. We cannot dismiss the Empire at this point. We must give it a chance to act at a time when an apathetic and complacent world needs it more than ever.

CLASSIFIED ADS.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson — HU. 8-3929.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1843 anytime.

EXPERT TYPIST
Theses, maximum charge, 30c per double spaced page 8 1/2 x 11. Mrs. Grossman, 366 Castletfield Ave., Eglinton - Oakwood district. RU. 1-1041.

DON'T FORGET

That Used Clothing!

It can be children's, men's or women's; it doesn't matter as long as it is warm.

It's a cold winter if you haven't any mitts or a warm suit.

ORDER TODAY Your TORONTONENSIS

From these Faculty Representatives

ARCHITECTURE
COMMERCE & FINANCE
DENTAL HYGIENE
DENTAL NURSING
DENTISTRY
ENGINEERING
EMMANUEL
FORESTRY
KNOX
LAW LORETTO MEDICINE
MUSIC
NURSING
PHARMACY
P.H.E.
P.O.T.
ST. HILDA'S
ST. JOSEPH'S
ST. MICHAEL'S
TRINITY
U.C.
VICTORIA

John Shaw
Mort Eisen
Annabelle McEwen
Helen Curtis
Al Taylor
Fraser McIntosh
Doug Stringer
Dave Murray
Wm. Duffy
R. J. Gray
Rita Monahan
Ken McCuaig
Norma Sleffried
George Varcoe
Shelia Kent
Bill Laing
Garnet Banks
Bette Kempton
Kay Hooke
Frances Ryan
Peter Miller
John Kirkwood
Shirley Pitts
Harry Malcolmson, David Strangway
Eleanor Burton

The Yearbook will be ready for distribution during graduation.

BAHA'I STUDENT GROUP OPEN MEETING

F. ST. GEORGE SPENDLOVE
"BODY, MIND AND SPIRIT"

Today 1.00 p.m.

FALCONER HALL

84 QUEEN'S PARK CR.

SALE brand new CRINOLINES

LONG AND SHORT . . . FROM 2 AND 4 DOLLARS

ALL SIZES

DROP IN AND SEE THEM

HELMAR

46 St. George St.

WA. 1-5978

MAPLE LEAF CONCERTS

Present

CALLIOPE SHENAS

Greek-American Contralto

and

BEAUNA SOMERVILLE

Canadian Violinist

EATON Auditorium, Saturday, Jan. 15th, 8.30 p.m.
Prices 2.00, 1.50, 1.00 Students' Half Price

PROGRAM

Hebrew Sabbath Eve Service
Borchu May the Word, Va-anachnu . . . Ladore Freed
Gloria from the Missa De Angeli . . . Ace by Achille P. Bragers Exents of Supplication and Communion of the Elements. . . John T. Sakelaris from the Greek Liturgy . . . G. F. Handel
He Shall Feed His Flock, from "The Messiah" . . . G. F. Handel
Gretchen an. Spinnrad . . . Schubert
Lilamel . . . Schubert
Der Maennchen . . . Schubert
Von ewiger Liebe . . . Brahms
Botschaft . . . Brahms
Meine Liebe ist grün . . . Brahms
O Mio Fernando, from "La Favorita" . . . Donizetti
Au Cimetiere . . . Gabriel Faure
Les Roses d'Isaphan . . . Gabriel Faure
Au Bord de l'Eau . . . Gabriel Faure
Fleur de Jeune . . . Gabriel Faure
Trio: Histories Pour Enfant . . . Stravinsky
Cinq Melodies Populaires Gregues (Five Greek Folk-songs) . . . Maurice Ravel
I Hate Music . . . Leonard Bernstein
Fugue in A . . . Tarditi-Kreibler
Suite in A Minor: Presto, Adagio, Tempo giusto . . . Tansman
Three Pieces: Appassionato, Quasi ballata, Burlesca . . . Shindler
BEAUNA SOMMERVILLE . . . Suk

TRINITY COLLEGE DRAMATIC SOCIETY presents

Arthur Miller's

THE CRUCIBLE

Wed., Jan. 12

TO

Sat., Jan. 15

8 P.M.

at

HART HOUSE THEATRE

TICKETS $1.00

Theatre Box Office

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

announces

Second Engineering Society Lecture

"THE COMMON DAY"

By DR. SAMUEL R. LAYCOCK, retired Dean of

University of Saskatchewan

Convocation Hall Wednesday, January 12

8.15 p.m.

ADMISSION FREE

THE NEW PLAY SOCIETY

presents at the

ROYAL ALEXANDRA THEATRE

2 WEEKS BEG. MON. EVG., JAN. 10

EVGS. AT 8:20, MATS. WED. and SAT. AT 2:20

MAJOR MOORE'S MUSICAL VERSION OF

STEPHEN

LEACOCK'S

"FAST MOVING AND HILARIOUS WITH BRIGHT TUNES"

SEATS ON SALE: 10 A.M. TO 10 P.M. (No Phone Orders).

EVGS. $1.25, $2 $2.50, $3, $3.50 SAT. MATS.: $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50

WEDNESDAY MATINEES: $1, $1.50, $2

STUDENT MATINEE PRICES $1.00

(on presentation of A.T.L. Card)

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner — Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Assistant Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Vojtech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Bob Brown
NIGHT EDITOR: Carol Hoffman
REPORTERS: Joe Aziz, Pat Moser, Jo Thompson, Jo Patrick, Sue Delman

ASSISTANTS:

A Duty, Not A Right

An article appearing elsewhere in this paper deals with a report on the freedom of the college press in the United States.

The same pressures which this report reveals to be at work there restricting the free expression of opinions are also at work in this country.

It seems to be the feeling of many university administrations and even students that the campus paper should print nothing that is in any way "detrimental" to the University. Nothing nasty, nothing sordid, nothing that will reflect on "our fine university traditions" should be allowed to appear in the student press.

Some students seem to share this view, for they feel that their student paper should play down any event which might reflect on their college, their club, or their fraternity. And these students are not above using every conceivable means to muzzle their paper if it proves recalcitrant.

These people who oppose the freedom of campus journalism are usually the ones who complain of "muck-racking" and the raising of phony issues in campus papers.

They say that editors are prone to distort news, to sensationalize it and to attack people and institutions just for the sake of the story involved.

In certain cases these people may have a point of contention. Some campus papers on this continent do tend to sensationalize the news as a matter of routine, and many fall into occasional lapses in this regard.

Yet those people who contend that restrictions should be placed on the freedom of college editors miss the entire point of the issue.

A campus paper serving the students of a university is not meant to be the voice of the administration, nor is it meant to be a vehicle for the printing of incoherent or laudatory stories about campus events and personalities; it is meant to be the voice of the students who deserve the right to comment on their environment. The universities exist to perpetuate liberties and extend the pursuit of truth; the students do not exist to perpetuate and extend the universities.

A University is meant to be a place where different opinions can be aired,—even unpopular opinions, "harmful" opinions.

And at a university there should be no reason why news stories must always reflect credit upon the institution and its students; in our opinion it is the truth and not the report of it that reflects credit or discredit upon a university.

It is not merely the privilege but the duty of a college editor to print everything that he feels the students ought to know about themselves, their activities, and their university. —RDB

Or Don't You Care?

While the freedom of the student press seems to have threatened in "the land of the free" across the line, Canadian students do not seem to have been troubled by the same disaster. At least on the campus of the University of Toronto, no noticeable complaints seem to have arisen. Or perhaps Varsity students just aren't aware that freedom of the press exists.

Almost every day a campus-wide paper is published; almost every week various colleges and faculties publish their papers. As well, certain independent journals are spread around the campus. Almost every day (or almost every week) the student religiously picks up his paper (or papers), and almost every day (or every week) he glances at the headlines, perhaps an article that might be faintly humorous, then puts the paper to its natural function to keep his books dry.

The usual apathetic student doesn't care one way or the other about an issue that has been raised. He doesn't even know there is an issue. Freedom of the Press necessary for students? A student doesn't miss what he doesn't know he's got. —CEH second thoughts:

On German Rearmament

This article on the problems of German Rearmament and European Union was written by N. J. P. Melnick who is in the first year at the school of Law. Melnick had previously written another article on German Rearmament which was published in the Varsity during the fall.

In the dying hours of 1954 when, by an act of the French Assembly the West German rearmament within NATO was ratified, Western Europe was left with three theoretic alternatives: 1. Joining the Russian block. 2. Resisting communist infiltration and the external pressure from the Soviet Union so long as the guns remained silent, or 3. Accepting support from the New World and acquiring the means of self-defence. It has now chosen the only sane alternative.

I say the only sane one because Russia is the metropolis of a secular religion of universal dimensions and it stands to-day on the borders of an exhausted Europe and an Asia in revolt; it is checked in her ambitions only by the far-off force off the United States. And there is not the slightest doubt that Russia, allied with Communist China and buffered by her European Satellites is in a position to maintain indefinitely the enfeebling and draining pressures of the cold war without firing a shot or making a settlement. Russia stands on the top side of a world in disequilibrium.

The Russian creed propagated by a relentless machine has divided Germany, and if left alone to continue the result would be the complete seduction of that country or at least Germany's becoming a fulcrum providing leverage for Russia's racking of the rest of the Western World.

Now, after four years of indecision, the West is at last free to catch up in the rearmament race — both material and moral rearmament.

With the organizing potential and the technological supremacy of American leadership, world armament equilibrium should rapidly be restored and the pressure relieved. However, for any reconstruction to be permanently effective, there must also be a simultaneous moral rearmament. In a moral sense the gap is infinitely larger and American leadership at the present time cannot supply Europe with a battle cry, an idea, a new ideology that is in any way comparable to the sweep of Communism, — originally western religious heresy, which through the propagation by the country of its adoption has a fascinating appeal.

The European idea is empty, it has neither messianic transcendence nor any imminent patriotism. The European Community was created by intellectuals and that fact accounts at once for its genuine appeal to the mind and its feeble echo in the heart. It is a solitary idea — a loose strand of western development which if accepted without the clothing of a full dimensional change affecting technology, religion, politics, art etc., will be anything but effective against the composite of a Western religious heresy, and western technology which is Russia's potent combination.

But the West's chief problem lies in the fact that while it is easy to rally the crowd around a false idea like Communism, so long as it seems attractive, it is a monumental task to rally them around a whole number of ideas which are true — ideas like love, unselfishness, purity, honesty, individualism, and democracy — and which are so prosaic!

our readers write:

Ten Dollars For The Arabs

The Editor,
The Varsity

To start with, I am not an Arab, I am not a German, I am not a Jew. Among my family none belong to the said national or religious group with possible exception of the second common-law wife of my great-great-grandfather, whose name was Marpha and who was supposed to be a Turkish woman, and many other things besides. Thus I cannot be accused of being unfairly pro-Arab.

But when I think of those 800,000 of Arab refugees from Israel in the tents, I tend to become so. Isn't it interesting that some things act directly on conscience, despite of the many edifying and extenuating reason given?

The fact remains: 800,000 humans out in the tents, with no means of subsistence, no land, no industry, no animals, no school, no future and dysentery, you know, the bloody kind, that the clothes are dripping. They just subsist on a measly U.N. donation; not a dog would bark this side of the Atlantic to collect them money to buy medicine.

I talked on the subject of Arab refugees to many Zionists. The argument comes basically to this: although Arabs had an absolute majority on the eve of war, people of Jewish religion need a fatherland, therefore . . . or people of Jewish religion have a historic right to the land of Palestine, so . . . or, we have the right to the country by conquest, the Arab refugees (almost a million of them, think of it, about half of the population) were displaced by war, so . . . or, the property of the Arabs is now under a special commission of the government, held in trust for them, but they cannot return to claim it; besides, the Arab is an un-cultured superstitious fellow, he is against progress, he is dominated by great lords; therefore: WE ARE JUST.

I am told of the great progress of the Israeli state; of the raising of factories to process nitrates and phosphates, of billions of dollars being pumped into the Middle East. Yet I cannot forget those gaunt faces of Arab refugees I saw on the cover of "Presbyterian Observer" and on pages of "Time".

It is possible that one needs much more background in these affairs to be able to say anything; still the whole civilized world was sickened and dismayed, by the way Germans behaved to the unfortunate confessors of Jewish faith and to my own countrymen. In Germany I saw once a human being, wearing a yellow six-cornered star being avoided in the streetcar as though he had plague in his body.

He was old, he had a bare-thread grey coat and when he moved he moved sideways to get out of the way of the people. He had little, frightened eyes. And I have heard of worse things. No amount of talk of infinite progress of the "civilized" world and historical exploitation will make me forget that yellow Jewish star, which made me feel ashamed of the human race.

The Israeli state is not quite that cruel to the Arabs. Still the Arabs in their tents are not allowed, not even individually, to return to their land, their house, which their fathers, grandfathers, great-grandfathers' though not their great - great - grandfathers held. Besides thus committing individual injustice, the Israeli state commits the crime of genocide, less brutal than that of Germans against Jews, Poles Ukrainians, but still only a little bit less effective.

With every day the situation grows more and more intolerable. Unless there is a resettlement of the Arab refugees in their land very soon, that resettlement will mean an immense injustice to the then residing Jewish population. The war is likely to come if justice to those refugees is not done. The Arabian, holding, we are assured, are held in trust by government. Let them give it to them, introduction of civil rights for all then would lead to establishment of a just two-national state.

This state of affairs exists now in Canada, and, hell, we have the best state, we are the most free nation in the world, n'est-ce pas?

Why does not SAC authorize a collection for these Arabs? I'd contribute $10.
O. Pichaim U.C.

Waiting? Where?

"There is a place where you can meet him; where he is waiting.
And where is he waiting?
Well may you wonder.
Does He wait in the churches, fettered by dogma—
Or does He wait on the moors for the maid of the misty?
Does He stand by and listen to the hypocritical oaf—
Or does He listen to the laughter of the mystical children?
Where is He waiting, and why does He wait?
He waits no more,
It is late—too late.
C.O.
1st year Introspection

Life In a Mental Hospital

Patient or Prisoner?

This article was written by Jack Hartline, who is a student in the third year of the general course at UC. Mr. Hartline spent last summer working in an Ontario Mental Hospital.

He is an old man between 60 and 70 years of age, he is considered to be senile, and he is a patient in a mental hospital.

To say the least, he lives quite simply. He rises every morning at 6:30. At 7:00 he eats breakfast. From 7:15 to 12:00 he sits on a bench. At 12:00 he eats lunch. From 12:15 to 5:30 he sits on a bench. At 5:30 he eats dinner. From 5:45 to 8:30 he sits on a bench. At 8:30 he goes to bed. This is the general pattern of his life.

However, there are a few variations which should be mentioned. For instance, during the summer he may be allowed outside for an hour, on a pleasant day — under supervision, of course. But when he gets outside, he sits on a bench, for the "outside" is an enclosed "airing court" about the size of a softball diamond. On Tuesday and Saturday his day is enlivened by waiting in line to be shaved, and on Wednesday he waits in line for his weekly shower. Between two and four o'clock, on Tuesday, Saturday, and Sunday he sits on his bench — waiting hopefully. For these are the weekly visiting hours. Unfortunately, a visitor seldom appears. But the old man never quite gives up. During these hours he can always be seen sitting on his bench — waiting hopefully.

Waiting has become a major factor in the old man's life for the ward in which he lives is overcrowded. Designed for about 80 patients, the ward has to accommodate between 100 and 130. They are provided with a lavatory containing five wash basins, four toilets, and one urinal. The room in which they bathe is kept locked until the weekly bath day; inside are two bath-tubs and two shower stalls. The rooms in which they sleep are overcrowded, too: rooms originally intended for one or two beds contain three beds and larger rooms used for bed patients are so crowded that there is often less than a foot between each bed. Between the overcrowding of the hospital and the limited number of attendants, the patients seldom get the individual attention and interest they need. On one day last summer there were only four attendants on duty in one particular ward. And when lunch time came there were only two; two attendants for approximately 100 patients.

The old man's entertainment is provided by an ancient ward radio operated at the whim of the attendants; it is usually turned on around one o'clock for the "Hit Parade". At other times he may leaf through an old magazine discarded by another patient. Usually he just sits. In the evening, a very select few are allowed to go to another ward where they watch television for an hour or so; the old man is seldom included because space in the T.V. room is limited.

Well, that about wraps up the story of the old man's life. It doesn't take long to tell, for every week is the same as the one before. And so he sits on his bench — waiting behind locked doors — waiting for Death. For he is an old man between 60 and 70 years of age, he is considered to be senile, and he is a patient in a mental hospital — a hospital not very far from this campus.

PAGE FIVE

Sister Pianists

The Latvian Relief Society presented duo-pianists Ingrida and Karina Gutbergs in recital at the Eaton Auditorium last Saturday evening. These charming young sisters had all the technical virtues needed by a two-piano team. It seemed that their playing gave evidence of the value of a sister combination, for having grown up together they played virtually as a single artist. This was especially true in their performance of the Stravinsky Concerto per due Piano-rte Soli. The result was somewhat less fortunate in the two-piano arrangement of Bach's Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring. This basically beautiful chorale has been arranged for and played by too many combinations already and it is not particularly enhanced by two pianos. It was not until the Gutbergs performed the Saint-Saens Scherzo Opus 87 that there was any feeling of lyricism in their playing.

The Rhapsody for Two Pianos by Janis Medins was a highlight of the programme. A piece full of complex rhythmic interplay, it gave the two pianists a chance to display good technical skill. Their fingering was clean and precise, qualities indicative of good pianists.

Unfortunately when the Gutbergs performed romantic music, the lack of a musical line and continuity became obvious. Just as orchestral accompaniment drops down in volume for the solo line, so should the accompanying piano part stay underneath the melody. In the Rachmaninoff Suite No. 2 Opus 17, especially the waltz, the two pianos did play with unanimity and taste. In the Chopin Rondo, however, it seemed that the melodic line was always fighting the accompaniment. It was never obscured, but came out rather aggressively.

The Gutbergs never have a sense of insecurity. Their playing was marked by a mastery of most difficult figurations. The recital might have been more satisfying musically, however, if there had been less emphasis on the percussive characteristic of the piano. The fact that a recital is by two pianos should not mean that more attention is concentrated on technical mastery than on musical perception.

Joan Fisher

ROYAL ALEC AISLE SEAT

Sunshine Sketches

The small town humour of Stephen Leacock's Sunshine Sketches is not an entirely happy hunting ground for the slick and glossy gaiety of musical comedy but since the new production at the Royal Alex was so little glossy and so very small town, we expected a smoother blend than that with which we were rewarded.

Apart from a certain deficiency of actors, singers, dancers and memorable tunes the production was a smashing success. The sets were Mariposa (or any other small town in Ontario) to the life; the music was pleasant, the dances, if understaffed, were lively and the dancers charming; many of the character parts, furthermore, were excellent.

M. Moore, who adapted the Leacock stories to their new medium, proved much weaker in arranging his material than in dramatizing it. Many scenes end with a dull thud and certain others left the audience waiting for the sunrise. However, Mr. Moore preserved intact sufficient of the Leacock spirit to make a great many very funny moments, and he was valiantly supported in this by the character actors of the cast.

Robert Christie as the sitting Liberal M.P. gave a rich varied characterization of the kind which is gently but firmly making him famous. Drew Thompson's Dean Drone of the Church of England was limply lovable and Josh Smith, played by Paul Kligman, stole our hearts by the elephantine grace with which he executed his two simple dance steps.

The romantic leads were, unfortunately, less striking. Admittedly, Jacqueline Smith as Zena and Robert Goulet as Mal Tompkins, the young reporter, sang (and Pegi Brown as Dean Drone's daughter, didn't sing) most charmingly. But Joe Runner gave Peter Pumpkin a weaker voice than even that trembling hero deserved while only Miss Brown managed to create a character and keep it where she wanted it. The other three let things get so far out of hand that to the delight of the audience there were loose characters running all over the stage.

Lack of brilliance and originality is not a fault which has never before been found in musical comedy; indeed it is the backbone of some of the most successful; nor is it the rock on which Sunshine Sketches really founded. That fatal reef was the show's failure to attain to certain standards of musical comedy as the established art form which it most certainly is. A musical comedy demands noise, sparkle and bounce without cessation. It demands never-flagging pace and a great deal of glitter; in brief, musical comedy wants to be produced lavishly. Out of our non-specialist experience of musical comedy we shrink from declaring that it cannot succeed otherwise, but we have our theory and we're sticking to it. Mr. Moore's adaptation of Sunshine Sketches would probably be a very funny radio play, but it is not nearly big and shiny enough to be a good musical. Nancy Donnell.

Boyd Neel

The Hart House orchestra will be playing for the two hundred and sixty-first Hart House Sunday night concert. Conducted by Boyd Neel, the orchestra has two separate traditions to live up to: the Boyd Neel Orchestra of England which Neel conducted before coming to Canada to be the Dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music, and the Hart House Quartet which achieved international fame for its concerts in the 1920's and 30's.

The program includes four pieces from Suite in D by Bach, Divertimento in D, Op. 136 by Mozart, Concerto Grosso Op. 6 No. 1 by Handel, the Arensky Variations on a theme by Tchaikovsky and St. Paul's Suite by Holst.

Tickets are available at the Porter's desk in Hart House. Women by invitation only.

Callboard

ART

In Hart House, that notorious and controversial showing by Coughtry and Snow. Women are admitted to the gallery from 4 to 6 o'clock today.

The showing of the Ontario Society of Artists is now in the Dundas Street Gallery.

DRAMA

Mavor Moore's musical version of Stephen Leacock's Sunshine Town is playing at the Royal Alexandra until Saturday. There is a special student rate for today's matinee. Upon presentation of ATL card, by arrangement of the cultural division of the Blue and White, tickets may be obtained for $1.00.

Beauty and the Beast stays at the Crest until Saturday. Next Tuesday they open with their first Shakespearean production — Twelfth Night, as their anniversary play. The cast is headed by Frances Hyland, as Olivia, Donald Davis as Malvolio, Barbara Chilcott as Viola and George McGowan as Orsino.

Trinity College present Arthur Miller's The Crucible in Hart House Theatre starting to-night and continuing until Saturday night.

MUSIC

The two hundred and sixty-first

Hart House Sunday concert with the Boyd Neel string orchestra will take place in the Great Hall this coming Sunday at nine o'clock.

The Carnegie Record Collection "welcomes all" this Thursday afternoon at 4:30 in the staff lounge of the Mechanical buildings. The Toscanini version of Beethoven's Missa Solemnis will be played.

Thursday at 8:45, Alexander Uninsky, pianist, will give a recital in the Eaton Auditorium.

MOVIES

For those who missed Caine Mutiny in either of its forms earlier, it is now showing at the Downtown.

The Belles of St. Trinian's has been provoking mixed reactions. Laughs from some and groans from others. It finally gets down to one of those delicate matters of taste that makes it impossible to recommend it to anyone without a character sketch.

There's no Business like Show Business in spite of obvious weaknesses (e.g. Marilyn Munroe) manages to be entertaining.

A Star is Born at the Imperial has several notable seals of approval upon it, not the least of which is box office sales.

W.R.M.

a reader writes:

The Ortho, The Varsity.

From an artistic viewpoint, the controversial pictures still on display in Hart House ought to be labelled as mere "cartoons." Indeed, THE VARSITY's own cartoonist produces superior art. This label is derived from the obvious fact that these erroneous masterpieces present the usual, deformed cartoon characters seen in the daily newspaper rather than the true-to-life effects which have been produced by superior artists.

Without exception, these cartoonists, cloaked by the title of artists, persist in displaying the feminine figure as the subject of their efforts. Now, the Greek sculptors, who were as interested in the artistic values of the human figure as these reputed artists say they are, subjected the male physique to their talents!

I suggest that the objectives of the involved persons are other than artistic distinction. Douglas Love, (I UC)

HOCKEY BLUES

Speaking ^{1/2} OF SPORT

By JOHN VOJTECH

Today we begin a new series entitled "How to play hockey in the intramural leagues and stay healthy." We shall begin with lessons one and two taken from a book written by that rising young coach C. Rackpot. Lessons one and two deal with stalling tactics which should be employed by teams using the straight time rule in their respective leagues.

"In the intramural leagues at Puddewet University, (P.U. for short,) we were confronted with various situations which seem worthy of being passed on to the reader. All hockey games were two periods of twenty minutes, straight time, long. This was in order to allow all of the teams in the leagues to compete at Mugwump Arena which was the only artificial ice arena in the tiny town of Puddewet Corners." So began a lengthy dissertation on various tactics used by various coaches."

"One way of getting around the straight time rule was to go all out in order to get that first goal. From there on in, the coaches instructed their players to stall until the game was over. As soon as a team got that one goal lead, they proceeded to change their players as often as possible, thereby wasting precious minutes of playing time. Thus in a period scheduled for twenty minutes, only ten to thirteen minutes, sometimes less, were utilized as playing time."

"We have this case exemplified in the recent Nours game in which the Nours team was slated as definitely the better. There were but two minutes left to play and the score was 2-1 in favor of the IIs team. Naturally, they started stalling. They changed their players at every opportunity. As soon as the players were ready for a faceoff, a noise was inevitably heard from the IIs bench. They wanted to change their players again."

"With less than a minute left to play, the IIs team was given a penalty and the faceoff was brought deep into IIs territory. The Nours team took out their goalie. It was a tense and dramatic moment with the silence broken only by the sound of the IIs team changing their players. Finally they got ready for a faceoff. The referee got ready to drop the puck. But then, just as the players braced themselves for the dropping of the puck, the bell sounded for the end of the game. And so another team was sent to defeat by a team whose only weapon was stalling."

"The second lesson deals with a penalty situation. When a team is short-handed, it should remember that the penalty starts — straight time — as soon as the referee drops the puck at the faceoff immediately after he has called the infraction. Then once the puck has been dropped all you have to do is to get another faceoff called. Then change your players again. You will note that in practically no playing time at all, your penalized player will be back on the ice."

So wrote C. Rackpot. Since we have seen some of the above mentioned events taking place in the Toronto intramural leagues we contacted C. Rackpot and asked him how we could remedy those situations. To his advice we humbly bow our heads.

"The last minute or two of the final period should be played stop-time. Then, too, the final period should be started at least twenty-five minutes before the allotted time for the game expires. The penalties should be served stop-time so that a team is penalized the full two-minutes playing time."

It seemed to us that these little bits of wisdom were quite logical. It also seemed to all of us that although the present system of straight time did have its advantages, it was time for a change. After all, there is no offense against stalling tactics.

MEET LAVAL FRIDAY

Red and Gold Debut at Varsity Red Stephen Returns to Action

Varsity's Hockey Blues will be after their fourth straight league victory this Friday night when the Red and Gold of Laval University invade Varsity Arena for their first Toronto appearance this season. The Blues will be considerably strengthened for this contest with the return of captain and clever defenceman Red Stephen, who has fully recovered from a hernia operation undergone in December.

Stephen was skating with the team in practice last night as Coach Kennedy put the Blues through a rigorous hour in preparation for the Quebec club. In their last meeting before Christmas, the Blues knocked off the frenchmen by a score of 5-2 in Quebec City. Laval, however, are a big, rough club, and are capable of doing plenty of damage to the Blues in one night.

Kennedy will again depend on his big first line of Dave Reid, Paul Knox, and Clare Fisher. Reid and Knox are sitting high atop the league scoring race, with seven and five points respectively, while Fisher is not far behind with four points.

Centre Tom Riley and winger Mert Wright have both gone down to Jack Wheldrake's Intermediates for the balance of the season, but will be subject to recall by the parent Blues at any time. They will add strength to a young but agile club who are preparing for their season openers on Thursday and Friday.

The Blues have an enviable record of seven games in which they are undefeated, four of which were exhibition tilts played during the holidays. In the last week of December they knocked off Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, St. Francis Xavier, and Yale University to win RPI's fourth invitation tournament. The RPI club were last year's NCAA champions. Last Saturday the Blues fought to a 3-3 tie with highly-rated St. Lawrence University and just missed a win in the late stages of the third period.

Laval will be led by veteran Robert Lafreniere, last season's second highest scorer on the Laval club, as well as Maurice Lagace and Lorne Arsenault. The acquisition of Gerard Houle from the University of Montreal Carabins strengthens the Red and Gold at the blueline immeasurably. Last year's league champions, Laval will be out for revenge after the beating received in Quebec last month, and the net result should be a night of colorful hockey.

Basketball Blues Meet Mac In Intercol Opener Tonight

Varsity Blues open the Intercollegiate Basketball season against McMaster Marauders in Hamilton tonight, and first game though it is, it's do or die for the Blues. Having their best line-up in recent years, the Varsitytypes are a favored team for the first division in the Intercollegiate League this year, but injuries and the Christmas holiday lay-off have dulled the sharp edge that was expected to develop on the team, leaving them in an uncertain position for tonight's game.

McMaster are one team that are always strongest at home. Last year they were greatly assisted by their hometown crowds who extended their support beyond simple cheering to pelt pennies and similar trifles at visiting coaches and players.

Should the Blues lose this game they would have to hope that somehow Western and Assumption could beat each other's brains out, something they failed to do last year, both ending up as co-champions while Varsity, because of a single chance defeat earlier in the season, missed by just that margin. Because of the rivalry between Mac and Varsity, the fact that the game is to be played on the Mac court and that several top Varsity players are suffering from injuries, this game shapes up as a very important one for the Blues.

Losers in five of their first six games, the Varsity are, nonetheless, a powerful club and should be the League's best once they hit top form. The comb of Peter Potter Don Fawcett and Leo Madden, working with Alf Vaichulis and George Stulac provide the Blues with one of their outstanding units, fast, accurate shooters all, they lack only the height to compare with such gigantic squads as the Western Mustangs, but they have plenty of ability.

For the McMaster Marauders

there are several players of top quality who are sure to give the Blues trouble in abundance in tonight's game. Bert Raphael, and a newcomer, a man who is said to have done well in US College ball, one Long Jim Sheppard, make for a solid nucleus for the Marauders to work around. Art Binnington's injured back removes one of the tall men that the Blues could have used to counteract these Mac stars, while a long absence from basketball has slowed Marv Tile, though the big man is coming back into shape.

Big reason for George Stulac's failure to play up to former standards is a case of weak ankles that have lessened George effectiveness in rebounding. His play is expected to improve greatly once the ankles are stronger and he overcomes his discouragement.

The Baby Blues face Don Fawcett's old team, the McMaster Buccaneers in the preliminary. More successful than their senior brethren, the Baby Blues are quite a strong unit and are favored over their less known opponents for this evening. Rube Richman and Jerry Wojdon are the Baby Blues strongest players and both are expected to lead their club tonight to victory.

Court Comments

BY BILL CORCORAN

What's the matter with the Blues? Individually they are probably the best collection of ballplayers that have graced this campus for some time. Collectively last Saturday night they looked terrible.

It is granted that Stulac played on a badly sprained ankle and Madden and Brauthwaite might have been slowed down slightly by their ankle injuries. All this does not get to the real reason for the floundering of this talented outfit. This fester in the health of the Blues is that there are two clubs playing for Toronto at any given time. There are the little men and the big men, the in men and the out men.

Both are at fault. The out men do not pass the ball in often enough, and the big men, when it is passed in, do not shoot; they just pass off. The first result is that the little men, seeing no point in passing it in just to get it passed out again, shoot the ball up the first time. The result of this is that the big men, not handling the ball too often, lose their confidence in shooting and their desire in rebounding.

It is essential that the scoring is spread at least between inside and outside men. A player, after scoring a hoop, gets a lift. Immediately after, he runs harder, checks more aggressively, rebounds more viciously, and shoots with all the confidence in the world. The result, as the records prove, is that individual scoring goes in bursts. In the terminology of the game, a player gets "hot" and may shoot four to eight points in succession.

You can't win ballgames with your big men "cooled out" all evening. And although this is starting to sound like a jam session the fact remains, that to win, Varsity needs the big men in there both shooting and rebounding.

They didn't do either of these in the last half of the Alfred game and the performance was reminiscent of the St. Hilda's Freshies with certain minor alterations of course. If the big men start to shoot they will score, and the rest should look after itself. Included in this "the rest" is the title which the fans want, which Metras is tired of (oh yes he is) and which this ball team has the ability to win.

A Note to Fans . . . Watch the result at McMaster tonight . . . A Blue win with not more than a five-point spread (if Ivor Wynne keeps the light shining over the Blue hoop and the campus is broke—no pennies).

This is the first in a series of basketball articles by Mr. Corcoran. The next one will appear next Wednesday.

Intermediate Blues Face Osgoode In Opening Tilt For Both Teams

Varsity's Intermediate hockey squad swings into action this week facing Osgoode in their opening game Thursday. Varsity split with the Legalites last season and are promised even stronger opposition this year.

Boasting such past Varsity hockey notables as Joe "Crusher" Kane and Jerry Fitzhenry the Osgoode club are quite confident of a Thursday victory. Followers of past Varsity hockey wars will well remember Joe Kane and his crashing play at defence for the Seniors. Jerry Fitzhenry, as well as playing for the hockey team, directed the football Blues from the quarter position.

To face the more experienced Osgoode club Varsity will ice a team of predominately first and second year men. Gone will be the Intermediate's big line of last season of Primeau, Robillard, and Fisher but the appearance of several outstanding Freshmen prospects promises more over-all strength than present last year. Back in action at left wing again this year will be Joe Walker while the return of Herb Tilson and John Prendergast to the defence will serve to steady the more inexperienced newcomers.

Down from the Senior team in the past week are Tom Riley and Mert Wright both of whom although on immediate recall to the Blues, should make their presence felt when the team opens action Thursday. Also with the Blues on their recent exhibition tour, but not eligible for league competition, was freshman Don Borthwick at present touring with the Intermediates at centre.

Locker room elections last night saw the selection of Mert Wright as this year's Intermediate team captain. Dud Kearney, in his first year with the team, and Barry Smith, a returning veteran, were elected to the assistant captain positions. Varsity will take to the ice at 4:30 Thursday afternoon at the arena to tackle the Osgoode greats.

on the sideline

BY FLO MIDDLETON

Wanted—girls! — no, don't worry this column has not degenerated into a classified ad of the Engineering Society for girls for one of its fall freshman dances, but rather it would like to bring to the attention of the women of this campus that there is a need for their participation in intercollegiate basketball.

Before you jump to the conclusion that you have to have played for the Harlem Globetrotters, let me remove this crazy idea from your cerebrum. All that is required is that you have played b-ball before and that you would like to pursue this interest this term.

Your chances of making the team are excellent as there are at least five openings on the Senior Team and it just so happens that there is an intermediate team which needs a good twelve players. What harm could be lost in turning out to practice at the OCE gym come Thursday at 5:30. The way the situation is, anybody has a chance.

If you happen to be one of those souls who does get out, at least you will have a decided advantage over your apathetic sisters who sit around all day and do nothing in the way of participating in campus activities because the experience gained and the fundamentals taught at the practices will certainly stand you in good stead for next year's interfaculty games and a position on the 1956 version of the Blue's Intercollegiate team.

This year there is a definite added incentive for basketball enthusiasts to make their appearance felt at try-outs as the Intermediate team is going to have not only a coach but also some definitely arranged games.

The new Intermediate coach is Jane Timmins who herself is an old Varsity Intercollegiate star and a grad of St. Mike's. As far as games go, so that you will not feel that because you are on the Intermediate team you are playing second fiddle to the basketball interests of this university, you will be kept quite busy in a league comprising Ryerson and McMaster. Also it must be remembered that the Intermediate squad is the feeder team and that if you hope to play with the Seniors you usually serve your apprenticeship with the Intermediates.

So come on girls, let's get over to OCE gym on Thursday at 5:30 and prove to the world that Varsity has the material with which to make a Intercollegiate Championship team.

Harding, Harris Tied For First In 50-yd. Sprint

Monday night's opening of the indoor track season resulted in an upset in the fifty yard sprint. Monty Harris, the O.C.E. flash, tied Dick Harding of Skule in 5.6 seconds. John Sopinka, who tied the record of 5.3 seconds last year, only gained a three way tie for second with a 5.8 second effort. Sharing the second place honors were Ross Linton of U.C. and Ron Price of Vic.

A. Deacon of Vic had an easy victory in the junior division, with a time of 5.8 seconds for the fifty yard distance. P. Booth of S.P.S. was second and R. MacLean of Meds was third.

S.P.S. won the 628 yard relay in 1:11.0 with a team composed of Harding, Mason Gelling and Drummond. U.C. was second, Meds third and Vic last.

Photographers
are needed for
THE VARSITY

Apply now to Ed Hoshkiw
Varsity Office

Basement — SAC Building

EXPORT
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

For Money, Not Glory Christmas Jobs Analyzed

By MARY ALICE HUNTER

Last of all there are a few slobs who scarcely worth mentioning, who stay home to write essays and catch up on their reading.

There are some ambitious souls on this campus who are not content to slave over essays and tests, but who feel that they must work at Christmas time also. This has always seemed like a repulsive idea to me, although I must confess that I do get tired of all my books being in the pawnshop until March, in order to pay for Christmas presents. These energetic types who works, however, run around in a disgustingly complacent and wealthy fashion, even to the extent of giving the waitress a tip in restaurants.

Where do these plutocrats work, was the question that took me on a long and arduous trek to such dens of iniquity as the Arbour Room and even the odd lecture.

Apparently fifty per cent of the male student population works for Stollery's

Fifty per cent of the female student population shops at Stollery's. Another snake-pit for prospective patients is the Post Office. Here you have a choice between the Strangler's Shift from two to six, or the Night Owl's Nightmare which involves getting up all alone in the wee hours.

There are also the exclusive or not so exclusive ladies' wear shops. These are particularly important because of the DISCOUNT (usually said in italics with baited breath). The employees also get a salary. An intricate system is usually set up on such occasions. A girl named Ann has a friend named Joan working in the Belle Boutique or the Wee Furre Shoppe. Ann tells Joan, that if Bill her (Ann's — this is complicated I admit) boy-friend comes in, to be sure to show him that darling little ermine scarf with the purple satin lining. Then Ann mentions coyly to Bill that dear old Joanie is working in the Boutique, and if he is ever around, to be sure to drop in and see her, since she will be lonely in the long winter afternoons.

This rather surprises Bill, since Ann usually hisses like a wounded python if he so much as says hello to Joan. Suddenly, however, inspiration strikes. He will go in and see if Joan has any ideas for a Christmas present for Ann.

He goes, she has, and everyone is happy, except that in the process Bill falls in love with Joan and gives her the scarf. There's many a slip twixt a scarf and a wink.

DELTA GAMMA FRATERNITY
presents

ANCHOR BALL

Saturday, January 15, 1955

ROYAL YORK HOTEL

Proceeds for C.N.I.B.

For Tickets: Phone HU. 9-3873 — Couple $3.00

Dancing 9 - 12 p.m.

SPORTS SCHEDULES

Week of January 17th

HOCKEY

Mon., Jan. 17 12:30 —St. M. B vs. Dent A — Fisher, Reid
1:30 —For. A vs. Law — Naylor, Dysart
7:30 —Pharm vs. Arch — Lotocki, Naden

Tues., Jan. 18 1:30 —Sr. Vic vs. Sr. SPS — Smith, Yakimoff
4:00 —St. M. C vs. Dent. C — Lotocki, Naden

Wed., Jan. 19 1:30 —Dent. B vs. Trin. B — Reid, Fisher

Thurs., Jan. 20 4:00 —St. M. A vs. Sr. Vic — Riley, Stephen
5:30 —Vic. III vs. SPS III — Dysart, Siegel
6:30 —Enman vs. Knox — Siegel, Dysart

WATER POLO

Mon. Jan. 17 4:15 —Med. IV vs. SPS III — Gryfe, O'Reilly

Tues., Jan. 18 4:15 —SPS IV vs. Trin. B — Wilson, Glumac
5:00 —Dent. vs. Med. III — Wilson, Glumac
7:15 —For. B vs. Pharm — Rambusch, Quinlan

Wed., Jan. 19 1:00 —Med. II vs. SPS II — Gryfe, Glumac
4:15 —For. A vs. Law — Gryfe, Callahan

Thurs., Jan. 20 5:00 —Med. I vs. SPS I — Wilson, Rambusch
5:45 —Trin. B vs. SPS V — Wilson, Rambusch
7:00 —Arch vs. Dent — Quinlan, O'Reilly

Fri., Jan. 21 1:00 —Med. V vs. SPS IV — Callahan, Gryfe
4:15 —St. M. B vs. Med. IV — Rambusch, O'Reilly

BASKETBALL — Major League

Mon., Jan. 17 1:00 —SPS IV vs. ST. M. B — J. Love, Matthews
4:00 —Vic III vs. Med. III — Dolman, Matthews

Tues., Jan. 18 4:00 —Enman vs. For. B — Juriga, Iglar
6:30 —Jr. U.C. vs. Dent. A — Banks, Stefanliw
7:30 —SPS V vs. Dent. II Yr. — Banks, Stefanliw

Wed., Jan. 19 8:30 —Trin. C vs. SPS VII — Banks, Stefanliw
1:00 —Sr. SPS vs. Sr. U.C. — Scott, Thomson
6:00 —Med. IV vs. SPS IX — Stefanliw, Gray

Thurs. Jan. 20 4:00 —SPS III vs. Law A — Holt, Mandel
4:00 —U.C. V vs. Pre-Dent — Thomson, Juriga
6:30 —Dent. III Yr. vs. Trin. C — Scott, Dolman
7:30 —St. M. B vs. Dent. B — Scott, Dolman
8:30 —Vic. IV vs. Dent. I Yr. — Scott, Dolman

Fri., Jan. 21 1:00 —SPS VIII vs. U.C. IV — Sachar, Mandel
4:00 —For. A vs. Pharm A — Scott, Thomson
6:30 —St. M. C vs. Dent. IV Yr. — Juriga, Sheppard
7:30 —SPS VI vs. Trin. B — Juriga, Sheppard

SQUASH

Mon., Jan. 17 1:00 —Jr. SPS vs. Trin. B
4:20 —Jr. U.C. vs. Law

Tues., Jan. 18 5:40 —Sr. Med vs. Dent. A
6:20 —Dent. E vs. Pharm. C
7:00 —Dent. D vs. Pharm. B — Iglar

Wed., Jan. 19 4:20 —U.C. II vs. Dent. B
7:00 —Med. V vs. Dent. C

Thurs., Jan. 20 1:00 —Jr. SPS vs. Pre-Med
Fri., Jan. 21 5:00 —Vic vs. Pharm A

SPORTS SCHEDULES

Week of January 17th

BASKETBALL — Minor League (Hart House)

Mon., Jan. 17 1:00 —Vic Gate House vs. Med. I Yr. — McLay
4:00 —St. M. House 2 vs. II Eng. Bus — Glass
5:00 —Vic Leathersiders vs. Med. III Yr. B — Glass
6:00 —Med. III Yr. A vs. III Eng. Bus — Glass

Tues., Jan. 18 1:00 —II Metal vs. U.C. Geogs — Szarka
4:00 —II Aero vs. Vic Life Wires — Moriarty
6:30 —II Geol vs. Med. IV Yr. B — Iglar
7:30 —U.C. Taylor vs. Med. II Yr. — Iglar
8:30 —IV Geol vs. Dent. IV Yr. — Iglar

Wed., Jan. 19 1:00 —I Mech A vs. I Elec A — Sone
4:00 —For. III Yr. vs. Knox Beetles — McLay
5:00 —II Elec vs. Dent. III Yr. — McLay
6:00 —Vic Cannibals vs. I Eng. Phys. A — Grosfield
7:00 —Vic Gate House vs. II Chem. A — Grosfield
8:00 —Arch. B vs. Pharm. Festies — Grosfield

Thurs., Jan. 20 1:00 —U.C. M & P vs. I Chem. A — Szarka
4:00 —St. M. More House vs. II Civil — Nelman
6:30 —Pre-Med II A vs. II Eng. Bus — Giblon
7:30 —Dent. IV Yr. vs. IV Eng. Bus — Giblon

Fri., Jan. 21 1:30 —Vic Leathersiders vs. II Metal — Sone
4:30 —For. IV Yr. vs. Arch. B — Shpunlarsky
5:00 —Dent. II Yr. vs. U.C. Louden — Shpunlarsky
6:00 —I Elec A vs. Trin. Tigers — Shpunlarsky

BASKETBALL — Minor League (Vic Gym)

Mon., Jan. 17 4:00 —U.C. McCaul vs. St. M. House 90 — Caplan
5:00 —Trin Fox Trotters vs. I Chem. C — Caplan
6:00 —Pharm Antons vs. Pharm. Cations — Caplan

Tues., Jan. 18 4:00 —U.C. Jounneret vs. St. M. Irish Flat — Pocklington
5:00 —Vic Ryerson vs. Pre-Dent — Pocklington
6:00 —I Eng. Phys. B vs. Pre-Med I B — Fitzgerald
7:30 —Knox Cadavers vs. For. I Yr. — Fitzgerald
8:00 —Vic South House vs. I Mech. C — Fitzgerald

Wed., Jan. 19 4:00 —U.C. Tigers vs. Vic Thugs — D. Love
5:00 —Vic North House vs. I Mining — D. Love
6:00 —I Metal vs. U.C. Hawks — Gryfe
7:00 —I Elect. B vs. Trin Jets — Gryfe

Thurs., Jan. 20 4:00 —U.C. Sammlies vs. Vic River Rats — Moriarty
5:00 —I Chem. B vs. I Aero — Moriarty
6:00 —Vic Boobs vs. I Chem. C — Moriarty
7:00 —Pharm Cations vs. Wye. B — D. Love
8:00 —St. M. House 96 vs. I Mech. B — D. Love

Fri., Jan. 21 4:00 —Trin 99ers vs. St. M. House 13 — Helsel
5:00 —Vic L'il Oakers vs. I Eng. Bus — Helsel

TEAM MANAGERS PLEASE NOTE — ELIGIBILITY CERTIFICATES FOR EACH TEAM MUST BE FILED IN INTRAMURAL OFFICE. IF YOUR CERTIFICATE IS NOT YET FILED PLEASE ATTEND TO IT WITHOUT DELAY.

TODAY

WEDNESDAY

1:00 p.m. — BAHAI STUDENT GROUP—open meeting—Speaker, Mr. George Snelgrove. Falconer Hall, Seminar room.

1:00, 1:50 p.m. — UC FRENCH CINE CLUB — Documentary Film: "La Riviere et Les Hommes." Room 6, UC. Free.

4:00 p.m. — UTDU, Interfaculty Debating Tournament. St. Mike's Men vs. Nursing — Brennan Hall.

5:00 p.m. — UNDERGRAD PHARMACEUTICAL Soc. Open House Comm. Lunch room.

7:30 p.m. — CIRCLE—K. Speaker, Ed Mitchell, Exco. Dir. of K. Clubs. Debates Anti-room.

7:45 p.m. — Food Chemistry Club. Lecture and Discussion. Falconer Hall.

8:00 p.m. — PRESBYTERIAN FELLOWSHIP, Rev. John Ross—"Christian Deviations" — UC Women's Union.

8:15 p.m. — U of T SPANISH CLUB—Movies, Pinata Pageant. Vic Union, Music room.

GIRLS HOCKEY

The game scheduled for Friday, Jan. 14—4:00-5:00 between U.C. I and St. Mike's has been cancelled.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY 1:30 —Sr. Med vs. Sr. U.C. — Smith, Riley

WATER POLO 1:00 —Med. V vs. Vic. II — Glumac, Gryfe
4:15 —Trin. A vs. St. M. B — Wilson, Callahan

BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE 1:00 —SPS IX vs. U.C. V — Thomson, Turack
4:00 —Law A vs. Sr. Vic — Thomson, Sukmanowski
5:00 —Med. III vs. SPS V — Scott, Kains
6:00 —Pharm. A vs. Arch A — Scott, Kains
7:00 —Dent. IV Yr. vs. SPS VII — Callahan, Stefanliw
8:00 —Dent. I Yr. vs. SPS VIII — Callahan, Stefanliw

BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE) 1:00 —II Eng. Bus vs. II Elec — Gray
4:00 —St. M. House 63 vs. M & P — Juriga
5:00 —Med. III Yr. B vs. II Metal — Glass
6:00 —Med. IV Yr. B vs. Dent. II Yr. — Sone
7:00 —Pharm. Festies vs. For. IV Yr. — Sone
8:00 —I Chem. A vs. St. M. House 63 — Sone

BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM) 4:00 —Vic Boobs vs. Trin Fox Trotters — Fitzgerald
5:00 —Vic River Rats vs. I Chem. B — Fitzgerald
6:00 —I Chem. C vs. I Mech. D — Fitzgerald

GAMES THURSDAY 5:00 —Wye vs. For. A — Glumac, Rambusch
5:45 —SPS I vs. Med. II — Rambusch, Wilson

BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE 1:00 —Jr. Vic vs. Jr. SPS — Holt, Turack
6:30 —U.C. III vs. Dent. B — Juriga, Sheppard
7:30 —For. B vs. Pharm. B — Juriga, Sheppard

BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE) 1:00 —I Chem. A vs. St. M. Fisher — Kostiw
4:00 —U.C. Commrce vs. Pre-Med II A (Game Postponed)
6:30 —For. II Yr. vs. Pharm Mortars — Shpunlarsky
7:30 —U.C. Huston vs. Dent. I Yr. — Shpunlarsky

BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM) 4:00 —U.C. Tigers vs. St. M. House I — Moriarty
5:00 —I Eng. Phys vs. Trin. 99ers — Moriarty
6:00 —U.C. Omegas vs. Pre-Med II B — Moriarty
7:00 —Wye. B vs. Pharm Antons — Szroz
8:00 —Pharm Cations vs. Knox Cadavers — Szroz

CUP

Runneth-Over

Here are the latest gleanings from the papers of the Canadian University Press and US Exchange.

University of California: In one of the most sensible editorials we have seen in a long time, the editor of the Daily Californian pointed out that the U.S. state department has set twenty-seven per cent of the United States "off limits" to Russian travellers as retaliation against Russia which has restricted 30 per-cent of its territory. "President Eisenhower has apparently over-looked the sterling opportunity of encouraging Communist China to release the 13 Americans she has jailed as spies by arresting an equal number of Chinese citizens here on equally trumped up charges."

The editorial goes on to say: "The dangerous precedent of retaliation by imitation that the State Department is setting gives real cause for alarm. The cause of peace and democracy which America has traditionally espoused can hardly be furthered by policies consciously matching the Soviets in the suppression of freedom."

Western: To Lois Batram, editor of the Western Gazette, go Varsity's congratulations for having won two trophies in eight days. The first was at the CUP conference where she got the Jacques Bureau for general excellence among weekly papers. The second was at the New St. James Presbyterian Church where she got Bill Scott (news editor of the local radio station) for life.

CUP Upsets Ryersonian

The Ryersonian, the student publication of the Ryerson Institute of Technology, evidently is feeling quite upset over their exclusion from the Canadian University Press.

In a recent issue of their paper, a front page box states that the reason for the rejection of the Ryersonian by the CUP was CUP's fear that the Ryersonian might be "too good." The Ryersonian offered to conduct correspondence courses for other Canadian Catholic papers to raise their standards to the Ryersonian's so the Tech paper could then join.

In point of fact, the chief reason given at the CUP conference for the rejection of the Ryersonian was that Ryerson was not a recognized University or College, but merely a technical school.

Other reasons for the rejection of The Ryersonian's application by the CUP conference were that the paper was published solely by the School of Journalism, and not by the students as a whole, and that the paper was too much under the heel of the faculty.

The Varsity supported The Ryersonian's application for membership.

Coming-Up

THURSDAY

1:00 p.m. — U of T CCF — Sam Clasky — "Hist. Background of British Socialism" — Room 4, U.C.
—SCM — Ted Black "What is Sin?" — SCM room, Hart House.
—UC PLAYER'S GUILD—Charlotte Schrager: Lectures on breath-control and voice-production. Rm. 52L, U.C.

4:00 p.m. — CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION — Beethoven's Missa Solemnis. Mech. Bldg., staff lounge.

8:00 p.m. — FINE ART CLUB—Panel Discussion: "Art thru the Media of TV and Motion Pictures." All welcome. Falconer Hall.
—HILLEL FOUNDATION — Rabbi Kamerling's classes. Beginner's Hebrew. 9:00 — Philosophy of Judaism, 186 St. George St.

SKI TRIP

January 28 - 31 to St. Sauveur

There is a limited amount of accommodation still available for students wishing to go on the Ski Trip.

Make your reservations now at the SAC Office!

ONTARIO HYDRO

Offers

CAREERS FOR ENGINEERS

Group Meeting: Friday, January 14th, 1:00 p.m.
Room 21, Electrical Building.

Individual Interviews: Monday through Friday—
January 17th to 21st.

For appointment lists, application forms, etc. consult Faculty Office.

Atomic Energy Of Canada

LIMITED

Chalk River, Ontario

Requires for its expanding RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT and PLANT OPERATING PROGRAMMES, particularly in connection with the development of atomic power, the following graduates and post-graduates:

CHEMICAL ENGINEERS
CHEMISTS
ENGINEERING PHYSICISTS
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS
MATHEMATICIANS MECHANICAL ENGINEERS
PHYSICISTS

Appointment times and application forms can be obtained from the office of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

Applications for summer employment from third year students and graduates are also invited.

Interviews will be held at the University on January 13th, 14th and 15th. Please give your interviewer a completed application form. There will be separate appointment schedules for scientific personnel and for plant engineering applicants.

EATON'S

Ravishing,
Rustling,
Taffeta

Very N.E. for the second term! Our full, crisp taffeta party skirt... intriguing, with a whispering rustle as it swishes out over your frothiest, frilliest crinoline! Best of all — it's reversible — woven stripes on one side, starry snowflakes on the other.

Black with contrast the colour of gold, powder, blue or pink, sizes 10 to 16.

Each 14.95

SPORTSWEAR

Main Store — Fourth Floor (Dept. 246)

T. EATON & Co.

SAC Budget Runs Low Need More Money Now

Practical Journalism

Deep concentration and methodical planning result in the fine production of THE VARSITY every morning. One of the many conferences held every evening is pictured here. THE VARSITY has a limited amount of space for aspiring students who are capable of the careful work required from all staff members.

—VSP by John Le Gallian

Students Face Choice NFCUS or SAC Activities?

Choice between membership in a nation-wide body of students or a possible curtailment of local student activities appeared today as the dilemma facing University of Toronto student representatives.

In an effort to find its way out of the ticklish quandary, Students' Administrative Council at a regular session Wednesday night decided to put the finger on all faculties and colleges to keep tab on what "the average student" would choose.

If the SAC members report back next fortnight that their constituents want to remain within the organization — The National Federation of Canadian University Students — the following motion will seek ratification:

That the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto expresses the desire to maintain membership in NFCUS at the membership fee of 20-cents per student as budgeted for during 1954-55 and that for the year 1955-56, this council will budget from its increased revenue on the basis of 50-cents per student to NFCUS to conform to the uniform national membership fee.

This year's 20-cent-per-student fee was ordered increased to 50-cents-per-student at a nation-wide NFCUS convention held here last fall.

At the moment, all students here are automatically members of NFCUS since 20-cents of the fees they donate annually to Simcoe Hall, finds its way to NFCUS.

Decision by SAC on whether the 30-cent increase to NFCUS will be paid by Toronto next year must be concluded by January 31st. Toronto is not to be kicked out of NFCUS for this year.

Discussing the question of finding enough money to meet the sharp increase, SAC President Bill Angus said he considered an increase in enrollment anticipated next year by Simcoe Hall officials would be sufficient to meet the commitment. He called the question of membership in NFCUS "an issue of national importance."

Finance Commissioner Allert Walden called Angus "overly optimistic" in counting on increased enrollment to pay the fee raise. Ian Scott, St. Mike's, felt that if there were more funds from enrollment they should be used for campus activities rather than NFCUS.

Speaking for the Canadian university organization, Gord Hurlburt, Engineering rep, said that he had "come to praise NFCUS, not to bury it." In replying to the question "What does NFCUS do for me?" he cited such activities as the travel service, which saves students money. Currently NFCUS is also approaching provincial governments on the question of more scholarships for needy students.

Michael Shoemaker, Trinity rep, felt that U of T could not afford NFCUS at the expense of curtailment university activities. "Charity begins at home," he told the other SAC members.

The question of the fee raise is being referred to the college councils for their approval or disapproval. U of T's future membership in NFCUS will depend on whether or not this raise is passed by the SAC.

Jane Farquharson, UC, thought that Toronto should retain NFCUS membership. "U of T and NFCUS objectives are not poles apart," she said.

Currently NFCUS is composed of nearly every university in Canada, with the exception of Acadia and Montreal.

U.K. Professor Deplores Decline, Too Many Eggs In Few Baskets

The relative decline of Britain's economy since 1920—due to her reluctance to change—was pictured yesterday by Professor John H. Habakkuk of Cambridge University, England. Professor Habakkuk said that the United Kingdom's economy was still too specialized on declining industries, and was putting "too many eggs in too few baskets".

Speaking before a large audience in the Economics Building, the professor stated that up until 1920 Britain's industrial production had been successfully geared to the demands of the newer and developing countries for basic industrial goods. The reason for Britain's early lead in the field of industry was her head start in the Industrial Revolution.

Up until the first world war, Professor Habakkuk said, Britain behaved rationally by concentrating on the production of these industrial staples. But by 1920, the picture was changing, and the income of the primary industries was expanding less rapidly.

British labor proved to be immobile, and the necessary shift from exporting to domestic industries was not taken, said the Cambridge professor. He said that Britain failed to diversify its exports and its investments, which it should have done in the long run.

Professor Habakkuk then went on to contrast the British and the US industrial and commercial scenes. American "easy-credit policy" helped the vast expansion of consumption in the US, but the British attitude toward credit was far more conservative and restrictive. Professor Habakkuk cited as an example of this the case of an English Mayor who could not even buy a loaf of bread on credit in his own city.

The Economic History Professor also pointed out that the American businessman had a higher standing in his community than his English counterpart. Because of this, British industry which provided relatively high rewards did not sufficiently develop or change.

Another reason for the lack of initiative in the British economic system was the separate schooling that was provided for the rich and poor in England. England thus had a class-feeling which a country such as Scotland lacked due to its single school system.

Professor Habakkuk said that the influence of gentility will always be greater in England than in the US. The dollar has more status than the pound, he said.

Professor Habakkuk noted however that the British workmen had taken to TV. TV sets are common in England, and this is an exception from the normal consumption habits in England.

Things are changing in England, said Professor Habakkuk, but the rate of change is too slow.

The Professor said that the British Socialist Movement had lost "the favour of an old-time Wesleyan Revival" which it had at one time possessed, and was turning into a normal political party.

Professor Habakkuk, who has just spent a fortnight in the United States on a visit, was spending his first day in Canada.

SAC Has Busy Night

Quartet Plans Fail

Plans for a Dave Brubeck Quartet concert on the U. of T. campus have fallen through. It was announced at the SAC meeting on Wednesday night. Originally the Blue and White Society had planned to sponsor such a concert in Convocation Hall on February 3.

However, the Blue and White hopes for a jazz session did not materialize, and as the only other possible date for such a concert was in March which was considered to be too close to exams, the idea had to be given up.

However, the Dave Brubeck Quartet will be giving a concert — their first in Canada — at the Oakville High School Auditorium on February 3. Tickets are available at the Promenade Music Center.

Varsity's Trophy

The Southern Trophy — annual Canadian journalistic award — was presented by Clyde Batten, Varsity Editor, to the Student Administrative Council at the regular meeting Wednesday night.

"We have a newspaper we can all be very proud of," said Ian Scott, Trinity, Publication Commissioner, in presenting the trophy. The prize is awarded to the best Canadian university newspaper published more than once a week.

Scott called the Varsity "A prophet received with honour in his own country." However, Gord Hurlburt, Engineering rep, felt that the Varsity was granted the award only because "Toke Oike was not in this contest."

Unmentionables, Undergrad Daily, Fill U.C. Debate

University students are not a "regrettable necessity".

This was decided here yesterday when students voted 29-14 to defeat a government motion at a session of the University College mock Parliament.

Professor R. F. McRae of the Philosophy Department found that the student needed no improvement in manners since by third year he had learned to be sufficiently dextrous in turning the pages of The Varsity not to inconvenience his classmates.

Professor G. Cotter said, "Surely undergraduates should be like other 'under' things — unmentionables!"

Contest Now Held Will Captivate Geniuses Budding

It has been unofficially estimated that there are 'hundreds and hundreds' of U. of T. students who are budding geniuses. Rather than let all this talent go to waste, a short story contest is being held — a chance for you to demonstrate your claims to fame. Quoth Peter Martin.

And if you win — apart from the other honours — the story will be published in New Liberty. Stories are submitted from camps across Canada, although the awards are regional.

So if you're a budding genius, or really anyone at all, your application will be eagerly received — on or before February 15.

The Short Story contest is sponsored by (nfcus).

B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation

ONEG SHABBAT

"Contemporary Judaism Series"

1. "The Concept of Satan in Jewish Literature"
2. "The Problem of Immortality"

Fri., Jan. 16 — 8:30 p.m.

RECORD NIGHT

Sun., Jan. 16 — 8:30 p.m.

Torontonensis

COME TO EVANGELINE NOW FOR YOUR NEW

Blouses and Skirts

You can make up attractive outfits for daytime or
"after-five" wear—at very little cost

This Blouse
made of wonderful wrinkle-free Dacron
—easy laundering—
needs no ironing.
Long pointed lapel
collar can be knotted as shown. White in sizes 12 to 20.

$6.98

BELOW

A smart new style in fine flannel with low placed cords—Black, Navy,
Brown—sizes 13 to 17.

$14.98

NEW BLOUSES

Come and see the newest styles in Dacron,
Swiss Voile, Linen and fine Cottons. They're just perfect for wear with separate skirts or suits. White and colors.
Sizes 12 to 20.

NEW SKIRTS

Slim-line or full with flares and unpressed pleats. A great choice in fine wool flannel, wool worsted, tweeds or taffeta. Black, Navy,
Brown, Greymix,
Charcoal and Pastels.
Sizes 12 to 20.

The Reversible Skirt
now in new pastel plaids.
Wear on either side—really
2 skirts in one. Sizes 9 to 15.

$25.00

Evangeline

IN HAMILTON
King & John Streets

OPEN HOUSE
FRIDAY EVENINGS
All stores except
Adelaide and Yonge

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 786 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 2414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pape
- 62A Bloor at Bay

Ottawa • Brockville • London • Guelph
Kingston • St. Catharines • Peterborough

TRINITY COLLEGE DRAMATIC SOCIETY presents

Arthur Miller's

THE CRUCIBLE

Wed., Jan. 12

TO

Sat., Jan. 15

8.30 P.M.

at

HART HOUSE THEATRE

TICKETS $1.00

Theatre Box Office

SAC at a Glance

The Students' Administrative Council Wednesday night besides discussing NFCUS. Scholarships and library hours:
—heard a progress report on the notice of motion for the B & W amendment which had at its first meeting resolved nothing and forwarded inquiries to other universities. Further meets will await replies.

—asked the return of Student Administration Relations Committee questionnaires due Jan. 5. They will be summarized.

—budgeted $3 for bread.

—learned that the WUS seminar at Caledon Jan. 14 - 16 had budgeted $3.00 for bread.

—heard nothing from several council members.

—were thanked for financing a "lost, strayed or stolen" trombone.

—applauded the VARSITY for winning the Southam Trophy.

—heard a letter from Pittsburg, termed nice by Sidney Smith, praising Toronto debaters.

—listened to SPS challenge Forestry in a wood chopping at Caledon winter carnival.

—learned return Carabin Weekend would be Feb. 10, 11, 12.

TODAY

1:00 p.m.—S.C.M.—Christian Life Group, John McRae, SCM rm, Hart House.

8:30 p.m.—HILLEL—Oneg Shabbat — Conception of Satan in Jewish Literature, Problems of Immortality—Hillel Foundation, 186 St. George St.

Literary?

All entries for the annual Literary Issue of The Varsity must be received in the paper's office by February 15. Entries will be accepted in the short story, essay, poem, and photographic sections.

COMING-UP

SUNDAY

9:00 a.m.—CANTERBURY CLUB—Corporate communion and breakfast — Church of the Redeemer, Avenue Rd. and Bloor.

2:15 p.m.—FILM SOCIETY—Film

"Paisan", at Museum Theatre.

2:30 p.m.—UKRAINIAN STUDENT'S CLUB — Dancing practice and choir rehearsal — St. Vladimir's Church.

7:30 p.m.—VCF — P. Letchford—Wycliffe College Chapel.

8:30 p.m.—ISO — "Why we have religion" — Dr. Hay on Protestantism — 403 Huron St.

—CANTERBURY CLUB—"Mental Health, Christianity, and you"—Rev. John Kerr, Chaplain of the Ontario Hospital — Church of the Redeemer Parish Hall.

—HILLEL—"Riginal Record Nite"—Hillel Foundation, 186 St. George.

MONDAY

4:00 p.m.—U of T CCF—Membership meeting—rm. 53, Economics bldg.

5:00 p.m.—UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S SKIING CLUB—General meeting — UC Women's Union.

St. Andrew's United

Bloor, near Subway at Yonge

Minister:

REV. W. MORRISON KELLY
B.A., B.D., S.T.M.

11 a.m. — "When God says 'No'"

7.30 p.m. — "The Jesus who heals"

EDGAR GOODAIRE,

Organist and Choir Director

Students are cordially invited to attend these Services.

Park Road Baptist Church

Park Road & Asquith Ave.

REV. C. G. STONE, D.D., Minister

Muriel Gidley Stafford, Organist

11:00 a.m. - 7:00 p.m.

DR. CHARLES G. STONE

Church of The Redeemer

Bloor Street. W. and Avenue Rd.

Rector:

Rev. Owen P. Fritchard, B.A., L.Th.

8 a.m.—HOLY COMMUNION

11 a.m.—Holy Communion

Sermon: "What Christ Loves Most"

7 p.m.—Evening Prayer

Sermon: "Our Proper Place"

Preacher at 11 a.m. & 7 p.m.

The Rector, C. H. Densmore

Organist and Choirmaster.

St. James' Cathedral

SECOND SUNDAY AFTER EPIPHANY

8.00 a.m.—Holy Communion.

8.30 a.m.—Mattins.

9.15 a.m.—Holy Communion.

11.00 a.m.—Choral Eucharist.

Sermon:

The Reverend Ronald Adeney

The Church Mission to the Jews, Israel.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

7.00 p.m. Evensong — Ninth sermon in a course on

CHRISTIAN FAITH AND

PRACTICE.

Sermon: The Dean.

Holy Communion: Tuesday—

10:30 a.m.; Wednesday—7:00

a.m.; Friday—7:30 a.m.

Mattins and Evensong—daily at 9:00 a.m. (Tuesday 10:00 a.m.)

and 5:15 p.m.

BLOOR

Ministers:

Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall Howse

Rev. Walter C. Sellars

Organist and Choirmaster

Frederick C. Silvester

11 a.m.

CONVOCATION HALL

BELIEVING THE PROMISE

Rev. W. C. Sellars

7.30 p.m.

TRINITY UNITED CHURCH

THE DESIRE FOR SECURITY

Dr. E. Crossley Hunter

The CAMPUS CLUB meets in

Bloor Street United Church

Assembly Hall following the

Evening Service at Trinity,

Sunday, January 16th, 1955.

Watch For It!

THE WINTER CARNIVAL

JAN. 18

NEXT WEEK

JAN. 23

More From Marcus

By BILL SMYTH

Have you ever seen people more ill at ease than on a subway car? They spend all their time casting furtive glances at their fellow commuters — wondering if they are casting furtive glances at them. If you follow me.

Just this morning for instance, I had an experience which would shake the faith of the strongest of men — even those who bury themselves in the Globe and Mail, or Principles of Integral Calculus. But it is necessary first to explain the circumstances.

Now everybody at this university knows a great many people by sight — and there are a number of these whose names are eternally unknown — people that you pass on the campus and say "Hi! Mbshpltk" to. We cheat ourselves into thinking that this presents the illusion that we know the name of the person we are talking to.

But really we don't. There are very few people named Mbshpltk even on such a cosmopolitan campus as this. But it gives a feeling of security for if we ever have to introduce one of these people, we can always say: "Oh, I thought that your name was Mbshpltk."

Well now, I met one of these people this morning, named Mb-99, or so I call him, on the subway. This subway car was not like other subway cars — it was not crowded. In other words, it was a 'poor' subway car, a bad one on which to meet a Mb-xx

This individual sat on the other side of the car. I looked at him. He looked at me. I looked at the advertisement saying "Olives? Of course." He looked at the back of my head in the window. Now if there is one place where I don't like being looked at, that's it — due no doubt to a nasty fall in my childhood (first). Which carries over to my present state (second). I glared ferociously at this individual. The trouble is that he glared back. Perhaps he wrote one of the other advertisements.

But I'm not sure. I think that I must have wronged this fellow sometime in the past — perhaps ran over his helpless old grandmother, or sicked our cat on his helpless bloodhound, aged 24 and suffering from senile decay. If dogs become senile.

However, Mb-99, I hereby apologize for whatever I did for you — I'd hate to lose my friends.

Dean Tells Skule "Common Day" Best

You should find a reasonable balance between your efforts spent on work, recreation, relationships and community service, to be able to derive satisfaction from all of them. Dr. Samuel R. Laycock said Wednesday night.

Retired Dean of Education at the University of Saskatchewan and a graduate of this University, Dr. Laycock spoke at the Second Engineering Society Lecture, in Convocation Hall, on "The Common Day".

Stressing the importance of work, he pointed out that it was one of the great blessings of the human race, although often condemned. A professional, he said, if he chose his profession wisely, should derive immense satisfaction from it. He should look forward to work as life's fulfillment, and read his professional journals assiduously.

Your relationships, with others, yourselves, the Universe and with God will be just as important to you, he said. He, who is too preoccupied with his own problems can not have good relationships with others. He related preoccupation with one's own problems to feelings of insecurity and inferiority. "The road to good relationships is self-understanding", he said.

Your recreational activities should provide you with a sense of achievement and satisfaction, he said, and added, "don't look at them merely as ones giving you business contacts."

Community service yields returns through the associations and friendships formed. This service, he said, can be through Churches, or health and welfare, or cultural activities.

A balance of these four fields of activity is necessary to make our lives rich, satisfying to ourselves and helpful to others, he said.

Northrop Frye's Exploring Mind On William Blake

The poetry and engravings of William Blake will be discussed and interpreted this Sunday at six on "Exploring Minds". The CBC television program for this week will be handled by Professor Frye, Chairman of the Department of English at Victoria College.

Professor Frye will read a commentary on Blake's poetry, among, in part, his interpretation of it. Visual effects will be a series of the paintings and engravings of Blake. The poetry itself will be read by CBC professionals.

Professor Frye said that one of the poems dealt with would be "The Tiger". After discussion, it will be read, with the engravings shown at the same time illustrating the interpretation of the poem.

Beauty Queen, Human Dogs Spark Coming Carnival

Plans for Varsity's first Winter Carnival, are rolling along, said Ted Bowen, II Arts, Publicity Director of the Caledon Committee. The fun begins next Tuesday night, he said, when the Carnival Queen contestants assemble for the first time. Nominations for the contest are now being received, and all faculties, fraternities, and campus organizations are urged to get their nominations in as quickly as possible, to the SAC office.

Wednesday sees the running of the human dog team race, so the faculties are reminded to get together and organize the faculty's team.

Snowman building contests will begin Monday or Tuesday, providing we get co-operation from the weatherman.

Registration forms for the weekend events are now available at the SAC office, Bowen said. Registration forms for overnight accommodation are available and should be made immediately.

So whether you are a participant, or just a spectator, plan now to attend the Winter Carnival, Saturday the 22nd and Sunday the 23rd of January!

Endicott Canada's Top Traitor Baptist Missionary Declares

Only those with a true faith in Christ are able to stand up to life behind the bamboo curtain Leslie Millin, a former Baptist Missionary in Communist China, declared Wednesday night here.

Mr. Millin was addressing a packed hall in Trinity College.

Alluding to the one-time Canadian missionary in China — Dr. James Endicott — Mr. Millin declared he was the victim of delusion and "the greatest traitor Canada ever produced."

"Poor Dr. Endicott," the speaker said, "who was brought over to China to see sweeping social reforms, was not allowed to see what horrors happened after the reforms were all over."

Mr. Millin, well-known in Toronto as a public lecturer on current conditions inside China described the decadence and corruption which he saw under the Ching regime.

"The rich used to grow their fingernails an inch and a half long to show they did not work," he declared. Literacy was about one-quarter of one per-cent of the population.

Those who really cared for the well-being of the people sincerely believed that Communism would provide an answer to these social evils.

The "liberators" told the people to confess their past crimes, write their life story, and to divulge other important information — thus providing the Reds with the location of hidden arms, he said.

Thus after this short Utopian period the Communists rang down the "bamboo curtain" and for the first time the word "purge" was heard.

"They set up the peoples court outside my house and executed hundreds of people daily in ways which are not fit to describe in a mixed group such as this," said Mr. Millin.

Campaign Quota $6,000 SHARE To Aid Patna

A report of the SHARE Committee was read at the SAC meeting last Wednesday night. The financial objective of the SHARE campaign on campus this year is $6,000. $1,200 of this money will be allotted to scholarships and $875 will go for administration. Fifty percent of the remaining $3,925 will be earmarked for the Patna Health Project, as selected by the WUS. SHARE, Students' Help to Asian Relief and Education, is one of the many activities run through the parent organization, The World University Service.

A new $33,750 health centre to be built at Patna University in India is going to be partially financed by Canadian university students. Last year SHARE aided the Delhi health centre.

During the ensuing discussion on SHARE at the SAC meeting,

Ian Scott of St. Mikes expressed surprise and disappointment that the money was once again going to India. "It is about time we began considering other areas such as Israel, Lebanon and other countries in the Middle East," explained Mr. Scott.

When the motion to accept the SHARE report authorizing the money to go to Patna was passed by council, Scott abstained from voting.

During the ensuing discussion on SHARE at the SAC meeting,

DANCE TO THE ADMIRALS

REASONABLE RATES

JIM DICKSON — HU. 8-1359
MURRAY BROWN — HU. 8-8316

Watch for IT

Hart House Theatre's 33rd All-Varsity Production
FEDERICO GARCIA LORCA'S

The House of Bernarda Alba

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
.75c

Directed by
ROBERT GILL

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH A.T.L.
CARD

SAT., JAN. 22nd to SAT., JAN. 29th - at 8.30
BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK-END

NOTES: Annual Hart House Quartet Contest! Information available in the Undergraduate Activities Office or phone WA. 3-1302.

Camera Club. Entry forms now available from Hall Porter for the 33rd Annual Photographic Exhibition. Closing date, 11th February, 6.00 p.m.

FRIDAY, 14TH JANUARY:

8.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TICKETS! SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT COMING UP. The Hart House Orchestra under the direction of Boyd Neel. Members may pick up their free tickets at the Hall Porter's desk.

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION by Michael Snow and Graham Coughtry.

1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG. (East Common Room).

SATURDAY, 15TH JANUARY:

Caledon Hills Farm. World University Service Weekend.

SUNDAY, 16TH JANUARY:

9.00 p.m. — SUNDAY EVENING CONCERT: The Hart House Orchestra under direction of Boyd Neel.

EUROPE

1955

STUDENT TOURS Sail May 28 or June 14 tourist class on S.S. Homeric from Quebec on special condensed tours limited to Students. A week in London, Holland, including Volendam and Isle of Marken. Brussels. Cologne, the Rhine by steamer, motor tour of the Black Forest, Liechtenstein, Austrian Tyrol, Barvarian Castles. Dolomites, Venice, Adriatic Coast, tiny republic of San Marino, Rome, the Hill Towns, Florence, Italian and French Riviera, French Alps, Switzerland, Paris, Motor tour of Scotland, English Lakes, North Wales, Shakespeare Country, Exmoor, Glorious Devon. Returning tourist class on the S.S. Homeric arriving Quebec July 26 or August 12, respectively.

INDEPENDENT TRAVEL Choose your departure and return dates; include as much or as little as you wish in the price category of your choice — all on a pre-arranged, prepaid basis. An itinerary that is made to order for you.

Ask for descriptive folders

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD.

67 BLOOR ST. WEST, TORONTO — WA. 4-1139

Management: J. F. & G. H. Lucas

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Assistant Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Voytech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Clyde Batten
NIGHT EDITOR: Bob Brown
REPORTERS: Sybil Strachan, Joe Azizi, Jo Thompson,
Ted Bowen, Shirley Stephenson
ASSISTANTS: Carol Hoffman

Happy Birthday

The world today will pause in its hectic flight to oblivion to mark the eightieth birthday of a man who renounced fame, position and material comfort for the insecurity of the African jungle.

At the age of 30, Dr. Albert Schweitzer stood on the threshold of a brilliant career. He was already principal of the theological faculty and professor of religious philosophy at the university in Strasbourg. With rare devotion to humanity and self-sacrifice, he renounced his career and turned to the study of medicine.

Upon the conclusion of his medical course Dr. Schweitzer sailed for Africa and the native village of Lambarene.

Since 1913, interrupted only by wars and money-raising tours, Schweitzer has devoted his time and matchless energy to the improvement of the position of the natives of that region.

Mankind has seldom witnessed so complete a sacrifice, so thorough an application of the highest of any one individual's ethics. Many men aspire in their nobler dreams, to paths of service to his fellow. Many men, in rare moments of empathy, desire nothing more than that their lives may be expended in alleviating the lot of their brother.

To very few, is it given to cut so directly through hesitations and the inhibitions and restrictions to which all humans are prone.

Whatever our attitude toward the learned doctor may be; no matter what we think about the philosophy he propagates; we must all, of necessity, recognize that here is a man of matchless courage, indomitable will, whose ethics have found an effective expression.

It is difficult to imagine one who has brought so much of practice to precept. Dr. Albert Schweitzer is the living embodiment of his famous ethic "reverence for life", as he has said himself. The ethics of reverence for life do this. They force every man, without cessation to be concerned at heart with all human destinies which are going through their life courses around him and to give himself as man, to the man who needs a fellow man.

No Excuse

A University-wide drive for blood donors will commence next week on this campus. The drive, sponsored by the SAC, is to provide the Red Cross with much needed blood for its varied program.

Last year when the first of these campaigns was held on the U of T campus, Toronto had the lowest percentage of contributing students of any of the eleven universities across Canada that participated in the "Corpuscle Cup" contest. Only one in every six Varsity students took the trouble to give a pint of his or her blood to the Red Cross.

This is a record that every non-contributing student should feel ashamed of.

There is no possible excuse that can be offered by any student for neglecting this opportunity to serve his community. —RDB

Justice and Refugees

By NAJI SHUKRI

The purpose of this article is to present the Arab justice in Palestine. Anybody familiar with basic factors of the Arab tension can readily understand that the present instability of the Arab world is primarily attributed to the problem of Palestine and complications which resulted from its partition. The Arabs contend that Palestine by prescription belongs to the Arabs, as Arabs lived there continuously for thirteen centuries.

The Zionist claims may be found in the Zionist historical argument, the Balfour Declaration, and the Jewish rights under the mandate system.

To claim that Palestine was a Jewish land in ancient times — although no definite historical proof appears that the whole of Palestine ever belonged to the Jew — does not constitute any logical or legal ground for the Jews to re-enter the country. If every people were to observe its historical origins and claim the possession of a territory they had once inhabited, the result would be a movement in this world's population and a radical change in the ethnological map of the world.

If such fantasy were allowed, how the map of the world could dance today! Italians might claim England, which the Romans held so long; England might claim France, homeland of the conquering Normans; and the French Normans might claim Norway where their ancestors originated; and incidentally, the Arabs might claim Spain which they held for 700 years. All these claims are just as valid — or just as fantastic — as the Jewish historic connection with Palestine.

In any event the great Moslem expansion about 650 A. D. finally settled things. It dominated Palestine completely and the country became solidly Arabic in population, language and religion. When British armies entered the country during the First World War, they found 500,000 Arabs and only 65,000 Jews. If solid, uninterrupted Arab occupation for nearly 1300 years does not make a country Arab, what does?

It is significant that the Philistines — not the Jews — gave their name to the country; Palestine is merely the Greek form of Philistines. Prior to the First World War, the Ottoman authorities had been solicited by Zionists for increased entry of Jews into Palestine.

This has been described by Mr. Faris El-Khoury, who in a statement given in General Assembly in 1947, gave the following account: "Dr. Herzl (founder of Zionism), after great efforts succeeded in sending a spokesman, who obtained an audience with the Sultan of Turkey, Abdul Hamid, ruler of the Ottoman Empire. He asked the Sultan, promising him millions of golden pounds to allow Jewish immigration into Palestine in order to establish a Jewish National Home there. The Sultan replied, 'Go and tell Dr.

Herzl that I will not give one square foot of Palestine to the Jews. It is not my property, but the property of my subjects who fertilized it with their blood. Let the Jews keep their millions for themselves."

Arab nationalism and political Zionism are two incompatibles which cannot exist on one soil. For ethnic, cultural, political and economic reasons, Palestine is in fact an integral part of the Arab world which is organized into nominal pact of March 22, 1954. In order to reduce the present tension between the Arab countries and the Zionists, the UN strictly enforces, its decisions in the following issues: (a) Internationalization of Jerusalem. (b) Putting an end to the present aggressions on the Israeli-Arab countries. (c) The repatriation of the Arab refugees to their home.

The problem is what to do with these refugees who fled Palestine and now are living in miserable refugee camps, since Israel wound up in possession of about seventy-five percent of Palestine, also Israeli has been able to admit a million of the world's Jews into Palestine since 1947. In effect, it is the near-million Arabs who fled Palestine who made room for these immigrants.

our readers write: Experience and Background

The Editor,
The Varsity.

I am a Jew and a Zionist, and have been in Israel so that although by Mr. Pidiaini's criterion for impartiality I cannot qualify to comment on such a partisan matter, I feel that I have some of the "background" in these affairs" which Mr. Pidiaini reluctantly admits might be of help in commenting thereon.

To begin with, most of the Arab countries exist in a semi-feudal state whereby most of the land and wealth is controlled by a small percentage of the population. From the very first this governing caste opposed the immigration of the Jews who brought with them the disturbing concepts of freedom, equality and higher standards of living. For this reason the Palestinian Arabs were incited by their leaders to a fear and hatred of the Jewish settlers which on several occasions, notably in 1929 and 1936, broke out in waves of terrorism and murder. This same hatred was fanned previous to the declaration of the State of Israel.

When in November 1947 the U.N. showed its recognition of the place of the Jews in Palestine by voting to partition the country into zones of predominately Jewish and Arab population, the Arab governments brought into the open the war which had been going on for so long as a series of "incidents". At the same time, Arab propaganda urged the Arab population of the country, by threats and by stories of Jewish atrocities, to flee. Many Arabs, especially those who had lived with the Jews for years, did not believe the stories told them by Radio Damascus, stayed behind and now continue to live on good terms with the Jews, as witness the 180,000 Arab citizens of Israel, who, (contrary to Mr. Pidiaini's statement), have full civil rights, have the same educational and occupational opportunities as the Jews, vote, and hold seats in the Israeli parliament.

During and after the War of Independence Jews were entering Israel at the rate of thousands per day, from the D.P. camps of Europe, from the internment camps of Cyprus and from the oppression of the Arab countries. In three years the population of the country more than doubled from some 700,000 to 1,600,000. These people were admitted to Israel by virtue of the simple fact that they were Jews. Yet the Arab countries, which have thousands of square miles of good uncultivated land, (according to the Food and Agriculture Organization of the U.N.), cannot see fit to settle these refugees whom they alone terrorized into leaving their homes; but now make political (and inhuman) capital of their misery by forcing them to live near the borders of Israel which they are obliged to cross in order to obtain food.

It is in the interests of the Arab governments to impede the peaceful development of Israel. To this end they take measures such as the above and as well organize systematic "incidents" which force Israel to spend on defence, money which is sorely needed for the achievement of her economic stability.

Mr. Pidiaini speaks of the "billions of dollars being pumped into the Middle East". I might remind Mr. Pidiaini that most of this money, in the form of economic and military aid from the U.S., is sent to the Arab countries.

In the meantime, while a surrounded Israel struggles for existence and the encircling Arab states refuse to settle the refugees, these people starve. Your idea for a collection to aid the Arab refugees is commendable, Mr. Pidiaini. I would suggest, however, that you do not send your contribution to any of the Arab governments involved—I doubt if any of these refugees would benefit from one cent of it.

J. Penciner, II U.C.

Freedom of the Press

—Varsity Staff Cartoon by Jas. Weller.

and drama

art, music

—VSP by Henri Pratt

Aisle Seat

Millar's Crucible

The Crucible is the moving story of some few of the persons involved in the Salem witch hunt, and apart from its topicality is so well told as to grip any audience. It opens with hints of the bad feeling among Salem neighbours, the evil lurking in respectability, the willingness of law and order to be carried away by fanaticism. Abigail Williams, niece of the grim-faced parish minister, turns a woodland sport of dancing and charm-making, into which she has inveigled some of the neighbour girls, to a dreadful vengeance involving dozens of innocent people.

Chief protagonist of the forces of good is John Proctor, played by John Saxton in as moving a performance as we have been privileged to see. In voice, manner and movement Mr. Saxton displayed a strength which dominated the play, strongly cast as it was in other respects.

Proctor, by letting Abigail see that he "thought softly" of her, gave her a wild hope that she might supplant his wife Elizabeth in his heart and home, a hope nurtured by the fact that Proctor and his wife were not happy together. Abigail and company soon have reached a point where they dare not turn back. Besides, they have gained the confidence of the court to such an extent that they need only have a fit of hysterics to hang another villager. It is too late for even the most desperate action. John Proctor, in trying to save his wife, is himself condemned; and condemned (bitterest stroke of all) by the first lie she has ever uttered, prompted by tardily discovered love and her passionate desire to protect him.

This thorough defeat of all the forces to whom the audience is joined in sympathy is saved from an effect of entire frustration by John Proctor's struggle with himself in which he wins a bitter victory by refusing to save himself, as his weaker neighbours have done, by confessing his relations with the devil.

If it is true, as we believe it is, that melodrama is the emotional outpouring of an era's moral and intellectual attitudes, Arthur Miller has done an excellent job in writing The Crucible. For it reflects the frustration and struggle which are supposed to be characteristic of our age while it seems to be a well-founded intellectual statement of a valid moral judgment. It is this last factor which enables people of one age to accept their own melodrama and make unconscious use of it as an emotional release while rejecting that of ages which differed in intellectual as well as aesthetic outlook.

Nancy Donnell

A STAR IS BORN

The Best In A Decade

In A Star is Born, at the Imperial, we have one of the most heralded motion pictures of the decade, and, in my opinion, one of the best. There is no denying that Hollywood has the greatest resources in the world for producing good films. Though the cynical may regard it as a proven case of the monkey and the typewriter, it's inevitable that a good movie will come out of California once in a while. I think a lot of good movies come out of California, and I think A Star is Born is a perfect example of the sort of movie that Hollywood makes best.

Director George Cukor has devoted the very best of the resources of the American screen to the familiar tale of the aging actor who befriends a young singer, marries her, and then suffers while her star rises and his declines. Never has the cinemascope screen been used to better advantage, or with more authority. The camera is constantly on the move, following the actors' every gesture, the soundtrack is subtle, the editing superb. The screen is constantly filled with a visual beauty whose intensity enhances the action rather than detracts from it. Much of what American film-makers have been learning for over forty years about film technique is summed up in A Star is Born. Take, for example, the scene towards the end where Esther decides to give up her career at the same time that her husband is deciding to give himself up completely for her sake. The use of setting (a dark, windswept patio by the sea), sound, and colour, to create a mood of stark desolation is remarkable. Here the best assets of the wide-screen are put to use. I would go so far as to say that A Star is Born is probably the first great picture in Cinemascope.

Judy Garland's performance as the young singer is the best she has ever given, as far as I can remember. Though a trifle strained and mannered, as all her work tends to be, her Esther Blodgett is still an affectionate, talented, pathetic woman. I rather expected her to overshadow James Mason as Norman Maine, the decaying screen idol, but Mr. Mason is, despite the distressing event at Stratford, a screen actor of great talent, and there are many occasions where he quite robs Miss Garland of the centre of interest. Not of course, in the musical numbers, of which there are, surprisingly, very few. The Born in a Trunk number is a tour de force for Judy Garland, and she makes the very best of it. Most of its charm is derived from her almost messianic singing style as she sits down on the edge of a theatre stage and tells the audience the story of her life since she was "born in a trunk in the Princess Theatre in Pocatello, Idaho."

Germaine Clinton

OSA Reviewed

Ontario Society Sassed

A large and miscellaneous art exhibition like that of the Ontario Society of Artists at the Art Gallery of Toronto is rarely as satisfying as a one-man show. It is hard to develop the concentration needed to appreciate an artist's mode when paintings of vastly different purpose and approach lie close by either side of his. A society show is useful chiefly as a limited statement of what the member artists are doing at the time, valuable for comparison with the past and with itself.

Few Ontario artists seem to be interested in other men and women, at least as far as canvas matter goes. The significant works in the show are divided pretty much between the calmly modern, who are content to be up to date in the abstract simplicity and the sense of style with which they depict "nature", and the agitatedly modern, who resolutely avoid depiction of all but their own sensibility, with varying virility and success.

Of the former, too absorbed in the business of pleasantly relating flat areas of harmonious colour, veteran Sydney H. Watson's Montreal Street scene is rather outdone by Paavo Airola's more vigorous Downtown No. 2. Airola, formerly of Scandinavia, is the Chief exhibitor with the Colour and Form Society which takes over the Hart House Gallery early in the summer. I believe this is his first appearance with the OSA.

A. J. Casson brings "Group of Seven" natural geometrics to an attractive next step in the sharp plains of light in his Poplar Grove. Roy Pepper contributes a neat arrangement of bottles you could reach out and touch to delight the lovers of ultra realism.

On the other side (so to speak) illustrator Oscar Cahen takes the lead with three of his shouting paintings. The artistic approach he represents is an important new theme in Ontario art; his powerful organic forms in bright inorganic colours are not to be instantly dismissed.

As resolved as we are to give this Canadian expressionism a well studied trial, our resolution faltered with Two Objects a messy sort of deal with the paint cracking off. Form on a White Ground made me much happier; the bright harshness of its manish organic form seemed more justified somehow.

Of the less easily classified, we find William Winter still sweet and innocuous and Grant MacDonald painting with smooth skill that same sensitive man and woman. We still insist that Jack Nichols draws much better than he paints. Lawren Harris Jr. is represented by a well composed complex of cranes, the only thing he has done that I have enjoyed. Les Lawrence

CAGE BLUES TOP MARAUDERS 64-48

Speaking ^{1/2} OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

Apropos to the rumor that is currently being noised about the Hockey Blues having little chance of doing anything but sweeping the Intercollegiate Hockey League this winter; playing the part of the pessimist we wondered if they could do just this and then get shot down by some other team in a sudden-death playoff as is often the case in Intercollegiate football.

It appears that all the puckmen have to do is end up in first place and they've won the Queen's Cup as there is no playoff unless there is a tie for the top spot. Since the current rumor is to the effect that they'll win all twelve league starts, there's evidently nothing left to do but clear a space in the Hart House trophy case for the coveted silverware.

Along with that thought comes this business of overtime in league games. The CIAU rules provide for an extra session of ten minutes, five each way, if the two teams are tied after regulation time. And if it's still deadlocked after overtime that's the way it goes into the record book. While we're on the subject, overtime, tie games, and all that, can be very annoying when the chips are down, and this brings to mind the classic struggle that occurred in the season of 1939 in the NHL.

It was the last game of the regular league schedule in the days when the now defunct Brooklyn Americans were still holding their own in professional hockey. At that time there were four playoff berths as there are now, and as it happened these same Americans were tied for that all-important fourth position with the Boston Bruins. Not only that but each team had won the same number of games, lost the same number, and by some quirk of Old Man Fate had tied none. In addition to this they had scored the same number of goals for and an equal number against. Had such been the case at the close of the regular schedule, the league officials would have had no alternative but to flip a coin to decide the last playoff spot, or so the story goes. And of course, flipping a coin was then, as it is today, a very unfair method of settling the great affairs about us.

Well, by chance the Americans were pitted against the Bruins in this final league game, and, as you can readily see, the fourth playoff position was at stake. A tie game would necessitate flipping the coin as the NHL rules didn't permit overtime sessions in league games. A scoreless draw played between Toronto and Montreal in the previous season had lasted until two o'clock in the morning bringing about this change in the rules.

According to the book, if we are to believe all that we read, with just two minutes remaining in the game, the Americans and the Bruins were in a scoreless deadlock before a packed house in the Boston Garden. So, with about a minute and a half left to play, the Bruins heightened the drama of the contest by taking their goaltender from the nets in favor of an extra attacker. Not to be outdone, the Americans immediately removed all-star netminder Roy Worters and the two clubs faced each other with six forwards apiece and empty nets at each end.

The Garden rocked with the crowd's applause as newcomer Milt Schmidt scored in the empty Brooklyn goal, but when the siren ended the game, each team had scored three goals and the struggle resulted in a 3-3 draw. Of course all this has virtually no meaning but to make a long story short the Bruins took it all; the flip, the semi-finals and the Stanley Cup, in one of the biggest coups that the NHL had ever witnessed. At least that's what it says here.

From the Blue Room . . . Congratulations go to George Stulac and Don Fawcett, two veterans of Varsity basketball, who have been elected co-captains of this year's Basketball Blues . . . The Blue swimmers travel to Niagara for a meet with some more American competition this weekend, while the Blue wrestlers have a meet with Queens right here in Hart House Saturday night. The Intermediate wrestling squad fills the bill meeting another picked team from Toronto Y's . . . McGill hockey coach Rocky Robillard seems to have come up with a new team. The Redmen turned the tables on Laval 6-2 in the Quebec Coliseum Wednesday night, after dropping their league opener to the Blues 9-1 . . . After such a drubbing, taken from the lowly McGills, the Red and Gold should be more than adequate opposition for the Blues in tonight's clash. The game starts at 8:00 and is free to us students, something that is bound to appeal to the ravaged pocketbook at this time of year . . . Word from the Green Og, who sat in on last night's practice, is full of confidence. "We'll eat 'em" says the Og.

Potter Highest Scorer On Floor Baby Blues Wallop Bucs 82-47

By MAX ROSENTHAL

There was little penny pitching at Hamilton, Wednesday night as the Varsity basketball Blues scored a 68-48 win over the hapless McMaster Marauders in their first official game of the Intercollegiate schedule. Playing a rough, aggressive game reminiscent of the football season the Blues built up a 16-3 lead early in the game, thus setting the pattern for an almost effortless, colourless win. In the opening game the Baby Blues swamped the Buccaneers, 82-47.

Inspired by the rebounding ability of rookie centre Al Vaichulis, the best man on the floor, the Blues' forwards, Pete Potter and Don Fawcett, were frequently scooted down the floor, after receiving a Vaichulis pass, scoring lay-ups.

Vaichulis was conspicuous in his role as rebound man both under his own basket and under the foe's, and, although he scored twelve points, he seemed equally conspicuous in his failure to shoot the hooks that made him a scoring threat when he attended Parkdale Collegiate.

High scorer of the game was Potter, with 16 points. Potter was hitting most effectively with his two hand set and his floating drive-in shot. His dexterity in setting quickly or driving in when required on the fast breaks will undoubtedly make speedy Pete a definite scoring threat against the lanky men of Assumption and Western.

Pleasing was the effectiveness of the Blue 2-1-2 zone defence. So well did George Stulac, Vic Kurdyak, Potter and Fawcett close up the centre that the Marauders were forced to shoot from the outside. Even when the Marauders did manage to get the ball into their centremen, Bert Raphael and Russ Jackson, the above-mentioned Blues would close in and steal the ball. As a result the Blues lead at the end of the first half, 32-15.

The Marauders, whose attack lacked imagination and deception, were saved from complete ignominy due to the thirteen point contribution of guard Jim Lindores, and the eleven point effort of Jackson. Lindores, whose set shot was clicking in the first half, at times seemed to be the only Marauder with enough courage to shoot. Thus, another failure of the Marauder offence was their hesitation in shooting when they had the chance.

The Blue offensive, also, was a lack-lustre affair in spite of the efforts of Vaichulis and Potter. Relaxing after they accumulated a large lead, the Blues frequently passed and fumbled their way into the hands of their opponents. Other high scorers of the Blues were Fawcett and Kurdyak with ten points each.

Johnny McManus' Baby Blues proved that they will be tough babies to beat as they crumpled the Buccaneers, 82-47. Their highest score of the year, the Intermediates, lead by the 29-point scoring of John Dacyshyn, built up a 53-22 lead in the first half. Rubie Richman was next highest with twelve. Jerry Wojdon and Dave Parker hooped nine each.

Hockey Blues At Home Laval In Varsity Debut

The Flying Frenchmen from Laval University invade Varsity Arena tonight to do battle with the high-running Varsity Blues in what will be the fourth Senior Intercollegiate fixture for both teams. At their last meeting in Quebec City's mammoth Coliseum before the Christmas holidays the Blues trounced the Red and Gold club 5-2 as the second game on a weekend double-header.

Laval should be fairly winded for tonight's struggle after a game Wednesday with the rejuvenated McGill Redmen in which the Tribe tripped the Frenchmen 6-2. As a result Laval is smoldering in the league cellar without a win in three starts.

The Blues, on the other hand, are a quarter of the way through the schedule and have yet to taste defeat, and are also undefeated in four exhibition games for an unbeaten streak of seven contests. Coach Jack Kennedy doesn't like to appear overconfident about his team, and if they were to drop this one, he'd have nothing to blame but overconfidence, however he is looking for another victory to cement the Blues' first place position.

The team will be at full strength minus only rearguard Sam Ashton, still on the injured list with a fractured arm received in a pre-season exhibition game. With the return of captain Red Stephen to the fold, recovered from a pre-Christmas operation, the Blues should be tough nuts for the Red and Gold crew to crack.

Lead by centre Robert Lafreniere, as well as scoring aces Maurice Lagace and Lorne Arsenault, Laval have the potential to match the Blues, although the vacancy left by Gerard Houle's switch to the University of Montreal Carabins will be tough to fill.

Admission to this Intercollegiate feature is, as usual, free, and the price is much less than the entertainment. Game time is 8:00 in Varsity Arena.

Basket Blues To Rochester Try To Sting Yellowjackets

Varsity Blues travel to Rochester University tomorrow looking for their third victory of the season when they meet the Rochester Yellowjackets in an exhibition game. The Varsity club counted their second triumph of the season Wednesday night when they defeated the McMaster Marauders in Hamilton, and will be out to make up for last year's ten-point loss to the Yellowjackets, suffered on the Hart House splinter.

With a much faster squad than last year the Blues are likely to fare better against the Yellowjackets than they did in their last encounter when the Rochester players smashed their strong zone defence and outscored the Varsity 72-62. However they will have to contend with several of Rochester's strongest veterans, Jim Armstrong and Jim Texter, the two who between them crushed the Blues last year. Varsity has been strengthened by the addition this year of Leo Madden, Pete Potter, Art Binnington and Johnnie Braithwaite, four men who raise the standard of play far above last year's.

As well as competing with the Rochester Blues have to fight their way out of a slump. The Varsity team started the season in a bad way and haven't been able to straighten themselves out yet. So far the team's big men haven't been able to show their real form.

The Baby Blues play their first league match of the year in Guelph Saturday against the OAC Aggies. After their lop-sided victory over Mac they must be assured to win tomorrow.

Jr. SPS Dumps Vic

By CHUCK DOLMAN

In the feature billing of yesterday's interfaculty basketball schedule, Junior SPS notched themselves another unimpressive win, 45-33, this time at the expense of Junior Vic.

The Engineers, a power-packed team on paper, and picked by many as pre-season favorites to cop the interfaculty championship, had to come up with a concentrated effort in the last quarter to gain their twelve-point margin. Up until then the Vickers had been very much in the ball game, in fact they led 16-13 at the end of the first quarter.

The game, although scrappy and lacking in good basketball and spectacular plays, did manage to entertain the large noon-time crowd in a humorous way. For example, a Vic player intercepting an SPS pass, drove down the floor but in the direction of his own basket. The SPS coach, when his starting team was finding the going quite rough in the first quarter, gamely made a substitution and sent in his six best players; and late in the game, a Vic player entered the contest wearing the latest innovation in face protectors, which apparently reminded some of the spectators of a diving helmet, as they quite helpfully offered directions to the swimming pool. The officials, not wanting to miss out on the laughs, were not at their best. This reporter overheard such spectator comments as "Gee those refs are real keen" and "Gee but they are extraordinarily good whistle-blowers".

Getting back to the game itself, the two centres, SPS' Fraser, and Vic's Bob McMinn, were the best performers, with Bill Karpinski, SPS star, coming strongly in the last quarter as he scored six of his eight points. Fraser with eight points, and McMinn with twelve, both rebounded well. Pockington matched McMinn's output as he scored twelve for Vic.

It is quite obvious that Junior SPS will have to cut the comedy and play the basketball that they are capable of if they hope to beat out a strong Dentistry "A" team and a better than average Junior UC team for Group honors. However it is hard to bet against them.

Ice Seconds Lace Osgoode 9-2 Play RMC Here This Afternoon

By FRED GRAY

Varsity's Intermediate hockey club launched this season's campaign yesterday at Varsity arena in very successful manner, routing a more experienced Osgoode team. Interrupting the penalty parade, that saw twenty-three offenders thumbed, the Intermediates registered twice in each of the first two periods and then struck for five in the final to hammer the luckless Legalites 9-2.

Play throughout most of the opening period although fast and furious remained fairly even. Bill Naylor tallied the opener for the Seconds breaking out of his own end during an Osgoode attack with a man advantage. Started on his way by Tom Casey, Naylor raced the length of the ice to score. Morrison netted the second score finishing a play from Dud Kearney and Ted Lotoki.

Varsity scored again after eleven minutes of the second period. Smith dropping Riley's pass for the counter. Lotoki, Kearney, and Morrison combined for the fourth goal, Lotoki scoring. Osgoode rallied to tally their first, LaCroix unassisted. Only the fine work of Al Fleming in the Varsity goal prevented the Legalites from scoring further. Al smothered at least two labled shots in what proved to be Osgoode's strongest attack.

In the third period the rapidly tiring Osgoode team floundered before the continuing Varsity pressure. Dud Kearney started the onslaught scoring unassisted followed by Bill Naylor and Mert Wright, Herb Tilson assisting on Naylor's goal. Court finished the afternoon for the Varsity scorers notching the final two points. Ted Rogers and Herb Tilson aided him in the first, and Wright and Rogers combined to set up Court's second goal. Osgoode managed to revive momentarily squeezing their second score between the two by Court. Osler from Church and LaCroix provided the spark.

The Varsity team played well throughout. Mert Wright and Dud Kearney played a strong game with Al Fleming turning in a very fine effort in the Varsity cage in his first outing with the team. The Intermediates take to the ice again this afternoon at 4:30 to meet R.M.C. in what should prove to be another rousing battle.

Legal Slump

First Period

- 1-Varsity-Naylor (Casey)8:26
- 2-Varsity-Morrison (Kearney, Lotoki)12:44

Penalties—Osler, Smith, Walker (2)

Second Period

- 3-Varsity-Smith (Riley)11:28
- 4-Varsity-Lotoki (Kearney, Morrison)12:14
- 5-Osgoode-LaCroix14:42

Penalties—Church, Osler (2), Kane, Riley, Naylor, Borthwick, Prendergast, Tilson, Court.

Third Period

- 6-Varsity-Kearney3:03
- 7-Varsity-Naylor (Tilson)11:32
- 8-Varsity-Wright11:41
- 9-Varsity-Court (Rogers, Tilson)12:20
- 10-Osgoode-Osler (Church, LaCroix)13:29
- 11-Varsity-Court (Wright, Rogers)18:22

Penalties—Court, Morrison, Rerozack, Jerome, Osler (2), Walker (2), Casey.

PHILIPPE MAURY

General Secretary of the World Student Christian Federation. Resistance leader in the war — widely traveled in Europe, Asia, and Africa — will talk tonight at 7 p.m. at 143 Bloor St. W.

ALL WELCOME

Varsity Band

HOCKEY GAME

Friday — 8:00 p.m.

DO YOU NEED P.T. CREDITS?

SMART STUDENTS RENT

Complete outfits are available for every occasion in the latest styles and our quality garments are "Tailored to Fit Like Your Own" Special Student Discount

There is No Lower price in the City Complete $6.00
256 COLLEGE ST. - WA. 2-0991
AT SPADINA
556 YONGE ST. - WA. 2-3270
AT WELLESLEY

For a Light Smoke and a Pleasing Taste

Call for

PHILIP MORRIS

Saints Beat Pots 1-0

In yesterday's contest of the girls hockey league, Saint Hildas II came out on top of POT II by a close 1-0 score. The game was not decided until the last minute of the final period when TI Boo Eaton got hold of the puck at the blue line and skated in alone to score on Helen Alves, the Physots goalie who was faked out completely by Eaton's smart playing. Up until this point the play was very even with both teams having their chances.

In the first period St. Hilda's were penalized for body checking with Nancy McCasland sitting it out for two minutes. Pots were unable to score, however, being held out by the Saints steady defence. The play in the second period was extremely well-matched. McCasland was again in the penalty box in the third for two minutes. At this time Pots showed a more organized attack but again were unable to put the puck in the net.

FAREWELL TRAVEL SERVICE

Personally Escorted Student Tours of Europe

Specially Prepared for College Students and Recent Graduates
by TREASURE TOURS

Tours Departing Quebec June 15th and 29th
53 Days All Inclusive Rate — $995

Visiting 7 Countries

Call, write or telephone for complimentary folder.

6S YONGE ST. (At King)

EM. 3-5191

WATER POLO

All members of the Junior Team, please attend in the Staff Room, Hart House, Friday, Jan 14th at 1:00 p.m.
Picture of Sr and Jr. teams will be taken at 5:15 p.m., Tuesday, Jan 18th Please be present.

GAMES TODAY

- HOCKEY 12:30 St. M. C vs Vic IV — Dwyer, Topping
1:30 Jr. U.C. vs. Pre-Med — Reid, Fisher
- WATER POLO 1:00—Law vs For B — Rambusch, Glumac
- BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE
1:00—St. M. A vs. Sr. Med — J. Love, Sachar
4:00—Sr. Vic vs. Trin A — Sheppard, Thomson.
- BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1:00—Trin Tigers vs. I Mech A — Kostiw
4:00—Pre-Med I A vs Trin Salts — Neilman
- BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
5:00—Vic Globe Crawlers vs. Pre-Med I C — Helsel
5:00—I Civil vs St. M House 10 — Helsel

ON LAKE COUCHICHING

HIRING STAFF

REQUIRE: Arts and Crafts Instructor, Riding Instructor and Male and Female Counsellors.

For information see Dave Powell or call Ben Wise, HU. 8-0185 or Harold Nashman, HU. 1-1438.

WOMEN'S BADMINTON

INTRAMURAL TOURNAMENT
Carlton Club (Church and Hayden)

Tuesday, January 18th and Wednesday, January 19th from 9 a.m. to 12:00 noon

Players please sign Faculty or College lists or register at Athletics office, S.A.C. Building, before noon on Monday, January 17th. Badminton managers make sure your players are on hand at 9 a.m. Tuesday Every entry means potential points for your college or faculty and choice of the intercollegiate team will be based on this tournament

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

APARTMENT VACANCY

Male student, 157 Macpherson Ave., 15 minutes from University. Room and board $13.50 per week. Call W. Thompson, WA. 2-2226.

LOST

Ladies Handbag containing large sum of money, A.T.L. card, etc. Jan. 12. Vicinity University. Reward. Phone WA. 4-3628

THESES TYPED

Careful attention to detail, expert typing. Reasonable charges. Mrs. Dorothy Jolly, HA. 7267.

LOST

Women's wrist watch at Hart House New Year's Eve Dance. Orchard 2053 or SAC Office.

WANTED DESPERATELY

One live B-equino and one adolescent Trobriand. First hand information needed for 2A Anthropology research. Val, Liz, Helen, and Myra.

SWITCHED COATS?

Found grey gabardine coat and glasses on Monday, 9-10 lecture in 522—Engineering Bldg. Phone M. Rotmann, HU. 8-4969.

NEAR UNIVERSITY

Large furnished room, suit male student. WA 4-6024 720 Spadina Ave.

TYPING

Theses, essays, manuscripts, done by experienced typist on campus. WA. 4-1354, Mrs. Robinson.

PLEASE

Would the person who borrowed Contaflex camera and equipment from a room in Trinity College shortly before Christmas holidays, return coloured slides that were with the camera, as they can be of no use to anyone but myself. A parcel labelled J. Bonnycastle could be left without question in Porter's Lodge, Trinity College, anytime.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE

Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

TYPEWRITERS

Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RE. 1843 anytime.

When you pause make it count... have a Coke

DRINK
Coca-Cola

7¢

including Federal Taxes

COCA-COLA LTD.

bloody week for university corpuscule cup in balance

Your blood is needed! An opportunity to donate blood to the Red Cross will be provided during the week of January 31 when an annual campaign, the Blood Blitz, will begin on the campus.

A mobile clinic will be set up in the School of Nursing Building, 50 St. George St. The hours during which the clinic will be open are: 9-12 a.m., and 1:30-4:30 p.m. Definite appointments will be made during the week of January 17 by class representatives. For those not in organized classes, this will be done by Red Cross nurses in Hart House: January 17 and 18, and in the rotunda of University College: January 19, 20, and 21.

Do you know? The normal human adult has approximately 12 to 13 pints of blood in his body. About 380 ccs. less than a pint, will be taken at the clinic. This is a painless, harmless procedure; the body, within 24 hrs., replaces the blood which has been taken. It is actually safe to donate four times a year. It is not necessary to change your diet or daily routine in any way, before or after the donation.

During the procedure at the clinic, your blood will be tested. Later, the Red Cross will supply you with a card stating the amount of your donation, your blood group, and whether you are Rh positive or Rh negative. This knowledge is valuable to every person. It may save much time in an emergency when you yourself require a transfusion, or when you may be a potential donor if your type blood is compatible. Also many infant lives have been saved because of a previous awareness or the Rh grouping of the parents. This is information which you will gain at the clinic.

In the main, there are two reasons for supporting the drive. First, to ensure the continuation of this essential service of the Red Cross; Secondly, to bring the Corpuscule Cup to Varsity.

Several council members expressed doubt as to what were the qualifications for Carnival Queen, but puzzled looks immediately vanished from troubled faces as Miss Parkes, secretary of SAC, announced that the Queen would be "the person you would best like to spend two weeks in an igloo with!"

From one of the council members came the muttered ejaculation, "That wasn't the basis on which we chose our candidate!"

Each faculty and college, and every club or fraternity planning to take part in the Winter Carnival is requested by the Carnival Committee to pick its contestant for the title of "Carnival Queen" as soon as possible.

Epstein Contest Winners Printed U.C. Undergrad

Selections which won the Epstein awards in English may be published in the Undergrad, University College's literary magazine. Sharon Marcus, literary editor of the Undergrad, said yesterday that the selections have yet to be edited. The writers must give consent to having their work printed. Space available in the magazine is also limited, she said.

She also said that excerpts from the play or novel of Josef Cernak might also be published. Cernak was a prizewinner in the novel and play class, and not Vello Sermat as previously announced.

"EXPORT"
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

Winter Carnival Coming Faculties Need Queens

Not to be outdone by McGill, the University of Toronto will elect a Carnival Queen during the Campus Carnival to be held next week. Plans for the Carnival were discussed at the SAC meeting, last Wednesday night.

"The choosing of the Queen need not be a serious choice," said Bill Angus, president of SAC. "Although the School of Law has no female students, we will still submit our entry to the Beauty contest!"

Council Requests Library Closing Extension To 11

The U of T Library will soon be staying open until 10:00 p.m. five evenings a week for the rest of this term, it was revealed at Wednesday night's SAC meeting. The Library now stays open till 9:00 p.m.

A letter from R. H. Blackburn, chief librarian was read in which he stated that the Library Committee of the Board of Governors had decided to keep the library open to the later hour of 10:00 p.m. as soon as the staff could be found. The SAC had previously requested this extension in the library hours.

However, representatives of the U.C. Lit and WUA had requested that the library hours be further extended to 11:00 p.m. According to the chief librarian, they said, financial reasons will prevent such further extension of the library hours this year.

The SAC agreed to write Mr. Blackburn a letter requesting an 11:00 o'clock closing.

EATON'S

SCOTTISH TWEED

Sport Jackets

Lightweight hand-woven Harris tweeds and new Reid & Taylor cloths are but two of the celebrated woollens showing now at EATON'S... styled in the popular single breasted 2-button style with patch pockets... slim-looking and comfortable thanks to special detailing by hand! Sizes 36 to 46, tall, regular and short fittings.

Each 45.00

Phone TR. 5111

Eaton's — Main Store — Second Floor (Dept. 229)
and Eaton's College Street — Main Floor

T. EATON & CO. Limited

CAMP PINE VALLEY

ST. AGATHE, QUEBEC

A Jewish Co-ed children's summer camp 60 miles north of Montreal requires both general and specialty counselors. Pine Valley Camp is the most luxurious and best equipped children's camp in Canada.

Apply MR. M. SINGER — MA. 6900

CREST THEATRE

TORONTO'S ONLY
REPERTORY
THEATRE

MT. PLEASANT
ROAD
HUDSON
9-9427

Murray and Donald Davis Limited present
FROM JANUARY 18TH

Twelfth Night

by WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

starring
FRANCES HYLAND — DONALD DAVIS
BARBARA CHILCOTT

Nightly at 8.30 — $3.00, $2.25, $1.75, $1.00
Matinees: Wednesday 2.30 - Saturday 5.30 — $2.50, $1.50, 75c

SPECIAL STUDENT RATE . . . 75c

On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of 2nd Weeks of Runs

ONTARIO HYDRO Offers CAREERS FOR ENGINEERS

Group Meeting: To-day, 1:00 p.m., Room 21,
Electrical Building.

Individual Interviews: Monday through Friday—
January 17th to 21st.

For appointment lists, application forms, etc.
consult Faculty Office.

To-Nite Blue and White SKATING PARTY

AFTER THE HOCKEY GAME

SALE brand new CRINOLINES

LONG AND SHORT . . . FROM 2 AND 4 DOLLARS

ALL SIZES

DROP IN AND SEE THEM

HELMAR

46 St. George St.

WA. 1-5978

Bloody Registration Week

THE UNDERGRAD
DAILY

THE VARSITY

WEATHER Clear and Cold

Vol. LXXIV — No. 59

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Monday, January 17, 1955

BLUES LEVEL LAVAL 12-7

Hart House and Cannon

Knox, Reid, Fisher Lead Blue Attack

Varsity's Hockey Blues preserved their unbeaten streak, extending it to eight games, as well as first place in the Intercollegiate Hockey League, coming out of a high-scoring, stick-swinging jamboree on the good end of a 12-7 count Friday night in the Arena.

Right wing Paul Knox burst forth with three goals, along with two assists to boost his league total to ten points, while big Dave Reid retained first place in the scoring race with a six-point output, two goals and four assists, for a total of thirteen points. Clare Fisher, the other third of the Blues' big line potted two goals also, which with an assist, shoved him into third place in the scoring column.

This big first line which has now accounted for over half of the Varsity goals, have a total of thirty points between them, and put on an amazing display of hockey finesse against the spunky Frenchmen to keep the Blues out of danger at all times.

Only flaw in the perfection of the Blue machine Friday night was a sudden weakness along the blueline, allowing Laval to break through for seven goals, five of which Varsity netminder Hugh Curry didn't have a chance with. Tempers flared in the third period when eleven sinners cooled out in the bin, seven in a torrid final minute.

Professor Alcott presented the Blues with the loving cup won in Troy, New York at RPI's invitation hockey tournament, and presented the four Blue players who were named as all-stars to the crowd in a pre-game ceremony.

Diminutive Paul Knox opened the scoring for the Blues at 2:48 of the first stanza, seconds after Raynald Dorion had left the ice with a highsticking charge. Fisher gave the Blues a 2-0 lead at 4:46 with his favourite shot taking a pass from Reid outside the Laval blueline and sweeping in on Lavoie to score with a hard backhand.

Centreman Jean Giguere put the Red and Gold back in the game at 13:20 with the first of four goals from a scramble in front of the Blue net. Just four minutes later Giguere tied it up with a screen shot from well outside the blueline that Curry never even saw.

The Blues, whose scoring came in bursts throughout the contest, flew into a 6-2 lead with four goals in six minutes to open the second period. Knox notched his second counter seconds after the opening face-off and then another at 6:12 as the Blue power play paid off. Len Lawson slapped in Ernie Bodnar's rebound at 5:35 while Fisher got his counter of the evening with an assist going to Reid at 6:46.

Repeated pressure from all three forward lines left Laval little opportunity to score while Don Cossar and Johnny Akitt put on a tremendous display of puck-ragging, killing the Blue penalties. At 17:16 the first lapse in the Blue defence appeared as Giguere was left uncovered in front of the Varsity net. Curry fell to the ice without his stick

(Continued on Page 7)

Varsity's Blood Campaign Registering All This Week

Next week you may see large numbers of grimly determined students approaching the School of Nursing, 50 St. George St. They are among those who have volunteered to donate their blood to the Red Cross to support the Blood Blitz.

The President Says

The Student Service Commission of the Students' Administrative Council is once again conducting a "Blood Blitz" on the campus. I can think of no better way in which students can make a practical demonstration of their citizenship than by supporting this campaign. I warmly commend it and express the hope that it will meet with a generous response.

— Sidney Smith

Let's follow them inside and see what happens. A smiling Volunteer greets the donor and asks him to sit down in a waiting-room. Here groups of students are laughing and talking juice. When called, with a brave smile, he approaches the reception desk. Here, another volunteer confirms his appointment. Next, his blood is tested by a nurse. A prick on the finger-tip (ouch!) — first for haemoglobin level (bet you can't beat that), then for groupings.

The big moment has come. The student enters a large room where donors are lying on beds and nurses move about briskly.

He eases himself on a bed. (say, this is pretty soft). Soon a nurse applies a tourniquet to his arm. He flexes his hand; a quick prick in his arm and the precious corpuscles flow through a tube into a bottle, hanging by the bed. Hey, wot 'appened?

A nurse remains at the side of the bed, talking to our friend and checking the equipment. He relaxes now, takes a look around the room, and even jokes with the fellow in the next bed. Then the needle is removed; he is asked to hold a cotton fluff on the site.

"Now, sit up slowly; stand at the side of the bed for a moment."

The nurse leads him to the far end of the room where he lies down again for a few minutes. A small bandage is applied to his arm. He is invited across the hall for a cup of coffee — no smoking, please! There is a spirit of camaraderie among the supervisors — and the coffee is good.

Donating blood is a simple procedure. It is harmless and painless — takes only twenty minutes. To help win the Corpse Cup, get your appointment card from the class rep. This week,

MacConnachy's Village

Brigadoon at Variety

The cast of Brigadoon came to Variety Village last night, and were conquered by 30 enthusiastic students of the Training School. In its first complete run through, the U.C.-St. Mike's cast took their audience to the fantasy musical to be presented Feb. 14-19.

Mr. David Griesdorf, vice-president of the Variety Club of Toronto, announced to the Varsity that because "the kids got such a tremendous bang out of it" he would take all the staff and students to the Tues. night performance in Hart House. This came as a complete surprise to the Village. Mr. Griesdorf is the son of Mr. Norman Griesdorf.

Aden Bauman, who is nearing completion of a two year watch-making course at Variety Village commented "I thought it was very, very good". He and his fellow students watched the hour-long presentation in the auditorium which overlooks Kingston Rd.

When asked what he planned to do, Aden said, "I'll be going out to work any time now, just as soon as there is an opening."

The principal, J. A. Robertson, said "the boys get the biggest kick out of this being an amateur show. One look at their faces will tell you that." Many professional artists entertain at Variety Village but few seem to gain the acclaim of the students such as Brigadoon did last night.

The original idea of presenting the show in a Sunday night appearance came from a recital of Christmas carols given by the boys themselves and watched by Griesdorf. He felt that "we should help those who help themselves". That night a tentative date was set.

At press time it was announced that the 80th student to get a job had just been hired. His name was unknown.

Variety Villagers, some in wheel-chairs and others on crutches took time after the performance to show the cast through the school. The evening ended with a rousing and well-attended singsong, led by an enthusiastic Brigadoon cast.

Soft Lights and Music

With the early morning light coming through the windows, Dr. Boyd Neel rehearses his Hart House orchestra for their Hart House premiere last night. This was the second performance of the orchestra which is organized on a similar basis as that House orchestra for their Hart House premiere last night. This was the second performance of the orchestra which is organized on a similar basis as that conducted by Boyd Neel in England for several years. —VSP by Ed Hoshkiw

BLOOD CAMPAIGN COMING UP

Appointments Made
Jan. 17-22

Donations Given
Jan. 31 - Feb. 7

Colonial Grant

The Nuffield Foundation of Great Britain has recently announced a grant of 250,000 pounds (approx. $700,000) to aid in the establishment of Colonial Universities. University College, Ibadan, Nigeria, and the University College of the West Indies, Jamaica are to receive 50,000 pounds each.

Grants to other Colonial University Colleges, including a scheme of research into education in the British Colonial possessions, are being considered by the foundation.

ROYAL YACHT'S CARIBBEAN TOUR

Princess Margaret will use the royal yacht "Britannia" for her tour of the British Islands of the Caribbean. The last duty of the yacht in this connection will be to take the Princess from Jamaica on February 24th to the Bahamas, where she will arrive on February 26th.

Are Bank Poets Really Necessary?

Someone has said it's significant that two of today's best poets, Walter de la Mare and T. S. Eliot, once worked in banks. The significance escapes us, and when an English bank investigated, they weren't able to find out what these versifiers thought of banking. However, they did squeeze a confession out of a poet on the staff. Said he: "As a poem takes its time and that time is unpredictable, I feel that for poetry, banking is as good a career as any." The poet laureate, John Masefield, started life as a banker too, but changed his mind.

As far as the Royal Bank is concerned, we confine our verse to efforts like "Save more in '54" and "Make earning time saving time." Neither is much comfort to the average student who usually has a tough time making ends meet, let alone saving anything, but we want you to think kindly of the "Royal". Even if you've just a pittance, we'll gladly keep it safe for you in a Savings Account. There are four branches near Varsity—Yonge & Bloor, Yonge & College, Harbord & Spadina, and Spadina & College. The Royal Bank of Canada.

Carnival Column

Here are the details of the U of T's first Winter Carnival, which starts today and runs all this week on the campus and at Caledon Hills Farm.

CARNIVAL QUEEN

Each college and faculty is to choose their entry for the title of Carnival Queen. Judging will be done at the Caledon Hills Farm of Hart House this next weekend, as well as during the week on campus.

Each college or faculty can choose their queen on whatever basis they wish, although one suggested criterion was "the girl you would most like to spend two weeks in an igloo with". Contestants for this honor should report to the SAC office as soon as possible.

REGISTRATION

All students who intend to participate in, or view—the events this weekend at Caledon Hills Farm must purchase a registration form for the price of $1.00. These forms are now on sale at the SAC office and at Hart House. The teams of each faculty and college for the events at the farm will be made up from the activities that the students fill in on these forms.

If desired, the colleges and faculties can submit a list of the participants that will represent their college in the team events; otherwise the teams will be made up from the registration forms.

WEATHER

The Carnival will go on as scheduled, the planners have announced, no matter what the weather. Alternate events will be substituted if the weather should prove unfavourable.

CALEDON HILLS FARM

The events at the farm will be held this Saturday and Sunday. Food will be supplied at cost to those attending. There is a limited overnight accommodation available.

Sports activity at the farm will include skiing, skating, rock-climbing and many other activities. There will be a square dance held on Sunday at the farm. Transportation to the farm by bus will be available at a cost of $1.80.

FRIDAY SQUARE DANCE

The Blue and White Society is sponsoring a square dance this Friday night at the drill hall to celebrate Varsity's Carnival. Admission charge will be 25 cents.

HUMAN DOGSLED RACE

There will be a human dogsled race this Wednesday afternoon on the front campus. All colleges and faculties are requested to get their teams arranged as soon as possible.

FURTHER DETAILS

... may be obtained from the SAC office or Hart House.

Council's Members Sell Opera Ducats

The advance sale of tickets for this year's Opera Festival begins this week. Tickets can be obtained through S.A.C. reps or through the SAC office.

The Festival this season will consist of three operas: Die Fledermaus, Marriage of Figaro, and La Traviata, with sixteen performances, including two matinees. All of these presentations have been given new, expertly conceived sets. Dramatic stage direction, specially designed colourful costumes, coupled with the musical excellence of the company, will make this sixth Opera Festival a memorable one.

La Traviata is new in the company's repertoire this year, and is the only opera being presented in Italian. Patricia Snell and Marcella Reale will alternate in the exacting role of Violetta. Other artists will include Jon Vickers and James Milligan.

The Marriage of Figaro is well known to the company, and this year has been recast with such excellent singers as Jan Rubes, Roma Butler, Andrew McMillan and Mary Morrison.

This year's Festival will bring the first presentation of Die Fledermaus by the company in its original form. Alternating with Jon Vickers as Alfred will be a fine artist, Karl Norman from Vancouver.

Staging of these productions is done by the celebrated Herman Geiger-Torel. Nicholas Goldschmidt, musical director of the company, and Maestro Ernesto Barbini are the conductors of the operas. Barbini will conduct the Italian opera, as he has for the past two years, with his accustomed skill.

Preferred seats are available for students and staff until the end of January.

ON CAMPUS JAN. 18 to JAN. 21

W
I
N
T
E
R

C
A
R
N
I
V
A
L

SAT.
JAN.
22

SUN.
JAN.
23

AT CALEDON HILLS
FARM

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

STUDENT TOURS TO EUROPE

LIMITED TO STUDENTS BETWEEN THE AGES OF 19 AND 26
Under the personal guidance of a well-known University Professor.

TOUR # 1 81 DAYS $1,270.00

England, Scotland, Holland, Belgium, Germany,
Switzerland, Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 1

TOUR # 2 74 DAYS $1,135.00

England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland,
Austria, Italy, France.

SAILS JUNE 8

Both Tours sail on the well-known CUNARD LINE

Write, call or telephone for illustrated descriptive folder.

UNIVERSITY TOURS LTD.

(Kenneth B. Town, President)

2 College St.

WAlnut 4-1494

SALE Washable Crinolines

SHORT AND LONG FROM 3 TO 7.50

HELMAR

49 St. George

WA. 1-5978

Engineering Award

The R.C.E. Memorial Scholarship, established in memory of nearly 700 members of the Corps who lost their lives in World War II, was presented recently at York York Armouries, Toronto, to Lieut. J. R. Weir, an engineering student at the University of Toronto, by Brig. J. L. Melville. Those in the picture are, from left, Lt.-Col. T. F. Howlett and M. F. Allan, past and present elect, respectively, of the Military Engineers' Association; Lt.-Col. R. M. Mitchell, Chairman of the Toronto branch; Lieut. J. R. Weir, Brig. J. L. Melville, Col. Comdt. R.C.E. and Major I. C. J. Boxer, representing 2 Field Engineer Regt., with which unit the winner is now serving.

Vic Gets Coleridge Papers To Augment Large Collection

Victorian College — thanks to Professor Kathleen Coburn—now has valuable notes from the files of the poet Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

The purchase was made possible by a grant from the McLean Foundation. The papers — precious not only for their historic significance, but also, as showing the workings of the writer's mind — make Victoria's collection second only to that of the British Museum.

They include the manuscript of the poem Christabel, nine notebooks, the manuscript of the unpublished Opus Maximus, about 150 early editions and annotated books, and personal letters from contemporaries such as the Wordsworth family and Charles Lamb.

Professor Coburn has family connections with the Coleridge descendants, and is presently working on an edition of the poet's unpublished notebooks.

Petition Govt. For Added Fees To Build Union

West Virginia: A petition asking the West Virginia State Legislature to pass legislation authorizing the levying of a special student fee for the construction of a new students' union has been signed by 2,200 students.

The Daily Athenaeum, the West Virginian University Paper, says that the petition's purpose is to prove to the lawmakers that the students still want the fee to be levied on themselves in order to enable the construction of a new student union.

COMING-UP

TUESDAY
4.00 p.m. — PSYCHOLOGY CLUB — 98 St. George Street — Election of Officers — Films.
8.00 p.m. — BIOLOGY CLUB — Copper Room Vic Union — Dr. Falls and Dr. Gunn — Bird Navigation.
WEDNESDAY
1.10 p.m. HART HOUSE CAMERA CLUB — Club Room, Hart House. Colour Show — P. Miller and slides.

TODAY

MONDAY
4.00 p.m. — C.C.F. CLUB — Rm. 53, Economics Bld. — Membership meeting.
5.05 p.m. — CANTERBURY CLUB — Hart House Chapel — Discussion Nicene Creed.

Education Discussed at WUS Seminar Student Obligated to Self and Family

"Education — For What?" was the topic under discussion last weekend at the World University Service Seminar at Caledon Hills. The topic was subdivided into three problems which were handled separately in three groups.

Mass education — how and why, technology vs. the humanities, and education for adults were the provocative questions dealt with. The weekend was described as "mentally and physically stimulating" by one of the twenty students who made the excursion.

The groups met once Friday night and twice Saturday; on Sunday a summing up was made of what had been said and decided. The avowed purpose of the seminar was (1) to discuss what the world's educational systems try to do, (2) to evaluate how well they succeed, and (3) to propose ideas for improving the educational system.

Since the group was cosmopolitan, a good opportunity was made available to the students to find out about schooling systems in other lands. Some conclusions generally agreed upon were that "education enables us to make a living and teaches us to live"; that the student is obliged both to himself and his society.

The trends in education were discussed, and it was felt that modern education put much more emphasis on the individual, that psychological techniques were improving child handling. Indeed, it was thought that the very weekend pointed up a trend in formal education.

Pancake Friers Greatest Need Igloo Builders

The initial event in the U. of T.'s first Winter Carnival will get underway this afternoon on the front campus as third year Metallurgy students will start the construction of a large igloo. The igloo, built of several tons of ice donated by a local ice company, will be one of the feature attractions on campus during the Carnival Week.

The SPS students have said that they will work all night if necessary to finish their igloo. The igloo will be used Tuesday night for a pancake cooking contest among the contestants for the title of Carnival Queen. They will be judged for their ability to cook pancakes over an open fire.

This event, to be held at 7:00 p.m., is just one of the many contests that will be held on the campus during the coming week.

Wine - Women - Song Europe - Here We Come

Hey there! You with your thumb in the air. Going to Europe? With a song in your heart?

Well, the information on the Travel Service, sponsored by the National Federation of Canadian University Students has arrived. There will be sailings starting June 8. There will even be sailings back.

The SS Waterman, Groote Beer (good beer), and Castel Felice will take the students over. The Travel Service has a minimum-cost accommodation on these sailings.

And what's more, there will be tours, with time in between to ramble. Ten tours. Replete, quoth Pogo, with places like Paris, Florence, Milan, l'Isle de France, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, and so on. Keen, eh?

They'll even let you go over if you don't go on a tour. Furthermore, there is a good possibility of chartering air flights — again at a rock-bottom, low-level minimum.

Think of it. Art, culture continental women — and men, Flemish painting, gothic architecture, renaissance art, champagne.

For information, contact Bill Smyth, at the Varsity Office or call at the SAC office.

OK Fee Raise For Manitoba U.

Winnipeg, (CUP) — Students registering at the University of Manitoba next fall will be required to pay more in the way of fees to their students' union.

An increase of 50 cents in the University of Manitoba Student Union fee was approved by the Board of Governors at its December meeting. The authorization for the boost came after a request for the increase was passed at a noisy November meeting of the UMSU council. A similar request for a 50 cent fee hike was turned down by the Board last spring, because of its late submission.

In announcing the Board of Governor's decision, Dr. Hugh H. Sanderson, University president, stated that "as a rule the Board does not like to raise fees, but we were asked to do it, and as a result it was approved. I hope the students will spend it carefully."

A Friend or Foe? Will Discuss Press

The Press — Democracy's Friend or Foe will be the subject under discussion at a panel discussion to be held in Strachan Hall, Trinity College, this Wednesday.

Such questions as "the functions of a free press in a democratic society", "the role of the press in political elections", and "how and by whom are the powers of the press limited?" will be discussed. The meeting starts at 8:15 p.m.

The Provost of Trinity College will be chairman. The special panelist will be Mr. J. B. McGeachie. Two students and two professors will join in the discussion.

Watch for IT

ORON

HART HOUSE THIS WEEK

MONDAY, 17th JANUARY:

10.00 a.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION — Michael Snow and Graham Coughtry
1.15 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — LIBRARY RECORD HOUR (Record Room) "Ghosts" — by Henrik Ibsen — part I
1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL — 2nd tenors (Debates Ante Room).
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — TABLE TENNIS (Debates Room). Running Shoes required
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB (Rifle Range)

TUESDAY, 18th JANUARY:

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — NEW ART EXHIBIT by John (Mac) Reynolds.
5.10 p.m. — QUARTET CONTEST INFORMATION — informal meeting (East Common Room).
7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — GLEE CLUB FULL REHEARSAL (Music Room).
7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
8.00 p.m. — KING'S FOREST ARCHERS vs. HART HOUSE (Rifle Range)

WEDNESDAY, 19th JANUARY:

1.10 p.m. — CAMERA CLUB — Color Show by Peter Miller (Club Rooms).
4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY: Open to women of the University of Toronto.
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — 5 O'CLOCK CONCERT. The Hansen Trio (Music Room. Women, with or without member-escort all welcome.
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL — 1st basses (Debates Ante Room).
5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION — OPEN. Mediaeval Art. Open to men and women (through Reading Room).
7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB. (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. Prizes
7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB. (Rifle Range).

THURSDAY, 20th JANUARY:

8.00 a.m. — HOLY COMMUNION. (Chapel).
5.15 p.m. — WEEKLY RECORD INSTRUCTION CLASS.
7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m. — ART CLASS.
8.00 p.m. — ARCHERY — 2nd week of Canadian Indoor Mail Match. (Rifle Range).
8.00 p.m. — AMATEUR RADIO OPEN MEETING. (Music Room) and special films and commentary on Mobile Telephones. Transistors, Alexander Graham Bell. All members of Hart House welcome.

FRIDAY, 21st JANUARY:

1.30 p.m. - 2.00 p.m. — SING SONG (East Common Room).

SUNDAY, 23rd JANUARY:

2.00 p.m. - 5.00 p.m. — OPEN ART GALLERY.

Hart House Theatre's 33rd All-Varsity Production

FEDERICO GARCIA LORCA'S

The House of Bernarda Alba

SAME SPECIAL STUDENT RATE .75c

Directed by ROBERT GILL

TWO TICKETS ONLY ON EACH A.T.L. CARD

SAT., JAN. 22nd to SAT., JAN. 29th - at 8.30
BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN

at the national federation

ious Comparison

AFFAIRS
the only possible means student organizations.
What portion of
to promoting inter-

$11,537.45
$ 235.00

$13,465.00
$ 1,000.00

proposed budget)

$20,415.00
$ 1,605.00

NFCUS expenditures in approximately 1/13 of the more than 24 of the administration with the re-projects have been suc-

what has the Canadian three thousand dollars expended for inter-
is obvious — nothing!
not been increased. His not been augmented. His furthered. In fact the IUS conference in Mos-
their own admission.
the "official" NFCUS delegation returned to Canada its only recommendation was a negative one — avoid IUS.

Naturally, international affairs have never been the point around which the CUP has tried to justify its existence. But student editors, being practical men, as well as idealists, have recognized that one of their main takes is to supply to their readers as much accurate information as possible about the present international student situation.
Toward this end CUP has undertaken four main projects, all of which have produced tangible results.

First CUP has undertaken an exchange of information with IUS. Under this agreement representative CUP publications . . . including the Varsity . . . are sent to the IUS and all CUP members receive IUS releases.

Secondly, the Varsity and other CUP members are subscribing to the Student Mirror — a digest of student news from around the world.
The Japanese student news bulleting as well as translations of other non-English national digests are also received by various CUP members.

Thirdly, many Canadian University papers subscribe to the American Collegiate Press Feature and News Service. In addition many CUP papers carry on exchanges with individual U.S., British, and Australian papers.

Fourthly, Varsity editor Clyde Batten, at his own expense represented the CUP at the IUS conference in Moscow last summer. Unlike the NFCUS delegation, on his return Batten advocated
(Continued on Page 7)

Campaign In Action

Miss Shielda Young, III Trinity, talks to Roland Michener, M.P., and an unidentified MP, giving details on the Scholarship Campaign. The campaign has approached the Prime Minister on the subject of national scholarships. —VSP by Moishe Reiter

NFCUS At Work

Representatives of the National Federation of Canadian University Students at the conference held here last term. Soft drinks aid the brain, it seems. —VSP by Ed Hoshkiv at the Record

BATTEN

1947. organization achieved. In years of operation they from the National Coun-
as the official voice of the conference of that written into the constithat document is called Rights and Responassignments the national a whole retinue of graphy, etc., an equally to implement these pro-fee which has in-
om. At the present
Ottawa is theoretically national president, a ative secretary, a full-time, and a part time projects and staff has the organization outlets and leaving it to much of the effective is carried on by en-of U. of T.'s scholar-difficult to comprehend administrative organization. The irony of the whole situation is summed up in the position of the above mentioned committee on this campus which would continue to function whether this university remained as a member of NFCUS or not.

It may be argued that the travel department requires a permanent executive. However the volume of business does not warrant it, particularly when such business could be carried out more effectively and with less expense to NFCUS
by a professional firm.

There are areas in which NFCUS could be effective and a motion passed at the recent conference of the CUP points the way to one such area. That motion called upon the national federation to carry out a program for the extension of students rights and responsible government camp across the country.

What then are the specific issues against NFCUS? First of all it is top heavy with administrative organization, so much so that the individual student, with few exceptions, is never intimately concerned with the fate of the organization. Apart from this overextension, the organization has little to show for twenty-seven years of work, and even less to justify the present fees. Finally it has failed to provide an effective rallying point for the enthusiasms of Canadian students.

Cigarettes and Ivory Towers

By PETER G. MARTIN

Don't stop here because the print is small,
the subject-matter dull looking and the chances of reading something funny very slight. Don't stop here — your money is involved and you had better read on.

The students of this university are faced with a decision. We must decide whether or not Toronto is going to stay in the National Federation of Canadian University Students. That's the problem, and it is a grave one, involving some four thousand dollars per year, of your money. I propose to discuss the problem briefly and then, speaking as a student of Toronto and as a vice-president of NFCUS, I propose to present what is, to me, the answer to your problem.

First, let us examine the money involved.
Within the past two years, the representatives of 40,000 students, 10,000 of whom study at Toronto have come to the conclusion that an efficient and effective NFCUS could not function with less capital than a levy of fifty cents per student member. The levy previously had been twenty cents, but it has been conclusively shown that the resulting revenue was inadequate for maintaining a useful Federation. So, now the per capital fee has been set at fifty cents. And, every member school must pay this fee or be expelled from the Federation. On this campus last year we — all of us — decided to pay this fee — provided that we could secure additional SAC revenue. This revenue was not forthcoming, so now we must decide whether to pay the fee out of existing revenues only slightly increased. The money involved is yours, and you must decide where it is to go. Do you feel that fifty cents of your five dollar SAC fees should go to NFCUS?

A few noisy people on this campus would try to convince you that this money, if turned over to NFCUS, would be entirely wasted. With this viewpoint I disagree and I am sure that you too will disagree if you examine the case on its merits.
I don't propose here to present the usual list of the concrete benefits of belonging to NFCUS. Let me only say that, on a financial basis, the National Federation can and does save you, yearly, a great deal more than the fifty cents you are asked to contribute to it. A simple example of this is the savings so many out-of-town students obtain when they use the reduced Christmas rail-fare service offered by the Canadian Passenger Association. This service was originally introduced at the urging of NFCUS. There are other — many other — examples of savings introduced and services provided, but we needn't go into them here.
Your NFCUS fifty-cents, however, is probably about the most valuable fifty-cent piece you could spend in a year.

But there is more to NFCUS than a substantial contribution to the pocketbook and welfare of the Canadian student. NFCUS is the only body in existence which can in any sense represent the Canadian student. This is an intangible benefit of belonging to the Federation, difficult to see, but very real nevertheless. In the field of international student activity, Canadians can justify their heads high for they are held in great esteem by their counterparts in other countries.

both friends, and, loosely speaking, enemies. And this esteem is the direct product of the able work that NFCUS has done over the years on your behalf.

Within our own country too, the united student body of Canada tied together by common interests, has an invaluable spokesman in the National Federation. To give just one example, Canada lags behind virtually every other civilized country in the world in the financial assistance that is given to students. Canada is wasting vast potentials of brains and ability by putting insurmountable financial obstacles in front of many who want and need to go to university. This is a barbaric survival in our country and one which all of us want to overcome.

But how to do this? Well, NFCUS, speaking for the Canadian student is — as you probably know, for the campaign is centred on this campus — arousing public sympathy and government interest in our cause. This is an incredibly difficult task and it is slow work — no immediate tangible benefits here — but the cause is a just one and someone must do something. Now, a rhetorical question: who else could do this work? Could the SAC conduct a campaign on behalf of the whole of Canada? And, if they did, would the Federal Government listen to them? The answer is clearly no. The SAC serves you, the student of Toronto, but who but NFCUS can serve you, the Canadian student?

Every other group of common interests in Canada, from barbers to university presidents, has a voice to speak for them. Surely, then, we the students, united by common needs, interests and desire too must have a voice? If you can answer
'no' to this question, the university has failed to do anything for you; it has failed to broaden your outlook beyond the parochial confines of your own immediate needs. If you answer 'yes' then read on.

Canadian students, need to speak for themselves with a common voice. And NFCUS alone provides this common voice. The University of Toronto contains between one fifth and one quarter of the students in Canada. If we leave NFCUS, then NFCUS will be irreparably crippled and will probably die. They can't survive without us. And if they can't survive, then we have lost an infinitely valuable spokesman and we have done a great disservice to our countrymen in other colleges and provinces who look to us for leadership. We need not feed flames to the fire of already-existing feeling that Toronto is narrow and parochial in outlook. We must not do this. If we did, then we could never hold our heads high again.
Instead of leaders among our fellows, we would be traitors to them.

There, then, is the answer to our problem.
Should we contribute our fifty cents to NFCUS?
Yes, and yes again. That fifty cents brings us financial benefits, it brings us a voice in the wider affairs beyond our ivory tower and it brings us the respect and gratitude of forty thousand other students in this country of ours. Surely all this is worth a pocketful of cigarettes?

YELLOW JACKETS STING BLUES 82-59

Speaking ^{1/2} OF SPORT

By JOHN WILSON

For the first time in some eight or nine games the hitherto almost impregnable Blue defence fell in shreds before the Laval onslaught, and while the Varsity offence outdid themselves for twelve goals, the Red and Gold forwards sifted in and out of Blue territory to score seven of the same, enough to win a normal hockey game.

And five of those seven goals either came on long shots, screened from beyond the blue line, or else the Blue defencemen left at least one Laval marksman totally uncovered at point blank range in front of the Varsity net. Looking back through the records, you find that on one occasion the Blues outshot St. Lawrence University 46-17 and tied them 3-3, and on another occasion they outshot the Elis from Yale 54-5 and won by a slim 3-2 margin. Well may the fan wonder what's the matter with Stephen, Jackson, Appleby, Moreau, Tolton, and Hugh Curry, the ramparts of the Blue defensive unit.

At the risk of sounding just a bit sarcastic, or, if you like, disgusted, which is exactly the case, we'll tell you what's the matter. The Hockey Blues are just too good for their league. So good in fact, that in three league games up until last Friday night the opposition had scored five goals on Hugh Curry and had had roughly forty shots. Then, like we said at the beginning, this machine of perfection fell apart and look at the results.

In four exhibition starts before the regular season, Hugh Curry's work in the Varsity goal contributed in no small measure to the Blues' success with such high-ranking clubs as the Marlboros and St. Mike's. As a matter of fact it was Curry's netminding that gave the Blues that 3-1 victory over St. Francis Xavier, necessary to win RPI's holiday tournament.

We're told that any athlete will go stale without practice, and up to now the only work Mr. Curry has been able to find has been in the hour-long practice sessions, hardly enough to sharpen the reflexes for that time when your defence does relax a bit. Granted Curry may have looked bad on one or two of those goals on Friday, but not so bad that the 2,500 fans in Varsity Arena, over half of whom were intelligent, grown-up, able-to-think-for-themselves, college students, should have nearly brought the roof down each time Hugh Curry stopped the puck. This University is really going to the dogs.

From the Blue Room . . . While we're talking of goal-tenders, fans should take a look at Jack Wheeldrake's intermediates. Just fairly professional . . . The Blues' big first line is now running one-two-three in the league scoring race, positions occupied by the Carabins famed trio of Bernie Quessel, Claude Hotte, and Claude Dagenais in days of yore . . . John Tolton is new league badman with sixteen minutes in the sin bin thus far in the season.

Pre-Meds Shut Out UC Graham Has Hat-Trick

By TOM WILLIAMS

The recent charitable movement afoot in the National Hockey League whereby the "haves" helped the "have-nots" might well receive support in the Interfaculty loop. We've no doubt the Jr. UC squad would give its wholehearted approval to any such endeavour. After last Friday's action, in which they absorbed a 9-0 mauling at the hands of Pre Meds, they might even consider accepting blood donations.

In five games this season Jr. UC has been out-scored, 23-3. If this seems sad commentary on the balance of group II, just glance at the group I standings where Sr. UC shows a scoring deficit of 56-6.

Oddly enough, Jr. UC have won a game, against (of all people) Pre Med, 3-2. However there was little doubt about Friday's game. After Murdoch whipped in two goals in the first two minutes, the question was no longer who, but how many.

Paul and Lee added first period counters to make the half-time lead 4-0. The latter's effort was probably the prettiest goal of the contest (if we can use that word), as he waltzed past the defense to deke goaltender Rook. Hamilton potted in the eighth minute, taking a goalmouth pass from Paul, who made a fine rush. Ritcey added the sixth goal on a corner pass from Robertson, and Graham gave flourish to the finish, running in a late hat-trick. Two of his markers came on the same shift.

The line of Hamilton, Murdoch and Paul were best for Pre-Meds offensively. The defense was collectively good, though they had little to do.

For UC, Cropper managed to get a major share of the six shots Pre Med goalie Cecutti handed between yawns.

A special citation for valor should be awarded UC goaltender, Rook, who displayed rare ability to escape the deluge in one piece. It's amazing what a fellow will do for P.T. credits!

The other Interfaculty game Friday saw a powerful St. Mike's C crew move into second place in group six, trouncing Vic IV, 6-2. Ware who scored both Vic goals, apologized to Irish goalie McDougall for his second marker, which was on the flukey side. "Terrible" Terry Wheeler apologized to no-one for the four he sank for St. Mike's. Eustace and McKinney were non-committal about their singletons.

Stulac Leads Cagemen With 14 But Rochester Shooting Too Hot

The weekend trip to Rochester was a hard one for the Varsity Blues, victory going to the host Yellowjackets by a 23 point margin and an 82-59 score. The zone was ripped open, the top stars checked numb and the shooting averages just laughable—yet the Varsity Blues found something to be happy about. For the first time this year, George Stulac played up to form, leading the Blues with 14 points and working with his old confidence.

Against this consideration the loss to Rochester counts not at all, for with Stulac up to form and complemented by such top players as Peter Potter, Leo Madden and Johnny Braithwaite, the Blues may well live up to their strength on paper and be the class of the Intercollegiate League.

Poor shooting and poor rebounding were the Varsity failings that Rochester exploited skillfully to win their ball game. Height mattered very little in this match with both teams about even in that department, the Yellowjackets jumping just that much higher and harder than the Blues. While the Blues managed to sink almost a third of their shots the Rochester club was hooping nearly fifty per cent of theirs and pulling steadily ahead on foul shots, scoring 26 to the Varsity 9. But, even without the free-throwing, the Blues would have been 8 points down.

Setting two men on the deep man in the Varsity zone the Yellowjackets were able to throw the defence out of position and crack the zone effectively. In this way Jim Texter and Bill Thompson, Rochester's top men were able to throw in 18 and 23 points respectively, these two alone almost matching the entire Varsity output.

Pessimists will look at the recent game between Rochester and Assumption, which the Purple Raiders won, and decide that the Blues have no chance in the league this season and that Assumption is the team to beat. But preseason play has never been accurate indication of a team's strength. Also, the Rochester team members were quick to point out that they had played Assumption during one of their off periods and didn't think that they were really that bad. In any case, judging from Saturday's game with the Yellowjackets and Stulac's performance therein, it is safe to say that the Blues have a fantastic all-round power that is going to make trouble for the teams in their league. With Don Fawcett and Leo Madden held to 6 and 3 points it was Stulac and Florian Matasalla that came up with the scoring power, with Pete Potter and Marv Tile throwing in quite a few to help the cause. Against the other College teams in this area, most of which rely on one or two top men to do their scoring, the Blues have a full team capable of leading attack.

Blue Swimmers Lose 54-30 In Niagara Meet

Toronto Varsity swimmers were set back 54-30 by a powerful Niagara crew during the weekend at a swimming meet held at Niagara. Bibi Stipitec was the individual star for Varsity as he got two out of the three firsts gained by Toronto, while helping set up the other first. Only one record was broken, as in the 200 yd. breast stroke. Schmidt of Niagara won establishing a new record of 2:41.0.

The outstanding event was the 400 yd. sprint relay in which Varsity won due to the efforts of Stipitec. He came from behind to overcome a quarter length lead that Niagara had held. He managed to beat Braasch by a body length to give Varsity the victory.

RESULTS

- 300 yd. medley relay — Niagara 3:17.2
- 200 yd. free style — Braasch (N); Rotkamp (N); McCulloch (T); 2:15.6
- 50 yd. free style — Peabody (N); Hill (T); Dockery (N); 30.8 sec.
- Individual medley 150 yds. combination — Stipitec (T); Zaplana (N); Money (T) 1:20.4
- Diving — Chura (N); Ron Adams (T); Gossage (T)
- 100 yd. free style — Braasch (N); Doherty (T); 54.7 sec.
- 200 yd. back stroke — Stipitec (T); Connell (N); Rambusch (T) 2:37.1
- 200 yd. breast stroke — Schmidt (N) Zaplana (N) Money (T) 2:41.0 (new record)
- 440 free style — Braasch (N); Rotkamp (N); McCulloch (T)
- 400 yd. sprint relay — Toronto, Niagara; 4:07.2

Wrestlers Smother Queens Win Seven of Nine Bouts

University of Toronto Senior Wrestling Blues defeated Queens University 33-8 in a dual meet in Hart House Saturday night. Varsity Intermediate Wrestlers also saw action against Central YMCA but lost 20-10 on the basis of only six matches. The Senior Wrestlers were at full strength with the exception of veteran heavyweight Harry Robinson.

Individual scores were: Wally Kami-Takahara (T), 123 lbs. won by default; Jack McOuat (T), 130 lbs. pinned Ted Courtney (Q) at 0.34 of the second period; Gord Stephenson (T), 137 lbs. won by default; Rae Smith (T), 144.7 lbs. decided Jack Underwood (Q) 5 to 2 in full time; Doug Anakin (Q), 157 lbs. decided Orle Loucks (T) 5 - 2 in full time; Paul Hickey (T), 167 lbs. pinned Jim Plummer at 2.52 of the second period; Bob Waugh (T), 177 lbs. pinned George Felgate (Q), at 1.20 of the second period; Harvey Salem (T), 191 lbs. pinned Joe Goetz (Q), at 0.10 of the second period, with a three-quarter Nelson; Peter Fancy (Q), Heavy, pinned Mike Vasco (T), in 26 seconds of the first period.

In Intermediate competition, Bill Penny (YMCA), 123 lbs. pinned Yanchula (T), in the first round; Tom Pascoe (Y), 147 lbs. pinned Chuck Meyer (T), in the first round; Ben Hooyer (T), 157 lbs. pinned Bernie Greenbaum, (Y) in the third round; John Wesley (T), 177 lbs. pinned Fred Wale (Y), in the first round; Bob Gerber (Y), 191 lbs. pinned Don Cheesman (T), in the first round; Gerber, also pinned Mike Vasko (T), Heavy, in the second round.

In exhibition bouts, Wally Kami-Takahara pinned Murray Berman, both of Varsity, in the third round; Paul Walters pinned Chuck Meyer, in the second round.

Jamboree

First Period
1-Varsity-Knox (Reid)	2:48
2-Varsity-Fisher (Reid)	4:46
3-Laval-Giguere (Massicotte)	13:20
4-Laval-Giguere (Hivon, Carbonneau)	17:38
Penalties — Dorian (highsticking), Tolton (holding), Tolton (elbowing)
Second Period
5-Varsity-Knox (Fisher)	4:3
6-Varsity-Lawson (Bodnar, Adams)	5:35
7-Varsity-Knox (Reid)	6:12
8-Varsity-Fisher (Reid, Stephen)	6:46
9-Laval-Giguere (Arsenault)	17:16
Penalties — Hivon (kneeing), Akitt (charging), Tolton (holding)
Third Period
10-Laval-Arsenault (Hivon, Lafreniere)	3:4
11-Varsity-Lawson (Bodnar)	5:31
12-Varsity-Reid (Knox)	6:13
13-Laval-Giguere (Massicotte)	7:13
14 Varsity-Reid (Knox, Jackson)	9:41
15-Laval-Carbonneau (Groleau)	13:41
16-Laval-Lagace (Lafreniere)	15:08
17 Varsity-Bodnar (Adams)	16:21
18 Varsity-Cossar (Woods, Akitt)	16:32
19 Varsity-Cossar (Woods, Akitt)	17:39
Penalties — Giguere (interference), Lagace (highsticking), Lagace (cross-checking), Groleau (roughing), Hivon (roughing), Lagace (cross-checking), Lafreniere (roughing), Tolton (roughing), Tolton (charging), Jackson (roughing), Adams (interference), Knox (interference)

The Sportswoman

By JOY TAYLOR

Teachers never stop learning even after they graduate. This was well illustrated in the Christmas holidays here at dear old Varsity when a Refresher's course was given to graduates of the school of Physical and Health Education. It seems that teaching methods have changed radically during the past few years and it was therefore necessary to bring everyone interested in physical training up to date.

Many noted instructors took part in the course including Walter Camryn, co-director of the Stone Camryn School of Dance in Chicago and also Lucille McClure, director of her own school of dance here in the city. The gymnastic section of the course was under the guidance of Norah Chatwin from the Department of Education and Kathleen Oswald, a lecturer in PHE at Varsity.

For the basketball devotees, the fundamentals of the game were instructed by Helen Gurney, a PHE instructor at Forester Collegiate, Windsor. Nancy Simpson, a lecturer at Toronto conducted a Basketball National Rating class for the referees. The course came to a successful conclusion with lecture by Dr. Harry Ebbs director of PHS on Health Education—"What it can mean."

The course lasted over a period of three days, occupying the participants time both day and evening. It was not the first to be held nor will it be the last. Its success and the necessity of keeping teachers abreast of new techniques assures its continuance in the future. It is only by sessions like these can the standards of Physical Education be maintained so that Canadians can be assured that their athletes will not be lacking in proper training when it comes to world competitions.

Intermediates Post Second Win RMC Are Victims By 8-1 Count

By FERGUSON GRAY

The Intermediate hockey squad drove to their second win in as many days Friday, trouncing the visiting R.M.C. club 8-1. Only the hustle and superb condition of the Cadets made them any match at all for the harder skating will balanced Toronto team.

Varsity struck early and often to pile up a 4-0 first period lead. Ted Rogers converted linemate Tom Riley's pass to open the scoring as the Red and White of R.M.C. seemed to be on their way to a humiliating defeat. Barry Smith notched the second Toronto counter with Don Borthwick and Bill Naylor collecting the assists. Less than two minutes later Borthwick was back to add to the total on a solo effort and defence-man John Casey completed the scoring for the period, also unassisted.

R.M.C. bounced back with a goal in the opening seconds of the middle period and only the cool work of Al Flemming in the Varsity caged prevented them from scoring further. The visitors seemed to catch their second wind as they carried the play to the Toronto team more throughout the final two frames. Varsity was back in a scoring way at the 3:19 mark with Dud Kearney dropping the puck behind Argu in the Cadet's goal to give the Intermediates a 5-1 lead. Team captain Mert Wright ended the Varsity scoring in the period combining with Ted Rogers and Doug Court to tally.

Ian Morrison scored from Barry Smith midway through the closing period as the Blue and White continued to pile up the goals. While Ted Lotocki rounded off a very successful afternoon for the Seconds scoring from Ian Morrison and John Casey.

Yvon Beauparlant, centering the starting line for the Royal Military College team, was the outstanding performer for the visitors. Barry Smith was among the best for Varsity, collecting a goal and an assist from his defence spot. Don Borthwick and Joe Walker showed well in a penalty killing role while Dud Kearney turned another strong game when in action. Kearney also continued to carry the injury bug of the team. Nicked by a flying puck in the opener Thursday Dud was helped from the ice Friday after painfully twisting his knee when dumped into the boards.

NFCUS and CUP

(Continued from page 5)

a positive policy and wrote a series of informative articles which gave his impressions of Russia and the people he met.

CONCLUSIONS

In summing up the comparison between NFCUS and the CUP several things become obvious.

First, although at one time in the past there may have been a need for an organization something like NFCUS, the present organization is outmoded and should be disbanded. The CUP has taken over the most important function of NFCUS — the sub-stained exchange of opinion on a national scale. It is this exchange of opinion over a long period of time, in written words that can be studied and understood, that leads to understanding.

Secondly, on the strictly economic level, NFCUS is a poor investment; on the idealistic level it is a farce.

Thirdly, since NFCUS has failed to achieve anything on the International level, and is very unlikely to achieve anything until more students become informed about international questions there is no justification for continuing the federation on grounds that it is the only voice of students overseas.

Fourthly, the National Federation should be abandoned and more money spent on developing the facilities of the CUP, then after a reasonable length of time... say five years... the subject of a National Federation should be re-opened when students are informed enough to know what they want.

Knox, Reid, Fisher

(Continued from page 1)

but failed to snag the point blank shot.

The third period turned into a regular jamboree much to the delight of the 2500-odd fans in the Arena as the Blues outscored Laval 6-4. Red lights flashed on and off at a tremendous pace at both ends as nine at the goals were scored in twelve minutes. Centre Lorne Arsenault opened the period scoring from the face-off at 3:4, then Lawson and Reid put the Blues ahead 8-4. Giguere came back with his fourth goal at 7:13, then two minutes later Reid notched his second counter.

Laval were good for just two more from Marcel Carbonneau and Maurice Lagace then Bodnar and Cossar finished out the scoring for the Blues. The tension of a high-scoring contest began to tell midway in the third frame and Lagace, Groleau, and Johnny Adams sat out two-minute fines for rough play. In the heat of the game's dying minutes, Don Cossar appeared to be the only Blue on the ice paying any attention to the puck and as a result potted two beautiful goals catching Laval netminder. Raynald Lavioie off-guard both times.

With such offensive power as the Blues displayed Friday night it is unlikely that the opposition will be able to stop them in the home stretch. McGill, however, after upsetting Laval 6-2 in Quebec Wednesday night, turned the tables on the Carabins 6-1 in Montreal Friday night to move into second place in the standings. Redman Coach Rocky Robillard must have revamped his tribe after the 9-1 shellacking they took from the Blues before Christmas. Now just four points behind the front-running Varsity club, they could be the trouble-makers that will upset the Blues.

The Blues renew their feud with Laval this Friday night in the Coliseum at Quebec, and then return to Verdun to clash with the Carabins on Saturday. The McGill Redmen will be visitors on Varsity ice in two weeks in their first Toronto appearance this season.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

FOR SALE
60 x 60 Dalite beaded portable projection screen, as new—in original box—$28 Mike Chubb, WA. 3-0478.

SWITCHED COATS?
Found grey gabardine coat and glasses on Monday, 9-10 lecture in S32-Engineering Bldg. Phone M. Rotmann, HU. 8-4969.

THESES TYPED
Careful attention to detail, expert typing. Reasonable rates. Mrs. Dorothy Jolly, HA. 1267.

FOR SALE
From a doctor's estate, 1 cabinet, 1 trial lens set, ophthalmoscope, projector, Beebe binocular loupe, lens gauge. Contact A. Sinclair, WA. 3-0841.

STUDENTS' LIFE INSURANCE
Own a $10,000 estate for $5.00 per month. Protection for now. Convert to a savings policy later within ten years. Details? Call Norman Richardson—HU. 8-3929.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RM. 1843 anytime.

SMALL RED BOOK
Tawney's Religion on the Rise of Capitalism lost in Vic Coffee Shop Ec. 16th Please return to Ralph Spence, the Wallace Room or phone PL. 7-0664.

Badminton

Intercol Glance

By FLO MIDDLETON

Well, it looks as if this is the season for making that high and envied position on an Intercollegiate squad—what with Intercollegiate basketball and volleyball teams being in the embryonic stage, we are now faced with the question of who is going to make the Varsity Badminton foursome.

For the bird and racquet enthusiasts who never got around to signing the badminton lists on their athletic notice boards for the Intramural Meet they have missed the boat as far as having a chance at gaining a position on Toronto's badminton team as the meet starts to-morrow, January 18.

The four players who are to carry the blue and white colours (2 singles and 1 doubles) will be chosen on the basis of their showing at the Carleton Club on Tuesday and again on Wednesday morning. The games promise to be very exciting with the competition being wide open due to the absence of all members of last year's team.

The two St. Hilda's power-houses, Daphne Cross and Heather MasPherson will be missing from the 1955 edition of the badminton team; however, stars like Daphne Walker and Noreen Cossar who have been showing well in district matches seem to be sure bets to take their places. Nevertheless, the chance of making the team is still wide open. It is especially encouraging to notice the large number of first year players who have entered the competition. They certainly will give their seniors a run for their money.

Once the team has been chosen, they will start practice under Marj. Shedd, Canadian Badminton Champion in preparation for the Intercollegiate Meet which will be held here at Toronto on Feb. 4 and 5.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY 12:30—St. M. B vs. Dent. A — Fisher, Reid
1:30—For. A vs. Law — Naylor, Dyrart
7:30 Pham vs Arch — Lotocki, Naden
BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE
1:00—SPS IV vs. St. M. B — J. Love, Matthews
4:00—Vic. III vs. Med. III — Dolman, Matthews
SQUASH 1:00—Jr. SPS vs. Trin. B
4:20—Jr. U.C vs. Law
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1:00—Vic Gate House vs. Pre-Med II C — McLaughlin
(Game Cancelled)
4:00—St. M. House 2 vs. II Eng Bus — Glass
5:00—Vic Leathersiders vs. Med III Yr. B — Glass
6:00—Med. III Yr. A vs. III Eng. Bus — Glass
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
4:00—Vic Fourteeners vs. St. M. House 90 — Caplan
5:00—Trin. Fox Trotters vs. I Chem. C — Caplan
6:00 Pham Amos vs. Pham Cations — Caplan
INDOOR TRACK — Upper Gym 5:00 p.m. — 100 yds, 600 yds.
Competitors please sign lists in Intramural office.

BADMINTON

ALL MEN WHO SIGNED ENTRY LIST FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE BADMINTON TRIALS WILL PLAY AT THE CARLTON CLUB, 94 HAYDEN ST. ON MONDAY, JANUARY 24th AT 3:00 P.M. WHITES MUST BE WORN.

THE COMMUNIST VIEWPOINT

on

- CANADA
- PEACEFUL CO-EXISTENCE and GERMAN RE-ARMAMENT

By TIM BUCK

Thurs., Jan. 20, Economics Bldg., Room 115 — 8:15 p.m.

Sponsor—U of T Labor Progressive Party Club

SKI TRIP

January 28 - 31 to St. Sauveur

There is a limited amount of accommodation still available for students wishing to go on the Ski Trip.

Make your reservations now at the SAC Office!

Women's Hockey Schedule Week of January 17th

DATE	TIME	GAMES	REFEREES
Tues., Jan. 18	12:30-1:30	P.H.E. vs. P.O.T. I	Riley
Wed., Jan. 19	12:30-1:30	U.C. I vs. Vic II	Yackimoff
Thurs., Jan. 20	12:30-1:30	P.H.E. II vs. P.O.T. II	Stephen

Please Note—There are no games, Monday and Friday of this week. Medical lists must be in before your team's next scheduled game. All players must have medical or they will not be allowed to play.

Women's Volleyball Schedule

LEAGUE I	II	III	IV
P.H.E.	St. Mike's	Vic Sophs.	Vic Freshies
P.O.T. Jr. - Sr.	U.C. Jr. - Sr.	Nurses	St. H. Freshie-soph.
St. H. Jr. - Sr.	Vic Jr. - Sr.	P.O.T. Freshies	U.C. Freshie-soph.

L.M. GYM	MON. JAN. 17	TUES. JAN. 18	WED. JAN. 19	THURS. JAN. 20
5:00-6:00	St. Hilda's Practice		Meds vs. Vic Sophs.
6:00-7:00	St. Mike's vs. Vic Jr. - Sr.	Nurses vs. P.O.T. Freshies	St. Hilda's Freshie-soph. vs. Pharm.	P.H.E. vs. P.O.T. Jr.-Sr.
7:00-8:00		St. H. Jr.-Sr. vs. P.O.T. Jr.-Sr.	U.C. Jr. - Sr. vs. St. Mike's	Intercollegiate try-outs
8:00-9:00		Vic Freshies vs. U.C. Freshie-soph.

O.C.E. Gym Wed. Jan. 19 — 5:30-6:30—Intercollegiate try-outs. There's still a chance to get on the Intercollegiate Volleyball team so why not come out for this week's practise. It's fun!

VOLEYBALL REPRESENTATIVES — There will be a meeting, Mon. Jan. 17 at 1:00 p.m. at Falconer Hall with Miss N. E. Simpson.

irate readers write . . . MORE ABOUT ISRAEL

A Ticklish Problem

The Editor,
The Varsity.

Mr. Pidhaini in his recent letter to the Varsity, has touched on a rather ticklish problem. He shows however, a shocking lack of information about Near Eastern affairs. As a result he is unable to make any really constructive suggestions, which might lead to a permanent solution of the problem.

It should be pointed out to Mr. Pidhaini, that in November 1947, the United Nations having irrevocably rejected the idea of a bi-national state for Palestine, as completely unfeasible, affirmed as inalienable, Jewish historic rights to Palestine and partitioned Palestine into two independent sovereign states. Is the Jewish claim to Israel then unjust as Mr. Pidhaini so blandly asserts. The Arab refugee problem exists to-day, not because of any fault of Israel, but because the Arab states in open defiance of this U.N. decision, committed wanton aggression in attacking Israel.

Israel guaranteed to the Arab inhabitants within its boundaries, unconditional safe conduct. Yet, fearing reprisals by the Arab Higher Committee (openly threatened by Arab leaders in the event of Arab conquest of Israel) many Arabs who wished to remain, fled to Arab lands. Israel has proven true to its promise, and has dealt amicably with the 180,000 Arabs who remained.

On February 25, 1954 The Special Study Mission to the Near East, of the U.S. Congressional Committee on Foreign Affairs, made the most constructive suggestions for solving this problem, yet to have arisen.

The report points out that a basic solution of the dilemma would be far more feasible were Israeli-Arab tensions to be resolved, by Peace between these powers. Israel has repeatedly made peace overtures to the Arabs, which have invariably been met by renewed threats of Arab aggression. Should the Arabs make peace, they could then turn with a free mind, to constructively solving the refugee problem. The report therefore reaffirms the three power (Britain, France, U.S.) guarantee of Israel's frontiers. Furthermore it indicates that, Israel cannot repatriate Arab refugees, since it would thus endanger its own military security, undermine completely its economic foundations, and create greater social and cultural problems for the Arab refugees, who can be better integrated in Arab lands. It therefore suggests that steps be taken to ensure peace in the area, and that constructive projects be undertaken to integrate the Refugees. Only 31% of whom, are still in camps) in the countries they are now found in (Jordan, Egypt, Lebanon and Syria).

Arab leaders have obstructed efforts at refugee integration, placing political aims above Humanitarian ideals. The committee recommends that present refugee aid be stopped! Instead it calls on Arab leaders, to initiate a resettlement and development programme for which alone, U.N. funds should be made available. Thus and thus only will a permanent solution for this pressing problem be achieved.

Mr. Pidhaini need also note that 350,000 Jews have fled, deprived of their financial assets which have been frozen by Arab countries, from the ruthless Arabic oppression in Arab states (Iraq, Yemen, and Morocco). Could I then suggest, Mr. Pidhaini, that another donation might be well in order, to the current Campus campaign of the United Jewish Appeal, whose funds will be constructively used by Israel to absorb the destitute "refugees" who this very day are fleeing from Arab oppression, in French Morocco.

Harry Urman III U.C.

A Dispassionate Look

I must recommend Mr. Pidhaini for his humanitarian spirit! But he accuses the State of Israel of genocide; this is a false and indeed dangerous accusation. I am a Jew, but I will attempt to look at this problem dispassionately. Why are these 800,000 Arabs in Jordan and neighbouring states? Why are they still living in tents? What was the fate of their brethren left in Israel?

If Mr. Pidhaini had taken the trouble to read the U.N. documents before he made his accusation, he would have found that the Arab populations were requested to remain in the state and be governed as Israelis with equal rights and equal obligations with the Jewish population. They serve in the army, Houses of Parliament, etc. But the propaganda machine of the massed Arab states put pressure on the Arab population to leave, and 800,000 did. These Arab states have not sought to rehabilitate these miserable thousands. They do not wish to incorporate them into their own lands, they would rather have them as a thorn in Israel's side. Israel realizes that these people came from that state, but how can she admit 800,000 people from a land still at war with her, people who voluntarily (as far as Israel is concerned) left the country, and can technically be classified as enemies. Such a step offends common sense.

If your objections, Mr. Pidhaini, were changed and directed against the Arab states for inhuman treatment of their own people, then your letter would pass without reproach.

Joe Houpt, I Medicine

Biased Experts and Simplification

The Editor,
The Varsity.

From gazing at the putrid pictures in Time and at the gaunt faces that decorate the cover of the Presbyterian Observer Mr. Pidhaini has without doubt become an unprejudiced expert in the Arab refugee problem "and many other things besides". His commendable concern is, however, somewhat dulled by his ignorance of the facts. Oversimplification is such a tempting morsel, yet how easy it is to choke on it. Sadly enough, higher education has not been successful in teaching Mr. Pidhaini to differentiate between trash and truth.

At the outbreak of war in Israel in 1948 the seven invading Arab armies terrified their Palestinian cousins into fleeing from their homes by atrocity stories and by promising them greater prosperity in a "greater" Arab world. The assets left behind were then taken into custody by the Israeli government as an ordinary war measure.

Since the war the Arab states have made no move to resettle these destitute people. They are not only unwilling to discuss the matter with Israel, but do not even allow the refugees to choose their own representatives. Every plan offered by the U.S. and the U.N. for a lasting settlement of this problem has met with no co-operation even by the oil-wealthy states that can afford to do so. Nevertheless Israel has offered to release the Arab assets and pay fair restitution and is now allowing families split up by the war to unite and live together in Israel.

Why have the Arab states taken this obdurate uncompromising attitude? First of all, the wretched refugees serve as a convenient issue at the U.N. while at home they divert attention from the lack of progressive reform. The hope for a promised "Second Round" is kept alive by the sight of these refugees and in this connection they also help to hamper Israeli development by mighty terrorist raids which destroy property and morale.

Mr. Pidhaini has obviously not heard that Israel is a bi-national state. The Israeli Arabs have representatives in the parliament and have, as in Nazareth, their own elected municipal governments. Arab laws are respected, Arab religious courts prevail, and government jobs are open to them without prejudice.

Please understand, Mr. Pidhaini, we are not against helping widows, waifs, and poor refugees, but merely against trite phrases and reckless slander. In the future, we recommend that instead of only looking at pictures you also do some intelligent reading.

Your friends.

Stanley Urbas I U.C.
Phineas Schwartz I U.C.

TEETER N. SKATE (Figure-Skating Coach) says: "It takes balance to cut a good figure."

It's a sound idea to keep a good figure in your saving's balance

BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada's First Bank

Queen's Park Branch: JOSEPH BURDOCK, Manager
Bloor and Bay Streets: KENNETH A. McNEIL, Manager
St. George & Bloor Sts.: T. HARRY BRYSON, Manager

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1817

There's lots of excitement around the dance floor—greeting old friends, making new ones.
Part of the fun of campus parties is the pause to enjoy a Coke.
It's delicious...refreshing, too:

Campus
capers
call for
Coke

7¢

Including
Federal Tax

COCA-COLA LTD.

SMITH PLEAS FOR MONEY

Not An Error!

Development of Freedom University's Function

An appeal to the public for greater interest in Canadian universities was made here yesterday by President Sidney Smith. In a speech to the Canadian Club, Dr. Smith rested his case for the Universities essentially on its function of maintaining and developing democratic freedom.

Referring to the universities, of Canada as the "bastions of freedom", Dr. Smith stated that it was the universities' function to stimulate and develop "the brains to seek and recognize underlying principles, to question established doctrines, to exercise free and independent thought"; and the backbone to uphold independent attitudes, to stand up for individual convictions, however unpopular, and to be "characters". Only with this type of brains and backbone can "freedom, under the law, that priceless heritage of Western civilization" be exercised.

Dr. Smith called for increased financial support from individual citizens and organizations.

The government cannot be the only support of the Universities for, the President said, "if only one group pays the piper, there are invariably temptations to call the tune".

Besides, government contributions fall pitifully short of the amount needed to keep education from becoming the possession of the rich. President Smith lamented that, compared to British and U.S., Canadian government assistance to higher education is a mere pittance.

Without the interest and support of individual citizens, the government cannot be expected to increase University revenue.

Dr. Smith emphasized the importance of university trained professional workers in society. However, he stated that "if every professional school were stripped from the university, it would still be essential to our country and civilization, for it enshrines and inculcates liberal education, that is, education for freedom."

"The case for the universities does not rest on their attractiveness to tourists, or the business they bring to their communities, or the picturesqueness of their campuses, or the competence of their professional training, or the usefulness of their research. The case rests primarily on their development of the brains to visualize, and the backbone to create, a better Canada and a finer world."

Student Drinking Prompts Inquiry

Ottawa (CUP): Drinking on campus at Carleton College is in the news this month. Student Council Treasurer Bob Williamson said he saw two persons carrying bottles of beer into the students lounge at a Student's Council Open House.

Williamson raised the issue at the first Student Council meeting of the New Year, and moved "That the Student's Council request the Judicial Committee to investigate the drinking of alcoholic beverages in the union during the Students Council Open House, December 21."

Williamson said he also saw "fifteen or twenty boys" going up and down the stairs to the basement. "They weren't going down to develop pictures at 11:30 at night, either," he said.

Other members of the council objected to the manner in which Williamson was seeking justice. Publications Chairman Basil Clark felt that the Students Council should not be blamed for the incident, although he agreed with the spirit of the motion, if it was substantiated. He suggested that Mr. Williamson get ten students to sign a petition to call the Judicial Committee.

With half the council absent, a vote was taken. The motion was defeated. Williamson left after another motion of his, to fire the Staff Photographer of the Carleton, failed to receive a second. Asked to explain, he shouted from the door: "To hell with you, to hell with you all", and left.

Tim Buck Slated To Speak Here On Canada Role

"Canada and World Affairs" will be the topic of a talk by Tim Buck — national leader of the Labour-Progressive Party. Mr. Buck will deal with problems affecting Canadians on the international scene, especially the question of German rearmament. He will also discuss the prospects of world peace in 1955, as well as the question of Canadian-U.S. relations. The meeting, sponsored by the University of Toronto L.P.P. Club will take place Thursday, January 20th, 8:15 p.m. in Room 115 of the Economics Building.

Mr. Buck is the foremost spokesman of the communist movement in Canada. He has been the leader of the Labour-Progressive Party for many years and is the author of numerous books, among which are "Canada — The Communist Viewpoint" and "30 Years" — the history of the communist movement in Canada. He has recently made a four months extensive tour of Europe — including France, Britain and the Soviet Union.

UBC Engineers May Face Expulsion Hell-Raising Spree Runs Two Days

Vancouver — (CUP) — Possibility of expulsion faces the leaders of 50 wildly-rampaging University of British Columbia engineers who embarked on a two-day hell-raising spree over the week-end following a taunt in the student newspaper that UBC engineers lacked spirit.

Two columnists who made the charge were bodily dumped in a campus lily pond and 1,000 copies of the Ubyssy were burned by the offenders.

Officials of the university took a dim view of the whole affair. The University President promised he would take serious action. The Faculty Council and the Board of Governors would take "drastic action".

Four raids on the office of the Ubyssy — the UBC undergraduate newspaper — climaxed the two-day spree which began last Thursday with the attempted kidnapping of a college Mardi Gras king and queen at a basketball game.

Frustrated in their attempts at the kidnapping, the 50 hooting and hollering engineers cut across the campus to the Ubyssy office and using stirrup pumps and tear gas bombs, forced their way inside.

They ripped up a file of back copies of the Ubyssy, marched off with a typewriter and a door and set fire to the 1,000 papers.

Also during the two-day demonstration, the high-spirited engineers invaded a downtown Vancouver pub and marked up murals on the walls with grotesque initialings of "UBC".

Two editors of the paper — not the columnists who found themselves taking a January bath in the lily pond — were kidnapped Thursday night and driven in a car to far-off Grouse mountain.

Invited to step out of the car at the end of their trip, the two editors were left to find their way on foot back home again.

—VSP by Ed Hoshkiw

Carnival Week January 17-24

our readers write a lot more:

Civil Rights And Freedom

The Editor,
The Varsity.

It is difficult for one to forget one's prejudices and argue about a thorny problem like Palestine with a rational attitude. For this reason I shall avoid commenting on the greater part of the letters by Messrs. Urman, Houpt, Urbas, and Schwartz.

However, there are a couple of points that I would like to bring up. Mr. Urman mentioned something about the Jewish historic rights to Palestine. If rights, that date back a couple of thousand years are still valid, then shouldn't certain parts of the world be returned to the people that inhabited them up to 400 years ago?

Messrs. Houpt, Urbas, and Schwartz mentioned something about the Arab States exerting pressure upon the Arab population of Palestine, thus forcing them to leave their homes and property. I have met many Palestinians, and from what they told me they left their homes voluntarily in preference to living under Zionist rule. Regarding the Arab terrorist raids, I would like to refer Messrs. Urbas and Schwartz to the reports of the U.N. Armistice Committee.

Messrs. Urbas and Schwartz mentioned something about the civil rights of the Arabs in Israel. I have many Jewish friends and relatives in Egypt and as far as I know they have the same civil rights and religious freedom as any other resident of our country.

C. P. Michelllepis,
School of Grad. Studies.

Genocide! — Arab or Israel

The Editor,
The Varsity.

800,000 straving wretches, they have practically no medical care, no formal education, and little political freedom. Warned by their leaders to evacuate Israel, (to avoid becoming casualties of the Arab armies), told of their glorious return to an all-Arab state, they emigrated seven years ago. The problem: Is Israel practicing genocide against them?

A large portion of Arabs chose to remain in Israel during the Arab "Holy War". Today these Arabs vote in elections; they hold political office; they attend schools; benefit from state medical care; have a higher standard of living. Yet Israel is accused of genocide.

The entire middle East is today a political hotbed. The feudalistic Arab leaders are worried about the effects of a modern democratic society in their midst. Egypt is in a constant state of political turmoil. Reactionary forces dominate the Arab states. Their goal is the abolition of the State of Israel.

An injustice was done to the refugees in that the victory of the Israeli army prevented them from returning to their homes. A greater injustice was lowered on world Jewery by Hitler. The injustice to these 'refugees', living in concentration camps, in underdeveloped countries, which have the wherewithal to absorb them, is today the greatest injustice! These 'refugees' are but a political club!

That Israel has absorbed 850,000 refugees into her economy while the whole Arab League has failed to do so seems incomprehensible. Underpopulated Syria points to her displaced Arab refugee problem. How touching; her heart bleeds for them, yet fields go untended, her resources remain undeveloped — and her 'refugees' go starving!

The Arab League, which cannot afford to re-habilitate its 'refugees', poses a study in incongruity. It finds it more desirable to import foodstuffs, plywood, building materials, etc. from France, then to have them trucked over the border from Israel! How can the League be expected to support its 'refugees', as well as its economic blockade against Israel? Apparently it feels that it cannot support both; and thus 800,000 starving Arabs!

If genocide is being attempted, may I suggest that it has Israel, and not the forty-million strong Arab League, as its victim!

Elliott Levine, I. U. C.

You'll see a beautiful figure difference . . . immediately!

Circoloform
BRA by EXQUISITE

IN SATIN OR BROADCLOTH, $2.50

A Cup—32 to 36
B and C Cups—32 to 38

AMAZING FLOATING ACTION

- BEND . . . your bra won't hike up
- TWIST . . . no pull on your shoulder straps
- S-T-R-E-T-C-H . . . and your bra won't slip

Try this exciting CIRCL-O-FORM style you'll get a dream of a bra that moulds your figure beautifully. "Floating action" distributes shoulder strap pull—relieves bosom pressure—gives you heavenly comfort, freedom and support.

★ ★ ★

THE "EQUALIZER" BRA
by EXQUISITE

Has a "built-in contour" of foam rubber and brings you up to full cup measurements with a completely natural look. Four section stitched cups.

In White Satin. A Cup—30 to 36 $3
B Cup—32 to 36

Silf Skin

FULL-FASHIONED GIRDLES

Seamless Comfort for Youthful Figures

PANTY GIRDLE
or
GARTER GIRDLE
$6

Small, medium and large sizes

- Full-Fashioned—knitted of nylon and "Lastex"—fits like a second skin—washes and dries in a jiffy.
- Bias Knit—the Silf Skin knit actually changes direction to follow and firm each contour.
- Seamless Comfort—exclusive Silf Skin patented seamless crotch in the panty—no seams anywhere to chafe or rub—heavenly comfort, no matter how active you are.

OPEN HOUSE
FRIDAY
EVENINGS
All Stores Except
Yonge & Adelaide

Evangeline

OTTAWA • BROCKVILLE • LONDON • TRENTON
GUELPH • ST. CATHARINES • KINGSTON • PETERBOROUGH

- 113 Yonge at Adelaide
- 796 Yonge at Bloor
- 1458 Yonge at St. Clair
- 3414 Yonge at City Limits
- 444 Eglinton W. at Castleknock
- 656 Danforth at Pape
- 62A Bloor at Bay

Proportion of Urgency

The Editor,
The Varsity.

I wish to make some observations on an article with the caption "Shades of Thomas Wolfe" by Hugh McKellar in your issue of Tuesday, Jan. 11th.

To accept the explanation that a student's failure after two years at college to readjust himself to his former environment "is just a part of life" would savour of brain washing.

This is the difficulty of a sophomore, but from the article it appears to be the "sad" lot of many students. Mr. McKellar does not wish to face the realities of the situation.

What in two years at college could have made this student so different? Who can believe that living in residence and making one's own decisions for two years changes the student so radically? Therefore there can be no antipathy because of this precious and well guarded achievement—his new-found self-assurance and self-assertiveness.

Rather it is in his social relations with the family that estrangement occurs. Student and parents cannot meet on the same intellectual level. Family small talk is now anathema to him. He desires to be left alone to meditate on some philosophical truth of which he has caught a glimpse, or to sigh for the chit-chat of the Arbor Room. There are students to whom these two ways of life seem to have equal importance.

In either case it must be the outcome of his education. This is plain old intellectual snobbishness. Education is supposed to make one think; it should make one humble, not proud; it should make one understand and meet the needs of others; from it one should accept a certain trusteeship. Instead, the products of our universities seem to be little pedantic prigs who take pride in the intellectual truths they can propound to distinguish themselves from the common herd.

Such students remain slaves to the false standards of society from which ironically this very education is intended to emancipate them. Is this progress in the right direction? Somehow the proposed WUS weekend seminar on "Education for What?" assumes proportions of fearful urgency.

Ernest Goodwin,
I Trinity.

COMING-UP

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19
1:05 & 1:30 p.m. — UC FRENCH CINE CLUB, Room 6, U.C. Film on Van Gogh in English. Admission free.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20
8:15 p.m. — VICTORIA COLLEGE CLASSICS CLUB, Wymilwood in the Coper Room. Miss White of Trinity College will speak on "Is There Such A Thing As Graeco-Roman?"

8:15 p.m. — U of T LPP CLUB, Room 115, Economics Building. Tim Buck will speak on "Canada and World Affairs".

SALE OF FORMALS

ALL ORIGINALS

LONG AND SHORT

DRASTICALLY REDUCED!

HELMAR

46 St. George St.

WA. 1-5978

◀ Watch for IT ▶

T

ORONTONEN

National Federation And You

The NFCUS Story

By GORDON HURLBURT

The purpose of this article — the second of a series of five — is to describe the NFCUS Interregional Scholarship Plan. This plan allows selected students to take one year's university work at universities other than the "home" university and in a different part of Canada. This plan is in its twenty-first year of operation.

The universities of Canada are divided into four divisions as follows:

- DIVISION I — The University of British Columbia.
- DIVISION II — The Universities of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba.
- DIVISION III — The Universities of Ontario and Quebec.
- DIVISION IV — The Universities of the Maritime Provinces.

Generally speaking, no student may enter the plan unless he takes work at University which is in a different division than his "home" university. A notable exception to this is the case of a student in Ontario (say) who may wish to attend a French-Canadian university in Quebec for the purpose of special studies in the French language. In this case exchange will be encouraged.

To be eligible for the exchange program a student must apply for work in a university in another division in his third year, on the understanding that he will return in his fourth year to his own university to complete his course. Special exception is made in this under the NFCUS plan for graduate work. The total number of "Federation Scholars" that may be selected for attendance at a university may not exceed one per cent of the total student body. Applications should be directed to the registrar of the university not later than February 15th.

It is felt that all those who apply (medicine and dentistry are ineligible) should make it a point to fit into the extra-curricular role of the university to be visited. These students will be sent out as ambassadors who will both study, and mingle in the student life.

Can Present SAC Budget Retain NFCUS? Problem Faces Toronto Students Now

By ALBERT WALDEN
SAC Finance Commissioner

On Wednesday, Jan. 26th, the SAC will decide about membership in NFCUS — probably its most important decision this year. Membership in NFCUS is an expensive proposition; thus the finances of the Council will be affected greatly by the decision. The large fee required by the Federation could be used to advantage here in Toronto to increase and maintain Council activities. So — is it worth-while to remain in NFCUS?

A brief review of the finances of the SAC is necessary to answer this question. The budget for this year, 1954-55, was drawn up on a basis of 7900 students. The budgeted fee for NFCUS was 20 cents per student, giving a total fee of $1580.

Fortunately, it is expected that the enrollment will be increased to 8700 students next year. This will mean an increase of income amounting to $4000 (800 more students paying the five dollar SAC fee). But, in order to be a member of NFCUS next year, Toronto would have to pay 50 cents per student, or a total fee of $4350. Thus the increase to NFCUS would amount to $2770. On top of this an additional $1800 will have to be spent on administrative salaries next year. The net result is this: although the Council can expect an increase in revenue of $4000 in 1955-56, its expenditures may be increased by $4570.

Thus, if Toronto remains in NFCUS, next year the SAC will have $570 less to spend on other activities; but, should the Council decide to withdraw, $3780 will be available for the maintenance and growth of its local activities.

During the past several years, the value of NFCUS has been extremely doubtful; and it is significant, perhaps, that the office of Finance Commissioner of the SAC has frequently been associated with opposition to NFCUS. Moreover it must be agreed that it is more reasonable to judge an organization by its performance in the past than by its promises for the future. And so, even if the SAC were not in such a financially difficult position, payment of an additional $2770 to an organization such as NFCUS would be far from reasonable; in consideration of our actual financial status, NFCUS membership is little short of folly.

In the past year many Council activities have suffered from lack of sufficient funds. The Varsity has, no doubt, borne the brunt of the unavoidable economizing. The orchestra and chorus are hampered by a low budget allotment. The Blue and White Band is scraping through with difficulty. This fall a debating tour had to be cancelled, mainly because of the small UTDU allotment; and week-end exchange efforts are strictly limited financially as well. So there are many fine activities right here on the campus which could make good use of the money saved if Toronto should withdraw from NFCUS.

The "All Varsity Revue" deserves particular mention here. Long one of the most popular SAC activities, it has been dropped completely for two years, mainly because of the financial weakness of the Council. At present the AVR Committee of the SAC is hopeful of running the show in '56; but it is extremely unlikely that the Council will be able to afford it and NFCUS too.

The above facts almost speak for themselves; the conclusion is obvious. The SAC must remember that its direct responsibility is to the students through activities on this campus. In this accord, it is impossible to maintain membership in NFCUS in conjunction with their current tax is. Should membership be available in the future at a more moderate rate, it is definitely worthy of consideration; but at the moment there is no alternative. So, for the good of the students of this university, I hope that the Council rejects membership in NFCUS on Jan. 26th. It is better that there be a strong SAC and a weaker NFCUS than a weak SAC and a weak NFCUS.

"acdo dy

Varsity's Greatly Reduced Finances Still Precarious

The current controversy over whether Toronto should — or can afford to — maintain its membership in NFCUS at an increased student levy of 50 cents, raises some questions about the state of the SAC's finances and the activities that they support.

To illustrate the current trend of the SAC's finances, let's take a look at one SAC activity — The Varsity, and its history over the past few years.

This year will see 82 issues of The Varsity published on this campus. The year before—1953-54—there were 88 issues of the U of T paper actually published, although the original SAC budget had provided for more. This budget had to be revised at the middle of the year, and The Varsity budget was cut severely.

Previously to this, The Varsity budget had received successive annual cuts since about 1949. All during the war years, when there was a severe shortage of paper and the U of T enrollment suffered a notable decline, approximately 100 issues of The Varsity were published annually. This practice of publishing 100 Varsitys was maintained at the university till 1949-50, when only 96 issues were published due to the declining state of the SAC's finances. Student fees at this time were only $3.00 a year; they are now $5.00.

Looking even farther back into the "starving thirties", we find that The Varsity was published on an average of 100 times a year. And even farther back — in 1923-24 there were 103 issues of

The Varsity printed even though student enrollment and fees were both only a fraction of what they are now.

The last time The Varsity has been cut to as few issues as it is now was during the war year of 1914-1918 and shortly thereafter.

The pressure to reduce The Varsity's budget has also been felt in other ways. Printers have been changed several times in the last few years in order to make publishing costs as low as possible. Cheaper plastic engravings have been substituted for zinc plates for picture reproduction. And the smaller tabloid 5-column format has been adopted.

Also, more advertising has been included in the paper. The Varsity probably publishes more advertising than any other college paper in Canada.

A comparison with the costs of other Canadian college papers shows that The Varsity's cost — per student — is among the lowest of any college publication in Canada.

For instance, it costs the students at the University of Saskatchewan approximately $13,000 a year to publish 42 copies of The Sheaf. The University of Manitoba undergrads pay $8,000 a year to print about 39 Tobans. The Varsity costs the students at the U of T a little over $9,000 a year for 82 issues of about 7,500 copies each — a great many more copies than both the other papers print combined.

Marilyn Not Ready College Must Wait

Marilyn Bell, the 17-year-old swimming heroine will be attending McGill University next fall according to the McGill Daily the student newspaper there.

But here in Toronto, a sister at Loretta College where Marilyn is now a student, had a different story to tell.

Dissipating newspaper reports which appeared yesterday, the sister said, "As far as we know, Marilyn isn't ready for university yet . . . she'll likely be back here with us again . . . I know that she has been talking about McGill but I think that's quite a bit in the future."

The McGill daily quoted Miss Bell as saying that she would like to go to the university which would benefit her most and that she liked the look of McGill.

Planning to become a specialist in physical and occupational therapy, she would be admitted to second year at McGill if she were to complete her junior matriculation this June.

The course covers a five year period from the junior matriculation standing.

Miss Bell, now studying at the Loretta private school for girls is taking some junior and some senior matriculation subjects this year.

Shows Well-liked Among Abo Finns

ACP) — A statistical survey on the way in which students at the University of Abo, Finland, spend their free time shows that 18 per cent go to the movies twice a week, 44 per cent went once a week, while 38 per cent went less than once a week. Fifty-seven per cent of those questioned said that they participate in some kind of sport

Hart House Theatre's 33rd All-Varsity Production
FEDERICO GARCIA LORCA'S

The House of Bernarda Alba

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
.75c

Directed by
ROBERT GILL

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH A.T.L.
CARD

SAT., JAN. 22nd to SAT., JAN. 29th - at 8.30
BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN

HART HOUSE
TODAY

TUESDAY, 18th JANUARY:

10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — NEW ART EXHIBITION by John (Mac) Reynolds.

5.10 p.m.

—QUARTET CONTEST INFORMATION—informal meeting (East Common Room).

7.15 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.

—GLEE CLUB FULL REHEARSAL. (Music Room).

7.30 p.m. - 9.30 p.m.

—ART CLASS.

8.00 p.m.

—KING'S FOREST ARCHERS vs. HART HOUSE (Rifle Range)

NOTE:

Camera Club: Entry forms now available from Hall Porter for the 33rd Annual Photographic Exhibition. Closing date, 11th February, 6.00 p.m.

The Varsity

Published 5 times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of The University
of Toronto
Member Canadian University
Press
Publications Commissioner
Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR

News Editor
Assistant News Editors
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Assistant Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN

Mike Pengeley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Wojtech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221
Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742
IN CHARGE: Irene Meyers
NIGHT EDITOR: Mike Pengeley
REPORTERS: Joe Patrick, Katherine Gray

THE VARSITY ART, MO

migel molesworthy rides again

HOW TO BE TOPP

By GERMAINE CLINTON

How to be Topp, by Geoffrey Willans and Ronald Searle. Clarke Irwin and Co. $1.75.

HOW TO BE TOPP is the third book by Geoffrey Willans and Ronald Searle. According to the paper jacket of this one, the first is now in its sixtieth thousands, and I can well imagine why. Although I am not familiar with it at the present time, I shall go out and buy DOWN WITH SKOOL!, just on the strength of HOW TO BE TOPP. Searle is the cartoonist whose pen, dipped in blood, for years gave us schoolgirl life at St. Trinian's, complete with gats, coshes, and thumbscrews. In HOW TO BE TOPP, (submitted "A guide to Success for tiny pupils, including all there is to know about SPACE.") the centre of interest shifts to Nigel Molesworth, the curse of St. Custard's.

Things at St. Custard's are in pretty much the same state of disrepair as things at St. Trinian's. HOW TO BE TOPP, however, is a successful departure from the old Searle formula, since it has a text, and is written (oh brother!) as if by Molesworth himself, viz: "Skool, according to headmaster's pi-jaw is like LIFE chiz if that is the case wot is the use of going on?" Among the subjects (mostly indescribable) covered in HOW TO BE TOPP are "How to be topp in Latin and French" (including an example of the Molesworth patent self-educator,) several Molesworth special daydreams, various sorts of mayhem to be practiced on the members of lower forms, and Russian lessons of which Molesworth writes: "How many days to the end of term, o moleswvitch 2? some sa 20, others 90, little bro, is the fruit upon the apple tree in the orchard? Only the blossom so you will hav to wait a month or two before you can pinch them o measily weed it is 2006 miles to Moscow. Who cares so fotherington tomas from a corner of the room where he has been trussed up who cares a row of buttons. I love only robins. Unless you love robins father christmas will not bring you any presents. A volley of shots ring out. WHAM! 900 robins bite the dust. That only leaves father christmas, i sa how flat life is . . ."

And so on. In addition to his experience with Russian, Nigel spends a lot of time in an improvised space ship: "The peason-molesworth space ship threatened by wild mercurian masters lies disabled in the onion bed of the kitchen garden. Meanwhile in the masters' common room, Sigismund Arbutnot the mad maths masur musters his rhomboids . . . Sigismund looks at us through his all-seeing videoscope. We look at him. Impasse." Much of How to be Topp is told in a combined text-and-cartoon manner which defies description. As a matter of fact, I couldn't describe it anyway since another Varsity staffer has just made off with my copy of the book and is huddled in a corner of the office chucking horribly. "Take that, you -pace rat!"

Germaine Clinton is a student in fourth year Eng. Lang. and Lit. and editor of a film magazine.

Last Sunday's concert in Hart House was the first appearance on the campus of the Hart House Orchestra, a string group of fourteen to twenty-three players which is under the direction of Dr. Boyd Neel, Dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto. The orchestra was improved in comparison to their Toronto premier in November. The harshness of tone and sloppiness of attack which was distressing at times in the first concert, had decreased. Dr. Neel's conducting continues to leave nothing to be desired. It takes a long time to build up a first rate orchestra, especially under the financial handicaps to which this one has been subject. In view of this, it is making satisfactory progress.

Four pieces from J. S. Bach's Suite in D opened the concert. Three of them are dances, a Gavotte, a Bourree and a Gigue, and were rightly played as such. The fourth was an Air in which essentially non-rhythmical, lyrical parts are superimposed over a steady bass-line which must be perfectly stated if the lyrical themes are to appear cohesive and meaningful. Dr. Neel is fortunate in having a very fine player for his only double bassist. He fulfilled his heavier responsibilities in fine style throughout the evening.

Hart House Orchestra Is Most Worthy

Mozart's Divertimento in D, K. 136 followed. It is, to quote Dr. Neel, a "slight, little, amusing piece" although of first rate musical quality. It was well played throughout.

The third piece was Handel's Concerto Grosso Op. 6 No. 1. Recordings of these Concerti have earned Dr. Neel a good reputation far beyond the boundaries of his own travels, and Sunday's performance proved the justice of this. The first movement (Allegro), has a wide and stately rhythm which was firmly delineated. The fourth movement (Allegro) was very spirited and rhythmically impeccable. — The string tone seemed to improve to a new level of smoothness. The final movement (Allegro) was equally good.

Arensky's Variation on a theme by Tchaikowsky followed, a very appealing, well-estrated and taste. Ray were againve

The concert St. Paul Suite ing movement sive statement which is called beyond the co The Finale wa ley of The In I believe

At the Neel expressed orchestra, this well received could play regus, but that erosity of a and of Hart H ficulties would threat to be e

We would liversity author matter with a what is a most worthw Toronto's musi

Labour Pains

An energetic attempt is being made on this campus to initiate the idea of a Winter Carnival. The Caledon Committee of Hart House has undertaken the bulk of the organizational work, with some assistance from the Blue and White Society.

Although this university would not appear at first site to be a suitable location for such a carnival, the proximity of Caledon Hills and the farm improves the situation considerably.

While students at the university are not noted for their overly enthusiastic support of such functions, we hope that the committee charged with the responsibility for this week's program will meet with a rewarding degree of success.

There can be no doubt that the university needs some such event in the spring term to measure up to the appeal of football games in the fall term. Although we question whether or not the emphasis on a carnival is the most fruitful way of achieving this result,—particularly when considered in regard to the possibility of promoting hockey games — we commend those people who conceived it and who are now labouring to give it birth.

Blood Ties

Many people create unlimited discussion over the unpreparedness of Canada in situations of emergency. One aspect of such lack of preparation is evident in the meagre supplies of whole and fractioned blood available at times of need.

When times of acute stress arrive most hospitals and Red Cross centres find that their supplies are rapidly depleted. For this reason the Red Cross carries on a continuous campaign to keep the supplies of blood at a maximum.

Part of that campaign is an annual visit to this university. This visit will take place next week.

However, prior to that, prospective donors must be listed and times arranged for them to visit the clinic which will be set up in the School of Nursing building. For that reason students are requested to signify their willingness to participate in the scheme by enrolling this week.

As the president said yesterday, this is indeed a practical way of demonstrating one's good citizenship. Part of a feeling of responsibility to the external community could well be expressed in this donation of blood which will help to fill a vital need.

The immediate need is indeed urgent. Recent disasters, particularly the visit of Bernarda Alba have placed local stocks of blood at a very precarious level. Your contribution to this cause may consist of a mere act of beneficence to some extent, but it may also be connected by ties of friendship or kinship, but above all, by blood.

The House of Bernarda Alba

Bernarda and her five daughters, those who live in THE HOUSE OF BERNARDA ALBA, the play which opens on Saturday night, under the direction of Robert G. H. at Hart House Theatre. Standing are Lyla Gitter, Patricia Moffat, Marilyn Tunner, Catherine Peterson and Helen Forchheim. Seated is Juliana Granelli.

—VSP by Ed Hoshkiw

Thoughtful and

"HOW to be a self-respecting world that half disunited us (U.S.)" was the theme of an address by Robert Cooke to the 1954 graduating class of the University of Toronto. The address, written by a young American, is an interesting and yet seriously pertinent individual's place in the larger sense it is a discussion of America's place in the world.

Mr. Cooke does not propose of the young people before him "none of you knows where you next year." As he is addressing a class he recognizes the morning (and it was a question of direction in which your future happy marriage; "the most can happen to you." But Mr. Cooke marriage and life in general cliché, "no bed of roses". It is a notion of "compound" which may be wondering what comes into this, but it does. Marriages are made by happy pursuit of happiness is a golden rule for young people the world in general. But the narrow sense only, the argument as follows.

Self-knowledge is the only a step up from it, according to Mr. Cooke, people that have been

MUSIC, DRAMA and BOOK PAGE

November and December Issues

College Reviews Reviewed

By DAVE DUNSMUIR

IT is a difficult and dangerous undertaking to try to persuade a student body that its college has A TRADITION. Nebulous at best, this quality tends to disappear on any attempt at definition or illustration; if existent, it should be seen and not heard about. Nevertheless, it seems to be the mission of most undergraduate reviews to instill some sense of pick-up-the-torch-ness into its readers, and perhaps it is unfair to carp at the clarion-cry when one is outside the particular charmed circle.

The first two issues of this year's Acta Victoriana, and of the Trinity University Review, could hardly be more widely separated in self-awareness and attitude towards tradition. The Vic reviews, the chattier of the two, leans heavily on "Victoria College, Past and Present," delving into the origins of the Vic "Bob" and describing current Vic art exhibitions. The Trinity editor, in his December issue, shakes his head in smugly sardonic sorrow over Vic's preoccupation with "that nasty word: tradition," and presents a literary magazine. With this different intent, it has greater appeal to the outside reader, although this does not necessarily make it a better review.

ACTA VICTORIANA

Vic's search for "the ivy" has led them to refrain from wandering too far from their own walls in a search for subjects, and there is a certain stuffiness in the way these chosen are treated. I certainly do not condemn a high empyrean tone in dealing with serious themes, but there seems to be too much of it — especially in the November edition, where most of the offsetting lighter features have a chatty "cuteness" about them. The delightful philosophical gobbledegook of Terry Shiels' "Analytica Number Two" in the December issue was a welcome relief.

The December issue was on the whole an improvement upon the first, partially owing to better fiction, and more of it. The November offerings, though few, were fairly imaginative, notably a poetic prose work by Terry Shiels and a short poem by Jean Little on an old theme, blessedly with an original viewpoint. In the December issue, reprinted Acta Prize Poem of 1929-30, "And Jesus Wept," by E. R. Toll, certainly lends the review solidity, in spite of an almost overwhelmingly apocalyptic tone.

There is a greater homogeneity about the Trinity reviews, which seem to be modelled more on the smaller modern literary periodicals, or "wee frees". Both are of a fairly high standard, which is augmented by a neat and attractive format. Speaking of format, the only time that the Vic review seemed to get the better of the two-column horror of its own larger magazines was in the full-page ad of a Toronto men's store. Type straight across the page, and scrapping the old glossy paper, makes a considerable difference in reading enjoyment.

THE TRINITY REVIEW

Both Trinity issues have a large proportion of poetry, and even though individual poems have little in common, most of them manage to be at the same time both precise and evocative in their diction. These two qualities are most apparent in Rodney Anderson's "Concert In The Forum," and John Williams' "In The Twenty-fifth Hour," both of which are found in the second, and better issue. Most outstanding over the two issues is Barry Watson, who has submitted one piece in the medium of each of his own literary trinity — poetry, the short story, and the philosophical essay. His short story, "A Time and a Place," is an agonizing study by dialogue and stream-of-consciousness of the why, or rather the how, of suicide. Because of its length, its grip on the reader almost becomes a stranglehold, but if anything this adds to its effect. His short poem, "Columbus," avoids the jingle-jangle common with the form he has chosen, and his "Philosophy and a Scientist" deals with a topic of real present-day interest.

The art-work in the reviews of both colleges is fairly negligible, though Trinity's Crabtree has two effective pen-and-ink drawings, one of which forms a courageous full-page title to the "Countess". Of Vic's two frontispieces, the better is a sort of two-dimensional montage-pastiche, in which Emerson depicts "The Face of Trinity" by a skillful arrangement of the most ordinary features of its exterior. For their cover, Trinity have adopted a bright and unusual cover-design, the lettering being enhanced by its blank surrounding. But Vic's staircase (new union) looks a little violent floating in limbo, and shows the disadvantage of semi-formal design over such a large area. Steps? Hmm, obviously symbolic — but the question-mark that the whole design forms is significant, too.

Dave Dunsmuir is a student in third year Eng. Lang. and Lit. at University College.

ANDREW CONNINGTON

By IAN McHAFFIE

Andrew Connington by Grace Irwin. McClelland and Stewart 1954. $3.50

ANDREW Connington is a new Canadian novel that tells of the struggles of a young United Church minister with various members of his congregation. Set at the time of the depression, the story strikes out at the hypocritical, convention morality of Toronto and its lack of real faith in God. This subject, if badly treated, would be one more suited to a sermon than a novel. Grace Irwin, however, avoids this very skillfully, without sacrificing any sincerity; her character study of Andrew, the liveliness of the conversation, the reality of the situations, and the clever use of the minor roles all combine to ensure the continued attention of the reader. In an effort to avoid underpainting Andrews character she has perhaps given too much attention to the workings of his mind in certain situations; but this is a fault to the good, for in a novel of this type there is nothing as unsatisfactory as inadequacy.

Throughout the action we never once leave Connington's side, and it is through his eyes that we see the world and with his mind that we look into himself. In the various quarrels and disagreements in which he is involved, we know that he is in the right and that he could take no other stand. We see too that it is the conventions of society that oppose people to him and the pseudo-religion of which the only sign is church-going.

It is the Toronto reader, for whom this book was obviously written, who will enjoy it to the full; and it is in this very fact that its chief drawback lies. For to someone outside the city, and certainly to someone outside Canada much of the significance will be lost. The sense of intimacy which is conveyed by conversational references to places in Toronto, such as the "Royal Alexandra", "Hart House", or a "Bay car", without description will become obscurity for a person who does not know the city. But perhaps these need not concern us here — the book is refreshing and well worth reading and is a welcome addition to the small but distinguished collection of Canadian novels.

Mr. McHaffie is a fourth year student in Classics.

and Humorous

Alistair Cooke's Commencement Address

By SUE DELMAN

Commencement Address by Alistair Cooke, McClelland and Stewart. $1.35.

and previous generations. The 19th Century advocated the importance of such virtues as duty, a moral attitude toward life, hard work, and thrift and was certain life would be the better for its theories. But, says Mr. Cooke, "we are only distinguished as the 'golden age of Bacteriology' and barbarism and violence have never been paralleled."

Because of the modern (and yet eternal as far as history reports) problems before us it is important for the individual to find out about himself in order to make "happy" relationships. In a more important step this happiness leads to what he feels the U.S. must do; i.e. find out about itself. This self-analysis includes finding out weaknesses as well as strengths for a nation as well as a person can "best negotiate from strength when you know your own weaknesses."

Mr. Cooke's logical, and to my mind, influential argument continues as he discusses the immediate problem of America: to aid in re-creating and fortifying western civilization. Instead of looking at Europe as a heritage of "our" first Americans we must look at Europe as our equals and thus make new ties with the continent. We cannot rest secure in our little world and must share with others, not match ourselves against the strengths (or even weaknesses) of the rest of the world.

In discovering all about the Western tradition, America must "repair" the picture that the allies see of us. America does have its problems as do the other great nations. We live in a "shrunk world" and our allies, due to wars are weak. This does not mean we must bully and patronize them as satellites. We must show them the working America; an America that illustrates actions and beliefs not by saying but by doing. After all says Mr. Cooke. Liberty is not just a word; we do practice it!!! But if we do have liberty, we must allow others to have it too, and if their ideas are not ours we must give up wanting foreign nations to become like America. It is like the friendship of two people that develops from "the awareness of differences and the respect for them."

Mr. Cooke closed his speech on an optimistic note. As individuals and as a nation we do face a complex world but we are lucky enough to have been granted the opportunity to meet it. If we do meet up to things, tyranny cannot come to America (or any other country for that matter) in a disguised form. Meeting up to things means the banishment of intolerance, self-righteousness, fanaticism and deceitfulness on both individual and national levels. We will then become more self-respecting and thus more respected Americans.

Alistair Cooke ends this commencement address with a quote which either due to this reader's lack of knowledge or perhaps youth left her confused and unsure as to whether she had interpreted Mr. Cooke's ideas correctly. Perhaps you will understand its full meaning in relation to the argument discussed by the speaker. He says (from the 15th Psalm): "Good luck have thou with thine honor, and thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things."

Sue Delman is a student from Smith College who is attending University College on exchange.

Grace Irwin

Speaking OF SPORT

By JOHN VOJTECH

Last Wednesday we devoted the space for this column to intramural hockey. The article dealt with the stalling tactics used by various teams in that league. It was also meant as a polite, yet direct hint aimed at the Intramural Office. Since we follow hockey quite closely, we like to see it played under ideal conditions whenever possible. To date, not a word has emerged from the Office concerning the suggestions mentioned in that article. It seems that the Intramural Office hedges this issue as one that can not be solved at present.

We once thought that every rule mentioned in the "Intramural Hockey Rules and Regulations" was followed to a "T". This was brought to our attention as we watched a game played last Friday. There was a scramble around the net. The referees were out of position to see the ensuing plays as is the custom. An opposing player fell, immediately to one side of the goal crease, and stayed there until he had a chance to grab the puck and shove it in under his hand. The referee raised his hand seeing the puck in the net and took it for granted that a goal had been scored. The defending team was quite perturbed about the whole matter while the opposing team denied using such tactics.

The point that we're trying to make is that in the "Rules and Regulations" there is a small insignificant clause, 3a, to be exact, which states quite simply for all to read: "It is the duty of each team manager to provide a satisfactory goal judge who must be on duty before the scheduled time of the game." Now, why can't the Intramural Office enforce this rule. Since each team is responsible for the acquisition of a goal judge, it shouldn't be hard to enforce this rule. The word "satisfactory" means that the judge should be able to see at least ten feet in front of him clearly while sober.

There's yet another rule which is being broken consistently and which no one seems to give a hoot about. It is known as Rule 7 and probably very few persons have ever bothered to read it. We will quote it for you players, coaches, and referees: "Games are scheduled for a specified time and must start within 10 minutes of that time. Referees are empowered to call a default for a breach of this rule."

True, the penalty called for the breaking of this rule is quite severe but rare is the time that a team hasn't at least the minimum number of players dressed in time to start the game. If both teams were ready to start at the proper time, then the game would be played using all of its allotted time.

There also seems to be inconsistency in refereeing which probably stems from the referees in the National Hockey League. A referee will calmly put a player into the sin-bin for an extremely minor infraction while major infractions escape their notice. The referees are rapidly becoming known not as "blind as bats" but as "Blind as a paramoecium". And when such is their notoriety, then its time they watched out for themselves.

So ends this dissertation on hockey in the intramural leagues. We hope it does some good in the Intramural Office before it winds its way to the waste receptacle. We also hope that they'll do something before the season ends.

DOWN FROM THE BLUES . . .

Don't forget to give blood to the Blood Blitz Campaign. Let's send the B.B.C. over the top this year. How about it sports fans?

Swim Officials' Class Commences Jan. 22

For all you girls who are interested in swimming this is your personal invitation to come to the Lillian Massey pool on Saturday January 22. Starting on that date and running for four consecutive Saturdays until February 12 you will have an opportunity to learn how to officiate at swim meets.

Miss Freddy Baxter, who is the coach of the intercollegiate swimming team, will be in charge of the classes; so you know the instruction will be the best. These classes begin at ten o'clock in the morning and last until twelve. The first hour will be taken up with a lecture; while in the second hour there will be a chance to practice what you have learned. This means that you get a swim in the bargain; so what can you lose? You'll have a lot of fun, meet new friends and what's more you'll learn something which will be valuable.

Come on out and give it the old college try. You'll be glad you did. Remember the date — January 22 at ten o'clock.

And while your writing that date in your little black book you'd do well to write down three more dates. They are January 27, February 8, and February 17. The University of Toronto Swimming Club is sponsoring on those evenings three all-Varsity splash parties. Now these splash parties are for anyone who is at all interested. You don't have to be a potential Marilyn Bell. In fact those girls who felt they were not good enough for the intramural meet are especially invited.

There is fun in store for everyone who goes. Several unusual and amusing races are planned as well as a few of the ordinary individual races. The time is seven until nine in the evening and the place is the Lillian Massey pool. We'll be expecting you.

Irish Overpower Skule Meds Down Vic 38-27

By MAX ROSENTHAL

The men from Skule suffered one of their rare losses yesterday afternoon as their fourths were defeated by the St. Mike's basketball squad, 59-32. St. Mike's fielding an entire American first team, were so completely superior to the Engineers that they kept Skule off the score sheet for five minutes.

Led by Ken Stanton, "Irish" Jim McDermott, and Frank Connolly, St. Mike's outscored Skule, 15-1 in the first quarter. The score was 39-16 at the end of the second. Stanton scored fourteen points, McDermott, 11, and Connolly seven.

St. Mike's success was mainly a result of their superior ball-handling, control of the backboards, and their aggressiveness.

The first quarter was a good example of these points. Not-so-tall fellows like John Robinson, John Leo, and Connolly of St. Mike's were constantly nabbing rebounds and stealing the ball from tall Bill West, who seemed to be the only Skuleman trying to get rebounds under his own basket and under St. Mike's.

Trying to redeem themselves in the second quarter, the Skulemen at times did everything but put the ball into the basket. Recovering from their inexperience Al Ormsley and West shot many times, but were able to score only six and seven points, respectively.

Seeing victory well in their midst, most of the St. Mike's starting crew retired to the shower room early in the third quarter. In spite of this the Double Blue still managed to outscore the Skulemen, 20-16 in the final frame.

In other major league action Med III gained a victory over Vic III, 38-27. Employing the fast break effectively the Med team was able to prevent Vic from falling into a good zone defence.

Both teams' passing and shooting were completely off form and neither team seemed representative of good major league action.

High scorers for Meds were Doug Blenkarn with eleven points, and Paul Walfish with eight. Rudy Penner led the Vic men with six.

Dents Shutout St. Mike's Woodsmen Edge Lawyers

Dents A hockey team defeated St. Mike's B team 3-0 to create a deadlock between the two teams for first place in Division I, Group III. The Dentists took advantage of a first period lapse on behalf of the Irish as they scored all of their goals in that period. The Irish team looked at times as if it had not become accustomed to the fact that the game was at stake. They were certainly far below their usual form.

The Dentists on the other hand were sharp for the game and deserved to win. Aris sent them ahead early in the first period. Kreuzel, showing some terrific stick handling, broke away from his check and skated in unmoled to beat Purvis with a hard shot.

Dowlas netted the third counter with Manale of St. Mike's serving an elbowing penalty. The only reason Dents did not score more goals in this period was due to the terrific job done by Purvis in the Irish nets.

In the second period there was no scoring as the Irish came to life but Reid Currie foiled the efforts of Raleigh, Kennedy and Manale. At the other end of the rink Purvis again committed daylight robbery on many occasions — the puck shouldn't have been anywhere but in the Irish net.

In the other game played, Forestry A's team defeated Law 3-1. Cunningham scored two for the Forresters while Naylor added the other tally. For Law, Anderson scored to break the goose-egg. The win hoisted Forestry into a first place tie with Pharmacy in Division II, Group I.

Mural Fencing Won by Gilbert

In the Intramural Fencing Competition held last night in Hart House, P. G. Gilbert won the tournament title going through competition without defeat. U.C.'s Martin Nash took second place in the foil events, while Bruce Hawkins from Victoria placed third.

The University Sabre Championships, held last week in Hart House, saw John Andru successfully defend his title to place first in the competition, gaining more Reed Trophy points for U.C. Engineer George Montgomery placed second to Andru, while Martin gave U.C. the domination in this sport taking third position.

Standings

DIVISION I

Group I	P	W	L	T	Pts
Sr. SPS	4	4	0	0	8
Sr. Meds	4	4	1	0	8
Sr. M. A	4	2	2	0	4
St. Vic	4	1	3	0	2
Sr. UC	5	0	5	0	0

Group II

Jr. Vic	4	3	1	0	6
Jr. SPS	4	3	1	0	6
Trin. A	4	2	1	1	5
Pre-Meds	5	1	3	1	3
Jr. UC	5	1	4	0	2

Group III

Dent. A	5	4	1	0	8
St. M. B	5	4	1	0	8
Vic III	4	2	2	0	4
SPS III	4	0	4	0	0

Group IV

SPS V	3	2	0	1	5
Dent. B	3	2	0	1	5
Trin. B	3	1	2	0	2
Med III	3	0	3	0	0

Group V

SPS VI	3	3	0	0	6
UC III	3	2	1	0	4
Trin. C	3	1	2	0	2
Med IV	3	0	3	0	0

Group VI

Vic IV	4	3	1	0	6
St. M. C	3	1	1	1	3
Dent. C	2	1	1	0	2
SPS VII	3	0	2	1	1

DIVISION II

Group I	P	W	L	T	Pts
For. A	3	2	1	0	4
Pharm.	2	2	0	0	4
Law	3	1	2	0	2
Arch.	2	0	2	0	0

Group II

Emman.	3	2	1	0	4
Wyc.	3	2	1	0	4
Knox	3	1	2	0	2
For. B	3	1	2	0	2

on the sideline

By FLO MIDDLETON

In spite of the fact that you cannot handle the sabres like Douglas Fairbanks does in those thrilling mediaeval tales, don't worry because there used to be a large number of girls on this campus in the same position, but they did something about their lack of professional skill by joining the Fencing Club and from the experience gained at the weekly meetings they have joined the ranks of the pros.

The Varsity Fencing Club meets every Wednesday at the Lillian Massey Gym. At 5 p.m. It is at these weekly gatherings that the girls have a chance to gain valuable experience and also have the opportunity of receiving excellent instruction in fencing from Mr. Alpar.

Please remember that to attend the club you don't need to be an expert — all that is required is a minimum of previous experience. For those eager beavers in the crowd who are completely in the fog re this exciting sport and who would like to start from the beginning, I would suggest dropping over to the Athletic Office at L.M. and enrolling in a regular fencing P.T. class.

Like all organized activities around Toronto, there is an intercollegiate squad to represent our fair university in the fencing combats. On Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in Lillian Massey Gym, there will be a competition between a Varsity threesome and the Eaton's Girls Club.

The last time our team of Olga Mracek, Marg. Zichmanis and Judy Brewster met Timothy's girls they drowned them 6 bouts to 3. Well girls, let's do the same again and keep up this excellent record.

Some information has come to the notice of this desk which will cause some raised eye brows, over Hart House way, since it will hardly be possible for the men of this university to admit that a woman holds the record for points scored on the Hart House floor in a league game.

June Hansford, PHE III, is the girl who did this mighty hooping on Dec. 7 in the game between PHE II and PHE III. This is outstanding (the male record is 29 by Lou Lukenda) considering that the girl's game is shorter than the boy's by 8 minutes and that each girl can only play two-thirds of the floor.

Further congratulations are in order to June as this is her first year as a forward after playing two years as a guard on the Varsity Intercollegiate team.

Baby Blues Victorious Dacyshyn Top Scorer

Varsity's Baby Blue basketball team, travelling to Guelph for their second Intercollegiate intermediate contest within a week, came home with their second win, overcoming the OAC Aggies 62-54 Saturday night.

John McManus' crew showed fair rebounding ability while increasing their stock to take the Intercollegiate intermediate laurels again this year. High man for the Seconds was lanky John Dacyshyn, who threw in fifteen points for the winners. Jay Nielson equalled his output for the farmers, but best man on the floor was Aggie Tom McKay with twenty-one points for the evening.

The Baby Blues led the Aggies 27-19 at half-time, after a slow start in the first quarter. Sharp eyes coupled with skillful use of the fast break spread the points fairly evenly amongst the Blue players with Ruby Richman going for twelve, Jerry Wojdon for ten, and Hesh Rotman for eight.

The Intermediates relax from the trials of Intercollegiate play with an exhibition clash with the Legal Eagles from Osgoode Hall. This will be a preliminary tilt to the Blues' scheduled game with Lawrence Tech. in the second Hart House Athletic Night.

Varsity — Dacyshyn (15), Rotman (8), Richman (12), Reynolds (4), Rigby (4), Wojdon (10), Parker (4), Stroud, Cripps (2), Buda (3).

OAC — Nielsen (15), McKay (21), Courtice (7), McLean (7), Stevens (2), Sproule, Shaw, Scott, Scandrett (2), McLaughlin.

Emerson Lectures At Institute Meet --Discuss Iroquois

Prehistoric Iroquois Culture in Ontario will be the subject of the lecture at the Archaeological Institute of America (Toronto Branch), today in the Museum Theatre at 4.30 p.m.

Professor J.N. Emerson of the University of Toronto's Anthropology Staff will be the lecturer.

Emerson has made ancient Iroquois culture his specialty and has spent considerable time excavating sites of former villages of the ancient Iroquois people.

CUP

Runneth-Over

By MIKE CASSIDY

We have just received in the Varsity office a caustic letter from the CUP editor of the The Gateway. In the December 3rd CUP Runneth Over, The Gateway was referred to as published at the University of Manitoba. Actually, it is published at the University of Alberta, in Edmonton, while The Manitoban is published in Winnipeg. It's relieving to note that these censors of our paper are two thousand miles away, instead of one thousand.

At the time, we commented on the publication of The Gateway, an engineering stunt featuring a masculine, rather undraped Lady Godiva on the front page. This month, President Andrew Stewart of the U. of A. said that "legal opinion obtained by the university is that 'matter contained in this publication would constitute obscene written matter or pictures'". The publishers of the paper could be indicted and convicted to two year's imprisonment under the Criminal Code of Canada. Could The Gateway get a CUP membership?

News from California: The number of cars at the University of California (Los Angeles) has made a clean-up of university parking lots necessary. Among the larger items removed: a Japanese Betty, a P-51, and an FM-2, all three World War II airplanes. . . . Can University students really afford to fly to classes these days?

The Greater University Committee at the University of Southern California is passing out staff evaluation sheets these days, to students. They are free to voice opinions on class improvement. Only catch is that the professor can decide if he wants the sheets filled out, first. The same idea is working at the University of Colorado.

Is the American intellectual shunned?, asks author Randall Jarrell, in this month's Medemoseille. "Most of us seem to distrust intellectuals as such, to feel that they must be abnormal or else they wouldn't be intellectuals", he says. The man who will broaden our horizons, says Mr. Jarrell, is our best friend. Agreed to by this writer, but do most Canadians shun intellectuals?

And Now We Present...

Fashions and Fads

By JOE KEOGH

The other day we were courting through the library, chanced to look up at a neighbouring clothes rack and saw something dangling from it, long and sinewy. It was shaded variously in strips of blinding contrast not very different from that of a coral snake. On second thought we reinspected it, but of coral snakes there were none. It was the Scarf.

Something sprang up on the campus shortly after Christmas which hides itself under the genus apparel. Females of all lengths and corresponding Scarfs were to be seen ambling everywhere. Males were seen predominantly in the HH Gallery area, but females everywhere. College culture would seem to be improving.

We had recently seen A Christmas Carol and were unsure whether or not Mallory had begun a new fad. But it reminded us of the long history of the scarf. Originally it was an extra piece of cloth tailored expressly to fit the aperture between lapels which the tailor had expressly cut out. This went under the heading of a fashionable necessity; that is, something necessary because of an inane fashion.

In the beginning was man, and he took a fig leaf unto himself because he was ashamed of his nakedness. Then and there the tailor was born. Fashion was born as soon as woman came along and decided that a slightly curled palm leaf or 'risque fern' was much more chic.

Many so-called "necessities" of apparel serve no more useful a purpose than would have a little foresight. Yet what can be the mentality of a supposedly rational being burdening herself conceivably destined only for mountain climbing?

Aside from its Ubangi-like convolutions, it has one or two other companions. Such are the knee-length sox and long strings of beads. At times we think we are back in the twenties. Emperor Dior issues a proclamation: up go skirts. Someone happens to be looking over a 1917 Spalding Dot ad, up go stockings.

Definitely, there must be some inner, Joycean epiphany in it all. The Gothic "heights-to-God" idea seems worn out, unless we are confronted with a new "Soldiers' Tower" look. It may be the manifestation of a burgeoning University female inferiority complex, seeking attention or the optical illusion of added stature. Worse still, it may be an insidious campaign by wool-merchants to sell more material.

Toronto police, attention! If you can take time out from raiding Hart House sketch-room, you may solve this rash of murders as being only a publicity stunt in extreme. Wool, Inc. offered the Strangler five thousand dollars to use only their brand of Scarfs.

Low Standards

(ACP) — The last annual report of the Munich Student Aid shows that almost one quarter of the Munich students do not even come close to having the minimum for living expenses, 169 marks (about $4.), not including university expenses. This group averaged about 100 marks ($24) per month.

TODAY

12:00 a.m. — CHEMICAL ENGINEERING CLUB — Wallberg 1035 — Dr. E. E. Lury of Ontario Research Foundation speaks on Statistics.

1:00 p.m. — F.R.O.S., 45 St. George St. — discussion of Modern Greece.

4:00 p.m. — OLD TESTAMENT CLUB, Emmanuel College — slides of the Near East will be shown by Prof. Wevers.

4:00 p.m. — U. of T. SPANISH CLUB: Tertulias, Arbor Room.

4:00 p.m. — PSYCHOLOGY CLUB, 98 St. George St. — Election of Officers for 1955-56. Films. All members of Club and all Honour Psychology students eligible.

7:30 p.m. — CHEMICAL ENGINEERING CLUB & CHEMISTRY CLUB — Wallberg 1035. Undergraduate night. Panel discussion: "Opportunities for the Graduate". Tours of the laboratories following.

8:00 p.m. — VICTORIA COLLEGE DEBATING PARLIAMENT, Alumni Hall. Debate: Resolved that Socialism is Dying in Canada.

8:00 p.m. — BIOLOGY CLUB, Upper Room, Vic Union. Dr. J. B. Falls and R. W. Wilt Gunn will talk on Bird Navigation—discussion later. Consider plans for coming Zoology Conversat (Feb.). All welcome. Refreshments.

Blood! Blood!

WANTED

ARTS students, while you learn, Aluminum Goods, Sterling Division has openings for arts students — Part time year round employment. Flexible programme to fit school schedule and holidays. Excellent sales experience. No canvassing. Prospect of full time managerial employment after graduation. For information — ME. 9911, Local 200.

Sir Ernest To Retire Soon

The shaggy-haired, 61-year-old maestro will step down from his podium at the end of the current concert season and lay down his baton for good, according to an announcement from the orchestra yesterday.

A conductor with a prodigious memory and grandiose sweep, Sir Ernest rates as Canada's top-ranking orchestral conductor. He has led the Toronto symphony since 1931. He is the first musical outside Great Britain to have been knighted.

In 1941 the University of Edinburgh made strong efforts to obtain his services to head its music department but Sir Ernest declined, preferring to remain at the head of the symphony orchestra here which he helped build into its noteworthy position.

Sir Ernest was born in Mimico and at the age of 10 gave his first concert — an organ recital before a jam-packed Massey Hall here. At 13 he won the diploma of Associate of the Royal College of organists and at 17 he was made a fellow.

Interned in a German prisoner of war camp for four years, Sir Ernest became a prodigious student and composed a setting for solo, chorus and orchestra which won him the degree of Doctor of Music at Oxford University.

Appointed dean of the faculty of Music of this university in 1926 and Principal of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Sir Ernest resigned his posts two years ago to give him more time with the orchestra.

One of the Highlights of his career came last year when he took the Toronto Symphony orchestra and the Mendelssohn choir to New York for a full-scale performance of the "Messiah". Louis Marshall who grew up under Sir Ernest's baton and sang with Toscanini, was one of the soloists.

Sir Ernest was educated at Rosedale public school, Jarvis Street Collegiate, Viewpark school, Edinburgh, the University of Toronto and in various European centres.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

WANTED
Secretary, 21, seeks serious student or business girl to share cosy apartment, 5 minutes to University. Apply Box 1, S.A.C. Office.

THESES TYPED
Careful attention to detail, expert typing. Reasonable rates. Mrs. Dorothy Jolly. HA. 7267.

FOR SALE
From a doctor's estate, 1 cabinet, 1 triallens set, ophthalmoscope, projector, Beebe binocular loupe, lens gauge. Contact A. Sinclair. WA. 3-0641.

ACCOMMODATION
Professional worker, girl 25 wishes to share apartment with 1 or 2 graduate girls. Phone EM. 6-2291 — Local 8-9-5.

EXPERT TYPIST
Specializing in theses, maximum charge 30¢ per double spaced 8½ x 11 page. Mrs. Grossman, 966 Castleridge Ave., Eglinton — Oakwood district. RU. 1-1041.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-8483 — 21 Russell St. (Just off St. George).

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1843 anytime.

GAMES TODAY

HOCKEY	1.30 — Sr. Vic vs. Sr. SPS — Smith, Yakimoff
	4.00 — St. M. C vs. Dent. C — Lotocki, Naden
WATER POLO	4.15 — SPS IV vs. Trin. B — Wilson, Glumac
	5.00 — Dent vs. Med. III — Rambusch, Glumac
	7.15 — Por. B vs. Pharm — Rambusch, Quinlan
SQUASH	5.40 — Sr. Med. vs. Dent. A
	6.20 — Dent. E vs. Pharm. C
	7.00 — Dent. D vs. Pharm. B
BASKETBALL — MAJOR LEAGUE
	6.30 — Emma vs. For. B — Juriga, Iglar
	6.30 — Jr. U.C. vs. Dent. A — Banks, Stefaniv
	7.30 — SPS V vs. Dent. II Yr. — Banks, Stefaniv
	8.30 — Trin. C vs. SPS VIII A — Banks, Stefaniv
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
	1.00 — II Metal vs. U.C. Geogs — Szarka
	4.00 — II Aero vs. Vic Live Wires — Moriarty
	(Game Postponed)
	6.30 — II Geol vs. Med. IV Yr. B — Iglar
	7.30 — U.C. Taylor vs. Med. II Yr. — Iglar
	8.30 — IV Geol vs. Dent. IV Yr.
	(Game Postponed)
BASKETBALL — MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
	4.00 — U.C. Jeanneret vs. St. M. Irish Flat — Pocklington
	5.00 — Vic Ryerson vs. Pre-Dent — Pocklington
	6.00 — I Eng. Phys. B vs. Pre-Med I B — Fitzgerald
	7.00 — Knox Cadavers vs. For. I Yr. — Fitzgerald
	8.00 — Vic South House vs. I Mech. C — Fitzgerald
LACROSSE	1.00 — Challenge Game Division I & II Champions
	U.C. I vs. Law — Uhrnuk, Urquhart

THE Best
Neilson's
JERSEY
MILK
CHOCOLATE
MILK CHOCOLATE MADE

Winter Carnival Swings Into Stride Tonight's Menu — Pancakes and Igloos

The University Winter Carnival, which opened officially yesterday, will have as its first competition a pancake cooking contest tonight at 7:00 p.m. The pancakes will be cooked over an open fire at the Igloo on the front campus, and each contestant is asked to supply her own frying pan.

The Human Dog Team race will begin at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday, January 19, at Simcoe Hall, and the course will be around the front campus. Any campus organization may enter, provided it supplies its own sleigh. Not less than 2 or more than 12 persons may be on a pulling team, and the sleigh must have at least one rider continuously throughout the race. All entries must be made to the Carnival Committee at the Graduate office of Hart House before 10 a.m. Wednesday, Friday, January 21, at 10 p.m., there will be a pancake-flipping contest at the C.O.T.C. Drill Hall, at 119 St. George Street. Each contestant is asked to bring a frying pan, and the pancakes she has cooked on Tuesday.

Another feature of the Carnival is a Snow Sculpture contest, in which any campus organization may take part. The statues may be built any time until Friday, January 21, and contestants should call Mr. Bosko Loncarevic at WA 3-0535 when the work is ready for judging.

St. Hilda's has challenged any men's hockey team to a game at Caledon Hills. Arts has announced that it will meet Skule in a Canadian version of the Rose Bowl football game — The Snow Bowl. There is also a possibility that the annual U.C. — Vic executive hockey game will be held at Caledon.

The contestants for the title of Carnival Queen are: Judy Francis II Vic, Diane Webster—Mining & SPS, Pat O'Brien—III St. Mike's, Elaine Bassin—II UC, Katherine Boyd—I Dental Nursing, Mary Patterson—I Architecture, Sandra McFarland—I Vic, Claire McMullen—KKT (III UC), Joan Gainer—II Vic, Diane Webster—Mining & Geology Club (I Vic), and Katherine Gray—Trinity.

Saturday's events at Caledon Hills will begin with cross-country and slalom skiing contests at 10:00 a.m. These will be followed by a wood-chopping contest, a snowshoe cross-country contest, and speed skating. At 1:00 p.m., the Engineers will play Arts in the Snow Bowl game, which will be followed by a hockey game between St. Hilda's and a men's team. A Square Dance will be held at 5:30 p.m.

Sunday morning's events will be much the same as those on Saturday, and the afternoon will include the official opening of Sauna, and the figure skating exhibition. There will be free skating and rock climbing all day Saturday and Sunday, and the weekend will conclude with the presentation of the Carnival Trophy, the awards, and the announcing of the Carnival Queen.

3 russian scientists visit varsity see remaining farm factories also

Three Russian scientists paid a flying visit to the University of Toronto yesterday. The men—all agricultural engineers—were here as part of a brief tour of Canadian farm implement factories.

While visiting similar factories in England, the scientists, Alexei Nekrutenko, Sergei Gerasimov, and Sergei Komov, requested permission to come to this country. Since their arrival in Canada, January 4, they have spent a few days in Ottawa and Brantford, as well as a short stopover at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

For lunch yesterday the Russians were the guests of Hart House where the Soviet ambassador was entertained some months ago.

Since none of the men could speak English, translation was required and this was handled during their stay in Toronto by Dr. Skeay, recently retired scientist with the Ontario Research Foundation.

Queried about their impressions of Canadian factories, the visitors stated that they had found excellent facilities and technological training evidenced in all the factories they had visited. They expressed regret that their visit was limited to the eastern half of the country.

They refrained from comment about Canadian life on a more general plane since they had been in the country less than two weeks.

This-A and That-A

Rambling Rumlblings

By MARY ALICE HUNTER

Oh to be in April now that England's here, or rather, oh to be anywhere but here now. This is always a most depressing time of year because of all the late essays, which you meant to do; a last term; b, during the holidays; c, last week; d, to-night! Life seems like a wasteland, with only hollow men to comfort one. In a month or so, the 'gay' (hollow laughter) student begins to develop that twitely look and parents begin to hold worried whispering consultations about his health, and to shake their heads as he feebly emerges from the seclusion of his room to take a little nourishment (All parents that whisper and shake their heads may not necessarily be worried about you. They may belong to an international spy-ring or have dropsy.)

With the thought of the inescapable imminence of exams, one sometimes stays' home on the weekend to study; and then sits around all night feeling guilty (but it's more fun that way).

There is yet another sad fact about life in the winter. (Don't go away because there's a long list yet to come). If you do become industrious and go to the library, you can't get a seat, because everyone else had the same idea. You even have to stand in line to pay a library fine.

It is an especially frustrating season for girls because they have spent all their money on Christmas presents and now the sales are on. There is nothing to ruin a day more completely than seeing the little original— you paid half your life savings for, on sale for three ninety-eight.

Last and worst of all. Now is the season to start wondering about a summer job, or else, if you are faced with that horrible nightmare-graduation in an Arts Course: WHAT WILL I DO NEXT YEAR?

We are sorry to report that the writer of this article uttered a shrill shriek, and brained herself on a typewriter before we could stop her. All Varsity staffers are invited to the funeral which will take place quietly to-morrow in the editorial office at two-thirty. Bring your own food.

ON CAMPUS

JAN. 18 to JAN. 21

W
I
N
T
E
R

C
A
R
N
I
V
A
L

SAT.
JAN.
22

SUN.
JAN.
23

AT CALEDON HILLS
FARM

SALE

Washable Crinolines

SHORT AND LONG FROM 3 TO 7.50

HELMAR

- 46 St. George

WA. 1-5978

HAVE YOU SEEN MAVOR MOORE'S

"SUNSHINE TOWN"

playing at the Royal Alexandra for the rest of this week. Good seats still available — especially for Tuesday, Wed. and Thurs.

WEDNESDAY MATINEE $1, 1.50 and $2

Students prices on presentation of A.T.L. cards.

For further information — Royal Alexandra Theatre

Box Office — 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

This is a dandy, bright, show — one you won't want to miss.

"Singers of the Campus — Unite!
(into quartets)

You have nothing to lose but your chords"

(in harmony)
Informal meeting 5:10 p.m., Tuesday, East Common room, Hart House. Application forms and information in Undergraduate Activities Office r phone WA. 3-1302.

Arts and Commerce Graduates

The Great-West Life Assurance Company's Head Office, Winnipeg, Canada, offers opportunities to graduates in the following fields of insurance:

INVESTMENT SALES
CONTROL
ADMINISTRATION
ACTUARIAL

A representative of this company will interview interested graduates on the campus on January 20th and 21st.

Please see the Placement Service, 5 Willcocks St. for more material and interview times.

Watch

for the

ROVING

Torontonensis

Stand

This Week:

U.C. Main Hall
(at Noon)

S.P.S. Engineering
Store

Flapjack Flippers

Here are two of the contestants in last night's Flapjack Flipping Contest held on the front campus. They are Joan Gainer, II Vic, and Mary Jane Champ, the Forestry rep. The contest was held to help select a Carnival Queen. The final winner of this title will be announced at Caledon Hills Farm this weekend.

—Photo courtesy Toronto Daily Star.

Comedy Prevails
At Frying Contest

By CATHIE BRESLIN

The day has come — though we never expected to see it — when the merit of a campus queen is determined by her accomplishment in that fine old culinary art of flipping pancakes.

Add up a pile of ice blocks on the front campus (fondly called an igloo), a frigid and unfriendly night, and a vicious sputtering stove; they don't exactly lead to an atmosphere of domesticity. But to the thirteen bright and sparkling queen contestants, it didn't really matter. The audience was suffering from exposure, but encouraging; the spirit of this zany enterprise ran high — and besides, nobody knows much about this pancake business anyway.

The contest, conducted at the igloo on the front campus at 7:30 last night, marked the opening of the competition to choose a Winter Carnival Queen. The final decision will be made on Sunday afternoon, at Caledon Hills as the crowning brings to a close the first University of Toronto Winter Carnival.

As the pancake-flipping contest may indicate, the first lady of the campus will not be chosen for her beauty alone. Beauty, as a matter of fact, seemed rather out of place as the well-bundled damsels tended their smoking pans. The object of the game was to cook one generous pancake — flipping it without a spatula — and try to convince the five anonymous judges, armed with forks, that this was it.

Random comments floated about in the mysterious night air. "When are you going to build the igloo?" asked one innocent candidate, referring to the much-prized construction of ice blocks. "Something's burning!" shrieked another helpless young thing. And when Diane Webster (Mining and Geology Club) remarked over her smoking remains that "If you hadn't put so much gunk in the pan," she was promptly docked two points for lying.

One flip landed a pancake on the head of a bystander; but in general, it must be admitted that the young ladies did a fine job of reviving a lost and lamentable art. Undoubtedly the spice of the occasion added to their talents. But let the champions of the strictly beauty-style contest take note. It may be that on the Toronto campus a valuable new form of feminine appraisal is evolving; it may be that the question will no longer be "Is she a looker?", but "Can she flip?"

Staff

All Varsity staffers are requested to call into The Varsity office as soon as possible to hear a very important announcement about recreational facilities for journalists.

Cry—'On You Humans'
Will Echo Today at One

Does one say "mush" to start off a human dog-team? This question will be answered today at one when six Human Dog Teams will start their race from Simcoe Hall. The course is set for around the front campus, and a record for this event is certain to be set.

At present there are six entries: Victoria College, Trinity College, Wycliffe College, Math and Physics, Engineering Physics, and Mining and Metallurgy Club. The starting field may be larger, however, as the deadline for entries is not until ten this morning.

Under the rules, any college faculty, fraternity residence, or other campus organization may enter a team. There is a rumour that The Varsity may enter its own team.

We were unable to discover if the Blue and White cheerleaders would be there as a last minute entry. The requirements for entry in this contest are relatively simple; two to twelve people to pull, and a "moveable object" that "contain at least one human continuously throughout the race," to be pulled.

The front campus is also the setting for five tons of solid water, described by one member of the Carnival Committee as an

"Aztec Igloo." This is the only Igloo in Ontario, as far as we know, that is completely square. It is made of fifty blocks of ice donated by the Simcoe Ice and Fuel Company. Each block weighs two hundred pounds, and the structure took over a day to complete.

Two more Queens have entered the lists, now made up of Judy Francis II Vic, Diane Webster, Mining and SPS, Pat O'Brien, III St. Mike's, Elaine Bassin, II U.C., Katherine Boyd, I Architecture, Sandra McFarland, Vic.

Claire McMullen, KKT (III U.C.), Joan Gainer, II Vic, Diane Webster, Mining and Geology Club (I Vic), and Katherine Gray, Trinity. The new entries are Barbara Brown, I Nursing, and Joan Pierdon, SPS.

Friday the pancake makers will flip their masterpieces of Tuesday. Friday night is a Blue and White sponsored Square Dance in the Drill Hall, and Saturday at nine, applicants will leave for Caledon Hills Farm for skiing and skating competitions.

SAC's External Affairs Committee Judges
NFCUS at Tonight's Falconer Hall Meeting

The External Affairs Committee of the SAC will pass judgement on NFCUS tonight. "This will be the most important issue to be discussed at the meeting," said M. L. Nash, EAC secretary.

An open meeting to discuss this and other questions will be held in Falconer Hall tonight at 7:00 p.m. The decision reached will not necessarily affect the vote of the SAC, but will present a general consensus of opinion among the EAC representatives.

In addition to the NFCUS problem, reports will also be given concerning the plans of the WUS

Seminar to be held next summer in Japan and to which this university may send three delegates. It will be remembered that three U of T students went to Europe and North Africa last summer on a similar WUS scholarship.

Another topic on the agenda will be a report on the SHARE campaign which is due to begin on February 14. The main project of this year's campaign is the Patna Health centre in India. Each student will be canvassed personally throughout the week in an attempt to reach the financial goal of $6000. During the campaign the annual banquet will be held. It will be attended by all the canvassers and college 'reps, as well as the Indian High Commissioner who will be the guest speaker.

Those attending the meeting tonight will hear a report on the WUS seminar, held at the Caledon Hills Farm last weekend. The topic under discussion, "Education-For What?" was made even more interesting by the comments of the students of many countries who attended the several sessions.

The EAC urges all students not to miss the important meeting in Falconer Hall tonight.

NFCUS Reps Will Discuss
Student Aid With Ont. MPs

Representatives of the National Federation of Canadian University Students will meet this Friday with Members of the Ontario Legislature for York, Peel and Ontario counties.

The meeting will take the form of an informal discussion of the NFCUS proposals for a federal scholarship and bursary system which would give annual aid to ten thousand students to the amount of five million dollars.

A similar meeting was held last November when local members of Parliament were approached. The purpose of the meetings is to enlist both federal and provincial support when a brief outlining the scholarship problems is presented to Parliament in February. Similar campaigns are being conducted in all provinces towards this end. The campaign is under the direction of the Toronto branch of NFCUS.

Torontonensis
Now Displayed

This week the TORONTONENSIS display books move from the Economics Building and are invading the little Red School House. To be sure they are on display in the Engineering Book Store, where orders are being accepted. The numerous class presidents in SPS are also taking orders.

A second exhibition has been erected at noon hour in the main hall of University College. Both displays will be at these locations for the remainder of the week.

The idea behind the informative campaigning is to allow anyone and everybody on the campus to see a sample of the Year-book. Of necessity last year's book is being used at these exhibits. This year's TORONTONENSIS is still in the creative stage.

Sheila Kent, Nursing's 'Nensis worker', is filling in names instead of fever charts. Result — the new personal picture index. Should you see Editor Dave Wood's eyes gleaming, he's just visualizing that milk white cover.

Pro's and Con's of NFCUS Ideals and Achievements

By BILL SMYTH

Just what is this body that has been so much in the news lately? The National Federation of Canadian University Students was founded in 1926 by a group of Canadian students to "promote, in every way possible, a better understanding among all Canadian students, a greater degree of co-operation and co-ordination among all Canadian Universities, for effective promotion of student interests; and to provide a means for developing international relationships with students' groups in other countries."

This is an extract from the NFCUS constitution. In this light, let us look at what NFCUS has achieved and attempted over the years. The federation that we know today first got under way in 1946; it included and includes all students registered at Universities whose Student Councils have fulfilled the requirements for membership; that is, the payments of the fee on a per capita basis.

The administration of NFCUS at this moment may be divided into four categories: the Local Committee, the Executive Committee, the Executive Council, and the National Secretariat. The Executive Council is composed of the members of the annual meeting. A full time president, a travel director, and three secretaries compose the paid staff of NFCUS. With this equipment, what has NFCUS done since 1946?

It was 1950 before NFCUS really became a major part of campus life; it was 1950 before NFCUS became an "issue". In this year reduced students' rates on railway fares, regional exchanges of students on a scholarship basis, and ideas of national scholarships were first really set in motion. Also NFCUS began investigation of opportunities to reduce the cost of text-books, and summer study tours became a reality. And in this year, the fee per student was raised from six cents to twenty.

Since then, the National Federation of Canadian University Stu-

Plunging Neckline Attracts Attention

All Reporters and other staff members of The Varsity are requested to report regularly for their assignments in The Varsity office.

New recruits to the staff will be welcome — with or without any experience in journalism. There are also one or two photographers needed.

dents has introduced a Short Story Contest and an Art Contest. It publishes an annual bulletin telling of the functions of NFCUS during each year. And the organization has been continually involved in press controversies.

The major criticisms that have been brought forward in the past are that NFCUS spends too much of its revenue supporting a staff; that NFCUS gets no results from its campaigns for scholarships; reduction of student fares, lowering prices of texts; that the functions of NFCUS do not properly include contests; that NFCUS spends the students' money for nothing; that the conferences devolve into vague generalities, into flowing phrases and sheep-like agreement.

Whether these criticisms are accurate or not is presently the bone of contention — whether or not it is advisable to once more raise the NFCUS fees. One thing emerges from the chaos — clearly not all the criticisms are valid, but the question now is: Is the National Federation likely to be improved — in spirit and in deed — by the increase to fifty cents per student in fees.

Is Press Foe?

"The Press — Democracy's Friend or Foe" will be the topic of a panel discussion tonight 8:15 p.m. in Strachan Hall, Trinity College. Mr. J. B. McGeachie, of the Globe and Mail, will be one of the guest speakers. Other panelists will include Professors from the Trinity College staff, and the student editors of Trinity College publications. All will be welcomed.

CUP

Runneth-Over

By DOUG STEWART

Following Toronto's Bishop's example, this college is planning its first winter Carnival. Buses will leave early in the morning for a day of slalom and downhill skiing at a nearby ski centre, followed by supper and a skating party. In the evening, Bishop's plans a figure skating demonstration with a chorus line of 14 girls. There will also be a hockey game against the Université de Sherbrooke.

The second day of the Carnival will include a snow sculpturing competition, a gymnastic display and basketball game. After the game there will be a mixed supper, followed by a Carnival Dance in the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

The outstanding thing about the whole story as we see it lies in the fact that spirit and enthusiasm is so keen there that classes are being cancelled for both days of the carnival.

The Cambridge debaters, John Waite and Giles Shaw are continuing their tour of Canadian Universities. Last Friday they defeated Bishop's on the topic "Resolved: that Britain's place is in the Home". The debate took much the same form as the recent one at Toronto, and once again it was decided that Britain should continue her role in world politics.

At McMaster they were defeated by a single vote on the subject "Resolved: that Chicago ought to be Destroyed." Giles Shaw, speaking in favour of the retention of that city stressed the importance of the ties between Canada and the U.S. and the need in Canada for "smart injection of the U.S. political system".

Gilbert and Sullivan, a perennial favourite of light opera societies, will get a wide-spread workout from college groups this year. The Acadia Light Opera Society has received word that it is the only society producing Patience this year, but the Mikado — presented by Acadia two years ago and by Toronto's Victoria College this year — is to be staged by eight separate groups in Ontario alone.

Western — A front page feature on last Friday's Gazette states that John Metras, Mustang coach, has indicated his interest in leaving Western and will be invited to apply for the McGill athletic directorship.

The vacant McGill athletic director's position was held by Vic Obeck until his recent resignation to take an executive position with the Montreal Alouettes. The vice-president of the McGill Alumni said the job would not be concerned with football coaching, but with public relations and administration only.

Contacted by telephone, Metras told reporters: "I don't know anything about it".

SALE OF FORMALS

ALL ORIGINALS

LONG AND SHORT

DRASTICALLY REDUCED!

HELMAR

46 St. George St.

WA. 1-5978

Canadian Opera Festival

Royal Alexandra Theatre

February 25 to March 12

Advance ticket sale ends Fri., Feb. 4th. Tickets may now be ordered at Students' Administrative Council Office.

THESE ARE PREFERRED SEATS FOR STUDENTS AND STAFF

Tickets also available from your SAC Representative.
PRICES: Sat. Matinees $1.50 to $3.00
Evenings $1.50 to $3.50

OPERAS: DIE FLEDERMAUS (In English)

LA TRAVIATA (In Italian)

MARRIAGE OF FIGARO (In Italian)

ALL-CANADIAN CAST — Featuring

Marcella Reale	Karl Norman
Jean Ramsay	Jan Rubes
Marjorie Hays	Ernest Adams
Roma Butler	Don Gerrard
Patricia Snell	James Milligan
Joanne Ivey	Jon Vickers
Mary Morrison	Andrew McMillan
Evelyn Gould	Bernard Turgeon

Records Out of Date — Committee Agrees Ask Smith's Appeal to Carnegie Fund

A letter will be sent to President Smith asking that he request the Carnegie Foundation to aid the U of T Carnegie Record Collection. This was decided at the last meeting of the Music Committee of the Students' Administrative Council, (which has jurisdiction over the collection), said Bard Bakker, Curator.

Bakker said the present equipment and record collection was out-moded and antiquated.

He stated that there was a particular need for a new record player, because the present one had very poor tone.

The curator of the collection also said that since the Record Collection and the player was originally purchased for the students by the Carnegie Foundation as a gift, it was decided to ask the foundation for financial aid to renovate the collection. SAC grants are totally inadequate, said Bakker, to meet the cost of getting a new player or of adding to the out-moded collection of 78 RPM records.

The Carnegie Record Collection is housed in the staff lounge of the New Mechanical Building where concerts are held every Thursday at 4:30 p.m. Bakker says that there is a considerable interest shown by students in the collection, especially by the women of the university who are barred from hearing the Hart House Collection.

SMART STUDENTS RENT

Complete outfits are available for every occasion in the latest styles and our quality garments are "Tailored to Fit Like Your Own".
Special Student Discount
There is No Lower price in the City
Complete $3.00

256 COLLEGE ST. - WA. 2-0991

AT SPADINA

556 YONGE ST. - WA. 2-3270

AT WELLESLEY

Watch for IT

TORONTONENSIS

BAHA'I

STUDENT GROUP

Invites you to hear
DON DAINTY, graduate studies speak on

"A Pattern for Future Society"

TODAY — 1.10 p.m.

Room 111

Basement, U.C.

JAN. 18

ON CAMPUS

JAN. 21

WINTER CARNIVAL

Today 1 p.m. — Front Campus

HUMAN DOG TEAM RACE

JAN. 22

CALEDON HILLS FARM

JAN. 23

Help?

The Hoskin Avenue problem is remedied for at least one and one-half hours a day by the presence of the above white-coated gentleman of the law — for two three-quarter hour periods at nine and five.

—VSP by Aeko Ohori wedding bells...

Or A Dirge

By HUGH McKELLAR

Who would ever have thought that a small bit of violet-scented stationery could have come so near hospitalizing me this morning? Don't think that I'm allergic to violets: rather it was the message penned in green ink on the note-paper that gave me the mild heart attack. It was from a friend named Grace — I needn't give her surname, for the note was to warn me that very soon she will have a new one. Two weeks from next Saturday she is to assume legal ownership of one of my closest friends.

I suppose I had no business being so shocked; after all, she has been flashing a diamond for nearly a year, so I expected she would probably get married sooner or later. But for that matter, I expect she will probably die sooner or later too, since she is not immortal; and that probable event would not have knocked me out so completely as this. To be sure, there is no reason why she and my friend shouldn't get married, for they are free, white, twenty-one, and in love; I don't see how they can afford marriage but that consideration seems to deter very few couples nowadays. However, an obstacle to their bliss has arisen: the organist of the church where the ceremony will be performed is seriously ill, and cannot act. So Grace wants to know if I will supply the organ music for their wedding.

Now, of all the assignments an organist is likely to receive, I dread weddings the worst. I always feel as if I were an accomplice at a crime. Not that choice of music poses a problem, for as long as you play the Wagner and Mendelssohn marches and because the ceremony is legal, and the families are far too excited to notice what else you play. But I am expected to create an atmosphere of gaiety and rejoicing with my music, and for the life of me I can't see anything to rejoice about.

I would far rather play for a funeral: to me it is a more joyful occasion than a wedding. For one thing, we assume that the guest of honour is infinitely better off than formerly, and if he isn't, at least we are spared the knowledge. Again, the grief aroused by a funeral, however sincere it may be, seems to wear off in a reasonably short time; and if the brother departed left much money, his heirs never are sorer than the law requires. So I never want to cry at a funeral; but at a wedding, the sight of the couple, standing at the altar radiant with happiness, assails my tear-ducts.

There they stand smiling; while down in the congregation, smiling just as sweetly, egging them on as it were, stand couples who know intimately all the troubles that man and wife must endure so long as they remain in this world. Here stand a smiling couple who have not spoken for twenty years to their in-laws in the pew ahead; there are a smiling pair who have enlivened at least twelve thousand meals with a spat, a quarrel, or a brawl. Here is a woman smiling in tender grief at the thought that her husband is dead; there is another, suffused with fury at the thought that hers isn't. Here are a couple who knew as well as Lear "how sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child"; there is a smiling divorcee who has chickened out of the struggle. How can Grace look down at the smiling couples in the pews and Appointments must be made this week — January 17 to 21 — by all students wishing to give blood for the Red Cross in the present campus-wide blood-blitz, said Barb Flint, spokesman for the campaign.

She stated that the actual donations will be taken in the School of Nursing building on St. George Street during the week of January 31 to February 4 by a team of Red Cross workers.

After the students have given their blood, they will be served refreshments by volunteers from the School of Nursing. Miss Flint stated that the giving of blood was a completely harmless and painless performance. To make doubly sure that there can be no ill effects from the donation, all donors are tested beforehand for physical fitness.

Miss Flint also said that every donor would receive a card stating his or her blood grouping and Rh factor. This could be of vital importance to a student she said.

Appointments to give the blood should be made as soon as possible. Students should contact their local Blood Reps, whose names are listed below, to obtain their appointments.

Blood Reps

MUSIC	Bob Evans
U.C. MEN	Bill Smyth
U.C. WOMEN	Marg Riches
VIC. MEN	Rich Newman
VIC. WOMEN	Liz Langford
ST. HILDA'S	Connie Clarke
TRINITY WOMEN
NON-RESIDENCE	Jane Kelly
POT	Dilys Whatley
PHE	Terry Riley
SPS	K. G. Singh
DENTISTRY	Bob Hall
MEDICINE	Dave Wilson
NURSING	Jane Evans
GRAD. STUDIES	Mary Turner
SOCIAL WORK	Maureen Jessop
FORESTRY	Bob Staley
PHARMACY	Bill Lazenby
ST. MICHAEL'S
MEN	Jack Callaghan
WOMEN	Carole Lindholm
EMMANUEL	Gerald Elliott
KNOX	Peter Walter
LAW	Bill Coan
ARCHITECTURE	Keith Becker
WYCLIFFE	John MacDonald

CARNIVAL

All reservations for overnight accommodation must be registered at the Graduate Office, Hart House by 5 p.m. Thursday. Those who will be getting accommodation will be notified by phone... preference will be given to those participating in team events.

Jewish Appeal Seeks 3 M As Fund Raising Objective

"To Give is To Belong" — this is the slogan of the United Jewish Appeal which is making a campus-wide campaign for funds this week. All Jewish students are asked to contribute to this campaign, which aids Jewish Charities in Toronto, across Canada, in Europe and Asia, and in Israel, said Nickie Cohen, U.J.A. spokesman.

Miss Cohen said that "it is only by the Jewish student recognizing the significance of these spiritual and moral ties that he can achieve a true sense of belonging." She stated that it was also worthy of note that many students are actually beneficiaries of the U.J.A. through such agencies as the Hillel Foundation, Y.M. & Y.W.H.A. Hebrew classes, and summer camps.

One purpose of the campaign, said Miss Cohen, is to infect the students with a spirit of giving and belonging which will affect others of the community.

She said that the early results of the campaign had been encouraging, and she hoped that the campus objective of $3,000 would be reached.

Organization for the campaign is being undertaken by the Hillel Foundation, the campus club for Jewish students.

not fly out of the church in panic? Why should she suppose that married life will be any kinder to her than it has been to them?

However, Grace and my friend are not likely at this stage of the game to appreciate my scruples; and if I conscientiously refuse to play, they will simply get in another organist, who may murder the marches and drown the soloist worse than I will. If marry they must, I suppose the ceremony might as well be perpetrated decently and in order; so if I envelop their nuptials with beautiful music, I shall have done all I can for them. What happens after that, upon their own heads be it!

So I shall write: "Dear Grace: I shall be delighted..."

SALE Washable Crinolines

SHORT AND LONG FROM 3 TO 7.50

HELMAR

46 St. George

WA. 1-5978

Hart House Theatre's 33rd All-Varsity Production
FEDERICO GARCIA LORCA'S

The House of Bernarda Alba

SAME SPECIAL
STUDENT RATE
.75c

Directed by
ROBERT GILL

TWO TICKETS ONLY
ON EACH A.T.L.
CARD

SAT., JAN. 22nd to SAT., JAN. 29th - at 8.30
BOX OFFICE NOW OPEN

HART HOUSE TODAY

WEDNESDAY, 19th JANUARY:

- 10.00 a.m. - 10.00 p.m. — ART EXHIBITION by John (Mac) Reynolds.
- 1.10 p.m. — CAMERA CLUB — Color Show by Peter Miller (Club Rooms)
- 4.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — ART GALLERY: Open to women of the University of Toronto.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — 5 O'CLOCK CONCERT. The Hansen Trio. (Music Room.) Women, with or without member-escort all welcome.
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — GLEE CLUB REHEARSAL — 1st basses. (Debates Ante Room)
- 5.00 p.m. - 6.00 p.m. — LEE COLLECTION OPEN. Medieval Art. Open to men and women (through Reading Room).
- 7.15 p.m. - 10.30 p.m. — BRIDGE CLUB. (Reading Room). All members of Hart House welcome. Prizes.
- 7.30 p.m. - 10.00 p.m. — REVOLVER CLUB. (Rifle Range).

The Varsity

Published five times weekly by
The Students' Administrative Council of
The University of Toronto
Member Canadian University Press
Publications Commissioner Ian G. Scott

EDITOR
MANAGING EDITOR
News Editor
Assistant News Editor
Feature Editor
Makeup Editor
A.M. & D. Editor
Sports Editor
Assistant Sports Editor
Women's Sports Editor
Photo Editor
CUP Editor
Mortician

C. CLYDE BATTEN
ROBERT D. BROWN
Mike Pengelley
Cathie Breslin, Bill Smyth
Mary Alice Hunter
Irene Meyers
Wendy Michener
John Wilson
John Wojtech
Flo Middleton
Ed. Hoshkiw
Chuck Williams
Ralph Berrin

Business and Advertising Manager
E. A. Macdonald — WA. 3-6221

Editorial and News Office
Basement S.A.C. Building — WA. 3-8742

IN CHARGE: Bob Brown
NIGHT EDITOR: Carol Hoffman
REPORTERS: Jo Patrick, Fred Gray, Max Rosenthal,
Marg Stern, Sue Deiman
ASSISTANTS: Roger MacQueen, Maureen Mogan

Unfortunate

The recent announcement from Ottawa that the Federal Government was prepared to make a considerable concession in its tax feud with Duplessis's Quebec has lessened the tension between these two governments. Prime Minister St. Laurent stated that in future a deduction of up to 10% could be made from federal income taxes to offset provincial levies.

Previously, the limit had been 5%, and Duplessis and St. Laurent had carried on a running battle with such epithets as "Little Caesar" and "Centralist" being hurled back and forth between them.

Although this concession on the part of St. Laurent seems to alleviate this battle, and will no doubt reassure many Liberal French-Canadians as to the friendliness of the Liberal regime to their culture, it may be an important and regrettable turning point in Canadian History.

If the Federal Government had not made this concession to the provincial-righters, it might have gained in time the exclusive right to most tax fields. The voters of the Province might have turned on even so obnoxious a leader as Premier Duplessis if he insisted on imposing provincial taxes to add to the federal levies, when an obvious way out would be to sign a Dominion-Provincial Tax Agreement.

Thus the Federal Government might well have extended its power and economic influence. And such an extension is needed, if Canada is ever to become one united and vigorous land. A system of systematic aid to the poorer areas of the land, a national health plan, a national economic plan to cope with a major depression, a country-wide scheme for civil defence — even a national scholarships scheme — may all well have to wait until the day when the Federal Government's resources are larger and its powers wider.

And that day has not been brought any closer by the Prime-Minister's concession. —RDB

Sour Note?

On Sunday night the Hart House Orchestra under Dr. Boyd Neel gave its premiere performance in Hart House. From the standpoint of artistic excellence and attendance the program is considered to be one of the best to be held in the Great Hall under the auspices of the Music Committee.

We believe that this orchestra can make a very significant contribution to the cultural life of the campus and, indeed, of the city and province.

One of the major problems confronting Dr. Neel, is occasioned by the fact that it is not possible to offer prospective musicians any sort of continuing program which would induce them to give more attention to the development of the orchestra.

Competent musicians who have satisfactory connections with more permanent organizations, will not quickly jeopardize such attachments.

A partial solution to the problem could be found in the establishment of a concert series for the next academic year. Such a series would do a great deal to initiate more permanence in the arrangements Dr. Neel could make with prospective performers.

Judging from the response given to Sunday's concert, a series of five or six such concerts would be well received both by undergraduates as well as graduates and friends of the university.

It would be a great condemnation of the university community should the efforts of Dr. Neel continue to go unrecognized or unsupported.

Interesting Figures

Facts and Figures taken from President Sidney Smith's Address—"Brains and Backbone"—to the Canadian Club on Monday.

UNIVERSITY INCOME

Tuition Fees	28.7%
Government Grants (Fed. & Prov.)	44%
Research Grants	13%
Endowments	6%
Miscellaneous	1%

Analysis of the operating income of 20 Canadian Universities for 1954.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO FIGURES

- The U of T employs over 3,500 people.
- It has 10,000 regular full-time students, 12,000 Extension students, and 7,000 students at the Royal Conservatory of Music — 30,000 students in all.
- The U of T has spent — since 1947 — over 21 millions on new buildings.
- The school of Graduate studies has students from 160 different Universities in 60 countries.
- The academic staff has members from 159 different universities in 39 countries.
- The U of T has an operating budget of 18 million dollars a year, 90% of which is spent in Toronto.

EMPLOYMENT FORECAST

Every year from 1958 to 1965, there will be from 15 to 20 thousand more professional openings in Canada than there will be people to fill them.

AID TO STUDENTS

In Canada, the percentage of students receiving financial assistance varies from 13% to 29% from university to university. The average amount received varies from $336 to $120 a year. In Great Britain, 80% of university students receive direct aid.

INTERESTING COMPARISONS

—In 1952, the total revenue of all Canadian universities came to 48 million dollars. One American State provides a similar amount annually as its contribution to higher education within that state.

—While 48 millions are spent in universities annually in Canada, 60 millions are spent on Mental Hospitals. Canadians annually spend more on hosiery than they do on universities, two and one half times as much on refrigerators and vacuum cleaners as on universities, three times as much on tobacco.

our readers write:

Soap, Water, And Blood

The Editor,
The Varsity.

In connection with the forthcoming Blood Campaign, the following points are relevant.

Two years ago the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering donated a "Skule Cannon Trophy" to the faculty or college having the highest percentage donation to the Blood Campaign. This trophy was to be presented annually.

Two years ago the trophy was duly presented to the Faculty of Forestry for its unparalleled participation of over 95 percent.

Last year no winner was announced by the Blood Campaign Committee, and the trophy was not presented. It is an indisputable fact that the campaign was won by the Faculty of Forestry, again with over 95 percent participation.

In view of the fact that the committee organizing the campaign this year is anxious to increase the percentage participation of the whole University, it would be desirable to promote interfaculty competition.

The "Skule Cannon Trophy" still held by the Faculty of Forestry can provide an incentive to interfaculty competition. Formal declaration of a winner and a proper presentation of the trophy will increase the interest for next year's competition. It is to be hoped that the Committee will use the trophy to the best advantage in obtaining their objectives.

It is a well-known fact that foresters bleed best. This has been proven in the past and will be proven again in the near future.

Be it known here and now that the Faculty of Forestry in a formal soap and water ceremony will wash down the steps of any faculty or college who can beat us in the forthcoming Blood Campaign.

W. K. Fullerton,
President,
Foresters' Club.

Dark No Excuse

The Editor,
The Varsity.

On page three of Monday's Varsity, it was stated that 3rd Yr. Metallurgy had said they would build an igloo with five tons of ice on the front campus Monday evening. We were delightedly surprised to learn we had said this when we read Monday's issue, and like good engineers did some laboured research on igloo building, only to find later that someone had erred and we were not the intended iglooists at all. Under cover of the Varsity's mistake, however, we decided to accept the credit for the work but, after viewing the example of abortive architecture now residing on the front campus, we refuse to accept any responsibility for it whatever. The dark of night is no excuse for such construction.

P.S. — In reference to Tuesday's Varsity, page 8, the SPS contestant for Carnival Queen is Metallurgy's own little queen, Joan Pierdon.

Metallurgy ST6.

Ed. Note: No Varsity error — the publicity man of the Winter Carnival became a bit confused. The article should have read Third Mining.

for a blood drive

Appropriate?

WE THOUGHT IT MORE APPROPRIATE

Some Observations on the Dress and Drinking Habits of Female University Students While Riding on a Bus.

"See the little debutantes
On the way to ten o'clocks,
Their feet encased in two white socks—
Good morning to you, little sols"

— R. E. Popham

By Jas. Weller.

HART HOUSE TO BECOME BERNARDA ALBA'S HOUSE

Hart House, that place of masculinity will fall into ruthless feminine hands starting next Saturday, when Bob Gill presents Lorca's The House of Bernarda Alba. This play, the third of the University productions of the year has a cast of fifteen people, all women.

The play opens with the funeral service for Bernarda Alba's husband, and the voices of the men who sing his death chant are the only masculine thing that is allowed to enter into the house of Bernarda Alba. From this point on she and her five daughters and her female servant go into a secluded mourning in which the windows of the house must be shuttered at all times. The mourning of the daughters becomes in effect a mourning for all men, as their mother puts them into purda because she considers all the cillage men too low, or too poor to become "suitable" sons-in-law.

The situation is an uncomfortable one even if undisturbed by outside complications, and the five girls between the ages of 20 and 39 all become thoroughly frustrated. The complication which sets loose the suppressed emotions of the daughters is one man: Pepi. The most handsome of the villagers, he comes to court the eldest daughter for her money while courting the youngest for her body. The second youngest, who is self-confessedly "weak and ugly" also loves Pepi and is determined to have him. The development of this situation to some kind of resolution lasts 3 acts.

"These 3 acts are intended as a photographic document", says Lorca of his play. It is an indictment of the old caste system of Spain with its pretense and pretensions. The play was the last that Lorca wrote before he died in the 1930's while fighting in the Spanish civil war. Lorca was a poet before he was a dramatist, and although he writes in prose it often approaches the poetic. "You find you're directing it musically as much as dramatically", says Gill. "The speech has to be on the right tone".

The single set has been designed by Russ Waller, the stage manager of the theatre. Like much of the play, it is symbolic in nature, representing the hot, oppressive closed in feeling of a house crammed with women continually in each other's company. Outside there is sunshine and vitality which sneaks through the lattice doors, but inside there is only gloom and sterility.

PAGE FIVE

Lord Help the Sister...

Two sisters in love with the same man confront each other in this scene from THE HOUSE OF BERNARDA ALBA, the play by Lorca which opens at Hart House Theatre on Saturday night under the direction of Robert Gill. Lyla Gutzin as Martirio, Patricia Moffat as Adela. —VSP by Ed Hoshikw

Callboard

DRAMA

The Crest Theatre present Twelfth Night for the rest of this week and all of next. There are special student rates on Monday and Tuesday of the second week. It's their first Anniversary Production.

"Mavor Moore's Musical Version of Stephen Leacock's Sunshine Town" has been held over for a second week at the Royal Alexandra. There are two reasons for going, one questionable and one good: it's Canadian, it's entertaining.

The temple players are presenting The Crucible at Holy Blossom. It might make an interesting contrast with the Trinity production.

In Hart House, Bob Gill's production of Federico Garcia Lorca's The House of Bernarda Alba starts off on Saturday and continues until next Saturday. With the magic card (ATL) tickets are going for 75 cents.

MUSIC

This coming Saturday there will be a Concert in memory of Boris Hambourge at the Unitarian Church at 4:00 p.m. Contributing artists will be Boyd Neel, Geza de Kresz, Elie Spivak and Lois Marshall. The minimum fee of $5.00 will go to the Boris Hambourge Cello Scholarship Fund.

This season's first performance by the Royal Conservatory Symphony Orchestra conducted by Ettore Mazzoleni will be given at Convocation Hall on Thursday, Jan. 20 at 8:30 p.m. The four selections feature guest violinist, pianists and conductor.

The Carnegie record collection will present a recital of chamber music by Fauré, Debussy and Ravel on Thursday, Jan. 20 at 4:30 p.m. in the Staff Lounge of the Mechanical Building.

Greta Kraus, Harpsichordist, will play at the Wymilwood Students' Union, Victoria College, next Sunday evening, January 23, at 9:00 p.m. Her Programme includes works by Couperin, Bach and Scarlatti. Coffee afterwards.

The Hart House Wednesday 5 o'clock features the Hansen Trio — two violins and a piano. Women are welcome.

ART

In the Alumni Hall, Victoria College the pictures of Yvonne McKague Housser are on view until February 11. W.R.M.

CRITIC IN THE DARK

What's In A Name?

The ways of parents are wonderfully senseless in some things, most notably in the naming of their offspring. The wishful thinking they employ in this is easily seen when some careless folk name a daughter Prudence, Grace, Honour or something lofty like that only to have them turn out as something somewhat less than so.

In the movie "Athena", now at the Uptown, Hollywood, true to its "what's in a name?" approach, portrays the Greek goddess of wisdom as a scatter-brained wench who lives on nuts, berries and love of all men. To make the setting thoroughly Olympian, Athena is surrounded by six sisters, each a goddess reincarnated, somewhat incompletely.

Wednesday's 5 O'clock

Andrea and Florence Hansen who will play violins accompanied by Carol Wright in the concert at Hart House to-day. Their program includes THE GOLDEN SONATA by Purcell and Six DUOS OF BARTOK. All are students at the Conservatory.

The throwback is then further compounded by the addition of the muscular types competing for the coveted title of Mr. Universe, one Adonis for each goddess. All believe zealously in astrological determination of fate, numerology and the natural life. They live on vegetarian foods, lift weights all day and dance through the night in flimsy apparel. When they tire of this or face a crisis they fall into a trance and commune with Narda for inspiration.

Into this unusual setting step the unwelcome influences of Vic Damone, who plays a crooner fated to win the heart of one sister, and Edmund Purdom, a very conservative, legal type, destined for Athena herself. Between Damone and Athena, Jane Powell, there is plenty of pleasant song to relieve the monotony of exceeding muscle and perfection. The standard "musical" pattern however allows for only a shredded plot, not really enough to interfere with the fun.

Moishe Reiter

composer's workshop

laine Gulaine in a group of his own songs. With some exceptions, the emphasis in these songs was on the pianist's part rather than the singer's, and often the vocal line became quite lost in a welter of arabesques and arpeggios. Miss Gulaine, however, showed a good technical and artistic appreciation of her role, and rode the waves with grace.

There followed a Suite for Piano, composed and performed by Paul Helmer. This consisted of four short movements, and had a good deal of interest and character. I liked particularly the second movement with its suggestion of atonal blues. Next, Carolyn Gundy played Anne Eggleston's Rhapsody for Violin, accompanied by the composer. Although Miss Eggleston is well aware of the potentials of the violin, the piece found difficulty in building and maintaining tension. It's difficult motion lacked the drive from within essential to a rather formless piece if it is to carry its point.

By far the most entertaining and exciting items of the evening were Milton Barnes' Three Folk Dances and Ballet Score, incidental music to Strinberg's play Miss Julie, played by Carolyn Gundy with Elma Ritchie accompanying. Cheerful little imitations between the instruments contributed a purpose and definition to the music which was wanting in much of the rest of the programme. The best in this music was brought out by a first-rate performance with splendid teamwork. The same high standards continued when Miss Ritchie played Barnes' Toccata.

Morris Eisenstadt's Punctuation Suite pleased, but left me wondering what he meant by the title. The last piece was a Sonata for Violin and Piano by Buczynski played by Tony Gunter and the composer. More arabesques, but the partnership between the instruments was more even than that of the songs, and the piece hung together better.

It is a most encouraging thing that these young students and writers should have the faith and perseverance to band themselves together, and to put their work before the public. The audience on Saturday was pitifully small, and the Conservatory should recognize this talent in a more positive way by doing all it can to announce their work and support their concerts. There is a good deal here that is well worth supporting. We shall hear from the Composer's Workshop again soon. Michael Oliver

frye explores blake

"Well, what would you do to present such a subject graphically?" I asked myself as I turned off the TV set with a vague feeling of dissatisfaction after last Sunday's programme "Exploring Minds". The subject was William Blake, poet and artist, and the commentator was Northrop Frye, professor of English at Victoria College.

The main difficulty was a divorce between the artistic and literary aspects of William Blake and of the televised lecture. In other programs showing prints, there has been a running commentary relevant to the subject matter and artistic merit of the picture, but this time the viewer was faced with the difficulty of exploring the picture and reading its caption while listening to the poem. It was too much for one mind to explore at once.

Barry Morse's reading of the poems, among them, the well-known Tiger, Tiger, was excellent, but only served to make the clear, professorial delivery of Frye seem dull by comparison. His text, though interesting, was full of unimaginable ideas, and so the gulf between the static view of a man seated and the play upon the etchings of Blake was even greater. I am afraid I am in the position of diagnosing without being able to prescribe a remedy. I cannot imagine just how this subject could have been better treated. I can only suggest that it had something to do with the design and did not allow for the connection and movement within a set that has been established in some previous programs. Wendy Michener

BLUES COMPETE AT ATHLETIC NIGHT

Speaking of Sport

By JOHN WILSON

Last Friday night while squatted watching the Blues and Laval clash in that nineteen-goal holocaust we chanced to glance to the south end to discover eight monster gilt placards hanging from the girders of Varsity Arena. As long as we can remember those placards have been strung up there high above the ice, and nobody has ever given them a second thought. But just for the asking of one simple question we stumbled across a goldmine of Intercollegiate hockey history connected with those eight pieces of clapboard that could fill a small-sized book.

It all seems to have started back in the 1920's, when hockey was just beginning to draw crowds in the United States. To get your dates straight that was about the time the old Toronto St. Pats were holding forth in Mutual Arena. Many of the Canadian universities had taken exhibition trips south of the border to play Harvard, or Yale, or several of the other older American colleges, and the Varsity Blues numbered among those that became special attractions to American sports fans.

Around this time it had become popular for at least one Canadian college team to play in an invitation tournament in New York's Madison Square Gardens, and in 1925 the Blues were invited to play with several of the top U.S. teams. The Varsity coach at the time was a man who a few seasons later took the helm of the Toronto St. Pats, and became one of modern hockey's most controversial figures—Conn Smythe. The Blues cleaned up in that 1925 tournament without too much trouble, and won the Governor Smith Trophy which had been presented for the annual affair by the then governor of the state of New York, Al Smith. Apparently no one ever reclaimed the award for the Blues brought it home with them after the tournament and it stands today in the Hart House trophy case for all the world to see.

Well Canadian teams continued to play exhibition games with Yale, Harvard, and even Princeton, although the Blues never returned to the Garden. Along about 1936 the American universities had become so interested in the prospect of their annual games with the University of Toronto, and others that there was talk of forming a league between the Canadian Intercollegiate Union, then composed of Toronto, McGill, Queens, and the University of Montreal; and the U.S. Quadrangular League, in which teams from Dartmouth, Princeton, Harvard, and Yale competed.

In the winter of that year Yale was playing an exhibition game here in Toronto with the Blues and Alexis Thompson, a Yale senior, and manager of their hockey team, elected to present a handsome trophy for competition, and the following season the Intercollegiate International Hockey League came into being with the above eight teams in the loop.

The Thompson trophy, which the Yale man presented in memory of his father, stood at least three feet tall, with a base of solid marble, and weighed 350 pounds. On top of this was a silver body about a foot high, on which the winners crests and names were engraved. To finish the award off, a bronze figure of a hockey player a foot and a half in height was placed on top of the trophy. Although the league only lasted four seasons, Alexis Thompson continued in the sport world as the owner of the Philadelphia Eagles' professional football club until his death a few years ago.

McGill started off the new league winning the Thompson trophy three times in a row, in 1937, 1938, and 1939. Varsity won it in 1940 and then the pressure of the war in Europe was felt, and the I.I.H.L. came upon evil days. There is a slight note of triumph here for in an American newspaper of 1940 we find a complaint from the Princeton coach that the Canadian teams were too good. This statement was made after the Tigers had absorbed defeats of 12-1 and 10-3 from Toronto and Queens respectively on consecutive nights.

At any rate the league collapsed, much to the disappointment of the Canadian universities. Then in 1947 the Dartmouth Indians issued a challenge to the Blues and the two teams played off in Providence for the Thompson trophy. Varsity tied the Indians in that game, and both universities had their names inscribed on the silverware. The following year the Blues reclaimed the trophy, and then in March of 1949 the international competition died an ignoble death as the University of Montreal Carabins won the title, beating Dartmouth. The Thompson trophy was retained by Yale University, who were the original trustees for the league.

That's how these eight colourful placards found their way to the south end of the Arena and it's likely that they'll still be there twenty years from now even though the last time an American college team played on Varsity ice was at least five years ago. Might be nice to see it start again.

Playing Lawrence Tech Saturday Braithwaite Through for Season

Pressure of studies has deprived the Varsity Blues of star basketballer Spodie Braithwaite just a few days before their tough weekend encounter with the Blue Devils of Lawrence Tech. The loss of Braithwaite weakens the Blues who would have needed all their strength to rate even odds with the powerful Techers. This game is to be the feature of a Hart House Athletic Night, with the Baby Blues going in a prelini with Osgoode Hall.

It will be a better Varsity team than the home town fans have seen this season that faces up to the American visitors with the Blues finally starting to overcome the failings that have hampered them so far. Only in the last game did George Stulac begin to play up to form and the play of Marv Tile and Leo Madden, both out over the holiday lay-off with injuries, is improving quite rapidly.

The Tech team is rated as just a shade better than the Blues, last year having defeated such teams as the champion Assumption College club by solid margins. The last time Lawrence met the Blues, was in 1951 and in that match the Techers took the decision by better than twenty points. Last year the Americans defeated Western Mustangs by a score of 80-57, proving themselves at least the peek of anything in this league.

A tall club with only two players below the 6' mark, the Techers are likely to outplay the Blues in rebounding and close-in play, unless the Varsitytypes improve the standard they have been playing to in their last few games when the opposition has had it all over them in that department. Centers Ron Wegert and Walt Dzurus stand above both Alf Vaichulis and Marv Tile and give the visitors an edge there, but the rest of the club hovers around the six foot mark and so have no great edge on the Blues, but their record, against the Varsitytypes gives them the favourites' role.

Puck Blues Hit Road Again Reid Leads Scoring Parade

Jack Kennedy's hockey Blues set out Thursday for another one of those doubleheaders in old Quebec, playing Friday night in the Quebec Coliseum with Laval, and returning for a Saturday night game in Verdun with the Carabins. Little winger Tom Riley, recalled to action from the Intermediates, will make this trip with the Blues to add strength on an already powerful front wall.

Unofficial league scoring statistics, complete to this week, show centre Dave Reid leading the pack with thirteen points in four games. Reid is also the league's most prolific goal-getter. Close behind him in second spot is Paul Knox with ten points, while defenseman Red Stephen occupies the third slot with eight. Stephen has seven assists in four games, the best in the league.

In Quebec City Friday the Blues will be renewing their feud with Laval, now sitting at the bottom of the league without a win. Laval actually have a strong team, almost the same one that won the Intercollegiate laurels last season.

In Verdun the Blues will meet with the third place Carabins who have lost the services of winger Claude Hotte for the balance of the season. Montreal suffered a 6-1 setback from McGill last Friday and the Blues should have little trouble posting two wins this weekend to consolidate their hold on first place.

Hockey Record

INTERCOLLEGIATE

Team	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts
Varsity	4	4	0	0	33	12	8
McGill	3	2	1	0	13	12	4
U of M	3	1	2	0	7	26	2
Laval	4	0	4	0	14	27	0

Future Games

Friday — Varsity at Laval
Saturday — Varsity at U of M

LEADING SCORERS

Player	GP	G	A	Pts	Pen
Reid (V)	4	8	5	13	2
Knox (V)	4	6	4	10	4
Stephen (V)	4	1	7	8	0
Fisher (V)	4	3	4	7	4
Laferriere (L)	4	1	6	7	12
Jackson (V)	4	0	7	7	4

Harding Breaks 100 Yd. Record

Dick Harding is at it again. Last Monday Dick set his third senior interfaculty track record running the 100 yds. in 10.6 seconds, two tenths of a second faster than the old mark. Norm Williams placed second, followed by Vic. team-mate John Sopinka, who placed third.

Harding picked up more points for the Engineers in the 600-yd. event. His time of 1:17.8 was good for a tie for first place with grad student, Doug McInteer. Bill Gelling of S.P.S. was third and Lindsay Drummond, also of S.P.S. was fourth.

Only two of the entrants in the 600 yd. event were qualified to participate in the junior division. The winning time, clocked by Bob Lee, of Meds. was a fast 1:20.0, quite good under the circumstances. Val Spring of U.C. was second.

The standard in the junior 100 yds. competition was also quite high. Art Deacon of Vic won the event in 11.4 sec. which would have earned a place in the senior division. Paul Booth of S.P.S. was second and R. Zayer of U.C. was third.

Court Comments

By BILL CORCORAN

We borrowed that thought-recording machine from a downtown newspaper for the exclusive interview with an unnamed member of the Blues. (It is rumored he plays a bit of football in the off season.)

"Boy, I never saw Coachee so steamed up. He must have been reading over our record. Better remind him again, we beat Western this year. Geez he's swinging that giant mandible my way — this guy I'm checking — he's lousy, couldn't make the girls' team, pigeon-toed, and averages eighteen a game! Well this shouldn't be much, I'll keep one eye on him and one eye on that blonde in the stands. This is a pretty manoeuvre but it's amazing the tricks you pick up. Take Madden, when he makes his move he shakes his head from side to side. Everyone thinks he's making a fake but I know he's counting the house — you gotta be able to do more than one thing on this ball club.

Me I eat free meals all week, and sit in the best seat in the house on Saturday night. Of course, things weren't always this easy. Last year I had to play and was too tired to dance afterwards. But this year Fawcett's back and he plays the whole game. It's wonderful, I don't have to run and Fawcett doesn't have to wear that new sweatsuit of his. It looks like it's his old man's. In fact it's so big it looks like it's his old man's old man's.

Well that's the half. We're ahead by ten. Potter must own that hoop by now. There's a funnel between Madden and Stulac.

Madden has tossed that ball in there from behind his back, over his head, under his legs, upside down and inside out. His check is no longer checking him but just trying to stay out of the way of the ball. Stulac is throwing it up and so far has fourteen points.

"Now to run up that score in the second half. Oh, they got a hoop. Geez, they got another one. We threw the ball away. We're not shooting. They're shooting — and how! We're even. We're down six. We're down ten. They got another hoop. They're really hammering us now. They must have had benzedrene at the half. For a study in agony look at Coachee. Their coach must be Metras in disguise. He couldn't hate two guys that bad.

"I wonder what Matsalla did to get this soft deal — must be the coach's brother. He's calling us, I'll pretend that I don't hear him. That's the kick in sitting at the end of the bench. He has to call. He just can't grab you — Matsalla, is he sick? What is he jumping to his feet for. I guess I'd better go too. Oh well, only fifty seconds to go. Voylesie shouldn't get too mad. I wonder where that guy is that I'm supposed to check. He didn't make the trip. Ah, that's better, I'll only go on offence then. That's more like my game.

"Game over. We lose. Where is Coachee? He's coming over here. He's telling me I played a nice game. He's consoling all the guys. Can't tell him I was watching a blonde. I feel terrible. No more blondes. I'll sit in the middle of the bench. Why don't we play double-headers. We'll murder those bums. Come to think of it that coach does like Metras."

— Threats to be carried out against Lawrence Tech. this Saturday — don't miss it.

Sr. Skule Beats Sr. Vic Irish Trounce Dents 6-0

A fast-skating, hard hitting St. Mike's C team out-skated and out-thumped a surprisingly weak Dent C team by the score of 6-0 in a hockey game played at Varsity Arena yesterday. The win boosted the high-flying Irish to within one point of the front running Victoria IV team and three points ahead of the third place Dents.

The game was barely a minute old when the Irish scored their first goal through the courtesy of Mike Eustace. Seconds later Jack Tait let fly a long shot from the blue line that beat Dents' Witchell. Mike Eustace added his second goal of the game later in the period as the Irish skated hard and fast right from the opening whistle.

Dennis Redican, McKinney and Tom Wheeler added singletons to complete the rout.

For St. Mike's goalie Bill MacDougall, it was his first shutout of the current season. He had a soft time compared to Witchell in the Dents' nets. Witchell had the St. Mike's team shooting from all angles at him. It was the performance of this goalie that kept St. Mike's from adding to their total.

In a game that was supposed to be closely contested, Sr. SPS showed that they were a power to be reckoned with as they trounced Sr. Vic 8-3. Harrison led the Skulemen with a two goal effort. Other Skule scorers were Pollock, Hubicki, Cruise, Haig, Bannister and D. Hewson. The scorers for Vic were Sampson, Holden and Truscott.

Dents Overcome UC 43-29 On Janvry's Foul Shots

As the result of a vigorous, aggressive down-court press the Dent A basketball team yesterday squeezed by their taller opponents, Junior U.C., 43-29. After struggling to overcome a two or three point lead sustained by U.C. throughout the game, Dents, managed to tie the score. Then, in the last minute, Zoli Janvry sank two foul shots to give Dents a two point, 41-39 lead. The two shots proved to be enough for the win.

After attaining a seven point lead in the first quarter, the depthless U.C. Redmen settled back into a comfortable zone defence. This defence, however proved to be ineffective, as the Dents' squad started to hit from the outside.

A seemingly very confident, experienced Dave Lampert, with an uncanny set shot accuracy, led the Dent team with ten points.

The game was highlighted by the ball control and deception of Jerry Grey and Lampert. Although Danny Turack and Barry Munro of U.C. were controlling the backboards, Grey and Lampert were constantly stealing the ball, and, through their good dribbling and passing held the ball for long periods particularly near the end of the game.

Outstanding on offence and defence for U.C. was Ron Bezoff whose dazzling drive-in helped him hoop eleven points, high for the game. Munro was U.C.'s next with ten. For Dents Al Riva scored seven, Don Gilbert and Janvry six.

Of interest was the fact that U.C. faced the Dent team without the services of their ace centre Al Vipond.

Blues Meet London Tonight In Intermed Hockey Action

The Intermediate hockey powerhouse with two decisive wins to their credit after one week of action moves down to London to-night to tackle the Western hockey club. Also undefeated, Western has registered victories over Queens and Ryerson, both still untested by the Varsity Seconds.

Varsity will make the trip without forwards Dud Kearney and Doug Court. Kearney injured in the R.M.C. game Friday is still on the limp and will be out of action at least for another week. Court, local Junior Men's Figure Skating Champion, will remain in town to prep for the coming competitions this weekend.

The diminished size of the London arena will present problems to the Blues high flying front lines but should be to the liking of the Intermediate's husky blue-line patrol. The likes of Herb Tilson, John Predergast, Barry Smith, and John Casey should find the reduced dimensions helpful in thwarting the goalward thrusts of the Mustang attackers.

Behind their thumping defence the Intermediates have in Al Fleming, this year's freshman goaltender, one of this season's strongest additions to the Varsity hockey wars. Al, coming to the Intermediates via U.T.S. seniors, has sparkled in the Second's first two outings. Cool as the Engineer's igloo, Al's polished play to date marks him as number one candidate for similar duty with the Senior squad next year.

Coach Jack Weldrake, although apprehensive of the effect of the smaller ice surface, is confident that his well balanced team will provide the opposition with a rugged evening. A victory over the highly rated Mustangs will move the Varsity Intermediates into undisputed top position in league standing.

TODAY

WEDNESDAY

1:00 p.m. — VCF — "A Christian approach to history" — Prof. Reid — rm. 1, Trinity.

1:05 & 1:30 p.m. — FRENCH DEPT. UC. — French film "Van Gogh".

1:10 p.m. — BAHAM STUDENT GROUP — Don Dainty, Engineer — "A Pattern For Future Society".

— HH CAMERA CLUB — Mr. P. Miller, coloured slide of European trip — Club rm., HH.

5:00 p.m. — PHARMACEUTICAL SOC. — Lunch rm. — meeting.

7:00 p.m. — EAC — NFCUS, SHARE, and WUS — Falconer Hall.

8:00 p.m. — MODERN HISTORY CLUB — Col. C. P. Stacey — "A second look at the war of 1812" — Vic Union, Music rm.

8:15 p.m. — TRINITY COLLEGE — Panel Discussion "The Press — Democracy's friend or foe" — Mr. J. B. McGeachie.

COMING-UP

THURSDAY

1:00 p.m. — U. of T. CCF — Socialism Ia — Planning and Public Ownership — rm. 14, Vic.

4:30 p.m. — CARNEGIE RECORD COLLECTION — Chamber music of Fare, Debussy, Ravel — Staff Lounge, Mech. bldg.

6:30 p.m. — CANTERBURY CLUB — Rev. Gerald Haworth — Nicene creed — rm. 10, Trinity.

8:00 p.m. — CHRISTIAN SCIENCE ORGANIZATION — John D. Pickett — Certain and complete available for all.

8:15 p.m. U. of T. LLP CLUB — Tim Buck — "Canada and World Affairs" — Ec. bldg., rm. 115.

BLOOD CAMPAIGN COMING UP

Appointments Made Jan. 17-22

Donations Given Jan. 31 - Feb. 7

The Sportswoman

By PEGGY CAIN

For all the volleyball enthusiasts on this campus comes this important note. Both the Intramural and the Intercollegiate teams are now getting ready for their winter games. The Intramural league got under way Monday night with Vic Jr.—Sr. edging St. Mike's gals by a slim four points. This game is indicative of the good contests seen in the girls loop which often takes a back seat to the ever popular hockey. But for those who have ever taken part in volleyball they find it just as interesting and as stimulating as hockey at its best. There is still a chance for positions on most of the college teams if the girls interested will just contact their volleyball reps.

In the Intramural set up this year there are fourteen teams in four leagues chosen on the basis of their showing in last year's competition. The strongest teams appear to be POT Jr.—Sr., Saint Hildas Jr.—Sr., and the perennial favourites PHE.

Gals interested in volleyball on a higher level can try out for the Intercollegiate team. The practices this week are Wednesday at OCE from 5:30 to 6:30 and Thursdays from 7 to 8 at the Lillian Massey gym. The big tournament is being held at Varsity this year on Feb. 11-12. It is a round robin tourney with 6 teams participating — U. of T., McGill, Western, O.A.C., Queens, MacMaster. Western as always is the team to beat but Varsity's squad under their new coach Sylvia Kerr, M PHE, are counted on to make a very good showing.

SKI TRIP

January 28 - 31 to St. Sauvier

There is a limited amount of accommodation still available for students wishing to go on the Ski Trip.

Make your reservations now at the SAC Office!

THE BLUE and WHITE

presents

THE WINTER CARNIVAL

Square Dance

at the Drill Hall

25c - Friday Nite - 25c

BADMINTON

ALL MEN WHO SIGNED ENTRY LIST FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE BADMINTON TRIALS WILL PLAY AT THE CARLTON CLUB, 94 HAYDEN ST. ON MONDAY, JANUARY 24th AT 3:00 P.M. WHITES MUST BE WORN.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

WANTED
Secretary, 21, seeks serious student or business girl to share cosy apartment, 5 minutes to University. Apply Box 1, S.A.C. Office.

THESES TYPED
Careful attention to detail, expert typing. Reasonable rates. Mrs. Dorothy Jolly. HA. 7267.

FOR SALE
From a doctor's estate, 1 cabinet, 1 trial lens set, ophthalmoscope, projector, Beebe binocular loupe, lens gauge. Contact A. Sinclair, WA. 3-0641.

TYPEWRITERS
Special Student rates. All regular makes; new or rebuilt; rented and sold on terms. Also for supplies, repairs and service. Phone RI. 1843 anytime.

EXPERT TYPIST
Specializing in theses, maximum charge 30c per double spaced 8 1/2 x 11 page. Mrs. Grossman, 969 Castlefield Ave., Eglinton - Oakwood district. RU. 1-1041.

STENOGRAPHIC SERVICES
Gonik Stenographic Services — all types of stenographic work. Manuscripts and medical reports a specialty. WA. 2-9483 — 21 Russell St. (just off St. George).

ACCOMMODATION
Professional worker, girl 25 wishes to share apartment with 1 or 2 graduate girls. Phone EM. 6-2291 — Local 8-9-5.

FOR RENT
Business girl has comfortable apartment to share. Reasonable. St. Clair-Yonge. WA. 4-4203.

GAMES TO-DAY

HOCKEY
1:30 — Dent. B vs. Trin. B — Reid, Fisher
4:15 — For. A vs. Law — Gryfe, Callahan

BASKETBALL
— MAJOR LEAGUE
1:00 — Sr. SPS vs. Sr. U.C. — Scott, Thomson
6:30 — Med. IV vs. SPS IX — Stefanliw, Gray

SQUASH
4:20 — U.C. II vs. Dent. B
7:00 — Med. V vs. Dent. C

BASKETBALL
— MINOR LEAGUE (HART HOUSE)
1:00 — I Mech A vs. I Elec A — Sone
4:00 — For. III Yr. vs. Knox Beeties — McLay
5:00 — II Elec vs. Dent. III Yr. — McLay
6:00 — Vic Cannibals vs. I Eng. Phys. A — Grosfield
7:00 — Vic Gate House vs. II Chem. A — Grosfield
8:00 — Arch. B vs. Pharm. Pesties — Grosfield

BASKETBALL
— MINOR LEAGUE (VIC GYM)
4:00 — U.C. Tigers vs. Vic. Thrags — D. Love
5:00 — Vic. North House vs. I Mining — D. Love
6:00 — I Metal vs. U.C. Hawks — Gryfe
7:00 — I Elec. B vs. Trin. Jets — Gryfe

EXPORT
CANADA'S FINEST
CIGARETTE

stay in or get out?

The NFCUS Controversy

Finance And Fifty Cents Considered By President

By BILL ANGUS, SAC President, Current Year

There has been some question as to whether the S.A.C. could financially contribute fifty cents to NFCUS. The following is designed to clarify the financial position of the S.A.C. in this respect.

The S.A.C. budget based on 7,900 students has set aside 20c per student for NFCUS membership fees. If Toronto votes to stay in NFCUS, she will pay this budgeted amount of 20c for this year's membership. Thus, there is no problem of meeting the 20c level this year.

Student enrollment this year is actually close to 8,250. With this unbudgeted for increase there will be a reasonable surplus on the year's operations with additional expenditures on worthy projects before the end of the year from this source.

JAN. 31ST DEADLINE

If Toronto decides to stay in NFCUS, we must guarantee to budget on the basis of 50c per student next year. If we do not, Toronto membership ceases as of January 31st, 1955.

The question is — can we pay this 50c per student and how?

INCREASED REVENUE NEXT YEAR

There are two known and official sources of increased revenue for next year:

(1) Student enrollment will increase to approximately 8,860 students paying S.A.C. fees. A conservative and safe basis for budget calculation has been officially confirmed as 8,600. Increased Revenue: $3,500. (700 x $5.)

(2) The S.A.C. Book Exchange at the end of every year has a surplus from uncollected amounts on books sold. This has been added to S.A.C. revenue in past years and held back as a "buffer" without being budgeted for. Next year however, this must be budgeted to comply with common university financial practices. Increased Revenue: $1,400.

Total Increased Revenue from these two sources — $4,900.

In addition, there is the likelihood of increased revenue for the S.A.C. from a variety of other sources.

50c TO NFCUS

This year, at 20c per student and with 7,900 students, the S.A.C. budgeted $1,580. for NFCUS membership.

Next year, at 50c per student and with 8,600 students, the S.A.C. must budget $4,300. for NFCUS membership.

Therefore, difference to be made up from Increased Revenue — $2,720.

($4,300-$1,580.) Increased Revenue Remaining for Other S.A.C. Activities — $2,180.

($4,900-$2,720.) From this remaining increased revenue, an amount of $1,000, approximately, will be consumed in additional administrative expense.

CONCLUSION

It appears certain, therefore, that not only can the payment of 50c per student to NFCUS be successfully met, but that S.A.C. activities presently maintained will not suffer. Further, it would seem that there are the financial resources in increased revenue to expand S.A.C. activities.

NFCUS at a Glance

By GORDON HURLBURT

SAC, NFCUS Chairman

—Founded in 1926, and has been active ever since except for 4 years during the II World War, and 4 years during the depression.

—It is composed and run by Canadian University Students according to the democratic majority of its members.

—There are 19 member universities at the present time.

—All students are individually members who are registered with their Student Council and said Student Council has upheld and fulfilled the requirements for membership in NFCUS.

—The policy of this national organization is set by the annual conference — held this year in Hart House.

—A local committee is set up composed of a local chairman, his committee, and chairman of subcommittees who execute mandates. This committee is considered a portion of the External Affairs section of the Students' Council.

—The Executive Committee is composed of a full-time president, (Doug Burns), and four regional vice-presidents for Western, Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritimes regions.

—A National Secretariat is composed of a full-time president, a bilingual executive secretary to help the president, and a part-time bilingual stenographer.

—A Travel Department composed of a full-time Travel Director and a part-time stenographer. A Travel Board is composed of the president, a past president, and one vice-president.

—NFCUS has a national program of mandates such as our own scholarships and bursary campaign, and also handles travel and inter-regional scholarships.

—NFCUS belongs to Cosoc, and in the past has shown active interest in a Pan American Union.

—NFCUS is considered a focal point of university opinion and its position of leadership and respect abroad reflects quite favourably on the students of this Canadian union.

... and a still, small protest

Two Readers Reply

The Editor,
The Varsity.

We were interested to read Mr. Peter Martin's encomium on the organization which he heads on this campus. We did not expect an impartial evaluation from a NFCUS executive; we were not disappointed.

Most remarkable are Mr. Martin's contentions that Canadian national pride is partly a result of NFCUS activity, and that the University of Toronto will suffer a shattered reputation if it does not send Mr. Martin to next year's conference. We doubt that the students of Canada look to the University of Toronto for student leadership any more than the Canadian nation looks to Toronto for national leadership. Our intellectual and academic prestige does not depend on a fifty-cent contribution to a moribund union of students.

There are three questions which should be raised about NFCUS activity: First, must NFCUS administration absorb threequarters of NFCUS revenue? Second, do national conferences accomplish anything other than providing free holidays for campus politicians? Finally, can Mr. Martin show us any concrete, valuable NFCUS accomplishments, other than the rail fare reductions and exchange scholarships, both achieved so many years ago? We are certain that the national scholarship campaign is a waste of effort; we find the metaphysical benefits of spiritual membership in a Canadian student mass to be of decidedly little value.

We hope that this still, small protest does not place us in the category of "a noisy people", to whom Mr. Martin so slightly refers.

R. Dawson.
I. Drummond.
Graduate Studies—English
Graduate Studies—Economics

THIS SUMMER
EARN
While You Learn
IN ISRAEL

Professionals
and Advanced Students

particularly in ENGINEERING, CHEMISTRY, PHYSICS, MEDICINE, SURVEYING, GEOLOGY and AGRICULTURE as well as other fields, who wish to take advantage this summer of the excellent opportunities existing in their respective fields in Israel, are urged to contact:

YOUTH AND CHALUTZIUT COMMISSION
PATWA DIVISION
2025 UNIVERSITY STREET
MONTREAL
BELAIR 2831 — LOCAL 14

TRAVEL EXPENSES

RETURN, borne by participant himself but advantage will be taken of special excursions which may provide a reduced rate.

SIGHT SEEING

and EDUCATIONAL TOURS of the country all at the expense of PATWA.

SALARY

according to qualifications

EUROPE

1955

STUDENT TOURS Sail May 28 or June 14 tourist class on S.S. Homeric from Quebec on special conducted tours limited to Students. A week in London, Holland, including Volendam and Isle of Marken, Brussels, Cologne, the Rhine by steamer, motor tour of the Black Forest, Liechtenstein, Austrian Tyrol, Bavarian Castles, Dolomites, Venice, Adriatic Coast, tiny republic of San Marino, Rome, the Hill Towns, Florence, Italian and French Riviera, French Alps, Switzerland, Paris, Motor tour of Scotland, English Lakes, North Wales, Shakespeare Country, Exmoor, Glorious Devon. Returning tourist class on the S.S. Homeric arriving Quebec July 26 or August 12, respectively.

INDEPENDENT TRAVEL Choose your departure and return dates; include as much or as little as you wish in the price category of your choice — all on a pre-arranged, prepaid basis. An itinerary that is made to order for you.

Ask for descriptive folders

UNIVERSITY TRAVEL CLUB LTD.

57 BLOOR ST. WEST, TORONTO — WA. 4-1139

Management: J. F. & G. H. Lucas

EATON'S

does the Rope Trick!

Inspired, absolutely inspired — these ropes of lumpy, chunky beads! Big ones, little ones, fat ones, thin ones . . . all in a glorious confusion of size and colour! Ropes almost 60 inches long to loop and knot and twist . . . many with matching drop earrings!

